MONTHLY ADVERTISER. The monthly advertiser.
Liverpool, Edward Moore and Co., 1862.

8" 8 in. No. 1, December 15th, 1862.

Add to note. Copies of the number were also issued with the title reading "The Stamp Collector's Monthly Advertiser," as on No. 2 of the journal. Both varieties of No. 1 were printed from the same setting-up of the type, all the broken type-letters throughout each of them occupying corresponding positions, and beyond the addition of the words "The Stamp Collectors'" to the title the only slight difference between them consists in the imprint at the foot of the last page—"Liverpool:—Printed by T. S. McGhie & Co., 12 Cable-street"—having shifted a little to the right in the last variety.

This was the first journal entirely devoted to Philately that was published in any country. Much has been written by collectors of philatelic literature concerning this epoch-making publication, but no one has ever mentioned that No. 1 existed with two different titles. It was a great surprise, therefore, when I recently found an example with the form of title the publishers adopted for No. 2. This was in a copy of Vol I of the journal in the cloth binding provided by the publishers.
