Testimony taken, by Frederick Bates, commissioner, at Camp Esperance, June 28, 1808. Joseph Stillwell, sworn, says that he has no interest in this claim; (sworn in chief.) says that, in 1798, witness was on this tract of land, in the month of April; had a cabin built; and in the course of that year enclosed fifteen or twenty acres of land, and cultivated a part thereof; claimant continued to inhabit and cultivate the first improvement, and to enlarge the same, till the year 1806.

Sylvanus Phillips, sworn, says that claimant arrived at Arkansas early in March, 1798, and very soon afterwards commenced his improvements on the tract of land now claimed; and witness repeats the same facts mentioned in the foregoing testimony of Joseph Stillwell.

William Bassett, sworn, says that William Winters was in possession of this tract when witness arrived in this country, in the year 1799; had a cabin, and perhaps more than one, in that year; a considerable plantation enclosed; the number of acres not known or not recollected by witness; several acres that year in cultivation; claimant inhabited and cultivated this tract constantly from the year 1799 till 1805 or 1806.

Testimony taken, as aforesaid, at Arkansas village, July 5, 1808: Andrew Fagot, sworn, says that claimant came to the Arkansas in 1798, bringing with him a stock of cattle, to wit, a stallion, a mare, some horned cattle, and sheep; in same year claimant took possession of the lands claimed; in the month of March, built a dwelling house and several out-houses; cleared, enclosed, and cultivated about thirty acres; remained inhabiting and cultivating for five or six of the following years.

Francis Vaugine, sworn, says that William Winters arrived at Arkansas in the year 1798 or 1799; in the fall of same year (as well as witness recollects) took possession of these lands; built a dwelling house and cabins for his slaves; he also erected a cotton gin; about forty-five or perhaps fifty acres cleared, enclosed, and cultivated, in the course of a few years, after the first establishment; continued to inhabit and cultivate the premises for four or five years.

Francis Vaugine, sworn, says that Winters arrived at Arkansas in the year 1798 or 1799, and left this country in April, 1806; during this intermediate time, premises were constantly inhabited and cultivated; when claimant left this part of the country, a tenant was left by him on these premises, to wit, his brother-in-law.

The following testimony in this claim was taken by John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, at St. Genevieve, 2d May, 1809, by authority from the Board.

Boston Butcher, duly sworn, deposes that the land claimed is situated two miles and a half from St. Genevieve, northwest of said place; that he was employed by claimant to make rails and fence on premises, which he did about the last part of September, 1803; that the enclosure he then made contained about one half of an acre; that he, deponent, planted cherry trees for said claimant in the said enclosure in October or November of the aforesaid year; that the said land was cultivated the next following year for the use of claimant.

December 14, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

JACQUE CLAMORGAN, claiming forty by eighty arpents of land, situate in Merrimack, district of St. Louis; produces a duly registered concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated 5th October, 1793, and a survey of the same, dated 28th and certified 29th February, 1806; produces also record of a declaration from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor; that he had put claimant in possession of said land, with a figurative plat accompanying the same, dated 5th October, 1793.

Testimony taken, July 17, 1806. John Boli, being duly sworn, says that one James Head, who had lived on said land, moved out about ten years ago; that a person by the name of House afterwards moved on the same; raised two crops, and was afterwards, to wit, about six years ago, killed by the Indians; witness cannot tell for whose use he then cultivated the said land.

July 17, 1806: Present, John B. C. Lucas and Clement B. Penrose, commissioners. The Board reject this claim. They are satisfied that the said concession was granted at the time it bears date.

December 14, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

ANTOINE VINCENT BOUIS, claiming one thousand arpents of land, situate on the river Missouri, district of St. Louis; produces a concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated 11th November, 1794.

Testimony taken, January 29, 1808. Jean Louis Marc, duly sworn, says that at least twelve years ago, during the time that Don Zenon Trudeau was Lieutenant Governor of Upper Louisiana, he, the deponent, applied to him for a tract of land, situate between Emilian Yosti and Nicolas Lecompte; the Lieutenant Governor replied that he believed he had already granted the said land to Antoine Vincent Bouis; the deponent being informed by several other persons that the said land did belong to Antoine Vincent Bouis, he went to him and agreed with him to settle on said land for three or four years as the tenant of said Bouis; and that said Vincent Bouis was to let him have three or four arpents of land if he complied with his contract; and that the said Vincent Bouis verbally agreed to give the deponent ten or twelve head of cows, and from sixteen to twenty sows. This agreement took place in the fall, and in the spring following he, the deponent, went on said tract of land and built a small cabin, and made sugar; and that in the spring following he built a good cabin on the land between Yosti and Lecompte, on a place which he supposed would be vacant, and that in case he was on the land of Antoine Vincent Bouis he would get land from said Bouis, but should it be vacant, he would hold it in his own right; made and fenced in a field of about three arpents, and continued on it about twenty months. Further saith that Vincent Bouis never complied with his contract, but told him that his time was still going on; that said Vincent Bouis's stock was scattered about in the rushes, and could not collect them; that when the lines should be drawn, he would allow him the land according to contract; that during the time he was settled on said land, a man by the name of Shultz went and cut house-logs on said tract; and that the deponent gave notice of it to Antoine Vincent Bouis; and that the said Bouis applied to the Lieutenant Governor, Zenon Trudeau, and obtained an order forbidding the said Shultz from cutting logs on said land; further says that his house was in the road of the Indians to their hunting ground, and that his wife was frequently insulted by them; he therefore left the house and went near to St. Charles, expecting to return when there should be other settlers near the place which he had left; says that he went a voyage up the Missouri, and when he returned found trees marked on said land; says that at the time he made said settlement he considered himself as the tenant of Antoine Vincent Bouis; further saith that about seven or eight months after he had settled with his family in his large cabin, Joseph Williams came and settled near him; deponent saith that while settled on said land he raised corn, tobacco, and garden stuff; had raised nothing when said Williams made his settlement, it not being planting time, but had fenced in his field.

Testimony taken, February 1, 1808. Louis Braseau, duly sworn, says that he saw Jean Louis Marc making sugar at the bottom of a hill near the road from St.

Louis to St. Charles, about ten or eleven years ago; the said Jean Louis Marc told deponent at that time that he was working on the land of Antoine V. Bouis; deponent further saith that he knows that Jean Louis Marc was making sugar between the settlement of Emilian Yosti and Nicolas Lecompte, and that there was a cabin built on said place, in which said Jean Louis then lived.

November 1, 1809: Present a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed; Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, voting for the confirmation thereof.

SAMUEL DORSEY, claiming eight hundred arpents of land, situate on the Mississippi, district of Cape Girardeau; produces to the Board a concession for the same, from Don Carlos Dehault Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 28th December, 1799; a plat of survey, dated 3d February, 1806; certified to be received for record 26th February, same year, by Antoine Soulard, surveyor general.

July 12, 1809: Present, a full Board. This claim being now taken up, and a vote taken thereon, the Board are unanimously of opinion that it ought not to be confirmed.

MORRIS WILLIAMS, LEMON and JAMES HODGE, claiming seven hundred and twenty arpents of land, situate on Cape Labrouche creek, district of Cape Girardeau; produce to the Board a certificate of permission to settle from Louis Lorimier, commandant of Cape Girardeau district, dated June 7th, 1808, and sworn to before Robert Green.

The following testimony in the foregoing claim was taken by Frederick Bates, commissioner, at Cape Girardeau, June 7, 1808, by authority from the Board. Andrew Ramsay, Sen., duly sworn, says that the premises were settled in the year 1797, built a cabin, cleared, enclosed, and cultivated a field of two or three acres; premises cultivated two years in succession, and again in the year 1800 they were inhabited and cultivated.

Testimony as aforesaid, taken at New Madrid. June 13, 1809. Moses Hurley, sworn, says that in 1797 premises were settled; built a house and lived in it, and cleared, enclosed, and cultivated a field, and four crops raised in succession a part of this time, to wit, 1799; premises were occupied by witness as tenant for claimants. William Smith, duly sworn, says that in 1798 a crop was cultivated on premises, and two houses built; next year cleared six or eight acres; cultivation continued till the end of the year 1800, after which premises left vacant the cultivation for claimants.

March 19, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

BARTHOLOMEW COUSIN, claiming eight thousand arpents of land, with allowance of three twentieths for roads, &c., produces to the Board a concession from Don Carlos Dehault Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, for the same, dated 31st March, 1803; a plat of survey of one thousand arpents, situate on the river Mississippi, and Cape Lacruche creek, district of Cape Girardeau, dated 5th March, 1800, and certified 27th February, 1806, a plat of survey of one thousand one hundred and thirteen arpents and thirty-nine perches, situate on the Mississippi, district as aforesaid, dated 5th March, 1800, countersigned Antoine Soulard, surveyor general of Louisiana; a plat of survey of four thousand seven hundred arpents of an island in the Mississippi, district as aforesaid, dated 5th March, 1800, and certified 27th February, 1806; a plat of survey of three thousand three hundred and fifty arpents, situate on the forks of White Water creek, district as aforesaid, certified 27th February, 1806, by Antoine Soulard, surveyor general of the Territory of Louisiana; a plat of survey of one thousand and eighty-two arpents and forty-one perches, claimed partly as assignee of Baptiste Godair, to wit, for one hundred and seventy-five arpents, situate on the Big Swamp, district aforesaid, certified 27th February, 1806, by Antoine Soulard, surveyor general; a deed of transfer from John Baptiste Godair, for said one hundred seventy-five arpents, dated 28th July, 1804, the grant in this claim stated to be given as compensation for services rendered by claimant as interpreter and public writer, for which he is said never to have received any other compensation; produces also to the Board a petition from William Smith, to the commandant of Cape Girardeau, for the sale of certain property left by Benjamin Rose in August, 1799, together with the order of said commandant for the sale thereof, dated 7th May, 1802, a paper signed William Smith and Edward Hogan, dated 16th October, 1802, purporting to be a valuation and arbitration of labor done by Stephen Quimby on said survey, also Stephen Quimby's receipt for the amount of the award; also a paper purporting to be the conditions by which a certain Thomas Welburn rented premises of B. Cousin, and an order from Louis Lorimier to prevent Daniel Sexton from trespassing on the premises dated 26th September, 1804; a petition of B. Cousin, and the decree of Don Carlos Dehault Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, for annulling the concession and warrant of survey of Benjamin Rose and Morris Williams, dated 12th December, 1803.

The following acknowledgment was made before Frederick Bates, commissioner, at Cape Girardeau, June 4, 1808. B. Cousin acknowledges that he surveyed this tract for B. Rose 12th April, 1799, by decree of Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor.

November 26, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

JAMES BRADY, assignee of Benjamin Rose, interfering with the above claim, claiming two hundred and forty arpents of land, situate on the Mississippi, district of Cape Girardeau; produces to the Board an affidavit of permission to settle, in favor of Benjamin Rose, from Louis Lorimier, commandant of Cape Girardeau district, dated 30th June, 1808; and a deed of transfer from said Rose to claimant, dated 25th April, 1808.

The following testimony taken June 3d, 1808, at Cape Girardeau, by Frederick Bates, commissioner. Andrew Ramsay, Sen., duly sworn, says that Rose settled in 1798, built a cabin, cleared, enclosed, and cultivated a small lot; the premises were cultivated and inhabited the whole of the year 1803; about ten acres in cultivation. Solomon Thorn, duly sworn, says that Rose cleared, enclosed, and cultivated, in the year 1798, about three or four acres; left it with Smith and Ramsay, in the fall of that year, or spring of 1799, as tenants to take care of his property, stock, &c.; the premises were cultivated in the year 1803, six or seven acres, as witness believes, for Rose.

Testimony taken, June 6, 1809. Andrew Ramsay, Sen., duly sworn, says that on the return of Rose to this country, he remonstrated with the commandant against the hardship of losing his lands on account of his absence. To which the commandant replied, you ought to have your lands. Witness then went with him to B. Cousin, the interfering claimant, who promised to supply him with lands elsewhere. Rose refused this offer.

The following testimony taken at New Madrid, June 15, 1808, by Frederick Bates, commissioner. William Smith, duly sworn, says that the premises were settled, inhabited, and cultivated, in the years 1799 and 1800; a house was built during this time, and between two and three acres cleared, enclosed, and cultivated. In the latter year, after laying by his crop, Rose went to Kentucky for his family. On his arrival in Kentucky, Rose wrote to witness, informing him that he had been arrested for debt, and could not immediately return, concluding with a request that witness should take care of his plantation until his affairs could be settled, when he intended to bring out his family. In compliance with this request, witness put one Franklin as a tenant on this land in the year 1801. On the removal of whom, in the same year, one Quimby was put on the premises by witness, as agent for Rose, who cultivated one or two crops.

November 26, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

CHARLES FINDLEY, assignee of William Patterson, claiming four hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate on Tywappety, district of New Madrid; produces an order of survey from Henry Peyroux, commandant, dated 19th December, 1800; a certified copy of a lease and obligation to convey premises to claimant, dated 9th February, 1802.

Testimony taken, August 26, 1806. William Smith, being duly sworn, says that the said William Patterson, who was at the time of obtaining said warrant of survey, the head of a family, did, prior to and on the 1st day of October, 1800, actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land.

Testimony taken at New Madrid, June 15, 1808, by Frederick Bates, commissioner. William Smith, duly sworn, says premises were improved in the fall of 1800, at which time a cabin was built; in the following year the premises were cultivated and inhabited, and constantly to this time; about forty or fifty acres now in cultivation; Patterson had a wife and about seven children in 1803.

December 4, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

CHARLES FINDLEY, assignee of Resa Bowie, claiming three hundred arpents of land, situate on the Mississippi, district of New Madrid; produces an order of survey from Henry Peyroux, commandant, dated 19th December, 1800; a power of attorney from said Bowie to Abraham Byrd to give a deed for said land, dated April the 6th, 1802; and a deed of transfer for the same, dated 4th December, 1805.

Testimony taken, August 26, 1806. William Smith, being duly sworn, says that, at the request of said Bowie, he applied to the commandant for a concession for said land, which was accordingly granted; that the said Resa Bowie did, prior to, and on the 1st day of October, 1800, actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land, and was then the head of a family.

Testimony taken, June 15, 1808, at New Madrid, by Frederick Bates, commissioner. William Smith, duly sworn, says that premises were settled in the year 1800; at which time he built two cabins and dug a well; cultivated the land in the following year, and till the year 1803; since which time it has been occasionally inhabited, but not cultivated, that witness knows. Robert Lane, sworn, says that turnips were sown in 1800, and that premises were cultivated by Lloyd for claimant in 1804.

December 4, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

CHARLES FINDLEY, assignee of Richard Green, claiming three hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate on Tywappety, district of New Madrid; produces a certificate of permission to settle from Henry Peyroux, commandant, dated 21st March, 1804, and a survey of the same.

Testimony taken, 26th August, 1806. William Smith, being duly sworn, says that the said Richard Green settled the same tract of land in the year 1802, and actually inhabited and cultivated it until the latter end of 1803, when claimant having purchased the same, put a person on it, who actually inhabited and cultivated it to this day; Green had a wife and three children.

Testimony taken at New Madrid, June 15, 1808. William Smith, duly sworn, says that premises were cultivated and inhabited in the year 1802; at which time a house was built, and a field of a few acres cleared, enclosed, and cultivated; constantly inhabited and cultivated to this time: Green had a wife and three or four children in 1803.

December 4, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

RICHARD JONES WATERS, claiming from one-half to one arpent of land on each side of bayou St. Ann and bayou St. Martin, district of New Madrid; produces to the Board a petition, dated 22d December, 1796, with a recommendation from Charles D. Delassus, commandant, dated 29th December, 1796; a certificate of survey of eighty arpents, dated 27th February, 1806.

Testimony taken, March 5, 1806. Marie P. Leduc, being duly sworn, says that in the year 1799 he saw the mill, in consideration of the building of which the said concession had been obtained; that the same was then in operation, and two races dug.

Testimony taken at New Madrid, June 21, 1808. George Ruddell, duly sworn, says premises were cultivated on each side of the bayou, below the junction of the two bayous St. Mary and St. Ann, in 1796, and constantly to the present time, and also habited during most of this time; about the year 1799 a mill was built on premises, which continued to work (grind wheat and corn) till the year 1801, when it fell into the river, with the bank on which it was erected.

On examination of sundry documents now before the Board, and stated by the recorder to have been received by him while on a mission from the Board to the lower districts, and surrendered to him by the recorder of New Madrid district, on a subpena duces tecum, directed to said recorder of New Madrid, which writ issued by him in capacity of commissioner authorized by the Board to take testimony in said lower districts, there is found a petition of Richard Jones Waters, dated 15th April, 1796, for said tract of land, with a decree of Baron Carondelet, Governor General, dated 23d July, 1796, that the same shall not be allowed.

March 5, 1806: Present, Clement B. Penrose and James L. Donaldson, commissioners. The Board confirm to the said claimant his tract, as per his concession.

April 1 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

ANDREW SUMMERS, claiming two hundred and twenty-five arpents of land, situate on the Mississippi, district of New Madrid; list No. 1369 is produced by claimant as permission to settle, on which claimant will be found No. 213, for two hundred and twenty-five arpents; said list on file; a plat of survey, dated 10th February, 1801.

Testimony taken, March 14, 1806. George Wilson, being duly sworn, says that the said claimant did, prior to and on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land.

March 14, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board grant the said claimant two hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate as aforesaid, provided so much be found vacant there.

May 10, 1806: Present, Lucas, Penrose, and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board revoke their grant made to Andrew Summers on the 14th day of March last, of a tract of two hundred and twenty-five arpents of land, situate at the Little Prairie, district of New Madrid.

The following testimony in this claim taken at New Madrid, June 15, 1808, by Frederick Bates, commissioner. Jacob Waggoner, duly sworn, says that the said premises were inhabited and cultivated in the year 1801; premises constantly inhabited and cultivated to this time; claimant had a wife and slave in 1803; thirty or forty acres in cultivation, and a good orchard.

October 6, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

It is within the recollection of two of the members of this Board, to wit, John B. C. Lucas and Clement B. Penrose, that George Wilson, who gave testimony in the above claim on the 14th March, 1806, did again appear on the 10th May, 1806, before the Board, and acknowledged that the testimony given on the said 14th March was materially incorrect, in consequence of which the Board revoked the grant made on the 14th March, as stated.

The Board remark that the following testimony given by James Earl, in a claim which the Board have this day granted to said Andrew Summers, shows that the inhabitation and cultivation, proved by Jacob Waggoner, as stated, could not have been personally done by Andrew Summers.

Testimony, as follows. James Earl, being duly sworn, says that the said claimant did move from the Little Prairie, in the district of New Madrid, to Cape Garardeau, in the spring of 1802; that he settled said tract of land in the same year, and did, prior to and on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabit and cultivate the same, and had then a wife and child.

FRANCIS JACOBS, claiming two hundred arpents of land, situate at Tywappety, district of New Madrid; produces to the Board a certified list of permissions to settle, formerly given, No. 1369, on which claimant is No. 158.

Testimony taken, at New Madrid, June 16, 1803. George Hacker, duly sworn, says that claimant cut house logs in 1802; premises inhabited and cultivated in the year 1805, and until the end of the year 1807; no family; about forty years of age; ten acres in cultivation the present year, and three cabins.

December 12, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

FRANCIS MICHEL, claiming one thousand seven hundred and twenty arpents of land, situate on the north-east side of Turk bay, district of Arkansas; produces to the Board a plat of survey, dated 7th April, 1806.

July 23, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

HARDY WARE, assignee of David Helderbrand, claiming nine hundred and sixty arpents of land, situate on the Merrimack, district of St Louis; produces to the Board a notice of claim to the recorder.

Testimony taken, October 27, 1808. John Cummins, sworn, says that David Helderbrand settled on the tract claimed in 1801, and inhabited and cultivated the same for three years, to wit, 1801, 1802, and 1803; then sold to claimant for two hundred dollars in property; afterwards heard said Helderbrand acknowledge to have received payment for the same: Hardy Ware then moved on the same in January, 1804, and inhabited and cultivated it that and the next year.

August 24, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted. The reasons for which the majority of the Board are of opinion that this claim ought not to be granted, are, because no written transfer of David Helderbrand to claimant has been produced; secondly, because the claimant, Hardy Ware, has not produced any evidence of permission granted to David Helderbrand to settle, and that the permission to settle which was granted to David Helderbrand, as appears by the sworn certificate of James Mackay, formerly commandant, hath been applied and made use of by said Helderbrand in a claim which he has on record, and is acted upon. Furthermore, the said majority states that it appears that Hardy Ware was present at the time the testimony in his claim was given in: that the same testimony was closed in his presence; that the said claimant made, at the same time, several declarations which were then taken down on the minutes, wherein nothing appears or is suggested concerning any permission to settle.

Frederick Bates, commissioner, is of opinion that one hundred arpents ought to be granted to David Helderbrand, or his legal representatives, as the permission to settle, believed to be the only alleged defect in this claim, has been improperly adduced in evidence in another claim of the said David Helderbrand, on which such inhabitation and cultivation as the act of Congress requires have not been proven.

October 27, 1808. Hardy Ware, being present, declares that in 1803 he lived at the mines; that he inhabited and cultivated the place which James Smirl claims in 1799, and continued to inhabit and cultivate it until the spring of 1803; then went to the mines and rented a tract of Abraham Baker, and raised a crop; returned to Smirl's place in the fall of 1803, and continued on the same until the spring of 1804; then went to the place which he bought of David Helderbrand.

DAVID FINE, claiming one thousand and forty acres of land, situate on the river Mathias, district of St. Louis; produces a plat of survey, dated the 25th and certified the 28th February, 1806.

Testimony taken, May 6, 1807. William James, being duly sworn, says that he has known the said claimant, David Fine, for these four years last past; that he has raised four crops on said land, and was four years ago actually inhabiting the same; and that in the fall and winter of the following year he was on said tract.

Elijah Baker, being also duly sworn, says that he knew the said claimant about twenty-six years ago; that he arrived with him in the country in April of the year 1802; that either in February or March of the year 1803 he saw him on the said tract; that, in the month of June or July following, he saw a field on said tract and corn growing on it; that, about the 1st day of November of that year, claimant was cribbing corn on the same; that he saw him on the same at different times; that he, the witness, commonly went by said tract two or three times a year, and always saw corn in the field or crib.

Testimony taken, October 13, 1807. Philip Fine, being duly sworn, says that, speaking with the Spanish Lieutenant Governor, Mr. Delassus, early in the year 1803, on the subject of settling on vacant land, he was informed by said Lieutenant Governor that no concessions could be granted at that time, but that any person coming to the country might settle on vacant land; that his brother, the claimant, arrived shortly after in Louisiana, and was informed by him, the witness, of what had passed between him and the Lieutenant Governor, in consequence of which his brother settled on the land claimed: in the year 1803 he built a cabin, and raised a crop that year, and has inhabited and cultivated the same ever since; and had at that time a wife and six children.

John Romine, being duly sworn, says that the claimant has lived on the land claimed five seasons, and raised five crops.

August 20, 1811. Present, Clement B. Penrose and Frederick Bates, commissioners. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

MANUEL LISA, assignee of Francis Lacombe, claiming four hundred arpents of land, situate on the Merrimack, district of St. Louis; produces to the Board a concession from Charles Dehault Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, to Francis Lacombe for the same, dated August 1st, 1799; a deed of conveyance from said Lacombe to claimant, dated 14th May, 1804.

Louis Menard, sworn, says that in the fall of the year before Adam House was killed on the Merrimack, that François Lacombe and his wife were residing on the tract claimed; that the whole neighborhood abandoned their land immediately after said House was killed.

July 9, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

ALEXANDER MCNAIR and BOYD DENNY, assignees of James Rankin, who was assignee of John Lafleur, claiming four hundred arpents of land, situate in Bonhomme settlement, district of St. Louis; produces a concession from Charles D. Delassus, dated 14th December, 1799, and a survey of the same, dated the 2d and certified the 15th November of the same year, together with a deed of sale from Lafleur to said James Rankin, dated 10th January, 1804, and another deed of sale from said Rankin to claimants, dated the 28th September of the same year.

James Mackay, being duly sworn, says that the aforesaid survey is one of the first he took in this country; that the said Lafleur, having gone with him, the witness, on a voyage of discovery up the river Missouri, at his return, he, the said James, obtained from the Lieutenant Governor the aforesaid concession for the said Lafleur, as a compensation for his services on that expedition.

September 8, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

AUGUSTE CHOUTEAU, attorney of Peter Fouche, attorney of Madame Delore Sarpy, representing Charles Dehault Delassus, claiming twenty thousand arpents of land, thirteen thousand one hundred of which are situated on the river Cuvire, and six thousand nine hundred on the Saline river, district of St. Charles; produces to the Board a concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, to said Delassus, dated 18th June, 1796, and registered with Narcissus Brouten, notary public at New Orleans, the 16th May, 1807; a plat of survey of thirteen thousand one hundred arpents, dated 15th April, 1801, and certified 20th May, 1801; also a plat of survey of six thousand nine hundred arpents, dated 30th March, 1801, and certified 20th May, of the same year; a deed of transfer from said Delassus to Lille Sarpy, dated 30th January, 1804.

Tuesday, July 10, 1810: Present, full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. [See Appendix for copy of an official letter from Baron de Carondelet to Zenon Trudeau, dated 8th May, 1793; also a copy of a letter from Delassus to Soulard, dated 17th June, 1797.]

JOSEPH SPENCER, Jun. and THOMAS ORME, who claim, as assignees of John Capheart, four hundred arpents of land, being one half of a tract of eight hundred arpents, situate at Murphy's settlement, district of St. Genevieve; produce to the Board a concession for the same from Carlos Dehault Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, to John Capheart, dated 18th December, 1801; also a plat of survey of the same, dated 22d February, 1804, and certified 3d March, same year. John Smith T., produces a notice to the recorder, and an assignment from said Capheart to John Smith T., dated 13th June, 1806.

Testimony taken, October 26, 1808. David Murphy, sworn, says that John Capheart inhabited and cultivated the tract claimed in 1802; in 1803 rented it to one Davis, who did not inhabit or cultivate it, but paid rent in presence of witness; says that John Capheart was a single man.

June 26, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

HEZEKIAH P. HARRIS, assignee of Joseph Boyce, assignee of William and Elizabeth Fitzgibbons, claiming five hundred and seventy-eight acres and sixty poles of land, situate in Bois Bruile, district of St. Genevieve; produces to the Board an assignment from William and Elizabeth Fitzgibbons to Joseph Boyce, dated 20th March, 1804; a conveyance from William Boyce, for Joseph Boyce, to claimant, dated 23d September, 1805; a plat of survey, dated February 5, 1806, certified 27th February, 1806, Testimony taken, October 22, 1808. Alexander McConohon, sworn, says that in 1803 William Fitzgibbons built a house on the tract claimed, inhabited and cultivated it that year, and one year afterwards; that it has been inhabited and cultivated ever since by John Smith, Sen.; that in 1806, witness was informed by the mother of Fitzgibbons, that said Fitzgibbons was of age in 1803; says that Mary Fitzgibbons, the mother, William Fitzgibbons and a brother and sister, lived on the place at the same time.

John Smith, Sen., appears before the Board as the representative of Isaac Devee, and enters a caveat against the confirmation of this tract. William Girty, the agent of Hezekiah P. Harris, being also present, and each party declaring that they are ready to go into an investigation.

Reuben Middleton, sworn, says that William Fitzgibbons acknowledged to this deponent, in the year 1804, that the work done by himself and mother, on the place claimed, in 1803, was done for John Smith, Sen., and that said Smith had paid them for it, and that he had leased the place of said Smith for that year; in the fall of 1804, John Smith, Sen., sowed a crop of wheat on the tract claimed.

John Ross McLaughlin, sworn, says that Isaac Devee, about the year 1800, told witness that he had sold his concession to John Smith, Sen.; that in 1803, Mary Fitzgibbons inhabited and cultivated said land; afterwards saw John Smith, Sen., at two different times pay her property for inhabiting and cultivating said land for him, and holding the property in his name; says that Joseph Boyce told him, deponent, in the fall of 1804, that himself, said Boyce, and a number of others, had joined in a determination to take Smith's place from him, and had a bill of sale from William Fitzgibbons for the same, which was antedated; says that he heard William Fitzgibbons' mother say that William was but eighteen years of age in 1803; also heard the wife of Alexander McConohon say the same.

Christopher Barnhart, sworn, says that he has heard Mary Fitzgibbons say that she had received payment for her labor done on the tract for John Smith.

Alexander McConohon, questioned, says that Isaac Devee got the concession about eight years ago.

June 4, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

ANDREW BURNS, claiming one thousand and fifty arpents of land, near the Brushy Prairie, district of New Madrid, produces to the Board a notice to the recorder.

Testimony taken, at New Madrid, June 18, 1808. December 22, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

JOSEPH LEGRAND, claiming eight hundred arpents of land, situate in portage of the river St. Francis, district of New Madrid; produces a certificate of a permission to settle, from Charles D. Delassus, dated in January, 1803, and a certificate of survey of the same, dated February 27, 1806.

Testimony taken, March 15, 1806. Richard Jones Waters, being duly sworn, says that the said Legrand did, prior to and on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land, and had one child.

Testimony taken, at New Madrid, June 17, 1808. John Baptiste Olive, duly sworn, says that premises were inhabited and cultivated since 1798 or 1799 till this day; twelve or fifteen arpents now in cultivation; a wife and child in 1803.

March 15, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board grant the said claimant eight hundred arpents of land, as per the said certificate of permission to settle.

January 17, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

JESSE CAIN, by his agent, Rufus Easton, claiming one mile square of land, situate in the district of St. Charles; produces to the Board a notice of claim.

Testimony taken, December 15, 1808. James Piper, sworn, says that in 1799 or 1800, claimant planted corn and raised a crop on the tract claimed.

July 12, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

JOSEPH THOMPSON, Sen., the representatives of, claiming two hundred and thirty-four arpents of land, situate on Ramsay's creek, district of Cape Girardeau; produce to the Board, as a special permission to settle, list A, on which Joseph Thompson, Sen., is No. 156.

Testimony taken, at Cape Girardeau, June 3, 1808. James Cottle, duly sworn, says that improvement commenced in 1807; in the spring eight or ten acres in cultivation, and a cabin built.

June 6, 1808. Joseph Worthington, sworn, says that some trifling improvements were made on this land in 1803, but no habitation; the improvement was continued until the year 1805, when he removed; built two good houses, and cultivated about ten or twelve acres, and continued to live there until his death; his widow and family still inhabit and cultivate.

Wednesday, March 14, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

ZACHANAH DOWLY, heirs of, claiming four hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate on the waters of Hubble's creek, district of Cape Girardeau; produce to the Board an affidavit of permission to settle from Louis Lorimier, commandant, dated 3d June, 1808.

Testimony taken, at Cape Girardeau, June 2, 1808. John Summers, Sen., duly sworn, says that this land was improved and settled in 1800 or 1801; built a cabin, cleared, enclosed and cultivated a small spot; cultivated and inhabited in the year 1803, and ever since; upwards of twenty acres in cultivation; a peach orchard; Elizabeth Dowly died and was buried on the premises.

October 6, 1808. It being asserted that the testimony heretofore taken was false, the Board examined the following witnesses on the part of the United States.

Alexander Summers, sworn, says that Elizabeth Dowly, about the year 1800, built a camp on said tract, and that he (witness) ploughed a small piece of ground on the same for her, and sowed turnips; says that he has seen the place every year since, and that nothing has been done on the same by her, her representatives, or any person for her.

John Weaver, sworn, says that he has known the land claimed about seven years; that there never has any thing been done on it by Elizabeth Dowly or representatives since that time.

November 26, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

BENJAMIN JOHNSTON, claiming four hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate on Sandy creek, district of St. Louis; produces a petition to Francis Valle, commandant of St. Genevieve, dated in 1801; a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated September 2, 1799; and a certificate of survey, dated 15th January, 1804.

Testimony taken, April 4, 1806. William Moss, being duly sworn, says that the said tract of land was settled in 1799; and prior to and on the 1st day of October, 1800, actually inhabited and cultivated for the use of the claimant.

April 4, 1806: Present, Lucas and Penrose, commissioners. It appearing to the Board, after comparing the dates both of claimant's petition and his concession that the latter is antedated, they reject this claim; they, however, discharge him of any intention of fraud, and observe that he claims no other lands in his own name in this territory.

October 23, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

JACOB BOGARD, claiming four hundred arpents of land, situate in the district of New Madrid; produces a warrant of survey from Henry Peyroux dated November 25, 1800; and a certificate of survey of the same.

Testimony taken, April 18, 1806. John Friend, being duly sworn, says that claimant began the improvement of said land in the year 1801, and cleared about two arpents of the same; and further, that he did, in the year 1805, actually inhabit and cultivate the same, and has continued thereon to this day; he claims no other land in his own name in this territory.

Testimony taken at New Madrid, June 21, 1808. Edward Robertson, duly sworn, says that premises were inhabited and cultivated in 1800, and constantly to the last of the year 1806; fifteen or sixteen acres then in cultivation; a wife and six or seven children in 1803.

April 5, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted, Frederick Bates, commissioner, voting for the granting thereof.

FRANCIS LESIEUR, claiming a lot of one arpent of land, situate in the district of New Madrid, village of Little Prairie; produces to the Board the same papers and the same testimony as in the claim of John Baptiste Barseloux, reported page 496.

July 9, 1811: Present, full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

HENRY MASTERS, claiming seven hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate on lake St. Marie, district of New Madrid; produces a certificate of survey, dated 27th February, 1806.

Testimony taken, March 21, 1806. George Wilson, being duly sworn, says that the said claimant did, prior to and on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land, and was then of the age of twenty-one years and upwards.

Richard J. Waters, being also sworn, says that he knows that claimant had obtained an order of survey for two hundred arpents.

March 21, 1806: Present, Lucas and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board grant the said Henry Masters two hundred arpents of land, situate as aforesaid.

August 15, 1811: Present, Penrose and Bates, commissioners. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

MANUEL GONZALES MORO, claiming eight hundred arpents of land, situate in the district of St. Charles; produces the record of a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 20th June, 1800.

November 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

DAVID TROTTER, claiming five hundred arpents of land, situate on Tywappety, district of New Madrid; produces a certificate of permission to settle, in 1802; and a certificate of survey of the same.

Testimony taken, March 21, 1806. Jacob Myers, being duly sworn, says that the said claimant did, prior to and on the 20th December, 1803, actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land; and was then of the age of twenty-one years and upwards.

Testimony taken at New Madrid, June 16, 1808. Jacob Myers, duly sworn, says that premises were settled in 1800; a cabin built, a well dug, and a small field of about two and half acres cleared, enclosed, and cultivated; constantly inhabited and cultivated till the spring of 1804, at which time there were about ten acres prepared for cultivation; claimant had a wife, about eight children, and five or six slaves.

March 21, 1806: Present, Lucas and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board grant the said claimant five hundred arpents of land, as per said certificate of permission to settle.

December 13, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

ALEXANDER McNAIR, claiming four hundred arpents of land, situate near the village of Flourisont, district of St. Louis, as assignee of Jeremiah Connor, sheriff of St. Louis district, who sold the same as the property of Gregoire Sarpy; produces to the Board a concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated 17th December, 1796, and an assignment from one James Williams, dated 2d March, 1797; also the deed of sheriff Connor to claimant, dated 29th June, 1808.

This claim interfering with the following, the parties being present, agree that they shall be taken together by the Board and adjusted jointly, to wit: William Whitesides, assignee of James Williams, assignee of Thomas Wilkinson, claiming four hundred and forty arpents of land, situated as above; produces to the Board a notice to the recorder, dated 16th June, 1808; also a deed from Wilkinson to Williams, dated 1st February, 1797; a conveyance from Williams to claimants, dated September, 1805, receipt dated 12th September, same year, for consideration money.

Testimony taken, October 26, 1808. Elisha Hemington, sworn, says that Wilkinson gave Williams a cow and calf to build a house on the tract about eleven or twelve years ago; said Wilkinson lived in the house one winter, then sold to James Williams, who moved into the house and cleared some land.

June 26, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

WILLIAM GIRTY, claiming seven hundred and forty-eight arpents sixty-eight perches of land, situate on Bois Bruile, district of St. Genevieve; produces a plat of survey dated 5th and certified 27th February, 1806.

Testimony taken, June 24, 1806. Alexander McCohonow, being duly sworn, says that one Michael Burns settled the said tract of land in the year 1797; raised two crops on the same; that one Robert McLaughlin cultivated the same in the year 1799, and raised a crop; that, in running the lines, a cabin which stood on Noel Hornbeck's land, adjoining said tract, was taken in the same; that the said Hornbeck caused the said tract to be cultivated and a crop raised on the same in 1800, after which he sold the same to claimant.

Camille Lassus, being also duly sworn, says that he was present when permission to settle was granted to the above claimant.

June 22, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

ELIAS BATES, claiming four hundred arpents of land, situate on Little Mine river, district of St. Genevieve; produces a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 15th January, 1800; a plat of survey, dated 3d February and certified 2d March, 1800.

Testimony taken, December 2, 1807. John Steward, being duly sworn, says that he knows the tract; that it joins the Old Mine; that in 1803 he saw corn raised on the place by one Hypolite Robert; that in the fall of 1804, there was a house built on the place by Manuel Blanco, as a tenant for claimant; that the nearest place where the mineral was got from the claim, was a few rods from the said tract; raised a crop in 1804, and has been cultivated ever since for claimant.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

ST. JAMES BEAUVAIS, claiming sixteen hundred arpents of land, situate at Mine à la Motte, district of St. Genevieve; produces a concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated September 2, 1796; and a survey of the same, taken April 25 and certified October 1, 1805.

Testimony taken, June 20, 1806. Francis Valle, duly sworn, says that claimant did, about five or six years ago, being then engaged in working his mines, cut wood on said tract of land, for the melting of the mineral.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

PETER ABAR, claiming six hundred and forty acres of land, situate in the district of St. Genevieve; produces to the Board a survey of five hundred and ninety acres, situate on the Fourche à Curtois, a water course of the Merrimack; also one other survey of fifty acres, situate near the village of the Mine à Breton, district aforesaid, both surveys dated February 8 and certified February 28, 1806.

Testimony taken, June 25, 1806. Amable Partney, being duly sworn, says that one Hypolite Robert settled the said tract of land in 1799; fenced in and cleared about five or six acres of the same; that he sold the same in 1801, to the above claimant, who built a house on it, moved his family, and has actually inhabited and cultivated it to this day; that the claimant is a Canadian, and was, on the 20th day of December, of the age of twenty-one years and upwards.

Monday, December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

PETER BOYER, claiming six hundred and thirty-nine and three quarter acres and twelve perches of land, situate on the west bank of the Old Mine creek, district of St. Genevieve; produces to the Board a notice of said claim to the recorder, dated May 8, 1807; also a plat of the same, without date, and surveyor not named.

Testimony taken, August 16, 1808. Jean Portell, sworn, says that claimant settled on said land in 1802, and has inhabited and cultivated the same to this day.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

ABRAHAM BRINKER, assignee of Andrew Miller, assignee of Francis Thibeauld, claiming five hundred arpents of land, situate near the village of Mine à Breton, district of St. Genevieve; produces to the Board a notice to the recorder; an assignment from Francis Thibeauld to Andrew Miller, dated 4th December, 1806; an assignment from said Miller to claimant, dated 27th June, 1808.

Testimony taken, October 14, 1808. Peter Abar, sworn, says Francis Thibeauld inhabited and cultivated the land claimed in 1802, and until the spring of 1808; and, from the commencement of the improvement, had at least six arpents enclosed and under cultivation; in 1803 Francis Thibeauld had a wife and one child.

Francis Thibeauld, sworn, says that after he bought of Lacroix, about nine or ten years ago, he went to the commandants, Francis Valle and Deluziere, to obtain a concession for the same; that they told him that the best concession he could have was to go and work the land.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

CAMILLE DELASSUS, claiming six thousand arpents of land, situate at Terre Blue, district of St. Genevieve; produces the record of a concession from Charles Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 19th September, 1802; record of a plat of survey, dated 18th December, 1805, and certified 20th February, 1806.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

GEORGE FALLIS, assignee of Joseph Rivet and Louis Aler, claiming a tract of two arpents in front, running from the river St. Ferdinand to the Missouri, containing one hundred and thirty-four arpents ninety-three perches of land, district of St. Louis; produces a letter of office from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated 22d February, 1797; and two transfers of the same, the one from Joseph Rivet, and the other from Louis Aler, dated October 6, 1802; produces, also, a connected plat of survey of St. Ferdinand fields.

Testimony taken, July 22, 1806. Francis Dunnegant, being duly sworn, says that the said tract of land was first cultivated in the year 1795, and has continued so, yearly, to this day; that in 1801 the above claimant built a house on the same, which he has actually inhabited to this day.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

GEORGE FALLIS, assignee of Augustin B. Lagasse, claiming eighty-eight arpents thirty-two perches of land, situate as aforesaid; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid; also, a certificate of a public sale, at the church door, of the effects and property of the said Augustin B. Lagasse, by Francis Dunnegant, commandant, dated December 12, 1802.

Testimony taken, July 22, 1806. Francis Dunnegant, being duly sworn, says that the above claimant cultivated the said tract of land in the year 1801, and to this day; that the said Augustin B. Lagasse was a single man, and of age, and claims no other land in his own name in the Territory.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. The Board remark that, from the situation of the tract of land claimed, the same lying parallel with the other tracts represented in the connected plat, the grant and measurement being of the same date, and the whole having been under one enclosure, this cultivation, from the general run of testimony, has taken place about the same time. From this circumstance, the Board are induced to believe that there is a clerical error in taking down the testimony of Francis Dunnegant, and that 1804 ought to have been 1794.

GEORGE FALLIS, claiming eighty-eight arpents fifty-nine perches of land, situate as aforesaid; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid, and a bill of sale for the same, dated 7th February, 1803.

Testimony taken, July 22, 1806. Francis Dunnegant, being duly sworn, says that one Laducier, who was the original proprietor of said tract or out-lot, sold the same to one Hubert Talbot, who began the cultivating of it in the year 1794, and has cultivated it to this day; that the said Talbot was of the age of twenty-one years and upwards.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

GEORGE FALLIS, assignee of Elisha Henington, assignee of the widow Rigoche, claiming one arpent and a half front, on St. Ferdinand creek, running back to the Missouri, situate as aforesaid; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid; also a deed of transfer from the widow Rigoche to said Henington, dated January 11, 1803; a deed of transfer from said Henington to claimant, dated 1st March, same year.

Testimony taken, July 22, 1806. Francis Dunnegant, duly sworn, says that one Quebeck L'Eveque was the original proprietor of the said tract of land; that he sold the same to one William Hebert, who again sold to one Baptiste Presse; that the said Presse settled the same in 1792, and cultivated it until the year 1802, when he sold to the widow Rigoche, and that it has been actually cultivated to this day; and further, that the said Presse was the head of a family.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

GEORGE FALLIS, assignee of Dennis Tool, claiming one and a half arpents front, on St. Ferdinand creek, running back to the Missouri; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid.

Testimony taken, July 22, 1806. Francis Dunnegant, being duly sworn, says that the said tract of land was originally owned by one Nicolas Lecompte; that the said Nicolas sold it to one Francis L'Europeen, who sold it again to one Charles Dejarlais; that the said Charles sold the same to the aforesaid Dennis Tool, who sold it again to the aforesaid claimant; and further, that the same was cultivated in the year 1796, and has been actually so to this day.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

PAUL DEJARLAIS, assignee of Joseph Lacroix, claiming one arpent front, on St. Ferdinand creek, running back to the Missouri; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid; also a deed of transfer of the same, dated July 11, 1803.

Testimony taken, August 19, 1806. Baptiste Crely, being duly sworn, says that the said tract of land was cultivated about sixteen years ago, and has been so to this day, without interruption.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

BAPTISTE CRELY, assignee of Jacque Marechal, claiming sixty-nine arpents three perches of land, situate as aforesaid; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid, and a deed of transfer for the same, dated 15th February, 1800.

Testimony taken, August 19, 1806. Louis Ouvre, duly sworn, says that the said land was cultivated about twelve years ago, by the aforesaid Jacque Marechal, and that the same has been actually cultivated to this day; that the said Marechal lived in the aforesaid village, and was, at the time of obtaining the same, the head of a family.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

LOUIS DUBRIEUL, assignee of Joseph Presse, claiming one arpent front, on St. Ferdinand creek, running back to the Missouri; produces a letter of office and plat as aforesaid; also a deed of transfer for the same, dated 24th November 1803.

Testimony taken, August 19, 1806. Louis Ouvre, being duly sworn, says that the said Presse cultivated the said tract or lot about twelve years ago, and was, at the time of obtaining the same, of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, and resided in the village aforesaid; that the said lot has been actually cultivated to this day.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

MANUEL A. ROCQUE, assignee of Augustin Buron and Francis Mendell, claiming one hundred and five arpents of land, situate as aforesaid; produces the letter of office and plat as aforesaid; also a deed of transfer of the same, dated 20th July, 1804.

Testimony taken, August 19, 1806. Louis Ouvre, being duly sworn, says that the said Buron and Mendell, who were of age when they obtained said land, cultivated the same about twelve years ago, and that the same has been actually cultivated to this day; and further, that they resided in the aforesaid village.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

MANUEL A. ROCQUE, assignee of Michel Hebert and Marie, his wife, claiming seventy arpents of land, situate as aforesaid; produces the letter of office and plat aforesaid; also a deed of transfer of the same, dated 15th August, 1804.

Testimony taken, August 19, 1806. Louis Ouvre, being duly sworn, says that the said tract of land came to the said Hubert by marriage; that he cultivated the same twelve years ago, and to this day, and lived in the aforesaid village.

December 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, because the original claimant on the plat accompanying the letter of office is not connected with this claim.

FRANCIS ST. CYR, claiming 118 acres and  $\frac{3}{100}$  of land, situate at St. Ferdinand, district of St. Louis; produces a letter of office from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated 22d February, 1797, and a connected plat of survey accompanying the same, on which claimant is No. 2.

John Jarrot, claiming 76 acres and  $\frac{9}{100}$ , No. 6; produces as above.

Louis Moreau, claiming 80 acres and  $\frac{6}{100}$ , No. 10; produces as above.

Alexis Cadot, claiming 115 acres and  $\frac{9}{100}$ , No. 14; produces as above.

Bonin, claiming 138 acres and  $\frac{9}{100}$ , No. 15; produces as above.

Joseph Calais, claiming 72 acres and  $\frac{3}{100}$ , No. 30; produces as above.

Baptiste Delisle, claiming 85 acres and  $\frac{5}{100}$ , No. 32; produces as above.

Etienne Labonte, claiming 121 acres and  $\frac{6}{100}$ , No. 50; produces as above.

Antoine Ladoucier, claiming 55 acres and  $\frac{4}{100}$ , No. 55; produces as above.

Guillaume H. Lecompte, claiming 111 acres and  $\frac{2}{100}$ , No. 61; produces as above.

Claude Panelon, claiming 61 acres and  $\frac{9}{100}$ , No. 64; produces as above.

It is the opinion of the Board that the twenty-six foregoing claims ought not to be confirmed. And the Board remark, that the claimants in the foregoing twenty-six claims are original grantees; it is supposed that if the connexion of the claims commencing at George Fallis, assignee of Rivet and Aler, page 518, and ending at Manuel A. Rocque, assignee of Michel Hebert, above, inclusively, could have been made with the respective original grantees, this number would have been deducted from the aforesaid twenty-six; but the identification, from the limited information which the Board possesses, cannot be made; this difficulty and inconvenience arises, in part, from land-holders bearing different appellations or names in acts of sale or transfer, and in original grants or concessions; and, also, from want of due formalities, to wit, from change of possession having taken place, without written evidence. Justice might be done these claimants by confirming their claims by the outer lines of the connected plat; but, as the law stands, the commissioners do not think themselves justifiable in exercising that power.

INHABITANTS OF THE TOWN OF ST. LOUIS, claiming four thousand two hundred and ninety-three arpents of land as a common; produce a certificate of survey of the same, dated 23d February, 1806; a set of regulations of the inhabitants, having for object the keeping in order or repairing of the enclosures of said common, and imposing penalties on such as should neglect or refuse to repair the same; said regulations signed by the then Lieutenant Governor Cruzat, and dated September 22, 1782.

Testimony taken, May 10, 1806. Auguste Chouteau, being duly sworn, says that the inhabitants never had a concession for said common; that he has always known it as such, although of a much smaller extent at first; that it was first fenced in in the year 1764, at the expense of the inhabitants, who always kept it in repair; and further, that every person, inhabitant of the village, was in the habit of pasturing his cattle in the same, and of cutting wood; and further, that he has known the said common, as surveyed and fenced, for upwards of fifteen years hence.

Gregoire Sarpy, being duly sworn, says that he arrived in the country about nineteen or twenty years ago; that he has always known said common as such; that the same had then acquired its present size; that when he arrived he found the same fenced in, and that every inhabitant was obliged, under certain penalties, to attend to and make such repairs as the said enclosure or fence required; and further, that Sylvester Labadie having in the year 1792, obtained a concession for lands forming part of said common, and having, in consequence thereof, begun his improvement of the same, the inhabitants remonstrated against it to the Lieutenant Governor, who prevented him from cultivating the same, until such time as the Intendant should have decreed otherwise.

William H. Lecompse, being duly sworn, says that he has been an inhabitant of the country for upwards of forty-four years; has known the common from his first arrival in St. Louis; that said common has increased in proportion to the population of the village, that he has known it of the size it now is for upwards of ten years; that the old common is included in the present one, and that the regulations passed respecting the same were always considered as laws, and enforced as such; and further, that other regulations were made respecting the same and also put in force.

June 11, 1806. Present, Lucas, Penrose, and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board remark, that this claim originated under the French Government; that as grants of commons were usual under the French and Spanish Governments, and in conformity with their respective laws, they deem it to be equitable under Spanish law.

January 2, 1812: Present, full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted; Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, voting for a confirmation thereof, under the usages and customs of the Spanish Government.

INHABITANTS OF THE VILLAGE OF ST. CHARLES claiming, as common, fourteen thousand arpents of land, situate on Marais Croche, district of St. Charles; produce a survey of the same, taken 27th February and certified 2d March, 1794; produce, also, the record of a petition from Charles Tayon to Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, for part of said tract; a declaration from Zenon Trudeau, that the same cannot be granted, as all lands in that quarter are reserved for commons, for the said villages, dated 23d January, 1797.

Testimony taken, August 29, 1806. Antoine Lamarche, being duly sworn, says that he is no way interested in the event of this claim; that the said village is composed of upwards of eighty families, whose only dependence for fuel and fencing the aforesaid common is; that the most part of the same is unfit for cultivation, to wit, the Crooked swamp, which is sometimes overflowed by the Missouri; and further, that the said claimants have no wood on their out lots.

Pierre Bissonett, being duly sworn, says a certain proprietor of said land, lying between the said Crooked swamp and the Missouri, and on which there is no wood, has been actually inhabited; that the inhabitants of said village, who are all of them cultivators, would be obliged to abandon the same, had they not the said common for their supply of fuel, &c.

January 2, 1812: Present a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be confirmed, under the usages and customs of the Spanish Government.

INHABITANTS OF THE VILLAGE OF VIDE POCHE, OR CARONDELET, claiming six thousand arpents of land, as a common, situate adjoining said village on the lower side, district of St. Louis; produce to the Board a notice of said claim to the recorder, dated 7th June, 1808; a petition from John Baptiste Gamache to Don Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, praying for a grant of land below said village, dated 6th December, 1796; and the decree of the said Lieutenant Governor thereon, stating that the land demanded is within the limits of land reserved for the purpose of furnishing wood necessary for the use of the village of Carondelet; and that the demand which is made by Gamache cannot take place, nor any other concession be granted in the direction of a line taken from the end of the field-lots of the village, and running parallel with the Mississippi, further down said river one hundred and fifty arpents, dated St. Louis, December 7, 1796.

Testimony taken, June 15, 1808. Auguste Chouteau, Sen., sworn, says that he knows the inhabitants of Vide Poche, since the year 1770, have made use of the land lying below the field lots and village of Vide Poche along the Mississippi, as their common, and ever since that time have taken therefrom their fencing and fuel, but does not know the extent of the claim; that twenty-five years ago, a man by the name of Andre, built from the wood of said common and on the same a boat; that he commenced the building of another; complaint was then made by the inhabitants of said village to the Lieutenant Governor, who ordered said Andre to desist from his work, as the land belonged to said inhabitants; that, about twenty-five years ago, there was about thirty families of farming people, who had no other pursuits; that since that time until 1803, there continued to be about the same number of families; that the land which each of the said inhabitants possesses individually, would not be sufficient to furnish them with fuel, and that without said common they would be obliged to desert said village; that the land held individually was purposely chosen for cultivation, and without fire-wood.

Testimony taken, June 24, 1808. Jean Baptiste Provenche, sworn, says that the village of Carondelet was, to his knowledge, established at least forty years ago; that the village contained, twenty-five years ago, about forty families, all farmers, and about thirty-five or thirty-six years ago the said families have been using wood from the land now claimed, and ever since made use of the same as a common. In the year 1803 there were about forty families; that on the land claimed individually by said families there is no fuel, and that they have no other place to get fuel or fencing from but said common.

January 2, 1812: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted; Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, voting for a confirmation thereof, under the usages and customs of the Spanish Government.

JAMES McDANIEL, claiming eight hundred arpents of land, situate on the Missouri, district of St. Louis; produces the record of a plat of survey, dated 14th and certified 26th February, 1806.

January 2, 1812: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

ANTOINE REYNAL, assignee of Hyacinth St. Cyr, claiming a lot in the village of St. Charles, district of St. Charles, one hundred and twenty by one hundred and fifty feet; produces a certified copy of a transfer from St. Cyr to claimant, dated 20th January, 1800.

The following testimony was given in a claim of Antoine Reynal, for two hundred and forty by three hundred feet, in which claim the lot above claimed is included, to wit: August 20, 1806. Pierre Becquet, being duly sworn, says that the said lot is situate fronting the main street, and divided from one lot, the property of one Pettit, by a cross street; that claimant did build a house on a lot which had not been conceded, and did afterwards apply for and obtain a concession for the same; that he had a garden on the lots adjoining; and that the same were actually inhabited and cultivated prior to and on the 15th day of October, 1800. August 6, 1807. Isidore Savoy, duly sworn, says that Gagnon claimed part of the abovementioned square, and that he authorized John B. Grazer to build a barn thereon eighteen years ago, which barn he built; that said Grazer sold said land to Bissonnet, and that he, Bissonnet, built a house twelve years ago on the same, and that the same has been occupied ever since by, through, or for Bissonnet; the witness also says that there were no deeds of sale passed between Gagnon and Grazer, nor between Grazer and Bissonnet, to the best of his knowledge and belief, but that they were mere verbal sales; he also says, that he knows that part of the above claim which was formerly claimed by Paneton; that a barn was built on the same seventeen years ago by Charles Cardinal, who sold, verbally, the said part to Claude Paneton, and that the said Claude Paneton has possessed the said part of this claim, and used the said barn thereon built, for three years; that he also knows that part of the said claim formerly owned by Hyacinth St. Cyr; that St. Cyr sold the same, verbally, to the above named Grazer, but he cannot say in what manner the said part again came into the possession of the said St. Cyr; knows, however, that it was several times bartered with no formal deed of sale; that he also knows the upper part of said square, on which he had permission to settle, was enclosed and kept possession of by him ever since, and that there is now thereon a valuable orchard.

August 21, 1811: Present, Penrose and Bates, commissioners. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

AUGUSTE GAMACHE and JOHN BAPTISTE GAMACHE, claiming ten hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate on the Mississippi, below the mouth of the Merrimack river, district of St. Louis; produce the record of a plat of survey, dated 15th November, 1805, certified 22d February, 1806. Alexander McNair, claiming five hundred and twenty-five arpents of this tract, as assignee of the sheriff of St. Louis district, who sold the same, as the property of John Baptiste Gamache; produces the record of a deed from the sheriff to McNair, dated 4th February, 1807.

Tuesday, November 19, 1811. It appearing to the Board, from the rough minutes of April 3, 1806, that testimony was taken in this claim, and was not entered on the fair minutes, and the same being within the recollection of two of the commissioners, to wit, John B. C. Lucas and Clement B. Penrose, it is therefore agreed to receive testimony on this day.

Auguste Chouteau, sworn, says that he knows the tract claimed; that in 1776, or near that time, the commandant of St. Louis thought proper that a ferry should be established on Merrimack, that a regular intercourse should be kept up between St. Louis and St. Genevieve; that John Baptiste Gamache, father of claimants, hearing of this, agreed to undertake the same; that the commandant, who this deponent believes to be Cruzat, acceded to the proposals of Gamache, to wit, that he should keep a ferry and hold land at the said place; deponent cannot say any thing as to quantity of said land; said Gamache immediately went and settled on said land; cleared land, built a house, and cultivated thereon, and continued to cultivate and inhabit until 1780, when he was ordered away by commandant on account of Indian disturbances; that said Gamache returned to the place claimed one or two years after, as soon as tranquillity was restored, and continued thereon four or five years longer until the death of his wife; that about 1790 the sons of said Gamache, to wit, the claimants, inhabited and cultivated said land about eight years.

Charles Sangurnett and John Baptiste Provenche, sworn, depose to the same as the foregoing witness.

November 19, 1811: Present, a full Board. The Board order that this land be surveyed agreeably to the possession, provided it does not exceed one thousand and fifty arpents; survey at the expense of the United States, and to be returned within ten days.

January 6, 1812: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted, because the survey which has been ordered by the Board contains a much greater quantity of land than is actually claimed, and also because, from the notes contained in the report of survey, it does not appear that the lines of said survey run with boundaries of ten years' standing before the year 1803.

The five following claims, being of so peculiar a nature as not to be susceptible of registry, are specially reported.

INHABITANTS OF NEW BOURBON, assignees of John Dodge, who was assignee of Francis Valle, claiming forty arpents by such quantity as may be found within the following limits, to wit: forty arpents fronting the foot of the hills; running from said hills to a water course or spring on which one Israel Dodge's mill is built; thence, on each side of said spring or run, twenty arpents back, quantity as yet undetermined; produces a certified copy of a concession from Francis Cruzat to Francis Valle, granted on certain conditions expressed in the petition of said Francis Valle, to wit, the building of a mill, said concession, dated 10th March, 1787, and a confirmation of the same by the Baron de Carondelet, under the date of the 8th May, 1793.

Testimony taken, June 25, 1806. Joseph Pratte, being duly sworn, says that the said Francis Valle built a mill on said land prior to the confirmation of said grants by the Baron de Carondelet.

June 25, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board ascertain this claim to be a complete Spanish grant, made and completed prior to the 1st day of October, 1800.

August 17, 1811: Present, Penrose and Bates, commissioners. The Board decline revising this claim, and order a translation of the record to accompany the report. Originals not now produced.

CLEMENT B. PENROSE, assignee of Joseph Brown and wife, assignees of the representatives of Gabriel Cerre, deceased, claiming a certain tract of land, as described within certain boundaries mentioned in a concession from Zenon Trudeau, dated 18th April, 1798, and granted for the purpose of cutting wood; produces the aforesaid concession, dated as aforesaid, and a survey of ninety-eight arpents contained in the said boundaries, dated 5th April, 1798, and certified 10th January, 1800, an act of public sale of the effects and property of the late Gabriel Cerre, deceased, dated 28th July, 1805; a deed of conveyance from Joseph Browne and wife, dated 8th October, 1807.

Testimony taken, 8th July, 1806. Auguste Chouteau, being duly sworn, says that the aforesaid Gabriel Cerre, being possessed of a tract of four hundred and a half arpents of land, on which he had no wood, applied to the Lieutenant Governor for a concession for the above ninety-eight arpents, adjoining the same, that it was granted him; that accordingly he did, from the time of obtaining the same to the time of his death, make his wood on said land.

Testimony taken, November 21, 1808. Louis Bra-seau, sworn, says that he knows the land claimed, and that it was, fifteen or sixteen years ago, reputed to be the property of Gabriel Cerre, and that said Cerre cut his wood from said land from that time to his death.

July 9, 1810. Present, Lucas and Bates, commissioners. It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas that this claim ought not to be confirmed; Frederick Bates, commissioner, voting for the confirmation of ninety-eight arpents.

FRANCIS CLARK, claiming two hundred and fifty arpents of land; produces to the Board a notice to the recorder as follows, to wit: "Francis Clark claims two hundred and fifty arpents of land, on a branch of the river St. Francis, by virtue of a settlement and cultivation made in the year 1804, on the west side of said river, and including the place whereon he now lives. May 30, 1808. Francis Clark."

May 30, 1808: Present, Lucas and Penrose, commissioners. The Board are of opinion that this case does not come within their jurisdiction, and therefore decline to act.

LOUIS LABEAUME, claiming eight thousand arpents of land, situate on Portage des Sioux, district of St. Charles; produces the record of a grant from Juan Ventura Morales, dated 6th July, 1802, with condition for the compliance with the 3d, 4th, 6th, 7th, and 9th articles of the instructions, and is found in the abstract of all the concessions and patented grants of land, appertaining to the district of Louisiana, recorded in the registers kept by the Spanish and French Governments of the province of Louisiana, since the 2d July, 1756, until the 23d April, 1802, transmitted to this Board by the Secretary of the Treasury.

January 11, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board decline acting on this claim, the original title paper not being produced. John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, declares that he cannot act, as no original title paper is produced.

DELAWARES and SHAWANEEs, claiming a tract of country between the river St. Coure and Cape Girardeau, and bounded on the east by the Mississippi, and west by White Water, district of Cape Girardeau; produce to the Board as follows, to wit:

El Baron de Carondelet, Caballero de la religion de San Juan, Coronel de los reales exercitos, Gobernador, Intendente General, Vice Patrono de las provincias de la Luisiana, Florida Occidental, e Inspector de sus tropas, &c.

Faisons savoir à tous ceux qui la présente liront, qu'en considération des bons et fidels services que le nommé Louis Lorimier a rendu à l'état depuis qu'il se'est rendu sujet de Sa Majesté Catholique, nous lui permettons de s'établir avec les Loups et Chaouanons, qui sont sous sa conduite dans tels endroits que bon lui semblera, de la province de la Louisiane, sur la rive droite du Mississippi, depuis le Missouri jusqu'à la rivière des Arkansas, qui se trouveront sans propriétaires, comme également d'y chasser et semer, pour y maintenir leurs familles, sans qu'aucun commandant, officier, ni sujet du roy, ne puisse s'y opposer, ni occuper les terrains par lui et par les dits Indiens semés, plantés, ou établis, tant qu'ils jugeront à propos de s'y maintenir; bien entendu qu'au cas qu'ils les abandonnent pour se transporter ailleurs, ils seront censés rester vacantes; et quant à la maison que le dit Sieur Louis Lorimier a bâti au Cap Girardeau, il sera maintenu dans sa possession, sans qu'aucun motif ne puisse l'en tirer, les seules causes de commerce illicite ou correspondance avec des ennemis de l'état excepté.

En foi de quoi, nous avons donné la présente, signée de notre main, sous le contreseing du Secrétaire de ce Gouvernement, et à icelle fait apposer le cachet de nos armes, à la Nouvelle Orléans, le 4 Janvier, 1793.

LE BARON DE CARONDELET.

Par mandement de sa seigneurie :

ANDRÉS LOPEZ ARMESTO.

St. Louis, le 1 Mai, 1793.

Ci joint est le permit que vous donne Monsieur le Gouverneur Général pour faire votre commerce avec les nations Loups et Chaouanons, assez étendu pour que vous n'ayez plus rien à désirer, sans crainte que vous soyez troublé par aucun officier du roy, lorsque vous vous comporterez comme vous l'avez fait jusqu'à ce jour. Il vous est recommandé de maintenir l'ordre entre les Sauvages, et d'en attirer autant qu'il se pourra sur cette partie en les faisant poster le plus à porter de nos établissemens, afin de nous prêter secours dans un cas de guerre avec les blancs, comme ils seront à même contre les Osages, avec qui je vais déclarer la guerre incessamment, et ce que je n'ai pas encore fait parceque j'ai quelques précautions à prendre avant que cela parvienne à eux. Dites aux Loups, Chaouanons, Peorias, Pouatamis, et aux autres nations qui m'ont présenté un memoire au mois de Septembre dernier, que c'est en vertu des maux qu'ils ont soufferts que Monsieur le Gouverneur Général s'est déterminé à la guerre, afin de procurer la tranquillité sur nos terres; les Osages, privés présentement de secours, et harcelés par eux et par nous, se mettront sûrement à la raison; que, conséquemment, toutes les nations rouges doivent entendre de prêter la main; c'est leur bien que le Gouvernement cherche, et c'est ce que vous devez leur persuader, pour que les nations offensés fassent des demarches envers les autres, pour en avoir du secours; et surtout pour que les Ayoas, Saquias, et Renards ne consentent pas à laisser venir les Osages traiter sur la rivière des Moins, et encore moins qu'ils permettent aux Anglais de s'introduire chez eux par cette rivière, comme il est possible.

Protégé par le Gouvernement, vous lui devez vos services en veillant exactement sur tout ce qui peut le faire prosperer, et en avertissant de tout ce qui lui est contraire. Dans ce moment on a des craintes, non pas du Congrès, mais des mal-intentionnés qui en dependent, postés dans un lieu avantageux pour donner des avis du moindre rassemblement de monde. J'ai la confiance que citôt que vous en aurez connaissance, vous le ferez savoir à tous les commandants dont vous êtes apportés, tant pour nôtre sûreté que pour nôtre défense.

Monsieur le Gouverneur a approuvé la dépense des vingt mille grains de porcelaine que j'ai donné aux Loups, et auxquels vous avez contribué; mon intention avait toujours été de vous en faire le remboursement, et aujourd'hui je le puis faire avec plus de facilité, puisqu'on m'en offre les moyens sans le chercher ailleurs, ainsi vous pouvez tirer sur moi à raison de six piastres le millier, comme le Roi est convenu de me les payer.

On m'a dit que vous deviez venir à St. Louis avec vos Sauvages; comme je suis dépourvu des toutes marchandises, leur visite me serait un peu honteuse; c'est qui fait que je vous engage à venir seul, (si votre présence est nécessaire ici,) et attendre que les bateaux soient arrivés, pour être de même de faire un présent honnête à les Sauvages. Dieu vous ait en sa sainte garde.

ZENON TRUDEAU.

A. S. Je garde votre permis jusqu'à une occasion à qui je puisse le confier; il porte que vous ne serez pas troublé depuis le Missouri jusqu'aux Arkansas dans votre commerce, comme dans les établissemens ou campement qui vous y pourriez former avec les Sauvages Chaouanons et Loups, &c., et que celui fait au Cap à Girardeau vous suit conservé.

Mr. LOUIS LORIMIER.

St. Louis, le 19 Juin, 1797.

MONSIEUR:—Monsieur le commandant militaire me charge de vous dire qu'il a reçu la lettre d'office que vous lui avez adressée pour lui rendre compte de la nouvelle qui vous a parvenu d'un rassemblement de monde destiné, soi disant pour prendre possession des postes du Mississippi; il vous répondra par M. Sarpy, qui va passer chez vous incessamment, et celle-ci est plutôt pour vous faire des amitiés de sa part que toute autre chose.

Par la même occasion je répondrai également à toutes celles que j'ai reçu de vous, pouvant vous dire dès à présent, malgré la précipitation qu'il me paraît très juste de conserver aux Chaouanons un arrondissement raisonnable pour leur village de la rivière à la Somme, vous verrez vous-même ce qu'il convient pour n'y laisser placer aucun Américain ni autres, &c.

Vous ferez très bien d'adresser votre compte à Monsieur le Commandant Général de la province, et meme de ne pas perdre de temps, parcequ'on dit qu'il va être relevé, et je suis certain que vous serez parfaitement bien payé.

Les nouvelles reçues du poste sont à peu près les mêmes que celles que vous avez détaillées par le haut du Mississippi, ainsi que par la rivière des Illinois, où nous avons des agens; il n'y a rien de nouveau.

J'ai l'honneur d'être, avec attachement, monsieur, votre très humble obéissant serviteur,

ZENON TRUDEAU.

January 11, 1812: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed, not being embraced by the fourth section of the act of the 3d of March, 1807.

Report of the Titles and Claims to Lead Mines.

The sealed packet which was delivered to the Board by the clerk, on the 28th September, 1811, addressed to the commissioners, and styled, by a letter enclosed in the same, signed William C. Caw, agent for the United States, to be a collection of evidence respecting the claims to, and value of, the lead mines within the territory of Louisiana, accompanied with a list of the documents submitted. The whole stated to have been made in pursuance of the sixth section of the act of Congress for ascertaining and adjusting the titles and claims to land within the Territory of Orleans and district of Louisiana, passed the 2d March, 1805.

DOCUMENT A.

JULIAN DUBUQUE and AUGUSTE CHOUTEAU, claiming a tract of one hundred and forty-eight thousand and one hundred and seventy-six arpents of land, situate on the river Mississippi, at a place called the Spanish Mines, about four hundred and forty miles from St. Louis, forming in superficies an extent of about twenty-one leagues. They produce, first, a petition by the said Julian Dubuque to the Baron de Carondelet, praying for the peaceable possession of an extent of land of about seven leagues on the west side of the Mississippi, beginning at the heights of Maquanquetons to the heights of Mesquanbinangues, being on front on said river about seven leagues, by a depth of three leagues, the whole forming the said tract called the Spanish Mines; together with a reference by the Baron de Carondelet to one Andrew Todd, an Indian trader, of the above demand under date of the 22d October, 1796, the assent of said Andrew Todd to the granting of the same; provided the said petitioner should not interfere with his trade; the same dated the 29th October, same year.

The decree of the Baron de Carondelet is in the form following: "Concedido como se sollicito baxolas restricciones que el comerciante, Don Andres Todd, expresa en sa informe." 10th November, 1796.

EL BARON DE CARONDELET.

The translation of which is as follows: "Granted as it is demanded, under the restrictions mentioned by the merchant, Don Andrew Todd, in his information."

September 20, 1806: Present, Lucas, Penrose, and Donaldson, commissioners. A majority of the Board, the honorable John B. C. Lucas dissenting, ascertain the above claim to be a complete Spanish title.

December 19, 1811: Present, a full Board. On a question being put by John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, Clement B. Penrose and Frederick Bates, commissioners, declined giving an opinion. It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

DOCUMENT B (not of record).

JOHN SMITH T., assignee of Charles Robar, claiming four hundred and twenty acres of land, situate as aforesaid; produces as aforesaid a notice to the recorder, and the same concession wherein Charles Robar is found to be one of the thirty-one inhabitants; also the plat aforesaid, in which plat said Robar is No. 8; a deed of transfer from said Robar to claimant, dated 24th August, 1805.

Testimony taken, October 22, 1808. Peter Boyer, sworn, says that Charles Robar was settled in the village of the Old Mines five years ago, and inhabited and cultivated a part of said tract of twelve thousand four hundred arpents for three years.

December 21, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, being embraced by the second section of the act of the 2d March, 1805, and claims with as slight testimony have been granted.

It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, because the testimony of Peter Boyer, concerning the inhabitation and cultivation of Charles Robar is indefinite, and does not apply more to the part of the connected plat to which his claim refers than to any other part of the twelve thousand four hundred arpents represented by the connected plat. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

JOHN SMITH T., assignee of Alexander Duclos, claiming four hundred and twenty acres of land, situate as aforesaid; produces a notice to the recorder. The same concession as aforesaid, wherein Alexander Duclos is found to be one of the thirty-one inhabitants; also the plat aforesaid, in which plat said Duclos is No. 7; a deed of transfer from said Duclos to claimant, dated 24th August, 1805.

Testimony taken, October 22, 1808. Peter Boyer, sworn, says Alexander Duclos was settled in the village of the Old Mines, and inhabited and cultivated a part of said tract of twelve thousand four hundred arpents five years ago, and for three years.

December 21, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, being embraced by the second section of the act of 2d March, 1805, and claims with as slight testimony have been granted.

It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, because the testimony of Peter Boyer, concerning the inhabitation and cultivation of Alexander Duclos, is indefinite and does not apply more to the part of the connected plat to which this claim refers than to any other part of the twelve thousand four hundred arpents represented by the connected plat. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

JOHN SMITH T., assignee of Louis Boyer, claiming eight hundred and forty arpents of land, situate as aforesaid; produces a notice to the recorder. Same concession as aforesaid, wherein Louis Boyer is found to be one of the thirty-one inhabitants; also, the plat aforesaid, in which plat Louis Boyer is No. 14; an assignment from said Louis Boyer to claimants, dated 25th August, 1805.

Testimony taken, October 22, 1808. Peter Boyer, sworn, says that Louis Boyer was settled in the village of the Old Mines, and inhabited and cultivated a part of said tract of twelve thousand four hundred arpents five years ago, and for two years.

December 21, 1811. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought to be granted, being embraced by the second section of the act of the 2d March, 1805, and claims with as slight testimony have been granted.

It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, because the testimony of Peter Boyer, concerning the inhabitation and cultivation of Louis Boyer is indefinite, and does not apply more to the part of the connected plat to which this claim refers than to any other part of the twelve thousand four hundred arpents represented by the connected plat. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

JOHN SMITH T., assignee of Joseph Boyer, claiming one thousand one hundred and ninety acres of land, situate as aforesaid; produces a notice to the recorder. The same concession as aforesaid, wherein Joseph Boyer is found to be one of the thirty-one inhabitants; also the plat aforesaid, in which plat Joseph Boyer is No. 17; an assignment from said Boyer to claimant, dated 9th January, 1808.

Testimony taken, October 22, 1808. Peter Boyer, sworn, says that Joseph Boyer was settled in the village of the Old Mines, and inhabited and cultivated a part of said tract of twelve thousand four hundred arpents eight years ago, and ever since until last year.

December 21, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought to be granted, being embraced by the second section of the act of the 2d March, 1805, and claims with as slight testimony have been granted.

It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, because the testimony of Peter Boyer, concerning the inhabitation and cultivation of Joseph Boyer is indefinite, and does not apply more to the part of the connected plat to which this claim refers than to any other part of the twelve thousand four hundred arpents represented by the connected plat. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT F.

The following testimony in this claim is taken from testimony perpetuated and attested by two of the commissioners, October 24, 1808.

Francis Thibeault, sworn, says that Jacob Wise cultivated the land claimed nine or ten years ago and ever since; built a house the first year, which was rented to Mr. Decelle for two years; has not since been inhabited, but had always been used as a barn; claimant lived adjoining the tract with one Charles Becquette; claimant is a single man.

December 23, 1811: Present, a full Board. The Board remark that no kind of testimony suggests or makes it appear that the land claimed includes a lead mine. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted, claimant not having inhabited the same on the 20th December, 1803.

THOMAS RUSS, claiming eleven hundred and forty-six arpents forty-one perches of land.

December 23, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted. The Board remark that no kind of testimony suggests or makes it appear that the land claimed includes a lead mine; and that the claim has been acted on by the Board a long time prior to the report of the agent delivered to the Board.

WIDOW MOREAU, assignee of John Baptiste Labreche, claiming five hundred arpents of land, situate on the waters of Grand river, district of St. Genevieve; produces a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 5th September, 1799.

December 22, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT G.

AUGUSTE CHOUTEAU, Jun., claiming eight hundred arpents of land.

December 23, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT H.

REUBEN SMITH, assignee of James and Nicolas Keeth, assignees of Nicolas Boilvin, claiming eight hundred arpents of land, situate on the waters of Grand river, district of St. Genevieve; produces an order of survey from Zenon Trudeau, dated 25th January, 1798; a plat of survey, signed Boyd Denny, dated 26th February, 1806; a transfer from Boilvin to James and Nicolas Keeth to claimant, dated December 18, 1804; a transfer from James and Nicolas Keeth to claimant, dated 29th May, 1804.

December 23, 1811: Present, a full Board. The Board remark that no kind of testimony suggests or makes it appear that the land claimed includes a lead mine. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

DOCUMENT J.

JOHN BAPTISTE PRATTE, Sen., claiming one thousand arpents of land.

December 23, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT K.

RUFUS EASTON and JAMES BRUFF, assignees of Joseph Gerrard and Patrick Flemming, claiming eight hundred and forty arpents of land, situate on the second fork of the Grand river, district of St. Genevieve, comprehending and including the Mine à Joe; produces a certified copy of an order from Manuel Perez, Lieutenant Governor, to Peyroux de la Coudrinere, commandant, to grant said tract, dated 7th July, 1790; a certified copy of a concession from Peyroux de la Coudrinere, commandant, to Joseph Gerrard, père, Patrick Flemming, Jr., Joel Maccague, and Laurent Maccagne, for seven arpents by thirty to each of them, dated 17th July, 1790; an order of survey from Charles Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, to Joseph Gerrard and Patrick Flemming for eight hundred and forty arpents, stating the aforesaid concession from Peyroux, commandant, in consequence of the same not having been surveyed before, dated 25th September, 1799; a transfer from Patrick Flemming to claimants, dated 14th September, 1805; a transfer from Joseph Gerrard to Rufus Easton, dated 12th December, 1804; a plat of survey of eight hundred and forty arpents, dated 28th September, 1799, certified 10th January, 1800; an acknowledgment signed by Rufus Easton and James Bruff, and dated 15th November, 1805, by which it appears that said claimants are equally concerned in said tract.

December 24, 1811: Present, a full Board. The testimony of James Keeth and Ezekiel Eastidge, stated in the report of the agent to have been taken on the 2d of December, 1807, and copied by the said agent from the rough minutes, (which must be understood from the rough minutes of the Board) is not deemed legal evidence, inasmuch as the same was ordered by the Board not to be transcribed, and was not transcribed for the following reasons: that the Board had established a rule not to receive evidence partially, but to receive all the testimony at one time, unless, from the peculiar situation of the parties, the testimony offered could not be produced again; in that case, the same was attested on the rough minutes, by the signature of a majority of the commissioners. The object of the rule was, generally, not to let the testimony be open to be improved and enlarged by the parties, the Board conceiving that this opportunity might have been greatly abused. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT L.

CAMILLE DELASSUS, claiming two thousand four hundred arpents thirty-four and a half perches of land, situate on the waters of Big river, district of St. Genevieve; produces the record of a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 12th October, 1799, a plat of survey, dated 1st November, 1799, certified 10th January, 1800.

December 24, 1811: Present, a full Board. The Board make the same remarks as in the claim of Amable Partinain, page 554, as respects the rough minutes, and same remarks as in the claim of Easton and Bruff, above as respects the testimony taken on the 1st and 2d of December, 1807. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT M.

LOUIS LABEAUME and CHARLES FREMON DELORIARE, claiming ten thousand arpents of land, situate near Prairie à Rondo, district of St. Genevieve; produce the record of a concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated 17th January, 1797; certificate of a plat of survey, signed and sworn to by Antoine Soulard, and dated 15th March, 1808.

December 21, 1811: Present, a full Board. The Board remark that no kind of testimony suggests or makes it appear that the land claimed includes a lead mine. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

DOCUMENT N.

JOHN SMITH T., assignee of Jacques St. Vrain, claiming ten thousand arpents of land; original papers not produced; the record of the concession much compressed; thirty-three words are interlined with different ink; the words Louis Labeaume apparently. The heading of said Labeaume's notice of claims occupies one third of the paper, in the direction which four lines of the record of said concession stands in, so that two-thirds of said paper, in the direction of the said lines, is covered on each side with the said four lines, and the remaining one-third in the middle is occupied by the said words Louis Labeaume. It appears from the records that John Smith T. claims under this concession as follows: One thousand arpents at a place called the New Diggings, about two miles from Mine à Breton, a place known by the name of Mine à Robina, three hundred arpents; on the branch above Renault's Mines, three hundred arpents; three hundred arpents, including Doggit's Mines; two hundred arpents on the first branch emptying into the Mine Fork on the south side above its junction with Big river; two hundred arpents, including a place called McKee's Discovery, about a mile and a quarter from the last mentioned place; fifty arpents, including a mill seat on the second creek emptying into Big river, above the junction of the Mine Fork, on the west side.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

JOSEPH DECELLE, claiming six hundred and thirty acres of land.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. In the testimony of David Shaw, copied from the minutes of the Board by the agent, there is an error. It is there stated "about three or four hundred yards from the fields," whereas, in the original, it is "two or three hundred."

It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT O.

PIERRE CHARLES DEHAULT DELASSUS DELUZIÈRE, claiming seven thousand and fifty-six arpents of land.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

DOCUMENT P.

JOHN BAPTISTE PRATTE, ST. JAMES BEAUVAIS, FRANCIS VALLE, and JOHN BAPTISTE VALLE, claiming two leagues square of land, situate at Mine à la Motte, district of St. Genevieve; produce the record of a petition and recommendation for a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 22d January, 1801; record of a power of attorney to James Maxwell to obtain said concession; record of a petition of said Maxwell to the Intendant, dated 29th April, 1802; an order from Morales to Peter Derbigny to translate the documents and petitions, dated New Orleans, 30th April, 1802; record of a plat of survey of twenty-eight thousand two hundred and twenty-four arpents, dated 22d February, 1806, certified 26th February, 1806.

December 27, 1811: Present, full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

The foregoing claims, from A to P, inclusive, contain the whole of the report made to this Board by the agent of the United States.

JOHN PERRY, assignee of Basil Valle, claiming six hundred and thirty-nine acres of land, situate at the Mine à Breton, district of Genevieve; produces a notice to the recorder, dated October 3, 1807; and a deed of conveyance from said Valle to claimant, dated 18th March, 1806.

Testimony taken, December 5, 1807. Joseph Pratte, being duly sworn, says that between the years 1792 and 1795. Basil Valle built a cabin on the claim, cultivated a garden, and cleared six acres of land in 1796; continued to inhabit and cultivate the same till sold to claimant, and has been inhabited and cultivated ever since; said Valle considering said tract not to be more extensive than his improvements; that there has been mineral found within two rods of the enclosure, but does not know of any being found on the land; that the house stands on the street of the village at the Mine à Breton.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted, because it appears Basil Valle claims another tract of land under concession. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

THOMAS ALLEY, claiming sixteen arpents of land, situate at Alley's Mine, district of St. Genevieve; produces the record of a petition and recommendation from Francis Valle, commandant, dated 18th August, 1801; a reference from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, to the Intendant, dated 28th August, 1801.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

ABRAHAM ARMSTRONG AND RUTUS EASTON, claiming six hundred and forty acres of land, situate on Big and Platte rivers, district of St. Genevieve; produce a notice to the recorder; record of a transfer of one-half of this tract to Easton, dated 13th December, 1806; said tract called in said notice and transfer Armstrong's Diggings.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. The Board remark that the term diggings is generally understood in this part of the country when applied to designate a tract of land, diggings of lead mineral. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

The three foregoing claims to land containing lead mines, although not included in the report of the agent, are subjoined to the same.

JOHN B. C. LUCAS,
CLEMENT B. PENROSE,
FREDERICK BATES.

Claims to Land, including Salt Springs.

CHARLES TAYON, claiming three hundred and twenty arpents of land, situate on the river Dardennes, district of St. Charles; produces a concession from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, for said quantity of land, to include a salt spring; a plat of survey of three hundred and twenty arpents, dated 1st December, 1799, and certified 8th January, 1800; said concession dated 7th March, 1796.

Testimony taken, July 30, 1806. John Lafleur, being duly sworn, says that the said tract of land was settled for claimant's use by one Harrington, in the year 1801; that a house was built on the same.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

JACQUE CLAMORGAN, assignee of Thomas Tyler, assignee of John Helderbran, claiming eight by forty arpents of land, situate near the Merrimack, district of St. Louis; produces a duly registered concession from Ferdinando de Leyva, dated November 24, 1779; a plat of survey, dated 28th and certified 29th February, 1806; and two deeds of transfer, one from said Helderbran to Tyler, dated November 23, 1788, and another from said Tyler to claimant, dated September 17, 1791. Charles Gratiot produces a deed of conveyance (not on record) from Jeremiah Connor, sheriff of St. Louis district, for the above land, to Edward Hempstead, dated 11th June, 1803, but stating in the body of the same to have been sold by said sheriff to said Hempstead on the 7th day of July of the same year; said deed was afterwards acknowledged in open court on the 11th July, 1808; produces also an acknowledgment from Edward Hempstead and wife, that said property was purchased by him for Charles Gratiot, and by said Hempstead and wife conveyed to said Gratiot, dated November 25, 1808. It is acknowledged by Charles Gratiot that there is a saline on this claim which has been worked for many years.

Testimony taken, July 30, 1806. John Boli, being duly sworn, says that, about eighteen or nineteen years ago, the time at which he arrived in this country, the said Thomas Tyler lived about one mile below the fork of a run on said land, and had then about eighty arpents of the same under fence, forty of which were then planted in tobacco and corn, and then considered the largest farm in the country; that he remained on it about six or seven years; that about two years after his, the witness's, arrival, the settlers being obliged, on account of the Indians, to fortify themselves, they chose the middle of the settlement, in consequence of which the said Tyler moved up to the fork; that about four or five years afterwards he moved again, and settled himself about two miles from the aforesaid place down the creek, towards the saline, made a field and garden, and built a house, and that the said tracts have been actually cultivated to this day, either by the said Tyler for his use, or for claimant's use by his agents, and that this tract was actually inhabited and cultivated prior to and on the 1st day of October, 1800.

November 29, 1808. Peter Chouteau, sworn, says that John Helderbrand inhabited and cultivated the land claimed in 1774, and that he found him still inhabiting and cultivating the same in 1780, when deponent, by order of the Lieutenant Governor, went on the premises to warn said Helderbrand to abandon the same, on account of Indian depredations. This order was obeyed by Helderbrand, as well as by all the inhabitants of the settlement of the Merrimack.

July 30, 1806: Present, Lucas, Penrose, and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board confirm to the said claimant as per his concession.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

CHARLES GRATIOT, assignee of Pierre Chouteau, who was assignee of Benito Vasquez, claiming seven thousand and fifty-six arpents of land, situate on the river Merrimack, district of St. Louis; produces a duly registered concession from Francis Cruzat for the same, dated 8th September, 1784, and certified by Charles D. Delassus on the 9th March, 1803, (the same was granted for a vacherie, and on the condition of establishment within a year and a day;) a survey of the same, dated the 15th and certified the 17th February, 1806, together with a deed or transfer of said land, executed by Victorie, the wife of said Benito Vasquez, dated 26th September, 1785, and passed before the commandant, Francis Cruzat; a ratification of said transfer by said Benito Vasquez, dated the 31st January, 1805; and also a deed of transfer from the said Peter Chouteau to claimant, dated 4th May, 1801.

Testimony taken, August 29, 1806. Louis Bourse, being duly sworn, says that he has known the said tract of land established as a farm; that it was settled under Francis Cruzat, by the aforesaid Benito Vasquez, who made a park on the same; that there is on said tract a salt spring, distant from said park about three arpents; that he went through said land at two different times; that the same was then actually inhabited and cultivated, saw a great number of cattle, but could not say to whom they did belong.

Hyacinth St. Cyr, being duly sworn, says that he was on the said tract of land about twenty-one years ago, that the same was then actually inhabited and cultivated for the use of the said Benito Vasquez, who then had salt works established at the aforesaid salt spring; and further, that it was prior to and on the 1st day of October, 1800, actually inhabited and cultivated for the said Peter Chouteau.

October 25, 1808. Pierre Lajoy, sworn, says that claimant made an establishment on the land claimed about twelve years ago, when it was inhabited and cultivated for him, and that the same has been inhabited and cultivated for him ever since.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that one league square ought to be confirmed. It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

PASCAL CERRE, claiming as devisee of Gabriel Cerre, eight hundred arpents of land, situate on the Merrimack, district of St. Louis; produces a duly registered concession from Francis Cruzat, for eight by forty arpents, dated the 12th October, 1782; together with an order of survey for the same, with an addition of twelve by forty arpents, to be included in the same survey, said order dated 10th January, 1798, and signed Zenon Trudeau.

Testimony taken, August 30, 1806. Auguste Chouteau, being duly sworn, says that the said Gabriel Cerre settled the said tract of land in the year 1782; and that the same has been actually inhabited and cultivated to this day.

August 30, 1806: Present, Lucas, Penrose, and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board confirm to the said claimant the said tract of eight hundred arpents, as per the said concession.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought to be confirmed. It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that eight by forty arpents ought to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

CHARLES FREMON DELORIARE and LOUIS LABEAUNE, claiming ten thousand arpents of land, situate on Salt river, district of St. Charles; produce the record of a permission from Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, to choose a salt spring; dated 13th May, 1799; record of a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 26th March, 1801; record of a plat of survey, signed Antoine Soulard, dated 15th November, 1807.

December 26, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

PIERRE CHOUTEAU, claiming thirty thousand arpents of land, situate on Saline river, district of St. Louis; produces a concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 20th November, 1799; a paper purporting to be a gift from sundry Indians to claimant, dated 19th March, 1792.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

HENRY PEYROUX, claiming seven thousand seven hundred and sixty acres of land, situate on Saline creek and Mississippi river, district of St. Genevieve; produces the record of a duly registered concession from Manuel Perez, Lieutenant Governor, dated 24th December, 1787, a plat of survey, dated 23d and certified 26th February, 1806.

December 27, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

CHARLES GRATIOT, assignee of Maturin Bouvet, claiming twenty arpents of land, on which there is a saline, situate on the river Ha Ha, district of St. Charles; produces a concession (duly signed) from Zenon Trudeau, dated 1st June, 1795, and an act of public sale of the effects and property of said Bouvet, dated 7th December, 1800.

Testimony taken, July 8, 1806. Francis M. Benoit, being duly sworn, says that he has known a saline established on said land for eleven or twelve years since; that the same was established by said Bouvet; that he died about five years ago by fire; that his house was then destroyed, and that he worked said mine to the last moment.

July 8, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board reject this claim. They observe that the aforesaid concession is duly registered; that the conditions on which said concession was granted have been complied with, but that the same was not actually inhabited and cultivated prior to and on the 1st day of October, 1800.

January 9, 1812: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of a majority of the Board that this claim ought not to be confirmed. Frederick Bates, commissioner, forbears giving an opinion.

JOHN B. C. LUCAS,
FREDERICK BATES.

INHABITANTS OF THE TOWN OF ST. LOUIS, claiming nine hundred and twenty toises in length, one hundred and fifty in breadth to the north, two hundred in the centre, and one hundred and fifty to the south; produce a notice to the recorder, and a plat of said town, dated in 1780.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, that this claim ought to be granted, under ten years' possession prior to 20th December, 1803, if not exceeding two thousand acres, under the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807.

It is the opinion of Frederick Bates, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted in manner as claimed.

It is the opinion of John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, that this claim ought not to be granted, because several lots represented by the said plat have already been granted; others confirmed to individual claimants; because the notes of the plat represent or identify, by the letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H and I, different species of property, to wit, property of the King, property of the Roman Catholic congregation, such as church, &c.; also a lot marked with the letter G, called Place, which is understood to be La Place d'Armes; and also, other lots under the letter I, styled emplacements des particuliers, which would, if granted generally by the plat to the inhabitants, contravene the note of the said plat, by granting generally in common that which appears to be owned severally, and under various species of rights; because, also, the said plat does not appear to be duly authenticated.

Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, observes that no part of the property marked by said letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H and I, appears to have been the property of the King except the Place d'Armes.

January 15, 1812. On motion of Clement B. Penrose, commissioner, as follows, to wit:

The Board having acted on all the claims on record, except fifteen claims which were ordered to be surveyed for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of land claimed, and which have not been returned, although ordered so to be long since; therefore, resolved, that the said claims be reported, with the opinion of the commissioners thereon.

A question being taken on the resolution, Clement B. Penrose and Frederick Bates, commissioners, voted in the affirmative, and John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, in the negative.

The fifteen claims above alluded to are the following, to wit:

JOSEPH BECKETT.—A claim for two arpents front on the Mississippi river, thence to the concession of Madame Lasourse, district of St. Genevieve.

April 19, 1810: Present, a full Board. The Board grant to Joseph Beckett the above tract of land, provided it does not exceed two thousand acres, under the second section of an act of Congress, entitled An act respecting claims to land, and passed 3d March, 1807; and order that the same be surveyed conformably to his possession.

AUGUSTE CHOUTEAU, claiming, under Paul Lacroix, a tract of land, situate in the lower fields of St. Charles, three hundred and twenty-four arpents, more or less, district of St. Charles.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded three hundred and twenty-four arpents.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, declares that he cannot give an absolute vote, under the present circumstances, upon the claim, inasmuch as the Board have heretofore ordered a survey to be made under the foregoing concession, for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity; and inasmuch as the same reasons which induced the Board to make said order previous to the decision of the claim still exists, and the said order remains in force, not having been rescinded, he further remarks, that the claim ought to be confirmed, without being able at present to say what quantity.

MANUEL A. ROCQUE, claiming under John Coontz, a lot of ground in the town of St. Charles, with a mill-dam and race; district of St. Charles.

November 27, 1809: Present, a full Board. The Board grant to Manuel A. Rocque the above tract of land, provided it does not exceed two thousand acres, under the second section of an act of Congress, entitled An act respecting claims to land, and passed the 3d March, 1807, and order that the same be surveyed agreeably to his possession.

JOSEPH M. PAFIN.—A claim for eight arpents front on the Mississippi, and back to the road leading to Carondelet, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded eighty arpents.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, above.

CHARLES GRATIOT, claiming under Maturin Bouvet, eighty-four arpents front on the Mississippi, and in depth from the river back to the hills, district of St. Charles.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded a league square, and if the same be not situate above the mouth of the river Jeffreon.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remark as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, above, with this addition, "provided, also, that the said claim is not situate above the mouth of the river Jeffreon."

BERNARD PRATTE, claiming, under John Baptiste Pugol, six by forty arpents, situate on the Merrimack, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded two hundred and forty arpents.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, above.

ANTOINE V. BOUIS, claiming under Louis Boury, a barn lot in the town of St. Louis, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have granted this claim under the provisions of the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807, had it been found not to have exceeded one hundred and twenty by one hundred and fifty feet.

John B. Lucas, commissioner, declares that he cannot give an absolute vote, under the present circumstances, upon the claim, inasmuch as the Board have heretofore ordered a survey to be made for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity, and inasmuch as the same reasons which induced the Board to make said order previous to the decision of the claim still exists, and the said order remains in force, not having been rescinded; he further remarks, that the claim ought to be granted, without being able at present to say what quantity.

MANUEL LISA, claiming, under one Amiot, six hundred arpents of land, situate on Creve Cœur, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have granted this claim, under the provisions of the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807, had it been found not to exceed six hundred arpents.

John B. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the above claim of Antoine V. Bouis.

JOHN BAPTISTE PRATTE, claiming, under Paul De-ruisseaux, one and a half arpents front by the usual depth, situate on Common Fields, district of St. Genevieve.

January 15, 1812. A majority of the Board declare that they would have granted this claim, under the provisions of the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807, had it been found not to have exceeded two thousand acres.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the above claim of Antoine V. Bouis.

JOSEPH BRASEAU.—A claim for ten arpents front, on the Mississippi, running back to the road leading from St. Louis to Carondelet, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded one hundred arpents.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, above.

JOSEPH BRASEAU, claiming, under Benito Vasquez, two arpents front on the Mississippi, running back to the road leading from St. Louis to Carondelet, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded twenty arpents.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, above.

SUSANNAH DUBRIEU, claiming, under Sylvester Sarpy, four arpents front on the Mississippi, back to the road leading from St. Louis to Carondelet, from six to eight arpents, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812. A majority of the Board declare that they would have granted this claim under the provisions of the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807, had it been found not to have exceeded thirty-two arpents.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Antoine V. Bouis, page 558.

PETER DELUZIÈRE, claiming under Bartholomew Tardiveau, ten arpents front between the Mississippi and the Common Fields, district of St. Genevieve.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have contained more than the quantity of land contained in a league square.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, page 558.

JACQUES CLAMORGAN, claiming, under Sumande and others, a lot in the town of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812: Present, a full Board. A majority of the Board declare that they would have confirmed this claim had it been found not to have exceeded one hundred and twenty by one hundred and fifty feet.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Auguste Chouteau, page 558.

JACQUE CLAMORGAN, claiming, under Dupuy and others, a lot in St. Louis, district of St. Louis.

January 15, 1812. A majority of the Board declare that they would have granted this claim, under the provisions of the second section of the act of the 3d March, 1807, had it been found not to have exceeded one hundred and twenty by one hundred and fifty feet.

John B. C. Lucas, commissioner, makes the same remarks as in the claim of Antoine V. Bouis, page 558.

The foregoing decisions are respectfully submitted.

JOHN B. C. LUCAS,
FREDERICK BATES.

APPENDIX.

MARIE P. LEDUC's claim, (see page 389.)

ST. LOUIS OF THE ILLINOIS, Dec. 30, 1799.

To Don Charles Dehault Delassus, Lieutenant Colonel of the armies of his Catholic Majesty, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Louisiana and its dependencies, &c.

Marie Philip Leduc, who has had the honor that Government had enough confidence in him to be employed by Mr. Thomas Portell, and now by you, as chiefs of said Government, as well at New Madrid as at this place, since your arrival, having shown his zeal and affection in fulfilling the duties of translator of the English language, there being no one particularly appointed for this place, and that it is well known to you, sir, that he has made it his duty to discharge it without any reward or compensation: your petitioner, therefore, prays you, sir, to be pleased to grant him fifteen thousand arpents of land, in superficies, to be taken on the left bank of the river Missouri, on any of the vacant lands of the King's domain, in the views to establish on the same a vacherie, and to form a settlement corresponding to a farm; also, in the views to secure in future a livelihood, in order to support his numerous family, and to be secured from the accidents and adversities so frequent in the other branches of this present life; your petitioner having no other prospects but those of continuing to live a peaceable and faithful subject of His Majesty, and to be submitted to the generous Government from whom he has already experienced the kindness. Your petitioner hopes that you will pay regard to his demand in a favorable manner, promising to make the necessary improvements, as soon as you will permit him, of remaining assiduously ready to translate when required by your orders.

M. P. LEDUC.

ST. LOUIS, January 7, 1800.

Having regard that the petitioner is ancient in this country, and that his merit, personal qualities, and capacities are well known and recommendable, being certain of the truth of his petition; and whereas he has more than the necessary means to put the land solicited in value, I do grant to him and his heirs the land by him demanded, if it does not prejudice any body; and the surveyor, Don Anthony Soulard, shall put the petitioner in possession of the quantity of land demanded, on the place mentioned; after which he will deliver the corresponding certificate to the party, together with this, in order that it may serve him to obtain the concession and title in form from the Intendant General, to whom, by royal order, appertains the exclusive right of granting all classes of vacant lands.

CHARLES DEHAULT DELASSUS.

TERRITORY OF LOUISIANA:

I do hereby certify the above to be truly translated from the original.

M. P. LEDUC,

Translator to the Board of Com'rs of Lou. Ter.

LOUISIANA TERRITORY, District of St. Louis:

January 16, 1812.

Before me, one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions for the district of St. Louis, has appeared M. P. Leduc, who has presented to me an original concession for fifteen thousand arpents of land, in the French and Spanish languages, of which said concession I do certify the above to be a true and accurate translation. In witness whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name.

L. LABEAUME.

May 2, 1806. Antoine Soulard being duly sworn true answers to give, &c., in a claim of David Delauney:

Question. Were you the surveyor of Upper Louisiana under the Spanish Government?

Answer. Yes.

Question. Was it any part of the duties imposed on you by the Spanish law and the functions of your office to obey the orders of the Lieutenant Governor of the province, without any regard to their legality or illegality?

Answer. Yes; the Lieutenant Governor was accountable for it.

Question. From whom did you derive your appointment?

Answer. From the Governor General of Lower Louisiana, Baron de Carondelet.

Question. Is that your hand-writing? (showing him the aforesaid concession.)

Answer. I believe it is.

Question. Do you recollect when that was written, and is it your belief that it was written at the time it bears date?

Here the witness refused to answer; whereupon, the witness was asked by the Board whether he meant to give similar answers to the questions in all similar cases; and answered yes.

JAMES MACKAY's claim for two hundred and eighty-two arpents, (see page 390.)

July 22, 1806: Present, a full Board. The Board, from the above testimony, are satisfied that the aforesaid concession is antedated.

Testimony taken, December 3, 1807. William Murphy, being duly sworn, says he was present when old William Reed obtained permission to settle himself and friends and connexions on vacant land, from Mr. Deluziere, late commandant of New Bourbon, in the year 1798 or 1799; and that witness always understood that said William Reed was brother's son of said William Reed, Sen.

John Lewis, being also sworn, says that claimant raised a crop on said tract in 1806 and 1807.

MANUEL LISA, claiming under Philip Baccane, (see page 453.)

Testimony taken, November 24, 1808. Antoine Soulard, sworn, says that he had the concession in this claim in his possession, to make a survey, some time in 1797; that it was one of the concessions which interfered with the Portage des Sioux; in consequence of which information, the Lieutenant Governor, Delassus, ordered them to be surveyed on the vacant domain. Order dated 18th November, 1803.

DAVID DELAUNAY's claim of eight hundred arpents, (see page 459.)

May 2, 1806. Present, Lucas and Penrose, commissioners. The Board, still not being satisfied, required further proof of the date of the above concession; which not being adduced, they reject this claim.

LEMUEL WAKELY's claim, (see page 466.)

September 1, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

MACKAY WHERRY's claim, (see page 472.)

Testimony taken, September 20, 1806. James Mackay, being duly sworn, says that he knows of claimant claiming no other land in his own name in the Territory; that he has known him in the country for upwards of ten years, and heard him say, long prior to October 1800, that he had obtained the aforesaid concession; and further, that he was, at the time of obtaining the same, the head of a family.

DANIEL STRINGER's claim, (see page 476.)

August 25, 1806: Present, Lucas and Penrose, commissioners. The Board grant the said claimant three hundred and seventy arpents of land, situate as aforesaid, provided so much be found vacant there.

PHILIP SHACKLER's claim, (see page 476.)

March 21, 1806: Present, Lucas and Penrose, commissioners. The Board grant the said claimant seven hundred and fifty arpents of land, situate as aforesaid, provided so much be found vacant there.

FRANCIS MICHEL's claim, (see page 477.)

December 19, 1810: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

FRANCIS B. CORVAISSER, claiming under Isaac Thompson, (see page 480.)

Testimony taken, June 19, 1808, at New Madrid. Peter Dumay, duly sworn, says that premises were inhabited and cultivated from 1794 or '95 to present day; fifteen acres now in cultivation, a wife in 1803.

CHARLES ELLIS's claim, (see page 487.)

June 25, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. This claimant appeared before the Board in order more fully to establish his claim, and produced Richard Moore, who, being duly sworn, says that claimant caused a crop to be raised on said land in 1803; that one-half of the same was reaped by him, and consumed on said land; and further, that he did, prior to and on the 20th day of December of that year, actually inhabit the same, and had then a wife, who died towards the latter end of that month. The Board grant the said claimant two hundred arpents of land, situate as aforesaid, provided so much be found vacant there.

JOSEPH MATTHEWS's claim, (see page 494.)

September 30, 1811: Present, a full Board. It is the opinion of the Board that this claim ought not to be granted.

B. MARTIN's claim, (see page 499.)

June 20, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board reject this claim, and remark, that, from the terms of this grant, it appears to have been granted, not as a commons for wood, but as a park for cultivation, to be distinctly apportioned among the inhabitants of the town of St. Genevieve.

CHARLES FINDLEY, claiming under William Patter-son; (see page 543.)

August 26, 1806: Present, Lucas and Penrose, commissioners. The Board confirm to the said claimant, assignee as aforesaid, four hundred arpents of land, as per the said warrant of survey.

ST. JAMES BEAUVAIS's claim, (see page 547.)

June 20, 1806: Present, Penrose and Donaldson, commissioners. The Board reject this claim, and observe that the above concession is neither antedated nor fraudulent, and that the above claimant had in 1800 ten children and thirty slaves.

NUEVE ORLEANS, 8 de Mayo, 1793.

NOUVELLE MADRID, le 17 Juin, 1797.

MON CHER MONSIEUR:

Lorsque j'ai obtenu une concession de M. Zenon Trudeau, en date du 7 Juin, 1796, que je vous ai remise, en vous disant que j'esperais bientôt retourner á St. Louis pour etre présent á l'arpentage que vous deviez faire, je ne croyais pas que les affaires de service de ce petit poste etaient aussi exigeantes. Imaginez vous que depuis que j'ai reçu le commandement de M. Portell, je n'ai cessé d'être continuellement occupé, soit par les procès, ou avec les passagers de toutes nations, &c. qui arrivent par l'Ohio, et á présent avec le passage de Messieurs les Americains, que j'attends de ce jour, et les ordres de M. Howard, qui m'empêchent de bouger d'ici, ne me laissent aucune esperance de pouvoir aller á St. Louis de long-temps; ainsi je vous prie, lorsqu'il vous sera possible de vouloir bien aller arpenter ma concession citée, qui est de 20,000, á prendre dans les deux endroits mentionnés dans la requête décrétée, que je vous ai laissée. Vous connaissez les endroits que j'ai choisis, ainsi malgré que je ne serai pas présent, j'approuve d'avance votre opération, ne doutant nullement que vous ferez pour le mieux, et vous offrant mes services sincères dans le peu qu'offre ce petit bout de brouet.

J'ai l'honneur d'être, très cordialement, votre affectonné serviteur.

CHARLES DEHAULT DELASSUS.

Mes respects et amitiés á votre aimable famille.

Mons. ANTOINE SOULARD.

ST. LOUIS, le 1 Février, 1804.

Certifions á tous ceux á qu'il appartiendra, que la lettre ci-dessus est une copie fidèle de l'original qui m'a été adressée par Don Charles Dehault Delassus, lieutenant colonel agrégé au régiment six de la Louisiane, et commandant du poste de la Nouvelle Madrid, laquelle est déposée á l'archive de l'arpentage de cette Haute Louisiane á ma charge.

NARCISSUS BROUTIN, Not. Pub.

January 23, 1806: Present, Lucas, Penrose, and Donaldson, commissioners. A claim of James Pritchett, under the second section of the act of the 2d March, 1805, being before the Board.

In this case, the honorable the commissioners being undetermined as to the quantity of arpents to be granted to actual settlers under the second section of the act of Congress, agreed to make a case of the same; which being argued on the part of the United States by their agent William C. Caw, Esq., and, on the part of the actual settler by Jesse Bledsoe, Esq., the opinion of the Board stood as follows:

Clement B. Penrose and James L. Donaldson are of opinion that the whole quantity of land which may be granted to a settler, in virtue of his having cultivated and inhabited on the 20th of December, 1803, may exceed the quantity of eight hundred arpents, the amount to which the laws and usages of Spain restrained the new settler; this opinion they found on the following reasons, to wit:

1st. That the words of the second section of the act, "providing for the other and further allowance to the wife and family of the claimant," would be rendered inoperative and void by a construction which restrains the whole amount to eight hundred arpents, as the mile square English measure; that is, six hundred and forty acres make seven hundred and fifty arpents, leaving only fifty arpents for the wife and family; when, under the Spanish usage and law, the allowance for the wife alone would exceed the quantity by fifty arpents, and the family be entirely unprovided for; which would be to say that the words "other and further allowance for the wife and family of the claimant" had sound but not sense.

2d. That it appears satisfactorily to us to have been the liberal intention of Congress to grant land to the settler in proportion to the number of his family, and that that body were of opinion that an individual who had to support by his labor a wife and large family, was entitled to more indulgence than a single unconnected man; and this was also the principle of the Spanish law, which granted to the man only one hundred arpents in his own right, but, in his capacity of husband, gave him one hundred more, and, in that of father, fifty for each child; that the act commutes the one hundred arpents, the man's allowance, for a quantity not to exceed a mile square, and leaves the residue for wife and family to be determined by Spanish law and usage.

3d. According to the other construction which has been given to the words of the second section of the act, a settler with one child and no wife would be entitled to the same quantity of land as a settler with a wife and twelve children, which would be absurd.

4th. The other and further allowance, according to the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government, was intended as a future provision for a family of children, according to its extent; and this principle entirely accords with our impression of the liberal and benevolent view of Congress in this donation.

5th. Even a law of national bounty should be construed favorably for the citizen, if the construction do not favor speculation, and amount to an imposition on the generosity of the public, which, on the grounds above mentioned, we do not think would be the case in this instance.

6th. The majority of the Board the more readily give the law this construction, because, if mistaken, the honorable body to whom the opinion will be referred will set us right, and have it always in their power to give what they may deem a correct construction to their own language.

We are therefore of opinion that a settler on the 20th December, 1803, under the provision for his wife and family of the second section of the act is entitled to more land in his double capacity of husband and father, and that this additional quantity is to be regulated by, and not to exceed, the measure of the Spanish usage; and as, according to such usage, the whole quantity could not exceed eight hundred arpents, of which one hundred were given to the man himself; being of opinion that the quantity, not to exceed a mile square, given by the act to the actual settler, should be taken to be in lieu of the husband's allowance, we find seven hundred arpents remaining, to which, by the Spanish law and usage, we think "the other and further allowance for the wife and family" of such settler is to be limited.

John B. C. Lucas, one of the commissioners, enters the following reasons and opinion as his protest against the foregoing opinion and decision of the majority of the Board, to wit:

It appears to him necessary to premise that the actual settler, who by the second section of the act under which this Board act, is the object of the liberality of Congress, must have had the permission of a Spanish officer to make a settlement, in conformity with the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government. This Board have liberally presumed a general permission, when the actual settler hath not been able to show a special permission; but this general permission, which is thus presumed, cannot exceed the bounds of the power of the Spanish officer; and, as by the official instructions of Governor Miro, the regulations of Governor Gayoso, and those of the Intendant Morales, the maximum of donations to new settlers is limited to eight hundred arpents, thus all permissions given to new settlers are limited either by the Spanish officer, or by the laws and customs of the Spanish Government. It also appears to him that the intention of the Legislature of the United States hath been to put the Spanish actual settler by permission in the best possible situation, without abandoning Spanish laws and usages; indeed, all the essential qualities of a Spanish donation to an actual settler are preserved in the second section of this law; he is to have one tract of land, one part of which he is to receive in consideration of his person, the other in consideration of his wife and family; the part which he receives in consideration of his person is no more nor less his own than that which he receives in consideration of his family. The minimum, or least quantity of the Spanish grant is changed, but the maximum, or greatest quantity, remains untouched; the whole together is but one grant, and that grant is made to him, as a new settler, by Spanish permission. Now let it be examined: what is the quantity of land that hath been heretofore allowed for the wife and family of an actual settler, in conformity with the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government? There is no certain quantity, inasmuch as when an actual settler had more children and slaves than could be satisfied at the common ratio of fifty arpents for each child, and twenty arpents for each slave, out of eight hundred arpents, the number of children and slaves ceased to be counted, and the maximum, to wit, eight hundred arpents, was allowed; dividing, then, the quantity of land allowed for the children and slaves, upon the whole supernumerary number of children and slaves, the dividend for each child and slave becomes less than the ratio of fifty and twenty arpents; that there is no quantity invariable and determinate, in conformity to the Spanish laws, but the quantity of eight hundred arpents; this quantity regulates the variably quantity, but is never regulated. From these, a grant to a new settler is not made according to the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government, if it exceeds eight hundred arpents; but whilst the language of the law justifies that construction, the reason of it coincides also perfectly—what merits hath a new settler by permission more than a new settler by concession? Why should Congress be more liberal towards the actual settlers authorized by Spain, after she had parted with her right of domain, than to settlers before she had parted with the domain? The former liberality exercised by Congress in the Territory of Mississippi towards Spanish actual settlers in circumstances perfectly similar to those provided for by the present second section, ought also to be taken into view; no more than six hundred and forty arpents have been granted to them, without any addition in consideration of their family. It is also observed that this donation hath been sued for by the donee, and not made gratia principes, as the books of law term it; therefore, the act of Congress ought not to be construed against the donor, to wit, the United States.

The opinion of said commissioners is, that no donation under the second section of the act alluded to ought to exceed eight hundred arpents, let the number of the family be what it may.

May 1, 1806: Present, John B. C. Lucas, Clement B. Penrose, and James L. Donaldson, commissioners.

The Board having maturely considered and examined certain communications from the Secretary of the Treasury, containing directions from the President, instructions from the Secretary, and the observations of the Attorney General, together with the opinion of the latter on the same subject, believe, that a certain part of the second section of the law of Congress, under which it acts, is so worded as to admit the construction put upon the said part of the law by the Attorney General, to wit, that the second section of the said law restrains the right of settlement to the quantity of land heretofore allowed to new settlers for themselves, wife and family, agreeably to the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government; therefore, they have come to the determination to depart from their former decisions on the subject of grants made to settlers under the second section, and now resolve, that the quantity of land to be granted to each actual settler shall, in future, be in the same ratio as is provided for by Spanish law and usage, and shall be restrained to one mile square. They beg leave to refer Congress to the former opinions and reasons of the majority of the Board, and of one of the commissioners on that subject, which have been entered on their minutes of the 23d January last, and may be now considered as remarks.

JACOB COLLINS'S claim, (see page 448.)

Testimony taken in the claim of John Wideman, July 5, 1806. Michael Horine, being duly sworn, says that Francis Valle, when commandant of St. Genevieve, informed him (the witness) that he had permitted the Widemans, consisting then of eight or ten families, to settle on vacant lands.

JACQUE ST. VRAIN, claiming under Louis Lajoy, (see page 488;) produces a survey, dated 19th January and certified 20th March, 1804.

Testimony taken, on behalf of the United States, May 28, 1806. Louis Lajoy, being duly sworn, says that he never applied for a concession; that, about two years ago, in the winter, Louis Labeaume called on him, and informed him that he was ready to give concessions to such as wanted some; that he (the witness) went to Gregoire Sarpy's, where Labeaume lived at that time; that being there, Labeaume showed him some papers which he deemed to be concessions, but did not give him the same; that, not knowing how to write, he made his cross to a paper; that he never received any thing for the land he made over to claimant; and further, that he does not know where the said land lies; was, at the time of the above application to him (the said witness) by said Labeaume, of the age of twenty-two years; had a wife and one child, and claims no other land in his own name in this Territory. Louis Lajoy claims two hundred and fifty arpents of this land, which makes a tract of eight hundred arpents.

List A is a list of one hundred and sixty-four names of persons, to whom land is granted by a general concession from Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, dated 30th January, 1803. This concession has been taken by the Board as a special permission to settle, and several grants made under the same.

List B is a list of the names of fifty persons, to whom permission to settle was granted by Louis Lorimer, while commandant of Cape Girardeau, and certified by him 23th July, 1804; and several grants have been made by the Board under the same.

JOHN B. C. LUCAS,
FREDERICK BATES.

[The figures between parenthesis in the columns of "Quantity," denote the quantity to which the claim has been extended by the Recorder of Land Titles, agreeably to the provisions of the 4th section of the act of Congress of the 3d March, 1813, entitled "An act allowing further time for delivering the evidence in support of claims to land in the Territory of Missouri, and for regulating the donation grants therein," as appears from his report dated February 2, 1816.]

This is to certify that the foregoing list of certificates issued by the Board of Commissioners for ascertaining and adjusting the titles and claims to lands in the Territory of Louisiana, during the month of June, one thousand eight hundred and ten, from number three hundred and fifty-five to number three hundred and ninety-seven, inclusive, is truly transcribed from the book of registry kept by me as clerk of said Board.
Given under my hand at St. Louis, this 26th day of July, 1810. JOHN W. HONEY.

* Certificates number three hundred and sixty-two and number three hundred and seventy-four are for the same tract of land. The claimant had his claim revised by the present Board, on the 24th of June, eighteen hundred and eight, and again on the twenty-eighth of September, eighteen hundred and eight, which, from the mode of proceeding of the Board in all other cases, must have taken place on the application of the claimant. From this circumstance the Board was led into the error. The Board have, therefore, destroyed certificate number three hundred and seventy-four.

2d SESSION.

EXTENSION OF TIME OF PAYMENT, REDUCTION IN THE PRICE. AND THE SUBDIVISION OF QUARTER SECTIONS OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, DECEMBER 2, 1812.

MR. JEREMIAH MORROW, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred a number of petitions from purchasers of public lands, praying for an extension of the time allowed by law for making their payments; and also a resolution of the House instructing the committee to inquire into the expediency of prolonging the time of payment on purchases made prior to the 1st of April, 1809, and of reducing the price, the subdividing the quarter sections, in future sales, made the following report:

That the committee have, with due attention, considered the petitions and propositions contained in the resolution referred to them. They are aware of the disadvantage arising from interrupting the operation of general laws by temporary expedients, and that, at present, when the nation is engaged in war, the Government should avail itself of all its proper resources, and give no unnecessary indulgence in the collection of public moneys. They are, however, of opinion, that a view of the present state of commerce, and the existing hostilities on the frontier of those settlements in which the public lands are situated, will give to the application of the petitioners a strong claim to the favorable attention of the House.

It appears, by the representations of the petitions, that in the Mississippi Territory, the staple commodity for exportation in that country cannot find a market, and, consequently, will not command a price. Northwest of the Ohio the prices of produce, have, in a small degree, advanced above their usual rates, arising from the demand for supplies to the army. The capacity of the inhabitants of the interior country, to make payment for their lands, has, by that means, been improved; while those in the frontier settlements, who are generally indebted for land, and are exposed to the hostilities of the savage, and, in many instances, driven from their homes, their means to make payment has, in more than a proportionate degree, been diminished.

The performance of personal military services, so generally required on the frontiers, has also operated much to prevent the necessary exertions of purchasers to comply with their contracts for lands.

It is unquestionable that the situation of purchasers, in regard to their means of making payments, are variant; but no practical mode of forming a discrimination in the provision to be recommended has suggested itself. By charging interest on the money due, it is to be presumed, that those who possess the means will generally be induced to make their payments, while those that do not may save their lands from forfeiture.

The committee, when considering (according to the instruction of the House) the proposition for reducing the price, and subdividing the quarter sections, have been led to inquire into the policy of repealing such part of the present law as allows a credit to the purchasers. From the view they have taken of the subject, they cannot but believe, that important advantages would result from so modifying the present law as to require cash payments.

The frequent application of purchasers for indulgence, and the frequent recurrence of circumstances which necessarily induce the Legislature to mitigate the general operation of the law, has inclined the committee to believe that the system of credit is not well adapted to the circumstances of the country, and do not produce the effects intended by it.

It is believed, judging by the experience of the past, that the present system cannot be continued, and the laws rigidly executed, without occasionally producing great injury to the purchasers. Men are seduced by the temptation, which the credit held out to them, to extend their purchases beyond their means of making payment; the unfavorable fluctuations of commerce cannot be foreseen; and the pretty general disposition in men to anticipate the most favorable results from the produce of their labor, are the general causes of the failure of purchasers in making their payments.

By abolishing the credit in future sales, every subsequent purchaser would, without any liability to error, be able to calculate his means of making payment. If his purchase should not be so extensive, he will at once be secure and quiet in his possession. In future those fertile sources of discontent and disquietude, which arise from disappointment, and from the exercise of the measures necessary to enforce the payments, as also the frequent distress, occasioned by the forfeiture of lands, on which settlements have been made, would be removed. The measure would also tend to facilitate the collection of the public moneys and simplify the business in the land offices.

It has been alleged that monopoly and large speculations would be promoted by abolishing the credit, and reducing the price of the public lands. Any measure that would produce that effect should be carefully guarded against; a monopoly of land for the purpose of settlement by tenants threatens with palpable injury the pecuniary and political independence of the agricultural class of society; and speculations in wild lands is at least an employment unproductive to society, the speculator adding no new value to the article in which he trades. It is believed that the proposed measure would not have the alleged effect: the price being still higher than can be afforded for any other purpose than that of improving the land, or securing it for the use of the purchaser's family. While Government dispose of their lands for a valuable consideration, he who possesses the means to afford that consideration will have the advantage of him who does not, in the purchase of lands. While, however, large quantities are in the market, and offered for sale in small tracts, little may be apprehended from the evils of monopoly and speculation, whether the lands be sold for cash or on credit.

Of all expedients that have been resorted to, for preventing the public lands from being engrossed by capitalists, that of offering them for sale in small tracts has been the most successful. Holding them at a high price has also had that effect, but attended with the disadvantage, that the industrious poor man is, also, by the same means, precluded from becoming a purchaser; but the sale in small tracts facilitates the purchase, by those who are, by habit or inclination, disposed to cultivate the soil, while it prevents the lands being engrossed for the purpose of speculation.

The experience of many years under the present system, with all the aid of remedial laws for the relief of purchasers, does not promise it a successful operation in future, and it cannot be correct policy to persist in a system, so much affected by circumstances, that it appears to operate by the means of frequently deviating from itself. It appears, by the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, that the receipts on account of forfeitures to the United States, from delinquent purchasers within the State of Ohio alone, for the year ending 30th of September, 1811, amounted to forty-nine thousand five hundred and sixty-one dollars seventy-four cents; and, it is believed, (from information, not official,) that they will exceed that amount for the present year: say the receipts on account of forfeitures, for two years, are one hundred thousand dollars. The forfeiture is generally one-fourth the purchase money, so that the prime cost of the lands forfeited, with their improvements, in two years, in the State of Ohio, will amount to four hundred thousand dollars. Such quantity of land property brought into market, and frequently at an under value, (the land being always first offered at auction for what is due on it,) must eventually induce the employment of a capital, different from that possessed by the agricultural class of the community.

These extensive forfeitures, are, no doubt, much owing to an unfavorable state of things; but under the most favorable circumstances, the present system cannot operate to the advantage of the poor. An individual, who takes the whole term of credit, allowed by law on the three last instalments, is charged on the moneys thus credited more than ten per cent. per annum, above those that make prompt payment; and, in most instances, if he possess no other resources than those arising from the land itself, he suffers a forfeiture of the money paid, and the land with its improvements.

If, as is now proposed, part of the public lands were offered in tracts of eighty acres, at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, every individual who is able to pay one hundred dollars, might acquire a freehold estate without encumbering himself with any debt whatever.

It may be added that the present appears more favorable for the proposed change than any subsequent period; several land offices have been authorized, which have not yet gone into operation; these might all commence sales on the proposed plan, without the inconvenience of change.

Conceiving that the proposed modification of the laws would produce important advantages, and not be subject to any inconvenience, but such, as in the nature of things, admit of no remedy, and such as, in common, attend the credit system, the committee respectfully submit the following resolutions:

Resolved, That such parts of the laws, for the sale of the public lands, as allow a credit on part of the purchase money, be repealed; and that the price at which the lands shall be offered in future shall be one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

Resolved, That in future sales a portion of the public land be offered in tracts of eighty acres.

Resolved, That two years be given, in addition to the term now allowed by law, to the purchasers of public lands, whose time of payment shall have or may expire on or before the 1st of January, 1814, on condition that all the interest that has accrued, or may accrue, on or before the 1st day of March next, shall be paid at that day, and the interest that may become due thereafter shall be paid at the day on which the time, according to the existing laws, shall expire for making payment.

PRE-EMPTION RIGHTS IN THE ILLINOIS TERRITORY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, DECEMBER 23, 1812.

MR. JEREMIAH MORROW, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred a petition from a number of the inhabitants of the Illinois Territory, who have made settlements on the public lands, made the following report:

That the petitioners pray for a right of pre-emption to the lands which they have improved, and on which they are now settled; and, also, that in case of the inability of any settler to enter the land at private sale, the purchaser at public sale shall be obliged to pay the settler for his improvement.

The committee are of opinion that promiscuous and unauthorized settlements on the public lands are, in many respects, injurious to the public interest; good policy forbids that any encouragement should be given to such intrusions. It was prohibited by the Congress under the confederation, and has been made penal by an act under the present form of Government.

Congress cannot, in the opinion of the committee, grant the prayer of the petitioners in its full extent, without destroying the effect intended to be produced by the law prohibiting intrusions on the public lands; to legalize a direct violation of the law must, by obvious consequence, encourage future violations.

The committee are of opinion, that no provision ought to be made in favor of that class of the petitioners who have settled subsequent to the passing of the act of the 3d of March, 1807, nor in favor of those who settled prior to the passing of that act, who have not complied with its requirements.

The settlers who have obtained permission to remain on the lands which they had improved are, no doubt, entitled to the benefit of the same provision which has been made for settlers in the Mississippi Territory, in similar situations. For that purpose the committee have directed their Chairman to ask leave to report a bill.

VIRGINIA MILITARY BOUNTY LANDS.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 18, 1813.

SIR:

In obedience to the requisitions of an act of Congress of the 26th of June last, entitled "An act to ascertain the western boundary of the tract reserved for satisfying the military bounties allowed to the officers and soldiers of the Virginia line on continental establishment," I have the honor to lay before Congress copies of a report of the commissioners appointed on the part of the U. States, with a plat of the line run under their direction, and field notes explanatory thereof.

In order to present the subject more conspicuously to the view of Congress, I have caused to be laid down and also transmit a map of the Virginia military reservation, showing the old boundary line as run by Mr. Ludlow, the line now run under the direction of the commissioners on the part of the United States, and the line said to be contended for by the commissioners on the part of Virginia, that their several bearings, as well upon the reservation as on the lands below the Little Miami river, may be more distinctly discovered.

With great respect, I have the honor to be,

Sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD TIFFIN.

The Honorable the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives of the United States.

NOTE.—For the plat and map above referred to, see General Land Office.

To the Honorable Edward Tiffin, Esquire, Commissioner of the General Land Office of the United States, dated at CHILICOTHE, December 28, 1812.

The undersigned commissioners appointed on the part of the United States, in conformity with the act of Congress passed on the 26th day of June, A. D. 1812, "to ascertain, survey, and mark the westerly boundary line of the Virginia reservation between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers," beg leave respectfully to report: That in obedience to the act aforesaid, and the particular directions received from the General Land Office, according to the provisions of the said act, on the 26th day of October last, we repaired to the town of Zenia, in Green county, where we were met by Generals Robert Porterfield and Abraham Trigg, two of the commissioners from the State of Virginia, in company with whom we proceeded to explore the various branches, and ascertain the heads of the two rivers mentioned in the deed of cession. And having taken to our assistance Charles Roberts, Esq. as a surveyor, with chain carriers and a marker, have run, measured, and accurately marked a line from the centre of the pond, or spring, which is the principal source or head of the main branch of the Little Miami river, north bearing west twenty-four degrees and thirty minutes fifty-three miles and sixty chains to a similar pond, or spring, being the head or principal source of the main branch of the Scioto river. In order to ascertain with the greatest certainty the main sources of the two rivers, it was found necessary to take the meanders of the two principal branches of the Little Miami, from their confluence to their respective sources or head springs, and to extend the line formerly run by Mr. Ludlow to the Indian boundary, from that boundary to the Scioto river, within the Indian territory, or lands to which the Indian claim is not extinguished, which was accordingly done; all which will appear by the plat and survey accompanying this report.

The gentlemen commissioners on the part of Virginia have not agreed with us in the line thus ascertained and marked, but have required that a line should be established in place thereof from the mouth of the Little Miami, to the source of the main branch of the Scioto river, which would include within the Virginia reservation the principal part of the land between the two Miami rivers, and a large tract of country on the west side of the Big

Miami; as will appear by the plats of the surveys of the public lands in the Miami country, and the plat herewith transmitted.

In consequence of the inclemency of the season in which this business has been executed, and which was occasioned by the postponement from the time first contemplated by the act of Congress; the hostile attitude of some of the Indians in the northern part of the country necessary to be explored, and through which the line must pass, to the marking of which even some of the friendly Indians objected, rendering it expedient to obtain a guard; and the difference of opinion relative to certain facts and principles between the United States' commissioners and those on the part of Virginia; the execution of this work has taken much more time, and the delay in making this report has been consequently greater than was expected.

The expenses incurred and paid by us in obtaining the necessary guides and guards beyond the Indian boundary, and the amount of work performed by the surveyor in meandering the two branches of the Miami, and extending Ludlow's line, &c., with our estimate of the value thereof, the extent of the line as surveyed and marked in obedience to the act, and the amount due to the surveyor for the same, and the number of days spent by each of us in attending to the same, will be found in a statement below.

All which is respectfully submitted by your honor's most obedient servants,

JAMES KILBOURN,
SAMUEL HERRICK,
WILLIAM LUDLOW.

Paid by the commissioners to Isaac Zane, Armstrong, and five Indians, as guides and guards, viz: by J. Kilbourn, $5 25; S. Herrick, $5 25; and by W. Ludlow, $5 50; in all,	$16 00
For meandering the two branches of the Little Miami, and extending Ludlow's line to the Scioto, in all forty-one miles and forty chains, executed by Charles Roberts, Esq., the labor and expense of which in our opinion, is equal to half of the same number of miles surveyed on the line contemplated by the act, viz: two dollars per mile, and will amount to	83 00
For fifty-three miles and sixty chains, being the line surveyed and marked according to the act aforesaid, at four dollars per mile,	215 00
James Kilbourn, as commissioner, has spent forty-eight days, which at five dollars per day is	240 00
Ditto paid Indian guides and guards by ditto Samuel Herrick, as ditto, has spent fifty days, at five dollars per day,	250 00
Ditto paid Indian guides and guards by ditto, William Ludlow, as ditto, has spent sixty-five days, at five dollars per day,	325 00
Ditto paid Indian guides and guards by ditto,	5 50

Field notes of a line run by order of the commissioners appointed under the act of Congress of the 26th of June, 1812, for establishing the western boundary line of the Virginia military reservation in the State of Ohio, lying between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers.

Commenced in a pond, being the extreme head water on the main branch of the Scioto river; thence on a random line, towards the permanent head water of Little Miami river, south, twenty-four degrees east, fifty-three miles and sixty chains. Fell forty chains west of said head of Miami; the same being a small pond in a marshy prairie. Set a post near the centre of said pond, from whence a burr oak tree, twelve inches diameter, bears south, thirty-four degrees east, eight chains and twenty-eight links distance; a hickory tree, ten inches diameter, bears north, eight degrees east, seven chains distance; another burr oak bears south, sixty-five degrees west, five chains and sixty-three links distance. The point formerly established by Israel Ludlow for the head or source of the Little Miami, bears north, seventy-three degrees east, thirty chains distant; thence commenced first mile on true line to the permanent head source of the Scioto river, on a course bearing north, twenty-four degrees thirty minutes west.

CLAIMANTS UNDER GRANTS FROM GEORGIA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 1, 1813.

MR. JEREMIAH MORROW, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred a bill from the Senate, entitled "An act to carry into effect the report made to Congress in February, 1803, by James Madison, then Secretary of State, Albert Gallatin, Secretary of the Treasury, and Levi Lincoln, Attorney General of the United States, commissioners appointed in pursuance of the act entitled 'An act for an amicable settlement of limits with the State of Georgia, and authorizing the establishment of a Government in the Mississippi Territory,' in obedience to the last mentioned act," made the following report:

That, after a careful investigation of the subject, and examination of the provisions of the bill referred to them, the committee deem it their duty to present a particular view of the subject only so far as the United States are at present concerned in its decision. Had the committee possessed the means of correct information, they had not the leisure, nor did they believe that any practical good would result from any general exposition they could present of the circumstances attending the case from its origin. They have, therefore, viewed the subject in the aspect and on the ground upon which it has been placed by the former acts of the Government in relation to it. The committee, therefore, give no opinion on any of the questions that have been agitated respecting the competency of the Legislature of Georgia to dispose of the unappropriated territory in that State, or the validity of the act or pretended act of the 7th of January, 1795, purporting to alienate the right of soil to great extent of such territory, nor respecting the effect of the rescinding act passed by a subsequent Legislature. The necessity of a legislative decision on these questions appears to be superseded by prior conventional and legislative acts of the Government. The agreement and articles of cession between the State of Georgia and the United States, confirmed by a legislative act of the one, and assented to by the Legislature of the other, the subsequent act of Congress appropriating and providing for the disposal of the lands acquired by the cession, and the several after acts providing for the sale of lands in the Mississippi Territory, all proceed on the ground that the act or pretended act of the State of Georgia of the 7th of January, 1795, was not valid to give title. Although every act of the Government in relation to the subject is predicated on the invalidity of the said act or pretended act, yet it would appear that the articles of cession from Georgia, the report of the commissioners to Congress, and the subsequent act of Congress appropriating the lands received by that cession, would all seem to recognise in the present claimant an equitable claim to some compensation.

The articles of agreement and cession, after having made specific provision for several species of claims, provided a fund of five millions of acres of land, to be placed at the disposal of Congress, "for the purpose of satisfying, quieting, or compensating for any claims other than those before recognised, which may be made to the said lands, or any part thereof." The existence of the claims in question was made known to the commissioners who concluded the agreement, and, as no excluding provision was introduced with respect to them, the inference is pretty obvious, that those claims came within the contemplation of the commissioners, and were designed to be provided for.

The commissioners of the United States who concluded the aforesaid agreement with those of Georgia, in their report to Congress, recommend these claims to the consideration of the Legislature, and state, in relation to them, that "various equitable considerations, which may be urged in favor of most of the present claimants, render it expedient to enter into a compromise on reasonable terms."

The act of Congress "regulating the grants for land, and providing for the disposal of the lands of the United States south of the State of Tennessee," approved on the 3d of March, 1803, which appears to have been passed in pursuance of the articles of agreement and of the aforesaid report, by the eighth section provided "that so much of the aforesaid five millions of acres should be appropriated, as might be necessary to satisfy certain classes of claims not recognised by the articles of cession; and so much of the residue of the five millions of acres, or of the nett proceeds thereof, as may be necessary for that purpose, are thereby appropriated for the purpose of satisfying, quieting, and compensating for such other claims to the lands of the United States south of the State of Tennessee, not recognised in the above-mentioned articles of agreement, and which are derived from any act or pretended act of the State of Georgia, which Congress may hereafter think fit to provide for." The language made use of by the Legislature, in appropriating the residue of the five millions of acres placed at their disposal, appears to be descriptive of the claims in question.

Congress, then, in the opinion of the committee, are at liberty, in conformity with the articles of agreement and their own act, either to apply the aforesaid lands, or any part of them, or the proceeds thereof, for the purposes proposed by the bill under consideration, or to withhold them, as to them may appear proper. How far it would now be for the public interest to quiet claims that may interfere with grants made, or to be made, by the United States, is a consideration of expediency alone; the decision must also rest on the opinion that may be formed of the equity or want of equity in the claims of the present claimants. The committee think proper to state, that a gentleman, in the character of an agent for many of the present claimants, produced to them several powers of attorney and letters, which, although they do not give positive assurance, yet give a reasonable ground of expectation that the present claimants will generally consent to compromise their claims on the terms proposed by the report of the commissioners. In case the House shall think proper to authorize a compromise of the claims in question, by passing the bill under consideration, the committee would recommend a modification of the terms originally proposed by the commissioners, and assumed as the basis of compromise by the bill, as passed by the Senate. According to the agreement with Georgia, five millions of acres constituted the whole fund applicable to the satisfaction of claims not recognised by that agreement. It has not been ascertained (nor can it be with precision) what quantity of those lands have already been appropriated by Congress. The residue applicable to the satisfaction of the claims in question is conjectural in quantity and value; and, in the absence of other objections to the commuting of this residue for a specific sum in money, that uncertainty would form one of considerable weight. It appears to the committee that the alternatives proposed to the option of the claimants, by the report, are not equal; that if the land should be located in the manner provided, and be brought into market at the same time with other lands, the proceeds arising from the sales would not discharge the interest and redeem the principal of two million five hundred thousand dollars, to which amount the certificates are proposed to be issued. In making the compensation proposed, Congress ought not to transcend the fund placed at their disposal for the purpose. If the estimate of the committee be correct, the fund would be overdrawn by the issue of certificates. If they should be incorrect, and the land be of equal value, then it should be equally acceptable to the claimants as the certificates; and, in that case, no injury would arise in confining their compensation to land alone. The committee, therefore, recommend a modification of the terms, and will report an amendment accordingly.

The sixth section of the bill provides that the United States shall sue for and recover such parts of the original purchase money as have been improperly withdrawn from the treasury of Georgia; which provision the committee consider exceptionable, and have proposed a substitute.

SEC. 2. After the word "lands," in the second line, insert "the evidence of claim to which shall have been exhibited to, and recorded in the office of, the Secretary of State." Same line, after the word "exhibited," strike out the word "to;" and after "recorded," strike out "in the office of the Secretary of State."

SEC. 3. Insert after the word "aforesaid," in line ten, the following: "in so far as the said terms proposed as the basis of compromise contemplate an indemnity in lands to the claimants. But it shall be understood, and is hereby expressly provided, that no alternatives shall be offered or given to the claimants, or any of them, to receive certificates, with interest or without interest, at their option, in lieu of the lands proposed; and the indemnification authorized by this act shall be allowed to the claimants in land only, and to the amount and in the manner by the aforesaid terms proposed."

SEC. 4. Strike out, after the word "report," inclusive, in the sixth line, to the end of the section, and insert in lieu thereof "provisions of this act."

SEC. 6. Strike out from the word "aforesaid" to the end of the section, and insert in lieu thereof, "shall be holden and liable to refund and pay such sum or sums of money, so had and received, as aforesaid, to the person or persons at present claiming the lands for which such sum or sums, so had and received, were originally paid into the treasury of Georgia; and any right, interest, or claim, which the United States have had or now have to demand, sue for, and recover the said sum or sums of money, so received and withdrawn from the treasury of Georgia, shall be and is hereby transferred to and vested in the present claimant or claimants of such lands, as aforesaid, for the purpose of enabling him or them to demand, sue for, and recover the sum or sums of money aforesaid, from the person or persons or any of them, who shall have received or withdrawn the same from the treasury of Georgia in the manner aforesaid. And the lands which the said present claimant or claimants shall or may receive from the United States, for compensation or indemnity of his or their claims, shall not be holden or adjudged in bar of his or their right to demand, sue for, and recover the sum or sums of money aforesaid. And the commissioners, in awarding the dividends to any of the present claimants who shall have the right to sue for and recover the sum or sums aforesaid, shall deduct from the dividend he or they would otherwise be entitled to a quantity of land equal in value to the sum or sums of money as aforesaid, which the said commissioners shall judge such claimants may recover, making a reasonable allowance for cost."

APPLICATION OF THE ILLINOIS TERRITORY FOR THE GRANT OF A SALINE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES MARCH 2, 1813.

Mr. JEREMIAH MORROW, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the resolutions of the Legislative Council and House of Representatives of the Illinois Territory, proposing a compact similar to that formed between the United States and the State of Ohio, by which the territorial Government shall consent by an ordinance irrevocable that all lands sold by the United States in said Territory shall remain exempt from taxation for five years from and after the day of sale. In lieu of which concession the United States shall grant a township of land, including the saline on Saline creek, to the Territory, for the use of the people thereof, made the following report:

It appears to the committee that a compact such as has been proposed cannot, with propriety, be entered into with a territorial Government. The Territory has not the capacity for self-government. It is dependent on the General Government for the appointment of the Executive, and one branch of its Legislature, and being temporary in its organization, cannot be considered a party competent to contract an obligation binding beyond the period of its own existence on a State hereafter to be formed. It appears that the regulations under which the salt works in question are conducted, are advantageous to the country supplied with salt from that saline. If the property should be vested in the Territory, the inhabitants of the adjoining States and Territories might be subjected to a tax on the article of salt, so necessary to their subsistence.

Therefore, Resolved, That it is inexpedient to grant the said saline to the Legislature of the Illinois Territory.

LAND CLAIMS IN THE DISTRICT OF KASKASKIA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MAY 31, 1813.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
May 29, 1813.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit a copy of the reports of the commissioners appointed under the act of 20th February, 1812, for the revision of claims to land in the district of Kaskaskia, founded on,

1. Ancient French grants.
2. Rights derived from improvement and cultivation.
3. Rights derived as heads of families to donations.
4. Rights to donations derived from the performance of militia duty, which were confirmed by Governors of the Northwestern and Indiana Territories respectively.

In cases where the commissioners appear to have been satisfied that the claims were fully sanctioned by the law, they have in explicit terms recommended confirmations of them. The reports relative to these are given in Nos. 1, 4, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 13.

When investigating in doubtful cases the validity of the confirmations which had been made by the Governors, the commissioners, acting up to what they conceived to be the spirit of the law, discovered some upon which they could not satisfactorily to themselves decide; these are,

1st. When the oral, traditional, or written proofs or documents, adduced in support of the claim, appeared on the whole to preponderate in its favor; but were, nevertheless, generally insufficient to authorize their recommendation of its confirmation consistently with the express terms of the law.

2d. When the insufficiency of oral, traditional, or written proofs or documents adduced in support of the claim would have compelled them to a rejection of it; but that circumstances, which it would seem they deemed worthy of consideration, withheld them from making an absolute decision thereon.

In both events they have respectfully left the merits of the respective claims to be decided upon by Congress. The reports on these are given in Nos. 2, 7, and 13.

There are special cases on which the commissioners have pronounced an unreserved disapprobation and rejection, upon grounds which appear to have been considered by them as incontrovertible. These are claims confirmed by Governors, said to be founded on ancient grants; and claims confirmed by Governors, said to be founded on militia rights; which ought not, in their opinion, to be sanctioned by Congress. On examination of the reasons given for these rejections, I find, with respect to the first class, that when the original grant or the evidence of concession whereon the Governor predicated his confirmation could not be produced, the claimants or their agents were notified that further evidence was required; and that if after such notice the titles could not be proved, recourse was had to examination upon oath of the ancient inhabitants in the neighborhood of the claim; and their testimony seems to have proved that no concession of the lands in question was ever known to have been made to the original claimants.

In this part of the report there are anomalous claims, among which I find that one has been rejected because a patent had before been granted by the Governor for the same land to the same assignee under other original claimants. That a second has been rejected, because the commissioners had before confirmed four hundred acres out of thirteen hundred and fifty-four, for the residue of which no concession could be proved. That a third has been rejected, because it had been previously confirmed to the assignee of the heirs of the original claimant; and the commissioners have therefore left the heirs to contest their right before a proper tribunal. That a fourth has been rejected in forcible terms; it is for an immense quantity of land, (nearly fourteen thousand acres,) and is the case of Baynton and others, mentioned by Mr. Gallatin in the appendix to the Book of Land Laws, pages 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30. That the fifth and last under this head has been rejected on account of fraud and forgery.

Of the claims under militia rights there are only two which have been rejected: one of them in particular, both by the former and present Board of Commissioners.

The reports relative to these are to be found under Nos. 3 and 14.

In two cases specially reported in No. 5, the commissioners have stated their want of opportunity to inquire into the validity, or to prove the invalidity of the Governor's confirmations. Under No. 6 is reported a special confirmation, founded on improvement and cultivation, a part of which is claimed by adverse claimants, between whom the commissioners are unable to decide, and another part by one, with respect to whose title they have not unanimously agreed.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
EDWARD TIFFIN,
Commissioner of the General Land Office.

LAND CLAIMS IN THE DISTRICT OF KASKASKIA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 1, 1813.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
May 29, 1813.

SIR: I enclose the copy of a letter from the Register of the Land Office at Kaskaskia, and of three statements made by him, under special circumstances, of claims to land in that district, the entries of which not having been filed in due time, did not come under the consideration of the commissioners appointed in pursuance of the act of Congress, passed 20th February, 1812.

It may not be improper to observe, that, in cases where claimants of four hundred acres donation, as heads of families, had previously been confirmed in militia rights of one hundred acres, the late Board of Commissioners uniformly allowed only three hundred acres on the former account; and their decisions were confirmed by Congress. All the cases are founded on the 1st, 2d, and 6th sections of the act of 3d March, 1791, page 263 of the land laws.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, sir,
Your obedient servant,
EDWARD TIFFIN,
Commissioner of the General Land Office.
THE HON. THE PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE.

KASKASKIA, January 18, 1813.

SIR: I herewith transmit a statement of claims of which no notices have been filed with the Register within the time limited by law; but as these claims appear to be founded in justice. I have, in compliance with the earnest solicitations of the claimants, ventured to make a statement of them, together with the substance of the testimony adduced in their support. I felt the more inclined to take this course, as Mr. Backus and myself stood pledged to the claimants to do so, and as the members of the late Board seemed to desire that I should make the representation myself, as being better acquainted with the circumstances and facts. Should the Government confirm them, it would be advisable to confirm to the original claimant, or his legal representative, as the title papers have neither been examined nor recorded by me.

Petitions will probably be forwarded to the Legislature urging the necessity of re-organizing a Board for the purpose of investigating claims which have been omitted to be entered within the time limited by law. The necessity of this measure will be superceded should the Government confirm the claims herewith transmitted, as there are no pretensions to claims of this description kept up other than those contained in the accompanying documents. A confirmation of these, and there will be an end to this perplexing business; unless, indeed, the Government should indulge the speculators with the privilege of a re-investigation of claims rejected by the former Board. On this subject I can only observe, that I am wearied with these painful duties, which, for eight years past, it has fallen to my lot to discharge. Nor do I believe that the Government would be doing justice to itself, or its officers, by extending this indulgence. When witnesses have been suborned, when the ancient records have been recently interpolated, and when the officers who dared to discharge their solemn duty have been attempted to be made the victims of this corruption, it is time to close the doors against the admission of new frauds.

My objection to the re-organization of a Board of Commissioners for the purpose of reviewing claims rejected by the former Board, does not arise from any apprehension that the former commissioners could be in the least degree implicated; on the contrary, could I reconcile it to my feelings to stoop to the drudgery of wading again through this sea of corruption, I would anxiously solicit it, fully persuaded that such an investigation would forever silence our declaimers, and raise us in the estimation of our Government. But the task is too laborious and painful; besides, I am convinced that none but speculators desire it, and that they can have no claim on the Government for this indulgence. So far from this, it is my impression that they have had too much justice done them; and I am inclined to think that if a review of decisions made by the former Boards could now take place they would be still further curtailed.

However, I am perfectly reconciled to any course my Government may think proper to adopt, provided it does not deprive me of the means of justifying my official conduct. Should any law pass on this subject, it might be most advisable to pass one vesting the Receiver and Register with a discretionary power to report to Congress, from time to time, and whenever they may be satisfied that any particular claim, which may have been rejected, or which may not have been entered in time, is founded in justice.

I am, sir, very respectfully,

Your most obedient and humble servant,
MICH. JONES.

The Hon. ALBERT GALLATIN,
Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

Statement of claims founded on actual cultivation and improvement, and the act of Congress of the 3d of March, 1791.

No. of claim.	Original claimant.	Present claimant.	Proof and remarks.
2666	Augt. Biggerstaff, -	James B. Moore, -	Henry Levins states that this man, in 1786, made an improvement near the New Design, and that he did actually cultivate corn at this place. Peter Casterline states that, in 1786, said Biggerstaff ploughed ground and planted corn at the New Design; and deponent assisted said Biggerstaff to lay the foundation of a cabin, deadening some timber, planting seeds, &c.
2667	Pierre Condaire, -	Heirs of P. Condaire,	Baptiste Ortis, Nicholas Hebert Lecompte, and Hyacinthe St. Cyr, state that about twenty-six years ago, (1783,) Pierre Condaire inhabited and cultivated a tract of land east of the Mississippi, fronting the town of St. Louis; that he remained on the said tract for three or four years; that he had a house built on the said improvement, and generally sold the produce of his said farm at St. Louis. Note. —This statement is corroborated by the certificate of Auguste Chouteau, of St. Louis.
2668	Jean B. Chevry, -	Nicholas Jarrot, -	That he was an inhabitant, and cultivated ground at Peoria, about thirty years ago.
2669	Jean B. Jourdain, -	Nicholas Jarrot, -	That this man resided at Peoria, and cultivated a farm on Mallet's river, and had a house and planted corn about the year 1783.
2670	Henry McLaughlin,	William Kinney, -	This claim was rejected by the former Board for want of proof; since then the following proof has been adduced: James Garritson, on oath, states that in 1787 he saw Henry McLaughlin plant and attend corn and wheat in L'Aigle prairie, then public land, adjoining the plantation of Shadrach Bond, Sen.; that he had enclosed about five acres of land.
2671	Samuel Morris, -	Samuel Morris, -	William Biggs states that said Morris did actually cultivate about five or six acres of land in wheat and corn at the Belle Fontaine, in 1787, and that he continued at said place until 1788 or 1789; that the said improvement is situated about one mile east of Belle Fontaine.
2672	Jean B. Amlin, -	William Arundel, -	That he lived at Peoria from 1779 to 1799; and that he planted corn and cultivated land at said place, and died in 1799.
2673	Louis Chattelreau, -	William Russell, -	That this man, in 1783, lived at Peoria, and cultivated about four acres of land in corn; and that he was a farmer at that place from 1789 to 1794; and that he cultivated about forty acres of land, and improved the same by building a house, horse mill, &c. thereon.
2664	Jean B. Maittel -	William Russell, -	That he lived at Peoria from 1779 to 1785, and cultivated about four acres of land in corn, &c. about a mile below the old fort, at a place called the Little Strait; and that he went as a captain in an expedition commanded by Montgomery in the year 1780.

KASKASKIA, January 18, 1813.

The preceding claims appear to be founded in justice, but which have not been claimed within the time limited by law.

13th CONGRESS.

No. 216.

1st SESSION.

APPLICATION OF THE CULTIVATORS OF THE VINE IN OHIO FOR A REMISSION OF THE DEBT FOR LANDS, OR AN EXTENSION OF TIME FOR PAYMENT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JUNE 14, 1813.

Mr. McKEE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of John James Dufour and his associates, made the following report:

That John James Dufour and his associates appropriated twenty-five hundred acres of the public land lying in the district of Cincinnati, by virtue of an act of Congress entitled "An act to empower John James Dufour and his associates to purchase certain lands," approved May 1, 1802.

The Legislature, by passing the act above recited, designed to promote and encourage the introduction and culture of the vine within the United States; and with this view allowed the petitioners to the 1st day of January, 1814, to pay the purchase money for the land, without charging any interest thereon.

The petitioners settled on the land aforesaid shortly after the 1st of May, 1802, and have employed themselves almost exclusively to the cultivation of the vine; which has succeeded so well, that wine of good quality has been made, and no doubt seems to be entertained of the ultimate success of this company, provided they can hold possession of their land.

The petitioners state, that owing to many difficulties and embarrassments incident to their new establishment, the length of time which must elapse before vine-dressers can receive a reward for their labor, together with some misfortunes peculiar to themselves, they are unable to pay the purchase money for their land, and a forfeiture will take place on the 1st day of January next. They therefore pray that Congress will remit the debt due from them to the public, or give them further time to make payment. The committee are of opinion that the latter part of the prayer of the petitioners is reasonable, and ought to be granted, and therefore ask leave to report a bill for the relief of John James Dufour and his associates.

1st SESSION.

LAND CLAIMS IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JUNE 22, 1813.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
June 9, 1813.

SIR:—I herewith transmit the reports of the commissioners appointed to investigate claims to land in the western district of Orleans Territory, (now State of Louisiana,) made in pursuance of the act of Congress, entitled "An act respecting claims to land in the Territories of Orleans and Louisiana," passed on the 3d of March, 1807.

By the fourth section of the act the commissioners are empowered to decide on all claims therein described, not exceeding the quantity of land contained in one league square, equal to five thousand seven hundred and sixty acres; their decisions in such cases to be final, but final only against the United States.

By the eighth section they are directed to make report of all claims which they may not have finally confirmed, in conformity with the said fourth section. They have accordingly made reports of such claims in the counties of Concordia, Washita, and Rapides. Their reports were by the law directed to be made under three general heads, viz:

1st. Those which in their opinions ought to be confirmed, in conformity with the several acts of Congress for ascertaining and adjusting the titles and claims to land within the Territories of Orleans and Louisiana.

2d. Those which, though not embraced by the provisions of the said acts, ought, nevertheless, in their opinions, to be confirmed, in conformity with the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government.

3d. Those which neither are embraced by the provisions of the said acts, nor ought, in their opinions, be confirmed, in conformity with the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government.

Of the first class of claims none are reported, because it is presumed they have been included in the commissioners' final confirmations.

Of the second class there are,
in the county of Concordia,	-	45
in the county of Washita,	-	6
in the county of Rapides,	-	37
Total,	-	88

Of the third class there are,
in the county of Concordia,	-	195
in the county of Washita,	-	53
in the county of Rapides,	-	147
Total,	-	395

The unfavorable opinions given on the cases embraced by the last class have generally been founded on the non-production of sufficient testimony and documents in proof of the points required by law to be established; such as permission to settle, actual occupancy, inhabitation, and cultivation prior to 20th December, 1803, &c.; and in some cases on the non-production of any proof whatever.

The law not having vested the commissioners with any power to consider or decide upon any claim exceeding one league square, they have included in these reports such as exceed that area, stating reasons for their recommendation or rejection of each. Amongst these is the claim of the Marquis de Maison Rouge to thirty square leagues on the Washita river. It consists of four tracts, of which No. 1 contains one hundred and forty thousand superficial arpents; No. 2 seventy thousand; Nos. 3 and 4 eight thousand three hundred and forty-four; in the whole, two hundred and eighteen thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents.

Thirty square leagues, strictly computed, contain two hundred and four thousand five hundred and thirty-five superficial arpents, or one hundred and seventy-two thousand eight hundred American acres; but the surveyor, in order to make allowance for lands held by concession or by titles in form, (the latter of which appear to have carried under the Spanish Government the full force of patents,) supposed to be included within the boundaries of the tracts composing the claim, has laid out thirteen thousand eight hundred and nine arpents, or eleven thousand six hundred and sixty-six American acres, more than is contained in thirty square leagues. Whether the minor rights said to be included amount to that quantity of land I am not enabled to judge. Of this claim the commissioners recommend the confirmation.

In the claims under François de Castro for twenty-seven thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven and seven-ninths arpents, or twenty-three thousand four hundred and sixty-eight acres; and under Baron de Bastrop for seven hundred and seventy-three thousand three hundred and seventy-six arpents, or six hundred and fifty-three thousand three hundred and seventy-nine acres, the proofs are defective; and the commissioners state that they are constrained to class them amongst those which in their opinions ought not to be confirmed. These three claims originated in acts, perfect or imperfect, between the Spanish Governors and speculators.

In the county of Rapides there are three large claims derived from purchases made of the Indians by permission of the Spanish Governors; all of which, either through some erroneous understanding or perverted construction of the original bargains, are of much greater magnitude than the commissioners thought the proofs adduced would support. These are,

The claim of Joseph Gillaird to lands purchased by permission of the Pascagoula Indians, said to amount to sixteen thousand acres. Of this the commissioners, for reasons stated in the explanation of their report, recommend the confirmation of only nine thousand three hundred acres.

The claim of Miller and Fulton to forty-six thousand eight hundred arpents on Bayou Bœuf, equal to thirty-nine thousand five hundred and thirty-eight and a half American acres, the purchase of which from the Choctaw Indians appears to have been ratified by the Spanish Governor General. This also the commissioners have recommended to be confirmed only in part; that is to say, to one-half, which is twenty-three thousand four hundred arpents, or about nineteen thousand eight hundred American acres. To the commissioners' explanation of this claim is added a memorial, with the hope of proving it in its greatest extent; concluding with a prayer that the full quantity of land claimed may be confirmed by Congress.

Another claim of Miller and Fulton to eleven thousand two hundred and thirty arpents, equal to nine thousand four hundred and eighty-seven and fifty-five hundredths American acres, purchased of the Indians. It appears that the claimants were Indian traders, and that the Appalache and Tensaw tribes, in order to discharge their debts and acquire a little money, offered for sale the lands which they held in common. In this affair the Governor, Manuel de Salcedo, gave permission of sale to the Tensaw tribe only. The commissioners recommend a confirmation of title to that part of the land which belonged to the Tensaw tribe, providing for a prior claim included therein; which will reduce the quantity to three thousand four hundred and twenty-four superficial arpents, or two thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven and sixty-five hundredths American acres. But this recommendation is conditioned on the event of their future scrutiny into the genuineness of a letter of permission to purchase, said to have been written by the Governor; and the commissioners reserve to themselves the right, whensoever an opportunity for such scrutiny shall occur, of presenting to Congress their opinion as to its authenticity.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect,
Sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD TIFFIN,
Commissioner of the General Land Office.

To the Hon. the PRESIDENT OF THE SENATE.

LAND OFFICE, WESTERN DISTRICT,
ORLEANS TERRITORY, October 16, 1812.

The undersigned, commissioners appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the rights of persons to lands within the district and territory aforesaid, have the honor to report the following list of rejected claims, and beg leave to remark, in explanation of the said report, that the respective classes contemplated by the eighth section of the act of the 3d of March, 1807, will be designated by the letters A, B, and C, to wit: to the first class, comprising "claims which in the opinion of the commissioners ought to be confirmed, in conformity with the provisions of the several acts of Congress for ascertaining and adjusting the titles and claims to lands within the Territories of Orleans and Louisiana," the letter A will be affixed. To the second class, comprising "claims which, though not embraced by the provisions of the said acts, ought, nevertheless, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed, in conformity with the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government," the letter B will be affixed. And to the third class, comprising "claims which neither are embraced by the provisions of the said acts, nor ought, in the opinion of the commissioners, to be confirmed, in conformity with the laws, usages, and customs of the Spanish Government," the letter C will be affixed. In the subsequent list of claims, such as have been entered with deputy registers will have the letter D placed after the number in the column of Register's No.; when that letter is omitted, it is to be understood that the claim was entered with the Register at the Land Office in Opelousas. To the list of claims reported for each county will be subjoined explanatory remarks, with references to the reported numbers, containing the reasons of the commissioners for reporting and giving a schedule of the title-papers that may have been filed in the several claims, and the substance of such oral testimony as may have been taken for or against the claims.

No. 1. No documents of title filed with the notice of this claim. The claimant (Joseph Adair) admits that the land claimed was neither inhabited nor cultivated until after the year 1803.

No. 2. A plat of survey executed by Stephen Justice, dated 4th July, 1803, the only document filed in this claim. The deposition of Solomon Phelps, taken in this claim, before Richard Cocke, at Concordia, the 6th March, 1809, is as follows: That in the month of July, in the year 1806, he assisted the claimant in making an improvement upon the land claimed; that in the course of that summer he built a cabin, and enclosed something less than a quarter of an acre thereon, which he planted in corn and sowed in different kinds of vegetables. No evidence of permission to settle is adduced.

No. 3. No documents filed with the notice of this claim. Charles Trammel, on his oath, hath said: That in the month of August, 1803, he heard Mr. Vidal, then commandant of Concordia, give permission to Henry Reading to settle and take up the land in question; that, at the same time, he heard the said commandant give permission to a Mr. Fenton to survey the land for the said Reading; that the land was accordingly surveyed; that in the month of October, 1803, the said Reading went upon the land, and continued to clear and improve throughout the fall and winter, and was in actual possession of it on the 20th day of December, 1803; that in the spring of 1804 he planted corn on the land, and, in the fall of that year, sold and conveyed it to Robert Ashley, the present claimant. In this and several other claims, (in which his narratives have been nearly as circumstantial,) the testimony of Trammel, who, it was said, resided in the upper part of the Mississippi Territory; was taken before John Patterson, Esq., commissioned for that purpose by the Board. The undersigned commissioners are unwilling to admit the credibility of this witness: first, because in another claim (that of Job Routh) it is established by the testimony of three persons, of whose veracity they have no doubt, to wit, Archibald Douglass, Henry Trent, and Elijah Cushing, that Henry Reading was not in the neighborhood of the land now claimed by Robert Ashley until the spring of the year 1804, in which year he was employed as the hireling of David Christian, in extending the improvements made on a tract of land on lake St. Joseph, established in the preceding year by Zachariah Tharp, who sold to the said Daniel Christian, who afterwards sold to Job Routh; and, secondly, because in a letter from Mr. Vidal, late commandant of the post of Concordia, to the Board of Commissioners, dated at Natchez, the 21st of October, 1811, the said commandant denies having given verbal permission to settle, except in five or six instances—strongly implying that the permission to Reading, as stated by Trammel, was not granted. The undersigned commissioners think it necessary here to remark, that, although they have the most indubitable proof that several, and think it probable that all, the commandants under the Spanish Government for the last ten or fifteen years that Louisiana was subject to Spain, were in the practice of granting verbal permissions to settle land; and although they have reason to believe that many settlements have been made under such permissions, with full confidence in their sufficiency, yet, since the receipt of the letter above alluded to, they have thought it expedient to guard against impositions by establishing, as a rule, that oral testimony shall not establish the permission of a commandant to settle land, except it be the testimony of one or more reputable persons, corroborated by the written certificate of the commandant by whom the permission was given, under oath.

No. 4. Said to be founded on the written permission to settle by the proper Spanish officer, in favor of William Skunk, which is stated to have been lost. A plat of survey executed by Gabriel Winters the 12th day of December, 1805, and a deed of sale from Skunk to the present claimant, William Blount, are filed with the notice of the claim. No evidence has been offered to establish the permission or settlement.

No. 5. This claim is for a tract of land, situate on the west bank of the Mississippi river, about seven miles above the mouth of Big Black, as set forth in the notice. The following documents have been filed in support of the claim: No. 1. A petition of Mr. Bruin, for himself and twelve other persons named in the petition, for permission to bring with them a number of articles free from duties, and to know the quantity of land to which they might be entitled, and naming several districts within which they desired the privilege of choosing their residence, and of taking the land to which they should be entitled, to wit: Bayou Pierre, Homochitto, Thompson's Creek, Baton Rouge, White Cliffs, or the vicinity of Manchack, dated 31st March, 1787. No. 2. A decree, dated at New Orleans, the 2d of April, 1787, granting the request as to the importation free from duties, and saying that the quantity of land shall be at first to each family twenty arpents front by forty arpents in depth, and, after a sufficient clearing and improvement, the double depth at the places mentioned in the memorial, (document No. 1.) No. 3. The same permission and promise are extended to any other families under the same circumstances, that is, to any other Catholic families; dated as above, written on the same paper, and signed by the same Governor, to wit, Estevan Miro. No. 4. The Governor declares to have received orders from the King to exempt the imported articles from duties, provided they should be for the use of the importers, and not subjects of commerce. No. 5. The petition of Bryan Bruin, representing himself to be an Irish Catholic, &c., and praying a passport from the Governor, at St. Augustine, of East Florida, and to be protected in his return to the parish of St. Patrick, on a settlement which he states he had made on Washita river; dated 26th February, 1790. No. 6. The decree of Zespades, Governor of East Florida, granting the passport for Havana, with an obligation on Mr. Bruin to present his vouchers to the Captain General of that place, and naming the vessel in which he was to take his passage, to wit, the schooner Maria, Captain Isaac Wicks, dated 5th March, 1790. No. 7. The schooner having been cast away on the bar of St. John, Mr. Bruin begs permission to go in the sloop St. John, Captain Marshall, which he states he had freighted for New Orleans. No. 8. The passport of Governor Zespades to go in the latter vessel, dated at St. Augustine, the 1st May, 1790. With these papers have also been filed four plats, executed in 1787, by Henry Cassidy and Gabriel Winters, for Peter Bryan Bruin and the heirs of Bryan Bruin, deceased. The undersigned commissioners are of opinion that the act of Governor Miro of the 2d of April, 1787, (document No. 2.) cannot be construed into a grant of land, as contended for by the representatives of Mr. Bruin; it seems merely to contain answers to Mr. Bruin's inquiries as to the quantity of land to which certain families would be entitled on their emigration to either of the provinces over which he, Governor Miro, then presided. This opinion derives force from the subsequent explanation of the act, written on the same paper and executed at the same time, manifesting that the benefit was intended to apply generally to all Catholic families who might think proper to avail themselves of it. There can be no doubt but that the persons mentioned in Mr. Bruin's memorial would have been entitled to, and that there would, on proper application, have been granted to each family the quantity of land mentioned in the Governor's decree, to wit, eight hundred superficial arpents, or twenty arpents front by the depth of forty, provided they had emigrated to the country as contemplated; to prove which no evidence has been offered to the Board, nor of the occupancy of the land prior to the change of Government. It should, moreover, be noticed, that by Mr. Bruin, as an individual, the most that should have been expected under the Governor's decree was eight hundred superficial arpents of land, and not nine thousand six hundred arpents, which is the whole quantity proposed to be given to the twelve families. It should also be recollected that all the districts mentioned in Mr. Bruin's memorial, and in which he asks for himself and others the privilege of selecting lands, are either in West Florida, or what is now the Mississippi Territory, and not in the county of Concordia.

No. 6. The notice of this claim not accompanied by any document. Said to be founded on a concession from Mr. Vidal, while acting as commandant; that the title-papers have been lost or mislaid. No evidence in support of the claim has been adduced.

No. 7. With the notice of this claim has been filed a plat of survey, executed by Stephen Justice in 1803. No evidence adduced in support of the claim. This notice is believed to be for the same tract claimed by No. 6. It is for the same quantity of land, both situate on lake St. John, and claimed by persons of the same name, if not the same person. No. 6 was entered by James Moor, for the claimant, in December, 1806; and No. 7 by Samuel S. Mahan, in November, 1807.

No. 8. A plat of survey executed by Stephen Justice, and dated March, 1803, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence has been offered in support of it.

No. 9. No document except the plat of survey, as in

No. 8. No evidence adduced.

No. 10. A copy of a plat of survey, said to have been executed by Peter Walker, in April, 1803, is the only document filed in this claim. The deposition of John Hutchison, taken by Richard Cocke, at Concordia, the 23d March, 1809, which is supposed to apply to this claim, is to the following effect: That in the month of August, 1804, he was employed by Stephen Douglass, on behalf of the claimant, to make an improvement upon the land claimed; that in that month he, with assistance, cleared and burnt the cane on about half an acre; that at that time he saw no other improvement on the land; and that it has never, to his knowledge, been inhabited or cultivated, though about fifty or sixty acres of cane were cut thereon in the year 1808; that on the 20th of December, 1803, the claimant was the head of a family and over twenty-one years of age, and then resided in New Orleans. No other testimony adduced.

No. 11. No document filed except the plat of survey by Stephen Justice, in June, 1803. No evidence offered.

No. 12. A plat of survey, not signed by any officer under the Spanish or American Governments, accompanies the notice, and is the only document filed. The title-papers said to have been lost or mislaid. No proof offered in support of the claim.

No. 13. To the notice of this claim is annexed an unfinished plat, not signed by any surveyor. No other document is filed, nor has any proof been adduced of occupancy or permission to settle.

No. 14. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, executed by Stephen Justice, dated 4th September, (the date of the year omitted.) A certificate in the handwriting of Joseph Vidal, without date, stating that prior to the 20th December, 1803, he gave permission to Rowland Brown to settle a tract of land on the Mississippi, in Concordia. The deposition of Thomas Dollinson, taken by Samuel Brooks, Esq. of Natchez, the 9th May, 1812, under a commission for that purpose issued by the present Board of Commissioners, which deposition is to the following effect: That the land in question was actually inhabited and cultivated by Rowland Brown on the 20th day of December, 1803, and for several months immediately preceding that day; and that the said Brown, at that time, was the head of a family, and twenty-one years of age. The certificate of Mr. Vidal not appearing to have been taken in an official manner, and not being supported by testimony, as required by the rule of the Board, mentioned under the reported No. 3, the commissioners think proper to report the claim for the consideration of Congress, but, nevertheless, think it such a claim as may be recommended for confirmation for six hundred and forty acres.

No. 15. Neither the grant from the Spanish Government, nor the order of survey by the commandant, which are referred to in the notice of this claim, has been produced, nor any other evidence, written or oral, in support of the claim.

Nos. 16, 17, and 18. In these three claims no documents have been filed, nor has any evidence been adduced of occupancy or permission to settle.

No. 19. No documents filed with the notice of this claim. From the testimony of Aaron Palmer, it appears that Brinkley Corbet, the claimant, settled on the land in the spring of the year 1802, and has continued to reside thereon ever since; but no evidence has been offered to establish that the settlement was made with the permission of the proper Spanish officer.

No. 20. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice is the only document filed in this claim. The testimony of two persons, Edwin L. Harris and John McGill, has been taken to establish the settlement, &c. of this claim. Harris deposes, that in the spring of 1803 he was at the mouth of the Bayou Cocodril, (or Crocodile,) on lake Concordia, in company with Captain Vidal and others, when he heard Captain Vidal say that he had granted the land at that place to Jesse Cook; that in the month of June or July thereafter, happening on the same land again, he found it improved by Stephen Douglass for Jesse Cook, as the said Douglass informed the deponent; that the improvement consisted of a camp made of pickets, and some enclosed cleared land, how much the deponent did not know, but not exceeding one acre; nor does he know the age of the claimant. John McGill hath deposed that in the spring of 1803 he accompanied the claimant, Jesse Cook, to Capt. Joseph Vidal's, and both requested of him permission to settle upon vacant land; that the said commandant directed them to go and settle upon the land they contemplated taking up, and to come at another time, the deponent understood, for permission; that he was upon the land claimed in the summer of the same year, (1803,) at which time the claimant was residing thereon, had a cabin built, and about an acre of land cleared, enclosed, and cultivated in corn; and that the claimant appeared to be a man about thirty years of age on the 20th day of December, 1803. From the correspondence of the evidence of the witnesses in this claim, there can be no doubt of the commandant having given at least verbal permission to settle; and as it has been proved that the claimant inhabited the land in the summer of 1803, and had corn growing on it, it may with reason be presumed that it was occupied on the 20th of December, 1803, although that fact is not positively established. This claim cannot be confirmed by the Board of Commissioners consistently with the rule referred to in the explanation of the report No. 3. Nevertheless, being of opinion that it issues a title as would have been valid by the usages of the Spanish Government, the confirmation by Congress is respectfully recommended, not according to the plat filed in the claim, from which there seems to have been too large a front measured on the lake, but by giving so much front on the southwest side of lake Concordia, from the mouth of the Bayou Crocodile, as, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents, would embrace the area of six hundred and forty acres.

No. 21. A plat of survey not signed by any officer accompanies the notice of this claim; no other document of title; the regular plat said to be lost. No evidence adduced of occupancy nor permission to settle.

No. 22. A plat of survey executed by Stephen Justice in April, 1803, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence in support of the claim.

No. 23. No documents filed, nor proof of occupancy, &c.

No. 24. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy in November, 1807, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence in support of the claim has been offered.

No. 25. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, as in No. 24, without any other document or evidence to support the claim.

No. 26. From the quantity of the land claimed, and the figure, &c. represented by the plat, this claim is doubtless for the same tract of land claimed under the preceding, (No. 25,) was filed with the Register at Opelousas, and No. 26 with the Deputy Register at Rapides. The deposition of Gibson Clark, Jun. taken in this claim by Joshua G. Clark and Jeffries H. Moore, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned by the Board for that purpose, is to the following effect: That Gibson Clark, Sen. the claimant, on his return from the post of Concordia, in the summer of 1803, informed the deponent that he had obtained from the Spanish Government permission to improve and survey land in Concordia; that some time after a Mr. Fenton, as deputy surveyor, made a survey on lake St. Joseph, which the claimant commenced an improvement on early in the fall of the same year, and inhabited and cultivated the same on the 20th day of December, 1803; that the claimant was at that time the head of a family and twenty-one years of age. No other evidence adduced in support of this claim. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 27. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy in November, 1807, is the only document filed in this claim.

No. 28. From the plat filed in this claim there is no doubt of its being for the same land claimed by the preceding (No. 27,) one being entered with the Deputy Register at Rapides, the other with the Register at Opelousas. The deposition of Gibson Clark, Sen. taken in this claim the 12th September, 1811, by Joshua G. Clark and Jeffries H. Moore, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned by the Board for that purpose, is to the following effect: That the deponent obtained from the Spanish Government, in the summer of 1803, for Gibson Clark, Jun., John Clark, Elijah Clark, himself, and others, permission to settle on and survey land in Concordia; that a Mr. Fenton, as deputy surveyor, made surveys in pursuance of said permission on lake St. Joseph, and agreed to take his returns to New Orleans, but died on his way thither, as the deponent has been informed and believes; and that the returns of the surveyor were lost at that time; that the claimant commenced improving the land in question early in the fall of 1803, and inhabited and cultivated the same on the 20th day of December, 1803, and was then over twenty-one years of age and the head of a family, and has resided on and cultivated the same ever since. No other evidence has been adduced. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 29. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated November, 1807, the only document filed in this claim. No proof of occupancy, &c.

No. 30. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated in 1807, the only document filed in this claim. No proof of occupancy.

No. 31. A plat of survey, as in the preceding number, which shows it to be for the same land, is the only document filed. The deposition of Charles Campbell taken in this claim the 9th September, 1811, by Joshua G. Clark and Jeffries H. Moore, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned by the Board for that purpose, is to the following effect: That the claimant Elijah Clark, and Daniel McLaughlin, the latter claiming land entered by Gibson Clark, Jun. for his use, each obtained permission, through Gibson Clark, Sen. from Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, to survey and settle on land in said post; that a Mr. Fenton, as deputy surveyor, surveyed for the said Elijah and Daniel each a tract of land on lake St. Joseph, and when the deponent removed to said lake, about the middle of December, the said Elijah and Daniel were each in possession of a tract of land which they resided on and were cultivating on the 20th December, 1803, and were then above twenty-one years of age, and heads of families. This testimony seems not to be very clear, and, as it respects the claim of McLaughlin, its application is not understood by the Board, there being four entries in the name of Gibson Clark, Jun. without reference to any other person. No other evidence is adduced. No entry has been made in the name of McLaughlin. This claim has been confirmed under another notice; see commissioners' certificate B, No. 1498.

No. 32. a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, dated 9th November, 1807. The only document filed in this claim.

No. 33. A plat of survey, as in the foregoing number, which shows it to be for the same tract of land, the only document filed; the former being entered with the Register, and this with the Deputy. The deposition of Wm. Moore, taken the 12th September, 1811, by Joshua G. Clark and Jeffries H. Moore, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned by the Board, is to the following purport: That Pleasants Sneed and Samuel Murphee claim each a separate tract of land, entered with the Register, by John Clarke, for their use, on lake St. Joseph; that said persons obtained permission from the Spanish Government, in the spring of 1803, to settle on said lake; and that they settled there in the summer, and were actually inhabiting and cultivating the said land on the 20th December, 1803; and were heads of families, and over twenty-one years of age. This testimony, as in No. 31, seems somewhat obscure, or its application is not well understood by the Board. The notice of the claim in which the testimony is filed sets forth that the land in question is claimed by John Clark, he having purchased it from Pleasants Sneed, the first settler and claimant. No other evidence adduced. It is probable that what relates to Murphee in this testimony may be applied to reported No. 136. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 34. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, in November 1807. The only document filed with the notice of this claim.

No. 35. A plat of survey, as in the preceding No. 34, and which shows it to be for the same land, is the only document filed. The deposition of Wm. Moore, taken in this claim the 12th September, 1811, by Joshua G. Clark and Jeffries H. Moore, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned by the Board for that purpose, is to the following effect: That John Joiner, who claims by entry, made by John Clark for his benefit, obtained, in the fall of the year 1803, from the commandant of the Post of Concordia, permission to settle on lake St. Joseph, in Concordia; commenced his improvement soon after, and was residing on and cultivating the land in question on the 20th December, 1803, and that he was at that time over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family. No other evidence is adduced. John Clark states, in his notice, that he purchased the right of John Joiner, but no conveyance is filed.

No. 36. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, in November, 1807; the only document filed. No evidence adduced.

No. 37. A plat of survey, as in the preceding No. 36, and which shows it to be for the same land, is the only document filed. The deposition of Gibson Clark, Senior, taken and filed in this claim at the same time, and by the same persons as in No. 28, is similar to and almost a copy of the testimony given in said No. 28 by this deponent. No other evidence adduced. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 38. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, 16th December, 1807. The only document filed.

Nos. 39 and 40. Both these notices seem to be for the same tract of land, filed with the Register and Deputy Register; they are accompanied by plats of survey, executed by Henry Cassidy, in December, 1807, and by no other document. Occupancy not established.

Nos. 41 and 42. These two notices appear also to be for the same tract of land. The remarks on the preceding number are equally applicable to these.

No. 43. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, executed in December, 1807. The testimony of the said Henry Cassidy has also been taken in the claim, who has said, on his oath, that, in the fall of the year 1802, he passed by the land claimed, at which time there was between one and two acres of cane burnt thereon, which had been that year planted in corn; but whether cultivated or not deponent was unable to say; that he was upon the same land again in the spring of 1803, at which time there was a cabin built thereon, in which there were some persons residing, whose names were not known to the deponent; that the improvement was near the lower corner of the land claimed; that he does not know, of his own knowledge, where the claimant resided on the 20th December, 1803, but has understood and believes he resided on that day at the Walnut Hills, in the Mississippi Territory; that he knows he was on that day more than twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family. Anthony Glass, sworn in the same claim, hath deposed, that he was present, in the month of June, 1802, when Mr. Vidal, commandant of Concordia, gave permission to the claimant to settle on the land claimed, but for what quantity he could not recollect. No conclusive proof of occupancy and cultivation on the 20th day of December, 1803, even by the agent or representative of the claimant. The proof of permission to settle cannot be taken by the Board, for the reasons assigned in the reported No. 3; the survey, as represented by the plat filed in the claim, is also objectionable. The front on the Mississippi river is much too large, being nearly two miles, the survey extending back only about three-fourths of a mile. In a few instances of claims founded on the right of settlement, the confirmations by this Board have been for one-mile-square, where the lands claimed have been on inconsiderable water-courses; and in one instance in which the claimant had erected a mill on one side of a small creek, and cultivating the land on the opposite side would have been considerably injured by any other mode of adjustment; but in confirming such claims on large and navigable waters, they have invariably given so much front as, with the depth of forty arpents, (equal to one hundred and sixteen and thirteen hundredths chains,) would include the quantity of land confirmed. The considerations by which the undersigned commissioners have been influenced in establishing this principle were, that although in many instances there were no documents of title by which the forms of the tracts thus claimed should be controlled, and although from expressions in the second section of the act of 2d March, 1805, many claimants were induced to think themselves absolutely entitled to a mile square, it was proper and just, in the opinion of the Board, to grant the land in the form that would best comport with the usages of the Spanish Government, under which all such claims originated, because, by giving larger fronts than were usual under the Spanish Government, it would have given to the holder of this species of claims an improper advantage over claimants holding under titles of higher dignity, whose surveys were universally extended back forty arpents, and because, too, the vacant land that would have remained to the Government, if this description of claimants had been allowed to extend their fronts along the rivers as in the present case, would generally have been in the back swamps in the rear of the claims, where the lands on all the water-courses in this district are known to be of little value in comparison with those in front.

No. 44. With the notice of this claim has been filed a plat of survey, executed in December, 1807, by Henry Cassidy. The testimony of Jacob Huffman, taken before the Board, the 16th of September, 1809, and filed in this claim, is as follows: That Charles Collins, Junior, planted corn on the tract of land claimed, in the spring of the year 1800; and the following year moved on the land, and has continued to reside on the land claimed every year since, and was actually living on the land on the 20th day of December, 1803; and was a man over the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family. Anthony Glass, in his testimony taken in the claim of Charles Collins, Junior, reported under No. 43, has reference also to this claim, in which he says, he was present, in the month of June, 1802, when Joseph Vidal, the commandant, gave permission to Charles Collins, Senior, Charles Collins, Junior, and Henry Eaton to settle on the land they claim; that he could not recollect the quantity of land mentioned; and that those persons were over twenty-one years of age. No other evidence adduced. The evidence of permission not admissible, for the reasons mentioned in the reported No. 3. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 45. From the plat filed with the notice of this claim, there can be no doubt of its being for the same tract of land claimed by the preceding, No. —; this was filed with the Deputy Register. No proof has been taken in support of it.

No. 46. With the notice of this claim has been filed a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, executed in April, 1803, and no other document of title. John Saxton, sworn in this claim, hath deposed, that he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give permission to the said Connor to take up and settle the aforesaid land in the fall of the year 1803; that the said Connor did immediately go on the land in question, and was actually cultivating and inhabiting the same on the 20th day of December, 1803; and that the said Connor was upwards of twenty-one years of age. This testimony was taken before John Patterson, Esq. commissioned for that purpose. The evidence inadmissible, for reasons before given in No. 3.

No. 47. A plat of survey, executed by Stephen Justice, in May, 1803, which he declares to have been done with the approbation of the then commandant of Concordia; the only document filed in this claim. Wm. Blackwell, an evidence in this claim, hath deposed, that he recollects being on the land claimed when Antoine Carrol was residing on it, and had, from every appearance, fifteen or twenty acres in cultivation in the year 1802; that the said Carrol was also on the land in November, 1803, but whether he was residing on it in December, 1803, the deponent was not certain, though he thought he was so residing; that he heard the claimant say he had permission from the proper Spanish officer to settle the land claimed; and that he knows of no other tract of land held by the claimant. The deposition of John Welch and Samuel Tanner, taken the 15th October, 1811, by Benjamin Howard and Robert Scofield, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned for that purpose by the Board, is to the following purport: John Welch states that, to his knowledge, Antoine Carrol obtained from Joseph Vidal, commandant of the post of Concordia, permission to settle on land on the waters of Tensaw, in said post; and that said Carrol settled there in April, 1803, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same from that time for two or three years thereafter. Samuel Tanner states that, to his knowledge, Antoine Carrol was in possession of and cultivating a tract of land on Tensaw waters on the 20th December, 1803, and for some time before, and for several years after. No other evidence adduced. The improvements being so considerable, so early as 1802, and kept up, it is presumable this was intended as a permanent residence. The confirmation is recommended.

No. 48. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated in December, 1807, and no other document of title accompanies the notice of this claim. No testimony adduced to establish occupancy. Confirmed for six hundred and forty acres under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1500.

No. 49. The notice of this claim accompanied by no document of title. No proof has been offered.

No. 50. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated in December, 1807, the only document accompanying the notice of this claim. No proof offered to establish occupancy, &c.

No. 51. A plat of survey, executed by Gabriel Winters, in March, 1806, is filed with the notice. Alexander Carrol, a witness in the claim, hath deposed, that the same year he settled upon the land claimed by Love Baker and Charles B. Green, he made an improvement on this tract also, consisting of about half an acre of cane cleared, on which corn was planted and cultivated; that no person resided on the land claimed on the 20th December, 1803, but that the claimant was then over the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family. Before Judge Brooks of Natchez, commissioned by the Board, John Gomez hath deposed, that John Mitchell was settled on a tract of land on lake Concordia, in October, 1803, and had about five acres of corn raised there that year; that he had resided on the land more than one year when the deponent left there; that the land was claimed by Benjamin Carrol, and that they made corn on shares, but that Carrol paid Mitchell for clearing the land. Joseph Vidal, formerly commandant of Concordia; before Judge Dunlop, of Concordia, commissioned by the Board, hath deposed, that before the 15th October, 1803, he gave permission to Benjamin Carrol to settle at some place on lake Concordia, but he could not recollect the quantity of land designated, and could say nothing further about it. This is supposed to be the same land claimed by John House, whose claim is reported under No. 99. From the testimony of Benjamin Mullins, in the claim of House, No. 99, together with that of Gomez, and the proof of permission as above stated, the Board have been induced to recommend the confirmation of the claim, although the testimony of Alexander Carrol is somewhat at variance with that of Mullins and Gomez. No conveyance from Carrol to House has been adduced.

No. 52. This claim, accompanied by a copy of a plat of survey by Pedro Walker, an authorized surveyor under the Spanish Government, supposed to be for the same tract of land for which a claim was entered with the Deputy Register at Rapides. No testimony in this claim.

No. 53. No document filed in this claim; acknowledged to be for the same tract of land claimed by Vincent Carter, and sold to Foster and Elam.

No. 54. A mortgage from Frederick Zerban to F. L. Claiborne, in which, among others, this tract of land is inserted, is the only document filed in this claim. No conveyance from Skunk, said to have been the original proprietor, to Zerban; nor has any testimony been adduced to establish Skunk's right.

No. 55. In this claim is filed a plat of survey representing four town lots, Nos. 13, 16, 19, and 23, in the post or village of Concordia, each lot containing about one square arpent, laid out to John Akers. To this plat is a certificate, dated 13th September, 1802, signed by Peter Walker, then surveyor of the post, to which is annexed the approval and signature of Joseph Vidal, Esq. then commandant. No proof of the occupancy of these lots has been offered, nor is it believed that Mr. Claiborne has at this time any right or interest in them. No conveyance from the original claimant is found among the papers. The undersigned commissioners, believing that occupancy and cultivation would not, under the usages of the Spanish Government, have been required in the completion of the title to this claim, respectfully recommend its confirmation by Congress to John Akers.

No. 56. A plat of survey, certified and signed by William Atchinson, deputy surveyor, dated 1st August, 1802, and laid out to Frederick Zerban, for thirty-nine acres. The only document filed in this claim. No proof of occupancy, nor permission to settle.

No. 57. A plat of survey for two town lots, each containing about one superficial arpent, in the village of Concordia, laid out by Peter Walker to Juan Gomez, to wit, Nos. 15 and 18; the only document filed. In his certificate, Peter Walker states that these lots were laid out with the consent of the commandant. No other evidence of this fact has been adduced.

No. 58. No document filed in this claim, nor any proof of occupancy.

No. 59. No documents to establish this claim, nor proof of occupancy.

No. 60. This claim is for two town lots, Nos. 14 and 17, said to have been laid out to Joseph Saxton. No document filed, except a deed of conveyance from Saxton to Frederick Zerban. No proof of settlement.

No. 61. The notice of this claim is only for one town lot, No. 10. It is accompanied by a copy of a plat of survey for four adjoining lots, Nos. 1, 4, 7, and 10, said to have been laid out to Francis Brunette, by the consent of the commandant. No proof adduced.

No. 62. In this claim is filed a plat of two adjoining lots, Nos. 9 and 12, in the village of Concordia, each for about one superficial arpent, laid out to Pedro Herrero; the certificate to the plat dated the 30th September, 1802, signed by Peter Walker, and approved by the commandant, as in No. 55. On the back of the paper, containing the plat, &c., is an assignment by Pedro Herrero, transferring all his title to these lots to Frederick Zerban. This act is executed the 20th of August, 1804, before F. L. Claiborne, civil commandant of Concordia. For the reasons given in No. 55, the undersigned are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed.

No. 63. In this claim is filed a plat of survey for six hundred and forty acres, signed by Stephen Justice, deputy surveyor, and without date. Samuel Durosset, sworn in this claim, hath deposed, that some time in the fall of 1803, whilst hunting, he was on the land claimed; that the claimant had just commenced an improvement thereon; that he did not believe that the claimant had been on the land more than fifteen or twenty minutes when he planted some peach stones; that he was unable to say whether any further improvement was made on the land, as he had not seen it since; that, on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant resided in the province of Louisiana, and was over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family. John House, also sworn in this claim, hath deposed that, in the fall of the year 1803, he was upon the land claimed, at which time there was about an acre clear, and a nursery of peach cions growing thereon. At that time there was no person residing on the land, nor did the deponent know of any person residing thereon on the 20th December, 1803. The deponent stated further, that there were, at the time when he was on the land, some preparations made for building a house on it. The testimony of Durosset and House was taken before Richard Cocks, Esq. at the village of Concordia, in February and March, 1809. Before John Patterson, Esq., commissioned for that purpose by the Board, John Saxton has deposed as follows: that in the fall of 1803, he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give permission to the said Cochran to take up and settle the aforesaid land, and that the said Cochran was actually cultivating and inhabiting the land in question on the 20th day of December, 1803, and was at that time the head of a family. This testimony was taken 10th September, 1811.

No. 64. No document filed in this claim. It is believed to be for the same tract of land that was settled by Zachariah Harpe, by him sold to David Christian, who conveyed it to Job Routh, to whom it was confirmed by this Board.

No. 65. No documents of title filed in this claim. In the village of Concordia, in February, 1809, before Richard Cocks, Esq., the testimony of Jeremiah Carney and Edmonds Bruin was taken in this claim. Carney hath deposed that, in the latter part of the year 1803, he was upon the land claimed, and saw no improvement thereon; that he was also frequently upon the land in the year 1804, in the early part of which year James Knotts had an indifferent cabin built thereon, who also cut and carried a considerable quantity of timber therefrom: he further states, that, in the latter part of said year, he saw two or three acres cleared, and cornstalks standing thereon; that the said Knott continued to cultivate and reside upon the said land from the year 1804 until the fall of 1807; that he was not acquainted with the age of said Knotts, but, from his appearance, believes he was twenty-one years of age on the 20th December, 1803; and at that time he believes he resided upon a place two or three miles above the land claimed, in the province of Louisiana. The testimony of Carney is corroborated by that of Edmonds Bruin, who states that, being on the land claimed in the year 1803, he found it unoccupied and uncultivated; that, being on it again in 1804, and several subsequent years, he found it occupied by James Knotts, as stated by Carney. Before Joshua G. Clarke and J. H. Morre, Esquires, of Claiborne county, Mississippi territory, commissioned for that purpose by this Board, the testimony of William Morre has also been taken in this claim on the 12th September, 1811, and which is to the following purport: that some time in the summer of 1803, the deponent was in company with a Mr. Fenton and David B. Morgan, (then deputy surveyors under the Spanish Government,) at the post of Concordia, when the said surveyors made application to Don Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the aforesaid post, for permission to survey land on Lake St. Joseph for Mrs. Matilda Carney, relict of Arthur Carney, deceased, Berryman Watkins, Henry Reading, and others, which permission was granted by said commandant to the persons aforesaid; that the said surveyors went forward some time in the latter end of September, or early in October, in the same year, and made the surveys; that the said Matilda Carney placed a man, as tenant, on the tract surveyed for her, early in the month of November following, who proceeded to clear and cultivate the same, and who was actually cultivating and inhabiting said survey on the 20th day of December, in the year aforesaid, and some time during that season planted some peach trees; that he believes said tenant continued on the land until the marriage of the said Matilda Carney to Dr. John Cummings, early in the spring of the year 1804, by whom the said tenant was continued on the land, and made a crop of corn in that year; that some time after the surveying of the land aforesaid, Mr. Fenton started to New Orleans with the papers and plats relative to said surveys, and was taken sick and died on his way, since when the deponent has been informed, and believes, that the claimants have not been able to procure their papers. The following deposition has been transmitted to this Board by Job Routh, who is understood to be an adverse claimant:

MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY, City of Natchez, ss.

Be it known, that on this 26th day of October, 1811, personally appeared before the undersigned, magistrate for the said city, David B. Morgan, who being duly sworn, saith, that he never did have any permission from Captain Joseph Vidal, nor from any other Spanish officer or authority, to survey land in the parish of Concordia, or Orleans Territory, for John Cummings, or Robert Ashley, or James Knotts, or Berryman Watkins, or Dennis Corcoran, or Henry Reading, or Matilda Carney, or John House, or for any other person or persons whatsoever; nor did he survey any lands in said parish for either of the above-named persons, or any other person or persons whatsoever, during the continuance of the Spanish Government in Louisiana, or previous to the 20th day of December, 1803; nor did Thomas Fenton, for himself and this deponent jointly, ever have any such permission, according to the best knowledge and belief of this deponent. Sworn and subscribed before

SAMUEL BROOKS.

From the evidence of Mr. Morgan, although taken without authority from the Board of Commissioners, the undersigned are induced to doubt the correctness of Moore's narrative, and cannot, therefore, recommend the confirmation of this claim.

No. 66. A plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, executed the 3d March, 1807, the only document filed in this claim, which is said to be derived from Patrick O'Farrell, of whose title there has been no evidence exhibited.

No. 67. A plat of survey, executed by Henry Cassidy, 21st June, 1807, the only document in this claim, which is said to be derived from William Glisson.

No. 68. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, 25th June, 1807, the only document filed in this claim, which is said to have been derived from Michael McKeirnan. Patrick O'Farrell, William Glisson, and Michael McKeirnan are names mentioned, and believed to be three of the persons alluded to in the memorial of Bryan Bruin, referred to in the exposition of reported No. 5.

No. 69. A plat of survey executed in 1803 by William Thomas, who is not known to the Board to have been an authorized surveyor, and a deed of sale from Bennet Truly to Frederick Zerban, are the only documents filed in this claim. No evidence to establish occupancy or permission to settle has been adduced. It is believed that General Claiborne, in whose name the reported Nos. 54 to 62 inclusive, and No. 69, have been entered, has not at this time an interest in the whole, if any part of them. The papers on which most of these claims are founded falling into the hands of that gentleman, as civil commandant of the post of Concordia, at the change of Government were by him transmitted to the late Register, who, supposing the titles to be in General Claiborne, filed notices in his name.

No. 70. In this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Peter Walker, bearing date the 11th of April, 1803, the survey is made in favor of Otho Farnetz, and certified by said surveyor to have been made by order of Don Joseph Vidal, the commandant, &c. of the post of Concordia. On the back of the paper containing the plat is the certificate of the said commandant, bearing date also the 11th of April, 1803, setting forth that the survey was executed with his approbation, and that there were no objections to the claim, and that the papers should be presented to the Intendant for the completion of the grant. No conveyance from the original claimant, Otho Farnetz, has been adduced; and although proof of occupancy has not been furnished in the claim, the Board deem it to be such a claim as ought to be confirmed, on the ground that no other evidence or document than that above mentioned would have been requisite in perfecting the title under the usages and customs of the Spanish Government.

No. 71. Nothing but the notice is filed in this claim, and no testimony has been adduced.

No. 72. In this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Stephen Justice, dated the 4th day of September, (the date of the year omitted,) and no other document filed. The deposition of Rowland Brown, taken in the claim the 26th October, 1811, by John Perkins, Justice of the Peace in Concordia, commissioned by the Board for that purpose, is to the following purport: That in the year 1802, as well as the deponent could recollect, he presented to Joseph Vidal, then commandant of Concordia, the petition of Letitia Culbertson for a grant of eight hundred arpents of land in the district of Concordia, which petition was granted by the said commandant in the presence of the deponent, and he handed the papers to a certain George Cochran, for the purpose of having them forwarded to New Orleans to have the title completed; that the said Cochran has since informed the deponent, which information he believes to be true, that the said Cochran handed the papers to Mr. Walker to be forwarded to New Orleans, but Mr. Walker was drowned in company with a Mr. Bovais, by which accident the papers were lost; that the deponent was on the tract of land in question in the year 1803, and that there was a crop of corn and turnips raised there that year. Joseph Vidal, in his certificate made before the Board at Opelousas, the 3d February, 1812, states that, prior to the 20th December, 1803, he gave Letitia Culbertson permission to settle a tract of land on the Mississippi, in Concordia. Rowland Brown, in his testimony taken before Judge Dunlap of Concordia, the 17th September, 1812, further states, that this tract has been constantly inhabited and cultivated since the summer of 1803, unless in time of high water, either by the claimant or for her use; and that said claimant was at that time the head of a family, and twenty-one years of age; and that she still continues to inhabit and cultivate the land with her family. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 73. In this claim a plat of survey, by Stephen Justice, the 10th of June, 1803, is the only document filed before John Patterson, Esq. commissioned for that purpose by the Board. The testimony of Samuel Reed was taken the 10th September, 1811, which is in substance as follows: That the deponent heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give permission to Peter Deveal, to take up and settle the aforesaid land, in the fall of the year 1803; that the said Deveal went on the land in question, and cultivated it, and improved the same, and was actually cultivating and inhabiting the same on the 20th December, 1803; and that the said Peter Deveal was the head of a family.

No. 74. A plat of survey exhibiting a front of two miles on the right bank of the Mississippi river, and extending back only forty chains, is the only document filed in this claim. From the notice, it appears that the land was occupied in 1801-2, but was unoccupied in 1803. It is not contended that the establishment was made with the permission of the Spanish commandant.

No. 75. A plat of survey, by Henry Cassidy, dated 3d December, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No testimony taken in it.

No. 76. A plat of survey, as in the preceding No. 75, and which shows this entry to be for the same tract of land, is the only document filed. The former entry was made with the Register, and the latter with the Deputy Register. Jacob Huffman, in his testimony in this claim, taken before the Board the 16th September, 1809, hath deposed as follows: That Joseph Downs planted corn on the tract of land claimed, in the spring of 1802, and settled on the land, where he has continued to reside and cultivate the same every year since, and was over twenty-one years of age on the 20th day of December, 1803. No other evidence is adduced.

No. 77. The notice of this claim was filed with the Deputy Register. From the figure of the plat, &c., there is no doubt of its being for the same tract of land that was sold by Durosset, and confirmed in part by the Board, to Samuel McIntire, by certificate B. No. 41.

No. 78. Deeds of conveyance, &c. are filed in this claim, which need not be particularized. Robert Welch, the original claimant, and Stephen Douglass, to whom he transferred his right, having both acknowledged that they have no interest in the land, and subscribed a declaration on the notice of the claim to that effect.

No. 79. A plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, the 9th December, 1807, the only document filed in this claim, which is unsupported by proof of settlement; confirmed under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1504.

No. 80. No documents of any description have been filed with the notice of this claim, nor any proof offered to establish occupancy or cultivation.

No. 81. This notice is also unaccompanied by any document of title, nor has any proof been adduced in support of the claim.

No. 82. A plat of survey, executed by Stephen Justice, dated 8th June, 1803, which he certifies to have made with the approbation of Don Joseph Vidal, commandant, &c., is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No testimony taken in it.

No. 83. A plat without signature, the only document filed with the notice. No testimony taken in it.

No. 84. A plat of survey, by Stephen Justice, without date, is filed with the notice of this claim, together with the testimony of John Carnahan, John Kennedy, and Rowland Brown, taken by Richard Cocke, Esq., at Concordia. John Carnahan has deposed that, in the spring of the year 1803, he was at the dwelling of Joseph Vidal, then commandant, &c., and from the conversation between the commandant, the claimant, Stephen Justice, and Samuel S. Mahan, the deponent understood that these persons were then going to locate and survey land for themselves, but does not recollect that he heard the commandant give them express permission, though, when they were setting out, the deponent requested Stephen Douglass to permit him to go with them, which request at first was refused, but the commandant requested them to permit the deponent to take upland also, which request was acceded to; John Kennedy states, that he was employed by the claimant to improve the land in question, which he commenced doing, as well as he recollects, in November, 1803; and on the 20th December, 1803, the improvement consisted of about two acres of cane cut; that the deponent and others continued to improve the land until some time in 1804, in which year there were about twenty acres cleared and cultivated, which has been inhabited and cultivated every year since by the claimant and his agents; that the claimant resided in Natchez, on the 20th December 1803, and was twenty-one years of age. Rowland Brown hath deposed; that he was with the claimant on the land claimed in the year 1803, at which time there were about two acres cleared, on which corn was growing; that at that time there was no person residing on the land, but, in passing by the land some time before, the deponent saw a family thereon. No other testimony adduced. The coincidence of the testimony of the two last witnesses seems to be somewhat doubtful as respects cultivation, the former stating that he commenced making the improvement so late in the year 1803 as the month of November, and not mentioning any thing of cultivation until 1804.

No. 85. A plat of survey, by Stephen Justice, without date, giving forty arpents front on Bayou Concordia, and enclosing six hundred and forty arpents, is filed with the notice of this claim, together with two certificates, given by Joseph Vidal; the 1st dated at Natchez, the 3d of May, 1810, given at the request of Archibald Douglass, and stating, "that whilst acting as commandant of the post of Concordia, in the year 1802, he recollects to have permitted Messrs. Daniel, Archibald, and David Douglass to settle some lands in that district, which must appear by the plats of the surveyor." The second certificate was given under oath before the Board the 3d February, 1812, in which it is stated, that whilst acting as commandant of the post of Concordia, he gave permission to David and Daniel Douglass to settle a tract of land in the said post; which said permission was in writing, but for what quantity of land he could not recollect. No other documents or testimony has been adduced. One claim of three hundred and twenty arpents, on lake Concordia, has been confirmed to the heirs of David Douglass, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 210, which is supposed to be the same tract claimed by this notice.

No. 86. The deposition of Jacob Huffman in this claim, taken before the Board, the 16th September, 1809, is as follows: That Henry Eaton settled on the land claimed in the spring of the year 1801, and raised a crop of corn the same year; that he has continued to reside on and cultivate the same every year since, and on the 20th December, 1803, was over twenty-one years of age. Anthony Glass, in his testimony taken in the claim of Charles Collins, Jun. No. 43, hath deposed, that in June, 1802, he was present when Vidal, then commandant of Concordia, gave permission to settle on the land claimed; a plat of survey, executed in December, 1807, by Henry Cassidy, is filed in the claim; the confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

Nos. 87, 88, 89, and 90. The notices 87 to 90, inclusive, are not accompanied by any documents for title, nor has evidence been offered in either case to establish a right.

No. 91. A plat of survey, by Stephen Justice, executed 8th September, 1803, the only document accompanying the notice of this claim. No proof adduced.

No. 92. This claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, executed by Stephen Justice, bearing date 2d July, 1803, and by no other document of title. Michael Kigar, sworn in this claim, before Richard Cocke, Esq., at the village of Concordia, 6th March, 1809, hath deposed that, in the month of August, 1803, John McCown, for the benefit of the claimant, settled upon the land claimed, who has continued to reside upon and cultivate and improve the same ever since; that an improvement had been made upon the land prior to the above settlement, but believes no person had made it a place of permanent residence prior to that period. Solomon Philips, sworn at the same time, hath said, that some time in the month of July, in the year 1806, he assisted the claimant in making an improvement upon the land claimed; that in that summer he built a cabin thereon, and cleared the cane on something less than one-quarter of an acre thereof, which he enclosed and planted in corn and several kinds of vegetables. No proof of earlier settlement nor permission.

No. 93. The notice of this claim, accompanied by a plat of survey, executed by Henry Cassidy, 5th December 1807, and by no other documents of title. No proofs offered to establish occupancy.

No. 94. From the figure of the plat of survey filed in this claim, which was entered with the Deputy Register, no doubt is entertained of its being for the same tract of land noticed under the preceding number. This also is unsupported by any testimony.

No. 95. A plat of survey, by Gabriel Winters, in December, 1805, the only document filed in this claim. The testimony of Edward Cochrane, taken before the Board of Commissioners, the 17th November, 1806, in this claim, is in substance as follows: That in the month of August, 1803, the claimant, Simon Gibson, a man over the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, employed a man to work upon the said land, who cut about a quarter of an acre of cane thereon; that sometime in the summer of the year following, the said claimant had in the cultivation of corn about ten or twelve acres of said land; and in the fall of the same year removed his family thereon, and has continued to reside on and cultivate the same ever since. John Ferguson, sworn, in the same claim, before Richard Cocke, Esq., at Concordia, the 27th February, 1809, hath deposed, that in the fall of the year 1803, he cut down the cane on about a quarter of an acre of the land claimed, intending to take it for his own benefit; that in the winter of the year 1803, the claimant wishing to take up the land, the deponent consented he should do so upon his paying him for the work done thereon, which the claimant did; and the deponent in that year bought some of the claimant's stock on the land; that early in the year 1804, the claimant sent some of his negroes to work upon the land, and in that year they cleared and cultivated six or seven acres in corn; that in the fall or winter of the same year (1804) the claimant moved his family on the land, and has continued to reside thereon ever since; that on the 20th day of December, 1803, the claimant resided in the Mississippi Territory. It is not pretended that the settlement was made by permission of the proper Spanish authority, nor that the land in question was inhabited or cultivated prior to the 20th December, 1803.

No. 96. An informal deed, executed before private witnesses, from John Warren and Bartholomew Wallace, to the claimant, Benjamin Goodwin, Sen., is the only document filed in this claim. No proof has been offered to establish occupancy.

No. 97. In this claim is filed duplicate plats of survey, by Henry Cassidy, dated 20th December, 1807, one entered with the Deputy Register, and numbered 76, the other filed with the Register at Opelousas, with a notice which is not numbered. The testimony of Samuel Tuttle in this claim, taken by William Lindsay, Esq. of Concordia, commissioned for that purpose, is to the following effect: That John Higgins, the former claimant, took possession of the place claimed about the latter end of September, 1803, commenced an improvement, built a cabin, cleared about one acre, and planted it in corn, in the year 1803; and in the year 1804 cleared four or five acres, and planted it in cotton; that the land was inhabited and cultivated on the 20th December, 1803, by a Mr. Moore, for the claimant. The witness does not know of the claimant having permission by the Spanish Government to settle the land. No other document or testimony is filed. No assignment or transfer from Higgins to Glass appears. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 98. This claim has already been confirmed by Abijah Hunt and Elijah Smith, for six hundred arpents, under the settlement of the original claimant, James Glasscock, made by permission of the proper Spanish authority, as appears by commissioners' certificate B, No. 222.

No. 99. No document filed with the notice in this claim. Benjamin Mullins, examined on oath, the 10th September, 1811, before John Patterson, Esq., commissioned by the Board for that purpose, deposes, that in the spring of the year 1803, he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give Benjamin Carroll permission to take up and settle the aforesaid land; that said Carroll went immediately on the land, and was actually cultivating and inhabiting the same on the 20th December, 1803, at which time he was the head of a family. See remarks in reported No. 51, relating to this claim.

No. 100. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, by Peter Walker, on the back of which is a requête approved and signed by the then commandant, J. Vidal, in favor of Edwin L. Harris. Both the requête and the surveyor's certificate appear to have been originally dated the 8th March, 1803; but in both cases have been so altered with paler ink to 1802, as that the figures 3 are distinctly to be seen. Before John Steel, Joseph Pannel, and David Lattimore, Esqrs., commissioned for that purpose, by the Board of commissioners, the examinations of Stephen Kenyon and John Kennedy were taken on the 14th June, 1806. The testimony of Kenyon is to this purport: That he was employed by Edwin L. Harris to overlook his hands and to improve the tract of land, (on which the said Harris was residing at the time of taking the examination,) in the Territory of Orleans, and county of Concordia, fronting on the Mississippi, distant from the post of Concordia about five leagues; that he did, with the said Edwin L. Harris, occupy, cultivate, and inhabit the said land prior to and on the 20th day of December, 1803; that the family of said Harris consisted of a wife, three children, and eight negroes; and that he did not know of Edwin L. Harris claiming any other land under any French or Spanish grant. John Kennedy hath deposed as follows: That the tract of land in question was occupied, cultivated, and improved by the said Harris, or his representative and hands from May, 1803, until the present date; and that his said plantation was in the actual possession of the said Edwin L. Harris's representative, for the use of said Edwin L. Harris, on the 20th December, 1803; that corn was raised on said Harris's place in the summer of 1803; that the family of the said Harris consists of a wife and four children; and that he does not know that any other land was granted to the said Edwin L. Harris by either the French or Spanish Government. The last mentioned was again examined, before Richard Cocke, Esq., in the village of Concordia, on the 7th February, 1809, concerning the same claim, when his evidence was to this effect: That in the early part of December, 1803, Edwin L. Harris, with several hands, cut the cane of about an acre of the land, and built a camp upon the land claimed; that he remained there about three days, after which he left the same; and that no person has lived thereon, from the abovenamed period until some time in July, 1804, at which time a certain Edwin Allen settled upon the land, as the agent of the claimant, who continued to improve and cultivate the same until Edwin L. Harris came to reside thereon, in January, 1805, after which period the land has been every year inhabited and cultivated by the said Harris, or those claiming under him; that the claimant, Harris, was above the age of twenty-one years, the head of a family, and an inhabitant of Louisiana, on the 20th December, 1803. It will be seen that Kennedy's two statements are somewhat at variance with each other. From the last it would appear that the land claimed had not been occupied as required by law, which, together with the alterations in the dates of the title-papers on which the claim is founded, are reasons with the commissioners for reporting it. They wish, however, not to be understood as recommending its rejection by Congress, as in their opinion, the documents above mentioned would have been sufficient to ensure the completion of the title under the usages and customs of the Spanish Government. Believing too, that the present proprietor of the land is innocent of the high offence of mutilating and antedating the title papers; entertaining no doubt of the genuineness of those papers in other respects; and firmly believing that the signatures of the commandant and surveyor are in the proper hand-writing of those persons; and that whether those papers had been dated in 1802 or 1803 is not material to the claim, the undersigned commissioners beg leave respectfully to recommend its confirmation to Berwell Vick, provided he should exhibit the necessary conveyance to establish his claim.

No. 101. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, executed the 4th September, 1803, is the only document of title filed in this claim. No proof of occupancy, &c. adduced.

No. 102. No document filed in the claim, nor is there any evidence of occupancy.

No. 103. This claim is founded on a right of settlement made by Hamilton Jet, in whose name one claim, having been already confirmed, must of course be rejected.

No. 104. The following documents accompany the notice of this claim: First, a plat of survey not signed by any surveyor. Secondly, a detached certificate by Stephen Justice, dated 9th September, 1804, certifying that the land had been surveyed by him in September, 1803. Thirdly, a certificate signed by Ferdinand L. Claiborne, as commandant civil and military at the post of Concordia, dated the 10th September, 1804, stating that John Shanoar was at that time, and had been previous to the change of Government, an inhabitant of the district; and Fourth, a deed of sale from Archibald Brooks to Philip Harty, the present claimant. No proof has been offered to establish this claim.

No. 105. This claim is accompanied by a plat of survey, by Peter Walker, dated 6th April, 1803, and said to have been made by the approbation of the then commandant of Concordia; but of this fact the declaration of the surveyor is the only evidence. A deed of sale from Archibald Brooks to Simon Harty is also filed. No evidence has been adduced to establish the occupancy of the land.

No. 106. This claim is for the moiety of the tract of land confirmed to John Perkins by certificate B, No. 231; the entire tract having been claimed by said Perkins under regular conveyances from the original claimant.

No. 107. This claim is accompanied by a plat of survey executed by Peter Walker, the 2d May, 1803, for Hutton Middleton, whose name has been erased in the plat, and that of the present claimant inserted. There is no evidence of the approval of the commandant, nor of occupancy.

No. 108. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 20th December, 1807, the only document filed in this claim.

No. 109. Nothing but the notice is filed in this claim. No proof taken.

No. 110. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, executed in December, 1807. The testimony of Jacob Huffman, taken before the Board the 16th September, 1809, is as follows: That Daniel Huffman settled on the tract of land claimed in the spring of 1802, and raised a crop of corn thereon the same year, and has continued to reside on and cultivate the same ever since; that, on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant was over twenty-one years of age and the head of a family. Jeremiah Jones, in his testimony taken by William Lindsay, Esq., of Concordia, commissioned for that purpose, hath deposed, that, previous to the 20th December, 1803, he heard Vidal, the commandant of Concordia, give verbal permission to Daniel Huffman to settle in Concordia. No other evidence adduced.

No. 111. Nothing but a notice is filed in this claim, and no evidence in support of it. The same land claimed by this entry is also claimed by Washington Stubblefield, whose claim has been confirmed. No conveyance from Stubblefield to this claimant has been adduced, though such a conveyance is stated in the notice of this claim to have been passed.

No. 112. The notice of this claim accompanied by no document of title. By the testimony of Elijah Cushing, it is established that Ezra Johns resided on the land as the hireling of Benjamin Kitchen, to whom the right has been confirmed.

No. 113. A plat of survey, by Stephen Justice, dated 4th March, 1803, the only document filed in this claim. No proof has been offered to establish the title.

No. 114. A plat of survey, by Henry Cassidy, dated 10th December, 1807, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence adduced to establish occupancy, &c.

No. 115. A plat of survey, by Henry Cassidy, executed in December, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. Jacob Huffman, a witness before the Board the 16th September, 1809, hath deposed as follows: That James James settled on the tract of land claimed in the spring of the year 1802, where he has continued to reside and cultivate the same every year since; that on the 20th of December, 1803, the claimant was over the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, and an inhabitant of Louisiana. The deposition of Charles Collins, taken by William Lindsay, judge of the parish of Warren, in Concordia, commissioned by the Board, is to the following purport: That, about the month of April, 1803, the deponent heard Joseph Vidal grant permission to the claimant to settle on the land in question. No other document or proof is adduced.

Nos. 116 and 117. The plats filed in these two claims show them to be for the same tract of land. One entered with the Register in Opelousas, the other with the Deputy Register at Rapides. In neither case has any evidence been adduced.

No. 118. The notice of this claim is not accompanied by any document of title. No proof offered.

No. 119. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, the only document in this claim. No proof offered.

No. 120. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, the only document. No proof offered. Confirmed under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1503.

No. 121. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, executed in December, 1807, enclosing six hundred and forty-three acres fifty-nine hundredths, and having a front on lake Concordia of nearly a mile and a quarter. Joseph Vidal, in his evidence given before Judge Dunlap, of Concordia, commissioned for that purpose, states that, before the 15th October, 1803, he permitted a relation of Benjamin Carroll, whose name he could not recollect, (but, by what is reported, his name is Abraham Insko,) to settle on lake Concordia; but could not then recollect the quantity of land mentioned, or the particular place where the settlement was to be made. Francis Henderson, before Richard Cocke, Esq., at Concordia, hath deposed, that, some time about the middle of December, 1803, as nearly as he could recollect, the claimant removed to the land claimed; that, on the 20th December, 1803, the improvement consisted of a cabin, in which the claimant resided; that the land has been inhabited and cultivated every year since by the claimant or those claiming under him. The deponent thinks, from the appearance of the claimant, that he was twenty-one years of age on the 20th December, 1803; and knows that he got married shortly afterwards. Jacob Carter hath deposed, that, on the 11th December, 1803, William Mitchell settled upon the land in question; that, on the 20th of the same month the improvement consisted of some timber cut down, boards split, and a camp built; that Mitchell was to continue there until the claimant took possession. At what time this took place was not known to the deponent; but he, the deponent, was upon the land in the spring of 1804, when there were three or four acres nearly cleared. The deponent thinks the claimant was upwards of twenty-one years of age on the 20th December, 1803. No other documents or proof is adduced.

No. 122. No document of title accompanies the notice of this claim. Charles Trammel, sworn in the claim, and whose examination was taken before John Patterson, Esq., commissioned for that purpose, by this Board, has deposed that he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give permission to James Knotts to take up and settle the land claimed in the fall of 1803; that the said James Knotts did immediately go on the land in question, and was actually cultivating and inhabiting the same on the 20th day of December, 1803, at which time he was the head of a family. For reasons of the undersigned commissioners for doubting the testimony of Trammel, and for rejecting this claim, they beg leave to refer to their exposition of the reported No. 3, and to the deposition of David B. Morgan in No. 65.

No. 123. No documents of title nor proof of occupancy accompany this notice.

No. 124. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 2d July, 1803, is the only document of title accompanying the notice of this claim. By the testimony of Solomon Phelps and Michael Kigar, taken at Concordia, before Richard Cocke, Esq., it is established that no improvement was made on the land claimed earlier than the year 1806.

No. 125. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice is the only document filed in this claim, which is unsupported by any proof.

No. 126. No document filed in this, nor proof of occupancy.

No. 127. This notice of claim is believed to be for the same land claimed in another entry, by John Kennedy, and which has been confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 298, under his own settlement, made by permission of the proper Spanish authority. The testimony of three persons has been taken and filed with the notice, to wit: Edwin L. Harris, Samuel S. Mahan and John Ferguson, which goes to establish that the claimant, John Kennedy, the head of a family, and over twenty-one years of age, inhabited and cultivated the land from the spring of 1803 to the time the above testimony was taken, in 1806, and that the settlement was made under the permission of the proper Spanish authority.

No. 128. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 18th December, 1807, the only document filed in this claim. No proof. Confirmed under another notice.— See certificate B, No. 1506.

No. 129. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey without date or signature, Before Joshua G. Clark and Jeffries H. Moore, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned for that purpose by the Board, Charles Campbell, a witness in this claim, has deposed, That, in the summer of 1803, David Lum, the claimant, and Samuel Lum, his father, in the presence of this deponent, at Concordia, obtained permission from Joseph Vidal, then commandant of Concordia, to settle on lake St. Joseph; that, about the middle of December, the same year, the deponent moved to said lake, where he found the said David and Samuel, each in possession of a tract of land, which they were inhabiting and cultivating on the 30th December, 1803; each being over twenty-one years of age at that time, and Samuel Lum was the head of a family. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 130. This notice is accompanied by a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, in November, 1807, and is for the same land claimed in the preceding notice, No. 129; one entry was made with the Deputy, and the other with the Register. No proof taken on this.

No. 131. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey, dated 17th March, 1803, by Stephen Justice, who certifies to have made the survey by order of Don Joseph Vidal, then commandant, &c. of Concordia.— The testimony of John Welch and Samuel Tanner, taken by Benjamin Howard and Robert Schofield, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned for that purpose by the Board, is to the following import: That Ezekiel Loe, with permission of Joseph Vidal, then commandant, &c.; settled a tract of land on the waters of Tensaw, in Concordia, in April, 1803, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same until about 1807.

No. 132. The notice of this claim is accompanied by two informal deeds of sale, acknowledged before private witnesses; one from Hugh Wilson to Thomas Tompkins, the other from Thomas Tompkins to James Long; and by a plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated the 27th January, 1806. John Malone, examined on oath, before the Board of Commissioners, in this claim, on the 1st of March, 1806, and hath deposed as follows: That, in the latter part of the year 1803, Hugh Wilson went on the said land, and cut down the cane of about a quarter of an acre, and made no other improvement thereon; that, in the spring following, Thomas Tompkins removed to the land and built a cabin thereon, and made a small addition to the cleared land; that the land was afterwards sold to James Long, who put a family thereon that has continued to cultivate it ever since. No proof of permission offered, and that of settlement insufficient.

No. 133. The notice of this claim was filed by the agent, in absence of the claimant, Wm. Lindsay, for the use of Robert Cochran, for a tract of land said to contain six hundred and forty acres, situate on the west margin of the Mississippi river, claimed under the settlement of Alexander McCormick. This claim cannot be established. William Lindsay makes known that it was entered through mistake of the agent, and now exhibits a claim for a tract of land situate on lake St. Peter, in the county of Concordia, for eight hundred arpents, with a plat of survey by the then surveyor of the post, and a commandant's requête, duly signed by Mr. Vidal, dated the 15th July, 1803, in favor of Ezekiel Cooley, which papers appear to be entirely fair and indisputable. Proof is also exhibited, and will be stated at length, of the land having been settled and cultivated in the year 1803, and on the 20th day of December of that year. William Lindsay asks the privilege of so amending his notice, as to introduce the claim which he had derived from Cooley instead of the one in the name of McCormick; and although the undersigned commissioners are of opinion that they are not authorized, by the laws whence their powers are derived, to permit such an amendment of a notice as would tend to introduce an entire new claim, they nevertheless believe that, in justice, the claimant is entitled to the land claimed under the said Ezekiel Cooley; and, accordingly, respectfully recommend its confirmation by Congress to Jonathan Thompson, of the city of Natchez, to whom the same appears to have been conveyed, for a valuable consideration, by a deed duly executed and recorded in the office of the parish of Concordia. The witnesses, Richard H. Gibson, Thomas Donaldson, and William Miller, have been sworn and examined in this claim, in October, 1811, before Samuel Brooks, Gabriel Tichenor, and Elijah Smith, of the city of Natchez, commissioned for that purpose by this Board. Gibson hath deposed that the said Ezekiel Cooley did actually inhabit and cultivate the said tract of land on lake St. Peter, on the 20th day of December, 1803, and was at that time more than twenty-one years of age. The testimony of Gibson is fully corroborated by Donaldson and Miller; the latter added that Cooley was also the head of a family.

No. 134. This claim was filed in like manner as that referred to under the preceding number, by mistake of the agent of Wm. Lindsay. According to the tenor of the notice, it is for a tract of land containing six hundred and forty acres, situate on the west margin of the Mississippi river, said to have been improved by Ezekiel Henry, in support of whose title no document is filed. William Lindsay represents that the notice should have been for a tract of land on lake St. Peter of seven hundred and fifty arpents, equal to about six hundred and thirty-five acres, for which he has exhibited a plat of survey and requête, duly signed by the proper Spanish officers, dated the 15th July, 1803, in favor of Royal Bill. These documents appearing to be fair, and the subjoined proof of settlement satisfactory, the undersigned commissioners recommend the confirmation by Congress to Jonathan Thompson of Natchez, who has exhibited regular deeds transferring the title of this last-mentioned tract to him, and which deeds, as in the preceding case, have been regularly enregistered in the parish of Concordia. In this claim the same witnesses as in the preceding one, to wit: Richard H. Gibson, William Miller, and Thomas Donaldson, have been examined before Samuel Brooks, Gabriel Tichenor, and Elijah Smith, Esqrs., and agree perfectly in their statements; that the tract of land in question, situate on lake St. Peter, was actually inhabited and cultivated by Royal Bill on the 20th December, 1803, and that the said Bill was on that day more than twenty-one years of age.

No. 135. The notice of this claim not accompanied by any document of title. No proof has been offered.

No. 136. A plat of survey, executed 16th December, 1807, by Henry Cassidy, the only document of title filed in this claim; no proof of occupancy. The plat of survey shows this to be the same tract claimed by John Clark, and reported under No. 38. William Moore, in his testimony, in reported No. 33, may possibly have reference to this claim; but, as the application of the testimony is doubtful, the commissioners cannot consistently recommend the confirmation of the claim.

No. 137. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 11th December, 1807, the only document filed. No proof. Confirmed for six hundred and forty acres. See certificate B, No. 1502.

No. 138. A plat of survey by the same surveyor, dated 12th December, 1807, the only document filed. No proof. Confirmed for six hundred and forty acres, under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1505.

No. 139. No document of title nor proof of occupancy adduced in this claim.

No. 140. The notice of this claim accompanied by a copy of a plat of survey, said to have been made by an authorized deputy surveyor. The claimant gives notice that the title-papers on which the claim is founded to have been lost or mislaid. No proof has been adduced in support of the claim.

Nos. 141 and 142. The notices of these claims are unaccompanied by any documents of title or proof.

No. 143. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, in December, 1807; and a certificate in the hand-writing of, and signed by, Joseph Vidal, at Natchez, the 17th April, 1812, which certificate is supposed to have been given privately, at the request of the claimant, or some person for him, and without the formality of an oath. James Scrigley, before the Board, the 27th July, 1812, hath deposed: That Alexander McCormick settled on the land claimed in the year 1803, and made a crop thereon that year and the two next succeeding years; that the land claimed lies from eight to ten miles below the place called Palmyra, and nearly opposite the third island below that village. No other documents or proof adduced. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 144. From the quantity of land claimed, and figure, &c. of the plat, this notice is believed to be for the same tract referred to under the preceding number. This last was filed with the deputy register at Rapides, and is not supported by any proof.

No. 145. A deed of sale from William Taylor to the claimant, and a plat not signed by any surveyor, are filed with the notice of this claim, and are the only documents of title accompanying it. The examination of Samuel Phipps and Charles Marlow has been taken in this claim before Richard Cocke, Esq. at Concordia, in 1809. Samuel Phipps, on his oath, hath deposed: That some time in June, 1803, he applied to Captain Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, in behalf of William Taylor, for permission for him, the said Taylor, to settle upon the land claimed, which was granted by said commandant; and that he was present and marked the corner trees when Peter Walker, surveyor for the said post, surveyed the land. Charles Marlow hath deposed: That in the year 1804 he was informed by William Taylor, under whom Hatton Middleton claims, that he had a survey in possession of Major Stephen Minor, for the land claimed, which he would give to the deponent if he would settle thereon; that in August, 1804, he, the deponent, did actually make a small improvement upon the land claimed, but, having applied to Major Minor for the survey, and being informed that he had no such survey, he abandoned the land; that there was no appearance of any improvement having been made on the land previous to that made by the deponent; that, in the year 1805, the said William Taylor had about one acre of the land under cultivation, but had not resided on it; that on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant resided in the Mississippi Territory, and was the head of a family; and that he removed to Orleans Territory in the month of January or February, 1804, as the deponent has been informed.

No. 146. No documents of title have been filed with the notice of this claim, nor has any testimony been offered in it.

No. 147. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated in July, 1803, is the only document filed in this claim. No proof.

No. 148. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated in June, 1803, is the only document filed in this claim. No proof offered.

No. 149. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated in March, 1803, filed in this claim. From the testimony of Thomas Smith, taken before Richard Cocke, Esq. in March, 1809, it appears no improvement was made on the land claimed earlier than the fall of the year 1805. No proof of permission offered.

No. 150. The notice of this claim not accompanied by any document of title or evidence of occupancy.

No. 151. In this claim is filed the copy of a plat of survey, said to have been made in August, 1803, by William Atchison; and a letter from Joseph Vidal to John Grafton, dated Concordia, 23d August, 1803, in the following words:

SIR:—As I am informed you are to go up to-morrow, it is necessary I should mention I have forgot when you came over to call on Colonel Bruin, and to ask him where he has fixed his claim, whether before his place, above or below, in order that you may not intrude on the lines of his survey. The bearer wishes also to join you, which I am very willing.

I am, &c.

The said Joseph Grafton, sworn in the claim before Richard Cocke, Esq. at Concordia, 25th February, 1809, hath deposed: That in the summer of 1803 he applied to Captain J. Vidal, then commandant of Concordia, for permission to his two nephews, James and Daniel McCown, to settle land in the district, when Captain Vidal observed to the deponent, he should be happy to render any services to his family that were in his power, and the same day wrote the above letter to the deponent. Daniel and Thomas Grafton, sworn in this claim, concur in the following statement: That on June 7, 1796, a man by the name of William Valence was residing on the land claimed, in a camp, but had no land cleared on it; and that on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant was over twenty-one years of age, and resided in the Mississippi Territory.

No. 152. This claim is also accompanied by the copy of a plat of survey, said to have been made by William Atchison, 26th August, 1803. For permission to settle, the letter of Mr. Vidal and testimony of John Grafton, stated under the preceding number, are relied on. Daniel and Thomas Grafton, sworn in this claim before

Richard Cocke, Esq. the 24th February, 1809, agree in stating that in January, 1796, there was between half an acre and an acre of cane cut down on the land claimed, and a cow-pen made thereon of cane, by William Valence and a man by the name of Campfield, who at that time resided in a camp on the land claimed by James McCown; that on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant resided in the Mississippi Territory, and was over twenty-one years of age.

No. 153. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by Peter Walker, said to have been made by the approbation of the commandant, Mr. Vidal, in March, 1803, for George Small; an assignment of the right by George Small to David Douglass; a like assignment by David Douglass to William Cochran, by whom it is assigned to David Michie. No proof of occupancy adduced.

No. 154. In this claim is filed a copy of a plat of survey, signed Peter Walker, from the figure of which it is believed to be for a tract of land, of which the title has already been confirmed to the said Michie.

No. 155. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 26th March, 1803, the only document of title filed in this claim. No evidence has been adduced.

No. 156. With this notice is filed a plat of survey executed by Stephen Justice, dated 25th March, 1806, and certified to have been done by order of Joseph Vidal. The testimony of Samuel Tanner and John Welch, taken by Benjamin Howard and Robert Schofield, Justices of the Peace, commissioned for this purpose, is to the following purport: That Henry Manadue, by permission from Joseph Vidal, then commandant, &c. settled on a tract of land on the waters of Tensaw, which he was inhabiting and cultivating on the 20th day of December, 1803, and for one year before and two years after that time. No other proof or document filed.

No. 157. With this notice is filed a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy in 1807. Jacob Huffman, before the Board, the 16th September, 1809, hath deposed as follows: That Bernard Metcalf settled on the land claimed in the spring of 1802, and raised a crop of corn thereon, and has continued to reside thereon and cultivate the same ever since; that on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant was over the age of twenty-one years, and an inhabitant of Louisiana. The testimony of Ezekiel Williams and Patrick Ford, taken under commission from the Board by William Lindsay, parish judge, is to the following purport: That the claimant, Bernard Metcalf, obtained permission from Joseph Vidal, through the application of the witness, Williams, in the summer of 1802, to settle on the land in question. Ford states only that he has always understood, from the year 1802, that the claimant had permission to settle on the land claimed. No other evidence is adduced.

No. 158. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, executed 12th April, 1803, and by no other document or evidence.

No. 159. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey dated the 18th of April, 1803, signed "Peter Walker," somewhat mutilated, and purporting to be a copy of the original. The deposition of John Hutchinson, taken by Mr. Cocke, at Concordia, is to the following effect: That the deponent was on the land in July, 1803, when Christopher Collins was residing thereon, and again in November following, where he found said Collins residing; had built a comfortable camp, and burnt the cane off three or four acres, which were not enclosed, but timber was cut for rails; that about half an acre was planted and cultivated in corn that year. John Kennedy, also at Concordia, before Mr. Cocke, hath deposed: That he has, since February, 1803, resided within about six miles of the land claimed; that he was frequently on the land in that year, and believes there was no improvement made on the land in that year; that he knows no improvement was made there by Collins until the year 1804, and believes it was not earlier than the latter part of the summer in that year; he also understood from Collins, that he, Collins, claimed the land. Azariah Brown's testimony, taken by Judge Dunlap, of Concordia, commissioned for that purpose, is to the following purport: That the deponent was on the land in November and December, 1803, and found it then inhabited, a house or cabin built, some clearing done, and a garden made and under cultivation; that, to the belief of the deponent, the improvement was commenced in the summer of 1803, and continued until after the 20th December, 1803. The deponent could not recollect the name of the person employed by the claimant, Samuel S. Mahan, but remembers that the improvement was made for Mahan, and that the person afterwards died at Mahan's house; that he was informed and believes the settlement was made by the permission of Joseph Vidal, formerly commandant; that said Mahan and Welling Wooley, the original claimant, were at that time over twenty-one years of age, and Mahan was the head of a family. It appears from this last testimony that the land was improved for Mahan's use in the fall of 1803; and it may be proper to remark, that the conveyance from Wooley to Mahan, which is filed in the claim, bears date the 10th of July, 1804. This circumstance, with Kennedy's statement, seems to lessen the force which the evidence might otherwise have. No other evidence is filed.

No. 160. With the notice of this claim is filed an informal plat of survey, executed by Stephen Justice, dated 12th April, 1803, and certified to have been made by the approbation of Joseph Vidal, in favor of Charles F. Todd. A regular conveyance from said Todd to the claimant, Mahan, dated 3d February, 1806, is also filed, and no other evidence. The same land is claimed by said Todd, whose claim is reported under No. 216.

No. 161. In this claim is filed a rough plat of survey, made for Conrad Rough, dated 15th April, 1803, and signed "Peter Walker," purporting to be a copy of the original; a deed of conveyance from the said Conrad to the claimant, Mahan, dated 25th August, 1804, is also filed. Robert Welch, before Richard Coker, Esq. at Concordia, in February, 1809, hath deposed: That a Mr. Dannis Minniard resided on the land in the spring and summer of 1804, as the agent, he believes, of the claimant, as the deponent was employed a part of the time to board him; that the improvement consisted at that time of two or three acres cleared and a cabin built, which, from its appearance, he supposed had been built six or eight months prior to that time; that the said Minniard, whilst making preparations for a crop, died that year, and the land was not cultivated. Patrick McGlocklin, whose testimony was also taken at Concordia by Mr. Coker, hath deposed: That he was on the land early in the year of 1803, when a Mr. Conrad was residing there, and had a cabin built and two or three acres of cane cut down; that the said Conrad was, on the 20th December, 1803, over twenty-one years of age; that Conrad informed the deponent that he, Conrad, was the agent of the claimant, and was making the improvement for the benefit of the claimant. It would appear from the conveyance above mentioned, that Conrad did not convey to the present claimant until August, 1804. No other document or proof is adduced.

No. 162. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, not dated, is filed in this claim, and no other document or evidence of title. Confirmed for six hundred and forty acres, under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1508.

No. 163. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated 11th January, 1807. From the testimony of Francis Naylor, Thomas Kincaid, Edmunds Bruin, and J. Burnett, taken in this claim, it is established that this tract was not inhabited until after the year 1803. No evidence of the commandant's permission has been adduced.

No. 164. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, the only document of title filed in this claim. No evidence adduced.

No. 165. A plat of survey, as in the preceding case, and a deed of sale from Rufus Humphreys to John Nichols, filed in this claim. No evidence to establish occupancy.

No. 166. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, and a deed of sale from Samuel M. Sparrow to John Nichols, filed in this claim. No evidence adduced.

No. 167. An informal deed of sale, acknowledged before private witnesses, and not recorded, from Elijah Bunch to Jehu Nelson, the only document of title filed in this claim. No evidence in support of the title.

No. 168. A deed of sale before private witnesses, and not recorded, from Charles Grieger to John Nelson, the only document of title filed in this claim. No evidence adduced.

No. 169. No document of title filed with the notice of this claim, nor any evidence adduced in support of it.

No. 170. Neither title-paper nor testimony adduced in support of this claim.

No. 171. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy in May, 1808. The testimony of William Taylor, taken by James Wood and J. W. Moore, Justices of the Peace or Quorum in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned for that purpose, is to the following purport: That in the presence of the deponent, in the summer of 1803, the claimant, Levi Norril, obtained verbal permission from Joseph Vidal, then acting as commandant at Concordia, to settle the land in question; that said Norril settled on the land in August or September, cleared several acres, built a cabin, and sowed turnips and other vegetables, and was inhabiting and cultivating the land on the 20th December, 1803, at which time Levi Norril was over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family. No other document or proof is adduced.

No. 172. A plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated 25th January, 1806, an informal deed of sale from James White to Hugh Wilson, and an assignment on the back of said deed from Hugh Wilson to Ichabod Osborn, are the only documents of title filed in this claim. No evidence adduced.

No. 173. A plat of survey executed 10th December, 1807, the only document of title filed in this claim. No proof offered. Confirmed under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1501.

No. 174. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 4th April, 1803, and no other document of title. No proof adduced in support of the claim.

No. 175. A deed of sale from Christopher Lee to the claimant, the only document of title filed in this claim. No proof adduced in support of the title.

No. 176. A plat of survey, dated 4th September, 1802, by Juan Pedro Walker, which he certifies to have made with the consent of the commandant, Joseph Vidal, the only document of title in this claim. No proof offered.

No. 177. With the notice of this claim are filed a plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated 29th January, 1806, and a deed of sale from Levi Fletcher to the present claimant. No evidence adduced in support of the title.

No. 178. A plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated 27th January, 1807, the only document filed in this claim. By the testimony of John Purvis, son of the present claimant, and Margaret Bolton, mother of the former claimant, taken before Richard Coker, Esq. at Concordia, the 18th February, 1809, it is established that no improvement was made on the land claimed earlier than 1804, and no permanent settlement earlier than the spring of 1805.

No. 179. A deed of sale from Thomas Tompkins to the claimant, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence adduced in support of the title.

No. 180. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 23d July, 1803, the only document filed in this claim. By the testimony of Joseph Smith, it is established that the first improvement made on the land was in the fall of 1804, and that it was not permanently settled earlier than the year 1805.

No. 181. With this claim is filed a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 8th June, 1803, and no other document of title. Samuel Reed, sworn, in this claim, and whose examination was taken the 10th September, 1811, before John Patterson, Esq., commissioned for that purpose by this Board, hath deposed: That he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give permission to the said Pitney to take up and settle the aforesaid land in the fall of the year 1803; that the said Pitney did immediately go on the land in question, and was actually inhabiting and cultivating the same on the 20th day of December, 1803; and that the said Pitney was upwards of twenty-one years of age. The confirmation is recommended.

No. 182. Nothing but the notice filed in this claim, and no proof taken.

No. 183. Nothing is filed in this case except the notice. The claim to the land mentioned in this notice has been confirmed to the heirs of Maria Sollibellas by commissioners' certificate B, No. 26.

No. 184. A notice only is filed in this case, and no proof taken.

No. 185. A notice only is filed in this case. No proof taken. The claim to the land mentioned in this notice appears to have been confirmed to John N. Regan by commissioners' certificate B, No. 152.

No. 186. A requête in favor of Pierre Leglise, dated 12th January, 1800, assigned by said Leglise to the present claimant, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence adduced in support of the claim.

No. 187. The notice of this claim accompanied by no document of title nor evidence in support of the claim.

No. 188. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 5th April, 1803, the only document of title accompanying the notice of this claim. No evidence adduced to establish a title.

Nos. 189 and 190. The grants from Joseph Vidal, late commandant of Concordia, under which these claims are said to have been founded, were (as set forth in the notice) left in the office of the said commandant, who, having left the government of the county of Concordia, the claimant represents that he is unable to find them. They are therefore not filed, nor any other document or evidence of title.

No. 191. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy, in December, 1807. The testimony of Jacob Huffman, taken before the Board the 16th September, 1809, is as follows: That E. Rogers settled on the land claimed by his agent, and raised a crop of corn, in the year 1802; that in the winter following the claimant removed on the land claimed himself, where he has continued to reside and cultivate ever since; that on the 20th day of December, 1803, the claimant was over the age of twenty-one years, the head of a family, and an inhabitant of Louisiana. William J. Steward's testimony, taken by J. H. Moore, Justice of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned for that purpose by the Board, is as follows: That in the year 1797 permission was given by the Baron de Carondelet for the settlement of the land claimed; that the claimant, the witness, and three others, moved to the country in that year, and the witness took a keel-boat to New Orleans, and applied to the baron for permission, in behalf of himself, the claimant, and his three other companions, for settling in Louisiana, which was granted. No other document or proof is adduced; and although the proof is deemed very favorable, it lacks the evidence of permission required in the rule of the Board, expressed by the Board under reported No. 3; but its confirmation by Congress is nevertheless strongly recommended.

No. 192. This claim has been confirmed to this claimant under another entry, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 180. A plat of survey by Peter Walker, dated 15th July, 1803, is the only document filed with this notice.

No. 193. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 20th December, 1807, and no other document of title. The examination of Edward Yarrington and James Norton, taken on the 16th December, 1811, before William Lindsay, Esq. commissioned for that purpose by this Board, is in substance as follows: Abraham Yarrington deposes, that in about the year 1802 the claimant commenced his improvement on the land claimed, and built a camp; that a great number of trees were cut down the same year; that in the year following a large quantity of corn and pumpkins were planted, and that in the following, a large crop of corn and pumpkins was made; that the claimants were in possession of the premises from the year 1802 until 1804; that there were intervals between the periods aforesaid; that he was not in actual possession; that the deponent cannot say that the claimant was in actual possession on the 20th day of December, 1803, but that the land was all that time considered as in his actual possession, either actually or virtually; and that he has been informed the claimant had permission to settle lands in Louisiana by the proper Spanish officer, but he has no personal knowledge of such authority. James Norton deposes, that some time in the year 1802, the claimant commenced his improvement on the land claimed, and planted peach stones and corn; in the year following the same was planted in corn, beans, and pumpkins, and the same has been cultivated every year since. The foregoing testimony does not establish the fact of the land being inhabited in the year 1803, nor that the settlement or cultivation was made by permission of the Spanish officer.

No. 194. From the quantity of land claimed, and the figure of the plat, there can be no doubt that this notice, which was filed with the Deputy Register of Rapides, is for the same tract referred to under the preceding number.

No. 195. The notice of this claim is not accompanied by any document of title, nor by any evidence.

No. 196. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 12th December, 1807, the only document of title filed in this claim. No evidence of occupancy or permission to settle. Confirmed for six hundred and forty acres under another notice. See certificate B, No. 1499.

No. 197. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated 25th January, 1806, giving a front on the river Mississippi of one mile; and by a deed of sale from Uriah Norris to the claimant, Phineas Smith, executed before a private witness, John Malone, and not recorded in the county in which the land is situated. The examination of two witnesses has been taken in this claim. John Malone, sworn in presence of the Board of Commissioners the 1st March, 1806, hath deposed, that he heard Uriah Norris make application to Don Joseph Vidal for permission to settle on the land claimed, who granted the same; that in the last of August, or first of September, of the year 1803, the then claimant, with his family, moved on the said land, and remained there about a month, when he sold it to Phineas Smith, the present claimant, who immediately placed a man on the said land, who continued to reside thereon until the winter following. On his removal, the claimant put another man with his family on the said land, who has continued to reside thereon ever since; that previous to the 20th day of December, 1803, there was erected on the land a house made of pickets, and two acres and a half cleared, which were sown in turnips and other vegetables. William Fairbanks, sworn before Richard Cocke, Esq. at Concordia, the 28th February, 1809, hath deposed, that some time in the year 1802, he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, give the claimant, Phineas Smith, permission to settle upon vacant land on the Mississippi river, in the district of Concordia, above the post; that on the 28th of December the claimant was over twenty-one years of age, the head of a family, and resided in the Mississippi Territory.

No. 198. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Henry Cassidy in December, 1807. The testimony of Jacob Huffman, taken before the Board the 16th September, 1809, is as follows: That Frederick Smith settled on the land claimed in the spring of 1802, and raised a crop of corn and cotton; that the land has been actually inhabited and cultivated ever since; that on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant was over the age of twenty-one years, the head of a family, and an inhabitant of Louisiana. No other evidence adduced.

No. 199. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, dated 17th April, 1803, and signed Peter Walker, but not in his hand-writing. John Ferguson, Sen., sworn and examined in this claim before Richard Cocke, Esq., at Concordia, the 8th February, 1809, hath deposed, that in September, 1804, the claimant had a cabin built upon the land claimed, and in the year 1803 there were fifteen or twenty acres cleared and cultivated upon the said land. No evidence adduced to establish the permission of the commandant.

No. 200. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated the 9th March, 1803, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence adduced to establish a title.

No. 201. The notice of this claim is also accompanied by a plat of survey, by Stephen Justice, dated 5th April, 1803, and by no other document. No evidence adduced to establish a title.

No. 202. In this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Gabriel Winters, 21st August, 1806, and no other document. No evidence adduced to establish a title.

No. 203. A plat of survey, not signed by any surveyor, is filed in this claim. The authentic plat said to have been lost. Stephen Bullock, sworn and examined in this claim, at Concordia, the 4th March, 1809, in the presence of Richard Cocke, Esq., hath deposed, that in the latter part of the summer of 1804 he was on the land claimed, and had about ten acres under cultivation, and a cabin erected; that, from the appearance of the improvement, the deponent was of opinion a part of it must have been made the year before; and that on the 20th day of December, 1803, the claimant was over twenty-one years of age. The occupancy of the land in 1803 not positively established, and no evidence of permission has been offered.

No. 204. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 15th March, 1803, said to have been made by order of the commandant, Mr. Vidal. No evidence of this fact adduced except the declaration of the surveyor, nor any proof of occupancy.

No. 205. This notice is for the same tract of land, the title of which has been confirmed by certificate A, No. 243, to John Perkins, holding a deed under the grantee.

No. 206. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated in December, 1807, and no other document. No proof adduced to establish a title.

No. 207. The notice of this claim was filed with the Deputy Register at Rapides. From the figure of the plat and contents of the tract, it is doubtless for the same tract of land referred to under the preceding number.

No. 208. The notice of this claim was filed by Samuel S. Mahan, as agent for the claimant; it is accompanied by a plat of survey with the signature of Peter Walker, and in his hand-writing, and by the requête of the claimant, granted by Stephen Minor, signing himself as commandant at Concordia. The date of the requête, of the commandant's grant, and of the surveyor's certificate, have been erased and altered with ink of deeper color. The date of the commandant's grant it is believed was 1803; and it is altered to 1802. It is difficult to determine what the last figure originally was in the date of the surveyor's certificate; as now altered it is a 3. The examination of John Steel and John Walton has been taken in this claim, the former on the 16th of May, the latter on the 6th of June, 1806, before Samuel Brooks, Samuel Postlewaite, and Joseph Foreman, Esq. commissioned for that purpose by the Board of Commissioners. John Steel hath deposed, that, on the 9th December, 1803, he sent four men of his own and one of Mr. Samuel Postlewaite's up the river Mississippi in a skiff, and went himself by land to Mr. Hendersson's, on the 10th. He had the skiff carried from thence across by land and put into lake St. John; on the 11th he commenced improving the survey of eight hundred arpents graded him by Don Joseph Vidal. On the 13th December some of Colonel Sargent's people arrived, when he pointed out to them the proper place to commence an improvement upon his survey of eight hundred arpents, and which adjoins the deponent's survey on the southwest. On the same day, viz. 13th December, Colonel Sargent, John Walton, and some others in his employ, arrived at the camp of this deponent. Mr. Walton remained a day or two, then went down to the east end of the lake, (as he said,) and returned two days after. Colonel Sargent and this deponent continued with their people until the 23d December, when they had completed each a comfortable cabin, and had cut a considerable quantity of cane and timber, and on the evening of that day returned to Natchez. That in the month of February following he again went to lake St. John, with some of his people, whom he employed in cutting, clearing, and preparing for a crop; that Colonel Sargent's people were at that time employed in cutting and clearing on his survey before alluded to. About the 28th or 29th of April, 1804, Colonel Sargent, with some of his people, and the deponent, with some of his, went by water to lake St. John, entering through the bayou Argent, when they planted each a crop on their respective improvements. Colonel Sargent had cut down, and nearly cleared and fenced thirty-eight acres, most of which was planted and cultivated in corn and pumpkins. This deponent was again at the lake in the month of June, with his people, when Colonel Sargent's people, who had still remained there, had a very promising crop. Towards the latter end of September, 1804, he was on his plantation at the lake, when, with the assistance of Colonel Sargent's people, who had continued there, he made an improvement on the east bank of the lake, so as to include a black hickory corner to Colonel Sargent's survey of one thousand six hundred arpents on the north, and this deponent's survey of one thousand two hundred and twenty arpents on the south, both of which are claimed under a grant and survey made by order of Don Stephen Minor; which improvement was made for the mutual benefit of both claimants. The subsequent part of Colonel Steel's testimony relating to other claims, and not applying to the claim of Colonel Sargent under consideration, is not necessary to be inserted in this place. The testimony of John Walton corresponds with the relation of Colonel Steel, as to the improvements on the tracts of land claimed by Colonel Winthrop Sargent and Colonel Steel on the west side of lake St. John, but it is silent as to the claim on the east side, which is the claim under consideration.

No. 200. The notice of this claim was also filed by Mr. Mahan, as the agent of Colonel Steel. It is founded on similar documents to those filed in the claim of Colonel Sargent, signed by the commandant and surveyor, and which have undergone the same alterations in their dates. In the claim of Colonel Steel on lake St. John, the testimony of Winthrop Sargent and John Walton has been taken by commissioners as in the preceding claim, but relating only to the claim on the west side of the lake and to the claim under consideration. The insertion of their contents in this place is deemed unnecessary.

No. 210. This claim has been confirmed to the claimant, John Sims, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 449, under another entry made with the Deputy Register at Rapides. The notice only is filed in this, which was entered in Opelousas.

No. 211. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, dated 30th December, 1807, by Henry Cassidy. The examination of Abraham Yarrinton has been taken in this claim before William Lindsay, Esq., commissioned for that purpose by the Board of Commissioners, who hath deposed: That, in and about the year 1802, the claimant commenced his improvement on the land claimed, and built a camp and cleared land; that, in the year 1803, he planted and raised a crop of corn and pumpkins; that the claimants were in possession of the premises, either actual or virtual, from the year 1802 until this time. The witness further saith, that he has been informed that the claimant had permission to make the settlement by the proper officer. Neither occupancy nor permission satisfactorily established.

No. 212. The notice of this claim was filed with the Deputy Register at Rapides; from the quantity claimed, and the figure of the plat, it is doubtless for the same tract of land referred to under the preceding number.

No. 213. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a copy of a plat of survey; the authentic plat, and other documents of title, said to have been lost or mislaid. No evidence adduced in support of this claim.

No. 214. A deed of sale from David Jones to William Tanner, the only document filed in this claim. No evidence adduced to establish a title.

No. 215. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 2d September, 1803, giving a front of two miles on the Mississippi river, by the depth of only forty chains. The examination of Samuel Reed has been taken in this claim on the 10th September, 1811, before John Patterson, Esq. commissioned for that purpose by the Board of Commissioners; the said Reed deposing that he heard Joseph Vidal, who was then commandant of the post of Concordia, give permission to the said Taylor to take up and settle the aforesaid land in the fall of the year 1803; that the said Taylor went on the land in question, and was actually cultivating and inhabiting the same on the 20th day of December, 1803; and that the said Taylor was the head of a family. The confirmation is recommended.

No. 216. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 4th September, 1802, the only document of title filed in this claim. No evidence adduced in support of the claim.

No. 217. With the notice of this claim is filed the copy of a plat not signed by any surveyor. By the testimony of Michael Ward, Thomas Kincaid, Jeremiah Carney, and Edmonds Bruin, it is established that the land claimed was neither inhabited nor cultivated earlier than the spring of the year 1803.

No. 218. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Stephen Justice, dated 4th May, 1803, and certified to have been done with the approbation of Joseph Vidal, then commandant, &c. of Concordia. William Blackwell, a witness in this claim, before the Board, in September, 1810, hath deposed, that he, the deponent, was on the land in June, 1802, at the house of the claimant, where he was then residing, and had twelve or fifteen acres under cultivation, and believes that the claimant has continued to reside on the same ever since; that, from Antoine Carrol, who lives on an adjoining tract, the deponent has understood that the claimant had permission from the proper Spanish officer to settle on said land. John Welch, before Richard Schofield, a Justice of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, commissioned by the Board, hath deposed that Joseph Tuneau had permission from Joseph Vidal, then commandant of Concordia, to settle a tract of land on Tensaw waters, where he did settle in May, 1803, and continued to inhabit and cultivate the same, to the knowledge of the deponent, for three or four years after that time. No other evidence is adduced.

No. 219. A plat of survey, not signed by any surveyor, is the only document of title accompanying the notice of this claim. No evidence has been adduced to establish a right. It is believed that this claim has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1507, on an entry made with the Deputy Register at Rapides.

No. 220. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Gabriel Winters, deputy surveyor, in March, 1806, and giving upwards of two miles front along the bank of lake Concordia, and including six hundred and thirty-eight and fifty-three hundredths acres. No documents filed, nor is any testimony taken in the claim.

No. 221. A notice is only filed in this claim. The claim is founded on an order of survey, dated on the 21st of April, 1798, by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, then Governor of the province of Louisiana, to Joseph Vidal, late secretary of the Government at Natchez, conceding to the said Vidal a tract of eight hundred arpents, opposite to Natchez, and to each of his three children a tract not exceeding five hundred arpents. To the concession in favor of the father, of eight hundred arpents, was annexed a condition, that if the tract should embrace the landing opposite Natchez, it should so be laid out as to leave in the middle of the survey three arpents front, by at least the depth of twenty arpents, subject to the disposition of the Government, for a garrison, or to be laid out in lots for those residing at the landing or in the post of Natchez, who might choose to make it an asylum. The survey embracing the landing, the reservation was made in as stipulated, and the most part, if not the whole, subsequently appropriated in small lots to different individuals. Proof having been adduced of the occupancy and cultivation of the eight hundred arpents conceded to the father, and of a tract of four hundred and eighty arpents laid out to Daniel Vidal, these claims have been confirmed by certificate B, Nos. 1958 and 1959. There remains, therefore, the claims of the other two children, Joseph and Maria, each for five hundred arpents, which cannot be confirmed by the commissioners, because no proof of settlement has been adduced: but as no condition of settlement was annexed to the concession, the undersigned are of opinion these claims ought to be confirmed, and accordingly recommend their confirmation.

No. 222. Nothing but a notice is filed in this case, and which is supposed to be for the same land claimed in another entry, and confirmed to this claimant by commissioners' certificate B, No. 169.

No. 223. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 20th December, 1803, said to have been made by order of the then commandant, Don Joseph Vidal. The examination of William Sparks has been taken in this claim before John Patterson, Esq., commissioned for that purpose, and is as follows: That sometime in the summer of the year 1803 he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post, give permission to the said James Warren to take up and settle the aforesaid land; that the said Warren did, in the fall following, go upon the land in question, and cultivate and improve the same, and was in actual possession thereof on the 20th day of December, 1803; and that the said Warren was upwards of twenty-one years of age. The confirmation cannot be recommended, inasmuch as it is not established by the testimony that the land was actually inhabited by or for the claimant on the 20th December, 1803; or that it was the place of his permanent residence even prior to that time.

No. 224. No documents or other evidence of title adduced in this claim.

No. 225. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 13th June, 1803, and said to be made by the order of Don Joseph Vidal; the only document filed in the claim. No proof of occupancy adduced, &c. The declaration of the surveyor the only evidence of the commandant's approbation.

Nos. 226 and 227. Plats of survey by Henry Cassidy, one dated in December, 1807, the other in May, 1808, are the only documents filed in these claims. No evidence adduced in either to establish a title.

No. 228. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 4th April, 1803, and said to have been made by order of the then commandant, Don Joseph Vidal, of which fact the surveyor's declaration is the only evidence. No testimony adduced to establish occupancy.

No. 229. A plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 3d April, 1803, and said to have been made by order of the then commandant, Don Joseph Vidal, is the only document filed in this claim. No evidence adduced to establish a title.

No. 230. In this claim is filed a deed of conveyance from Wm. Barefield to John Willie, dated April 5, 1804, and said Willie's obligation to transfer the land to Stephen Lee. No other document. George Ritchie, examined on the 10th of November, 1810, before Robert Miller, Esq., Justice of the Peace, duly commissioned, has deposed, that he was on the land claimed some time in the month of August, 1803, for the first time, and saw Wm. Barefield and another person on the place at work, who had then about one acre of cane cut; that he was frequently there afterwards, and on the 20th day of December, 1803, when he found the same persons at work, who had about one acre or more of ground under fence, and turnips and other vegetables growing on it; and the said place has been inhabited and cultivated ever since. No evidence of permission to settle. This entry is believed to be for the same land claimed and reported under the next following number.

No. 231. A plat of survey by Gabriel Winters, dated 27th January, 1806, and a copy of a deed of sale from Wm. Barefield to the claimant, dated 8th February, 1806, are filed in this claim. John Malone, examined on oath before the Board of Commissioners, the first March, 1806, hath deposed, that W. Barefield, the former claimant, obtained a permit from Don Joseph Vidal to settle on any vacant land in the district of Concordia, between the Grand Gulf and post of Concordia; that he said claimant, in the month of August, 1803, went on the land, and commenced an improvement in the month of October of the same year; he removed back to the Mississippi Territory, and immediately sold the place to John Willie, the present claimant, who, in the month of November, employed a man to prosecute the improvement; and previous to the 20th day of December, a few acres of cane were cut down, and an indifferent cabin erected; that, in the month of March or April, 1804, the said claimant, with his family, settled on the land, and has continued to reside thereon ever since; has erected a good dwelling-house, several necessary out-houses, and cleared about twenty acres of land.

No. 232. No document of title has been filed with the notice of this claim. Charles Trammell, examined on oath, the 10th September, 1811, before John Patterson, hath deposed that, some time in the month of August, in the year 1803, he heard Joseph Vidal, then commandant of the post of Concordia, giving permission to the aforesaid Berryman Watkins to settle and take up the land in question; and that, at the same time, he (the deponent) heard the aforesaid commandant give permission to a certain Mr. Fenton, then a public surveyor, to survey and run out for said Watkins the said tract of land, which survey was accordingly made; that, some time in the fall of 1803 the said Watkins improved and cultivated the same, and was in actual possession of the land in question on the 20th December, 1803, and was the head of a family. By referring to the exposition of the reported No. 3, and to the deposition of David B. Morgan, in No. 65, the reasons of the undersigned commissioners will be seen for doubting the testimony of the witness in this claim, and rejecting oral testimony to establish a commandant's permission to settle lands.

No. 233. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Stephen Justice, dated 13th March, 1803, and certified to have been made by the order of Joseph Vidal, &c. The testimony of John Welch and Samuel Tanner, taken by Benjamin Howard and Robert Scofield, Justices of the Peace in the Mississippi Territory, under a commission from the Board, is to the following purport: John Welch hath deposed, that Richard Warren, a man over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family, was, to his knowledge, inhabiting and cultivating a tract of land, on the waters of Tensaw, by the permission of Joseph Vidal, in March, 1803, and that he continued to inhabit and cultivate the same for three years thereafter. Samuel Tanner states, that Richard Warren was, to his knowledge, actually inhabiting and cultivating a tract of land, on the waters of Tensaw, on the 20th of December, 1803, and before and after that time; that, at that time, he had about four acres under cultivation. The plat of survey above mentioned encloses only five hundred arpents, equal to about four hundred and twenty-three acres. No other evidence is adduced.

No. 234. No document or other evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 235. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated in December, 1807. The testimony of Jacob Huffman, taken before the Board the 16th of September, 1809, in the following words: That Thomas H. Woods settled on the land claimed in the spring of 1802, and raised a crop thereon the same year; the next year he removed therefrom, and put a man by the name of Gibson on the same, who has continued to reside thereon and cultivate same ever since for the claimant, who was on the 20th of December, 1803, over the age of twenty-one years and an inhabitant of Louisiana. The testimony of Ezekiel Williams and Patrick Ford, taken by William Lindsay, parish judge in Concordia, commissioned by the Board, is to the following purport: Ezekiel Williams hath deposed, that Thomas H. Woods, through the deponent, obtained permission from Joseph Vidal, in the summer of 1802, to settle on the land claimed; and that the same has been inhabited ever since. Patrick Ford says, that he has always understood, from the year 1802, that Thomas H. Woods, the claimant, had permission for making the settlement on the land claimed. No other evidence is adduced. The confirmation to six hundred and forty acres is recommended.

No. 236. The title for the tract of land claimed under this notice has been confirmed by the Board of commissioners to Thomas Wardle, deriving his right from John McClannahan, the original proprietor.

No. 237. With the notice of this claim is filed a letter from Peter Walker to George Regan, dated Natchez, 24th March, 1804, of which the following is an extract: "Mr. Winters having purchased McClannahan and Kinnard's land below you, is desirous of having the front ascertained; I therefore request of you to measure twenty-two acres, being the contents of two tracts, beginning at Reuben T. Sackett's lower corner; thence at right angles across the said two tracts, and from the end of that line to the river. Also twenty acres front below that for Mr. Winters, it being a tract promised him by Mr. Vidal a considerable time ago. Please send me the field notes," &c. Mr. Walker had been an authorized surveyor under the Spanish Government, and, from the purport of his letter, seems to have considered himself authorized even at this date to issue instructions for surveying. The latter paragraph of his letter seems to be relied on as evidence of the commandant's permission to settle the land: it is moreover stated in the notice of the claimant, that a grant or requête had been obtained from the commandant, and was lost or mislaid. Before Richard Cocke, Esq., at Concordia, the 27th of February, 1809, the examination of James Robinson was taken in this claim, who hath deposed, that in February, 1804, he was upon the land claimed, at which time the claimant was residing thereon in a cabin, and had about three or four acres of land cleared, and about a quarter of an acre planted in potatoes and other articles; that the claimant continued to reside there about ten days or a fortnight after the above-mentioned period, and was on the 20th of December, 1803, above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family. No testimony has been adduced to establish the occupancy of the land prior to the change of Government.

No. 238. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey executed by Gabriel Winters, dated 6th January, 1807, enclosing six hundred and thirty-eight and sixty-seven hundredths acres. A deed of conveyance from David Reid, and his wife Margaret, to William T. Voss, for six hundred and forty acres on bayou Concordia, dated 24th September, 1807, and another from said Voss and his wife to John B. Willis, the claimant, dated 10th October, 1807. Joseph Vidal, Esq., before the Board at Opelousas, on the 3d February, 1812, under oath, certifies that he gave permission to Margaret Reid to settle a tract of land in Concordia, on the Mississippi, previous to the 20th December, 1803, and believes she was residing in the district, on the land, at and previous to that time. James Wiley, in his testimony taken by Richard Cocke, Esq., at Concordia, in January, 1803, hath deposed, that at the request of David Reid, the deponent, in the early part of 1803, asked permission of Joseph Vidal to permit said Reid to settle on the land in question; that the permission was verbally granted, and in April or May of the same year said Reid commenced improving the place; cleared and planted three or four acres in corn, at which time said Reid resided with John Reid, adjoining the land claimed; and that no person had actually resided on the land prior to the month of November, 1804, when this deponent left that neighborhood; that said Reid was over twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family on the 20th December, 1803; and also that said Reid had some boards split on the land said to be for the covering of a cabin. The testimony of George Wiley, taken by Mr. Cocke, at the same time, agrees in substance with that of James Wiley: that David Reid lived with John Reid on an adjoining tract in 1803; that three or four acres were cleared and planted in corn by David Reid the same year, and that no person resided on the land prior to the month of November, 1804, when this deponent also left that neighborhood. Before Judge Brooks, of Natchez, commissioned by the Board for that purpose, William Roe hath deposed, that the land claimed by Margaret Reid was actually inhabited and cultivated by the said claimant on the 20th December, 1803, and that she was on that day an inhabitant of the Territory of Orleans. No other evidence is adduced. It is proper here to remark that a claim of four hundred and fifty-six arpents, equal to three hundred and eighty-five and ninety hundredths acres, on the Mississippi river, of which David Reid was the original claimant, as appears by the petition of said Reid, and sanctioned by Joseph Vidal, the 10th March, 1803, which has been confirmed to the heirs of Peter Walker by commissioner's certificate B, No. 183, under the settlement of said Reid, and is probably the settlement which Roe has allusion to in his testimony above stated. James and George Wiley both agree in their testimony that no settlement was made on the land claimed by this notice when they left that place in November, 1804, which testimony the commissioners have no reason to doubt; and as it appears one claim has been allowed under the settlement of Reid made in 1803, the commissioners cannot, under the laws and instructions, recommend the confirmation of this.

No. 239. A copy of a plat by Pedro Walker, dated in September, 1802, and a copy of the requête, signed by the commandant, of the same date, are filed in this claim. They are for the same tract of land, the title to which has already been confirmed on the original papers.

No. 240. The notice of this claim accompanied by no document or other evidence of title.

Impressed with a belief that it accorded with the policy and interest of the Government to advance, by every liberal and equitable means, the population of Louisiana, and tranquillize the minds of a people newly engrafted into the Union, by quieting them as early as possible in their just possessions, the undersigned commissioners, in their decisions on the land claims submitted to their investigation, have (so far as was deemed compatible with the acts of Congress in relation to those claims and their instructions) endeavored to act on principles favorable to the advancement of these objects. Hence, claims of the two following descriptions in the foregoing report are recommended for confirmation: 1st, claims resting on a requête, (written petition,) with a regular survey, sanctioned by a duly authorized commandant of the post, prior to the 20th December, 1803, and without testimony to establish occupancy. The reasons on which this recommendation is grounded are, that, under the laws and usages of the Spanish Government, no other document or evidence of claim seems to have been requisite to procure the completion of the title; and when these have been presented to the Governors of Louisiana, patents have been generally issued on them, without further formality, and, in some instances, without being accompanied by a plat of survey. It seems to have been the particular province of commandants under the Spanish Government to inquire into the pretensions of new settlers to occupy lands; to ascertain whether lands asked for were of the domain of the King, and might be granted without prejudice to prior occupants; to inquire as to the performance of conditions exacted by the Government; to recommend the quantity that might be conceded, and to judge, in some cases, of the expediency of granting. It is true that the Governors sometimes curtailed the quantity recommended by the commandants, and that, in some instances, they have rejected claims altogether. But it is also true that the quantity so recommended has, in some instances, been enlarged by the Governors, and has very rarely been objected to or abridged, especially when it did not exceed eight hundred arpents. It is believed that the nature of the document commonly denominated requête is less understood by the Government at present than any other species of title current in Louisiana; and, consequently, less validity has been allowed it than it is generally entitled to. It seems to be understood to mean nothing more than a petition or request (as the French word requete imports) of the claimant for permission to occupy land. In the requête the suppliant has usually made known the number of his family, and such other circumstances as, under the laws and usages of the Government, might have entitled him to expect a grant of the land, which, as to quantity, quality, and situation, is usually described. The commandant's certificate affixed to the requête is a verification of the facts exposed by the petitioner, to which he usually added that no objection to the granting of the land was known to exist; and sometimes in strong terms recommended a concession of the land, giving, for reasons, that it had been improved, used, or inhabited, and cultivated by the petitioner; or that it was so situated, as not to be useful to any other person; or that the applicant could not support his previous establishments (which may have been scarce of wood, &c.) without the land petitioned for; or that the land petitioned for had been before conceded, and the documents had been lost or destroyed; or that the party had purchased the land, and wished titles in his own name from the Government; and also, in some cases, engaging that the document should serve the party as a title in form until it might be convenient to procure a grant from the Government. Under this description of title alone, individuals in Louisiana have possessed and enjoyed lands many years, (in some instances more than half a century,) without, perhaps, ever having their rights questioned. Large tracts held under the same kind of title, and without having been inhabited or cultivated, have frequently been taken into the inventories of the estates of deceased persons, and disposed of at public sale by authorized officers of the Government, or divided among the representatives of the deceased. Under all the circumstances, the instrument in question is indiscriminately denominated a requete. From a conviction that the foregoing, among other usages, have been sufficient to establish, in most cases, the validity of titles held under requêtes; and from a belief that, under the provisions of the act of Congress of the 3d of March, 1807, the commissioners were not only authorized, but bound, to respect those usages, the opinion of the undersigned, in regard to that species of title, has been formed. If their constructions of the law have been deemed too lax, and calculated to risk the confirmation of a few doubtful claims, they can only plead that they have been actuated from pure intentions and a strong impression that their principles were founded in equity and good policy. The second class of claims recommended for confirmation in the foregoing report, comprising such as it has not been in the power of the claimants to establish, were settled by written permission of the proper Spanish authority, but which, from oral testimony adduced, are proven to have been settled and cultivated, by or for the use of the claimants, on and prior to the 20th December, 1803; and, from the nature and extent of the improvements, at and subsequent to that date, appear to have been designed as places of permanent residence. The particular reasons assigned for this recommendation may be seen in the reported No. 3. From the great length of time which has elapsed since, most of the claims in the district have been filed with the Register.

The state of suspense experienced by claimants in consequence of the delay; the enhanced value of some tracts of land, the improvements on which, though in considerable at the change of Government, have since been augmented to considerable importance by proprietors who confided in the validity of their titles; the embarrassment and ruin in which the families of many unwary purchasers would certainly have been involved by a too rigid construction of the laws—were considerations which to the undersigned seemed to merit some attention. Much inconvenience and difficulty have been experienced by claimants in procuring testimony to establish their rights. The Board of Commissioners had no power to compel the attendance of witnesses, and, when any attendance has been procured from remote situations, it could not fail to be accompanied by heavy expenses on the claimants. As much indulgence, therefore, has been allowed by the Board as seemed to comport with the justice due to the Government; by granting commissions to take the examination of witnesses who did not reside within the district, or, if resident within it, were unable to attend by reason of age, bodily infirmity, or other reasonable impediments. When commissions have issued, judges of courts, or persons in the commission of the peace, have generally been selected to take the examination of witnesses; but it has sometimes happened that the persons authorized to take testimony have not been personally known to the Board, and the characters of the witnesses known but in very few instances. It may be proper to remark, that testimony taken in this way has sometimes been contradictory, and generally much less satisfactory than that obtained by the examination of a witness in person before the Board. Notice having been taken in the reported No. 3 of a letter from Joseph Vidal, Esq. to the Board of Commissioners; it has been deemed proper to give transcripts of that letter, and one of a subsequent date from the same person, which are accordingly subjoined to this report. The undersigned beg leave to refer to the exposition of the reported No. 43 for the form which has been adopted in the confirmation of claims founded on settlement rights, unaccompanied by any original document of title which might have controlled their shapes, and for the reasons on which their opinions have been founded, presuming that they may be deemed worthy of consideration in the event of a confirmation of any claims of that description by Congress.

WILLIAM GARRAD,
LEVIN WALES,
GIDEON FITZ, } Commissioners.

By order of the Board:

LLOYD POSEY, Clerk.

Signed in duplicates, one whereof to be transmitted to the Commissioner of the General Land Office in the Treasury Department of the United States, and the other to be deposited in the Register's office for this district. [In the original report these words precede the signatures of the commissioners.]

NATCHEZ, October 21, 1811.

GENTLEMEN:

The frequent applications which have been made to me for certificates and affidavits, particularly of late, to prove my having formerly, when commandant of the post of Concordia, given verbal permissions to persons making application for lands, has induced me to address you on that subject. It might be nearly or quite sufficient, at the present stage of the business in the Land Office, to inform you that the verbal permissions given by me did not in the whole number exceed five or six, at the most. Those were given to actual settlers, and may be easily proved. It is true, indeed, that some few persons who had obtained written permissions may, through accident, have lost them; but there can be but very few in this situation, compared with the probable number of those who pretend to have lost them, either for the purpose of evading the necessity of paying the surveyor's fees, which they ought not to be permitted to do; or, more generally, in order to procure, under one of the provisions of the laws of Congress on the subject, a greater quantity of land than they had procured permission from me to have, and greater than their surveys and permissions called for. In evidence of this supposition, they are now, I am informed, in the country, a considerable number of land titles which never have been entered in the office, although I am informed that the grantees have filed claims in the office, and expect to have them confirmed, in virtue of the provisions in the laws above referred to. It will strike the minds of the gentlemen of the Board, that, from my being able, perhaps, in most instances, to recollect the names of the persons who received permissions from me for lands, and not being able, from the length of time and other causes which have intervened, to call to my remembrance the quantity granted, if I permitted myself to give certificates to those who apply for them, my testimony might be perverted, or so applied as to secure to claimants larger tracts of land than they formerly received permission for. This would enable those whose claims may be confirmed for too much land to encroach on the just rights of their neighbors, to throw the country into confusion, and produce an endless train of lawsuits and expense. Such would be the consequence of my certifying that any claimants (even those who had bona fide permissions for lands) had permission from me, unless I could also recollect the exact quantity granted, or that fact could be otherwise actually ascertained. That such should be the result of any thing I might say on the subject I should extremely regret. Every concession of lands in Concordia which was made by me was made bona fide, and with the most just and upright intentions. No tract of land was intended to be granted except to those who it was believed would make useful citizens in an infant settlement, which was begun and prosecuted in a very fertile part of the province in pursuance of the express wish of the Government, or to those who had, on account of services rendered, or for other good reasons, a just and equitable claim on the bounty of the Government. The lands were all disposed of to the people with great regard to order and regularity, and the titles were made out very carefully and correctly, so far as they were perfected. That any thing I should now and unofficially say or do should disturb a system, to the formation and creation of which I devoted so much care and attention, would be to me cause of the most lasting regret. I would, however, not be understood by any of the above observations to insinuate that all, or the greater part, even of those who have applied to me, particularly within a short time past, ever did have any permission from me to occupy lands in Concordia. Such is not the fact, nor did they ever apply; had they done so, they could not have obtained permission. Some of those persons were very justly extremely obnoxious to the Spanish Government, and could not have been permitted to continue within its limits as citizens. The circumstances which have suggested the above remarks will, I trust, sufficiently apologize to the gentlemen of the Board for my troubling them with this letter.

I am, gentlemen, most respectfully,
Your obedient servant,

J. VIDAL.

P. S. I did not intend to particularize in this statement any individual claims, but two or three instances have occurred to me, which, if the claimants are successful, will be productive of so much injury and injustice, that I think it proper to specify them to you. There never was intended to be, nor could there have been, thirty acres of land granted to Zerban, or any other person, at the town lately incorporated at the post of Concordia. That tract of land was always intended to be laid off in small lots of two or three acres, for the accommodation of those who owned lots in the town which had been previously laid off. The persons whose names are Preslers, and who claim lands near Fort Adams, never had, as I believe, any permission for lands in the parish; certainly, they had none from any competent authority. By direction of the Governor Gayoso, in an official letter now in possession of Dr. Carmichael, I not only gave them no permission for lands, but ordered them to leave the parish. If they should succeed in holding their lands, they deprive some of the fairest claimants of their grants, as all the land they claim was regularly granted to others.

J. VIDAL.

was held between me and them. But it is now brought to my recollection, from a number of circumstances, that Charles Collins, Jun., who was interpreter at the fort, Henry Eaton, Bernard Medcalf, James Tanner, Frederick Smith, and Thomas Woods, must have been settled there previous to the delivery of the country to the United States, and I am induced to believe that they had my permission for so doing.

I have the honor to remain, gentlemen,
Your most obedient servant,

J. VIDAL.

To the Honorable the BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS for the western district of the Territory of Orleans.

HONORABLE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS.

LAND OFFICE, WESTERN DIST. OF LOUISIANA,

December 14, 1812.

GENTLEMEN:

I have been applied to by a number of persons settled nearly opposite the Walnut Hills, county of Concordia, respecting their permissions of settlement, circumstances, and several things related to me concerning their settlement. I have been brought to mind that I did not recollect, when I wrote you some time ago, neither could I now, to mention with propriety the persons entitled to those claims. I know, however, that in order to accommodate those persons who had been attached in some measure to the Spanish Government at Nogales, now called the Walnut Hills, I gave permission for a settlement on the opposite side; and, as it was about one hundred miles distant from my post, little intercourse

The undersigned commissioners, appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the rights of persons to lands within the district aforesaid, have the honor to report, in continuation, the following list of claims to the lands within the county of Washita; classing the same agreeably to the order observed in their report made on the 16th of October, 1812, of claims in the county of Concordia; to which they beg leave to refer.

To the HON. ALBERT GALLATIN,
Secretary of the Treasury Department, United States.

Remarks on the foregoing list of land claims in the county of Washita, with reference to the reported numbers.

No. 1. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey by J. McLaughlin, dated 2d September, 1802, made by permission of the syndic pro tem. of the district, and by no other document or evidence of title.

No. 2. No document or other evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

No. 3. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated the 10th October, 1807, the only document or evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

No. 4. The plat of survey filed in this case shows it to be the same tract claimed in the preceding number. One entry having been made with the Deputy Register, at Rapides, and the other with the Register, at Opelousas. No proof or evidence of title.

No. 5. A deed of sale from Joseph Coupell to the claimant, dated 23d April, 1807, the only document or evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

No. 6. The deed of sale filed in the claim referred to, under the preceding number, the only evidence of title in this.

No. 7. No document or other evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

No. 8. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 10th June, 1808, the only document or evidence of title filed in support of this claim.

No. 9. A plat of survey by William Darby, without date, to which is attached a deed of sale from Henry Coulter to the claimant, dated the 12th September, 1805, are the only documents or evidence of title filed in this claim.

No. 10. In this claim is filed a royal order, or the King's permission, in favor of Bryan Bruin and two other persons, expressed in a memorial alluded to, "to go and settle on any vacant land in Louisiana, dated at Madrid, on the 14th July, 1787. This order having been directed to the Governors of the then province of Louisiana, without specifying the quantity of land to which the persons in whose favor it was granted were to be entitled, it is presumable that it was left for the Governor to allot them the quantity of land usually granted at that time, and with the customary conditions, to have the land surveyed, to occupy it, and cultivate a certain portion, &c. of the land, having been so allotted or granted, or of the occupancy, &c., anterior to the change of Government. There has been no evidence adduced to the Board of Commissioners.

No. 11. The notice of this claim is not accompanied by any documents of title, nor is it supported by any proof of occupancy.

No. 12. The following documents of title are filed in this claim. First, plat of survey, and certificate of Carlos Trudeau, then Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, bearing date the 24th November, 1787, setting forth that the survey was made, and possession given to François de Castro, in pursuance of a concession from the Spanish Government to the said François, bearing date the 9th of August, 1787, for a tract of four leagues in front, by one league in depth (twenty-seven thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven and seven-ninths superficial arpents,) on the river or bayou Bœuf, about half a league above its junction with the river Washita. Secondly, a certificate under the signature of Andrew Lopez Armesto, late Secretary of the Government, dated at New Orleans, the 15th May, 1804, stating that whilst he acted as Secretary, Estevan Miro, then Governor, &c., conceded, on the 9th of August, 1787, to François de Castro, a tract of land of four leagues in front on the right bank of the river Le Bœuf in ascending, by the depth of one league, and about half a league above the confluence of the said river and the river Washita, bounded by vacant land at the date of the concession. Thirdly, a certified copy of a deed of conveyance, executed 24th day of November, 1802, before Vincent F. Texeiro, then commandant of the post of Washita, by which Charles Frederick Racine conveys to Louis Badins the tract of land above described; in which conveyance is comprised a declaration that the said tract of land was purchased by the said Charles Frederick, and transferred to him by François de Castro, the original proprietor and occupant, by deed bearing date the 11th of March, 1801, and recorded in the post of Washita. Of the existence of the grant in this claim, the Board of Commissioners have no other evidence than that contained in the certificates of the late Surveyor General and the Secretary of the province of Louisiana, in which no notice is taken of the kind of title vested in the said François de Castro. No proof has been offered to establish occupancy. Presuming that (like most or all large concessions of land in Louisiana by the Spanish Government) this grant must have been made with some conditions to be performed by the grantees, from which the Government expected to derive advantages, and which possibly might have been ascertained if the grant had been adduced; the undersigned commissioners, with no other than the vague information acquired from documents filed in the claim, are constrained to report it as one which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 13. In this claim is filed the certificate of Mr. Filhiol, at the time of its date commandant of the post of Washita, to this effect: That in the year 1797, Charles Betin obtained an order of survey for four and a half arpents front on each side of the bayou Siard, adjoining land which said Betin purchased from Jacob Stroop; and that the land had been surveyed by James Mc-

Laughlin. A plat of survey and certificate by said McLaughlin, and dated the 26th of October, 1800, is also filed; this plat embraces eight hundred and forty arpents, and, according to the surveyor's certificate, comprises four hundred and eighty arpents, purchased from Stroop, leaving three hundred and sixty arpents, equal to four and a half arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on each side of the bayou, the tract conceded to Betin. The said James McLaughlin, sworn in this claim before the Board, on the 24th of February, 1806, hath deposed, that in the year 1801 he was the bearer to the Surveyor General's office, in New Orleans, of the two orders of survey for eight hundred and forty arpents of land, one in favor of Jacob Stroop, the other Charles Betin, to have the titles perfected; that he is satisfied they have never been returned; that a settlement was made on the land by Jacob Stroop, in the year 1794; that it has been inhabited and cultivated ever since; and that the improvements about the year 1800 consisted of about thirty acres of cleared land, with necessary buildings. The witness not having explained whether the clearing and cultivation had been extended to both parts of the tract, the undersigned commissioners have only supposed themselves authorized to confirm the part purchased of Stroop, of four hundred and eighty arpents; but both having been included in one survey, made for the claimant as early as the year 1800, it is not probable that both may have been under cultivation; and being held under orders of survey, they recommend the confirmation of title to the tract of three hundred and sixty arpents, being four and a half arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on both sides of the bayou.

No. 14. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by James McLaughlin, dated 15th June, 1804, with a deed regularly executed from Baron de Bastrop to the claimant, dated 3d May, 1805. No other document nor any proof of settlement adduced.

No. 15. The documents filed in this claim are similar to those in the preceding one, except that the first deed from Baron de Bastrop, dated 3d May, 1805, is to John Conster, who, for the consideration of four hundred dollars, by deed dated the 24th of November, conveys to the present claimant; the plat of survey is dated the 14th June, 1804. No proof of occupancy adduced.

No. 16. The undersigned commissioners have compared the documents of title filed in this claim, with the translation of them in pages 67, 68, and 69 of the appendix to the book entitled "Land Laws, &c.," and find the said translation to be correct so far as it goes. The certificate, or proces-verbal, which the Surveyor General has annexed to his plat, not appearing in said book, a translation of that document, together with a copy of the plat, is transmitted for the further elucidation of the claim. No oral or other testimony has been adduced before the Board to establish the occupancy of any part of these lands, or that there has been a compliance upon the part of the grantee with the conditions stipulated in the contract, except the certificate under date of the 5th of August, signed by Gilbert Leonard and Manuel Armirez, to the translation of which, in page 69 of the appendix of said book, the commissioners beg leave to refer. The undersigned have observed a remark in the 25th page of the introductory part of the book entitled "Land Laws," that no patent has issued in the claim under consideration. With great deference for that authority, the undersigned commissioners cannot but be of opinion that the instrument under date of the 20th June, 1797, is a patent, (or what was usually in Louisiana denominated a title in form,) transferring to the Marquis de Maison Rouge the title in as full and ample a manner as lands were usually granted by the Spanish Government; subject, however, to the conditions stipulated in his contract with the Government. The plat of survey above referred to will be found subjoined to this report.

No. 17. In this claim is filed a copy of a plat of survey by James McLaughlin, dated November 1, 1802, which he certifies to have been made with the approbation of the syndic of the district, and a copy of a deed of sale annexed to the said plat, from Patrick Fynn to the present claimant, Wm. Campbell, dated January 7, 1805. No evidence has been adduced to establish occupancy, &c.

No. 18. No document or evidence of title adduced in support of this claim. Two claims have been confirmed in the name of Laurence Caveat, each for two hundred and forty arpents; one on an order of survey in favor of François Caveat, and the other on settlement and occupancy. See commissioners' certificates B, Nos. 413 and 414.

No. 19. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated the 7th of August, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. The deposition of Nicholas Foquet, taken before the Board the 23d of May, 1812, states that the land claimed has been inhabited and cultivated, without intermission, for the last fifteen years; but in consequence of a claim having already been confirmed to the claimant under settlement, as appears from the preceding number, this must be rejected.

No. 20. The notice of this claim is not accompanied by any document or other evidence of title.

No. 21. In this claim is filed a plat by James McLaughlin, who, in his explanatory certificate, dated the 1st of June, 1805, remarks, that it comprises one-half of a tract of four hundred arpents, which he formerly surveyed for Thomas Lasada, of that place, who had, by deed on the records of the county of Washita, conveyed the same to the claimant. The plat and certificate of the surveyor is the only document accompanying the notice of this claim. No proof of occupancy offered.

No. 22. This appears to be a duplicate of the claim reported under No. 19; one was entered at the Register's Office, Opelousas, the other with the Deputy Register at Rapides. No proof of occupancy.

No. 23. With the notice of this claim is filed an informal deed of sale, executed before private witnesses, and not recorded, from George Stewart to the claimant, William Dawson, dated October 15, 1803, and no other document or evidence of title.

No. 24. The notice of this claim is accompanied by a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, a deputy surveyor, dated the 9th of June, 1808, and a declaration made by John Bonaventure before Henry Bry, then judge of the parish of Washita, dated the 22d of June, 1808, to this effect: "that the expositor, in the years 1787 and 1788, knew the claimant, François Duvall, to be residing on and cultivating a tract of land in the prairie Chappelle-rault, and that he never knew the said Duvall was a hunter by trade, but always knew him to be a farmer." Whether this declaration was made under the solemnity of an oath is not known to the present commissioners; they are persuaded that it was not made under any authority from the former Board, nor is it in the power of the Board to ascertain from the plat whether it embraces the land described in this declaration. No other documents or evidence has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 25. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by James McLaughlin, dated June 13, 1804, with a deed of sale from Baron de Bastrop to the claimant, dated July 27, 1805. No proof of occupancy has been adduced.

No. 26. The claimant has made known that the original title-papers on which this claim is founded have been lost or mislaid. Certified copies of the requête, order of survey, and plat of survey, under the hand of Carlos Trudeau, then Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, (whose certificate is dated in January, 1802,) have been filed to supply the want of the original papers. The order of survey, said to be signed by Manuel Gayoso de Leños, then Governor of the province, the 18th of September, 1797, conceding, besides the tract of four hundred and eighty superficial arpents, an extensive adjacent cypress swamp. No evidence of the occupancy of this land has been adduced.

No. 27. The order of survey, of which the copy has been referred to in the preceding claim, is the instrument by which has been conceded the cypress swamp claimed under this notice. The contents of this swamp is neither given in the plan nor expressed in the order of survey. Measuring that plat from the scale by which it appears to have been delineated with as much accuracy as could be applied in the measurement of any irregular figure, not seeming to have been projected from any courses and distances resulting from actual survey, this swamp appears to contain more than twenty thousand arpents, and consequently exceeds the jurisdiction of the Board of Commissioners, which is limited to the area of one league square. From the petition of the claimant, on which the order of survey is granted, both this swamp and the adjacent tract of four hundred and eighty arpents seem to have been conceded as a remuneration for his services to the Government and public, as commandant of the district. The claim is believed to be just; but, in recommending its confirmation, the undersigned are unable to decide on the quantity of land to which the claimant is entitled.

No. 28. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, executed by McLaughlin, October 22, 1800, for a tract of eight hundred arpents, ten arpents front by forty deep, on each side of the Washita river, at Fort Miro, and no other document or evidence of title.

No. 29. No written or other evidence of title adduced in this claim.

No. 30. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated the 5th of November, 1807. No other document or proof adduced.

No. 31. A plat by Henry Cassidy, dated December 5, 1807, is the only document filed in this claim. No evidence has been offered.

No. 32. This is an entry made with the Register at Opelousas, and appears to be a duplicate of a claim entered with the Deputy Register at Rapides, which has been confirmed to the heirs of Pierre Chason.

No. 33. In this claim the following documents are filed: A deed of sale from Baron de Bastrop to Mordecai Richards, executed at New Orleans the 8th of October, 1804, with a condition that the purchaser shall settle, or cause the land to be settled, &c. A deed from Mordecai Richards (executed on the same day that he received the title from Baron de Bastrop) to William Dewees, for the consideration of eight hundred dollars, and with the condition of settlement as in the conveyance from Bastrop. A deed of sale from the agent of William Dewees, dated July 2, 1805, in which, for the consideration of one thousand dollars, the title to the present claimant is warranted generally against all claims whatever. And a plat of survey and certificate for Mordecai Richards, by James McLaughlin, dated in 1802. This date can only be accounted for, on the supposition that Richards may have contracted for the purchase of this land several years before it was conveyed to him. No evidence of the settlement of the said land has been adduced.

No. 34. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 14th June, 1808, the only document or evidence of title in this claim.

No. 35. No written or other evidence of title filed in this claim. From the name, and the quantity of land claimed, it is believed that the notice is for the same person and same tract of land referred to under the preceding number. This was filed by an agent with the Register at Opelousas; the other with the Deputy Register at Rapides.

No. 36. A plat of survey by James McLaughlin, said to have been made by the approbation of the syndic of the district, the 24th of October, 1802. The only document or evidence of title adduced in this claim.

No. 37. In this claim is filed a plat of survey by James McLaughlin, made by the approbation of the syndic of the district, the 23d October, 1802. No other document or evidence of title.

No. 38. In a deed of sale filed in this claim from Thomas Lasada to the claimant, dated 9th January, 1804, this tract of land is represented as being the same which was sold and conveyed to Lasada by Alexander Ovallett, by deed on the records of the post of Washita, bearing date the 5th of January, 1803. Neither the last-mentioned deed, nor any other document or evidence, has been adduced from which the undersigned might judge of the merits of this claim.

No. 39. No written or other evidence of title adduced in this claim.

No. 40. No original documents of title have been filed in this claim. The certified copies of certain papers entered with the Register have been compared with the translation of them, in pages 70, 71, and 72, of the appendix to the book entitled "Land Laws," to which the undersigned commissioners beg leave to refer.—Having discovered no material difference, except in the date of the grant by Baron de Carondelet, which, according to the copy furnished for the information of the commissioners, should be on the 20th day of June, 1797, and not 20th of June, 1796, as printed in the said book, it will be seen that the documents which appear from page 72 to 74 of the same appendix relate to this claim. Of their authenticity the commissioners can express no opinion; the originals, from which these appear to be translations, not having been filed with the Register.—Other title-papers in this claim have been filed with the Register, and laid before the Board, which do not appear in the book referred to. They are a certified copy of a plat of survey, with a certificate annexed, bearing date the 14th day of June, 1797, and said to have been signed by Carlos Trudeau, then Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, a copy of which will be found subjoined to this report. A certified copy of a deed of sale from Baron de Bastrop to Abraham Moorhouse, dated at Washita, the 25th January, 1804, for two undivided thirds of the twelve leagues square of land, conceded to the said baron by the Spanish Government; the consideration for which transfer of title, as expressed in the deed, being three hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with interest, &c. which the said Moorhouse had recovered in suit instituted by him in the court of Danville district, in the State of Kentucky, against the said baron, for his non-performance of a former contract; and some other copies of deeds of conveyance, of a previous date, which passed between the said baron and the claimant, and which were not introduced because of their conveying a title, (for they are conveyances of the whole grant, in the year 1799, from the baron to the claimant, and a recession in the year 1800,) but as proof that the Spanish functionaries, before whom those deeds were passed, respected the title of the baron, and admitted his right to alienate it. The claimant in his notice has referred to some other judicial proceedings in relation to the land in question, to wit, that, in the year 1801, the Baron de Bastrop executed a mortgage of the grant before Peter Pedesclaux, then a notary public in the city of New Orleans; that this mortgage was afterwards foreclosed in the Governor's Court, and also, after the change of Government, in the Supreme Court of the Territory; that an execution issued, and a part of the land was sold to satisfy the judgment. These transactions seem to be greatly relied on as evidence that the title in the baron was complete, and that the Government had no lien on the land. The undersigned commissioners do not attach so much importance to them, imagining that lands held under conditional titles may be mortgaged, as well as fee-simple estates, and that, in foreclosing a mortgage, it is not usual to investigate the title of the mortgager. The quantity of land which, by the most favorable construction of the title, the claimant might hold under his purchase from the Baron de Bastrop, has been greatly exaggerated. It is stated at 773,376 arpents, which is erroneously computed to be two-thirds of 1,016,064 arpents. It will be readily perceived that 773,376 is two-thirds of 1,160,064, and that the error may have arisen from a transposition of figures. But it should also be noticed that 1,016,064 arpents are more than the area of twelve leagues square, unless eighty-four arpents be allowed to the league, which is sometimes spoken of, perhaps, to avoid the mention of fractions, but seldom, if ever, employed in land measure. Besides, it is known, from the certificate of the Surveyor General, that, in this case, the measure of Paris, which gives two thousand five hundred toises, equal to eighty-three and one-third arpents to the league, was employed. By this measure, twelve leagues square will contain, within a very small fraction, (less than a one-thousandth part of an arpent,) one million of superficial arpents, equal to about eight hundred and forty-six thousand two hundred and eighty-one American acres, at which, for the sake of round numbers, it may be computed. Two-thirds of this quantity, six hundred and sixty-six thousand six hundred and sixty-six and two-thirds arpents, is therefore the utmost to which this claim can be extended. It appears that the Baron de Bastrop, by his contract with the Spanish Government, was held bound to establish five hundred emigrant families within the twelve leagues square of land for which he had petitioned; and that to each of these families four hundred superficial arpents (making, altogether, two hundred thousand arpents) were to have been appropriated, gratis. Should the title of the baron to any part of the said twelve leagues square be recognized as valid, it is believed it could only be for the residue after deducting these two hundred thousand arpents with which it seems to have been intended to entrust him, for the benefit of others. Whether any families have been established on these two hundred thousand arpents of land, pursuant to the contract of Baron de Bastrop with the Spanish Government, anterior to the cession of Louisiana to the United States, the undersigned commissioners had no proof nor information, except what is contained in the grant of the Baron de Carondelet, of the 20th June, 1797; in which it is declared that Baron de Bastrop had commenced the establishment of Washita; and the assertions of the present claimant, Abraham Moorhouse, in the written notice of his claim, "that the settlement was going forward with great alacrity, and a number of families introduced, agreeably to the terms of the contract, when the letter of office of the Governor issued, suspending the settlement."—Should the title of said Abraham Moorhouse be adjudged valid to the two-thirds of twelve leagues square, under the transfer of Baron de Bastrop, it will necessarily follow that the two hundred thousand arpents must be taken from the claim to the remaining third part.—Without having been furnished with any of the original documents of title, and with no other evidence of the occupancy of the land or performance of conditions on which the completion of the title of Baron de Bastrop was made to depend than that above recited, the undersigned commissioners are constrained to class this among the claims which, in their opinion, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 41. The plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated the 7th November, 1807, induces a belief that the claim is for the same land claimed by Abraham Moorhouse, in his notice, Register, No. 54, which next follows in this report. Both notices are entered at Opelousas; this by Charles M. Lawson, for the claimant; and the succeeding one by J. M. McLaughlin; the first on the 30th June, 1808, and the latter on the 24th of February, 1806. Nothing but the notice and plat is filed, and no proof of occupancy. From the plat of survey filed in the claim entered in the name of John Hughes, for one thousand nine hundred and forty-six and thirty-four hundredths acres, and confirmed to the heirs of Pierre Charon by commissioners' certificate B, No. 2080, it is evident that said claim of one thousand nine hundred and forty-six and thirty-four hundredths acres is a part of the land claimed by Moorhouse under this entry. This tract of one thousand nine hundred and forty-six and thirty-four hundredths acres is laid out on the upper side of bayou Siard, being bounded by the said bayou on the south, and the Washita river on the west. Consequently, if the claim of Moorhouse can be confirmed at all, it should be only for one thousand nine hundred and seventy-five and ninety-six hundredths acres, being the residue of the tract after deducting the part which has been confirmed to the heirs of Pierre Charon.

Nos. 42, 43, and 44. With notice, Register, No. 54, reported under these three numbers, is filed an order of survey in favor of John Pierre Landerneau, for ten arpents front, with the ordinary depth, fronting on the east bank of the river Washita, dated the 27th June, 1788, under the signature of Estevan Miro, then Governor of the province of Louisiana; also a deed of conveyance from said John Pierre Landerneau to the Baron de Bastrop, dated the 3d of November, 1800, for ten arpents front, with the customary depth, setting forth that the tract conveyed is the same on which the seller then resided, and always had resided. This is supposed to be the same tract conceded by the above order of survey. The mention of residence in the deed, which passed before the commandant of the post of Washita, is thought to be strong evidence in favor of the claim to four hundred arpents. The commissioners, therefore, recommend the confirmation of this much of the claim. A formal deed of conveyance, passed before the commandant of the post, from Michael Le Villain to the Baron de Bastrop, dated the 27th January, 1801, for two tracts, each of ten arpents front, with forty in depth, and situate on opposite sides of the bayou Siard, and fronting each other, is likewise filed, together with a deed of conveyance from the Baron de Bastrop to the present claimant, dated 25th January, 1804, containing the following expressions: "beginning at the lower corner of John Pierre Landerneau's plantation, on the bank of the river Washita, and running up said river, and binding thereon, to the mouth of the bayou Siard; thence, running up the said bayou Siard, and binding thereon so as to include the plantation bought of Chapell, and to extend all the way back from the river Washita at least forty acres, and also all the land said Bastrop holds fronting on the upper side of the said Bayou Siard, by forty acres deep, together with all the improvements, &c., except the mill." No evidence is before the Board respecting the occupancy of these lands, except what is above stated. No plat of survey is filed, but the boundaries expressed in the last mentioned deed would make it appear that the land claimed under this notice is the same claimed in the notice reported under No. 41.

No. 45. A plat of survey by James McLaughlin, dated 2d November, 1802, and made by the approbation of the syndic of the district. The only document or evidence of title filed in support of this claim.

No. 46. This claim, entered at Opelousas, appears to be a duplicate of one entered with the Deputy Register at Rapides, which has been confirmed by the Board. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated the 6th of November, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice. No proof of any kind.

No. 47. Nothing but the notice filed, which sets forth that the claim is founded on a donation from the King of Spain to the Baron de Bastrop.

No. 48. This claim is entered with the Register at Opelousas, and appears, from the plat, to be for the same land for which a claim was entered with the Deputy Register at Rapides, and confirmed to the heirs of John Price by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1991. The plat, made by Henry Cassidy, bears date 4th November, 1807. No proof of any kind has been taken in this.

No. 49. In this claim is filed a deed of conveyance from the Baron de Bastrop to the claimant, dated 27th July, 1805. No proof of occupancy or other document. A plat of survey by Nicholas Merewether, dated 19th July, 1805, embracing the land claimed by this notice, is connected with the plat filed in the next following number.

No. 50. The documents filed in this claim are similar to, and of the same date as, the last preceding number. No proof of any kind adduced.

No. 51. A plat by Henry Cassidy, dated 27th May, 1808. The only document or evidence of title filed in this claim.

No. 52. In this claim is filed two depositions, one by Alexander Moreau, and the other by Mathias Richard; which depositions were taken before Alexander Breard, then Justice of Peace in the county of Washita, stating that they assisted Mordecai Richards in settling on a tract of land of four hundred and eighty arpents in said county, in June, 1803. A plat of survey by J. McLaughlin, dated 23d March, 1803, enclosing four hundred arpents, and made for the claimant, is also filed. The said surveyor certifying, under the plat of survey, that it was made in presence of the syndic and neighbors of the place. No other evidence has been offered in the claim.

No. 53. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, by J. McLaughlin, for George Stewart, dated 10th December, 1802; a deed of sale from Alexander Laurence to George Stewart, executed before Mr. Filhiol, then commandant of the district, dated 15th January, 1803; and a deed of sale from said Stewart to James McLaughlin, duly executed, and recorded in the office of the parish judge of Washita, bearing date the 10th day of March, 1806. No evidence has been adduced to establish the occupancy of the land.

No. 54. In this claim is filed a formal deed of conveyance from Baron de Bastrop to William O'Connor, dated at Washita, 11th day of November, 1805, in which it is declared that the land is conveyed to the said O'Connor, in consequence of his having emigrated from the United States to settle on the land by engagement with the said baron, and in consideration of the sum of one dollar paid by said O'Connor to said Bastrop, who conveys four hundred arpents of land situate on the left bank of bayou Bartlemi, as represented by a plat of survey made by J. McLaughlin, dated 7th November, 1805, which is filed in the claim. Also a formal general warranty deed from the said O'Connor to George Stoop, dated 17th March, 1806, for the same tract, in consideration of fifty dollars received in hand from the purchaser, who engages to pay the balance, three hundred and ninety dollars, in one and two years next following. No proof of occupancy adduced.

No. 55. A plat of survey by Henry Cassidy, dated 19th November, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof of occupancy.

No. 56. In this claim the documents are similar to the preceding one, and of the same date. No proof of any kind adduced.

No. 57. In this claim is filed a formal conveyance from Baron de Bastrop to Joseph Segars, dated in July, 1805, in consideration of the said Segars, with his family, having long resided at Washita, and the said Bastrop having formerly directed four hundred acres of land to be laid off for him, which should be settled and cultivated by said Segars, together with one dollar being paid by Segars to the Baron de Bastrop, a plat of survey by J. McLaughlin, dated 8th June, 1804; and a deed of conveyance from the said Segars to the present claimant, dated 22d January, 1805, is also filed. No proof of occupancy adduced.

No. 58. A plat of survey by James McLaughlin, with the approbation of the syndic of the district, dated 29th of April, 1802, is the only document of title filed in this claim. No proof of occupancy adduced.

No. 59. A plat by Henry Cassidy, dated 18th November, 1807, is the only document filed in this claim. No proof adduced.

WM. GARRARD,
LEVIN WAILES, } Commissioners.
GIDEON FITZ,

By order of the Board:

L. POSEY, Clerk.

[TRANSLATION.]

NEW ORLEANS, June 14, 1797.

Carlos Trudeau, Surveyor General, &c. certifies to have measured, in favor of the Marquis de Maison Rouge, the several tracts of land represented in those parts of the plats shaded with vermilion which may contain thirty superficial leagues; to wit, the tract No. 1, on the right bank of Washita river, to be taken five arpents below the mouth of the bayou de la Cheniere ou Toudre, and thence, descending to the bayou Catumet, with a corresponding depth, to complete one hundred and forty thousand superficial arpents. The tract marked No. 2, on the left bank of the same river, commencing two leagues below Fort Miro, and at the point called L'Aine, and extending one league below the Prairie de Lee, with a corresponding depth, to complete seventy thousand superficial arpents. The tract marked No. 3, to be taken in front of the bayou Loutre, and thence on a line, seventy-five degrees east, to the bayou de Siard, which line to the bayou de Siard, the bayou Bartlemi, and the river Washita, are to include the tract No. 3. Tract No. 4, on the right bank of Washita river, to be taken in front of the entry of bayou Bartlemi; thence, descending the river to bayou La Loutre with such depth as that the tracts No. 3 and 4 shall include the quantity of eight thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents, which added to the two first tracts, makes a total superface of two hundred and eight thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents, equal to the above said thirty leagues, at the rate of two thousand five hundred toises for the side of a league, the land measure in this province. Being well understood that the land which may be included in the above, either by title in form, or first decrees of concession, are not to be counted in computing the preceding thirty leagues; on the contrary, the Marquis de Maison Rouge promises to be of no detriment to the settlers occupying previously any part of the land, but will maintain and support them in their rights, in consideration that, if the said thirty leagues shall suffer any diminution on account of previous occupants, the Marquis de Maison Rouge has the right, and there will be no objection to his supplying the deficiency in any other part where the said land is vacant. And that it may so appear, I give this by order of the Governor General, Baron de Carondelet. All which I do certify.

CARLOS TRUDEAU.

LAND OFFICE, OPELOUSAS, August 15, 1812.

The foregoing is the substance of the proces-verbal (certificate) of the Surveyor General, subjoined to the plat, (of which the annexed is a copy,) filed in the claim of Louis Bouligny, holding under Maison Rouge.

S. CHACHIRE, *Translator to the Commissioners.*Attest: L. POSEY, Clerk of the Board.

[TRANSLATION.]

I, Don Carlos Trudeau, Surveyor Royal and Particular of the province of Louisiana, &c. do certify that the present draught contains one hundred and forty-four superficial leagues, each league forming a square, the sides of which are in length two thousand five hundred toises, (a toise is six French feet long,) measure of the city of Paris, according to the custom and practice of this colony; the said land being situated in the post of Washita, about eighty leagues above the mouth of that river, falling into Red river, adjoining on the part of the southwest to the eastern shore of the river and bayous Washita, Bartlemi, and Siard, conformably to the red line which borders the said river and bayous; bounded on the south part by a line drawn from the south, seventy-five degrees east, about three leagues and one mile long, beginning from the shore C of the bayou Siard, and continuing as far as the height of the junction A of the said bayou Siard with the bayou Bartlemi, the said point A being as a basis on the line of measurement A B of twelve leagues in length, parallel with the plane of bayou Bartlemi, from the point A to the end of the said twelve leagues which terminate at point B, where is the mouth of the rivulet named bayou Turniro; the lines D E and F G, are parallel lines directed north, fifty-two degrees east, without minding the variation of the compass, which varies eight degrees to the northeast.

In testimony, I deliver the present certificate, with the draught hereto affixed, for the use of the Baron de Bastrop, on the 14th day of June, 1797; I, the surveyor, having signed the same, and recorded in the book A, No. 1, folio 38, rept. No. 922, of the surveys.

I do certify the present copies to be conformable to the originals which are lodged in the office under my care to which I refer, and, at the request of a party, I deliver the present, same date as above.

NEW ORLEANS, April 17, 1804.

I certify the above to be a true and faithful translation of the original certificate of survey written in the Spanish language, and to which is prefixed the plat of the land therein mentioned.

L. DERBIGNY, Interpreter to the Government.

STATE OF LOUISIANA, March 9, 1813.

The undersigned commissioners, appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the rights of persons to lands within the district aforesaid, have the honor to report, in continuation, the following list of claims to lands within the county of Rapides, classing the same agreeably to the order observed in their report made on the 16th day of October, 1812, of claims in the county of Concordia; to which they beg leave to refer.

To the Hon. ALBERT GALLATIN.

Secretary of the Treasury, U. S.

No. 1. With the notice of this claim is filed the requete of the claimant for fifteen arpents front, by forty in depth, at a place called the Hill of the Pines, in the county of Opelousas, petitioned for upon account of the want of wood and timber for the use of his farm; the requete bears date January 18, 1787, and verified by the commandant Chevalier de Clouett, the 20th June, 1787; in virtue of which an order of survey was obtained from Governor Miro, the 3d of April, in the same year, directing the Surveyor General to put the party in possession of the land, if found vacant; in 1802, the Surveyor General, Charles Trudeau, has returned a plat of survey for six hundred arpents, giving ten arpents front, with thirty in depth, on both sides of the bayou —, in the district of Rapides, giving as a reason that no vacant land was to be found in the place petitioned for. No other document of title has been adduced, and no proof of the occupancy of the land either in Opelousas or Rapides. It is understood that the claimant, at the date of the petition, resided near the bayou Chicot, in the county of Opelousas, but has since removed to Rapides. However extraordinary it may appear that the Surveyor General should have been authorized to lay out lands in a form and situation different from those expressed in the grant from the Government, there are many instances in which he has exercised that power, and in which the titles have been perfectly conformable to the surveys; and no example is known to the undersigned commissioners of the Government having rejected his surveys on account of such deviation from the tenor of the concession or warrant of survey. This power appearing to the undersigned commissioners a very extraordinary one, and being unable to ascertain whether this was among his legitimate powers, they have deemed it best to report, for the consideration of Congress, all such cases where the title has not been completed; recommending the confirmation of this on the ground of the universal usage before mentioned, so far as has come to their knowledge.

No. 2. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by William Cook, dated December 17, 1794, and no other document of title; it is supposed to be for the same land, the claim of which is confirmed by the commissioner's certificate B, No. 1094. No proof of occupancy adduced in this claim.

No. 3. No document or evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10. Same.

No. 11. An informal deed of sale from Michael Barrier to the claimant Camilla Burke; consideration the maintenance and keeping his child, is filed in this claim, and no other document or evidence of title.

No. 12. The claimant admits that the land was not settled until after 1803, and offers no other evidence in support of his claim than the following certificate:

I do hereby certify that John Barrow, a citizen of the county of Rapides, made application to me in the month of October, 1798, for permission to settle upon a piece of vacant land, at which time I had the honor to be commandant of the post of Rapides. I immediately reported to Governor Gayoso such application, together with the good and unexceptionable character of the applicant; shortly subsequent to which time I received an answer to my letter from Governor Gayoso, directing me to grant Mr. Barrow permission to settle himself and family upon any vacant piece of land in the district aforesaid, and, in obedience to such directions, I gave Mr. Barrow permission to settle himself and family.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 15th day of October, 1805.

CÆSAR ARCHINARD.

Considering Mr. Barrow having been long an inhabitant of Louisiana, holding no other land by grant from the Spanish Government, and believing from the foregoing certificate that it was the intention of the Governor to grant him a tract at least equal in extent to the one he claims, the undersigned are induced to recommend the confirmation of his title.

No. 13. No document or evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

Nos. 14 and 15. Similarly circumstanced with the claim under the preceding, No. 13.

No. 16. A deed of conveyance from Nicholas Welsh to William Miller, and a deed from said Miller to the claimant, are filed in this claim. Titles for two tracts of land, comprising the whole of this claim, have already been confirmed to Nicholas Welsh by commissioners' certificates Nos. 801 and 802.

No. 17. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, by Charles Morgan, dated 21st January, 1806, and no other document of title. The testimony of James McClelland, corroborated by that of Thomas Stewart, both taken before the Board of Commissioners, December 21st, 1807, is in substance as follows: That, crossing the Mississippi river with beef cattle for the Natchez market, in September, 1803, the deponents found the claimant keeping a ferry on the Mississippi, and prevailed on him to remove higher up with his platforms, and establish his ferry at the mouth of Red river, being a more convenient crossing place; that, on the return of the deponents from Natchez, they found the claimant had removed, and his platforms had been sunk, which, they understood, had proceeded from the orders of the syndics of Avoyelles; that the deponents had crossed the Mississippi at the same place every year for several years thereafter, and always found the claimant residing there and keeping a ferry; that he had a cabin erected at the place and a few acres of land under cultivation; in 1803 was the head of a family, and over twenty-one years of age. Andrew Robinson, examined before John Thompson, Esq., late Register, the 28th April, 1809, at Rapides, hath deposed that, in the month of September, in the year 1803, the deponent and the claimant, John Brinton, went to the Mississippi for the purpose of improving land; that they, at first, settled below the mouth of bayou Desot, where they remained but a few days, when, at the recommendation of Mr. McClelland, they moved up the mouth of Red river; that, some short time after the syndics of Avoyelles sent them word to discontinue crossing the river with their boats; and this deponent went down to Baton Rouge for the purpose of obtaining permission from Governor Grandpré, which permission he obtained; that, during his absence, the claimant (John Brinton) took the plank of the boats, and had left the place; that, on his return to Avoyelles, he found the claimant there; that they continued to reside on the land and attend the ferry until the last of November or first of December, when they quitted it, and did not return until next July; that the said claimant has resided on and cultivated a small part of the land ever since; that, although the deponent was concerned with the claimant in ferrying people across the Mississippi, yet he never had any claim or interest in the land, having entered a claim for himself on the Chafalaya. Although no written evidence of permission to settle is adduced in this claim, the circumstances detailed in the evidence seem to leave no doubt that permission, either verbal or written, was obtained from the Spanish officers exercising jurisdiction over the district; the undersigned commissioners, therefore, recommend the confirmation of this claim, limiting the front on the river so as to include six hundred and forty acres, by giving the depth of forty arpents, (one hundred and sixteen chains and thirty-six hundredths.) A claim, of which J. Brinton was the original proprietor, has been confirmed by certificate of commissioners, B, No. 1206.

No. 18. This claim is entered by the curate of Opelousas, acting for the inhabitants of the parish of Avoyelles, and files with the notice a document directed by Governor Miro to Mr. Gaignard, then acting commandant of the said parish, of which the following is a translation:

NEW ORLEANS, September 30, 1784.

I approve that you shall have marked six arpents of land for the place of the church, as you wrote to me in yours of the 25th September.

MIRO.

From a certificate of P. Reibelt, former judge of the parish of Avoyelles, dated 23d November, 1807, it appears the parish cemetery is on this tract of land. No proof is adduced of its being occupied in any other manner. The confirmation is recommended, because it appears to the undersigned commissioners reasonable that the inhabitants of the parish, who are principally Roman Catholics, should have ground to erect a church on, and because it is manifest that the Spanish Government intended to grant the land for that purpose.

No. 19. No document or other evidence adduced in support of this claim.

No. 20. No document accompanies the notice of this claim; the claimant states that an order of survey in his favor, issued by Governor Gayoso, has been lost or mislaid. No written or oral evidence has been adduced to establish the existence of such a document, or the occupancy of the land claimed.

No. 21. No document of title or proof of occupancy has been offered in this claim. It is understood to be or the same land claimed by Thomas West, and confirmed to Josiah S. Johnson by commissioners' certificate B, No. 976.

No. 22. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 23. An informal transfer of right, by James McCoy to Samuel Sherman, which is assigned by Sherman to the present claimant, Job Carter, is the only document or evidence of title adduced in support of this claim. The transfer and assignment are both dated in 1808.

No. 24. No evidence, written or oral, has been adduced in support of this claim.

Nos. 25 and 26. These claims are in the same situation, as to evidence of title, as the one next preceding.

No. 27. A deed of sale from Eli Templin to the claimant, dated in 1807, is the only document or evidence of title adduced in this claim.

No. 28. No evidence of title has been adduced in this claim. It is believed to be for the same land claimed under the other notice, and confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 621.

No. 29. The tract of land claimed under this notice is said to have been purchased from Governor Grandpré. No deed of sale or evidence of title has been adduced. The claim is believed to be for the same, or part of the same, tract of land, the title of which has been confirmed by the Board to the heirs of the said Grandpré.

No. 30. No document or evidence of title is adduced in support of this claim. A claim of four hundred and eighty arpents, in the county of Rapides, of which this person is supposed to have been the original claimant, has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 944.

No. 31. No evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim. This person is supposed to have been the original claimant of a tract of land in the county of Concordia, which has been confirmed to Foster and Elam, and is, therefore, not entitled to another tract founded on his own settlement.

No. 32. No evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 33. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey, executed by Hugh Coyle, a deputy surveyor under the Spanish Government, dated the 21st July, 1801, and two deeds of conveyance; the first from Roderick Haveto to Alexander Fulton, dated 6th July, 1803; and the other from Fulton to the present claimant, dated 3d July, 1804. The claimant states, in his notice, that an order of survey for this tract had been obtained by the original claimant, (Roderick Haveto,) which is lost or mislaid. No evidence has been adduced, either to establish the existence of the order of survey, or the occupancy of the land.

No. 34. No document or evidence has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 35. With the notice of this claim is filed a deed of conveyance from François Hebert to Edmund Norris, dated 6th March, 1798, in which the quantity of land conveyed is not expressed, the situation only being described; a plat of survey made for said Norris by Hugh Coyle, dated the 18th September, 1798; and a deed of conveyance from Morris to the claimants, Nicholas Chatelin, dated 16th January, 1806. No other document of title has been adduced. James Brewster, at Rapides, the 10th April, 1809, before the late Register, hath deposed as follows: That, in the year 1800, the deponent, being on his way to New Orleans, saw an improvement, which he supposes to have been on the land claimed, at which time the brother-in-law of the claimant, with his family, was residing on the land in a camp; that the improvements then consisted of four or five acres in a state of preparation for a crop; that he has understood the said family were obliged to remove from the land in the spring following, in consequence of the rise of the water, and he has reason to believe that it has not been inhabited or cultivated since; that the claimant was the head of a family and an inhabitant of Louisiana on the 20th December, 1803. The smallness of the tract claimed, with the circumstances of its having been occupied and held as private property so early as 1798, and no other claim appearing to have been confirmed to the original claimant, François Hebert, are considerations which the commissioners think might entitle him to the land. It may be remarked, however, that it is not established by the evidence that it was inhabited or cultivated on the 20th day of December, 1803; yet it does not appear to have been abandoned, and the settlement only discontinued, perhaps, from necessity. It may not be improper to notice also the declaration of the claimant in his notice, setting forth that it is the place of his residence, and that it has been constantly occupied since the year 1798. From the above circumstances the commissioners have been inclined to recommend the confirmation of the claim.

No. 36. This is a claim for four hundred arpents on the bayou Rapides, in the county of Rapides, founded on the following documents of title which have been filed in the claim: First, the requête of the claimant, Richard Edmund Cuny, for ten arpents in front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the bayou Chicot, in the county of Opelousas, the petitioner representing that at his own expense he had removed the obstructions to the navigation of the bayou Courtableau, and wishing to obtain this tract to erect a house on, in which to deposit his tobacco and other produce. This petition bears date the 10th January, 1787, to which is subjoined the certificate of the then commandant of the post of Opelousas, dated the 13th of the same month and year, and stating that the petitioner had improved the navigation of the bayou, by which the public had been benefited, and that the land asked for was vacant. Secondly, the order of survey, by Governor Miro, dated the 3d April, 1787, directing the Surveyor General to put the party in possession of the land as solicited; and Thirdly, the plat of survey as returned by the said Surveyor General, Charles Trudeau, the 4th October, 1800, certified to have been made in consequence of the order of Governor Miro of the 3d April, 1787, and giving as a reason for having made the survey on the bayou Rapides, that the claimant, not finding land suited to his purpose in Opelousas, had removed to Rapides, about eight years previous to the date of the survey, where the said Surveyor General had given him an equal quantity of land. No other documents of title have been adduced. William House, at Rapides, on the 24th April, 1809, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register, hath deposed: That, in the year 1803, and prior to the 20th day of December of that year, about ten acres of the land claimed were cleared, enclosed, and prepared for cultivation by the hiring of claimant, but that the land was neither inhabited nor cultivated that year; that on the 20th December, 1803, the claimant resided in the neighborhood; that in 1804 he cultivated a crop thereon, and in the year following removed thereto. The deposition of Valentine Layssard, taken by commission before the judge of the parish of Rapides, the 17th August, 1811, is to the following purport: That, in the month of February, 1797, Chevalier Poirêt, then acting as commandant of the post of Rapides, in the absence of the deponent, gave permission to the said Richard E. Cuny to settle on the land in question. Joseph Brown, whose deposition was also taken by commission, before the judge of said parish the 22d of August, 1811, hath deposed, that, from what he had heard, he believed that the claimant cleared a part of the land in question in 1803, and made a crop on it in 1804, and has since resided on it. The claim of Cæsar Archinard, first enumerated in this report, being, so far as respects the survey, similarly circumstanced with the one under consideration, and the remarks made in that claim being equally applicable to this, the commissioners deem it expedient only to notice, that land originally claimed in this instance, appearing to have been conceded as an equivalent for services rendered by the claimant, and having been surveyed at an early date, and occupied by the claimant as the place of his residence, are circumstances perhaps meriting consideration, in addition to those mentioned in the claim above referred to. Its confirmation is, therefore, respectfully recommended.

No. 37. This claim, entered by Richard Edmund Cuny, is for eight hundred arpents of land on the bayou Bœuf, in the county of Rapides, and founded on documents of a similar nature with those filed in the claim reported under the next preceding number, except that the land is solicited for the avowed purpose of establishing a vacherie, and not under any pretext of services rendered the public. The requête of the claimant, (verified by the commandant, merely as relates to the vacancy of the land,) soliciting twenty arpents in front, with forty of depth, on the bayou Chicot, in the county of Opelousas, bears date 12th of October, 1784; and the order of survey, by Governor Miro, directing the Surveyor General to establish the party on the land solicited, is dated the 23d May, 1785. The plat of survey returned by the late Surveyor General of Louisiana, Charles Trudeau, bears date in 1802, giving, as a reason for laying out the land on the bayou Bœuf, that the land solicited was not found to be vacant. The undersigned commissioners deem it proper to remark, in this case, that lands conceded by the Spanish Government for vacheries, are generally such as, from the sterility of the soil, or other causes, could not have been cultivated to advantage; and although the claim in question is not of considerable extent, it may be doubted whether land, or perhaps the most fertile part of bayou Bœuf, would have been granted for a vacherie, the purpose for which this tract was solicited. The usage of sanctioning all such acts of the Surveyor General, as mentioned in the remarks of the commissioners in the claim of Cæsar Archinard, reported under No. 1, is the only reason that can be urged for recommending the confirmation of this claim. No proof of occupancy has been adduced.

No. 38. Within the notice of this claim are filed two deeds of conveyance; one from Edmund Nugent to Baptiste Beauvais, dated the 25th of November, 1798; and the other from said Beauvais to the claimant, Ebenezer Cooley, dated in October, 1806. Mention is made, in the first part of these conveyances, that Edmund Nugent purchased this tract at the public vendue of the estate of Matthew Nugent, in 1797. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated in 1806, is also filed, and no other document or evidence of title, nor proof of occupancy.

No. 39. This claim is for eight hundred arpents on bayou Bœuf, founded on the following documents: A plat of survey, purporting to be a copy of one made by Hugh Coyle, dated the 25th June, 1800; and an informal deed of conveyance from the Reverend John Maguire to John Burns, dated at New Orleans, the 28th July, 1804, with an assignment from Burns to the present claimant, Daniel Callaghan, in 1806. In the deed a declaration is made by the seller that he purchased the land in the year 1798 from the Choctaw Indians. No other document of title has been adduced. No proof of occupancy, nor evidence of a ratification of the Indian sale.

No. 40. This claim is also entered by Daniel Callaghan, for one thousand and twenty arpents on the bayou Bœuf, is supported by a deed of conveyance from the Reverend John Maguire to the claimant, dated June 6, 1801; and a plat of survey by Hugh Coyle, dated 17th September, 1802. Mention is made in the deed that this tract was purchased from the Indians, by the said Maguire, as could be seen by a deed of conveyance on record at Rapides, and by the general plat of survey in possession of the Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana. No other document of title has been adduced, and no proof of occupancy.

No. 41. With the notice of this claim is filed a deed of conveyance from William Miller to the claimant, George B. Curtis, dated in September, 1807, representing this as being the upper half of a tract, of which the lower part was then occupied by Thomas Welsh. No proof of occupancy or evidence of title has been adduced. Some doubt is entertained whether this claim is not embraced in that of Thomas Welsh, which has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 881.

No. 42. No document of title has been adduced in support of this claim. Charles Mulhollen, a witness in the claim, hath deposed, that the tract of land he has allusion to in his testimony is situated on the Mississippi river, and bounded on the lower side by the bayou Desôt; that about the year 1795 or 1796, the deponent crossed the river at that place, and that John Ruffy was residing on and cultivating the said tract of land, which he sold to William Collins, the claimant, in 1797 or 1798, who has continued agents on it, and who continued it under cultivation until the present time, (8th September, 1812;) and that the deponent always understood that the said Ruffy had a requete for eight hundred arpents. No other evidence has been offered. Two other claims, of which the said Ruffy and Collins are supposed to have been respectively the original proprietors; the first by an order of survey, and the latter by settlement, confirmed by commissioners' certificates Nos. 1032 and 362, render the reporting of this necessary. In his notice the claimant has stated, that the original claimant, Ruffy, settled the land by permission, and that it was seized and sold by order of the Spanish Government to satisfy a debt due from said Ruffy to the present claimant. Under these circumstances, it might have been reasonably conjectured that some written document existed which would afford more satisfactory information as to the nature and extent of the claim originally. No such document, however, has been adduced; and it is owing to the reputable character of the witness that the commissioners have been induced to recommend the confirmation of the claim under these circumstances.

No. 43. A deed of conveyance from George Cathey, the original claimant, to the present claimant, David W. Cathey, dated 3d October, 1807, is the only evidence of title adduced in support of this claim.

No. 44. No document of title or proof has been adduced in support of this claim.

Nos. 45, 46, and 47. These claims are similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding.

No. 48. No document of title or proof of any kind has been adduced in this claim.

No. 49. This claim is founded on a petition of the claimant, for ten arpents in front with forty in depth, certified by Valentine Layssard, formerly commandant of the post of Rapides. Both the date of the petition and commandant's certificate appear to have been altered; the last figure in the date of the year having been erased, and the figure 2 substituted for the erased figure. The original date is also obliterated, as not to be legible. This of itself would be deemed a sufficient reason for reporting the claim as being such a one as ought not, in the opinion of the undersigned commissioners, to be confirmed; in addition to which, it is believed to be for the same land claimed under another entry, and confirmed to this claimant under his own settlement by commissioners' certificate B, No. 628. No other document of title or proof has been adduced in this claim.

No. 50. A contract, dated 2d March, 1795, entered into by the claimant, Martin Despallier and John Baptiste McCarty, stipulating for the payment from said Despallier to McCarty, for the land in question, is the only document filed in this claim. No proof to establish the occupancy of the land has been furnished.

No. 51. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in this claim.

No. 52. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one last mentioned.

No. 53. An informal deed of conveyance from John Rutledge to the claimant, Seth Dean, dated 19th May, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been offered.

No. 54. An informal deed of conveyance from Richard Cummins to the claimant, dated 26th May, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been adduced.

No. 55. No evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 56. In this claim is filed the petition of the claimant, Richard Earle, for the land on which he then resided, on the north side of the Catahoula lake. The petitioner representing that he had, with his family, resided in the province sixteen years; that, in compliance with the orders of Governor Grandpré, he had removed from his former place of residence, where he had made considerable improvements, to settle at the place above mentioned, for the particular purpose of conveying governmental despatches to and from the post of Washita; that he had been at considerable trouble and some expense in making out and assisting to cut a road from his house to Washita, a distance of nearly one hundred miles, and hoped that his services rendered the public would entitle him to a grant of the land on which he resided. This petition bears date the 28th of August, 1798, and to which is subjoined the certificate of Governor Gayoso, dated 1st of October, 1798, signifying that the representation made by the claimant in his petition was satisfactory, and that the claimant might continue on his settlement, on the condition of his applying for the completion of his title to the land. Another document, under the signature of the then commandant of the post of Washita, (Filhiol,) dated 31st of August, 1798, is also filed in this claim, importing that Governor Grandpré, thinking it inexpedient that settlements should be at a distance from each other, had permitted the claimant, Richard Earles, with a Mr. Gray, to settle on the Catahoula, on the condition of their contributing to the conveyance of public despatches from one post to the other, by furnishing horses, crossing the messengers, or carrying the packets themselves; and, as Nicholas Levins and Caya Williams had obtained the like permission of settling at that place, they should, in like manner, each in their turn, contribute to the public service. A second petition of the claimant, dated the 4th of February, 1800, addressed to Morales, Intendant of the province, is likewise filed, soliciting a grant of twenty arpents front by forty in depth at the Catahoula, and representing that the petitioner had resided with his family on the land solicited for three years, had made considerable improvements on the place, and had a large stock of cattle and horses; and, from the permission he had obtained from the Governors Grandpré and Gayoso to make his settlements, and the service he had rendered the Government, conceived himself entitled to this tract of land. This petition is verified by Cæsar Archinard, then commandant of the post of Rapides, 6th of February, 1800. The deposition of Samuel Gray, corroborated by that of George Pauls, both taken on the 27th of February, 1806, is as follows: That, about nine or ten years ago, the claimant made a settlement on the land claimed, and cultivated a crop thereon, and continued to reside there about fifteen months; and that two or three crops had since been made upon the land. The deposition of John Doyle, taken at the same time, is nearly of the same import. No other evidence has been adduced. From the nature of the title in this case, and the circumstances attending it, although it is not established by testimony that the land was inhabited, &c. on the 20th day of December, 1803, the undersigned commissioners think it expedient to recommend the confirmation of the claim. No other land appears to have been conceded to this claimant by the French or Spanish Governments, and no claim of which he is the original proprietor has been confirmed by the Board.

No. 57. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 6th January, 1806, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been adduced.

No. 58. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 10th December, 1805, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. The deposition of William Roe, taken in the claim, 26th February, 1806, is as follows: That the deponent, in the year 1802, lived about eight miles from the land claimed, but being frequently in the neighborhood of the same, he often heard the land claimed called David Earles's land; that Richard Earles, the father of the said David, lived on the land, and the said claimant, aged about seventeen or eighteen years, lived with the said Richard Earles, his father, who at this time resides on the said land. The deposition of Samuel Gray, taken at the same time, is in substance as follows: That the claimant, David Earles, is a young man, about twenty years of age, and married in the month of June or July, 1805, and resided with Richard Earles, his father, who had lived upon the land claimed for the last eight or nine years. No other document or evidence of title has been adduced.

No. 59. The original title of the land claimed under this entry is believed to have been confirmed to John Dill, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1043, under a notice entered by Charles Dill, who, it appears, became the purchaser of the land in the year 1798, the same having been sold as the property of John Blampin, the original proprietor and claimant, to satisfy a debt due from said Blampin to this claimant, (Antoine Flores.) It may be proper, however, to remark, that the claim originally appears to have been for no more than two hundred and forty arpents, being six arpents in front, by forty in depth; and the reason assigned in this claim for the entry being made for a larger quantity is, that the boundaries of the tract originally embraced four hundred arpents. The documents filed, however, do not appear to establish this fact, and no oral testimony has been adduced in the claim.

No. 60. No evidence of title, either written or oral, has been adduced in this claim.

No. 61. The title of the land claimed under this entry has been confirmed to William Miller by commissioners' certificate B, No. 296.

No. 62. This claim is supposed to be for the same land, the title of which has been confirmed to the claimant, Alexander Fulton, under another entry, in his own name. No evidence of title has been adduced in support of this entry.

No. 63. The title of the land claimed by this notice is believed to have been confirmed to the claimant, under another entry, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 341. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this entry.

No. 64. This claim, also, as in the next preceding, is believed to have been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 353, under another notice. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in this case.

No. 65. This entry is believed to be for the same tract, the title of which has been confirmed to this claimant, Edward Fahoy, under another notice. A plat of survey by Mathew Stone, dated 20th May, 1806, is the only document filed in this claim. No proof has been offered.

No. 66. No document or evidence of title has been furnished in this claim.

No. 67. Joseph Gillard claims a tract of land containing sixteen thousand — acres, situate on both sides Red river, in the county of Natchitoches, as stated in the notice, but ascertained to be within the district of Rapides, by virtue of an Indian sale and confirmation by the Governor of the province of Louisiana. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the following documents, viz:

1. A permission by Joseph de la Pena, then commandant of the post of Natchitoches, to the Pascagoula tribe of Indians, to form a settlement, dated at Natchitoches, 12th September, 1787, which, being translated, is in substance as follows: The Indian chief named De Blanc, and the rest of his nation, of the Pascagoula tribe, are permitted to settle on land situated in the place Les Ecores du Rigolet du Bon Dieu, on the river, in descending, until it shall please the Governor General of this province to grant them the title of possession; it is at the same time prohibited to any individual under my jurisdiction to interpose any obstacle to their said settlement, in virtue of the permission I grant to the petitioners; (signed Joseph de la Pena.) Under which permission is the approval of the two Governors, first, Governor Miro, without date, in the words following: "The above concession approved," (signed Estevan Miro.) Secondly, Baron de Carondelet, as translated, in substance, as follows: "In virtue of the power vested in me by His Majesty, I confirm this present concession. New Orleans, 15th June, 1792;" (signed Baron de Carondelet.)

2. A letter of office from Baron de Carondelet to Etienne Laysard, then commandant of the district of Rapides, dated New Orleans, 28th September, 1792, and which, being translated, is in substance as follows: "I send to you herein enclosed the permission of the commandant of Natchitoches, Mr. Joseph de la Pena, granted to the chief of the Pascagoula nation, named De Blanc, that he and his tribe may settle on the land of the Ecores du Rigolet du Bon Dieu, at the confluence of the Red river, in descending: the said permission having been approved of by my predecessor, I confirm it in all its extent, that the interested party may enjoy it fully and without trouble, ordering you to protect and see that no person should hinder their peaceable possession of these lands, which are theirs by right. The contrary would be extremely disagreeable to me. You will take care to acknowledge the receipt of this, giving to the Indians such part as may be necessary for their tranquillity."

3. A letter from Baron de Carondelet to Mr. Laysard, dated 7th March, 1795, the transaction of which is, in substance, as follows: "You will engage the Pascagoula Indians to assemble at your house to elect a chief, to whom, on my being notified, I shall forward the big medal and a commission. You shall, in order to induce them to assemble, promise them brandy and tobacco, and engage them to establish an only village on Catahoula. Inform them that they will receive annual presents more considerable than heretofore."

4. A deed of sale by the Indians of the Pascagoula tribe to Louis C. De Blanc, attorney for Colin La Cour, dated at Natchitoches, the 9th April, 1795, of which the following is the substance of the translation: "Louis Charles De Blanc, in virtue of his authority of commandant, civil and military, of the post of Natchitoches, and in pursuance of a power from Colin La Cour, an inhabitant of the post of Pointe Coupée, purchases from the Indians, in behalf of and for the use of the said Colin La Cour, for the consideration of two hundred and fifty dollars, sounding money, paid in hand to the Indians, with the sum additional necessary to be paid to the Government, the settlement and the lands of culture of the Indian village Pascagoula, bounded by the bayou de la Cœur, when the chief was settled; and below by another bayou on the left bank, descending, with the condition that the said La Cour shall have this sale approved and confirmed by the Governor General of Louisiana." (Signed L. C. De Blanc. Witnesses, E. Murphy and François La Caze.) Subjoined to this sale, and over the signature of the Baron de Carondelet, are the capital letters V. B., said to have been put for the Latin words vide bonum, and which is relied on by the claimant as a complete and ample ratification of the contract on the part of the Governor.

5. An extract from the inventory of the estate of Nicholas La Cour, which had been made and deposited with Felix Trudeau, commandant of the post of Natchitoches, on the 22d November, 1796, and which has been adduced for the purpose of designating the boundaries of the tract claimed by Mr. Gillard for the legal representative of Mr. La Cour, the translation of which extract is in the following words: "A plantation, situated at a place vulgarly called Pascagoula, about twenty leagues from the church, bounded above, on the left, ascending, by the bayou separating this tract from De Blanc, Jun's tract, and below, on the right, ascending, by the bayou Phillipe." To which is subjoined the certificate of the translator of the Board of Commissioners, as follows: "Compared and found to be truly extracted and translated from the original. Opelousas, 20th February, 1812." (Signed L. Cacheré.)

6. A plat of survey by Charles M. Lawson, a copy of which, on a reduced scale, will be found subjoined to this report. In this claim the following testimony has been adduced: First, the deposition of Samuel Levi Wells, taken at Rapides, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register, on the 7th May, 1809, in the following words: "The deponent, being first sworn, deposeseth and saith, that, in the year 1789 or 1790, this deponent was at the village of the Appalachi Indians, and, in conversation with the chief of that tribe respecting their lands, and particularly respecting the boundaries between them and the Pascagoula tribe of Indians, who resided a little above, on Red river, the said chief informed him, this deponent, that a stout bayou on the other side of the river was the boundary between his tribe and the Pascagoula tribe. The said Appalachi Indians were living at that time on the southwest side of Red river. Secondly, the testimony of Valentine Laysard, Michael Le Prerie, Manuel Le Prerie, and John Baptiste Vallirie, examined before Richard Claiborne, Esq., judge of the parish of Rapides, the 17th September, 1811, in pursuance of a commission from the Board of Commissioners, all of which witnesses agree in this fact, that the land now owned and inhabited by Joseph Gillard, on Red river, was inhabited and cultivated by Nicholas La Cour in the year 1795, and that the same has been inhabited and cultivated ever since. Thirdly, the testimony of Valentine Laysard, taken before Richard Claiborne, Esq., judge of the parish of Rapides, the 29th January, 1812, pursuant to a commission from the Board, to whom, at the request of the claimant, the following interrogatories were propounded:

Question. Are you acquainted with the tract of land claimed by Mr. Joseph Gillard on Red river, under the purchase of the deceased Mr. La Cour from certain Indian chiefs and their warriors, of the Pascagoula tribe?

To which the said witness answered, I am well acquainted with the tract of land mentioned, and I do know that Mr. La Cour purchased the said land from the chiefs of the Pascagoula tribe.

Question. Were you present, when Charles M. Lawson, as deputy surveyor, was employed in August, 1811, in surveying the tract of land claimed?

Answer. I was present, and went along with the surveyor to show him the boundaries between the Appalachi and Pascagoula tribes.

Question. Did you point out any marked trees on the right bank of Red river, nearly opposite the mouth of bayou La Borne, or bayou Phillipe, and do you know the point so pointed out to have been established as a boundary between the Pascagoula and Appalachi tribes of Indians?

Answer. I did point out several marked trees to Lawson on the right bank of the river, descending, nearly opposite the mouth of bayou La Borne, which trees had been formerly marked by Mr. Cook, a surveyor; and the point alluded to was agreed upon by the Pascagoula and Appalachi tribes as a boundary between them. Before Cook made the survey, the bayou La Borne had been called the bayou Phillipe.

Question. Did you, or did you not, point out to the said surveyor a large pine tree on the Natchitoches road, about two miles from the river? and do you know that that tree was established as a boundary between the two before-mentioned tribes of Indians, in putting them respectively in possession of the lands allotted to them by the Spanish Government?

Answer. I did point out the pine tree mentioned to Lawson, the surveyor, which tree had been formerly marked by Cook, in presence of the Appalachi Indians and of Mr. Gillard, which was consented to as the boundary between the Appalachi and Mr. Gillard; and said tree was also the line between the Appalachi and Pascagoula tribes.

Question. Do you know that these two tribes of Indians were put in possession of the lands in question, and by what officer, under what authority, and at what time?

Answer. The Appalachi tribe was put in possession by my father, and said possession was approved of by Governor Miro; but I do not recollect the date of the possession.

Question. Do you know the small bayou at the lower extremity of the land claimed by Mr. Gillard, which empties itself into Red river, on the left bank? Was the said bayou at any time heretofore called bayou Phillipe? Did it subsequently take the name of bayou La Borne, and what circumstance gave rise to this change of names?

Answer. I know the small bayou at the lower extremity of Mr. Gillard's land: it was formerly called bayou Phillipe, having taken the name of the first hunter that lived upon it, and was always known by his name until the survey made by Mr. Cook, at which time it took the name of bayou La Borne, in consequence of its being the natural boundary between the Appalachi and Pascagoula Indians.

Question. Have you, since the land was surveyed by Mr. Lawson, seen a marked line, the northwesternmost one, on the west side of the river, passing through a snake lake, and intersecting the river about a mile below the mouth of Rigolet du Bon Dieu? If you have noticed said line, do you know that it passes near the base of an eminence which is said to have been inhabited by an Indian chief of the said Pascagoula tribe? and do you know that an Indian chief of the said tribe did reside on the same eminence before the sale was made to Mr. La Cour?

Answer. I do not know the line alluded to in the interrogatory. Mr. Lawson desired me to go with him to show the line; I told him it was not necessary, inasmuch as the title-papers called for the upper boundary. The chief of the Pascagoula tribe (called De Blanc) lived on an eminence, near the Rigolet du Bon Dieu, before the purchase made by La Cour. The principal village was situated on the point called Mount Pleasant, on Mr. Lawson's map; but the Indians had established themselves and cleared land in different places on the Red river between the bayou Phillipe, and the chief De Blanc, who occupied the highest establishment on the river, and was considered near the upper boundary line.

Question. Do you know the extent to which the said Indians claimed on the north and east side of the river?

Answer. I always understood the back line on the north and east side was the bayou Jeat, and the Big and Little D'Arrou, which I believe to be the same that are marked in the map of Mr. Lawson.

Question. Do you know that the said Pascagoula Indians did sell those lands to Mr. La Cour, and do you know of any act of the Spanish Government in confirmation of such sale? Relate any thing further that you know concerning the claim of Mr. Gillard, or the late Mr. La Cour, to the land in question.

Answer. I was the agent of Indian affairs in this quarter at the time the bargain was made for this land, and was called upon to act as interpreter; at which time, and in my presence, the bargain was made. The sale was afterwards made by the commandant of the post of Natchitoches, in whose jurisdiction the Pascagoula Indians lived. The said sale, and the confirmatory acts by the Governor, are, as I am told, filed with the commissioners; the copies of which I have before me, and are the only ones that I know of. Under the sale made by Louis De Blanc are the following words, to wit: "V. B. Baron de Cardonelet;" which words are an approval. I received a letter from the Baron de Cardonelet, dated 7th March, 1795, directing me to settle the Pascagoula Indians at Catahoula. The Baron de Carondelet was induced, as the deponent believes, to approve this sale, and remove the Indians, particularly by the frequent complaints made by the white people against the Indians, who were said to do considerable mischief to the inhabitants. The Pascagoula Indians moved shortly after the sale, in 1795, to the lands of the Choctaws on the bayou Bœuf. The land claimed by the Pascagoula Indians, on the north and east side of the Red river, is fertile; that on the south and west is poor pine and swampy lands. The deponent knowing nothing further that may be important, here closes his testimony. Fourthly, the testimony of Michael Le Prerie, taken at the same time, under the same commissioner, before Judge Claiborne, in the following words: "And also came Michael Le Prerie, who, being duly sworn, saith as follows: I am aged about thirty-eight years, was born and raised in the post of the Rapides, have had an intimate knowledge of the Pascagoula Indians as long as I can remember; I speak their language, and was well acquainted with them, their lands and all their affairs. I know that the Pascagoula village extended from the bayou Phillipe up to the Rigolet du Bon Dieu. The principal village was on the spot where Mr. Gillard's house and plantation are now situated. The chief De Blanc lived near the upper boundary, within a short distance of the Rigolet du Bon Dieu, and the Indians settled themselves in different places, and cleared land and raised corn on the north and east side of the Red river, and extended their settlements or villages with little intervals from the bayou Phillipe up to the chief De Blanc's, near the Rigolet du Bon Dieu. I do not know the back boundary, nor how far it runs back. In my frequent intercourse with the Pascagoula Indians, I learned from many of them that they had sold their lands to Mr. La Cour, and were about to remove. I think that all the Pascagoula Indians removed to bayou Bœuf, immediately after they sold to Mr. La Cour, except one called Gaucher, who lived there, and made one crop before he went to bayou Bœuf, with the permission, as I understood, of Mr. La Cour. The land claimed by the Pascagoula Indians on the north and east side of Red river is fertile; that on the south and west is poor pine and swamp land." Fifthly, the testimony of Manuel Le Prerie, taken at the same time before Judge Claiborne, and under the same authority, as follows: And also appeared Manuel Le Prerie, brother of Michael Le Prerie, aged about thirty-five years, who having heard the foregoing deposition of his said brother read and explained, the said Manuel maketh oath for himself to the same form and facts as stated in the deposition of his said brother; and the said deponent knoweth nothing more or less than is therein contained. The undersigned commissioners have no difficulty in pronouncing an opinion that this claim ought to be classed among those meriting confirmation; but they have great difficulty in ascertaining the true original extent of the claim, and in deciding as to the quantity of land, the title to which ought to be confirmed. By the first document of title which was granted by Mr. De la Pena in 1787, denominated by two governors, Mr. Miro and Baron de Carondelet, "concession," the Indians of the Pascagoula tribe were permitted to form settlements on the lands at the heights or cliffs of Rigolet du Bon Dieu. By this instrument no determinate boundaries were presented to the Indians. Whether from the use of the words Rigolet du Bon Dieu, either the Indians, or the present claimants under them, were entitled to the land up to the branch or division of Red river, so called, is very questionable. It is believed that the heights or cliffs on Red river, where the Pascagoula Indians were permitted to form their settlements, were called Les Ecores du Rigolet du Bon Dieu, the heights or cliffs of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, from the circumstance of their vicinity to the junction of Rigolet du Bon Dieu with the Red river. The Baron de Carondelet in his official letter to Mr. Layssard, dated September 28, 1792, (document No. 2, in which appears to have been enclosed document No. 1), has said The chief De Blanc and his tribe may settle on the land of the heights of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, at the confluence of Red river, in descending. From the ambiguity of this phrase, the undersigned are unable to comprehend its full meaning; they presume, however, in confirming the act of Mr. De la Pena in all its extent, the baron could not have intended to enlarge its extent. In the sale from the Indians to the agent of Mr. La Cour, (document No. 4.) the bayou de la Cour (which is supposed to be the same bayou referred to in document No. 5, as separating this tract from the land of De Blanc, Jun.,) is made the upper boundary of the purchase. Michael Le Prerie, in the first part of his evidence, has said, I know that the Pascagoula village extended from the bayou Phillipe up to the Rigolet du Bon Dieu. In a subsequent part he has said, that their settlements or villages, with little intervals, extended from bayou Phillipe up to the chief De Blanc's, near the Rigolet du Bon Dieu. The place of the former residence of the chief alluded to is pointed out in the map by the letter F, about one mile below the Rigolet du Bon Dieu; that this witness, if he supposed the Indian claim to extend up to the Rigolet du Bon Dieu, has misconceived it, and that neither the commandant who contracted with the Indians in behalf of Mr. La Cour, nor the Governor who ratified that contract, could have contemplated such an extent, is manifest from this circumstance, that the said commandant Louis Charles De Blanc, in less than one month after concluding the purchase for La Cour, to wit, on the 6th May, 1795, applied to and obtained from the Governor, Baron de Carondelet, a warrant or order of survey for a tract of land fronting on Red river, twenty arpents, (nearly three-quarters of a mile,) and extending forty arpents back from the river on each side. This tract is known to lie below the Rigolet du Bon Dieu, and being bounded on the lower side by the land of La Cour, is doubtless the tract referred to in document No. 5, as the land of De Blanc, Jun. Mr. De Blanc's title to it has been confirmed by the certificate of the commissioners B, No. 634. It is believed it will occupy the space represented in the map by the lines shaded with green, which is added to the surveyor's return for the purpose of explaining this report. All the witnesses concur in pointing out the bayou Phillipe, now called bayou La Borne, as the lower boundary of this claim; and no doubt is entertained but that this is the same bayou referred to in document No. 4, as limiting the purchase from the Indians on the lower side. The depth to which the just title of the claimants might extend on each side of the river is much more equivocal. By document No. 1, the Indians were permitted to establish themselves on the lands of the hills of Rigolet du Bon Dieu, without a specification of limits. By the document No. 4, the limits on the upper and lower sides only of the purchase are defined; the Indians selling their settlements or villages and lands of culture from the bayou de La Cour, near where the chief was settled, down to the small bayou on the left bank of the river, believed to be the one called Phillipe or La Borne. That the extent of the claim has never been rightly understood by the parties concerned is evident from this circumstance, that, in the plat first returned to the surveying department, from a survey made by Mr. John Cook the 10th April, 1806, the quantity of seven thousand two hundred and thirty-five and twenty-nine hundredths acres are included; from a re-survey, by the same surveyor, on which the notice of the claim filed the 21st June, 1808, was founded, upwards of sixteen thousand acres were taken in; and from the limits pointed out to Mr. Charles M. Lawson, who, at the request of the claimant, made a further re-survey in August, 1811, the quantity was increased to nineteen thousand one hundred and fourteen and a quarter acres, as represented in the plat by the lines shaded with red. Although lands were obtained at very reduced prices at the date of the purchase, it is scarcely possible to conceive that nineteen thousand acres, very eligibly situated on Red river, the greater part remarkably fertile, could have been purchased for so small a consideration as two hundred and fifty dollars, less than one cent and a half per acre. It is believed that no survey of the lands in question was made until after the change of Government. The bayou La Borne was not so called until since the survey made by Mr. Cook in 1806. The trees opposite the mouth of bayou La Borne, and the pine tree on Natchitoches road, were marked by Mr. Cook when he made the first survey. Mr. Valentine Laysard is the only witness who has expressed any opinion as to the extent of the Indian claim back from the river, and he has only understood that the bayou Jeat, &c. were the boundaries on the north and east side of the river. There is not, however, one solitary expression in all the documents of title, by which this land is held, to induce such a belief. The two Le Preries, one thirty-eight and the other thirty-five years old at the time of giving their testimony, who spoke the language of the Pascagoula Indians, had had constant intercourse with them, and an intimate knowledge of their affairs from their earliest infancy, had never been informed as to the extent of their claim back from the river. It appears that the settlements or habitations of the Indians on this tract of land were generally on the right bank of the river, and that they cultivated on the opposite side. In such cases, it is known to have been the general usage of the Spanish Government to grant the depth of forty arpents on each side of the river, to which extent the undersigned are induced to recommend the confirmation of the title, making the bayou Phillipe the lower boundary, and the line which intersects the river, near the former residence of the chief, the upper boundary. This would reduce the claim within the limits of the lines shaded with yellow, which have been added to the surveyor's return for the elucidation of this report, embracing an area of about nine thousand three hundred acres.

No. 68. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 69. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the next preceding, No. 68.

No. 70. No document of title or proof of occupancy has been adduced in support of this claim; it is supposed to be for the same or part of the same land, the title to which has been confirmed under another entry by commissioners' certificate B, No. 646 or 652.

No. 71. An informal deed of transfer from Henry Combs to this claimant, dated 6th August, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof of occupancy has been adduced.

No. 72. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 73. With the notice of this claim is filed a plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 14th December, 1805, and a petition in the name of Richard Green, for ten arpents front on the bayou Brachelett, dated 21st June, 1802, signed "Philip Green." The certificate of Valentine Laysard, formerly commandant of the post of Rapides, stating that the land solicited in this petition was vacant, is subjoined to said petition, but without date; being unable to account for this document appearing in this unusual form, and the commandant's certificate being without date, the undersigned commissioners deem it inexpedient to recommend the confirmation of the claim. No proof to establish occupancy has been adduced.

No. 74. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim, and the claimant admits that it was not inhabited or cultivated until the year 1804.

No. 75. This claim is supposed to be founded on the usages of the Spanish Government, in allowing a certain portion of land to the wife and family of settlers. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of the claim, except a plat of survey executed by Matthew Stone, 10th December, 1805. Two claims, of which this claimant appears to have been the original proprietor, have been confirmed by the Board; the first by certificate B, No. 666; and the other by certificate B, No. 1079.

No. 76. A plat of survey by John Lovelace, dated 12th February, 1798, is the only document of title filed in this claim. The deposition of Richard Lovelace, taken at Rapides, the 13th April, 1809, by John Thompson, Esq., late Register, is as follows: "That the tract of land claimed was settled by the claimant, in the year 1806; that in the year 1807 he removed his family thereon, and has inhabited and cultivated it ever since." No other proof has been offered.

No. 77. The land claimed under this entry is understood to be the same that is claimed under reported No. 76; with this notice is filed the claimant's petition for ten arpents front, with forty in depth, on the east bank of Red river, petitioned for 10th May, 1796, for the purposes of culture. The certificate of the then commandant of the post of Rapides is subjoined to the above petition, stating, in substance, that what is exposed in the claimant's petition is true, and that the land which has been conceded to him for a vacherie, was unfit for culture, and that the tract solicited might be conceded on the domain of His Majesty. No other document or evidence of title, except an unfinished plat, not signed by any surveyor, has been adduced in support of the claim. Two claims, of which this claimant appears to have been the original proprietor, have been confirmed to him; the first for four hundred arpents, confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 670; and the other for eight hundred arpents, confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 925. It is doubtful whether this claim is not for the same tract for which the title has been confirmed by the certificate of the commissioners first above mentioned, or one intended to be conceded in its stead; and, consequently, the commissioners deem it inexpedient to recommend the confirmation of this.

No. 78. No evidence or document of title has been adduced in this claim. It is believed to be for the same tract, the title to which has been confirmed under another entry, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 670.

No. 79. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 3d February, 1806, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been adduced in support of the claim. One claim, of which Joseph Hooter is the original proprietor and claimant, has been confirmed under occupancy by commissioners' certificate B, No. 651, situate in Rapides county, on bayou Bœuf.

No. 80. An informal bill of sale from Benjamin Richey to the claimant, Thomas Hubbs, dated 9th May, 1807, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been offered in its support.

No. 81. A plat of survey for one hundred and sixty-one and eleven hundredths acres by Matthew Stone, dated 16th December, 1806, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been taken in this claim, and it is supposed to be for the same land, the title to which has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1339.

No. 82. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 83. This claim is under similar circumstances with the one next preceding.

No. 84. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 85. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 31st December, 1805, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been taken in its support.

No. 86. The land claimed under this entry is believed to be embraced by a claim of six hundred and forty acres which has been confirmed to Josiah S. Johnson by commissioners' certificate B, No. 966, of which James Handley appears to have been the original proprietor and claimant. With the notice of this claim is filed a petition in the name of Richard Wade, for ten arpents in front, with the depth of forty arpents, on bayou Robert, which petition is signed James Handley, and dated 4th March, 1802. The certificate of Valentine Layssard, then commandant of the post of Rapides, is subjoined to this petition, declaring the land solicited to be of the domain of the King; this also bears date the 4th March, 1802. Why the petition of Richard Wade should appear under the signature of James Handley in the manner it does in this case, is not understood by the commissioners; and from the documents filed in the claim, and other circumstances, it may be doubted which of the persons the above petition was originally intended to operate in favor of. An order dated the 29th April, 1809, under the signature of the present claimant, William Head, for the withdrawing of the claim, is also filed with the notice. No proof has been offered in support of this claim.

No. 87. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 7th January, 1806, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. John Barrar, before the Board, 30th August, 1811, hath deposed as follows: That he went, in company with the brother of the claimant, to the house of Valentine Layssard, who was then acting as commandant of the post of Rapides, in the fall of the year 1803; that the brother of the claimant called on the commandant, and obtained from him a paper, which he understood to be a requête in favor of claimant's settling on the land in question; the deponent did not hear the permission read, nor did he read it himself, but heard the commandant say that the claimant should have permission, whenever application should be made for it, to settle. No other testimony has been adduced. On the back of the notice a note is made, apparently in the hand-writing of the late Register, in the following words: "The within claim acknowledged not to have been inhabited or cultivated except in the year 1803; about half an acre cleared, and a nursery of one hundred trees planted."

No. 88. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 16th December, 1805, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim, and no proof taken.

No. 89. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 90. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding, and acknowledged not to have been settled until 1st March, 1807.

No. 91. The same.

No. 92. This claim is understood to be for the same land, the title of which has been confirmed to the heirs of Jesse Kirkland, under another notice, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 679. No proof has been taken in this claim, and the notice is unaccompanied by any document of title.

No. 93. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. It is believed to be for the same land claimed under another entry, and the title confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 680.

No. 94. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any evidence of title.

No. 95. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the next preceding.

No. 96. This claim is for a tract of ten arpents in front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east bank of Red river, solicited for by the claimant, Edward Lovelace, for the purposes of culture, the 10th May, 1796. The petitioner representing himself to be an ancient inhabitant, and that the land asked for was of the domain of the King. To this petition is subjoined the certificate of the then commandant of the post of Rapides, Valentine Layssard, dated 15th May, 1796, of which the following is a translation: "I certify that what is deposed by the petitioner is true, and that the land which has been conceded to him for a vacherie is unfit for culture, and this solicited may be conceded on the domain of His Majesty." An unfinished plat of survey, not signed by any surveyor, also accompanies the notice of this claim. No other document of title has been adduced, and no proof to establish the occupancy of the land. The claim to one tract of eight hundred arpents, equal to six hundred and seventy-seven acres, of which this claimant was the original proprietor, has been confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 691; being the same, as is supposed, which was conceded for a vacherie, and which, from the certificate of the commandant above mentioned, was deemed unfit for culture. On account, therefore, of the inutility of that tract for the purposes of culture, and in consideration of the usages of the Spanish Government in granting land for vacheries distinct from that intended for culture, the undersigned commissioners deem it expedient to recommend the confirmation of this claim.

No. 97. This claim is for eight hundred arpents on bayou Flacon, in the district of Rapides, petitioned for by the claimant, George W. Lovelace, for a vacherie, the 29th May, 1796. To the petition is subjoined the certificate of the then commandant of the said district, dated 30th March, 1796, stating, in substance, that the representations of the claimant in his petition were just, and that the land solicited was vacant, and might be conceded without prejudice. No other documents of title, except an unfinished plat not signed, has been adduced in support of the claim. The deposition of David Jones, taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, Justice of the Peace of the county of Rapides, is as follows: That the tract of land claimed by George W. Lovelace, containing eight hundred arpents, lying on the bayou Flacon, in Sicily, was, on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabited and cultivated for the claimant's use; and that the claimant was at that day twenty-one years of age and the head of a family. One claim of six hundred and forty acres, founded on the settlement of this claimant, has been confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 2121. On the part of the claimant, however, it has been stated to the Board that the claim confirmed was originally purchased by the claimant, but no evidence has been adduced in support of this fact. For the reasons assigned in the next preceding number, relative to the usages of the Spanish Government in granting land for vacheries, the confirmation of this claim is recommended.

No. 98. This claim is for fifteen arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the other side, of the Catahoula. (Paigre bord) petitioned for by the claimant, George W. Lovelace, the 25th April, 1796. The use to be made of the land solicited is not mentioned. The certificate of the then commandant of the post of Rapides, dated 26th April, 1796, is subjoined to the petition, of which certificate the following is a translation: "I certify that the land on the other side of the Catahoula is of the domain of His Majesty, and may be accorded to the suppliant." No other document of title has been adduced, except an unfinished plat of survey not signed, and representing the boundaries of a tract of six hundred arpents, bounded on two sides by the river Washita. The deposition of David Jones, taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, a Justice of the Peace in the parish of Catahoula, is as follows: That, some time in the fall of 1803, I was at George W. Lovelace's, where he was making an improvement on a tract of land of six hundred arpents; he had then a house built, and a patch of turnips growing; and, in the spring following, the said George W. Lovelace cultivated two or three acres in corn on the said land, and has been occupied and cultivated ever since for said Lovelace's use; and said Lovelace was at that time twenty-one years of age, and the head of a family. By the remarks in the next preceding number, it will be seen that one tract of six hundred and forty acres has been allowed under the settlement of this claimant. The confirmation of this claim is recommended by the Board, from a belief that it would have been valid under the former Government of the province of Louisiana.

No. 99. This claim is for a tract of land of ten arpents front, by forty in depth, on the other side of the Catahoula, petitioned for by the claimant, John Lovelace, Senior, the 25th April, 1796. To the petition is subjoined the verification by the commandant, as usual, stating that the land solicited might be accorded without prejudice. An unfinished plat, not signed by any surveyor, representing the boundaries of a tract of four hundred arpents, situated at the junction of the Tensaw river and a watercourse called Fool river, is filed with the notice. No other document of title has been adduced. The deposition of David Jones, taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, Esq., a Justice of the Peace in the parish of Catahoula, is as follows: That the tract of land claimed by John Lovelace, Senior, containing four hundred arpents, lying on the Bayou Flacon, in Sicily, was, on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabited and cultivated for the claimant's use; and that the claimant was on that day twenty-one years of age. No other evidence has been offered. One claim of eight hundred arpents has been confirmed to the claimant by the commissioners' certificate B, No. 695, of which he was the original proprietor. From the nature of the claim, however, the commissioners are induced to believe it to be such a one as would have been valid under the usages of the Spanish Government in Louisiana, and therefore recommend its confirmation.

No. 100. This claim is for eight hundred arpents, on lake Louis, founded on the petition of the claimant, John Lovelace, Jun., for twenty arpents front, by forty arpents in depth, in the pine woods, on the other side of Catahoula, petitioned for for a vacherie, 25th April, 1796. The certificate of the then commandant of the post of Rapides, Valentine Layssard, dated 26th April, 1796, is subjoined to the above petition, stating, in substance, that the land solicited being vacant, might be accorded to the suppliant without being prejudicial. An unfinished plat of survey, not signed by any surveyor, is filed with the notice, which, together with the petition above mentioned, are the only documents of title which have been adduced. The land represented by the plat is situated on lake Louis, and from the word "swamp" being written on two sides of the plat, and other circumstances, it may be doubted whether it embraces the land as petitioned for in the pine woods. The following is the deposition of David Jones, taken before Samuel Lightner, Esq., a Justice of the Peace in the parish of Catahoula, under a commission from the Board: That, in the fall of 1803, I was at John Lovelace, Jun.'s, where he was inhabiting, and cultivating a crop of corn; and the said John Lovelace, Jun., was then twenty-one years of age, and has had possession of said land ever since. No other testimony has been offered. One claim of eight hundred arpents of which this claimant is the original proprietor, has been confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1054. The reasons of the commissioners for recommending the confirmation of this claim will be seen in their remarks on the claim of Edward Lovelace, reported under No. 96. The claim, if confirmed, however, should be located in the place mentioned in the requête, land occupied for vacheries; generally being such as could not be used for the purposes of culture to advantage, as mentioned in the claim of Richard E. Cuney, under reported No. 37.

No. 101. This claim is entered for a tract of four hundred arpents, in the island of Sicily, in the county of Rapides, and supported by the following documents: a requête, in the name of the claimant John Lovelace, Jun., for ten arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east bank of Red River, solicited for the purposes of culture, the 10th May, 1796; the certificate of the then commandant of the post of Rapides, Valentine Layssard, dated 15th of the same month and year, of which the following is a translation, is subjoined to said petition: I certify that what is deposed to by the petitioner is true, and that the land ceded to him for a vacherie is unfit for cultivation, and this solicited may be accorded on the domain of His Majesty. An unfinished plat of survey, not signed by any surveyor, is filed in the claim, respecting a tract of four hundred arpents, on Deer creek. No other document of title has been adduced. The deposition of David Jones, taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, Esq., Justice of the Peace in the parish of Catahoula, is as follows: That the tract of land claimed by John Lovelace, Jun., containing four hundred arpents, lying on the bayou Flacon, in Sicily, was on the 20th December actually inhabited and cultivated for the claimant's use, and that the claimant was on that day twenty-one years of age. The deposition is dated 31st October, 1811. The date of the year, which should have been inserted in the deposition after the word "December" being omitted, renders this testimony uncertain as to its meaning, and no other has been adduced. From the evidence taken in the claim, it will be seen that the establishment of the party in this case, as has, indeed, happened in many others, is on land at a different place, and at a considerable distance from that solicited. The land on Red River being, perhaps, of equal value with that on which the claimant has in this instance made his establishment, the commissioners have been induced to recommend the confirmation of the claim as now occupied by the party, believing it to be such a claim as would, under the usages of the Spanish Government, have been valid.

No. 102. This claim, for six hundred and forty acres of land, was entered by Edwin L. Harris, for the claimants, Martha Levins and her infant child; said Martha being the widow of Theophilus Lindsey, by whom she had said child. The claim has been entered as having been the property of said Lindsey, and founded on his settlement. The entry, however, is declared by Samuel Levins to be erroneous; and, in explanation of the case, has made a statement on the back of the notice before the Board, to the following effect: That this tract of six hundred and forty acres was originally improved for the use and benefit of the said Martha; and that her deceased husband, Theophilus Lindsey, never resided on nor set up a claim to it; and that the tract of two hundred and ninety-two acres, on which the said Lindsey resided, is situate at about the distance of fifteen miles from the tract claimed under this notice. In support of this claim, the deposition of William Roe has been taken before Samuel Lightner, Esq., Justice of the Peace in the parish of Catahoula, under a commission from the Board, and is as follows: That the tract of land claimed by Martha Levins, lying in prairie du Bœuf, or prairie Jacob, in the upper part of said prairie, containing six hundred and forty acres, was, on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabited and cultivated by John Morgan for the use of the claimant; and that he, the said Morgan, also inhabited and cultivated the same for three consecutive years previous to the said 20th December, 1803, at which period the claimant was of the age of twenty-one years. A claim of two hundred and ninety-two acres having been confirmed to the heirs of Theophilus Lindsey, (by commissioners' certificate B, No. 626,) entered under another notice, and founded on the settlement of him, the said Lindsey, it has been deemed proper by the Board to report this for the consideration of Congress, recommending its confirmation on the ground of its having been occupied for the claimants' use, as set forth in the evidence, and appearing to be a distinct claim from that confirmed under the settlement of the deceased husband of the claimant. It should be noticed that, by the usages of the Spanish Government, a wife might enjoy a title in land or other property, without the husband having any interest in or power to alienate her title.

No. 103. No evidence or document of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 101. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. It is believed to be for the same land, the title of which has been confirmed under the settlement and occupancy of the father of the claimant, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1026. Another claim of one hundred and eighty-seven acres has been confirmed to this claimant under his own settlement, by certificate B, No. 53.

No. 105. No document or evidence accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 106. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding.

No. 107. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 16th December, 1805, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. No proof has been taken in the claim. One claim of four hundred and eighty arpents has been confirmed to this claimant, under settlement by permission, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 711, and may possibly be the same tract claimed under this entry. Confirmation not recommended.

No. 108. This claim is for three hundred and thirty-eight acres on bayou Bœuf, and supported by the following documents: a conditional deed of sale from Hugh Coyle, acting as attorney for the Reverend John McGuire, to Stephen Lynch, the present claimant, stipulating that, if the sale from the Indians should be approved of, then he, the said Lynch, should pay to the said Coyle twenty dollars for the land; and if the Indian sale should not be approved, no payment should be required from said Lynch. This bears date 3d December, 1798, to which is subjoined a statement, dated 3d January, 1799, and signed by Cæsar Archinard, then aide of the post of Rapides, of the following import: That, if Mr. Carraghan could show any title anterior in date to the above deed of sale, either from Mr. McGuire, or his attorney, Mr. Hugh Coyle, then this sale should become void; otherwise, to remain in force until the decision of his excellency the Governor on the said Indian purchase. Mention is made in the above deed that the land sold to said Lynch is that on which the Rev. Mr. McGuire lived. Two plats of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 21st and 22d May, 1806, showing the land claimed to be on both sides of the bayou Bœuf, one hundred and sixty-nine and thirty-six hundredths acres on each side, is also filed, together with a document in the following words:

SIR: The complaint that Carraghan laid in to you, concerning the place he lived on, on bayou Bœuf, that he had a right to be paid for his labor, you know I told you I would have nothing at all to do with it at present. But, sir, you know that this land was purchased by the Rev. Mr. McGuire from the Indians; now, as I am empowered by the said McGuire to be his attorney to sell this land in four hundred acre tracts, for twenty dollars per tract, I gave Mr. Stephen Lynch a bill of sale of one tract where the said Mr. McGuire lived. What the said Carraghan lays claim to, I do hereby say, that the said Carraghan has no right to or claim to said place, as he was only a lodger with the aforesaid Mr. McGuire and me, while he lived on said place, and to make himself some corn there during the time he staid there. He cannot claim, or show any right he has to said place, as I will bring from the said Mr. McGuire's own hand.

HUGH COYLE.

No other evidence of title has been adduced. Two claims, of which this claimant is supposed to have been the original proprietor, have been confirmed by the Board; the first for two hundred and eighty arpents, under settlement by permission, and the other for two hundred arpents, under an order of survey, (see commissioners' certificate B, Nos. 631 and 698.) The basis of this claim being a purchase from Indians, which required the sanction of the Governor to render it valid, and no evidence having been adduced to establish such sanction, the undersigned commissioners cannot recommend the confirmation of this title.

No. 109. This claim is for six hundred and forty acres, on the waters of the Bushby, claimed by Samuel Levins. A deed of sale from John Tilman to the claimant, dated 26th September, 1807, is the only document of title filed with the notice. The deposition of David Devore, taken in the claim, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, 9th May, 1809, is as follows: That in the year 1803, William Mock split some rails and made a cowpen on the land claimed; that the year following John Tilman settled thereon, and inhabited and cultivated it for two years, when he sold it to the present claimant, who has resided thereon ever since. William Roe, in his testimony taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, Esq., Justice of the Peace of the parish of Catahoula, hath deposed as follows: That the tract of land claimed, lying in the parish of Catahoula, and on the waters of the Bushby bayou, containing six hundred and forty acres, was actually cultivated and inhabited on the 20th day of December, 1803, by William Mock, who was then splitting rails, making a cowpen, and other fencing, for the claimant's use, and that the said land was cultivated and inhabited for three years previous thereto by David Morgan, who was the first settler, and afterwards by John Tilman, who sold it to the present claimant; and said John Tilman was, on the 20th December, 1803, twenty-one years of age. No other evidence has been offered. It will seem that the testimony is somewhat at variance though not very contradictory. The last named witness has stated that David Morgan was the first claimant, and that William Mock was splitting rails, &c. for the claimant's use on the 20th December, 1803; but whether he alluded to the present or a former claimant, is somewhat doubtful. The present claimant, however, nor either of the two others above mentioned, having had a claim confirmed to them by the Board, or of which they or either of them were the original proprietors, and the tract claimed being the claimant's place of residence, and for which it appears by the deed of conveyance he has paid a valuable consideration, the undersigned commissioners have been induced to recommend the confirmation of the claim.

Nos. 110, 111, 112, 113, and 114. The claim to five separate tracts of land, amounting together to four thousand arpents, reported under these five numbers, is entered by Pierre Lauran, who files, in support of his claim, the following documents: 1st. The copy of a deed of conveyance, dated 27th September, 1806, passed before Julien Poydras, then judge of the parish of Pointe Coupée, by which François Reches, widow of Charles Beauvais, Charlotte Beauvais, wife of David Lejeune, and Therese Beauvais, wife of Martin Bourgeant, with the consent of their husband, sell to Pierre Lauran as follows, viz: The widow Beauvais sells forty arpents front, proceeding from her deceased husband and her deceased son James Beauvais; Charlotte and Therese Beauvais each sells twenty arpents of front, the same as it was conceded to them by the Spanish Government, the 30th May, 1797, for the price and sum of one dollar paid to them by the said Lauran. The other tract of ten arpents in front by the depth of forty, on each side of the bayou Bœuf, is claimed by Pierre Lauran, in consequence of his intermarriage with Julia Beauvais, to whom the tract was conceded. 2d. Copies of five orders of survey, each for ten arpents in front by forty in depth, on each side of bayou Bœuf, between the districts of Rapides and Avoyelles, each dated 30th May, 1797; the first in favor of Julia Beauvais, the second in favor of Theresa Beauvais, the third in favor of Charles Beauvais, the fourth in favor of Charlotte Beauvais, and the fifth in favor of James Beauvais. No original documents of titles in these claims have been adduced. The copies of the orders of survey are certified by John W. Greely, as Register of the Land Office in New Orleans, to have been taken from the records then in his possession of the "warrants of survey issued by the Spanish Government within the province of Louisiana." No other evidence, either written or oral, has been offered in support of these claims. Whether the completion of the titles in this claim were made to depend upon any conditions or not, is not known to the commissioners. It has been suggested to the Board, that the land was conceded in consideration of Mr. Beauvais having been obliged to pay to the Government a considerable sum of money, in consequence of the failure of a public officer for whom he was surety. No evidence, however, has been adduced to establish this fact. The substance only of the orders of survey seems to have been furnished; the commissioners have thought proper, therefore, to give a copy of one of them, from which a correct idea may be formed of the whole, as they are similarly worded, except as relates to the name of the person in whose favor they are issued. The one first above mentioned is in the following words: "Treinta de Mayo de mil setecientos noventa y siete, A. D., Julia Beauvais, seis arpanas de tierra de frente de cada lado del bayou du Bucyes, con quaranta de fonda, situadas entre los distritos del Rapiedo y Avoyelles." It may be proper to remark, that it is understood that the land called for in these titles is yet unoccupied, and not claimed by any other persons. The undersigned commissioners are induced to respect the deed above referred to, from the small consideration expressed in it as being intended to empower Pierre Lauran to act in behalf of certain widows and minors; they therefore recommend the confirmation in the names of the persons to whom the orders of survey appear to have been granted.

No. 115. This claim is for fifteen arpents front, by forty in depth, on bayou Bœuf, claimed under an order of survey in favor of Henry Bradley. No document or evidence of title is found with the notice of the claim. One claim of four hundred arpents, held under an order of survey to Henry Bradley, has been confirmed to Francis Fournier, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1038.

No. 116. This claim is for land, the title of which has been confirmed under another entry by commissioners' certificate B, No. 814.

No. 117. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. It is believed to be for the same tract claimed under another notice, and the title confirmed to Joseph Irwin, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1346.

No. 118. In support of this claim is filed the requête of the claimant, James McNulty, dated 15th January; the last figure in the date of the year is not legible, but appears to be 2 nought, making the date 1800. The certificate of Joseph C. Poiset, then acting as commandant, stating that the land solicited was of the domain of His Majesty, and might be accorded without prejudice, is subjoined to the petition, and bears date 16th January, 1800. The date of the requête and the commandant's certificate appear to have been altered, the last figure in the date of the year being erased, and an 0 substituted for the erased figure. The original date is too much defaced to be ascertained. The date of the plat of survey returned by Hugh Coyle, and filed in the claim, is similarly circumstanced with the document above mentioned. No other evidence of title has been adduced, and no proof of occupancy. One claim of five hundred and twenty arpents in Concordia, of which this claimant is supposed to have been the original proprietor, has been confirmed under an order of survey by commissioners' certificate B, No. 203. The validity of the title-papers being rendered uncertain on account of the erasures of their dates, and there being no other evidence in support of the claim, renders it necessary to report it as a claim which, in the opinion of the Board, ought not to be confirmed.

No. 119. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. One claim of six hundred and forty acres, of which Conrad Rickner was the original proprietor, has been confirmed under settlement by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1907.

No. 120. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 121. In this claim is filed a plat of survey, under the signature of Charles Trudeau, late Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, dated 18th June, 1800, and certified to have been made in consequence of a certified copy of the first decree of grant of the Government, by the secretary of the Government, dated 25th January, 1798, for eight arpents front by forty in depth. No other document of title has been adduced, except the declaration of the claimant, in his notice, stating that the land was occupied and cultivated on and prior to the 20th December, 1803. For the reasons applicable to this case, mentioned under reported No. 1, to which the commissioners beg leave to refer, the confirmation of this claim is recommended.

No. 122. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 6th December, 1805, with an informal deed of sale from Asel White to John Sanders, dated 19th July, 1804, assigned to William Cochran 11th January, 1805, and a formal deed of conveyance from said Cochran to the present claimant, George Murray, dated 24th June, 1805, are the only documents of title filed in this claim. The quantity of land sold by White to Sanders is not mentioned; the consideration is five thousand good fence-rails. In the deed from John W. Sanders to the present claimant, six hundred and forty acres are mentioned, and the price five hundred dollars. John Barrow, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, 27th April, 1809, hath deposed: That Thomas Ashley cultivated the land in 1801, and resided on and cultivated it until the last of August of the ensuing year, and then removed, and the land remained uninhabited for two or three years; that Asel White worked on the land some time in the summer of 1803, and cut down about three acres, but did not inhabit nor cultivate the land during that year; that on the 20th December that year, said White was over twenty-one years of age, the head of a family, and an inhabitant of Louisiana. One claim of six hundred and twenty and twenty-five hundredths acres, of which Asel White is supposed to have been the original proprietor, has been confirmed under settlement in Avoyelles, by certificate B, No. 1528.

No. 123. The title to the land claimed by this entry having already been confirmed, it is deemed unnecessary to notice the testimony taken in the claim. See commissioners' certificate B, No. 742, confirming the title under another notice.

No. 124. This claim is for two thousand six hundred arpents on bayou Bœuf, entered by Hugh Mulhollen, who has filed the following documents in support of the claim: 1st. The copy of an instrument of writing, filed in the office of the public records of Rapides, dated 18th May, 1798, of the following import: That the Rev. John McGuire having purchased some land from the Choctaw Indians on bayou Bœuf, by deed dated 20th October, 1797, and five of the chiefs of the Indians not having received payment to their satisfaction, Thomas Thompson, syndic of that quarter, by the order of Cæsar Archinard, alcaide of the post of Rapides, had called a meeting of those Indians, and, in the presence of Stephen Lynch, James Montgomery, and Henry Bradley, the said McGuire had paid the said Indians to their satisfaction. The marks of the Indians are affixed to the instrument, and it is attested by said Lynch, Bradley, and Montgomery. 2d. A plat of survey signed by Hugh Coyle, dated 20th January, 1798, representing the boundaries of the tract claimed, two thousand six hundred arpents. 3d. A plat of survey, purporting to be a certified copy, given by Charles Trudeau, late Surveyor General of the province of Louisiana, but neither the hand-writing nor the signature appears to be his. It is said, and believed, to be in the hand-writing of the daughter of said Trudeau, by his command. The plat is of a different form from that of Coyle's, and for a much larger quantity of land, to wit, four thousand six hundred and ten arpents. The certificate subjoined to this plat of survey is in substance as follows.

I certify that the present plat is conformable to the original plat transmitted to me by Hugh Coyle, deputy surveyor, under date of the 9th March, this present year; and that the only difference is, that said deputy has made a mistake in calculating the quantity, he having made it six thousand eight hundred and seventy-four arpents, when, according to my verification, it is but four thousand six hundred and ten arpents.

CARLOS TRUDEAU.

It will be seen that Mr. Trudeau's certificate refers to a plat returned by Hugh Coyle, under date of 9th March, 1798, and not to the one filed in the claim which bears date 20th January, 1798. 4th. A deed of conveyance from John McGuire to the claimant, Hugh Mulhollen, dated at New Orleans, the 28th July, 1804, by which the said McGuire, for the sum of three hundred dollars, paid to him by the said Mulholen long previous to the date of the deed, sells two thousand six hundred acres, being all that part of the land purchased by said McGuire from the Choctaw Indians in August, 1798, and improved and possessed by him, the said McGuire, since, conformable to the plat of survey made by Hugh Coyle, first above mentioned. No other document of title has been adduced. Nicholas Chatelin, before John Thompson, Esq. at Rapides, the 4th July, 1809, hath deposed as follows: That he knows that Mr. McGuire made a purchase of the Choctaw tribe of Indians, and that this deponent paid one hundred dollars in goods to the said Indians, for the said McGuire, in consideration thereof; and the Indians appeared to be satisfied with the payment of the money, but complained of the cattle of the white people destroying their corn; that the land purchased lay on both sides of the bayou Bœuf, and this deponent understood that a tree was marked, about five or six acres below the mouth of bayou Clear, for the lower boundary, but this deponent was not present when it was made, nor ever saw it; that he knows and can show the upper boundary, but cannot describe it; that this deponent was present when the said boundary was fixed on; and that Mr. Brewster was also present; that after examining a place for that purpose, it took a small part of Mr. Brewster's field, and they removed a little lower down the bayou, and all persons present appeared to be satisfied; that after Mr. McGuire left the country, the Indians complained that he had not paid them another hundred dollars which he had promised them, and they reclaimed that part of the land lying below the bayou Clear; that this deponent was directed by Valentine Layssard to make the line between the white people and the Indians a long time before the purchase above mentioned, and it was from that line they removed when Mr. McGuire fixed the boundary of his purchase. The deposition of Valentine Layssard, taken 1st July, 1809, before said Register at Rapides, is as follows: That in the year 1798, a sale was passed by Chassan Camillio, chief of the Choctaw tribe of Indians, for a part of the land on bayou Bœuf, on which said tribe of Indians then resided, to Father McGuire; and that the said sale appeared to be fair, and both parties were content; and the land claimed is a part of the land sold as above mentioned. The deposition of Charles Cannon, taken the 27th December, 1808, is as follows: That the claimant, Hugh Mulholen, a man above the age of twenty-one years, and the head of a family, commenced his improvement upon the land claimed on both sides of the bayou Bœuf, in the year 1798, and the deponent has reason to believe has actually inhabited and cultivated the same ever since; that he does not know for whom the land was improved on the north side of the bayou, nor whether any person ever resided on that side. This deponent further saith, that he carried the chain when they were surveying the said tract of land in the year 1797 or 1798; that Mr. Brewster was present when they commenced running the line between him, the said Brewster, and the said Mulholen; that some words passed between them respecting the said line, but what they were this deponent does not at this time recollect. No other evidence appears to have been taken in the claim. The claimant has stated in his notice, that if the purchase from the Indians should not be recognised by Government as valid, then he would insist on six hundred and forty acres being allowed to himself on the south side of the bayou Bœuf, and the same quantity on the north side of said bayou, for Nancy Mulholen, but wishes it understood that this last mentioned claim shall not be understood as showing a disposition in the claimant to relinquish his claim to the balance of the land, if provisions for allowing purchases from Indians should be made by Congress. One claim for two thousand arpents, under a requête, has been confirmed to this claimant by commissioners' certificate B, No. 900. No evidence has been adduced to show that this purchase from the Indians was ever in any manner sanctioned by the Governor of the province; and, by recurring to the claim of Stephen Lynch, reported under No. 108, which claim seems to be a part of the same tract purchased by McGuire from the Indians, it will be seen that the sale from the Indians was deemed by the alcaïde, Cæsar Archinard, as being of no effect without the approbation of the Governor. The sale made by Hugh Coyle, agent of McGuire, to the said Stephen Lynch, also shows that the purchase from the Indians was not considered as giving any title to the purchaser before the sanction of the Governor should be obtained. The confirmation of this claim cannot be recommended, not even for the parts claimed by right of settlement, because of the claimant having been already confirmed in the title which he held under the Spanish Government for a large tract of land, and because there is no evidence of the ratification of the Indian purchase by the Governor. The justice of a suitable indemnity, in this and other cases of a similar nature, for extinguishing the Indian title, is respectfully suggested to Congress.

No. 125. Alexander Fulton and William Miller claim a tract of land lying on both sides of bayou Bœuf, in the county of Rapides, by purchase from the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes of Indians, containing forty-six thousand eight hundred arpents. The notice of this claim is accompanied by the following documents of title.

1. A memorial by Nicholas Chatelin, supported by the signatures of several Indians of the Choctaw tribe, of which the following is the translation:

1802, this day, the 4th of the month of May, I, Nicholas Chatelin, and in presence of witnesses, have the honor to represent to you, that the Indians of the Choctaw village have come to my house, saying that they have no property to give in payment of their debts except their lands, and that their wives and children were willing to sell their village. I beg of you, Mr. Valentine, to be so good as to do all that is necessary in this affair. They have all signed this, to satisfy you of their will to sell the land to pay their debts. The sum due to me is seven-hundred and forty-four dollars.

Names and marks of the Indians, with their free will:

I certify to you that this is true, and that it has been proposed by the Indians of their free will; the chiefs of the Beluxy having offered them as much land near their village as they should wish. It is by their own proposal and request that I send this to you; it being a business in which you are to represent them. I beg of you, Mr. Valentine, to bring this affair to a conclusion as soon as possible, as it is in your power to have it done if they do not change.

Messrs. Simon Saucier, François Marcot, Pierre Sumere, and Antoine Revoil, were present to all the above.

Witnesses present: Antoine Revoil, François Marcot, Simon Saucier, his x mark, Nicholas Chatelin, his x mark, N. C. Louis Blampin, his x mark.

The Pascagoulas are waiting your answer to decide themselves to pay their debts. They wish to follow the examples of the Choctaws.

2. Sale by the Choctaw Indians to Miller and Fulton, of which the following is a translation:

BAYOU BŒUF, May 14, 1802.

I, Valentine Layssard, captain commandant of the militia of the post of Rapides, and commissioned by the Government as agent for the Indian tribes in this district, having been called by the Choctaw nation, and at the request of several of the Indians' creditors, whose accounts are here annexed, as acknowledged before me and my assisting witnesses, the said Indians have declared as follows: That to pay all they are indebted by the above-mentioned accounts, it was their intention to sell their portion of land which has been granted to them by his lordship the Baron de Carondelet, to form their village and their fields, selling to Messrs. Miller and Fulton, for the price and sum of three thousand seven hundred and twenty-four dollars, on the following conditions, to wit: 1st. A receipt from the purchasers for their account, amounting to two thousand three hundred and two dollars. 2dly. To Nicholas Chatelin the sum of seven hundred and eighty-five dollars. 3dly. To Pierre Sumere the sum of one hundred and eighty-five dollars. 4thly. To Antoine Deshauteil the sum of two hundred and twenty-two dollars. 5thly. To Antoine Revoil the sum of two hundred and thirty dollars. And in presence of the chiefs Beluxy and Pascagoula, who give to them a sufficient portion of theirs to make their village and fields; and Messrs. Miller and Fulton do agree to discharge the said Indians the sums they are indebted by their accounts with them, and to pay the above said accounts as soon as these presents shall be confirmed by the Governor; obliging themselves to perform then what is above stipulated, and then to take possession of their purchase, which has been bounded above by a cotanier, (sycamore,) marked in my presence and of the chiefs assembled M F, and below joining the land of the Pascagoula nation, where two copelin (sweet gum) trees are marked with the same characters. Such are the conditions by the contracting parties who have signed, promising to comply fully with these presents; and the above said chiefs have requested of me to represent them in every thing respecting this affair.

In witness of which the acting witnesses have signed, and I have attested it the same day and year as above written.

JOHN BRUSTER,
WILLIAM MILLER,
HENRY BRADLEY.

Attest:

VALENTINE LAYSSARD.

RAPIDES, May 18, 1802.

I certify these presents to have been made by Don Valentine Layssard, at the request of the Choctaw nation, debtors of those above named; and having no other means to satisfy those to whom they were indebted, were resolved to sell the land granted to them by the Government, so as to release themselves from debt, and retire further from the settlements of the white people, whose cattle are daily destroying their crops.

J. CHEV. POISET.

RAPIDES, May 18, 1812.

I certify this present copy to be conformable to the original deposited among the public papers of this post.

VALENTINE LAYSSARD.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20, 1802.

Let this deed of sale be approved in all its parts.

SALCEDO.

WILLIAM MILLER,
DANIEL CLARK.

3. Sale by the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians to Miller and Fulton, of which the foregoing is a translation:

Don Valentine Layssard, commandant of the militia and Judge sub-delegate of the Royal Hacienda, 14th May, 1802, appeared before me and my assisting witnesses, the chiefs of the Pascagoula and Beluxy nations, Chicacha Puscuh, and De Blanc, chief, brother of the grand chief Mingo and Melad, in presence of all the warriors of both nations, and before my assisting witnesses, who say that they do sell forever to William Miller and Alexander Fulton, for them, their heirs, and successors, the land granted to them by the superior Government for their settlements at the district of Rapides, on the bayou Bœuf, beginning above at the Chataux village, and including all the land of the Beluxy to the domain of His Majesty, free and without any incumbrance of mortgage, or any impediment whatever; and this we grant for the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars, payable in merchandize, at the prices of New Orleans, and a discharge from the debts which we owe to the purchasers by our preceding accounts. For which sum of one thousand five hundred dollars in merchandize, we do give an acquittance; the said Miller and Fulton having given their obligation to deliver the said goods to Don Valentine Layssard, our commissary, renouncing, in favor of the purchasers, all the benefit of the laws, special and general, of which we might avail ourselves. And for greater security and validity of the present sale, we do request the said Valentine Layssard to sanction this with his assisting witnesses, having made a cross as a proof of our fidelity to the sovereign, and believing in all that is required of Christians.

I, Don Valentine Layssard, certify that the above named chiefs and warriors have granted this sale to Messrs. William Miller and Alexander Fulton, of their free will, and in the best requisite form; and the interpreters, not knowing how to write, have made their marks in presence of my assisting witnesses.

JAQUES LAMOTH, PIRET FILS.
VALENTINE LAYSSARD.

I approve the preceding sale, made in due form, and made before the commandant, Don Valentine Layssard; by whom it appears to have been authorized and sanctioned, due faith and credit being due to it in court and out of it; and that it may so appear, I sign it in New Orleans, the 19th July, 1802.

MANUEL SALCEDO.
ANDRES LOPEZ ARMESTO.

4. The obligation of Messrs. Miller and Fulton to pay one thousand five hundred dollars in merchandize to Valentine Layssard, for the use of the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians, of which the following is a translation:

In the post of Rapides, this 22d day of November, 1803, we, Don William Miller and Don Alexander Fulton, inhabitants and merchants of the post of Rapides, before the commandant of the militia and commissary of the Indian nations named by the superior Government, do receive as valid the sale and delivery of the land, of which the sale has been legally made to us before the said commandant; and do oblige ourselves by these presents to pay and deliver the price expressed in said sale, being one thousand five hundred dollars in merchandize, which the said Don Valentine Layssard is to receive for the chiefs and warriors of the nations Pascagoula and Beluxy; and that we may be compelled to the same, we sign these presents in presence of the said commandant and his assisting witnesses, at the said post, dated as above.

WILLIAM MILLER,

Witnesses: JAQUES LAMOTHE, JOSEPH CHEVALIER.

RAPIDES, November 22, 1803.

I do receive the above obligation.

VALENTINE LAYSSARD.

This is a copy of the original remaining in the archives under my care, dated as above.

LAYSSARD.

5. A letter in the hand-writing, and with the signature of Mr. Carlos Trudeau, late Surveyor General of the Spanish province of Louisiana, giving special powers to Samuel Levi Wells to survey the land sold by the Choctaw nation to Miller and Fulton, of which the following is a translation:

NEW ORLEANS, October 12, 1803.

I give special power to Mr. Samuel Levi Wells to proceed, as my representative, and in my name, to the surveying of a tract of land sold by the Choctaw nation to Messrs. Miller and Fulton, in conformity with the deed passed before the commandant, Don Valentine Layssard, dated 14th May, 1802, and ratified by the Governor General, in date the 20th June of the same year. The survey not to be made until after the communication of this power to the commandant or syndic of the quarter whose authority we request in the execution of the same.

CARLOS TRUDEAU, Surveyor General,

6. A plat of survey by the above-named Samuel Levi Wells, embracing a tract of forty-six thousand eight hundred superficial arpents of land, in which are included the villages of the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy Indians; a copy of which plat will be found subjoined to this report.

7. A ratification by the Beluxy Indians of the sale made by them to Messrs. Miller and Fulton, dated 4th May, 1805, in the following words:

Whereas doubts have arisen in the minds of us, the chiefs and people of the Beluxy tribe of Indians, whether Messrs. Miller and Fulton have paid to us our full proportion of the purchase money due us from said gentlemen for our lands and possessions on bayou Bœuf we sold them, agreeable to an instrument of sale, under date the 14th May, 1802; and whereas we, the said chiefs, in order to clear up said doubts, had a meeting this day at the house of Mr. Willing Wells, on bayou Bœuf, present, Messrs. Valentine Layssard, our late agent, Frederick Walter, agent for Miller and Fulton, Antoine Deshautel, Willing Wells, Calan Chatelin, Francis Bradley, and François Millan, of bayou Bœuf, when all the accounts with respect to the sale of our lands aforesaid were laid before us, and the payments as made proved and explained to us in our language by the said Valentine Layssard: therefore know ye, that we, the undersigned chiefs and others of the Beluxy nation of Indians, declare that a full and detailed account being rendered and explained to us by said Valentine Layssard, accompanied by the necessary vouchers, our apprehensions, above alluded to, have been ill founded and unjust, and that we have received of said Miller and Fulton the full and entire sum for which we, said chiefs and others of the Beluxy nation, sold to them, the said Miller and Fulton, all our lands and possessions on bayou Bœuf, agreeable to the above instrument of sale, bearing date as aforesaid; and in this solemn and irrevocable manner, we, the chiefs aforesaid, for us, our heirs, and representatives, discharge and acquit therefrom said Miller and Fulton, their heirs, executors, and administrators, discharging and disavowing all further claims on the said Miller and Fulton of what kind and nature whatsoever, for our said land on bayou Bœuf, sold to them as aforesaid: and we, said chiefs and people, would this instant deliver a full and peaceable possession of the premises sold as aforesaid to Miller and Fulton, or their attorney, had we not, in full confidence of the several promises of Mr. Alexander Fulton not to disturb us soon, begun a crop in our village, which we cannot now leave without the greatest injury to us and our families: and we consider the liberty given to us as an indulgence and favor on the part of said Miller and Fulton; to recompense which, in some degree, we, the aforementioned chiefs, promise most faithfully, and in the most binding manner, to deliver to said Miller and Fulton, on the first day of October next ensuing, all our lands and possessions of said bayou Bœuf, peaceably and without committing any waste thereon, as the rightful property of said Miller and Fulton, and not to settle or make any improvements within the boundaries of the said lands. And we hereby fully and entirely recognise the lower boundary of said land, known by a tree on said bayou Bœuf, marked M and F, several leagues below our village, following the bayou. And we, the said chiefs, do further promise and engage not in anywise to disturb or molest any person or persons who, under authority of the said Miller and Fulton, may settle on any of our lands so sold which are not immediately cultivated by us or our people, although the surrender of the same as aforesaid should not yet have taken place.

In witness whereof, we, the said chiefs, after hearing the above read, and being truly translated to us by Mr. Valentine Layssard, have hereunto, in presence of the above-named persons, (who most of them understood our language,) set our hands and seals. Done at bayou Bœuf, May 4, 1805.

Testimony. In this claim the following testimony has been adduced: 1st. Valentine Layssard, examined before the Board of Commissioners, the 1st of August, 1808, hath deposed as follows: That about thirty years ago, the Choctaw nation of Indians were settled upon Red river, and about that period some of their chiefs removed to the bayou Bœuf, and settled at the place now occupied by Mr. Miller, upon its being represented to them by the commandant that it was improper that the chiefs should live on bayou Bœuf, and the balance of the nation on Red river; the nation moved to the bayou Bœuf, and settled themselves upon the said bayou from the first mentioned place, where Mr. Miller now resides, up to the bayou Robert; which last mentioned bayou was established as the boundary of the lands claimed by them, by Mr. Layssard, father of this deponent; that after residing upon the said land for several years, they invited Nicholas Chatelin to settle upon the said land, and relinquish to him a part of the said land from the bayou Soumaureaux upwards, but how far this deponent does not know; that the said Indians afterwards sold the land lying from the bayou Soumaureaux to bayou Clear, to John McGuire, but this deponent does not know the depth of the land parted with to the said Chatelin and McGuire, but before the last mentioned sale to McGuire, he made a representation to the Governor, recommending that the Indians settled upon bayou Bœuf should be allowed a double depth, but to which representation he never received any answer; that some years ago, during the administration of the Baron de Carondelet, the Baron de Carondelet directed this deponent to establish the Beluxy, the Pascagoula, and the Choctaw tribes of Indians on the Catahouta; but the said

Indians being opposed to settle at that place, this deponent demanded of them whether it would be agreeable to them to establish themselves on the bayou Bœuf, and, on their consenting thereto, he assigned them lands on the said bayou, below the lands claimed by the Choctaw Indians, with the approbation and consent of the said Choctaw Indians; that the limits of the said lands assigned to the Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes of Indians above mentioned were from the lands claimed by the Choctaw Indians down to the mouth of the bayou Crocodile, and that he wrote to the Governor to that effect, who approved of what he had done; but that in writing to the Governor, and in mentioning to the Indians the limits of the land assigned to them, he did not inform them of any particular depth; but that in another letter which he wrote to the Governor on the same subject, he recommended that they should have eighty acres on each side of the bayou; but that, in consequence of his receiving no answer to that letter, he had always supposed that they were only entitled to forty. This deponent further says and declares, that by a deed of conveyance made by the Beluxy and Pascagoula nations of Indians to William Miller and Alexander Fulton, dated the 14th day of May, 1802, it was the intention of the said Indians to convey to the said Miller and Fulton all their lands lying on bayou Bœuf to the lower line on the said bayou. This deponent further deposes and saith, that the bond mentioned in the deed of conveyance above mentioned to have been given by the said Fulton and Miller for fifteen hundred dollars, payable in merchandise at the New Orleans prices, as a part of the consideration mentioned in the said deed, has been fully paid and discharged by the said Fulton and Miller. 2dly. Nicholas Chatelin, examined the 27th May, 1808, before Richard Claiborne, Esq., judge of the parish of Rapides, authorized for that purpose by a commission from the Board, bearing date the 6th April, 1808, hath deposed: That about twenty years ago, being invited by the Choctaw tribe of Indians, who were then in possession of the lands on bayou Bœuf, and had then villages at and in the neighborhood of the place where at present the plantation of William Miller is established, he came to the said bayou Bœuf to reside, and that the said Choctaw Indians informed him that their claim to land on the said bayou, at that time, commenced at the beginning of the high lands, some distance above the deponent's present residence; that they extended on both sides, (the width the deponent never understood,) and continued with the course of the said bayou Bœuf, and on each side thereof, to the upper boundary of the Alabama, viz.: immediately above their upper clearing; that after a certain portion of land had been assigned him, the said deponent, by the said Choctaw Indians, of which his present plantation is a part, he went to Etienne Laysard, who was at that time commandant of the post of Rapides, for the purpose of obtaining his permission to settle on the land assigned him by the Indians as aforesaid, who told him that it was necessary to obtain previously the permission of the Choctaws; but on this deponent's stating to him that the permission of the said Indians was already obtained, the said commandant immediately gave this deponent the permission he requested; and that this deponent thereupon commenced a settlement on the plantation where Ennemond Meullion at present resides, and retained quiet and peaceable possession thereof, until he, this deponent, sold it; that the Beluxy tribe of Indians came to the bayou Bœuf about twelve years ago, and the Pascagoulas about ten years ago; and that the Choctaws assigned their lands to the Beluxies; the lands where the Beluxies afterwards established their villages, and from thence downwards towards the upper clearing of the Alabamas; and to the Pascagoulas the Choctaws assigned the lands where the Pascagoulas afterwards established their villages, and between the Choctaw villages and the Beluxy villages; that some time previous to the Pascagoulas settling on the said bayou, Jesse Kirkland and Martin Trentham settled a small piece of land at or near the place where the said tribe afterwards erected their village, which was lent them by the Choctaws, on the express condition that they, the said Trentham and Kirkland, should repair and keep in order the guns of the said Choctaws; that the said Trentham and Kirkland continued about a year on the said piece of land, when Martin Trentham stole a horse from the said Indians, and made his escape, and Kirkland immediately afterwards abandoned the land; and that neither the said Trentham nor the said Kirkland ever returned for the purpose of again settling on, or in any manner using, the said land; that Madame Melon and a Mr. Pepin afterwards settled at the bayou Castor, above the Pascagoula village; but on complaint being made thereof by the Pascagoula tribe to Valentine Laysard, who had succeeded his father Etienne Laysard in the office of commandant of the post, they, the said Madame Melon and Mr. Pepin, were ordered to remove, and did move off said claim accordingly; that repeated applications were made to the Choctaw, Beluxy, and Pascagoula tribes of Indians for permission to settle on their lands as aforesaid, but that they, the said tribes of Indians, uniformly refused to admit any settlers within their boundaries, as above mentioned, viz.: from the beginning of the high lands, on both sides of said bayou, some small distance above this deponent's present residence, and from thence downwards with the course of the said bayou with all the land on each side thereof, (to what depth this deponent knows not,) to the upper clearing of the Alabamas; that the only settlement on the land of the Indians as aforesaid, which the said Indians ever consented to or permitted, were those that were made on the land assigned this deponent, or the upper part of the Indian lands held by the Choctaws when this deponent first removed to the bayou Bœuf, and on the land purchased of the said Indians by the Rev. Mr. McGuire, until and subsequent to the purchase made by Miller and Fulton of the Choctaws, Pascagoulas, and Beluxies; that in May or June, 1801, this deponent was present at a general meeting held between all the tribes as aforesaid and Alexander Fulton, one of the house of Miller and Fulton, at Marat's plantation on the said bayou, when an adjustment of accounts took place between the said Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes of Indians, and Miller and Fulton, and a verbal bargain and sale was made to the said Miller and Fulton by the said Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribe of Indians of all their lands on the said bayou, as aforesaid; and that immediately after the bargain and sale as aforesaid, and in conformity therewith, they, the said Miller and Fulton, assumed to this deponent the payment of seven hundred and eighty-five dollars, (a debt due by the said Choctaw tribe of Indians to this deponent,) as also the sum of three hundred and thirty-one dollars on account and at the request of the Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes, which sums were afterwards paid to this deponent by the said Miller and Fulton; that this deponent was present at another meeting between the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribe of Indians, and Alexander Fulton, of the house of Miller and Fulton, as aforesaid, which took place at the house of this deponent about one year after the former, relative to certain parts of the consideration given by Miller and Fulton for the land as aforesaid, which had been paid at that time. At the first meeting he heard the Indians, as aforesaid, acknowledge themselves largely indebted to Miller and Fulton for merchandise that had been furnished them, and he understood these debts were a part of the consideration given by the said Miller and Fulton for the land. This deponent believes that the consideration given by the said Miller and Fulton, for the land as aforesaid must have been very large, as he recollects that they, the said Miller and Fulton, were to pay all the debts of the Choctaws, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribe of Indians, and that they did assume, to this deponent's knowledge, the payments of the debts due by all the tribes of Indians, as aforesaid, to the following persons, viz.: Antoine Deshautel, Mr. Revoil, Pierre Sumere, Valentine Laysard, and Mr. Despalin; but the sums so assumed this deponent knows not.

3d. Antoine Lepoint, alias Antoine Deshautel, examined the 14th December, 1808, before Richard Claiborne, Esq., authorized as aforesaid, hath deposed, that about eleven years ago he came to bayou Bœuf to reside, at which time the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes of Indians were settled and living on the said bayou, to wit, the Choctaw tribe had their villages at the place where the plantation of William Miller is at present established; the Pascagoulas had their villages a considerable distance (perhaps a league, or a league and a half) below the Choctaws; and the villages of the Beluxies were situated (in the belief and opinion of this deponent) about an equal distance below those of the Pascagoula tribe; that, when he (this deponent) came to the bayou Bœuf to reside, the tribes of Indians aforesaid claimed all the lands on both sides thereof, from the lower line of Captain Bruster, and from thence descending with the course of the said bayou, to the boundary of the Alabama tribe of Indians; that he (this deponent) was present at a meeting between the said tribes of Indians and Alexander Fulton, of the house of Miller and Fulton, which took place some time before the written sale from the said tribes of their lands to Miller and Fulton. This deponent well recollects that this meeting was produced by the proposal on the part of the Indian tribes as aforesaid to make sale of their lands, as aforesaid, to the said Miller and Fulton, and for the purpose of paying the debts which they owed the said Miller and Fulton, and other persons; and this deponent understood, from the acknowledgment of the aforesaid tribes, at the meeting aforesaid, as also from the said Alexander Fulton, that the debts then due from the tribes aforesaid to the said Miller and Fulton, amounted to a very large sum, but the amount thereof this deponent cannot exactly recollect; and that, at this meeting, all the aforesaid tribes made a verbal bargain and sale of all their lands on the bayou Bœuf, as aforesaid, to the said Alexander Fulton, for himself and his partner, William Miller; and that, in consequence of said sale, and as a part of the consideration given for the said land, and at the request of the Choctaw tribe, the said Miller and Fulton paid this deponent two hundred and twenty-two dollars, which the said Choctaw tribe of Indians was at that time indebted to this deponent; and, at the request of the Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes, and also as a part of the consideration for the land as aforesaid, the said Miller and Fulton paid said deponent, as agent for M. Duffel, and on his own account, the further sum of twelve hundred and seventeen dollars and thirty-seven and a half cents, which was the amount then due by the said Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes to the said Duffel and this deponent. This deponent further recollects that the said Miller and Fulton, at the request of the said tribes of Indians, and as a part of the consideration for the land as aforesaid, paid to various persons the debts which the tribes of Indians as aforesaid were owing to those persons, viz. Antoine Revoil, Nicholas Chatelin, and Valentine Layssard, and also assumed to Pierre Sumere, but the several sums he does not now recollect.

4th. François Hebert, aged forty-one years, examined in person, under oath, before the Board, the 12th August, 1811, hath deposed that, seventeen or eighteen years ago, he went on the bayou Bœuf, with the design of making a settlement adjoining a tract of land then inhabited by Martin Trentham, and immediately above his habitation, but that he was refused permission by the Choctaw chief, who alleged that the land belonged to him and his warriors, who were then residing in a village about five or six miles above Trentham's; that, interrogating the chief as to the reason for Trentham being permitted to remain on those lands, the deponent was informed that they did not consider Trentham as having any title in the land; that he was permitted to remain there at the will of the Indians, on account of his being useful to them in repairing their guns. The deponent further saith that he has reason to believe the Choctaw Indians had been settled on the bayou Bœuf eight or nine years previous to his application for land within the bounds claimed by them; that, about fourteen or fifteen years ago, the Beluxy Indians settled on the bayou Bœuf, about four or five miles below Trentham's place; and, in a year or two thereafter, the Pascagoula tribe established their village at the place where Trentham had resided, who had previously abandoned the place, for reasons unknown to this deponent. The deponent further saith that he has been informed by Valentine Layssard that the Choctaw Indians had a grant from the Spanish Government for the land on the bayou Bœuf, embracing their village, but to what extent the deponent does not know; and that the Beluxies and Pascagoulas had settled with the permission of the Choctaw. The deponent being asked whether he had any knowledge of a sale having been made by those Indians to Messrs. Miller and Fulton, answers that he was present at a conference between the chiefs of those villages and Miller and Fulton, he thinks about eight or nine years ago, when he acted as interpreter between the Indians and those gentlemen; and that at that time the said Indians agreed to sell the whole of their possessions on the bayou Bœuf to the said Miller and Fulton, but for what price or consideration the deponent does not know; that this contract was very soon afterwards carried into effect, (as this deponent has been informed,) by entering into writings, at which ceremony the deponent was not present.

5th. The testimony of Valentine Layssard, taken on the 11th November, 1812, before Richard Claiborne, Esq., judge of the parish of Rapides, authorized for that purpose by commission from this Board, as follows: the said Valentine Layssard, being duly sworn, saith that he, as commandant and Indian agent at Rapides, and, by a special order contained in a letter from the Baron de Carondelet, did, immediately previous to the settlement of the Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes of Indians on the bayou Bœuf, assign to those two tribes, jointly with the Choctaw tribe, which was settled there, all the lands on each side of the bayou, from the mouth of bayou Clear, following the course of the said bayou Bœuf down to the upper line of the Alabama tribe. The deponent further saith that the letter containing the aforesaid order from the Baron de Carondelet was positive; that the reason given by the baron for this extensive allotment of land to the aforesaid Indian tribes was the remote situation of the tract of country so assigned, and also the less probability of intoxication from the white inhabitants, as well, also, as the little value set upon the land, by not being adjacent to navigable waters, and having no prairie; that, at the time of the sale from the Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes of their right of the aforesaid lands to Miller and Fulton, the said tribes were indebted to Miller and Fulton between four thousand five hundred and five thousand dollars, but the deponent does not recollect the exact sum; that this debt, although not noticed in the deed of conveyance, was the reason why the purchase as aforesaid was made of the said tribes by the said Miller and Fulton; and, in consequence thereof, the said Miller and Fulton discharged the said tribes from the said debt; that the allotment mentioned was officially communicated by the deponent, as commandant and Indian agent, to the said Baron de Carondelet, who approved of the same; that the official letter and order of the Baron de Carondelet before mentioned by some means got out of the hands of the deponent, and is lost or mislaid, so that it cannot be found by said deponent; that the said sale made by the said Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes of Indians to the said Miller and Fulton, embraced and transferred all the right which they held therein to the said lands, but that the said sale had no specific depth on either side of the bayou Bœuf, nor was any lower boundary mentioned, but that they sold all the right they had therein; that, at the time of the aforesaid sale, a much larger body of land, of equal quality, and better situated, could have been obtained in the district of Rapides for a smaller sum than was paid by the said Miller and Fulton for this claim of forty-six thousand eight hundred arpents, and that the sole motive of the purchase by Miller and Fulton was to receive a consideration for the debt; that the intimate knowledge of these facts by the deponent arise from the discharge of his duties and intercourse between the parties; that the quantity of land generally assigned by the Spanish Government to Indian tribes depended on the local situation of the lands, and the number of individuals composing tribes; that the deponent has never known a smaller quantity than a league square to be assigned to any one tribe, let their number be what it might; and that, in one case, namely, the Appalachie tribe, (a small tribe,) a much larger quantity than a league square of lands of the first quality and situation on the Red river was assigned to them; that the number of individuals belonging to and incorporated with the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes, at the time of the allotment of land as aforesaid on the bayou Bœuf, and of the sale to Miller and Fulton, as aforesaid, could not be less than five hundred souls; that the father of this deponent was commissioned as commandant of the post of Rapides, and came to the said post forty-five years ago, on whose death the deponent succeeded as commandant, Indian agent, and sub-delegate of the Intendant General of Louisiana, which powers and duties he continued to exercise until some short time previous to the American change of Government; that the present claim of Miller and Fulton under the purchase does not embrace one-half of the quantity allotted to the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes, and that the debt of between four and five thousand dollars before mentioned is entirely distinct from, and independent of, the merchandise paid to the said Indian tribes, and debts due by them to other persons than the said Miller and Fulton, and which debts the said Miller and Fulton assumed and paid.

6th. The testimony of Antoine Revoil, taken on the 14th November, 1812, before Richard Claiborne, Esq., under commission as aforesaid, as follows: And also came Antoine Revoil, who being duly sworn, saith that he, the said Antoine Revoil, was present at the time when the sale of lands took place from the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy Indians to Miller and Fulton, when the sum of nearly five thousand dollars appeared to be due from the Beluxy and Pascagoula tribes to the said Miller and Fulton, which debt or sum so due to them was the reason why the said Miller and Fulton made the purchase of the lands aforesaid; and, in consequence of said purchase the said Miller and Fulton did give an acquittal for said sum. The deponent further says he remembers that in looking over the papers of Valentine Layssard, while the said

Valentine acted as commandant of the post of Rapides, he (the deponent) saw a letter from the Baron de Carondelet addressed to the said Valentine Laysard, approving the conduct of the said Valentine in having placed the said tribes of Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy Indians on the bayou Bœuf, and allotted them lands above the Alabama tribe; that the deponent knows that the price paid by Miller and Fulton for the claim, under its present extent of forty-six thousand eight hundred arpents, was much higher than the customary rates of other lands, more conveniently situated, in the post of Rapides; that the deponent was many times at the villages of the tribes aforesaid, and he conceives that the individuals who composed and were incorporated with the said tribes exceeded the number of five hundred.

7th. The testimony of Bolan Laysard, taken also on the 14th November, 1812, in pursuance of the same commission, as follows: And also came Etienne, alias Bolan Laysard, who deposes that he knows the Pascagoula, Beluxy, and Choctaw tribes of Indians; had dealings with Miller and Fulton to a large amount; and that lands better situated in the post of Rapides than those derived from the said Indians by the said Miller and Fulton on the bayou Bœuf, bore, at the time of the sale, a mere nominal price. The deponent also saith that the number of Indians composing the said tribes amounted to about five thousand souls.

8th. The testimony of William Brown, taken on the same day, to wit, 14th November, 1812, in pursuance of the same commission, as follows: And also came William Brown, who, being duly sworn, saith that he has lived in the parish of Rapides between twenty-two and twenty-five years, and, somewhere about twelve or thirteen years ago, he purchased a tract of land of six hundred arpents, situate on the bayou Rapides, of first-rate quality, for the price of one hundred dollars, the titles of which are complete. The deponent further saith that the price he gave for said land was considered generally by the inhabitants to be a high price, and that he was laughed at for having given such a sum.

9th. The testimony of Pierre Baillio, taken on the same day, under the same commission, as followeth: And also came Pierre Baillio, who, being duly sworn, saith that, in his own opinion, wood lands on the bayou Rapides, in the year 1802, would be a high price at twenty-five cents per arpent, and that he has lived on the bayou Rapides, near the mouth thereof, and in the immediate neighborhood of the place where the town of Alexandria has since been erected, about eighteen years.

10th. The testimony of Michel Le Prerie, taken on the same day, under the same commission, to wit, 14th November, 1812, as follows: And also came Michel Le Prerie, who, being duly sworn, saith that his father and his family came to live at Rapides about forty-eight years ago, where his father died, and the family has resided on the bayou Rapides ever since; that about fifteen years ago his father sold a tract of land situated in the settlement of said bayou, of three arpents front, and forty back, with a field on it, for thirty dollars, and one other tract of two arpents front and forty back, with a field on it, was sold by the sister of the deponent for twenty-five dollars. These tracts lay in the best improved settlement on bayou Rapides, and within a short mile and a half of the junction of the said bayou with Red river. The deponent further states, that about eight years ago he bought four arpents front, with forty back, situated in the heart of the upper settlement of Rapides, for the price of fifty dollars; and that all the lands therein stated are of the first quality, and the titles to which have been confirmed by the Board of Commissioners.

The undersigned commissioners are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed in part only. The precise quantity of land to which these three tribes of Indians were entitled at the time of their sales to Messrs. Miller and Fulton has not been established. It will be observed that, by the document No. 2, the Choctaw Indians sold, without specifying any quantity, the portion of land which had been granted them by the Baron de Carondelet for their villages and fields of culture, and that by document No. 3, the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians sold also, without regard to quantity, "the lands granted to them by the Superior Government, beginning above, at the Choctaw village, and including all the lands of the Beluxy Indians to the domain of His Majesty." From the testimony of Valentine Laysard, taken on the 1st of August, 1803, it appears the Choctaw settlement originally extended up to the bayou Robert, which had been established as their upper boundary by the father of the said Valentine, then acting as commandant of the district, but that before their sale to Miller and Fulton they had relinquished in favor of Nicholas Chatelin and others, and sold to Mr. McGuire, all their claim to the lands above the bayou Clear. In selling, therefore, the land granted to them by the Baron de Carondelet, the Choctaw Indians have only sold the residue of their original claim, beginning from a marked boundary near the mouth of the bayou Clear, and descending the bayou Bœuf, to the boundary between their lands and those claimed by the Pascagoula Indians, where a sweet gum tree is said to have been marked M F. In such documents of title as have been adduced no mention is made of the claim of the Alabama Indians, as limiting that of the Beluxy tribe. On the contrary, from the joint sale made by the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians (document No. 3,) the Beluxys appear to have been bounded on the lower side by the domain of His Catholic Majesty. In the sales from the Indians, by which the claimants hold, references are made to a grant from the Baron de Carondelet to the Choctaw Indians, and a grant by the Superior Government to the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians.

The undersigned are induced to believe that the grants alluded to were nothing more than a letter of office of Baron de Carondelet approving of the conduct of the commandant in putting the Indians in possession of the lands which they occupied on the bayou Bœuf, mentioned in the evidence of V. Laysard, which was given on the 1st of August, 1803, or the letter and order mentioned in the evidence, which was given by the same witness on the 11th November, 1812, and said to have been lost or mislaid. By these letters it is presumable that the Indians were only permitted to establish their villages between certain limits, without having assigned to them any particular or specified quantity of land, or knowing the tenure of the occupancy. That those lost papers did not amount to a complete grant of the land from the Spanish Government, whereby the Indians might have been vested with a complete title, such as they might have alienated without the further sanction of the Government, is manifest from the tenor of the testimony of Valentine Laysard, who has said, having written to the Baron de Carondelet recommending a concession to the above tribe of Indians for a double depth, or eighty arpents on each side of the bayou, and receiving no answer, he always supposed they were only entitled to the depth of forty arpents on each side of the bayou. It is greatly to be regretted that, on account of the lax proceedings under the former Government of Louisiana, the commissioners should so frequently be under the necessity of conjecturing what may have been the original proceedings in a grant for lands from the mesne conveyances, and other less certain documents. It is very usual for claimants to complain of lost grants, without being able to resort to any public record to establish so important a document. That an error has been committed in the date of the sale from the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians, is rendered probable by the following circumstances. 1st. The sale bears date on the same day on which the Choctaw Indians passed the sale of their lands, yet the chiefs of the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians (present at the sale made by the Choctaw Indians,) engage to give the said Choctaws a part of their lands to cultivate and erect their villages on; from which it would appear that the two lower tribes had not at that time even an intention of selling their lands; (see document No. 2.) 2d. If the sales had been made on the same day, it is likely they would have been presented together to the Governor, and received his sanction at the same time; whereas the sale by the Pascagoula and Beluxy nations appears to have been ratified by the Governor Salcedo, nearly a month after the ratification of the Choctaw sale. 3d. By the letter of office of the Surveyor General, Mr. Trudeau, (document No. 5,) Mr. Wells was empowered to survey the lands sold by the Choctaw Indians, without a mention of the lands that may have been sold by the two lower tribes. In a claim of so much importance as the one under consideration, and in which Congress has reserved the right of revising the decisions of the commissioners, the undersigned deem it proper to withhold no communication which can, in any possible respect, affect the claim, whether, in their opinion, such communications may or may not be proper testimony. With this impression they subjoin to this report a transcript of a letter marked A. from Doctor John Sibley of Natchitoches, written in his official capacity of agent of Indian affairs, and addressed to the former Board of Commissioners, to which will be found annexed an extract of a letter from the present Register to Doctor Sibley, of which he acknowledged the receipt, without replying to this particular paragraph. One of the tribes of Indians from whom the claimants in question hold, (the Pascagoula,) is the same under whom Joseph Gilliard, for the legal representatives of Labour, claims, and, as will be seen by reference to his claim reported under No. 67, sold their possessions on Red river in the year 1795, and probably removed to bayou Bœuf about the same time. The undersigned know of no laws in force in the province, at the date of these sales, inhibiting the Indians from holding and selling lands on account of their having previously enjoyed and sold, by the courtesy of the Government, other lands, nor any law by which the quantity of land to be granted to Indians was limited. By an ordinance of Governor O'Reilly, it is understood the Indians, during his administration, were restricted to one league square of land, about their villages. But of his regulations, and those of some his successors, Mr. Trudeau, late Surveyor General under the Spanish Government for the province of Louisiana, in a letter to the Board of Commissioners dated the 10th February, 1809, remarks, "the regulations of Count de O'Reilly, Don Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, and Don Ventura Morales, were never enforced but according to the caprice of those gentlemen. Of the truth of this assertion the undersigned have no doubt; indeed, it would not be difficult to establish it by proof; we should, therefore, in vain look to written regulations for the establishment of any uniform usages under the Spanish Government of Louisiana. The ratification of the sales by the Government of the province, anterior to the change of Government, as established by the documents No. 2 and No. 3, is sufficient, in the opinion of the commissioners, to give validity to the claim; their greatest doubt is respecting the quantity of land. They are induced, however, to recommend a confirmation of forty arpents in depth on each side of the bayou, because it will be found to comport with the general usages of the Spanish Government, in cases where occupants resided on one side of the bayou, and cultivated on the opposite side, as seems to have been the case in the claim under consideration. They would also limit the front above, by the marked boundary near the bayou Clear, and below by the lower line marked by Mr. Wells, the surveyor, because it has not been satisfactorily established, as contended by the claimants, that the Indians had a right to the land, and did sell their claim down to the upper boundary of the Alabama lands. This would reduce the claim to about twenty-three thousand four hundred arpents, equal to about nineteen thousand eight hundred American acres. Subjoined to the report will be found a copy of the surveyor's plat, (marked B,) on a reduced scale; the lines shaded with red, embracing the quantity of forty-six thousand eight hundred arpents, and the lines shaded with yellow, projected by the commissioners to represent the part of which they recommend the confirmation of the title. It may be observed that this plat has not been sanctioned by the proper Spanish authority. This omission is probably attributable to the change of Government before it could be presented for ratification. This report is also accompanied by the memorial of the claimants, marked C.

No. 126. Messrs. William Miller and Alexander Fulton claim a tract of land of eleven thousand two hundred and thirty superficial arpents, situate on both sides of Red river, in the district of Rapides. The notice of this claim is accompanied by certain documents of title, of which the following is the substance of the translations: No. 1. A letter from Manuel de Salcedo, then Governor of the province of Louisiana, to Mr. Ennemond Meuillon, then acting commandant of the post of Rapides, dated 9th November, 1803. There is no objection to Louis, chief of the Tensaw nation, selling, with the consent of his nation, the lands belonging to them. If those Indians should be disposed to settle themselves in the interior province, it will be necessary that they should obtain the permission of the commandant general of the said province, to whom I shall give them a letter of recommendation, to which, from their good conduct, they are entitled. We have no knowledge here of the documents of title by which the chief of the Tensaw tribe claims. If they have been delivered to the alcaldes of the post, they are answerable for them, and I beg of you to inform yourself where they have been deposited, so as to be able to remit them to the chief. No. 2. Sale from certain Indians to Miller and Fulton, as follows: "On the 16th December, 1803, before Ennemond Meuillon, commandant of the post at Rapides, came in person, Louis, chief of the Tensaw nation, and Valentine Laysard, verbally authorized by Etienne, chief of the Appalachie nation, to sell the land of this nation; said Louis and Valentine have sold to Miller and Fulton the land where their villages are situated, also the lands which are this day occupied by the Indians of the Conchatte; the said lands taking their boundary on the left bank of Red river, in ascending, at the mouth of the bayou Jean de Tear, and on the right, ascending, opposite to the said bayou; the upper boundary being the bayou D'Arrou, on the right of said river, in ascending, and a line opposite thereto, including, on both sides of Red river, the quantity of eleven thousand two hundred and thirty arpents, for the consideration of five thousand two hundred dollars, of which the sum of two thousand six hundred dollars is acknowledged to be due by the Indians to the house of Miller and Fulton for merchandise. The balance, two thousand six hundred dollars, to be paid in February ensuing the sale, at the house of Daniel Clark, in the city of New Orleans. The sale to be ratified by all the warriors of the nations, signed by the parties contracting, and witnessed by Willing Wells, William Christy, and Ennemond Meuillon."

No. 3. Ratification of the sale. "On the 11th January, 1804, before Ennemond Meuillon, at the village of the Indians, the contract marked No. 2 is ratified and signed by the contracting parties, and sixteen other warriors of the several nations, with this difference, that the two thousand six hundred dollars, which, by the said contract, was to have been paid in merchandise, was, by stipulation in the ratification, to be paid in coined money four months after the date of the ratification.

No. 4. Is a plat of survey executed and certified by Peter Walker, the 17th of January, 1804.

Testimony.—In this claim the testimony of Valentine Laysard, taken before Richard Claiborne, Esq., judge of the parish of Rapides, on the 16th day of December, 1812, pursuant to a commission issued from this Board, 23d November, 1812. The deponent being about sixty-three years of age, and duly sworn, deposed and saith, that he was the agent of Indian affairs in this quarter for many years under the Spanish Government; that he spoke the languages of the different tribes familiarly, and was well acquainted with all their transactions; that, some time during the year 1803, perhaps in the month of August, the Appalachie and Tensaw tribes of Indians came to him, as Indian agent, and told him that they had sold their lands to Messrs. Miller and Fulton for about five thousand two hundred dollars, to wit: two thousand six hundred dollars to be paid in merchandise, and two thousand six hundred dollars which they then owed to Miller and Fulton, and requested me to pass a sale of their land to them. I replied that the Indians, nor myself as their agent, could not dispose of nor convey their lands, without the authority and approbation of the Governor of the province; and if they wished to sell their lands, they must send to the Governor for his permission to sell. The Indians expressed considerable warmth at the refusal, and returned home. In about six weeks or two months afterwards, the Indians represented their affair to Mr. Meuillon, then civil commandant of the post. Mr. Meuillon represented their case to the Governor, in a letter which they took themselves to New Orleans. They returned in November, or early in December, with an official letter, signed Manuel de Salcedo, and directed to Mr. Meuillon, and dated 9th November, 1803, giving Louis, the chief of the Tensaws, permission to sell their lands, with the consent of his nation; a copy of which letter was furnished me by the commandant, with directions to superintend the sale of their lands. The copy of the above official letter is filed herewith, and which I believe to be a true copy of the original. In pursuance of the instructions, I went to the Indian village, on the 16th of December, 1803, in company with the commandant, Peter Walker, a surveyor, Willing Wells, Mr. Christy, and Alexander Fulton, and there, in the presence of the whole village, and the white men attending, explained the whole affair to the Indians; liquidated the debts due from them to Miller and Fulton; fixed the price of the land, and agreed upon the terms of the sale of the land, which was immediately reduced to writing, and signed by Louis, chief of the Tensaws, Willing Wells, Mr. Christy, Miller and Fulton, Ennemond Meuillon, and myself; and afterwards, to wit, on the 11th of January, 1804, the Indians made a more formal sale of the land. Copies of both these instruments are hereto subjoined, which the deponent believes to be true copies of the original, as well as he can recollect. The deponent further saith, that the price of the land, as agreed upon by the contracting parties, was, as well as he remembers, about five thousand two hundred dollars, to wit: two thousand six hundred dollars in merchandise, to be paid in New Orleans, and about two thousand six hundred dollars which the Indians then owed to Miller and Fulton; that the lands claimed and belonging to the Appalachie and Tensaw tribes, extended from the lower limits of the Pascagoula village, down the Red river, and on both sides, to the mouth of the bayou Jean de Jean, as is described in the instruments of writing above alluded to; that, at the time the bargain was made, it was considered by myself, and by every body in the country, that the purchasers had given a very extravagant price, and much more than it was worth, or could be sold for again. Land had not at that time acquired any fixed value; the lands were given to the settlers by the Government, and the value attached to them depended on their cleared land and improvement. The deponent is quite satisfied that the price agreed upon was considerably above the real value at the time, and that equal lands might have been bought for less; but Messrs. Miller and Fulton had enjoyed an exclusive privilege of trading with the Indians, and had been obliged, from the nature of the trade, to give them extensive credits; and, under the impression that there was no other way of saving the debts due to them by the Appalachie and Tensaw tribes, agreed to take their land, even at a high price. The deponent further states, that the sale was made agreeable to the forms usually pursued under the Spanish Government, so far as he knew them, and believes they comport with the laws, usages, and customs of the country; and that no doubt would have existed under the Spanish Government with regard to the validity or legality of the title.

VALENTINE LAYSSARD.

R. CLAIBORNE, J. P. R.

The undersigned commissioners are of opinion that Miller and Fulton can only have a valid claim to so much of the land embraced by the survey of P. Walker, and represented by the plat, (document No. 4.) as did rightfully belong to the Tensaw tribe of Indians; for although the sale was not ratified by the Governor in the usual form, there can be no doubt that he would have confirmed the title for so much as he had permitted the Indians to sell. By the document, No. 1. it will be seen that the permission of Governor Salcedo, dated 9th November, 1803, was confined to the lands of the Tensaw tribe. Nothing is said of the Appalachie Indians, whose lands adjoin those of the Tensaws, or who may have held, in common with the latter tribes, the land on Red river, from the bayou d'Arrou down to the bayou Jean de Jean. The undersigned can therefore only recommend a confirmation of the title (of the claimants) to so much of the land as the Tensaw Indians had a right to sell; and this only with the proviso that the original letter of Governor Salcedo shall be found to be genuine; the undersigned commissioners reserving to themselves the right of scrutinizing that letter, and reporting to Congress hereafter their opinion as to its authenticity, which they cannot do at present, the claimants having only furnished from the records of the district of Rapides certified copies of this letter and of the other documents of title. The commissioners have no data by which to judge of the exact extent of the claims of either of these tribes of Indians. From expressions in the deed of sale, they presume that the Conchatche Indians were mere tenants at will of one or both of the other two tribes; that the Appalachie and Tensaw Indians may have had a right to the whole of the front, from the bayou d'Arrou to Jean de Jean, which, according to the surveyor's report, is ninety-three and six hundredths arpents. The greatest depth that can be allowed or recommended is forty arpents on each side of the river; at least, to entitle the claimants to more, it was incumbent on them to have proven that the Indians had an indefeasible right to a greater depth, which they have not done to the satisfaction of the Board. If it be conceded that the two tribes, Appalachie and Tensaw, were entitled to an equal and undivided moiety or half part of this tract of land, the part purchased from the Tensaw tribe would have a front of forty-six and eight hundredths arpents, which, with the depth of eighty arpents, or forty arpents on each side of the river, would limit that part to three thousand seven hundred and forty-four arpents, from which should be deducted the claim of Bertrand Maillouche for eight arpents front on the right bank of Red river, by the depth of forty arpents, bounded on the lower side by the bayou Jean de Jean; this claim being founded on prior purchase from the Indians, and having been verbally excepted by them in their sale to Miller and Fulton, as stated by Alexander Fulton, in his evidence in the claim of Maillouche. This would reduce the claim under purchase from the Tensaw Indians to three thousand four hundred and twenty-four arpents, equal to two thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven and sixty-five hundredths American acres, which with the evidence before the Board, is the most of which the confirmation of the title can be recommended; and not that, but on the conditions above expressed. For further elucidation, see the copy of the surveyor's plat, subjoined to this report.

No. 127. This claim is entered in the name of Thomas Nelson, for one hundred and ninety-six acres on Clear creek in the county of Rapides, and supported by the following documents, to wit: A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated 6th December, 1805; and a deed of sale from William Cochran to the claimant, dated 25th March, 1805. The quantity of land is not mentioned in the deed; the consideration is fifty dollars. Valentine Layssard, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, the 27th April, 1809, hath deposed: That, in the year 1802, this deponent, being at that time commandant of the post, called on a number of the inhabitants, in order to administer to them the oath of allegiance to the Spanish Government, and among others Thomas Dyson; that, upon their taking said oath, he permitted them, and him amongst the others, to continue and settle in the country. The deposition of Richard Barrow, taken at the same time before said Register, is as follows: That, in the year 1802, the land claimed was settled by Thomas Dyson, who inhabited and cultivated the same that year; that, in the year after, it was inhabited and cultivated by Bennett Roberts, who lived thereon until the 1st of December of that year, at which time he removed therefrom, and the land was uninhabited till the spring following. John W. S. Saunders went to live thereon, and inhabited and cultivated it during that year, and it has been inhabited and cultivated every year since, except one. From the evidence, it appears that Thomas Dyson was the original proprietor of this tract of land, and no conveyance appears either from him or the next two succeeding settlers, Roberts and Saunders. The claimant states in his notice, that the improvements had been verbally transferred from one settler to another, until it became the property of said Cochran. This mode of conveyance seems sometimes to have been practised under the Spanish Government. Presuming, therefore, that each settler had some pretensions to the land, which appears to have been inhabited and cultivated with but little intermission since 1802, and the claim being of very small extent, the undersigned commissioners have been inclined to recommend its confirmation. It is proper, however, to notice, that a claim of three hundred and twenty-eight arpents, in the county of Rapides, of which the said Thomas Dyson is supposed to have been the original claimant, has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 928. The land is now claimed by John Barrow, under a sale from said Nelson, dated in 1808.

No. 128. This claim is for four hundred arpents on the bayou Rapides, claimed by the heirs of Matthew Nugent, Senior. The following document and evidence are found with the notice. A plat of survey, executed by William Atchinson, dated 13th February, 1797, and the depositions of Matthew Nugent and Alexander Innis, each taken the 25th February, 1806. Matthew Nugent hath deposed: That the tract of land claimed was inhabited and cultivated ten or twelve years ago, since which time the cleared land, consisting of five or six acres, has been cultivated by Gabriel Martin, but the said land has not been inhabited by any person. The testimony of Alexander Innis is of the same import, adding only that said Matthew Nugent, deceased, resided at the time of his death with Gabriel Martin, son-in-law of the deceased, on an adjoining tract, at the time the land in question was occupied by him, the said Matthew, deceased. The deposition of Matthew Nugent the second, aged about fifty-seven years, has also been taken and filed in the claim, 3d December, 1811, and which is as follows: That the land claimed was improved about eighteen years ago, and has been cultivated almost every year since. The improvements consisted at that time of about three acres of land cleared, with a tolerable house, and indigo vats. From the testimony of this last witness, it would appear that the land in question has been used since the year 1793, making about ten years of possession prior to the taking possession of Louisiana by the United States, on the 20th December, 1803. The other two witnesses state that the land was built on and cultivated, but was not inhabited after the year 1795 or 1796. The survey is dated in 1797. From the small extent of this claim, and the nature of the possession, together with a view to the length of time it has been occupied, the undersigned commissioners are in favor of recommending its confirmation, although two other claims, which are supposed to have been derived from Matthew Nugent, deceased, have been confirmed by the Board; one for four hundred and eighty-five and fifty-five hundredths acres, under settlement, and the other for six hundred arpents, under a requete and possession, by certificates B, Nos. 1049 and 1291; the first to Gabriel Martin, on bayou Rapides, and the other to John Hay, in Opelousas.

No. 129. This claim, for six hundred and forty acres, is entered in the name of Matthew Nugent, and supported by the requete of the claimant for sixteen arpents front on Beaver creek, about fourteen miles from Rapides, on the track leading from the rapids of Red river to Catahoula, the petitioner setting forth that he had resided in the district of Rapides as a subject of His Catholic Majesty many years, and had never had a grant of land, and soliciting this tract to settle on. This petition is dated 12th October, 1800; to which is subjoined the verification of Valentine Laysard, then commandant of the post of Rapides, stating, "that the exposition of the petitioner is true, and the land solicited may be accorded to him without prejudice." This certificate is of the same date of the petition. A plat of survey, by Matthew Stone, dated 5th December, 1805, is also filed in the claim, and no other document of title. The deposition of Benjamin Miller, taken in this claim the 25th February, 1806, is as follows: That the claimant, late in the fall of the year 1803, built a log house upon the land claimed; that some time in the winter after he removed to it, and has continued to reside there ever since; that this deponent does not believe that there was any of the land under cultivation during that year.— Though there are claims confirmed of which Matthew Nugent was the original claimant, it is to be presumed, from the petition and certificate of the commandant, that this claimant has not been the original proprietor of any tract except the one claimed under this notice. The claim has been reported on the ground of its not having been actually settled and cultivated on and prior to the 20th of December, 1803, though it appears to have been built on prior to that time, and settled shortly after by the claimant. The confirmation is recommended.

No. 130. The notice of this claim is unaccompanied by any document or evidence of title.

No. 131. This claim is entered for two hundred and forty arpents, to wit: four arpents front on Red river, at the mouth of the river Cane, now called bayou Rapides, and two arpents front of Red river, opposite the above, with the customary depth of forty arpents. A document, of which the following is a translation, is filed with the notice:

NATCHITOCHEs, June 29, 1761.

To Mr. LE PRERIE, Commandant for the King at Natchitoches and dependencies:

Vincent Poirer, desirous of settling a tract of land, requests two arpents above the batture of the Rapides, and four in the bayou called the river Aux Cannes.

NATCHITOCHEs, July 6, 1761.

We, Chevalier de St. Louis, commandant for the King at the post of Natchitoches, Red river, and dependencies, concede and grant, under the good will of Mr. Dabadie, to the named Vincent Poirer, two arpents of land above the batture of the Rapides, and four other arpents on the bayou called the river Aux Cannes, provided it shall be of no detriment to the neighbors.

LE PRERIE.

NEW ORLEANS, September 1, 1764.

We, Director General and commandant of Louisiana for the King, permit the named Vincent Poirer to settle on the six arpents of land above mentioned, until a title in form shall be given him.

DABADIE.

No other evidence of title has been adduced, and no proof taken in the claim. The confirmation of the claim is recommended on the ground of its having been possessed and respected as private property since the date of the concession. The cession of the land seems to have been made by officers acting under the French Government, in the year 1764, when Louisiana was ceded by France to Spain in 1763. To account for this the undersigned remark, that it is thought probable the French officers were not superseded in their powers until 1764, perhaps subsequent to that date.

No. 132. This notice is unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is supposed to be for the same land claimed by this person under another notice, which has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1923.

No. 133. This notice is also unaccompanied by any evidence of title, and is supposed to be for the same land claimed under another entry, and the title confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1516, to this claimant.

No. 134. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 135. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding.

No. 136. Same.

No. 137. This claim, for six hundred and forty acres on Red river, in the county of Rapides, is entered by Thomas Patterson, who states in his notice that he settled on the land in March, 1802. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated in 1806, is filed in the claim.

Alexander Fulton, before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, the 29th of May, 1809, hath deposed as follows: that Joseph Homes, about the year 1797, cut the cane and wood on the land claimed, and this deponent has heard him say that he intended the improvement for his step-son, Thomas Patterson; that, the year following, as this deponent was passing the said tract, some of his hands set fire to the cane which had been cut, and burnt it so as to render the land fit for cultivation; that this deponent informed Mr. Homes of it, and he sent up and planted it in corn; and this deponent afterwards saw the corn growing upon it, and he thinks he saw corn growing on the said land the year following.

The deposition of Valentine Laysard, taken before the judge of the parish of Rapides, the 18th of November, 1811, under a commission from the Board, is to the following purport: that, in the year 1800, whilst acting as commandant of the post of Rapides, he gave the claimant, Thomas Patterson, permission to settle on a tract of land, on the right bank of Red river, below the Choctaw landing; he could not recollect whether the permission was given verbally or in writing, nor could he recollect the quantity of land designated for him.

The following interrogatories were inserted in the commission issued by the Board to Judge Claiborne, of the parish of Rapides, to be answered by John Young, a witness in the claim.

1st. Do you know of Thomas Patterson, or any person representing him and his benefit, making a settlement on a tract of land claimed by said Thomas Patterson on Red river, in the parish of Rapides; if by the representative of Patterson, who was that representative?

2d. Was the land claimed, or any part of it cultivated in the year 1803? and was it actually inhabited on the 20th day of December in that year?

3d. Was the said Patterson, on the 20th of December, 1803, twenty-one years of age, or the head of a family?

Answer to the first interrogatory. I do.

To the second. It was cultivated and inhabited in 1800, and continued to be inhabited and cultivated until the fall of the year 1804.

To the third. He was the head of a family of negroes, and [the witness] believes was twenty-one years of age.

From the answers to the above questions, it will be seen that the witness either misunderstood the questions, or has purposely evaded them, and particularly the first. From Mr. Fulton's testimony, however, it appears that the improvement was commenced for the benefit of the claimant so early as 1797; and from that of Mr. Young, that the land was inhabited and cultivated from 1800 to 1804, and that the claimant might have been twenty-one years of age on the 20th day of December, 1803. From these circumstances, and no other claim being confirmed by the Board in which this claimant has been interested, the commissioners recommend its confirmation.

No. 138. An informal bill of sale, from Hugh Coyle to the present claimant, without date, is the only document or evidence of title filed in this claim. No proof appears to have been offered in the claim. One claim derived from Hugh Coyle has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate A, No. 1513, to Miller and Fulton.

No. 139. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim, except an informal bill of sale from George Tidwell, to Michael Barrer, dated 14th January, 1806, which has been assigned to Rebecca Burk; by whom it was, in like manner, conveyed to the present claimant, the 29th of October, 1807. No proof appears to have been taken in the claim.

No. 140. A plat of survey executed by Matthew Stone, 30th January, 1806, is the only document of title accompanying the notice of this claim. The deposition of Benjamin Miller, taken before the Board, the 2d August, 1811, is to the following purport: that Benjamin Richey built on the land, and removed on it in the fall of 1802, where he continued to the latter part of the year following, but was not residing on the land on the 20th December, 1803, but removed with his family to reside on the same the next year, to wit, 1804; that the claimant was over twenty-one years of age at that time. No claim in which this person appears to have been interested, having been confirmed by the Board, and this tract appearing to have been occupied as the place of the claimant's residence, both since and before the 20th December, 1803, the commissioners have been induced to recommend its confirmation.

No. 141. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. One claim derived from Thomas Nelson, from whom the claimant purchased, has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 825.

No. 142. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated in 1806, is the only document of title accompanying the notice of this claim. The deposition of Jacob Kibby, taken before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, 9th May, 1809, is to the following purport: that in January, 1804, the claimant cleared a turnip patch on the land, and that one Lee cleared about six acres on the land, in 1805, and cultivated it in corn and pumpkins; and that a part of said six acres had been cultivated ever since.

No. 143. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 144. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated in 1805, with an informal bill of sale, from Hugh Nelson to the claimant, John Roe, dated 29th February, 1806, are the only documents filed with the notice of this claim. No proof appears to have been offered.

No. 145. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. It is presumed that the title to the tract claimed may have been confirmed by commissioners' certificates B, Nos. 1924 and 1925.

No. 146. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the last above noted. The claim is supposed to have been confirmed by commissioners' certificates B, Nos. 783 and 1045.

No. 147. This claim is entered by Richard Smith, for five hundred and sixty acres, of which the title to two hundred and forty arpents has been confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 782, leaving three hundred and twenty arpents, of which no evidence of title appears to have been adduced, except a deed of sale from Benjamin Miller to the claimant, dated 24th November, 1801, conveying eight arpents front, on the left bank of Red river, by the depth of forty arpents.

No. 148. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim, except the deposition of Benjamin Miller, taken before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, stating that the claimant had, in the year 1803, four children. One claim of six hundred and forty acres has been confirmed to the claimant under his own settlement, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 786.

No. 149. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. The title to the same tract is supposed to have been confirmed under another entry, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1909.

No. 150. No evidence of title accompanies this notice. The title to the same tract is supposed to have been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 785.

No. 151. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 152. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated in 1805, with a deed of conveyance from Elizabeth Barrow to the claimant, dated 22d February, 1806, are the only documents filed in this claim. No proof seems to have been offered.

No. 153. In this claim is filed a certified copy of the oath of allegiance to the Spanish Government by William Hargrove, taken before Salcedo, the 8th October, 1802, in which no mention is made of a title to land; and a deed of conveyance from said Hargrove to the claimant, dated 15th October, 1804, to which is annexed an explanation by the seller, before the then judge of the parish of Rapides, the 3d June, 1805, that said seller only conveys his right and interest in the land, without warranting the title, mentioning that it is the same tract solicited by him, from the Spanish Government, 10th April, 1803. No other evidence of title has been adduced in the claim, and it is supposed to be for the same tract of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1096, to George B. Curtis, and Jeanette Rison, under a requête.

No. 154. A deed of sale from Joseph Le Sage to the claimant, George Stephens, dated the 27th March, 1806, not specifying the quantity of land conveyed, is the only document of title filed in this claim. The deposition of Benjamin Routh, taken before the judge of the parish of Avoyelles, by commission from the Board, 28th August, 1811, is to the following purport: That about the year 1798, the deponent settled by permission, on a tract of land on bayou Robert, and made a crop of corn on it, and then conveyed his right to Joseph Le Sage for the consideration of him, the said Le Sage, taking care of the corn on said land; that some time in the winter or spring following, the deponent understood the said Le Sage left the land, in consequence of a separation between him and his wife, but that the deponent believed that said Le Sage never relinquished his claim to the said tract, and that it was the only land ever claimed by said Le Sage as a settlement right. No other proof seems to have been adduced in support of the claim.

No. 155. In support of this claim is filed a petition of John Paul Timbal for ten arpents front, by forty in depth, dated 11th October, 1786, in which petition mention is made that the land solicited is the same which was granted to Bebe's children, in September, 1785. To the said petition is subjoined the certificate of Gaignard, then commandant of the post of Avoyelles, dated 4th December, 1786, stating, in substance, that conformable to the ordinance, the petitioner might apply to the Governor for a title in form. No evidence to establish the claimant's declaration of the land having been long occupied by him has been adduced. From the nature of the claim, however, the commissioners deem it expedient to recommend its confirmation, if it should not be found to be the same land, of which the title has been confirmed to Joseph Joffreau, who purchased at public sale the land of John Paul Timbal, in discharge of a debt of said Timbal's.

No. 156. No evidence of title accompanies this notice. It is supposed to be for the same tract last above mentioned; one notice being entered with the Register at Opelousas, and the other with the Deputy at Rapides.

No. 157. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 158. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding.

No. 159. This claim, entered by Stephen Tippett, for the heirs of Stephen Tippett, deceased, is founded on the following documents, to wit: the petition of Stephen Tippett, for ten or fifteen arpents front, by the usual depth, in the post of Washita, or elsewhere in the province, the petitioner setting forth that he was a carpenter, and had resided in the province of Louisiana six years, and was desirous to move his family from North America, to settle in said province, dated 29th August, 1796; to which is subjoined the following words over the signature of the Baron de Carondelet, and under the date of 21st September, 1796: "Concedio para Attakapas é Opelousas." Under date 2d September, 1802, the late Surveyor General, Charles Trudeau, has returned a plat of the land claimed, situate on bayou Rapides, in the county of Rapides. No other document of title has been adduced, and no proof offered. Stephen Tippett, Jun., acknowledges the claim confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1327, on a purchase made by Jacob Hooter, for four hundred arpents of land, is within the limits of the tract claimed for the heirs of his deceased father of five hundred and sixty arpents, and that Hooter's claim was confirmed in consequence of the settlement made on the land claimed for the heirs of Tippett. The remaining one hundred and sixty arpents of this claim is believed to be covered by the confirmation A, No. 1023, of a complete patent for that quantity on the same bayou, and same bank of the bayou, although there is a difference in the boundaries inserted in the two claims. The commissioners cannot recommend the confirmation of any part of this claim.

No. 160. This claim is founded on the petition of John Baptist Verbois, for four hundred and eighty superficial arpents, in the woods of the swamps on the Mississippi river, adjoining land of the father of the claimant, which petition is sanctioned by the said father, Nicholas Verbois, then commandant, but of what district is not known to the commissioners, though it is believed he resided and executed that office in one of the districts east of Chafalaya. To the said petition is subjoined the certificate of the late Surveyor General, Charles Trudeau, setting forth that the land solicited was vacant and about thirty-five miles from any lands previously granted. No proof has been adduced to establish the occupancy of the land. The undersigned can have no doubt but that, from the certificate of Mr. Trudeau, the late Surveyor General, the land would have been conceded to the petitioner; they, therefore, recommend the confirmation of the title.

No. 161. This claim is for the same quantity, and in all respects similarly circumstanced with the one last mentioned.

No. 162. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 163. No document or evidence of title has been adduced in support of this claim.

No. 164. This claim is founded on the petition of John Wall, for ten arpents in front by forty in depth, on the east bank of Red river, petitioned for for the purpose of culture, 10th May, 1796, the petitioner representing himself to be an ancient inhabitant of the province of Louisiana, &c., to which is subjoined the certificate of Valentine Layssard, then commandant of Rapides, dated the 15th May, 1796, stating that the land conceded to the petitioner for a vacherie was unfit for culture, and that the tract solicited might be accorded out of the domain of the King. An unfinished plat of survey, not signed, representing the form of the tract as laid out, on lake Louis near the Washita river, is also filed. The deposition of David Jones, taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, Justice of the Peace in the parish of Catahoula, the 31st October, 1811, is as follows: That the tract of land claimed by John Wall, containing four hundred arpents, lying on the east side of Red river, was, on the 20th day of December, in the year 1803, actually inhabited and cultivated for the claimant's use, and that the claimant was on that day twenty-one years of age. The confirmation of the claim is recommended. It may be proper, however, here to notice, that one claim founded on a petition of the claimant has been confirmed to him by commissioners' certificate B, No. 893. See remarks in the claim of Edward Lovelace, as to lands conceded for culture and for vacheries, reported No. 96.

No. 165. This claim is founded on the petition of John Wall, for twenty arpents front by forty in depth, on the bayou Flacon, in the district of Rapides, for a vacherie, which petition bears date the 29th March, 1796, and verified by the then commandant of said district the 30th of the same month and year, who states in his certificate that the land solicited was of the domain of His Majesty, and might be accorded without prejudice. An unfinished plat of survey, not signed, is filed with the notice of the claim. The deposition of David Jones, taken by commission from the Board, before Samuel Lightner, Esq., Justice of the Peace for the parish of Catahoula, the 31st October, 1811, is as follows: That the tract of land claimed by John Wall, containing eight hundred arpents, lying on the bayou Flacon, in Sicily, was, on the 20th day of December, 1803, actually inhabited and cultivated for the claimant's use, and that the claimant was on that day twenty-one years of age. The confirmation of the claim is recommended on the grounds of its having been usual under the Spanish Government to grant lands for vacheries as well as to cultivate.

No. 166. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, executed in 1806, is the only document filed with the notice of this claim. It is believed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificates B, Nos. 880 and 2148, under another entry.

No. 167. No evidence of title accompanies the notice in this claim; it is believed to be a duplicate entry for a tract of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1529.

No. 168. No evidence of title accompanies this notice. One claim of six hundred and forty acres has been confirmed to Robert Wilson, the claimant, under his own settlement, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 883.

No. 169. A deed of sale from Luke Collins to Samuel Levi Wells, dated 1st February, 1802, is the only document of title accompanying the notice of this claim. It is supposed to be the same tract claimed by Nicholas Welsh, under another entry, and the title confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 823.

No. 170. No document or evidence of title accompanies this claim.

No. 171. The deposition of Hugh Mulhollen, taken in this claim 26th February, 1806, is as follows: That the claimant, William Wiley, with his family, settled on the land claimed in the spring of 1803, and has since cultivated three crops of corn and cotton on the said land, and has resided with his family thereon during that time. The deposition of Alexander Fulton, taken before John Thompson, Esq., late Register at Rapides, the 30th May, 1809, is to the following purport: That several years prior to the year 1803, the claimant built a house on the land and cultivated some corn on it, but the deponent could not say whether the deponent inhabited the land, on the 20th December, 1803, or not. No other evidence adduced. It is believed to be the same land of which the title has been confirmed to this claimant by commissioners' certificate B, No. 1051.

No. 172. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. It is believed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed by commissioners' certificate B, No. 349, under another entry.

No. 173. No document or evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 174. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one last noted. It is supposed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed to G. B. Curtis, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 821.

No. 175. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 176. A plat of survey, by Matthew Stone, dated in 1806, is the only document of title accompanying this claim. The deposition of Jacob Kibby, taken before John Thompson, Esq., late Register of Rapides, 9th of May, 1809, is as follows: That, in the month of January, 1804, this deponent was on the land claimed, and saw the claimant at work thereon; that, in the course of that summer, he removed a family to the said land, and which has resided thereon and cultivated the same ever since; that, when he first saw the claimant on the land, there had been made some small improvements thereon. One claim of four hundred arpents has been confirmed to this claimant, under a requête, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 898.

No. 177. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim. It is supposed to be for the same land of which the title has been confirmed under another entry, by commissioners' certificate B, No. 891.

No. 178. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 179. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding.

No. 180. Same.

No. 181. Same.

No. 182. A plat of survey by Matthew Stone, dated in 1806, is the only document of title filed with the notice of this claim. The deposition of Emanuel Rice, taken in this claim the 26th of February, 1806, is as follows: That, in the year 1802, the father of the claimant, with the assistance of said claimant, made an improvement on the land claimed, and resided upon it in a camp, with his family, during that year; after which they removed, and placed another family on the said land, who also resided on it one year, since which time it has been uninhabited; the father of said claimant cultivated about four acres in corn the year that he resided on it, and the following year the same land was cultivated by their tenant. The deponent thinks that the claimant, Joseph Young, is about the age of twenty-one at this time. No other evidence adduced. No claim appears to have been confirmed to the father or son, or in which either has been interested; and, in consideration of the smallness of their claim, its confirmation is recommended, on the grounds of its having been usual under the Spanish Government to concede lands to persons under age, under similar circumstances.

No. 183. No evidence of title accompanies the notice of this claim.

No. 184. This claim is similarly circumstanced with the one next preceding.

Signed duplicates, one whereof transmitted to the Secretary of the Treasury Department of the United States, the other deposited with the Register of the Land Office for the southwestern district of the State of Louisiana.

Explanatory references.

A. At this point is a cluster of hackberry trees, with old marks, on the right bank of Red river, pointed out by Mr. Valentine Layssard, late commandant for the district under the Spanish Government, and three principal men of the Appalachie tribe of Indians, (Fuleetkee, Cyprien Valley, and Louis Tootheco;) the three last acknowledging it to be the boundary between their lands, and those formerly owned by the Pascagoula Indians.

B. A large pine tree, on the road to Natchitoches, with old marks, pointed out by Mr. Layssard, as a boundary established in putting the Pascagoula Indians in possession of their lands.

C. A sweet gum and white oak tree, on the bank of lake Varrant, claimed by Mr. Gillard as one of the boundaries of Mr. La Cour's purchase from the Indians.

D and E. Points claimed by Mr. Gillard in like manner.

F. Is a point near a considerable eminence, which is said to have been a place of residence of one of the Pascagoula chiefs, and which is just included by the line from E. to F.

From F, crossing Red river to the left bank, Mr. Gillard claims pursuant to the tenor of the sale made by the Indians along the bank of Red river, Rigolet du Bon Dieu, bayou Jeat, Grand D'Arrou, and Little D'Arrou, to the point L, at which one of the Indian chiefs, before named, attending, acknowledges himself content with the line from thence to the point M, below which the Appalachie Indians claim.

From M, the bayou de la Borne, or bayou Phillipe, is understood as having formed a natural boundary between those two tribes of Indians, at their first establishment, to its mouth at N.

Surveyed at the request of the claimant, and pursuant to instructions from the principal deputy surveyor of the western district of the Territory of Orleans.

Deputy Surveyor.

NATCHITOCHEs, January 26, 1806.

GENTLEMEN: As United States' agent for Indian affairs for the Territory of Orleans, it appears to me to be my duty to represent to you such information as I am possessed of, relative to lands belonging to Indians that may be claimed by other persons. Mr. Fulton, and his associates at Rapides, lay claim to some valuable lands on bayou Bœuf, in the county of Rapides, under a purchase from the Beluxy Indians, or their chief; the circumstances of the purchase, as I understand it from the Beluxy chief, which is corroborated by the accounts I have received from several white persons, is nearly as follows: That Mr. Fulton and others had, or raised, an account against the Beluxy tribe of Indians for about $1,200; the chief says that neither himself nor any of his people had any knowledge of the debt being contracted; that, if it ever was contracted at all, it was by his ancestors, many years ago, so long (to use his own words) that the bones of those who contracted it are turned to dirt again, but that they had been very importunate and troublesome to him for some time to settle the account; at length, to get rid of it, he did agree to give them land on bayou Bœuf, from the mouth of some small bayou to another, including about one mile; this happened about one year ago; some time after Mr. Fulton with Mr. Valentine came to his town or village, and brought with them thirty bottles of Taffia, and made many of his people drunk, and he himself they forced to drink too much, after which they produced a paper and requested him to sign it; that he knew nothing of the contents of the paper, but touched the pen; this I believe was in April, 1805; soon after they came with a rope to measure the land they said he had sold them, and measured off about five leagues upon the bayou, and took in all their village, fields, &c. and told him that when the ducks came in the fall they must move off the land, and that when they left it they must leave their houses all in repair; that they must not take away any locks, or hinges, or any thing whatever that was attached to the houses; and that Mr. Valentine told him they had better all move off into the Spanish country, for the Americans would soon drive them off and take their land from them. The same company purchased, less than two years ago, the lands of the Tensaws on Red river, situate about seven or eight leagues above the Rapides. Both the Beluxies and Tensaws still occupy their lands, but are threatened to be turned off.

If these purchases had been made under and sanctioned by the Spanish Government, prior to the treaty of Ildefonso, in 1800, they might have been valid, but not otherwise. According to my apprehension, the act of Congress, provided for such cases, declares "all purchases of lands, made of Indians by individuals, null and void," and makes it besides a misdemeanor and punishable in an individual to make such purchase. I have been instructed by the Executive of the United States to assure all the Indian tribes that the lands belonging to them should be and remain their property, and that all individual citizens of the United States were strictly forbidden from disturbing or interrupting them in the quiet and peaceable possession of the same. I have done so to those tribes, as well as others, by a written certificate, and have been informed of some very extraordinary conversation of Mr. Fulton, on the Indians showing him my certificates, which certainly would be noticeable, if other than Indian proof of it could be procured. The extinguishment of the Indian claim to lands by an individual certainly does not extinguish the United States' claim to the same lands, and cannot give the individual any good right.

I am, gentlemen, with respect,

Your obedient, humble servant,
JOHN SIBLEY.

To the COMMISSIONERS of the Land Office of the northern division of the Territory of Orleans, Opelousas.

Extract of a letter from Levin Wailes, Register of the Land Office at Opelousas, to Doctor John Sibley, dated SEPTEMBER 8, 1812.

The present Board of Commissioners have noticed a letter which you addressed to their predecessors the 26th of January, 1806, concerning the claims of Messrs. Fulton and Miller to lands which they hold under purchases from certain Indian tribes. Being about to report those claims with their opinions for the further consideration of Congress, we are induced to ask the favor of you to give the names of the white persons from whom you received your information, and to whom you have alluded in your letter, and any other information which you may possess on the subject, and may deem useful and necessary to be known to the Government.

Your memorialists claim 46,800 arpents of land, beginning at the junction of the bayou Clair with the bayou Bœuf, and running down said bayou to the line of the Alabama village, and extending back for quantity; situated in the county of Rapides and Territory of Orleans, purchased of the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes of Indians.

Your memorialists most respectfully represent that they enjoyed, for some years previous to the change of Government, an exclusive right of trading with the Indians in the district of Rapides; that, by stipulations on the part of the Spanish Government, as well as by habits of dealing long established among them, they were compelled to furnish them on long credit, to a great amount; that, about the spring, 1802, they attempted to close their transactions with them; they found the several tribes of Indians indebted to them large sums, and much beyond their means of payment, as well as the other traders, whose debts were of much longer standing. The Indians were desirous of changing their situation, and of moving to some more favorable position; and, anxious to discharge themselves from their numerous debts, on the 4th May, 1802, they addressed a petition to Valentine Laysard, the agent of Indian affairs, and sub-delegate of the Intendant of Louisiana, for permission to sell their lands for that object, and requested him to take the necessary steps for that purpose. A proposition for the purchase of their lands was immediately made to your memorialists. The Indians were called together by the commandant and the Indian agent, and all their accounts were by them liquidated and ascertained; at which meeting a bargain was made for all the lands of the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes on the bayou Bœuf, in consideration of paying all their debts, and furnishing them some additional supplies of goods. On the 14th of May, 1802, two sales of the aforesaid land were made to your memorialists by the chiefs and warriors of the Choctaw, Pascagoula, and Beluxy tribes, in presence of the nations assembled, of the commandant, the Indian agent, three interpreters, and several attesting witnesses. It was a transaction of great public notoriety, known and talked of by almost every man in the country, and executed with much more than ordinary formality and ceremony. These proceedings were immediately forwarded to the Superior Government of Louisiana, for their sanction. On the 19th and the 20th of July, 1802, these sales and transactions were formally approved by Manuel Salcedo, Governor of the province, under the seal of the Government, attested by Andres Lopez Armesto, Secretary to the Government, and recorded and witnessed by Pedesclaux, Notary in the city of New Orleans, all of which must fully appear by reference to the documents filed in this claim. In the investigation of this claim, it is important to ascertain how much land was owned by those Indians, by what limits they were bounded, how much have they sold and conveyed to your memorialists, was a full consideration paid, and was the purchase fair and open?

With regard to the quantity of land owned and sold, it will appear that the Choctaw Indians have lived upon the lands claimed upwards of thirty-eight years; that they have always held, from the highlands on bayou Bœuf down to the line separating them from the Alabama Indians, a small distance above the clearing of the village; that a few years previous to the change of Government they moved their upper boundary down to the mouth of bayou Clair, for the accommodation of several white families. These limits have been clearly proven by the testimony of Valentine Layssard, Nicholas Chatelin, Mr. Deshautel, and Francis Ebare; numerous witnesses might have been brought to this point. We have relied upon these from their character, their intimate knowledge of the fact, and their long residence in the neighborhood. Mr. V. Layssard has lived in that country upwards of forty-five years, has been for a long time agent of Indian affairs, and sub-delegate of the Intendant of Louisiana, and entitled from his age, character, respectability, and his perfect acquaintance with the subject, to the highest credit. He, as well as all the other witnesses, swear positively that the land of the Choctaws extended down the bayou Bœuf to the line of the Alabama village, a little above that village, and that one-half of their land is not embraced by the survey and plat on file in this claim; that Indians have always guarded these limits with great jealousy, and were always protected by the Government; that many attempts were made by white people to settle between them and the Alabamas, but the Indians would never permit it, and in every instance these settlers were driven from the lands. It will be recollected that this allotment of lands was approved by the Baron de Carondelet, in an official letter, which cannot now be found, but which has been established by the testimony of Layssard and Revoil. The reasons assigned by the Governor for this allotment of land was to prevent the intoxication of the Indians. Their distance from navigable waters, there being no prairie, &c., in addition to which we will add that these Indians were very numerous, amounting to upwards of five hundred souls; that nearly one-half of this land consists in pine woods; that some of these Indians lived by the chase, some tended large flocks of cattle, and others cultivated the earth. Should any doubt arise with regard to the legality of this apportionment to the Indians, let it be recollected that those limits were approved by the highest authority in the country many years before the change of Government, by a power competent to grant lands; that no change was ever afterwards made; that there was no positive law in force in this country limiting the quantity of land to be allotted to Indians; that it was usual to mark their limits by natural boundaries, rather than by quantity; that the Governors were usually influenced by local circumstances, the numbers of their tribe, their mode of living, or yielded to the wishes of the Indians. It is in proof that there was no precise rule on the subject, and that in no instance was less than one league square given to a village; that in the assignment of the limits of the Appalachie tribe nearly three times that quantity was given, which was approved by two successive Governors Miro and Carondelet.

The Choctaws, thus possessed of these lands, gave up a portion of them to the Pascagoula and Beluxy Indians, who came and settled below them and between them and the Alabamas, with the permission of the proper Spanish officers.

Have these Indians, then, sold these lands to your memorialists for a full consideration and fairly? The sales are filed, and can be scrutinized; they are executed by the chiefs and warriors, in the presence of the whole tribes assembled, and of many other witnesses, which sales were afterwards approved by the Governor of the province under the great seal, and with the usual forms and solemnities; whose signature has been duly proven, and the proceedings regularly attested and recorded. It will appear by the sales, and particularly by the evidence, that the Indians sold all their lands without reservation.

For the consideration we have proved to have discharged a debt due your memorialists from the Choctaws of	-	$2,302

To have paid for them, N. Chatelin,	-	785
A. Deshautel,	-	222
A. Revoil,	-	230
P. Sumere,	-	185
	-	$3,724

We have discharged a debt due by the

Pascagoula and Beluxy tribes, 5000 or	-	4,500
To have paid for them to Deshautel,	-	331
To Dufief, by Deshautel, his agent,	-	1,217
In goods, &c.	-	1,500
	-	$7,548

Making, in all, the sum of - - - $11,272

We have proven that lands bore only a nominal price at that time, that their value depended much and almost entirely on the improvement; that lands were sold in the most eligible situations for twelve and a half, fifteen, and twenty-five cents per arpent, and very seldom higher; that more lands of better quality and finer situations might have been purchased at that time for less money; and that the only inducement to the purchase was to save the money due from these Indians. In further corroboration of this transaction, let it be recollected that the whole of the Indians have expressed themselves satisfied with the sale and payments, have quietly given possession of the lands, and have never reclaimed them, notwithstanding the numerous attempts to render them dissatisfied; and let it be also recollected that no evidence has been adduced tending to disprove the sale, or to contradict the testimony filed in the claim. The letter of Doctor Sibley filed in the claim is too vague to merit attention. It purports to represent the statement of a Beluxy Indian and some white people, tending to disprove the testimony of several respectable witnesses, and to invalidate a transaction made by the proper functionaries of the Government, and approved by the Governor of the province. Your memorialists will remark that this letter has been six years filed in this office; that the suspicions of the Indian agent, the Board of Commissioners, and all the officers of the Government have been completely awakened on this subject. No evidence has been taken or heard of to discredit their title since the date of that letter (during six years.) The Indian agent has had no complaint from any of the chiefs or warriors or principal men of either of the tribes. The letter in this particular furnishes the claimants with the strongest presumption that no dissatisfaction has ever existed. Your memorialists, confiding in the legality of their title and the justice of the American Government, pray to be confirmed in forty-six thousand eight hundred arpents of land, and, as in duty bound, will pray, &c.

SPANISH GRANT TO DANIEL BOONE CONFIRMED.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, DECEMBER 24, 1813.

MR. MCKEE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Daniel Boone, made the following report:

That the petitioner was invited by Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Louisiana, under the Spanish Government, to remove from Kentucky; and, as an inducement to his removal, promised the petitioner a grant of land in that country. The petitioner did remove to Louisiana before the year 1798; and, on the 24th day of January, 1798, he received from Zenon Trudeau a concession for one thousand arpents of land, situated in the district of Femme Osage; had the same surveyed on the 9th of January, 1800. It further appears that the petitioner was, on the 11th June, 1800, appointed, by Don Charles D. Delassus, then Lieutenant Governor of Upper Louisiana, commandant of the Femme Osage district, and resided in the vicinity of the land granted to him for eight or nine years, but never settled on or cultivated the same. It is alleged by the petitioner, that he failed to settle and cultivate the land granted to him in consequence of his being informed by the said Delassus that his appointment to the command of the Femme Osage district exempted him from the condition of settling and cultivating the land granted to him, a condition generally required by the Spanish laws from the citizens receiving grants of land in that country, under the Spanish Government.

By the act of Congress of the 2d of March, 1805, authorizing the appointment of commissioners to settle and adjust the claims of persons to land in the district of Upper Louisiana, an actual settlement and cultivation of the land is required to the confirmation of a claim; and, as the petitioner did not allege that any such settlement or cultivation had taken place, the commissioners rejected his claim. It is presumed that the claim was rejected on this ground alone; inasmuch as the claim of the petitioner was good in every other respect. If, then, the appointment of the petitioner to the command of the Femme Osage district, exempted him from the usual condition of settling and cultivating, his claim must be considered as a good, equitable claim against the Government, but not embraced by the provisions of the act of Congress of 1805.

The committee are not satisfied that the appointment to the command of the district does, of itself, exempt the petitioner from the condition of settling and cultivating; but it is known that the Spanish officers frequently received exemptions from this condition, as a matter of favor or right; and, as the petitioner was induced to omit this settlement and cultivation, by the suggestion of the said Delassus, that it was unnecessary, his claim ought not, on that account, to be rendered invalid. It also appears to the committee that the petitioner is in his old age, and has, in early life, rendered to his country arduous and useful services; and ought not, therefore, to be deprived of this remaining resource by a rigorous execution of a provision of our statute, designed to prevent frauds on the Government.

The committee, therefore, recommend the following resolution:

Resolved, That Daniel Boone be confirmed in his title to one thousand arpents of land, in the Femme Osage district, granted to him by the Spanish Government.

Colonel Daniel Boone, a claim for one thousand arpents of land, situate on Femme Osage, district of St. Charles, produces a concession from Don Zenon Trudeau, Lieutenant Governor, dated January 24th, 1798; and a certificate of survey of the same, dated January 9, 1800; also a letter from Don Zenon Trudeau to him, dated in the year 1798, inviting him to remove with his family to Louisiana, with the promise of a grant of lands; and also a commission from Don Charles D. Delassus, Lieutenant Governor, to him (said claimant) dated 11th of July, 1800, appointing him commandant of the district of the Femme Osage.

Colonel D. Boone stated to the Board that, on his arrival in Louisiana, he took his residence with his lady, at his son Daniel M. Boone's, in the said district of Femme Osage, and adjoining the lands he now claims; that they remained there till about two years ago, when he moved to a younger son's, Nathan Boone, where he now lives. It was proved that the said claimant is of the age of about seventy years, and his wife about sixty-eight. He further stated that, having inquired of Charles D. Delassus, as to the propriety of improving and settling his land, within a year and a day from the date of the concession, as directed by the Spanish laws, he was informed by said Delassus that, being commandant of the said district, he need not trouble himself about the cultivating of the same, as, by the commission he held, (of commandant of the district,) he was not considered as coming within the meaning of said laws.

Testimony taken, February 13, 1806: Jonathan Bryan, being duly sworn, says that he knew Colonel Daniel Boone in this country in the year 1800.

Opinion of the Board. December 1, 1809: Full Board. It is the opinion of the Board, that this claim ought not to be confirmed.

STATE OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 31, 1813.

General Land Office, December 30, 1813.

SIR: Although the law establishing the General Land Office does not require the commissioner to make an annual report of the state of that part of the public concerns confided to his care, yet as there has been a considerable accession of new members to the national Legislature, I have thought it would be acceptable to have a comprehensive view of the extent and situation of the public lands, that such legislative provisions as are required may be the more readily perceived.

A report made to the Senate, on the 19th February, 1812, by the chairman of a committee charged with an inquiry into the state of the public lands, together with the accompanying documents from the honorable the Secretary of the Treasury, afforded the most ample information which the nature of such inquiry could at that time furnish, and has much abridged the labor which would otherwise have been necessary in preparing this memoir.

It appears from public documents in this Department that the United States, after deducting all that has been sold, leaving a sufficiency to satisfy every lawful claim, will possess a national domain of at least four hundred million acres of land, embracing a variety of soil and climate capable of furnishing all that is necessary for supplying the wants, and affording most of the luxuries of life to man, and which, if properly managed, will secure auxiliary aids to the Government for ages yet to come.

This four hundred million of acres are situated as follows, in the State of Ohio:—

Lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished,	-	6,725,000
Lands to which the Indian title has not been extinguished,	-	5,575,000

Total number of acres of land in Ohio, for the Territory of Michigan

Lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished,	-	5,100,000
Lands to which the Indian title has not been extinguished,	-	11,400,000

Total number of acres of land in Michigan,

In the Indiana and Illinois, south of the parallel of latitude passing by the southern extremity of Lake Michigan:—
Lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished,	-	33,000,000
Lands to which the Indian title has not been extinguished,	-	23,200,000

Total number of ac's in Indiana and Illinois,

In the territory west of Lake Michigan and north of said parallel of latitude:—
Lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished,	-	5,500,000
Lands to which the Indian title has not been extinguished,	-	54,500,000

Total number of acres west of Michigan,

In the Mississippi Territory:—
Lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished,	-	5,900,000
Lands to which the Indian title has not been extinguished,	-	49,100,000

Total number of acres in the Mississippi Territory,

In the cession made by the French Government, the 30th April, 1803, and including the Territory of Missouri, the State of Louisiana, and the lands east of the river Mississippi and island of New Orleans, as far as the river Perdido, at least	-	200,000,000
---	---	-------------

Grand total number of acres of land,

In the last described portion of Territory, it has not yet been correctly ascertained what proportion of the Indian title has been extinguished, but prior to the period when the United States became possessed of the country, a considerable quantity had been ceded by the Indians, and since that period, cessions have been obtained of the Sacs, Foxes, and Osages, which, with the lands in the occupancy of the inhabitants, are supposed to amount to from twenty-five to thirty millions of acres.

This delightful region, embracing a surface of two hundred millions of acres, has heretofore been least known, but our very intelligent principal surveyor south of Tennessee, who, under instructions from this Department, has been running township lines to ascertain its character and value, gives the most flattering account of it, and from whose information we may safely infer that, at no very distant period, the United States will not only be able to procure within its own boundaries a sufficiency of sugar, molasses, rum, perhaps coffee, and most of the tropical fruits for its own consumption, but be able to spare some for exportation. Within a year last past there have been discovered tracts of country equal to many of the West India islands for quality of soil, not only fit for but of the kind best adapted to produce that precious salt: extracts from some of the communications of the Surveyor will best explain the situation of the lands there. In a letter dated the 21st of January, 1813, he writes, "I have the honor herewith to transmit to you two rough sketches of the north and southeast district of the State of Louisiana, that you may more distinctly perceive the character of the country. Contrary to our expectations or hope, we are informed, that there is a large body of high primitive soil, extremely rich and valuable, situated southwest of Orleans, about twenty miles distant, and from twenty to fifty miles in extent, on which a flock of some hundreds of buffalo range, and have remained for many years past, living in the high cane lands during the season of inundation, and ranging through the salt marshes during the season of low water: this information is obtained by one of our deputies, and, I presume, may be relied on; if so, it will at once become the most valuable and saleable tract of land in this country, it being in the best position for the growth of sugar cane." &c.

In another, dated September 3d, 1813, he writes, "My principal deputy for the southeastern district of Louisiana has been employed for some time past in extending township lines through and exploring the southern portion of his district. He represents, that there are a number of islands on the coast, some of them of considerable size and good soil; he found a body of high, rich land, in the neighborhood of the ocean, extending along the bayous running into the bays.

"Our surveyors have made some progress in surveying tracts on these water courses under the law for surveying lands on water courses in Louisiana. The lands on the bayou they have been surveying (bayou Cayou) for about thirty miles up extend back from that water course about half a mile, of apparently high primitive soil, heavily timbered, and of the richest quality; thence it descends four hundred and sixty-five perches. There are several other bayous in that quarter, similarly situated, with valuable lands on their margin; these lands are as far south as the Balize, or mouth of the Mississippi; they are exposed to the ocean, and of course better calculated for the growth of sugar cane than any lands on the Mississippi; this tract of country, and the approach to it by water, are very litte, or not at all, known; it would doubtless add much to the value of these lands, and promote their ready sale, to have an accurate survey of the coast, bays, and islands in front annexed to the survey of the interior country, so that purchasers, or those disposed to purchase lands there might see the advantages these lands possess, and their convenient approach and communication with the ocean.

It would swell this paper too much to detail minutely the several representations made of this immensely valuable country; immensely valuable, whether considered as it respects its surface and situation, the products it may be rendered capable of furnishing, or the treasure it is destined to pour into the national coffers.

In this region, a land office is directed by law to be opened in the Territory of Missouri, as soon as the private claims are all ascertained and the lands surveyed, and from which Territory alone it is believed inexhaustible stores of lead may be obtained.

In the State of Louisiana three land offices are provided for by law; one at New Orleans, for the eastern land district; one at Opelousas for the western land district south of Red river; and the other at such place north of Red river as the President of the United States shall designate. The officers in these districts are progressing to a close in ascertaining the character and extent of the private claims, and the surveyors have prepared a considerable part of the eastern district for market, and are progressing fast with the remainder.

In that portion of the country lying east of the river Mississippi and island of New Orleans, as far as the river Perdido, two commissions are erected by law; one west, the other east, of Pearl river, to ascertain the nature and extent of private claims derived from either the French, British, or Spanish Governments, and to obtain a list of all the actual settlers who have no claims to land derived from either of those Governments; and who are satisfactorily progressing in the discharge of their official duties.

In the Territory of Illinois two land offices are directed by law to be opened; one at Kaskaskia, the other at Shawnee town, so soon as the private claims and donations are all located, and the lands surveyed, which are in great forwardness. By an act of Congress, passed on the 30th April, 1810, it was provided, in section sixth, "That a tract of land in the Illinois Territory, at and including Shawnee town, on the Ohio river, shall, under the direction of the Surveyor General, be laid off in town lots, streets, and avenues, and into outlots, in such manner and of such dimensions as he may judge proper," &c. I quote the words of the act, to show that it was mandatory on the Surveyor General; for it appears, a most unfortunate site for this town has been made; and that, notwithstanding the expense already incurred in laying out the town, it will be necessary to abandon it; to show the causes for such determination, I beg leave to give extracts from some of the representations made to this office by the present Surveyor General, one of the territorial judges, the principal Deputy Surveyor, and one of the late commissioners at Kaskaskia, who write, August 14th, 1813, as follows:

"When I recently recommended a small change in the plat of Shawnee town, it was then my full conviction that the site itself ought to be changed; but not knowing that others would feel an interest sufficient to induce them to unite in such a recommendation, I was unwilling to move alone in so important an object. I was an eye-witness to one of the two inundations by which that place was visited last spring, and to the great distresses and losses which were experienced. I had before observed, in riding through the woods surrounding the town, the extraordinary height of the water marks upon the trees, which were so visible for the space of about two miles on the road to the Saline, that one might imagine himself riding under water to the depth of from twelve to fifteen feet; but the last spring, I saw the water itself even at a greater height than had been marked by the icy freshes of winter. I rode upon the flood, for more than two weeks in a keel boat, over the principal street of the town, lashed to a merchant's store, and the boat was upon a level with its roof; an attack of ague and fever then compelled me to quit, and seek health in the highlands of Kentucky. The flood continued to rise a few feet afterwards, and was nearly as long in falling as it was in rising; a second inundation quickly succeeded, when the waters rose as high as in the first; at the time I left the boat the waters were about midway on the roofs of the houses generally, and quite to the ridge poles of several; being heavy log cabins they usually did not float until immersed to the last mentioned depth, and I saw about from fifteen to twenty float away; about forty in the whole floated off. It was a merciful Providence that the wind did not blow hard in either of the inundations, for if it had done so, every building of every description must unquestionably have been demolished and swept off. I need not describe the distresses and losses of the inhabitants: several were sickened, some died; every beast perished which could not be taken into boats, or was not seasonably driven to the highlands; all the fences, with every description of improvements around and in the houses, which could float, were taken off. The time occupied by both freshes was about ten weeks. I mean the time that the water lay over the surface of Shawnee town."

It has been observed that Shawnee town was laid out under the authority, and at the expense, of the United States, to which is annexed a most valuable district of rich land, which, with the lots of Shawnee town, are directed to be offered for sale, whenever the President of the United States shall so direct; for all the present settlers there on public lands are volunteers, and have made small temporary improvements, expecting when the sales commenced to become purchasers. But should Congress determine to abandon the present plan from this representation, confirmed by others in this office equally strong and respectable, and authorize the Surveyor General to select a better spot to lay off a town upon, the United States own lands a few miles lower down on the Ohio river, the situation of which, for a town, in every point of view, could not be excelled in the Illinois Territory; and the moneys the sale of the lots would produce, above what the sales in the present town would, will far more than cover the loss incurred by laying out the present town of Shawnee. In this territory there is also a very valuable saline, which is directed by law to be leased in such a way, that the occupants may, while the interests of the United States are secured, produce the greatest possible quantity of salt, and furnish the inhabitants of that country with this essential necessary of life at the lowest possible price.

In the Indiana Territory, two land offices are established and in successful operation; one at Vincennes, on the Wabash, the other at Jeffersonville, on the Ohio, embracing a vast extent of remarkably fertile lands. At the last mentioned office, the fractional sections laying around Clarke's grant, which were not surveyed and ready for market, when the sales first commenced, are now ready, and will be offered so soon as the state of the country will justify the measure.

The existing laws require, "that all lands forfeited for non-payment, shall be offered for sale at the court house of the county in which the offices are situated;" and the register and receiver at Jeffersonville represent, that the court house of their county is fifteen miles from their offices; that it occasions great inconvenience and derangement of their business to attend the sales at so great a distance; and urge the necessity of legislative interference for their relief.

In the State of Ohio there are six land offices established and in successful operation; one at Cincinnati, one at Chillicothe, one at Zanesville, one at Marietta, one at Steubenville, and the other at Canton. The western boundary line of the Virginia military reservation, embracing the lands between the Sciota and Little Miami rivers in this State, has never yet been satisfactorily established. An essay has lately been made by commissioners, appointed by the United States and the State of Virginia, without success. A report of the commissioners, on the part of the United States, with a plat of the country, and explanations, was made to Congress, and are on their files, giving ample information on that controverted business.

In the Territory of Michigan, one land office has been established at Detroit, the private claims and donations to individuals had been patented soon after the organization of this office, but before they were presented to the persons by their agent, who had them in possession, he was taken prisoner by the enemy, and states that the patents were wantonly destroyed. Application was made here for exemplifications, but, owing to the situation of the Territory at that time, and the very limited means allowed to perform the complicated duties assigned, they have not been issued.

In the Mississippi Territory there are three land offices established, one at Huntsville, in Madison county, one at Washington, east of Pearl river, and the other at Fort St. Stephen's, west of Pearl river. In the latter district the register of the land office states, that a number of persons obtained certificates of pre-emption to land to the amount, in the whole, of twenty-one thousand nine hundred and thirty acres of land; and that the time has elapsed wherein they were bound to complete the payments therefor, but that they have never paid one cent; these lands are therefore reverted again to the United States, most of which will now sell, but it requires an act of the Legislature to authorize their sale.

In this district, the whole of the rich and valuable lands ceded by the Choctaws, and lying along the Tombigbee, are surveyed and ready for market. By the articles of agreement and cession, made between the United States and the State of Georgia on the 24th of April, 1802, the United States are bound to pay to the State of Georgia, out of the first net proceeds arising from the sales of the land ceded, after deducting the expenses incurred in surveying and incident to such sales, the sum of one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; only forty-six thousand three hundred and thirty-two dollars seventy cents of which has yet been paid under the act of April, 1808.

From this view of the state of the public lands, it will appear that, independent of the lands now offered for sale at the several land offices established by law, we have nearly ready to add thereto the balance of the Choctaw purchase, lying along the Tombigbee, and the forfeited pre-emptions in the Mississippi Territory. The eastern and western land districts in the State of Louisiana; the Kaskaskia and Shawnee town districts, in the Illinois, and the fractions around Clarke's grant in the Indiana Territory; and, so soon as the laws can be carried fully into effect and the lands surveyed, the district north of Red river, and the lands to which the Indian title has been extinguished in the Territories of Missouri and Michigan.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office considers it his duty further to state, that, upon the organization of this office the public business assigned to it was greatly behind. Patient industry and incessant application has done much; but the examination and auditing the quarterly accounts of the receivers of public moneys, present such an immense load of labor that he is compelled to solicit additional aid in the estimates for the year 1814, for clerk hire: for by a decision of the Comptroller, as the proper law officer of the Treasury Department, the Commissioner of the General Land Office is compelled to examine and audit all the accounts of the receivers of public moneys as far back as the year 1801; and this immense mass of business is pressing: for some receivers are indebted to the United States in large amounts, and suits cannot be commenced by the Comptroller until the accounts are examined and audited. All which is respectfully submitted by

Your most obedient servant,

EDWARD TIFFIN.

Commissioner of the General Land Office.

INDEMNITY FOR AN ERROR COMMITTED AT THE LAND OFFICE IN CINCINNATI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 4, 1814.

Mr. McKEE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Dennis Clark, made the following report:

That the petitioner, in the spring of the year 1806, purchased from the United States the fractional section number ten, in town number one east in the district of land offered for sale at Cincinnati, State of Ohio, containing two hundred ninety-one acres and ten hundredths of an acre, of which he then paid to the receiver of public moneys one hundred and forty-five dollars and fifty-five cents, being the one-fourth part of the purchase money. On the 17th day of August, 1808, the petitioner paid the receiver aforesaid, in discharge of the second instalment, the further sum of one hundred and sixty-six dollars and seventy-three cents. When the last instalment became due, the petitioner called at the receiver's office with the full amount of principal and interest then due on his certificate, and tendered the same to the receiver, which was rejected upon an allegation that the lot of land contained a surplus of seventy-three acres and ten hundredths, as appeared from the returns of the surveyor in the Register's Office. The petitioner being unable to advance the additional sum required for the payment of the overplus, a forfeiture was incurred, and the land reverted to the United States. It was afterwards purchased by another individual, and on a second survey being made, by order of the Surveyor General, it was found not to contain the surplus alleged by the receiver, the supposed existence of which induced the receiver to refuse the money tendered by the petitioner as aforesaid, and which was, in fact, the full amount of payment for the whole number of acres contained in the tract purchased by the petitioner. After the ascertainment of this fact, the petitioner called on the receiver of public moneys, and requested a return of his money, but was informed by the receiver that he had no power to grant the request. It appears the petitioner, by reason of the aforesaid forfeiture, is reduced to the lowest grade of poverty; that during the time he was in possession of the land, his utmost exertions were used in making improvements on it, which improvements greatly enhanced the value of the land. The petitioner purchased at two dollars per acre; and at the time of the forfeiture your committee have good reason to believe the land was worth ten dollars per acre. Upon a full view of the foregoing facts, your committee have no hesitation in saying, that an indemnification ought to be extended to the petitioner. Your committee cannot for a moment believe, that it is the policy of the Government to enrich the treasury by ruinous forfeitures exacted from its citizens, when such forfeitures have been occasioned entirely by the incorrectness of its own officers. Had a similar case existed between private individuals, the sufferer could easily have found adequate redress in a court of justice. His rights ought to be equally respected, and ample redress as readily afforded when he contracts with Government. To refund the money paid by the petitioner, with interest, would be a very inadequate compensation for the injury he has sustained. Your committee, therefore, recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That Dennis Clark is entitled to receive the money with interest, paid by him into the receiver's office aforesaid; and that he be permitted to enter one quarter section of land at two dollars per acre, (to be paid for as other lands of the United States,) in any vacant reserved section or part of a section which has been offered for sale, and not sold in the Cincinnati district.

APPLICATION FOR GRANTS OF LAND IN INDIANA, ON WHICH TO ERECT MILLS AND OTHER MACHINERY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, JANUARY 13, 1814.

Mr. McKEE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of Clark and Jefferson counties, of the Indiana Territory, made the following report.

The petitioners ask for a donation or grant of land on terms and conditions contrary to the usual terms offered to the people at large by the Government; and allege, as a reason for the request, the facilities afforded (by the land proposed to be granted) to the establishment of sundry manufacturing institutions, convenient to the neighborhood as well as beneficial to the community at large.

The committee, however much inclined to aid and promote the mechanic arts in the infant settlements of the west, nevertheless believe that they will prosper best when left to individual enterprise, unaided by grants of land or unusual credit which might eventually disappoint the expectations of the petitioners.

Besides, it is important, in the opinion of the committee, to adhere to uniform rules in the disposition of the public lands, where there exists no strong and solid reason for the deviation.

The committee, therefore, recommend the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioners is unreasonable and ought not to be granted.

Mr. McKEE, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of sundry inhabitants of Harrison county, in the Indiana Territory, made the following report:

That the petitioners ask for a donation of land for the purpose of erecting a water grist mill thereon, for the convenience of the settlement; and allege as a reason for their request, that there is no convenient seat for mills in the vicinity but the one described by the petitioners. They further state, that the quarter section of land, including the mill seat, is sterile, and not valuable for the ordinary purposes of cultivation. It seems to the committee, from the statement made, that the mill seat, if it is a good one, gives to the quarter section including it, an equal value to the neighboring quarter sections, and affords an equal inducement to purchasers; if the seat is a bad one, a donation thereof to the petitioners would only involve them in useless expense, and, perhaps, eventual ruin.

The committee, therefore, recommend the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioners is unreasonable and ought not to be granted.

CLAIM OF THE NEW ENGLAND MISSISSIPPI LAND COMPANY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 28, 1814.

To the Honorable the Senate of the United States, the memorial of the Directors of the New England Mississippi Land Company, citizens of the State of Massachusetts, respectfully represents:

That they are under the painful necessity of again begging the attention of the Legislature of their country to their just claims on a portion of the territory which was ceded to the United States by the State of Georgia, on the 24th day of April, 1802. That patents of large tracts of that territory had been made, under an act of the Legislature of Georgia by the supreme Executive of that state, and that the immediate purchasers speedily sold the greater part of the same in the eastern states, very remote from Georgia, are facts which have long been publicly known, and need not now be repeated. Your memorialists, relying on the most solemn forms of granting land, and the good faith of the supreme power of an independent State, were of the unfortunate number who paid very large sums of money, as subsequent purchasers, without notice or suspicion that the validity of the grants from the State of Georgia was ever questioned. Under such circumstances, they humbly presume that the universally acknowledged principles of justice and of law must secure to them all the property that the State of Georgia had in the lands thus purchased.

Your memorialists are not apprized that the title of the State of Georgia is now questioned by the Government of the United States. The negotiating for, and acceptance of, the aforementioned cession, are some evidence of acquiescence in this title.

But if this be considered as a question, your memorialists beg leave briefly to state, as proofs of the title of Georgia to the land under consideration, the following facts: King Charles the Second, by charter, bearing date 24th March, 1662, created the colony of Carolina, described therein, as extending from latitude thirty-one to thirty-six degrees thirty minutes, north of the equator, and from the Atlantic ocean to the South sea. About two years after, a second charter was granted to the same colony, in which the southern boundary is said to be the twenty-ninth degree of north latitude. That the limits of either of these charters include the land in question, none will deny. Afterwards these charters were surrendered, and the former colony was then divided into two colonies, under the names of North Carolina and South Carolina, and commissions were issued to governors of each. No new southern or western bounds were given to South Carolina by any of these commissions.

The charter of Georgia was afterwards granted, bearing date June 9, 1732; the lands therein mentioned, as forming the new colony of Georgia, are said to be "part of South Carolina." The southern boundary of the colony of Georgia, by this charter, was the most southern stream of the river Altamaha, and running westwardly from the head of said river, in a direct line to the South Sea. Much of the Territory of South Carolina was situate south of this line, and also a great portion of the lands now in dispute. As the charter of Georgia did not make these a part of that colony, so also, there was nothing in that instrument to take them out of the colony of South Carolina; and the Government of the latter colony exercised jurisdiction there, subsequently to the granting of the charter of Georgia. More than thirty years after this charter, viz: on October 7, 1763, a proclamation was issued under the great seal of Great Britain, the object of which was to divide, under various colonial Governments the territory to which that nation had acquired an indisputable title, by the treaty of peace with Spain, bearing date February 10th, 1763.—By this proclamation, all the land lying between the rivers St. Mary and Altamaha is annexed to Georgia. This does not necessarily cover the land now in question; but West Florida is therein bounded north by the thirty-first degree of north latitude; and if the disputed land was not added to Georgia, it was not placed under any colonial Government, which was contrary to the manifest intent of the proclamation. The want of correct maps, probably, is the true cause of the defect of precision in the bounds.

But whatever might now be the construction of the proclamation, considered alone, and as an original question, the subsequent commission which issued in pursuance thereof, to James Wright, as Governor of Georgia, appears to afford a contemporary construction of undeniable authority, and to have put the question at rest. This commission bears date January 20th, 1764, three months after the said proclamation, and, with other commissions issued about that time, was most manifestly intended to carry it into effect. The colony of Georgia, in this commission, is bounded as follows; viz: on the north by the most northern stream of a river, there commonly called Savannah, as far as the head of the said river, and from thence westward as far as our territories extend; on the east by the sea-coast, from the said river Savannah to the most southern stream of a certain other river called St. Mary, including all islands within twenty leagues of the coast, lying between the said rivers Savannah and St. Mary as far as the head thereof, and from thence westward as far as our territories extend, by the north boundary line of our provinces of East and West Florida. It has been already stated, that this "north boundary line," by the proclamation, is the thirty-first degree of north latitude.

Your memorialists humbly apprehend, that words cannot be selected better calculated to describe the colony of Georgia, as of sufficient extent, both southward and westward, to cover all the land now in question. If, however, any one can yet harbor doubts they must be dissipated when it is considered that if the disputed land was not thus added to Georgia, it still remained in South Carolina, and that it was afterwards claimed by the latter State; but, on examining the title, the claim was abandoned, or rather the land was formally surrendered to Georgia. The proceedings were as follow: on 1st day of June, 1785, South Carolina petitioned Congress for a hearing and determination of their claim, according to the then existing confederation of the United States, and on the same day Congress appointed a day for the hearing, and gave formal notice to the Legislature of Georgia to appear and answer to the petition of South Carolina. Afterwards, on the 28th April, 1787, the commissioners of those States concluded a convention at Beaufort by which South Carolina relinquished and ceded to Georgia both the jurisdiction and right of pre-emption of soil of the whole tract of country in which the disputed lands are situate. This convention was afterwards, on the 9th day of August, 1787, entered of record on the journals of Congress, as ascertaining the boundaries between the States of South Carolina and Georgia. The right of Georgia having been thus traced, it now only remains to be added, that actual and indisputable possession, both of soil and jurisdiction, had been united to this right, long before the grants were made, under which your memorialists claim. The State of Georgia had erected the county of Bourbon in this very territory; had appointed its civil officers, and had made various grants of land, of great extent; the validity of none of which acts was ever disputed by the United States, or by any one State except South Carolina, whose supposed title Georgia afterwards acquired by cession.

Your memorialists humbly apprehend, that the right of Georgia, by force of the foregoing proclamation, and the commission to Governor Wright, under the British Government, and the right of South Carolina, if she had any, thus transferred to Georgia, by convention, and the ratification of the whole, by the doings of Congress of the United States, form a triple cord, too strong to be broken, while any right in our country shall be held sacred. And when to this is added the actual indisputable possession and jurisdiction above mentioned, the title does appear, to our humble apprehension, absolutely perfect.

Your memorialists are apprized, that, in the year 1764, the board of trade in Great Britain proposed that "an instrument should pass, under the great seal, in like manner as was directed in the case of the extension of the south boundary of Georgia, declaring that the province of West Florida should be bounded to the north by a line drawn from the mouth of the river Yazoo, where it unites with the Mississippi, due east to the river Apalachicola." But this was only advice, and given from confidence in a gross misrepresentation by the Governor of West Florida, as to the breadth and limits of his province, and a part only of the lands in dispute would have been affected by it if it had been executed. But it never was executed. "The extension of the south boundary of Georgia" was, by proclamation, under the great seal: but no proclamation ever issued to extend the north boundary of West Florida; probably the imposition was detected in season to prevent its effects. It seems manifest that no permanent arrangement of this sort ever took place; for the treaty of peace, between this country and Great Britain, in 1783, makes our southern limit the thirty-first degree of north latitude, and our western limit the river Mississippi. It appears absurd to suppose that Great Britain would, in addition to acknowledging the independence of the revolting colonies, give them, without compensation, the better part of the colony of West Florida, which never joined in the revolt. The records of Congress show, that the ministers of the United States, for making this treaty of peace, were expressly instructed to claim to the southern and western bounds aforementioned, on the ground that the colony of Georgia extended to them. It is not conceivable that Great Britain gave to the United States the most valuable part of West Florida, without motive or equivalent, merely because, by a treaty made with Spain at the same time, this colony was ceded to that Government. Provinces are not ceded by nations without some adequate consideration: and in the treaty with Spain, Great Britain must have lost just as much as the colony so ceded was diminished.

Your memorialists beg leave further to represent that the aforesaid acceptance and recording of the convention of Beaufort was a public and formal recognition of the right of Georgia, and that many other acts of the Government of the United States, for a long succession of years, have also acknowledged it. In the year 1795, our envoy, who negotiated our present treaty with Spain, was instructed to claim to the southern and western boundaries aforesaid, on the express ground that the colony of Georgia extended to them; and it appears from the negotiation, that he did so claim, and with success. Prior to which, Messrs. Carmichael and Short, commissioners at the court of Madrid, were instructed by the Executive of the present Government of the United States, in pursuance of a report of Mr. Jefferson, then Secretary of State, to claim this land on the ground only of its being a part of Georgia; and they did so claim it. After the Government of the United States have advocated the right of Georgia, and obtained an acknowledgment of its justice by solemn treaties from two foreign nations, at distant periods of time, your memorialists are unwilling to believe that Congress, in order to keep the land for the United States, though they claimed it for Georgia, can be disposed to subvert that very title which they have thus asserted for a long course of years.

Your memorialists humbly submit to the wisdom of Congress the consequences of now alleging that, at that time, and also at the time of the treaty of peace, the country southward of the mouth of the river Yazoo in truth was a part of West Florida. Public considerations forbid the further prosecution of this subject. The principle of justice is settled in chancery, that if the true owner will give color of title to another, so as to encourage a third person to purchase of him who has no right, although the true owner may be ignorant of his own title, yet he shall never claim the land against him who thus purchases. The aforementioned holding of jurisdiction of the petition of South Carolina, and calling on Georgia to answer, and the receiving and recording of the deed of cession from the former to the latter, furnish as strong a case of this sort as can be stated. But this is not a solitary instance of acquiescence in the title of Georgia by the Government of the United States; for a course of years the journals of Congress contain repeated acknowledgments of the title of Georgia, by resolves calling on that State to make a cession to the Union, without pretending that the United States had any other claim than the fitness that Georgia should cede to the nation, for public purposes, in equal proportion with the other States

Your memorialists now beg leave to proceed to another consideration, which by some has been thought to press more heavily on them than the question of the title of Georgia. It has been said that the grants from Georgia, under which they claim, were originally void for fraud, or that they have been vacated by the repealing act, or the amended constitution of Georgia. Whether the grant was absolutely void for fraud it is humbly conceived must be a question for judicial examination, if it can be examined at all. It is a principle both of law and equity that fraud is never to be presumed; such a presumption against the sovereign power of a State would be doubly improper, without some such regular investigation and proof. Proof can only be exhibited and weighed on a formal and impartial trial. Such an examination has hitherto been solicited by your memorialists without success. Whether fraud in the Legislature of a State is a subject for examination before any tribunal, for the purpose of avoiding the grant, it may not be proper for your memorialists to say; nor will they attempt to conjecture what proof could be offered of the fact. Depositions heretofore taken by zealous political partisans, without any opportunity given to the party interested to cross-examine the deponent, would hardly be viewed as competent, certainly not as impartial evidence. The fraud is neither denied nor admitted by your memorialists; we do not know facts enough to be prepared to do either. But, were it even admitted, new and momentous questions would present themselves for consideration. Can a State allege the fraud of its own Legislature to avoid their grant? What number of members must be proved guilty? To what kind or degree of corrupt motive in legislators is the principle to be limited? Intrigue, traffic, and popular arts exist in an infinity of shapes, and every popular assembly is, perhaps, in some degree influenced by them. It is presumed that most of the sales of land that have been made in other States by their Legislatures, are liable, in various degrees, to the very objection that is made to the sales by Georgia. But it is impossible in this form to discuss the subject. Long established principles, necessary to the very existence of civil communities, rise on every side to prove, that, although the members are responsible, and may be punished for mal-conduct, yet the solemn official act of the supreme power of a State cannot be holden void. If first principles did not forbid it, it is apprehended that some precedent would exist in history; but it is confidently believed that the records of civilized society do not furnish an instance in which either an act of the supreme Legislature of a State, or the compact of the sovereign power has been holden void for the benefit of that State, on account of their fraud and corruption. But if it were possible that this should be done, yet a subsequent Legislature seems manifestly incompetent to this office. The obvious duty of a Legislature is to establish general rules, not to try titles. They may repeal such rules made by their predecessors, but cannot rescind their compacts. Even if this were not the general principle, yet the constitution of the United States in express words prohibits it. It is there ordained, that no State shall make any law impairing the obligation of contracts. Similar remarks apply to the attempt to vacate the grants, by the amended constitution of Georgia. This, too, is a law, and cannot be so framed as to "impair the obligation of contracts." The constitution of the United States is declared to be "the supreme law of the land," and it is provided, "that the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any thing in the constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding." But if the most despotic effect were to be allowed to the amended constitution of Georgia, surely it could operate only on the rights of the citizens of that State, as they alone were parties to that civil compact; not on the rights of your memorialists who were citizens of another State, who purchased not only long before the making of this new constitution, but also before the passing of the repealing act, and who never submitted their rights to the decision of a convention in Georgia. But your memorialists, from motives of respect, forbear to press this subject. If the State of Georgia has been defrauded we deeply regret it, and are not anxious to defend the claims of any who, in the least degree, have participated of corruption. We only contend in behalf of ourselves, that we have committed no error in giving full faith to the most solemn act of the sovereign power of a State, when we had no notice that it was wrong. We beg leave to offer a brief statement on this part of the subject, and will then cheerfully submit our claims to the consideration of the Legislature. It is believed that even if gross fraud did exist, and rendered all accomplices incompetent to claim, it would be immaterial to the rights of your memorialists, if, in truth, we had no notice of it. This will be admitted to be equitable, and it has been adjudged at law that an assigner, for a valuable consideration, and without notice, is protected in his purchase, although his assignor obtained his title fraudulently. When the question is, which of two innocent parties shall suffer a loss, it is an established rule that, if it happened by the negligence of one, or by his placing confidence in an agent who has betrayed his trust, the party who was thus negligent or thus misplaced his confidence shall bear the consequences. It seems more reasonable and just that the State of Georgia should suffer from the alleged corruption of that Legislature which they appointed, and the members of which are accountable to them, than that innocent citizens of another State should be punished for respecting the most solemn acts of that Legislature. We have only performed the duty enjoined by the constitution of the United States, which provides that "full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other State." The fact, however, rather than the principle, seems to have been questioned by those who resist the claims of your memorialists. On this part of the subject we beg leave to say, that it is physically impossible that we could have had notice of the repealing act, because it was not passed until after we had purchased. Thirteen months elapsed from the date of the letters patent granting the land before the supposed repeal took place; and in that interval the purchases were made, which have proved so calamitous to your memorialists.

But it has been suggested that your memorialists had notice that such fraud had been practised as authorized the repealing act. To this we answer, that, according to the established rules of reasoning and of common sense, we are entitled to call on the person making this assertion for some proof. We hold the negative side of the question: and a simple negative proposition, from its very nature, does not admit of direct proof. If it should be said, in proof, that there was much public altercation in Georgia immediately after granting the land, and that it is probable the purchasers heard, from rumor or from newspapers, that the granting Legislature were charged with corruption, we answer, that no such inference can fairly be made as to your memorialists, when it is considered that we lived more than one thousand miles distant from the place where these things happened, and that there was then no great commercial connexion between that part of the country and our own. Newspapers from Georgia are very rarely seen in Massachusetts. Your memorialists do not know that any persons, except printers, ever read them. It may with truth be affirmed, that the purchasers in Massachusetts, speaking of them generally, had never heard that any objections had been made to the grants, but considered them as the indisputable acts of the supreme power of Georgia. It is believed that not one of them had heard enough to excite alarm in any reasonable mind. Citizens of Georgia seldom visit Massachusetts, and the agents for the vendors certainly would not have published the difficulties that might exist in Georgia. But your memorialists beg leave to ask, what was the utmost we could possibly have known? It was possible for us to know that the minority charged the majority with corruption; that grants of the supreme power of the State, which had passed all the forms of law, were heavily censured by a considerable number of citizens; and that they joined the minority of the Legislature in their accusations. It was possible that this might have been known, though, in truth, it was not known; but it was not possible that secret frauds, practised by members of the Legislature, or by the first purchasers, should have been known, unless they had published their own turpitude, which is not to be presumed. But, even if the existence of a dispute had been known, the most proper inference, because the most respectful, would have been in favor of the purity of the Legislature. Contests of this sort always exist in free Governments, respecting lawful as well as unlawful acts; but it cannot be true that all confidence in public acts, and all proceedings under them, are to be suspended as soon as the discontented and disappointed are able to excite clamor. Similar charges have existed with respect to national compacts; the funding system, the assumption of State debts, and the purchase of Louisiana, furnish prominent instances of similar popular charges on the national Government. It will hardly be contended that the citizens ought not to have respected or acted under these, or placed any confidence in their validity, because many people impeached the motives of the rulers, and it was not absolutely impossible that their successors might pass acts declaring them void. Such an instance, however, had never occurred, and, therefore, was not to be apprehended; the acts of the most corrupt Governments of other countries, as well as the acts of American Legislatures, were always holden valid. The purchasers had witnessed cases precisely similar to that of Georgia. They had, even in their own State, known sales of vast tracts of fertile country, situate about Genesee river, made to a few individuals, respecting which they had heard similar charges of corruption; but they had never heard any body suggest that it was possible to vacate these grants. But the fact which most conclusively negatives the suggestion of knowledge of fraud practised in Georgia, or of collusion with the original purchasers, is, that your memorialists and their fellow sufferers actually paid, or bound themselves to pay, immense sums of money for the title under the grants of Georgia. We paid, in many instances, double the price for which we had known some of the most fertile tracts in the Union to be sold a short time before by the Legislature of Massachusetts, and a higher price than could at that moment be obtained for some of the best lands in the District of Maine. Insanity is the only cause sufficient to account for this conduct, if we had had any suspicion that the title could be questioned. Will it be suggested that the considerations mentioned in the deeds were fictitious, and, in truth, never paid? Alas! the notorious distresses of the purchasers spoke a language not to be distrusted. The records of our judicial courts show the persevering but unsuccessful efforts of some of the sufferers to avoid payment on the ground that the title had failed. The walls of our prisons have witnessed their sighs; some, who before were affluent, have pined and died in penury, and left families without the means of subsistence, to be supported by the hand of charity. These, and many other facts of public notoriety, unanswerably refute the suggestions of collusion with the first purchasers or knowledge of the title being fraudulent. Your memorialists beg leave to refer their rulers to the knowledge of those members of Congress who more immediately represent that section of country where these facts have occurred.

One suggestion has been made which seems to require some notice. It has been said that suspicion arises from the special nature of the warranty in some of the deeds to the purchasers. But it is not usual for those who practice collusion and secret fraud to suffer evidence of it to appear publicly on the face of their contracts. The innocence of the purchasers best accounts for their not avoiding this source of suspicion. The true reason of the special nature of this warranty was, that the Legislature of the State of Georgia knew the pretence which Spain then made to the lower part of that tract of country, and had no means of ascertaining the quantity contained in the several grants, as no correct surveys thereof had ever been made; and, in its granting act, it had expressly provided that the State should not be subject to any suit or claim on account of any deductions in the quantity of said territory, or on account of any other claims whatsoever. In the sale of so large a tract of country, it would have been folly in the original purchasers to have given a general warranty when the State had refused it to them, and unreasonable in the present claimants to expect it. The repealing act of Georgia rather produced surprise than anxiety, when the news of it reached your memorialists. We believed that the measure was so unprecedented that the State would abandon it. If this should not happen, we had confidence that our rights would always be protected in the courts of the United States. When we were informed that a cession from Georgia to the United States was contemplated, we sent agents to the seat of Government of the Union, to give formal notice of our claims to the commissioners of the United States; these agents, on their return, informed your memorialists that they had done this, and that they had also suggested their intention of presenting a memorial to Congress on the subject; but that the commissioners objected to this measure, alleging that, to bring the subject into discussion in Congress, would throw embarrassments in the way of the negotiation with Georgia; but they engaged, if the claimants would omit to interfere, to provide for them a liberal indemnity by the terms of cession itself. It was impossible to distrust the assurances of public officers so eminently respectable, and the agents were unwilling to disturb a great public arrangement from desire of making private emolument, and therefore acceded to this proposal. A reservation for satisfying claims was accordingly made in the deed of cession, and it was well understood that the claims of your memorialists were especially intended to be provided for; and although the reservation was but of a small part of the lands we had purchased, yet we were assured it would be so managed as to afford a liberal indemnity to the claimants. We abandoned our prospects of gain; we placed a liberal confidence in the justice of the Government of our country, and believed that nothing remained but to wait a reasonable time for our compensation; Congress appeared to acquiesce in this expectation, and did in fact begin to make arrangements for effecting it. An act was passed, appropriating the whole reservation for satisfying claims; commissioners were authorized to receive proposals of compromise from the claimants; such proposals have long since been made, and, thereupon, the commissioners, in February, 1803, made a report to Congress, recommending compensation, though the amount proposed was very inadequate to the losses of your memorialists; but even this was not carried into effect. With deep regret your memorialists add, that year after year has since passed away, during which our petitions for an adjustment of our claims have been rejected in a manner too afflicting to be repeated. We are persuaded this would not have been the case had our rights and sufferings been thoroughly known to Congress.

Such are the considerations which have induced your memorialists to make the present appeal.

With sentiments of the most profound respect, and relying with perfect confidence on the wisdom and rectitude of our Government, we again humbly solicit that measures may be speedily adopted for an examination and adjustment of our claims on just and equitable principles.

2d Session.

CLAIMANTS UNDER GRANTS FROM GEORGIA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES MARCH 15, 1814.

Mr. OAKLEY, from the committee to whom was referred the bill from the Senate entitled "An act providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory," made the following report :

That they have had the subject of the said bill under their consideration, and are of opinion that it is expedient for the Government of the United States to enter into a compromise with the persons claiming lands in the Mississippi Territory, under or by virtue of the act of the Legislature of Georgia of the 7th of January, 1795. The reasons for this opinion do not rest on the strict legality of the title of these claimants to the lands in question, though the committee cannot forbear remarking that that title appears to have all the sanction which can be derived from a solemn decision of the highest judicial tribunal known to our laws. They are grounded on considerations connected with the permanent interests of the United States, as they relate to the Mississippi Territory; with the quiet and speedy settlement of that Territory; with the more easy extinguishment of the Indian title to the lands contained in it; with the security against all future Indian wars in that quarter, which the settlement of the Territory must afford; with the extensive navigation connecting parts of the Western States with the ocean, which must be opened when the population of the Territory shall be adequate to such an object; and with the strength and safety which such a population must confer on the Louisiana frontier.

It may, in addition, be remarked, that there are equitable considerations connected with the present claims, which, in the opinion of the committee, strongly recommend them to the favor of Congress. Although the original act of the State of Georgia might have been procured by fraudulent and corrupt means, it satisfactorily appears to the committee, as far as their inquiries have been extended, that the present claimants, or those under whom they hold, were bona fide purchasers of the immediate grantees of Georgia, without notice of any fraud or corruption in the original grant. The committee refer, on this head, to the papers annexed to this report, marked from A to L, inclusive.

As to the terms of the compromise which it may be expedient to make, the committee have considered that those contained in the bill from the Senate are as effectual and practicable, and at the same time as eligible, as ought to be required under the circumstances of the case. They have accordingly directed their chairman to report the said bill without amendment.

The committee have had under consideration the resolution adopted by the House on the 9th instant. As to the "authority vested in the agents now attending to compromise the claims set up by the respective claimants," the committee have procured all the information within their reach. They have examined various documents and papers, some of them very voluminous, consisting of conveyances, powers of attorney, letters, &c.; they have also received from the respective agents written representations of the extent of their powers and authority, and of their readiness to accede to the terms of compromise contained in the bill from the Senate. These representations are annexed to this report. The committee did not consider it necessary to report to the House the various documents exhibited to them by the respective agents in support of these representations; such a procedure was supposed not to come necessarily within the purview of the resolution of the House, and would have encumbered this report with a mass of papers. The committee will remark, generally, that the authority of the agents appears to be very extensive, and that, in the course of their inquiries on this head, they have discovered no reason to believe that any one of the claimants will refuse to accede to the proposed compromise.

As to the "amount of money actually paid by bona fide third purchasers for grants or titles they may hold under the original grant," the annexed papers afford all the information which the committee have found it "practicable" to obtain. These papers show, to a great extent, the prices at which "bona fide third purchasers" contracted for the lands in question, and which were paid in negotiable and endorsed notes, and other securities. But the committee consider it impracticable to ascertain to any extent "the amount of money actually paid," without devoting to the enquiry more time and attention than any committee could bestow on it during any session of Congress, as it would lead to an examination of all the private transactions of the numerous individuals now interested in these claims, which might be connected with the purchases and sales of the lands in question, and with the notes and other securities given in consequence of these purchases and sales.

As to that part of the resolution which instructs the committee to inquire "from which of the original companies the present claimants derive title, and the amount of money withdrawn by any of the original grantees, or persons claiming under them, or their agent or agents, from the treasury of Georgia," the committee also refer to the annexed papers, and to a document accompanying the report of the commissioners appointed in pursuance of the act of Congress entitled "An act for an amicable settlement of limits with the State of Georgia, and authorizing the establishment of a Government in the Mississippi Territory;" which document is contained in a volume, from page 147 to page 153, inclusive, printed by order of Congress on the 18th day of December, 1809.

The committee also take the liberty to refer to the volume above mentioned, as containing much useful information in relation to the acts and proceedings of the State of Georgia and of the United States, connected with the subject under consideration. In the same volume will also be found the report of the commissioners above mentioned, and various documents accompanying the same, showing, among other things, the evidence of the fraud and corruption connected with the original grant of these lands by the State of Georgia.

All which is respectfully submitted to the House.

A.

WASHINGTON, March 11, 1814.

SIR: In answer to the inquiries made by the committee on the subject of the Georgia claims, I would beg leave to state that I represent the following claimants under grants from the Governor of Georgia, made in compliance with a statute of that State passed in the year 1795:

	Acres.
New England Mississippi Land Company, estimated to contain	11,380,000
The Upper Mississippi Land Company, owned mostly in South Carolina, Individuals, proprietors, and companies, owned in New England and partly in New York,	2,000,000
Individuals in New York,	9,000,000
Hugh Rose,	2,500,000
Thomas Tunno, South Carolina,	600,000
	231,000

for all of whom I am ready to compromise on the terms now proposed by a bill from the Senate now before the House. I am unacquainted with the prices at which the above lands were purchased, except the New England Mississippi Land Company, which was at the rate of eleven cents; and the nine millions purchased by the other companies in New England and New York, those were bought at from twelve to twenty-two cents per acre. There are some few of the claimants in Boston whose powers have not yet come on, it not being supposed that they would be wanted before the commissioners sit to examine the claims, and that they would give the form of power and release necessary to be exhibited. With the utmost confidence I can assure the committee that I have no doubt every one of the claimants in New England will compromise their claims on the terms proposed in the bill from the Senate.

I am, with respect, sir, your very humble servant,
B. JOY.

The Hon. the CHAIRMAN of the Committee of the House of Representatives on the Georgia Claims, so called.

B.

MARCH 10, 1814.

The Tennessee Company associated in a deed of trust dated the 20th June, 1800, to which three hundred and two shares were subscribed out of four hundred and twenty, into which the company had been divided by the grantees, who were Matthias Maher and Zachariah Cox. It is conjectured that the most of the residue of one hundred and eighteen shares were relinquished to the State of Georgia, and the original purchase money withdrawn from the treasury of Georgia. The trustees were James Strawbridge, Ebenezer Jackson, and Samuel Dexter, Esqrs. By the deed of trust all power of acting was given to James Strawbridge, and, in the event of his death, all the powers given to James Strawbridge devolved on E. Jackson, as surviving trustee, who is ready to subscribe to the terms of compromise proposed by the law which has passed the Senate of the United States. The original deed from the Governor of Georgia, with the original mortgage and satisfaction acknowledged on the same, with all the original papers relative to the affairs of the Tennessee Company, are in the possession of E. Jackson, who has deposited the same in one of the banks of New York for safe keeping. The deed of trust is full and unlimited as to powers of compromise and settlement, and is on record in the Secretary of State's office in Washington City.

E. JACKSON.

WASHINGTON, February 21, 1814.

SIR: Having devoted the last two months to the business before Congress relative to the claims under the act of the State of Georgia of 7th January, 1795, as the agent of the claimants in the State of New York, and my business calling me home, I think it proper to say, in behalf of my constituents, that I assent, as their agent, to the mode of settlement proposed in the bill now before the Senate, to carry into effect, in substance, the report of commissioners made in 1803 by the Hon. James Madison and others.

D.

In obedience to the request made the last evening by the committee to whom was referred the bill from the Senate, entitled "An act for the indemnification of certain Georgia claimants," &c., the undersigned has the honor to state: That, by four letters of attorney herewith exhibited, he represents, in law or equity, claims to the extent of 10,300,000 acres; and that he is willing, provided justice is done to his constituents, according to the provisions of the law now before Congress, to relinquish their claims to the land in question.—(See the accompanying schedule, marked J. G. No. 1.)

That the land conveyed to him by James Gunn and his associates, on the 23d of August, 1795, comprised, by as accurate an estimate as could then be made, on the plat herewith shown, - - - acres, 13,500,000

That, of this, the undersigned conveyed away, from the 24th August to the 28th of November, 1795, - - - 10,352,000
On the 13th September, 1796, - - - 700,000
On the 30th of September, 1796, for the benefit of his creditors, all the unsold residue, (see schedule J. G. No. 2.) 2,448,000

13,500,000

That, although 13,500,000 acres were, as above estimated, conveyed to him, only 11,500,000 acres were considered as sold to him, (in tracts to the supposed extent of 2,000,000 acres, being conveyed by him to Z. Cox and J. Wilson, by the direction of Gunn and his associates,) for which the undersigned paid $225,000; $200,000 of which was immediately necessary to enable Gunn and his associates to redeem their bond and mortgage given on the land, to the State of Georgia, which became due in October, 1795, and which, had it not been punctually paid, would have rendered the land forfeit in law. (The terms of the mortgage requiring that it should, in such case, lapse to the State,) together with $50,000 that had been previously paid.

That, owing to the extreme pressure for money among merchants, in the autumn of 1795, (the yellow fever being at that time in Philadelphia, and having almost depopulated New York and Baltimore,) the undersigned was obliged to make very great sacrifices to raise the money so suddenly required, so that it cost him a much larger sum, and, in his belief, nearly double the amount, say $400,000.

The undersigned was so entirely unsuspecting of aught wrong or fraudulent, on the part of Messrs. Gunn and associates, or on that of the Legislature of Georgia, that, although he acted under the advice and guidance of able counsel. (Alexander Hamilton and William Tilghman.) he confided principally to the deed of the State of Georgia, which was exhibited to him, and was, in consequence, heedless of any precaution being necessary other than that of having the remainder of the purchase money paid under the eye of an agent, sent for the purpose, the mortgage removed, and the deed given him duly placed on record.

That, when he sold part of the land to persons in Boston, (who were alike heedless and unconscious of wrong,) the undersigned preferred sales on a considerable credit to sales for cash, which he might have made at a disadvantage not much greater than the loss of the legal interest; which preference he certainly should not have given, had he known of, or suspected, any thing fraudulent in the original grant; that, in receiving securities for the payment of the promissory notes given him, he preferred taking mortgages on the land to mortgages on real estate in Boston and its vicinity, which was pressed on him, and which he certainly should not have refused had he known of any thing fraudulent in the original grant; and that, instead of selling all the land he had, and which he was urged to do, he preferred holding about two and a half millions of acres, as the most eligible estate he could retain for the future benefit of his children; the knowledge of which circumstance will, he trusts, remove every suspicion, if any exists, of his being knowing to the frauds stated to have been made in Georgia.

All which (with the prayer that the imperfections and any small inaccuracies that may appear in this very hastily sketched statement, will be pardoned) is submitted to the gentlemen of the committee,

By their respectful and obedient servant,
JAMES GREENLEAF.

E.

Schedule J. G. No. 1.

James Greenleaf represents the following claims:

A. Under power of attorney of his trustee John Wilson, Jun., dated April 4, 1804.

	Acres.
1st. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to James Wilson; Wilson having conveyed to Henry Lee, and Henry Lee owing bonds to James Greenleaf for $26,666 66, with interest from 1793,	500,000
2d. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to Z. Cox; Cox owing to James Greenleaf $100,000, with interest from 1795,	1,000,000
3d. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to Samuel Marsh; Marsh having conveyed to J. B. Bond, and Bond and Marsh owing to Jas. Greenleaf $2,000, and interest from 1797,	700,000
4th. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to Seth Witmore; S. Witmore having paid none of the purchase money,	160,000
5th. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to T. Dawes; no part of the purchase money being paid,	80,000
6th. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to A. Coagie; this conveyance having been made to secure a debt which has been principally, if not wholly, discharged,	400,000
	2,840,000

B. Under power of attorney from W. Cranch, dated December 23, 1803.

1st. Under James Greenleaf's fifteen conveyances to Jos. Barroll and others; their notes being lodged with Jones, Jeffrey, and Russell, in Boston, as a security, in trust, for which they are answerable to W. Cranch,	3,312,000
2d. Under James Greenleaf's conveyance to B. Haskell; Haskell having paid nothing,	1,200,000
	4,512,000

C. Under power of attorney from Henry Pratt and others, dated April 9, 1805.

For all the residuary interest of Jas. Greenleaf in and to 13,500,000 acres, conveyed by Gunn and his associates, D. Under power of attorney from John Crawford, sole trustee of Nicholas Le Farre, dated 19th February, 1806.

For part of the land conveyed by James Greenleaf to James Wilson,	500,000

JAMES GREENLEAF.

1795. Schedule J. G. No. 2.

August 22, conveyed by James Gunn and his associates to James Greenleaf, per estimate then made,	13,500,000
August 24, conveyed by J. Greenleaf to Jas. Wilson, per stipulation made with J. Gunn and others, supposed,	1,000,000

October 8, conveyed to Z. Cox, by J. Greenleaf, per stipulation made with J. Gunn and others, supposed,	1,000,000	Acres.
		2,000,000

September 23, conveyed to R. Prime and S. Ward for the sum of $180,000, supposed,	2,800,000
		8,700,000

November 27, 1795, conveyed to—
J. Taphorp eight four-hundredths of 6,400,000 acres, or eight shares of 16,000 acres each, at 13 cents,	128,000	All paid.
T. H. Perkins, 4 shares at 13 cents,	64,000
J. Lloyd, Jun. 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
G. Gunn, 4 shares at 13 cents,	64,000
J. Blagge, 4 shares at 13 cents,	64,000
	400,000
		8,300,000

November 27, 1795, conveyed to—
J. Barroll, 30 shares at 13 cents,	480,000	All paid.
E. H. Derby, 30 shares at 13 cents,	320,000
L. Jarvis, 10 shares at 13 cents,	160,000
J. Peck, 20 shares at 13 cents,	320,000
J. Cooper, 4 shares at 13 cents,	64,000
J. Greenleaf, 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
W. Witmore, 20 shares at 13 cents,	320,000
Cragie and Johnson, 30 shares at 12 cents,	480,000
John Marston, 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
H. Bowman, 20 shares at 13 cents,	320,000
D. Greenleaf, 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
C. Bullfinch & G. Storrs, 18 shares at 13 cents,	288,000
W. Suhry, 10 shares at 13 cents,	160,000
J. Sullivan, 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
W. Shattark, 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
		4,988,000

NOTE.—The notes and mortgages given to J. Greenleaf for the preceding fifteen conveyances, were pledged by him with Jones, Jeffrey, and Russell, in Boston, in security for the payment of a much smaller debt owing by him to them. James Greenleaf has never received information that any of the notes have been paid, or compromised for; Jones, Jeffrey, and Russell are responsible to William Cranch, assignee of James Greenleaf; and James Greenleaf is appointed his attorney.

November 28, 1795, conveyed to Seth Witmore, 10 shares at 13 cents,	160,000
November 28, 1795, conveyed to T. Dawes, Jun., 5 shares at 13 cents,	80,000
November 28, 1795, conveyed to B. Haskell, 75 shares at 21 cents,	1,200,000

		3,548,000
--	--	-----------

NOTE.—Notes and mortgages given for these three conveyances, but nothing paid; the claims, therefore, are in James Greenleaf's trustee.

November 28, 1795, conveyed to A. Cragie 25 shares (400,000) in security for the payment of $25,000, which has been partly paid,	Acres. 400,000
September 13, 1796, conveyed to S. Marsh for $28,000, of which about $2,000 unpaid,	3,148,000
September 30, 1796, balance conveyed by James Greenleaf to George Simpson, in trust for the payment of a very large amount due to James Greenleaf's creditors; conveyed by George Simpson, March 25, 1797, to Henry Pratt and others, for the same purpose; James Greenleaf appointed their attorney,	700,000 2,448,000

To the honorable the committee of the House of Representatives on the bill from the Senate for a compromise of the claims of Georgia lands under the act of 7th January, 1795.

The undersigned, being a claimant, takes the liberty, among other claimants, of stating that, of the lands granted to James Gunn and others, for the Georgia Company, and by them conveyed to James Greenleaf, one million of acres were conveyed by said Greenleaf to James Wilson, of which million one undivided moiety was, by the said Wilson and wife, conveyed to the undersigned, by deed bearing date the 24th of October, 1795; that the purchase of this half million was made in several undivided parcels by the undersigned and others, for whom he holds the title, and to whom he is accountable for the proceeds of a sale or compromise; that the rates at which these several purchases were made were never made known to him, which puts it out of his power to state the rates or average rates of those purchases; those made by himself, at different periods, make an average of from eleven to twelve and a half cents.

Having seen the bill from the Senate, and considering that the United States, by a purchase of the lands, have become a party in the dispute as to the title, and exercise the right of deciding on the merits of the claims aforesaid, the undersigned would prefer to release and relinquish his claim, on the terms contemplated in the bill from the Senate, to further delay; because it appears that the claimants have no alternative to which they can resort without subjecting their patriotism to criticisms which, however ill founded, would be unpleasant in the extreme; and, as far as the undersigned has any knowledge of the claimants, he has no hesitation in declaring his full belief that they would all be governed by the same considerations.

Thomas Young, Esq., of Georgia, holds and claims in the Georgia Company above 687,600 acres.

In the Tennessee Company more than thirty shares, each share one four hundred and twentieth part of the whole, amounting to about 600,000 acres.

I have not the amount paid by Mr. Young, but I am well informed that he paid, bona fide, for purchases of the Georgia lands, a sum equal to $40,000.

I have full and ample powers to compromise in relation to these lands. My powers are on record in the Department of State.

To the COMMITTEE, &amp;c.

I.

CITY OF WASHINGTON, March 12, 1814.

The following tracts of land, held under the Georgia Company, are owned by citizens of Philadelphia, who had no connexion whatever, directly or indirectly, in the original sale, or pretended sale, to the said Georgia Company by the Legislature of Georgia, in the year 1795, or in the taking out of the money from the treasury of Georgia, under the rescinding act, which passed the year following, to wit:

One tract of seven hundred thousand acres; one tract of five hundred thousand acres; and one tract of three hundred and thirty thousand acres,

The two first tracts are held by Walter Sims, of Philadelphia, in trust; and the last mentioned tract by the said Sims, in his own right. They cost the present owners, as near as can be ascertained here, about eighty-nine thousand dollars, exclusive of interest. James Lyle and J. B. Bond, of Philadelphia, hold an original scrip receipt or certificate, signed by the Georgia Company, for two thousand six hundred and sixty-six dollars and sixty-six cents, in favor of Benjamin Sims, purporting to be for one hundred thousand acres in the Georgia Company.

The undersigned is authorized to state that all of the land herein mentioned will be conveyed to the United States, agreeably to the bill from the Senate now before the House, should it become a law.

MARCH 12, 1814.

At the request of B. Joy, Esq., I certify and declare that, at the time of the sales of lands in Georgia, which were made in Massachusetts, under the act of the first mentioned State, I had knowledge of the general course of the business, and, at that time, and since, have frequently been consulted as counsel on the subject; and have acted, on various occasions, as agent for many of the purchasers, being also interested in some of the purchases, and holding some in trust; and, from these facts, I have the utmost confidence that the purchasers, at the time of purchasing there, were altogether ignorant of any fraud by any members of the Legislature of Georgia, which made the grants; but, on the contrary, fully believed that they purchased under the good faith of a respectable State. And I further certify and declare, that I knew a considerable number of men there who were purchasers, and who, before becoming such, were generally reputed to be men of large property, and who, I fully believe, were so, which men afterwards were notoriously poor, and the general report was that they were ruined by purchasing Georgia lands, which report I have not the least doubt was true; and I also declare that I knew many others, who were esteemed men of property, and of whom it is generally said and believed that they were also purchasers, and that they have been greatly embarrassed and injured, but not absolutely ruined, thereby; and that I fully believe that they were purchasers, and paid for the lands for which they contracted; that, though I have not been an eye-witness to the actual payment of money, except in a very few instances, from my general knowledge of the subject, I have no doubt that many very large sums must have been paid, as it is within my knowledge that payment of the notes given for these lands was at first resisted in the law courts of Massachusetts, but the Supreme Court adjudged that they were good, and the title to the land not vacated by the rescinding act of Georgia; after which some of the purchasers sunk under the weight, and others struggled through their embarrassments. And I further declare that I have full belief and confidence that, should the bill for compromising the claims of the purchasers, which is now before Congress, become a law, the purchasers will very generally agree to the terms of it. This opinion is founded on my knowledge of the principal and influential men among them, and the suffering condition of many of the adventurers.

SAMUEL DEXTER.

To the Hon. the COMMITTEE of the House of Representatives of U. S.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 12, 1814.

SIR: In obedience to your request, I have the honor to submit to you the following very hasty sketch of the principal facts and circumstances which are within my recollection relative to the subject of your present deliberations.

In the summer of 1795, being at Hartford in the State of Connecticut, and engaged in several important land speculations in connexion with the late Mr. Oliver Phelps of Canandaigua, I was introduced by that gentleman to a person then in the city of Hartford by the name of William Williamson, whom Mr. Phelps represented to me as being a gentleman from the State of Georgia, then on his way to Boston, with a view to negotiate a sale of the large tract of territory lying between the Mississippi and Tombigbee rivers, and belonging to an association of persons known by the name of the Georgia Mississippi Company. Until this period, although I had theretofore been extensively concerned in the purchase and sale of wild lands, I had never any knowledge of the tract in question, or of any fact or circumstance connected with it. Being, however, informed by Mr. Phelps, with whom I had been before connected in several important speculations in land, that the tract alluded to was of great value and deserving of attention, I was induced to solicit an interview with Mr. Williamson, in the expectation that I might be able to render him essential aid in the accomplishment of the purposes for which it was understood he was proceeding to Boston. Accordingly, I waited on Williamson, and, on being informed by him that he had been employed to effect a sale of the tract alluded to, it was agreed between us to go on to Boston together, and that if I would procure a company to purchase his lands, he would allow me a reasonable commission for my services. I accordingly accompanied him to Boston, and, in the course of a few weeks after our arrival there, a contract for the sale of the lands in question was opened at the rate of ten cents per acre; and with the aid of H. G. Otis, Esq., who had been associated with me in the agency, the subscription was filled and the list completed in a short time thereafter. The precise tenor of this contract is not within my remembrance, having never seen it, nor had occasion to advert to it for many years past. I remember, however, that it contained a stipulation, on the part of Williamson, that he should proceed forthwith to the State of Georgia, and procure and deliver, within a certain time therein limited, a good and sufficient deed of conveyance from the company owning the land to the persons named in the contract, or such others as should be appointed to receive the same. On the other part, it was stipulated that, on receiving the deed, the purchase money, being ten cents per acre, estimating the tract to contain eleven million three hundred and eighty-three thousand acres, should be secured by notes of hand, with good and sufficient endorsers, payable in instalments, at certain periods, which, without the aid of certain memoranda and documents, which I have not now with me, I am unable to recollect. It is, however, impressed on my mind that the term for the payment of all the instalments was comprised within the space of eighteen months from the delivery of the deed. The contract having been thus executed, Williamson proceeded, if I mistake not, in the month of August of that year, from Boston, on his way to Georgia, for the purpose of obtaining the conveyance, in conformity with the terms of his covenant. In the month of January of the year ensuing, most probably at the beginning of that month, being in the city of Philadelphia, I was met by Mr. Williamson, in company with Amasa Jackson, Esq., now of the city of New York, (who, it seems, had been united with Williamson in the agency for carrying into effect the contract alluded to,) on their way from Georgia to Boston for that purpose. I was informed by these gentlemen that they were in possession of a deed of conveyance from the Georgia Mississippi Company, nearly conformable with the terms of that contract, and that, with certain modifications, the nature of which they did not then explain to me, they would be able, on their arrival in Boston, to carry that contract into effect. Being engaged in other important business in Philadelphia, I remained in that city several days afterwards; but Williamson proceeded immediately to Boston, and within a day or two subsequently I followed him, in company with Mr. Jackson.

On my arrival in Boston, the parties in contract with Williamson were very soon called together to receive his communications, and with a view to the fulfilment of the contract, in conformity with its stipulations. At this time, and for several weeks subsequently, I am absolutely certain that an intimation from any quarter had never reached Boston with regard to any supposed fraud in obtaining the original grant from the Legislature of Georgia. It was understood, and so had been from the commencement of this negotiation, that certain questions might arise concerning the title of certain portions of the land, said to be claimed by individuals under grants from the Crown of Great Britain, as also with respect to the rights of the United States; but I can assert, with the utmost confidence, that at this period a suspicion had never existed in the mind of a single individual among the purchasers in Boston of any fraud or misbehavior in obtaining the original grants from the Georgia Legislature, nor the shadow of doubt that the grantees were in full possession of all the title which had ever belonged to that State. On the contrary, at the period referred to, the purchasers under Williamson appeared to be not only satisfied, but extremely elated with their bargain; and, indeed, so sanguine were their expectations, that several instances occurred within my knowledge and recollection of sales having been made by individuals, parties to the contract alluded to, of certain portions of their interest therein, at an advance of from thirty to fifty per cent.

Such was the state of feeling and opinion on this subject at the first meeting which took place between the Boston purchasers and Williamson on his return from Georgia. Their expectations were, however, in some measure, disturbed by the statement which was made by Williamson at this meeting, that though he was in possession of the deed, he was not authorized to make a delivery of it on the precise terms specified in the contract; that certain modifications of the terms agreed upon were indispensably requisite; and that, unless these qualifications were assented to, his only alternative would be to recede from his contract, and to subject himself to the penalty therein provided for the case of its non-fulfilment.

One of the qualifications which he then proposed was, that the purchasers should pay, in money, on receiving the deed, one cent per acre, in addition to the ten cents stipulated in the contract. Another condition was, that in place of a deed containing the covenants contemplated in the contract, the purchasers should accept the conveyance which is now before the committee, containing particular restrictions and limitations with regard to the responsibility of the grantors in the case of a failure of title. After much discussion and altercation at several successive meetings, in which the contest was conducted with infinite address and ingenuity on the part of Williamson, the foregoing conditions were eventually assented to, the former with the less hesitancy, inasmuch as the reported value of this property was at these periods actually enhanced nearly fifty per cent.; and with regard to the latter condition, notwithstanding the dubious aspect which it seemed at first to present, it was so managed and softened by the statements and explanations of Williamson, as to be made eventually to seem objectionable rather in form than in substance. It was, among other things, as I well remember, urged by him, that as the grantors named in the deed were acting in the capacity of mere agents and trustees for a company composed of a great number of individuals, and as the interest of the said grantors in this property was comparatively inconsiderable, it would be unreasonable to require of them any thing like a warranty of title, or even a quit-claim deed, in such form as should leave them personally liable, in any possible event, to refund the immense sum of money which was about to pass through their hands, merely for the benefit and use of those whom they represented; that whatever might be the perfect clearness and certainty of the title, it could not be expected that any set of men of ordinary prudence would be willing to incur so heavy a responsibility. It was, moreover, stated, that as the parties executing this deed were men of but moderate fortunes, they would not be able, in case of a failure of title, if their covenants were ever so absolute, to refund any considerable proportion of the immense sum for which they would be legally responsible. It was also suggested that the Georgia Company had always contemplated, in the event of a sale, to stand exempted, by express stipulations, from all possible responsibility for defect of title arising from the claims of the United States, or from grants to individuals under the Crown of Great Britain; and, on this account, the particular qualifications which now appear in the deed ought to be regarded as being perfectly reasonable and appropriate. It was not forgotten by Williamson, in the course of the frequent discussions which took place on these points, to urge, with great emphasis and ability, the unquestionable validity of his title to all the rights which had ever appertained to the State of Georgia, and that the purchasers ought to be satisfied to repose on the faith of that respectable State. These and various other considerations, which were from time to time urged by Williamson, were followed up on all occasions by manifestations of the most perfect indifference on his part whether the terms he had proposed should or should not be accepted; professing always a readiness, and, as was imagined, a disposition also, to rescind the contract, and to hold himself accountable for the specific penalty therein provided for such an event. Under these circumstances, after much discussion and deliberation, it was at length agreed by the purchasers to accept his terms, as being the best that could be obtained from him. The deed was accordingly delivered, and at the same time the one cent per acre in money, was actually paid by each purchaser, and the notes of hand delivered to Williamson and Jackson for the remaining ten cents, in conformity with the terms of the contract. Without the aid of a single memorandum or document of any kind, and having had no occasion for many years past to retrace the foregoing series of circumstances, it is impossible for me to recollect the precise period at which the deed and the notes of hand were exchanged, as above stated. It is, however, strongly impressed on my mind that this must have occurred some time about the middle of February, 1796. Be this, however, as it may, I feel myself authorized, from a most perfect recollection of a chain of circumstances, to state, that up to the period when the contract was carried into execution, as before mentioned, and for a considerable time afterwards, the purchasers in Boston were utterly ignorant that any imputation of fraud had ever been conceived against the original grantees under the State of Georgia; and I am well assured that, had the slightest suspicion of this kind existed in the minds of the purchasers, they could not have been persuaded to engage in the speculation on any terms that could have been proposed, much less to have placed in jeopardy their entire fortunes, as most of the contractors certainly did, by being concerned in the contract referred to. I am the more confirmed as to the entire correctness of this statement, from my perfect recollection of the astonishing effect produced on the minds of the purchasers in Boston by the first rumors, vague and indefinite as they were, which preceded the intelligence of the actual rescinding of the grant by the Georgia Legislature, and by the consideration, moreover, that at the first moment the certainty of that fact was made known in Boston, the lands referred to, which, until the first intimations of fraud had reached us, were selling currently at from thirteen to sixteen cents per acre, were so materially affected, that sales could not afterwards have been made at any price.

In this state of things the purchasers had at first resolved, as the mode affording the best prospect of escape from the impending ruin, to contest the validity of the notes of hand they had issued, on the ground of a total failure of consideration; and, accordingly, the payments were not made at the periods stipulated. This question was, however, soon put at rest by a decision in the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, in a case wherein I was of counsel for the defendant, (the case of Derby and Blake,) in which, after a full argument upon every point which could arise upon the notes, their validity, and the inefficacy of the rescinding act of Georgia, so far as a judicial decision of the highest tribunal of the State could extend, were fully established. The purchasers were then left to make the best terms they could with Messrs. Williamson and Jackson, who were the holders of these securities.

With regard to the sums of money which were from time to time paid to Williamson and Jackson in satisfaction of these notes, I am unable to communicate any precise information. It is obvious that this can be ascertained only by reference to the particular manner in which each of the purchasers satisfied his own particular debt. I have, however, been well acquainted with the terms upon which several of the most considerable purchasers adjusted those claims with Messrs. Jackson and Williamson; and I have reason to believe that, making all proper allowance for several instances of insolvency, and for all other deductions, the money actually paid upon these notes could not have been less than seven-elevenths of the whole sum stipulated.

It ought to be understood that the foregoing very crude and imperfect statement is the result of present recollection only, unaided by a single paper or document of any kind relative to the subject. The principal facts are, however, so familiar to me, that I think I cannot be mistaken with regard to any of the material circumstances herein detailed. It should, moreover, be understood that I have still an interest in the property alluded to, and that, for this reason, it has been with much hesitancy that I have consented to make any statement respecting it.

I have the honor to be, sir, with the greatest respect,
Your most obedient servant,
GEORGE BLAKE.

To the Hon. CHAIRMAN of the Committee on the Yazoo Claims.

No. 224.

CLAIM OF OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS OF THE VIRGINIA LINE, ON STATE ESTABLISHMENT, FOR BOUNTY LAND.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES MARCH 25, 1814.

Mr. NELSON, from the committee to whom was referred the petition of Jasper Anderson, and a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 27th January, directing an inquiry into the justice of making good certain bounties in land promised during the revolutionary war, by the Commonwealth of Virginia, to her officers and soldiers, seamen and marines, on State establishment, made the following report:

That, during the war of the revolution, the Commonwealth of Virginia, holding within her chartered limits large tracts of unappropriated lands, to fill up the complement of her troops did offer bounties in lands to those who should join her standard, either in the regiments for the service of the United States, or in her own State establishment. That, in pursuance of these promises held out, she engaged men in the land and sea service, on continental and on State establishment, who, fulfilling the duties required of them, anticipated the performance of the contract on the part of the State. That a certain portion of the public lands on the south and west boundary of that State, was set apart as a fund for the satisfaction of these public engagements; but this tract of country, lying contiguous to North Carolina, between whom and Virginia the boundary being then unsettled, left its extent within the territory of Virginia indefinite and uncertain, was afterwards, by the establishment of the line between these two adjoining States, so far diminished as to leave the engagements, to a very considerable amount, on the part of that State, unsatisfied and unfulfilled. That, at the time this fund was set apart by Virginia, and also at the time she made these engagements, she held within her limits and as part of her territory, an immense tract of country northwest of the river Ohio, which, forming a part of her then unappropriated lands, was equally subject to the fulfilment of her engagements with her officers and soldiers. That the Congress of the United States, calling on the States forming the confederation, who held tracts of unsettled lands, to throw them into a common stock to form a common fund to support us in the struggle for our independence, and to enable the States to maintain their pledged faith in their public engagements pure and unswayed, the State of Virginia promptly obeyed the call, and transferred to the United States the whole of her territory northwest of the river Ohio, only stipulating for the fulfilment of those engagements which she had made to her officers and soldiers; to those officers and soldiers who had served the common cause of all the States, and in all the benefits resulting from whose high and meritorious services every State had equally participated. That, in the cession made, a provision was contained securing the claims of the officers and soldiers on continental establishment, but omitting therein the State service. It appears by the journals of the House of Delegates of Virginia, in the first proposition made by the United States for a cession, that the State troops were equally included with the continental troops; whence it is presumed that the United States had notice of this claim. In the progress of the treaty, it appears, that the State troops are left out without any cause assigned for it; and, finally, the cession was consummated, securing only the claims of the troops on the continental establishment.

These promises were made by Virginia holding these public lands. By the transfer of their lands, she is renextended to the circumjacent lands, and produced an enhancement of value of at least five hundred per centum. The committee, upon the view of the case of the petitioners, which they have taken and exhibited, are of opinion that they have a well founded claim to the beneficial interposition of the National Legislature; and therefore report a bill for quieting and adjusting claims to the lands in the Mississippi Territory.

There are in the Mississippi Territory and in other parts of the United States, a number of speculators who are anxious to engross as much of the valuable lands of the Territory as possible, while, on the other hand, there are a number of poor men who have settled themselves down on vacant land and made improvements, who are well worthy of protection. Some of the lands were granted by the British Government while it was a British province, and others again by the Spaniards, while under the Government of Spain. In consequence of many persons settling where it suited them, on vacant or patented land, without regard either to British or Spanish grants, there has arisen a great variety of clashing claims to lands, which have been spun out by the memorialists to the number of thirty-two kinds or classes of claims; but all these may be comprised within a few principal heads. The following, it is presumed, will be found to embrace the whole of those which have been enumerated, viz:

1st. Lands granted by the British Government, and held in possession ever since by the first proprietors, or their assigns, to the present time.

2d. Lands granted by the British Governors by virtue of mandamus from the King, which have never been occupied by the grantees or their agents.

3d. Lands granted by British letters patent, containing certain conditions, to be performed in three years from the date of grant; otherwise to be forfeited, on failure of the improvements.

4th. Spanish grants on vacant lands.

5th. Spanish grants on lands formally granted by the British.

6th. Lands sold by the Spanish Government, for the supposed rebellion of the proprietor, during the siege of Pensacola.

7th. Lands for which warrants of survey had been obtained before the Spanish treaty, but not presented till after the treaty.

8th. Warrants obtained since, and no patent.

9th. Settlements by occupancy.

10th. Companies claiming under Georgia.

From the foregoing enumerations it is easy to perceive, that a wide field is opened for speculations. I have given each claim a cursory consideration.

1st. In answer to the first claim, there can be no doubt on this head. Every man holding under a valid grant, and always occupying his lands in consequence of it, such a right must be indisputable.

2d. With respect to mandamus grants from the King, there is no difference between them and other grants when made, except that, prior to the passing of the grant, the British Governors had a discretionary right to grant or refuse as they thought proper; but when commanded by the King, it was peremptory; they were obliged to obey, and pass the grant. Such were all those kinds of grants made by the Crown for extraordinary services, and were generally large grants, from ten to twenty or twenty-five thousand acres each. When once they passed the great seal, (for whatever quantity they might be,) they were exactly upon the footing of all other grants, and must be governed by the same principles as govern every other British grant.

3d. Lands granted by British letters patent, containing certain conditions to be performed in three years, otherwise to be forfeited.

There were conditions imposed upon the grantee, to make certain buildings, and clear a given quantity of land, in three years after the date of the grant, and are exactly similar to those which were inserted in the grants throughout all the British colonies, while they remained as such. But there never was an instance of a forfeiture, or an instance of one acre being resumed by the Crown in any part of America. Indeed it could only be done in a Court of Exchequer, which had peculiarly the care of the King's rights. But no such tribunal ever existed in America, though it was at one period in the contemplation of the British ministers, but never carried into execution.

All the commissions in the colonies to the governors and judges permitted the exercise of the powers of the courts of Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas, &c. None ever possessed the powers of a Court of Exchequer; of course there never was a forfeiture. Even in that court an inquest might be found by a jury which was traversable, and the party might plead to it, and deny the fact, or show that he was excused from performing the conditions. One thing, however, is certain, that, if the British Government lay by, and never took advantage of the non-performance of any of these conditions, during all the time the colonies remained dependent on the Crown, (for the forfeiture was the Crown of Great Britain) no third party, who is a stranger to the original contract, can ever avail himself of it.

4th. Spanish grants on vacant lands.

There can be little doubt but that after West Florida was ceded to Spain the Spanish Government had a right to grant vacant lands. But it is well worthy of observation, that all the Spanish grants were mere tenancies at will. None of them create fee simple estates, or make them transcendable of right to heirs. The grantee was removable, at the pleasure of the Spanish governors or commandants, whenever they thought proper, and generally on the death of the grantee the land was given to another, unless there was a son grown up who could give a douceur to the Spanish governor, &c. The truth is, that few or none of these lands were run out, or granted to real Spaniards, or, if they were, the grantees were nominal, and persons who never intended to settle them. They were purchased up by American monopolizers, or speculators, who paid but a trifle to those nominal grantees, and who now wish to convert them into fee simple estates, and who are to be the loud advocates for the poor, &c. If a true census could be taken of the inhabitants of the Mississippi Territory, with a proper discrimination of land holders, it would appear that not one in twenty throughout the Territory were settlers trusting to Spanish grants, but those who, under pretence of Spanish grants, have got claims to lands which they now wish to retain in order to sell out again to emigrants, who may hereafter go down to that country in order to make their fortunes.

5th. Spanish grants on lands which had formerly been granted away by the British Government.

This forms by far the most important class of claims, in the Mississippi Territory; and is, indeed, of ten times as much importance and consequence as all the rest (which are enumerated) put together.

In the course of the seventeen or eighteen years that West Florida remained to Great Britain, as a colony or province, a large proportion of the most valuable lands had been granted away to individuals from the Natchez down to Manchac. To induce Congress, therefore, to give some kind of sanction to any measure to defeat or call in question these original grants, or give some kind of sanction to those new Spanish grants, laid upon them so as to deprive the original proprietors of their freeholds, was one of the principal objects of the memorialists. To accomplish this end no pains has been spared, nor will any thing be omitted or untried, within the reach of the memorialists and others. It is a matter of primary importance to them; for if they can, by this side blow, set aside the old British grants, and convert these new Spanish possessory rights into fee simple estates, they will then be masters of a very valuable part of the Territory. But it has always appeared to me that this was a matter of judicial investigation rather than for legislative interference; and this, too, on principles of the law of nations, and not on any municipal regulations; upon this ground, therefore, let us proceed to consider this important article in the enumeration of claims preferred by the memorialists.

One of the fundamental principles by writers on the laws of nations, respecting acquisitions in war by conquest, is, "that a prince, taking a town or province from an enemy, can justly acquire over it the same right, particularly with regard to lands, as belonged to the sovereign against whom he took up arms."*

The same author, (Vattel), further treating on this subject, says: "Formerly in conquests even individuals lost their lands, and it is not strange that in the first ages of Rome such a custom prevailed. The wars of that era were carried on between popular republics and communities. The State possessed very little, and the quarrel was in reality the common cause of all the citizens. But at present war is less terrible to the subject; things are transacted with more humanity; it is against one sovereign that another makes war, and not against the quiet subjects; the conqueror lays his hands upon the possessions of the State or what belongs to the public, while private persons are permitted to retain theirs."† It was upon this ground (says Vattel, in page 329) that the King of Prussia, in the conquest of Silesia from Austria, was obliged to take it subject to the debts due to the English merchants, for which it was mortgaged. Subjects and neutrals suffer but indirectly by the war, and to them the result is, that they only change masters or paymasters.

Again, the same judicious author observes: "Some have dared to advance the monstrous principle that the conqueror is absolute master of his conquest, and that he may dispose of it as his property, treat it as he pleases, according to the common expression of treating it as a conquered country. Hence, he says, the origin of despotic Governments, who reduce man to the state of transferable goods, (that is, slaves,) who deliver them up as the patrimony of another man. This (says the same author) is not arguing on principles of reason, or becoming humanity. The whole right of a conqueror proceeds from a just defence of himself, which contains the prosecution and support of his own just rights. We are always to remember that the law of nature permits no injury to be done to an enemy, unless in taking measures necessary for a just defence and a reasonable security."**

Locke, on Civil Government, treating on the rights of conquerors, says: "The conqueror may gain a power over those subdued, (that is, soldiers in arms,) but not over the lives and fortunes of those not engaged in the war; nor over the possessions, even of those who are in arms, and actually engaged in the service. He cannot take the goods and possessions from the wife and children. They too had a right and title to the goods he enjoyed, and a share in the estate he possessed."†

From the foregoing principles of Vattel, and the other authors quoted, I think it is evident, that the King of Spain acquired no other right by his conquest than what appertained to the King of Great Britain at the time this country was given up to Spain. These rights were that of sovereignty and dominion, and the right of soil in all the vacant lands, or lands not granted, in the territory. But the right of individuals, or peaceable subjects or citizens, remained inviolable. By that, I mean inviolable by any known or approved modern principle of the law of nations.

I do admit that princes have sometimes exercised a power of disposing of private possessions as they pleased; but this is a power without right, which constitutes tyranny.‡ No man, however, who holds himself bound by civil obligations will or can justify such a privation of rightful possessions a moment after the tyrant's power ceases. With that power, every thing built upon it ceases, and tumbles into ruins. I do admit further that sometimes cruel and hard stipulations are forced upon a conquered country by treaties and capitulations; by which the faith of the nations, and particularly that of the contracting parties, may, in a great degree, be bound. None, however, of that kind, ever existed in the capitulation or treaty between Great Britain and Spain respecting West Florida.§

By the capitulation in 1781, between Don Galvez and General Campbell, eighteen months were given to the inhabitants who held property, to sell, (if they chose,) but there is nothing in it compulsory or obligatory to sell if they did not choose, or to incur any thing like a forfeiture, unless such sale was made. Those who chose to retain their estates, and trust to some fortunate event for better times to possess themselves of them, or make sales of them, had a right so to do. There is not a sentence in the capitulation to the contrary, nor is there any thing mentioned in the definitive treaty of peace on the subject,|| nor any thing from which such an inference can be drawn. In fact, it is perfectly silent on the occasion, and this leaves room for the application of another great leading principle in the law of nations, laid down by Vattel on this subject, to wit: "Things not mentioned in the treaty of peace remain in the condition wherein they happen to be at the time of its conclusion, and are tacitly ceded on both sides."¶

Besides, it was notorious to all the world that real estates could not be sold among the Spaniards at that time; they would not give money for them, not over the thousandth part of their value, and none others could purchase. The clause, therefore, in the capitulation, as to landed property, was illusory—a phantom—a thing in name only, but void of substance or reality.

But giving the utmost latitude which is contended for respecting the time given by this capitulation, it is not even pretended that between the signing of that instrument and the definitive treaty any lands were ever disposed of by the Spanish Government. It was temporary in its nature, as were also the stipulations in it. It ceased and became void upon the signing of the definitive treaty. By the terms of this capitulation, "West Florida was to remain to Spain till the conclusion of the war, then to be subject to the disposal of their Britannic and Catholic Majesties." In the definitive treaty, this capitulation is not even referred to, nor any of its stipulations made the basis of any part of the treaty. It therefore became as null and void as if never made or entered into.

It is highly probable that the great mistake the memorialists have committed respecting the time given for selling lands, and the prolongation of it by Spain, has taken its rise from the circumstance of their relying on the terms mentioned in this capitulation, and not on the definitive treaty of peace; when, in fact, the former had ceased to exist, and the latter is totally silent on that important subject; which leaves every thing respecting West Florida and all its landed concerns to be determined by the law of nations and the principles of natural justice. It is also worthy of remark, that there is nothing said in the treaty of 1795, with Spain, concerning these Spanish grants, on lands formally given away by the British Government, or any other claims to private property whatever, which leaves every thing respecting private rights to be ultimately determined by the foregoing rules and principles.

While on this subject of the law of nations, it is as well to notice another principle of national law, connected with the particular subject under consideration, and that is the Jus Postliminium.*

The Jus Postliminium is that by which persons and things taken by an enemy are restored to their former state, or owners, when coming again under the power of the nation to which they formally belonged. The foundation of this right is predicated upon the reciprocal obligations of sovereigns and subjects in monarchies, and of State and citizen in republics. The former are bound to protect persons and estates, and the latter to yield their money and services to furnish the means of protection. Hence that great obligation of States to restore to citizens their rights and estates which, by fortunate events, shall be brought back under their power and dominion. When a town or province, therefore, surrendering to the enemies' arms, is retaken by its sovereign, the subjects or citizens thereby become restored to all their former rights.†

As to immovables, (that is land,) it is to be remembered that the acquisition is not complete, till confirmed by treaty of peace; and when a country once conquered is afterwards subdued and brought under the jurisdiction of another, (or is ceded to another country,) they undergo the same destiny, as when first conquered, as naturally as a part follows the whole.‡

"There is a distinction between movables and immovables. The acquisition of the first in war must be considered as valid and lawful; because, if the ancient proprietor could reclaim them from neutral people, where commerce had transported them, every State would find itself exposed to war against its will, as it would be obliged to examine whether the thing taken be good prize or not."§

"But as to immovables, I do not find (adds the author) that it is established by the common consent of nations, that the ancient owner ought to have less right against the third person, who holds under the enemy, by what title soever acquired, than against the enemy himself, unless that an ancient owner has declared in some manner that he has abandoned his right; and, in case of a transfer or cession of country, immovables being in their nature immovable, those to whom a State, which has taken them from an enemy, would resign them, can hardly be ignorant of the manner in which the enemy possessed them."||

Another principle laid down by the same author, is, that this postliminary right is not barred by prescription, for (says he) lands by postliminy shall be restored to their former owners, not admitting those prescriptions of time against them which the Roman laws had introduced, which seems to be of very ancient date. "Thus the Lacedaemonians restored the island of Ægina, recovered from the Athenians, to the ancient lords. So Justinian and other Emperors restored the lands recovered from the Goths and Vandals to the heirs of the ancient possessors, notwithstanding the right of possession set up against them."¶

And so it was provided by the laws of Spain that countries and other hereditary jurisdictions shall return by postliminy, in what manner soever the sovereign gets possession of it.

By a law of the Emperor Honorius, it was declared that though Spain was left in possession of the Vandals, yet, while the Vandals possessed it, he would not allow a prescription of thirty years to prejudice the ancient lords.

And, in like manner, with respect to lands in Africa possessed by the Vandals a great length of time, it was decided by the council of Seville that the church ought to recover the lands and parishes it had before the war, and that it cannot be deprived of this right by prescription, just as, by the Roman laws, a prisoner of war recovers his possessions when he returns from captivity, without respect to time or limitation.*

From these postliminary principles last quoted, it may be clearly and fairly inferred (if not proved beyond all contradiction) that if West Florida had been reconquered by Great Britain in the course of the war, the latter would have been bound to have restored back to all the ancient proprietors the lands which belonged to them before the conquest; or, if Spain had ceded back to Great Britain the province, it would have been bound by the same principles.

This territory, however, never was reconquered by Great Britain, but ceded to the United States. Do not the United States, therefore, as to all private rights, stand exactly in the shoes of Spain? Did they not acquire it, by this act of cession, with all the advantages, and subject to all the rules and obligations by which Spain held it prior to the cession? They surely did; and if Spain was under these obligations to protect, to preserve the vested rights of individuals; shall it ever be said that a free country, which boasts of a constitution founded on civil liberty and the protection of property, will ever abandon rights originating in the immutable and everlasting principles of justice, and the general and universal consent and law of nations, as well ancient as modern? I trust posterity will never have it in their power to brand our common country with such flagrant injustice.

Hitherto Congress, both by the acts and resolutions of that body, has carefully guarded against any interference of the temporary Government of that country, with respect to private claims to lands in that territory, until some competent tribunal shall be established for the trial of them. The act of December, 1800, has expressly restrained the Assembly of the Mississippi Territory from passing any law which might affect the right of Georgia, or of any other person or persons, to the right of soil in that territory; but all such rights and claims are declared to be as firm and available as if that act had never passed. And the 10th section of the said act points out a mode of ascertaining such claims; but this mode seems to be defective, inasmuch as it is in a summary way not authorised by the constitution.

The late convention between Georgia and the United States (if Georgia had any right to the territory) stipulated for the actual settlers within the Mississippi Territory in October, 1795, whether claiming under British or Spanish grants, or by occupancy; but the point of the subsequent Spanish grants laid on prior to British patented lands is not mentioned. This point is, therefore, left completely open to the admission of all the foregoing principles of the laws of nations.

The last point I shall touch upon under this head is the conduct of the United States after our revolutionary war. All the titles of British subjects to lands (except those confiscated by the different States) were held secured and secured to individuals, many of whom had taken up arms against America; and although, after the war, many of the officers and soldiers, who had fought for American Independence, obtained warrants of survey, and got grants passed upon the old British grants, yet not one of them was ever recognised by our courts of justice. The rights of the original grantees were universally protected and secured to them or their assigns.

6th. The sixth ground of claim stated by the memorialists is, sales made by the Spanish Government for the supposed rebellion of the owner.

If any such cases did exist, (of which there is great doubt,) it must have been for efforts made by British subjects before the peace to retake the fort of the Natchez during the siege of Pensacola, and again to reduce that part of the country under the British dominion; but even supposing this act of treason had been committed, the Spanish Government could only sell the property of the offender at the time when the supposed offence was committed. The cases alluded to by the memorialists are cases, it is believed, of this kind.

7th. Lands for which warrants of survey were obtained before the treaty in 1795, but not patented till after the treaty.

A warrant of survey is only an inchoate right, which is the authority to the surveyor to designate the boundaries. The passing a grant is transferring the soil to the grantee within these boundaries. This supposes a right on the part of the State granting, which did not (after the treaty) exist in Spain. It follows, of course, then, that any grant made by the Spanish Government afterwards must be ipso facto null and void. It may, however, be an equitable ground for the American Government to prefer such a claim when a land office shall be opened.

8th. Warrants of survey obtained since the treaty.

These are null and void, for the reasons last above mentioned.

9th. Titles by occupancy.

This is a kind of title which deserves some consideration, because it is often relied upon, though not well understood.

With respect to postliminary rights, we have seen above that prescriptions shall not bar the original owner from recovering them; no length of possession shall defeat his claim.* There are other claims, which are equally as high by the law of nations. Grotius, treating on this head, says, it cannot take place between two Kings, or between King and subject, or between a King and the subject of another nation, or between two subjects of different States. These seem to be the exceptions to the general rules of prescriptions among nations.† Indeed Great Britain has incorporated one of them into her common law system, for nullum tempus occurrit regi.

There is no doubt, however, but the law of nature and nations in certain cases recognises the doctrine of prescription, or title by occupancy. But this is to be understood to be in force between citizens and subjects of the same common country, who have an equal right to prosecute their claims, if they think proper, though the exact or precise time which is to bar seems to be uncertain and indefinite. It appertains to municipal regulations only to fix and ascertain the exact time which is to operate as a perpetual bar.‡

Vatel treating on this subject, says, that prescription which prevents the former owner and their descendants from recovering right once possessed, is founded on the ground of his relinquishing or giving up his right.§

Presumption of this relinquishment, or voluntarily giving up a right, arises from the circumstance of a man's remaining long without asserting it, and in such case the possession repulses the demand of the original owner or proprietor by prescription.||

But a few years' negligence does not authorise this presumption of the owner having abandoned it. The law of nations is indefinite upon this head; it has not determined the number of years requisite to found this prescription upon. This, Vatel says, must depend on the nature of the property and the peculiar circumstances of the case.¶

There is one kind of prescription, however, which he says may be reduced to certainty, and that is immemorial prescription; that is, where possession has been held beyond the memory or recollection of any one living to the contrary, which is tantamount to that kind of possession recognised by the old English common law, time out of mind.**

In ordinary prescription, however, he says, it cannot apply where there are good reasons for silence, or for not asserting a right, or where there was well grounded fear of banishment for asserting a right. In all these, and a variety of similar cases, there is a well grounded presumption that the right was never abandoned.

There is some little apparent difference of opinion between Grotius and Vatel on the subject of prescription. Grotius says that prescription is the creature of municipal or civil laws, and his learned commentator, Barbeyrac, says, in note 3, or Grot. lib. 4, sec. 1, that the right of prescription is founded on the will of legislators, and there is nothing in the law of nature or nations to authorize it; but he goes on and says, that, admitting it had some foundation in the principles of a law common to all men, yet the precise determination of the time allowed for prescription (which is not the same in different countries) can serve as a rule only to the subjects of the same nation.

But however these great and learned men may differ on the right of prescriptions, as founded on the law of nations, they all agree in one point, that it can only be among people of the same nation, and that the precise time must be fixed by the will of every nation in the universe. From the different quotations under this head it is evident that the law of nations has fixed no precise period for prescription, or a term of possession, which shall bar an original owner. It is equally evident that no time whatever will or can bar the right of a State; and further, even admitting that a reasonable prescription be allowable, by the national law, it can only be good where one subject or citizen of the same nation or State holds over against another subject or citizen of the same State, and can be of no avail where the subject of a different State holds against the citizen of another State. If the Spanish common law (if Spain can be said to have any thing which may be called by that name) is to be taken, even as the rule, between Spanish subjects, thirty years will not bar; and if the English common law is to be the rule, it will require, at least, twenty years to bar by possession. The United States, as a nation, has no common law upon the subject: it is silent on it. The different States in the Union, it is true, have limitation laws, some more and some less, which will regulate estates within their respective limits; but none of them can apply or extend to West Florida, and that province never had an act to that effect, though it was once attempted, but failed by a large majority against the measure.

Upon the whole, therefore, no legal title by occupancy can have accrued in this territory, for it remained altogether in possession of Spain only about twelve years; and if you take off four years, which the memorialists state were allowed for British patentees to come in and make their claims, it will leave but about seven years of occupancy, and that too by Spanish subjects, against the original owners, none of whom belonged to the nation, or resided within the dominions of Spain; a time much too short to give even a color of title, especially too when the arbitrary nature of its Government is considered, and what little chance there was of obtaining justice from the hands of its Governors. It is not, therefore, much to be wondered at that the original owners never thought proper, under such circumstances, to make their claims, but rested content till some fortunate event should put it in their power to obtain justice from a country and people, whose boast and glory it is to administer it. So much, therefore, for title by occupancy.

10th. The tenth and last claim to be noticed is that of the New England Company, as they are termed, or are pleased to term themselves.

These are the speculators who purchased up the Yazoo grants from the Georgia speculators. The validity of which grants must, in the first instance, depend on the right of Georgia, which State, however, has since declared them all void, and obtained by fraud, and has burnt their records. But even supposing they could rise up out of their ashes, they cannot possibly affect any of the elder grants for lands within the territory.

3d SESSION.

COMMISSIONERS UNDER THE ACT PROVIDING FOR THE INDEMNIFICATION OF THE YAZOO CLAIMANTS TO LAND IN THE MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 26, 1814.

WASHINGTON, December 24, 1814.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States: The undersigned Commissioners, appointed by the act of Congress, passed on the 31st of March, 1814, "providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory," commonly called the Yazoo claims, most respectfully represent:

That, on the near approach of the day appointed by the said act for the undersigned to assemble as a Board, their attention has been more particularly drawn to the nature and extent of the trust which it devolves upon them. They owe and feel an entire deference to the motives of the Legislature in passing the act, and have every correspondent desire to execute the duties which it has enjoined upon them. But they owe it to the just expectations of the claimants, not less than to their own engagements in other branches of the public service, respectfully to state that, on a full consideration of what will be indispensably due at their hands under the said act, they do not think it will be practicable for them to give effect to its provisions. The pressure of daily and ordinary business upon the undersigned in their own respective departments, more especially at the present season, is such as fully to occupy their time; and, in looking to the nature of the claims embraced by the said act, their complication and number, as well as the controversies to which they will give birth, they respectfully venture upon the expression of an opinion that their faithful investigation and settlement, in a way to do justice on all sides, will call for the exclusive attention, probably for some length of time, of commissioners specially appointed for the purpose.

The undersigned, with the greatest deference, have therefore to request that such a course may be adopted, or any other which to the wisdom of Congress may seem fit; a request which nothing but a consciousness of their inability, from the pressure of other duties, to execute the act, would have urged them to the liberty of making.

JAMES MONROE, Acting Secretary of State.

APPLICATION OF THE MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY FOR RELIEF TO PURCHASERS OF

REPRESENTATIVE CHAMBER, December 27, 1814.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: the memorial of the Legislative Council and House of Representatives of the Mississippi Territory in General Assembly convened, respectfully sheweth:

That, from the Indian incursions, and the calamities of war, which has been waged upon their territory, many of their fellow-citizens who had purchased lands of the United States have been unable punctually to pay the instalments, and have incurred the penalty of the interest accruing from the time of the purchase. Before the second instalment became due, the Receiver at St. Stephen's was compelled to remove his office to a more secure place, and the inhabitants to seek safety within the walls of a fort. The losses sustained by the purchasers impaired the fund from which the purchase money would have been derived; and the perilous situation of the country forbade a free intercourse between its different parts. The complicated evils of war which have been felt by this Territory, will, it is conceived, afford a sufficient ground for the remission of a penalty which has been incurred neither wilfully nor negligently. Under these impressions, your memorialists respectfully approach the National Legislature, not only as the guardian of their rights, but as a body solicitous to promote the interest of their fellow-citizens in this Territory, and pray that the back interest which has accrued upon the money due the United States for the purchase of lands by the non-payment of the instalments as they became due, may be remitted. In consideration of the embarrassed state of the country, and the evils above set forth, your memorialists further pray, that a longer time may be granted to the purchasers of the public lands to complete their payments, and to save their lands from forfeiture, and, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

DANIEL BURNET,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

APPLICATION TO PURCHASE TWENTY-FIVE TOWNSHIPS OF LAND, PAYABLE IN TWELVE YEARS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 14, 1815.

To the Honorable Senate and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled: James Miller, Richard Whartenby, Joseph Grafton, James Magee, and George Washington Hight, citizens of the United States, and inhabitants of Boston, in the district of Massachusetts, gentlemen, and their associates, being "the New England Emigration Society," and about one hundred in number, humbly petition:

That your honorable bodies would grant to them, of the unlocated lands of the United States, lying south of the parallel line of forty-one degrees of north latitude, twenty-five townships of land, with the right of location not exceeding four parcels, and on the following conditions, viz:

That the grantees shall pay the lowest price for which the United States will grant to them the aforesaid twenty-five townships, by the grantees located as aforesaid, and the purchase money payable in the following instalments, viz: twenty-five per cent. at the end of three years from the first settlement, which is to take place as soon as may be after the grant; twenty-five per cent. at the end of six years; twenty-five per cent at the end of nine years; and the remaining instalment at the end of twelve years; that the grantees shall procure at the end of twelve years, as settlers, upon said twenty-five townships so granted, two thousand souls; that, in case of war, or any public calamity, or any untoward or unforeseen events should prevent the grantees from paying said instalments, or from procuring said settlers, then the United States shall confirm, by deed, to each of said grantees, his or her heirs or assigns, who have wholly or partially fulfilled the terms and conditions of the grant, a proportion of said land; first, the improved, and then the unimproved, equal to the respective grantees, their heirs and assigns' proportion of their fulfilment of the contract.

The undersigned also respectfully petition that the actual settlers, while there residing, may be exempt from direct taxes, from the first settlement of said townships until the expiration of twelve years.

Your petitioners would respectfully suggest that they are not actuated by motives of disaffection to this section of their native land, but they are impelled by a moral necessity to implore this grant from the beneficence of their National Government. They would further respectfully suggest that an uncontrollable course of events has deprived many of their associates of the accustomed means of livelihood; and, while in the vigor of life, they cannot consent to remain, with their families, a dead weight upon society. In this crisis, they hopefully look to the Government of their country, and anxiously turn their eyes to the Western world, conscious of the salubrity of the climate, the fertility of the soil, and of their ability, with the aid of Congress, to convert both to individual happiness and public prosperity.
