Title of property for one thousand and sixty acres of land in favor of Don George Atkinson.

Don José Coppering, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of the city and province, &c., &c.:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the donations and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as militia, of this province, who contributed to the defence thereof during the period of the rebellion, being one of said rewards the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of family each individual may have; that Don George Atkinson, lieutenant of the local militia of the town of Fernandina, having presented himself, soliciting the quantity corresponding to himself, his family, and slaves, there were granted him one thousand and sixty acres of land on the north creek of the Nassau, in a vacant place known as Spell's Swamp, under the following boundaries and dimensions: the first line runs northwest, measuring 130 chains, commences at a pine marked with a cross, at the north end of an old field called Woodland's old field, and ends at a pine with the same mark; the second line runs southwest, measuring 80 chains, commences at the said pine and ends at a stake with the same mark of the cross; the third line runs southeast, measuring 130 chains, begins at said stake and ends at another with the same mark; the fourth line runs northeast, measuring 80 chains, commencing at said stake, and ends at the pine of the beginning; which concession was made him by my decree of the 16th of February last, agreeably to the regulations established by this government for the distribution of lands, and according to the number of persons and slaves each family consists of, as appears by the proceeding instituted for that purpose by the said Atkinson, on file in the archives of the present notary: Wherefore, I have thought proper to grant, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the aforesaid Don George Atkinson the above-mentioned one thousand and sixty acres, without injury to a third, in the place already pointed out, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said land; and I cede and transfer it to the said Don George Atkinson, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, which it had, has, or by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my authority, and by right ought to, in virtue of the sovereign will.

And your memorialist further shows that the said tract of land was originally granted to one Tomas de Aguilar, without condition, and in absolute property, on December 7, 1817, a decree of the same having been issued therefor on May 29, of the same year; that the decree and grant for the said land were made by Don José Coppering, then the governor of East Florida, under and in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain, bearing date March 29, 1815, as will more fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said grant now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B; and that the said Tomas de Aguilar afterwards, that is to say, on February 22, 1822, for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, conveyed to your memorialist the said tract or parcel of land and its appurtenances, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to the original conveyance of the said land by the said Tomas de Aguilar to your memorialist, now here submitted and filed, and marked C. And your memorialist further avers and shows that the said Tomas de Aguilar was, before and at the time the said land was so granted to him as aforesaid, and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, at the time of the said cession, and before it, and has ever since continued to be, and now is, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida. Wherefore, he prays a confirmation of his title in and to the said land and its appurtenances, in conformity to the act of Congress in such case made and provided. And he will ever pray, &c.

Philip R. Yonge vs. The United States. Claim to two thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Philip R. Yonge, by his attorney, George Gibbs, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two thousand acres, situated in Twelve-mile Swamp, bounded on the south by lands of Z. Kingsly, on the east by a line running south 160 chains, on the north by a line running east 128 chains, on the west by a line running north 160 chains, as per plat marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist January 26, 1816, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, as per title marked B. And your memorialist further sheweth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, legally seized and possessed of said lands; that he is a native of St. Augustine, East Florida, and at present in Great Britain. All of which is respectfully submitted.

PHILIP R. YONGE,
By his attorney in fact, GEORGE GIBBS.

[Translation.]

FLORIDA, February 16, 1815.

Don Philip R. Yonge, a native inhabitant and merchant of this province, in the town of Fernandina, respectfully appears before your excellency and states, that as he never aspired to apply himself with his slaves to agriculture, his old employment of commerce being well known, which business, useful as well to the State as to his interests, has drawn away his attention from availing himself of the privilege of taking up lands, which the other inhabitants had enjoyed, which are had by ancient concession and compliance with the conditions which establish the right of property; already this would have been done by your memorialist, but now, confiding that your excellency will take into consideration the circumstances favorable to the memorialist as to his continued application to the commerce of the province, much benefit must have resulted to the royal treasury; the many services, contributions, and supplies which he has made in this place of Fernandina, as well as having had the good fortune to enjoy some appointment, and having been favored with the confidence of your excellency on various occasions interesting to the royal service, and because at present, in the decay of the commerce of this island, your memorialist finds himself with 38 slaves fit for field labor, and he wants lands on which to place them; desiring, also, to secure the subsistence of these, as well as of his family, composed of six persons, he desires with them to establish himself at a secure point of the province and convenient to this city; he has chosen that of the Twelve-mile swamp, which lies to the north of St. Augustine; to which effect, and with the laudable end of completing the same, he prays your excellency that, out of the vacant lands in said swamp, you will be pleased to grant him, in absolute property, 2,000 acres of land, in order that he may undertake on them the plan he has pointed out; but if this should not be agreeable to your excellency, you will at least be pleased to grant them on the same footing as to the other subjects admitted in this province. This your petitioner hopes from the goodness of your excellency.

PHILIP R. YONGE.

The GOVERNOR.

DECREE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, February 23, 1815.

Taking into consideration what is represented by Don Philip Robert Yonge, and the good services he has done the government being manifest and certain, let there be granted to him the two thousand acres of land in the place which he solicits, without injury to a third person, it being understood that as soon as the survey and plat are presented by him and that he proves he has taken possession of the lands and made improvements on them, such as building fences, &c., the corresponding title in absolute property shall be expedited to him, without his being obliged to pass more time on other circumstances; this decree in the meantime being sufficient to accredit the concession from which, and the memorial on which, it is given. The copy shall be delivered by the present notary, in whose office the proceedings shall be placed in the archives.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant produced to the board a concession for the land, dated February 23, 1815, by Governor Kindelan; also, a confirmation of the same, by a royal title of absolute property by Governor Coppering, dated January 26, 1816. It appearing that the claimant was not a resident in the province at the time of the cession, and the quantity claimed being over one thousand acres, we cannot, by the provisions of the acts of Congress organizing this board, confirm to him the quantity he claims, but, conceiving he has made out an equitable title to the land, it is therefore recommended to Congress for confirmation. John Forbes & Co. vs. The United States. Claim to eighteen hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John Forbes & Co. respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of eighteen hundred acres and twenty-five perches on St. Pablo creek, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake on the sea beach, south 11° west, 53 chains and 50 links, to another stake marked "thirteen" with Roman numbers; thence north 18° , 103 chains and 90 links, to another stake with the same mark; thence running west, 37 chains, to a palmetto tree marked III & X; which title your memorialist derives from an absolute grant made to Catalina Chicken by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, who sold the same to your memorialist. A certified copy of the grant, which was made May 4, 1804, is filed herewith, as is also the deed from Mrs. Chicken. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he resides in St. Augustine, and did so at the change of flags.

GEO. MURRAY, for Memorialist.

[Translation.]

Title in favor of Donna Catalina Chicken, widow of Don Andrew Devees, and of his other heirs, of the plantation named the Orange Grove.

Don Enrique White, colonel of the royal armies, political and military governor of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, by his Majesty:

Whereas, by a royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and both Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their own free will, offer themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands shall be granted and surveyed gratis, in proportion to the workers which each family may have; that Don Andrew Dewees having presented himself as one of them, he solicited from the government, and there were granted to him, measured and delivered, seventy-nine caballerias of land at the plantation named the Orange Grove, corresponding to the number of his family, which he declared upon oath; which land is known and distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: the first line runs south, begins at the edge of a marsh of the river St. John's, and ends with a stake marked with a sign of a cross, on the edge of the sea beach; its measurement consists of one hundred and ninety-five chains; the second runs west, begins with the said stake and ends with a pine marked with a mark of a cross, on the border of a marsh on Pablo creek, bounding the lands of Don John McQueen, and measured one hundred and thirty chains; the third and fourth lines, which form its front, run, the one the edge of a marsh of the river St. John's, as results from a certificate given by the Captain Don Pedro Marrot, judge commissioned for said distribution and survey of lands, dated February 8, 1792, and its corresponding plat, authenticated by Don Samuel Eastlake, who was surveyor of said survey; and as there has been no title issued to him for the security and confirmation of his dominion to the said lands in the form in which it has been granted to others; that they have already passed more than ten years of uninterrupted possession, to obtain an useful and direct dominion to said lands, made buildings on them, cultivated them, and finally complied with the other conditions established by the government for grants and concessions of this nature seen in the titles delivered to other settlers, as appears from the proceedings moved by Donna Catharine Chicken, widow of the said Don Andrew Dewees, moved for soliciting that there should be issued to him the corresponding one for the land which he has already surveyed and laid off, and of which he is in possession: Wherefore, and in consideration of everything, and acquainted with the opinion of my lieutenant, auditor of war, and assessor general, I have granted, and in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, I do grant, to the said Donna Catharine Chicken, as widow of the said Don Andrew Dewees, and his other heirs, children and successors, the said seventy-nine caballerias of land of which the said plantation consists, in absolute property; and so expedite to them, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the said widow of Don Andrew Dewees, her children, heirs, and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services which it has had, has, and in fact and law belong and appertain to it, and, at their will, sell, cede, and transfer and alien it as may best suit them. In all which I interpose my authority, as I can and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government of the royal domain, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, May 4, 1804.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants, by their attorney, produced to the board a royal title of absolute property by Governor White to the widow and heirs of Andrew Dewees, deceased, dated May 4, 1804; also, a conveyance from said widow to claimant. It appearing that the claimants were not residents in the province at the time of the cession, and the quantity claimed being over one thousand acres, we cannot, by the provisions of the acts of Congress organizing this board, confirm to them the quantity claimed, but we recommend the same for confirmation. To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Thomas Brigs and John Robertson, otherwise John Robinson, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a certain tract of land situated on Halifax river, and containing one thousand eight hundred acres, and which has the following metes and bounds: on the south by lands belonging to the estate of Samuel Williams, on the east by the river Halifax, on the north by lands of F. M. Arredondo, and on the west by vacant lands; which lands your memorialists claim by virtue of a grant made to Frances Ker by the Spanish government February 5, 1816, and by virtue of a conveyance made by the said Frances Ker to John Addison August 29, 1820—all which will fully appear on reference to documents filed in the office of public archives in the city of St. Augustine; and your memorialists further represent that the said John Addison, September 21, 1820, sold the said tract of land to your memorialists, as may be seen on reference to the public records of St. John's county; and your memorialists further represent that they are citizens of the United States and inhabitants of the State of South Carolina, and they wish your honorable board to confirm their claim to the said tract of land.

JOHN ROBINSON,
(Otherwise JOHN ROBERTSON,)
By their agent, EDWARD R. GIBSON.

[Here follows a deed of conveyance from John Addison of the 1,800 acres to claimants, dated September 1, 1820.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants offered in evidence a complete title, made for headrights, to Frances Ker, for the lands described in their memorial by Governor Coppering, on February 5, 1816, together with an office abstract of a conveyance for the same from Frances Ker to John Addison, and a deed from Addison to claimants. It being the opinion of the commissioners that this title would have been valid had the territory remained in possession of the King of Spain, they therefore recommend the claim to be confirmed. Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their free will, shall present themselves and swear allegiance to our sovereign, land should be measured them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that Don Bernardo Segui, of this city, having presented himself, there were granted to him, January 14, 1801, one thousand two hundred acres of land for the rearing of horned cattle, to the south of Deep river, (Rio Hondo,) bounded on the same side by those which were latterly granted to Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer, going east from the road of San Vincente Ferrer towards San Sablo creek, as appears by the certificate given from the secretary's office of this government, dated the 17th of said month and year, which is attached to the proceedings moved by the said Donna Aguida Villalonga, widow of the said Don Bernardo Segui, which is on file in the archives of the present notary; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his dominion to the said land in the form it has been executed to others, that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession here have elapsed, to obtain direct and useful title to the said land, built houses, cultivated them, and complied with all the conditions which the government have established for the concessions and donations of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the same proceedings which have been formed at the solicitations of this person: Wherefore, and in consideration thereof, I have thought proper to grant to the said widow and heirs of the above-mentioned Don Bernardo Segui, deceased, the aforesaid one thousand two hundred acres of land in absolute property; and in expediting to him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion which it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the said widow, children, and heirs of the said Don Bernardo Segui, and those who may succeed him, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services which it had, has, and in fact and by law belong or appertain to it; and, being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my judicial authority, as far as I can and by law ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Titles in favor of the widow and heirs of Don Artemas Elliott Ferguson to the plantation named Harmony Hall.

Don Juan José de Estrada y Toro, lieutenant colonel of the royal army, commandant of the third battalion of Cuba, which garrisons this city, and civil and military governor pro tem. of the said city and province:

Whereas, by a royal order communicated to this government October, 29, 1790, it is provided that land shall be granted and surveyed gratis to those foreigners who, of their own free will, offer themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, in proportion to the number of laborers each family may have; that Don Artemas Elliott Ferguson having presented himself as one of them, he solicited from the government, and had granted, measured, and delivered unto him, thirty-four caballerias and seventeen acres of land in the plantation named Harmony Hall, in part of that which corresponds to him agreeably to the number in family which he declared under oath; which land is known and distinguished under the following dimensions and boundaries: the first line runs to the south 45° west, begins with a gum tree on the bank of Doctor's creek, and ends with a pine tree with a cross; its measurement consists of 112 chains. The second line runs south 45° east, begins with said pine, and ends with a cypress of the same mark; its measurement consists of 80 chains. The third line runs north 65° east, begins by said cypress on the bank of Black creek, and ends with a stake, with a cross, on the bank of Doctor's creek; its measurement consists of 126 chains. Its front runs on the bank of said creek, as appears from the document expedited by this government December 15, 1796, which is found annexed to the proceedings moved by Don Carlos Hardy, husband, and united to Donna Susanna Slugh, soliciting that there should be despatched in her favor, as formerly wife of the said Ferguson, deceased, and of his son, Don Enrique, the corresponding title to this land, and others already surveyed and laid off, and of which she is in possession. And as no title has been delivered for the security and confirmation of her dominion to said lands in the form in which it has been granted to others who have already passed more than ten years of uninterrupted possession, to obtain the useful and direct dominion to the said lands, made buildings on them, cultivated them, and finally complied with all the other conditions established by the government for grants and concessions of this nature existing in the titles delivered to other settlers, as the same proceeding sets forth: Wherefore, and in consideration of everything, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, I do grant, unto the said widow and son of the deceased Don Artemas Elliott Ferguson, the said thirty-four caballerias and seventeen acres of land of which the said plantation consists in absolute property, and expedite to them, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the said widow and son, and to their heirs, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services which it has had, and in fact and law belong or appertain to it, and, at their will, sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all which I interpose my authority, as I can and of right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Title of property to one thousand three hundred and forty acres of land in favor of Don Gabriel W. Perpall, on the river St. John's, on the west side, and in front of Rowlestown.

Don José Coppering, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, political and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal domain of this city and province:

Whereas, by a royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has deigned to approve of the favors and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, as well regulars as militia, who have assisted in its defence at the time of the rebellion, one of the said favors being the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of the family which each individual may have; that Don Gabriel W. Perpall having presented himself, stating his well-known services in said defence, and soliciting the portion corresponding to himself, his family, and slaves, there were granted to him one thousand three hundred and forty acres of land on the river St. John's, at the west side, in front of Rowlestown, there being in the middle of said lands a small creek which is in a swamp, bounded on all sides by vacant lands—all agreeable to the regulations established by this government for the distribution of said lands, and to the number of persons and slaves he has proved his said family to consist of, and what is set forth in my decree of this date, made to the proceeding moved for by the said Perpall, which is lodged in the notary's office of the government: Wherefore, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, unto the said Don Gabriel W. W. Perpall, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatsoever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services which they have had, have, and in fact and law belong or appertain to them, and, at their will, sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. In all which I interpose my authority, as I can and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Joseph Wales vs. The United States. For two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph Wales respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres, situated in McDougall's back swamp, and is bounded as follows: first line runs south 33° east, 154 chains and 12 links, to a pine; second line, south 65° west, 154 chains 12 links, to a pine; third line runs north 35° west, 154 chains and 12 links, to a pine; fourth line runs north 65° east, 154 chains 12 links, to a pine, as appears by the survey and plat herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to him by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. This grant was made, as appears by date of the decree to the memorial, (herewith presented,) October 8, 1817, for two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres at Spring Garden; but the surveyor not finding good lands unappropriated at that place, this memorialist had leave of Governor Coppering to change the location to the above-described plat, as appears by the memorial and decree herewith presented, dated April 1, 1818. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands, and has been since the survey, and that he built a house upon the same, and cultivated them for some time; but a considerable number of Indians, showing hostile disposition, came and settled on said lands, and your memorialist was obliged to cease the cultivation on that account; he further says that the negroes which he was to bring into the province were not all brought on account of the danger of the patriot privateers, and on account of a decree of the King of Spain prohibiting the importation of slaves from Africa soon after the grant was made. Your memorialist says that he is an American citizen and a resident in Florida. St. Augustine, November 28, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, for Claimant.

[Translation.]

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA, October 8, 1817.

Don Joseph Wales, new settler of this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That he is owner of ninety African negroes, which he intends bringing into the province as soon as circumstances will permit him, and the present risks of the insurgents are less, as, when he took the oath of allegiance, it was always his intention to dedicate himself to agriculture, to enjoy the gifts and privileges conceded by royal orders to the new settlers, according to which object he has endeavored to find vacant lands; and knowing that different settlers have determined to form their establishment on the river St. John's, at the place known as Spring Garden, the petitioner has thought proper to situate himself on said place; he therefore prays your excellency may be pleased to grant him, to the southward of the lands petitioned for by Don Pedro Gigorm, the number of acres that correspond to him according to the number of said slaves, his wife, and one child, with the proviso that, as soon as he has an opportunity of bringing into the province his slaves free of the well-known danger existing, he will do so without delay, to commence improving his establishment; for which reason he is desirous of obtaining the concession of said lands on said place, known more particularly as Berresford, which he hopes from the goodness of your excellency.

JOSEPH WALES.

The GOVERNOR.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, October 8, 1817.

Grant to the petitioner two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres of land at the place which he solicits, without injury to a third, being understood that, as soon as he makes known his being in possession of the same, which are those that correspond to the number of his family and slaves which he is to bring in, and that he cultivate the same without intermission, there will be given to him the title of property regulated by the survey and plat he presents from the surveyor; serving him in the meantime, as security for this grant, a certified copy of this proceeding, which will be given by the secretary.

COPPINGER.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

St. AUGUSTINE, February 5, 1818.

Don Joseph Wales, new settler in this province, respectfully sheweth to your excellency: That, as by annexed certificate will appear, your excellency having granted to him at the place named Berresford two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres of land for the purposes, the same expressed, as by the same proceeding appears annexed to the superior order of your excellency, having first undergone the necessary formalities and citation of the persons having lands adjoining to appear, the said land will be surveyed and measured by the surveyor, Don Robert McHardy; but having lately arrived in the city, and informed that, after having made the surveys ordered to be made with a prior date, and at said place, there did not result a sufficient quantity for this petitioner; adding, also, that there would be a sufficient quantity at another place known by the name of McDougall's back swamp, to the southward of lands belonging to the said surveyor: Wherefore, he prays your excellency will please order said McHardy to execute said survey on the last-mentioned place, for which place he will be eternally obligated.

JOSEPH WALES.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, April 1, 1818.

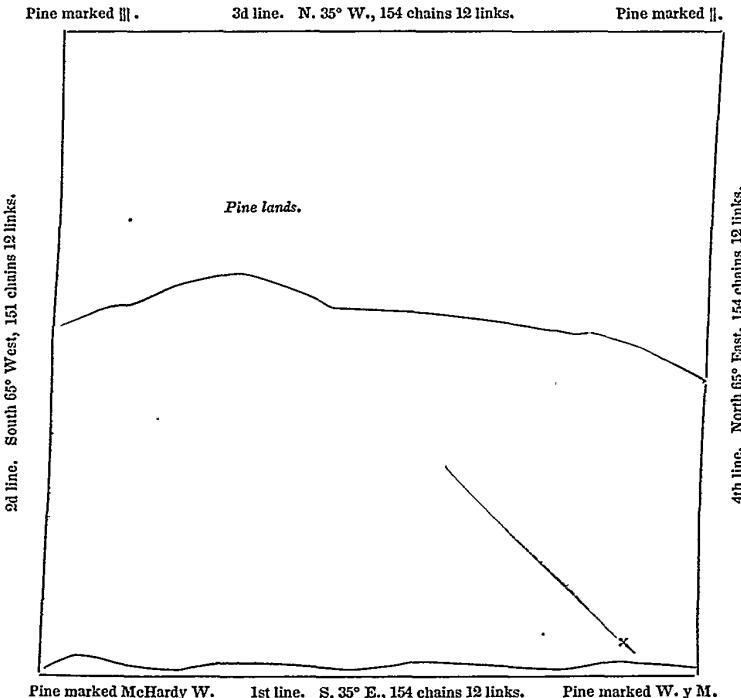

I accede to the cession which the memorialist makes of the two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres of land, which was granted to him the 8th October ultimo, and in place thereof there is granted to him an equal number at the place he mentions in this memorial, under the same conditions that, after he makes known he is in possession of the land, and cultivated the same without intermission, and built the necessary houses and fences, there will be granted to him the title of property according to the survey and plat he presents from the surveyor serving him in the meantime; a certified copy of this proceeding will be given him by the secretary.

COPPINGER.

Don Tomas de Aguilar, ensign of the army, and secretary to his Majesty of this city and its province: I certify the present copy to be truly and faithfully made from the original remaining on file in the archives under my charge, at the request of the party. In virtue of the order given me by the above decree, I give the present in St. Augustine, Florida, April 1, 1818.

TOMAS DE AGUILAR.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case produced to the board a concession for the land from Governor Copfinger to him, dated October 8, 1817; he obtained permission afterwards to change the location. The board being of opinion, after examining a number of witnesses, that the grant would have been valid had Florida remained a Spanish province, they therefore recommend it for confirmation. October 13.

Joseph Wales vs. The United States. For two thousand three hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

Horatio S. Dexter, being sworn, states that a number of negroes were placed in his hands about the latter part of the year 1817, by Messrs. Arredondo & Son, and their directions were to account to the owners of the vessel which imported them, of which Captain Wales, the claimant, was one; states that Captain Wales arrived in St. Augustine, from Havana, before the property, and stated at that time that he had negroes coming to this province from the Havana, which he (Wales) had introduced there from Africa. They were, as near as witness recollects, forty-eight in number, which were placed in witness' hands as soon as they arrived in Amelia island, and were, in two or three days afterwards, taken possession of by McGregor's forces at that place. Witness always understood from one of the house of Arredondo & Son that Wales, the claimant, had an interest in said negroes.

By UNITED STATES ATTORNEY.

Witness states that he had orders to receive the negroes at Amelia, and that he was consignee for the vessel and slaves; and that the vessel, which was worth seventeen or eighteen thousand dollars, and in which Wales was interested, was entirely lost at Amelia at that time, and that her armament and sails were saved; that the house of Kelly & Droughan and Captain Wales were the only persons interested in the vessel and cargo.

HORATIO S. DEXTER.

Henry Eckford vs. The United States. Claim for one thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to land in East Florida:

White, of the city of New York, as is shown by the accompanying document marked A; and, further, that the said Joseph H. White, by deeds of conveyance bearing date January 22, 1823, did convey the same to your memorialist, as is fully shown in the accompanying document marked B. [Translation.]

Samuel Betts, a new settler admitted under the protection of his Catholic Majesty, to your excellency presents himself, and says that he intends dedicating himself to the cultivation of the land, with a number of workers which he expects in a short time from the United States, and negroes which he intends purchasing: Wherefore, he prays your excellency will be pleased to grant him two thousand acres of land in the territory of Mosquito, bounded on the south part by the land granted to Don Ambrose Hull, which is situated to the west of the place where the town of New Smyrna stood.

Title of property.

Don Juan José de Estrada, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, &c.:

Whereas, by a royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that lands shall be surveyed gratis to the foreigners who, of their own free will, presented themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, in proportion to the number of laborers each family might have; that Don Hepworth Carter having presented himself as one of them, he solicited from the government, and there were granted to him, October 1, 1791, and January 20, 1792, two pieces of land situated on the banks of the river Matanzas, which, with the improvements he had made on them, he ceded to Don Samuel Betts, also a new settler, July 28, 1803, which lands, an intelligent person named for that purpose in default of a public surveyor, were found to contain one thousand eight hundred acres embraced in this form: north 80° east, 77 chains 47 links; and north 10° west, 228 chains; bounded at the south and in front with Northwest creek, on the east by a marsh, on the west by the heirs of Don Henry McHenry, all of which appears more particularly from the certificates, documents, and plat annexed to the proceedings moved by the said Don Samuel Betts, soliciting that the corresponding title of property should be issued to him; and as that had not been delivered, for the security and confirmation of his dominion to the said land, in the form in which it has been expedited to others who have already passed more than ten years of uninterrupted possession, to obtain the useful and direct dominion to the said lands, made buildings on them, cultivated them, and complied with all the other conditions which the government has established for the concession and grants of this nature existing in the titles delivered to other settlers, as the said proceedings set forth: Wherefore, in consideration of everything, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the said Don Samuel Betts, the one thousand eight hundred acres of land, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property, and expedite to him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate from the royal domain the right and dominion which it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the said Betts, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance, with all its entrances, outlets, customs, rights, and services which it has had, has, and in fact belong or appertain to it; and, at their will, to sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all which I interpose my authority as I can, and of right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case produced to the board a royal title made by Governor Estrada to Samuel Betts, dated July 3, 1815; also, a conveyance from said Betts to claimant; in consideration whereof, we recommend the title to Congress for confirmation, the claimant being a non-resident. December 28.

St. AUGUSTINE, August 23, 1825.

SIR: We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 18th ultimo. In reply we beg leave to refer you to our letter of the 1st of January, in which we say: "The commissioners have declined making a report upon a number of large grants made under the royal order of 1815, and which have been submitted for adjudication." Our reasons for declining to make a report on the table No. 3 at that time are set forth in the same letter. The tabular report No. 3 contains the cases above described, and was not forwarded; for, although they were, in our opinion, entitled to confirmation at the time they were acted on, from the evidence then before us we had reason to believe, from subsequent information, that testimony would be adduced to invalidate some, if not all, of them. This testimony has not yet been received, but it is daily expected to arrive from the Island of Cuba. The royal instruction of December 15, 1754, referred to in our letter of the 1st of January last, we have not been able to procure. We consider it a most important document, and we have felt much embarrassment for want of it.

We are, respectfully, your obedient servants,

DAVIS FLOYD,
GEO. MURRAY.

Hon. the SECRETARY of the Treasury.

José Bernardo Reyes vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of José Bernardo Reyes sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated upon Moultrie creek, to the southward of the city of St. Augustine, bounded on the south by the said creek, on the east by the lands of Don Carlos Gibert, and on the north and west by vacant pine lands; which title your memorialist derives from a title dated July 6, 1818, made to Don Bartolo de Castro y Ferrer by Governor Coppinger, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, who sold the same to your memorialist by conveyance bearing date July 21, 1818, a copy of which conveyance is herewith filed, marked B. Your memorialist further exhibits a copy of said title, marked A, and a copy of the concession of the said tract of land, bearing date upon the — day of —, 18—. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine, in the district of East Florida. All which is respectfully submitted.

JOSÉ BERNARDO REYES.

[Here follows the translation of the concession made by Governor White to Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer of the land, dated December 17, 1799.]

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppinger to Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer for the two hundred acres, dated July 6, 1818, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance from Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer to claimant, dated July 21, 1818.]

[Here follows the plat of the two hundred acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case Reyes claims two hundred acres of land situated on Moultrie creek, as described in his memorial filed before this board. In support of his titles, he offered in evidence a concession, made December 17, 1799, to Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer by Governor White, for headrights. The grantee, it appears, kept possession of the lands from the date of the concession up to July 6, 1818, when he obtained a royal title for it from Governor Coppinger; on the 21st of July of the same year the grantee conveyed to the claimant by deed, also filed as evidence in the case. The royal title having been made since January 24, 1818, has not governed the commissioners in their decision; but, upon a full review of the case, they are of opinion that the claim would have been valid had Florida remained in possession of the King of Spain; and they therefore confirm it to José B. Reyes so far as the United States are interested. September 10.

No. 2.—REPORT No. 4.—1824.

F. P. Fatio vs. The United States. For one thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Francis P. Fatio respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one thousand acres, situated on the east side of St. John's river, at a place known by the name of Berresford, about one hundred and fifty miles from the mouth of the river, bounded on the north by the river St. John's, on the south, east, and west by vacant lands; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to memorialist, April 13, 1803, by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, and confirmed to him by Governor Coppinger, in virtue of the royal order of 1815, as appears by a royal title made in favor of memorialist, and dated April 18, 1818; which land was surveyed by Andres Burgevin by order of the Spanish Government, March 1, 1819—all of which appears by the documents filed in the office of the keeper of the public archives. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is legally seized and possessed of said land, and was so at the time of the cession of this Territory; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. John's county, East Florida. All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. P. FATIO.

[Here follows the translation of the certified copy of the concession by Governor White of the land, dated April 13, 1803.]

[Here follows an order of Governor Coppinger to the notary of government to expedite to claimant title of absolute property, dated March 28, 1818.]

[Here follows a translation of the certificate of survey by Andres Burgevin, dated March 1, 1819, the plat remaining in the office of the public archives.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that the land was conceded to claimant by Governor White April 13, 1803, as per certified copy of concession exhibited. The claimant applied, by memorial, to have his title confirmed by the government, and, March 28, 1818, his request was admitted by Governor Coppinger, who directed that the usual title of absolute property should be expedited to him. The land was afterwards surveyed. The board being of opinion that the title would have been valid had Florida remained in possession of his Catholic Majesty, they therefore confirm it to claimant and his heirs. September 25.

TESTIMONY.

F. P. Fatio vs. The United States. For one thousand acres of land.

F. J. Fatio, being sworn, says that in 1795 the establishment of the claimant on the river St. John's was broken up by the Florida Indians, under the chief, Bowles; and that in the year 1803 the claimant was a married gentleman, and had a number of negro slaves, the exact number of which is not recollectec by the deponent.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Houston respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred and seventy acres, on the river Nassau, called Pine island, surveyed to your memorialist, by virtue of the royal order of 1790, by George Clarke, May 2, 1816: first line commences with a pine tree, runs south 2° west, 70 chains, and ends with another; second line runs west, 45 chains; third line runs north, 70 chains, to a stake on the bank of a creek; all which will be seen by reference to the grant obtained by your memorialist from Governor Coppinger, February 16, 1816, which is herewith presented. A. BELLAMY, Memorialist's Attorney.

[Translation.]

To the governor:

Don John Houston, inhabitant of this province, to your excellency respectfully states: That having come to the same for the purpose of establishing himself as a subject of his Catholic Majesty, he could not take the necessary oath (through ignorance) until his excellency Don Sebastian Kindelan went to the town of Fernandina, in May, 1813, and before said person he was received as an inhabitant of this province. Previous to this he contracted marriage with the youngest daughter of Don Spicer Christopher, before the vicar, ecclesiastical judge, Don Miguel Crosby; and until the present he has been cultivating the lands of his father-in-law, for the purpose of employing his negroes, and to promote the cultivation and improvement of the province, without ever having obtained lands granted by the government, from his never having asked for them: Wherefore, he supplicates your excellency to deign to grant him the lands which correspond to the number of his family, comprised in the annexed list, five hundred acres on Pain island, known as "Half-moon Bluff," and the rest to the complement of his family in lands called Cane's swamp, on the river Nassau, at the head of Dunn's creek; a favor which he hopes for from the justice of your excellency. St. Augustine, February 15, 1816.

JOHN HOUSTON.

St. AUGUSTINE, February 16, 1816.

Let there be granted to the memorialist seven hundred and fifteen acres of land in the places which he solicits, without injury to a third person, which are those which he solicits, which are those which correspond to him, his wife, a white servant, and twenty-six slaves, included in the annexed list, conformably to the regulations in the matter, the secretary furnishing him with the customary certificate for his security; and let this proceeding be placed in the archives.

M. Arredondo, senior's, lands; on the east by vacant pine lands; and on the west by the river St. John's. The first line commences at a stake at the edge of said river, marked with a cross, and runs S. 45° E., 22 chains, and ends at a pine with the same mark; the second line begins at the last, and runs N. 45° E., 80 chains, and ends at a stake with the same mark; the third line begins at this last-mentioned, and runs S. 45° E., 320 chains, to a pine with the same mark; the fourth line commences at the last-mentioned pine, and runs S. 30° W., 318 chains, and terminates at an oak with the same mark, on the banks of said river; thence along the meanders of the river, binding thereon, to the beginning, as is seen by a plat and certificate made by Pedro Marrot, and dated November 25, 1791, and marked A; which title your memorialists derive from a British grant made to Francis P. Fatio, deceased, by Governor J. Grant; that the British titles to said lands were lost during the troubles in the province in the year 1812, when memorialist's houses were burnt, and himself and family were obliged to fly, being robbed of considerable property and negroes. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. All of which is respectfully submitted.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that Pedro Marrot, by order of the Spanish government, surveyed the land on November 25, 1791, for Francis P. Fatio, father to claimants, (as per plat and certificate of survey;) that on the division of the estate of F. P. Fatio, deceased, this tract was allotted to claimants; that Francis P. Fatio took the oath of allegiance to his Catholic Majesty, and was in possession of the land until his death. The board ascertain this to be a valid claim; they therefore recommend it to Congress for confirmation. September 15.

Francis Marien, being duly sworn, says that he knows the above tract of land, and has known Francis P. Fatio, senior, to have resided on the said tract upwards of thirty years. Francis J. Fatio et al. vs. The United States. For five hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of F. J. Fatio, for himself and for Maria Theresa, widow of Philip Fatio, deceased, as also Sophia Louisa, Lewis, Mary Ann, Fernando, children and heirs of the said P. Fatio, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of five hundred acres, situated on the east side of Maxwell or McGirt's creek, emptying into St. John's river near Jacksonville; bounded on the north by vacant land, on the south by land formerly belonging to Henry Strachey, and on the west by said Maxwell or McGirt's creek; beginning at a water oak marked with three crosses, on the banks of said creek, runs south 75° east, 118 chains, to a stake; thence north 75° west, 120 chains, to an ash with the same mark, on the banks of said creek; thence along the meanders of said creek to the beginning, as will be seen by a British plat and certificate made by Frederick George Mulcaster, dated February 16, 1775; which title your memorialists derive from a British grant made to Francis Philip Fatio, deceased, by Governor Tonyn, which grant was confirmed by the Spanish government to the said F. P. Fatio, deceased, after whose death said tract, by a deed of division made amongst his heirs, was allotted to the children of Philip Fatio, deceased, son of said Francis P. Fatio, deceased. The said partition is filed in the claim for 10,762 acres presented by Sophia Fleming and William Gibson. And your memorialists further show that they are legally in possession of said lands; and that the said Francis P. Fatio, deceased, was a Spanish subject and resident in East Florida until his death; that his heirs were, and most of them still are, residents of Florida, and were so at the time of the cession of this then province to the United States; that Francis J. Fatio is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida; and that the said widow and the other heirs reside at present in the Island of Cuba. All which is respectfully submitted.

[Here follows a mutilated British grant or patent for the five hundred acres of land, dated March 28, 1775, made by Governor Patrick Tonyn to Francis P. Fatio.]

[Here follows a certificate and plat of survey by Frederick George Mulcaster of the five hundred acres, dated February 16, 1775.]

In this claim the claimants produced in evidence a British patent or grant made by Governor Tonyn March 28, 1775, to Francis Philip Fatio, their grandfather; also, a document showing a division of the estate of said Fatio, by which the land was allotted to the claimants. It was likewise shown that Francis P. Fatio took the oath of fealty to his Catholic Majesty, and was in possession of the land until his death. The same is hereby confirmed to the claimants and their heirs. September 7.

MEMORIAL.

The petition of Francis J. Fatio, for himself and for Maria Theresa, widow of Philip Fatio, deceased, as also Sophia Louisa, Mary Ann, and Fernando, children and heirs of Philip Fatio, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land, situated near the head of St. Sebastian creek, about four miles north from St Augustine, bounded partly to the north and west by lands formerly granted to William Mills, and on all other sides by vacant lands, as will be seen by a British plat and certificate made by Benjamin Lord, assistant surveyor general, dated May 20, 1782; which title your memorialists derive from a British grant made to Judith Shivers by Governor Tonyn, who sold the same to Francis Philip Fatio, deceased, as by conveyance herewith presented, and dated March 7, 1785, which grant was confirmed by the Spanish government to the said Francis P. Fatio, deceased, after whose death said tract, by a deed of division and partition made amongst his heirs, was allotted to the children of P. Fatio, deceased, son of said Francis P. Fatio, deceased; the said partition is filed in the claim for 10,762 acres presented by Sophia Fleming and William Gibson. And your memorialists further show that they are legally in possession of said lands; and that the said Francis P. Fatio, deceased, was a Spanish subject, and resident in East Florida until his death; that his heirs were, and most of them still are, residents of Florida; and that the said widow and the other heirs at present reside in the Island of Cuba. All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. J. FATIO, for himself and the other heirs of P. Fatio, deceased.

[Here follows a mutilated British grant or patent for the two hundred acres of land, dated June 16, 1782, made by Governor Pat. Tonyn to Judith Shivers.]

[Here follows a plat and certificate of survey of the two hundred acres, made by Benjamin Lord, assistant surveyor general, dated May 20, 1782.]

[Here follows a deed of conveyance from Judith Shivers to Francis Philip Fatio of the two hundred acres, dated March 7, 1785.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this claim it appears that Governor Tonyn granted the two hundred acres on the 16th of June to Judith Shivers, and that the same was surveyed May 20, 1782; the grantee, on March 7, 1785, conveyed the land to Francis Philip Fatio, (grandfather of claimants.) It further appeared that F. P. Fatio took the oath of fealty to his Catholic Majesty; that he was in possession of the land until his death; and that, in the division of the estate, this tract was allotted to the claimants. The board deeming this claim to be valid, they therefore confirm it to the claimants. September 10.

Francis J. Fatio, for himself and for Maria Theresa, widow of Philip Fatio, deceased, as also Sophia Louisa, Luis, Mary Ann, and Fernando, children and heirs of the said P. Fatio, respectfully represent: That your petitioner claims title to a tract of land consisting of twenty-one caballerias, and two small marsh islands in front, on the river St. John's, and southeast side thereof, about forty-five miles northwestward from St. Augustine, bounded on the north by St. John's river, on the east by lands of John McIntosh, beginning on the river St. John's, at an oak marked with a cross; thence south 10 chains, to an oak with the same mark; thence south 15° west, 90 chains, to a pine with the same mark—these two lines bound the lands of John McIntosh; thence north 75° west, 70 chains, to a pine with the same mark; thence north 15° east, 51 chains, to a pine with the same mark; thence north 27° west, 40 chains, to a pine with the same mark; thence north 15° east, 15 chains, to a pine on the margin of an impassable marsh on the river St. John's; thence along the meanders of the river to the beginning, as will be seen by a plat and certificate of Pedro Marrot, who was appointed a commissioned judge, by the Spanish authorities, for the survey of lands ordered to be granted, dated March 9, 1793, herewith presented, marked A; which said survey was made, in pursuance and confirmation of British titles or grants, by Francis Philip Fatio, owner, and held and demanded as thereby to be seen. And your memorialist further sheweth that the said Francis Philip Fatio remained a Spanish subject during his lifetime, resident in Florida after the transfer thereof by Great Britain to Spain; that after his death, the said tract of land was allotted and conveyed to the heirs of Philip Fatio, deceased, which said Philip Fatio was one of the children of Francis Philip Fatio, the original claimant, as will be seen by the said settlement which is filed before this honorable board in a claim of Sophia Fleming and William Gibson for ten thousand seven hundred and sixty-two acres of land. Your memorialist further shows that they were always subjects of Spain during her jurisdiction within the Territory of East Florida, and were resident (so far as they were living) in the said Territory at the time of its cession to the United States by Spain; that Francis J. Fatio is a resident of East Florida and citizen of the United States; and that the said widow and the other heirs reside at present in the Island of Cuba, &c.

All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

F. J. FATIO, for himself and the other heirs of P. Fatio, deceased.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, East Florida:

Personally appeared before me, Francis J. Fatio, one of the justices appointed to keep the peace in said county, Mrs. Sophia Fleming, who, being duly sworn, deposeth as follows: That she was acquainted with David Convoise; he was agent to Messrs. Thomas Dunnage, Francis Philip Fatio, and Rivaz and Naville; said Convoise bought the plantation (since called New Castle) from Robert Harris about the year 1771, and took immediate possession of said plantation for himself, and in virtue of a power of attorney from his copartners. At the cession of the province to Spain, in the year 1784, Francis Philip Fatio remained in Florida; on a dissolution of partnership, he bought the interest of the other partners and obtained Spanish titles for all the lands formerly held by said firm. Francis Philip Fatio became a Spanish subject in 1784, and took the oath of fidelity to the Spanish government.

SOPHIA FLEMING.

F. J. FATIO, Justice of the Peace.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that Pedro Marrot, by order of the government, surveyed the land for Francis Philip Fatio, grandfather of claimants, March 9, 1793, as per plat and certificate of survey exhibited; that, on the division of the estate of F. P. Fatio, deceased, this tract was allotted and conveyed to them; that the aforesaid Fatio took the oath of allegiance to the King of Spain, and occupied the land until his death. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to the claimant and their heirs. October 12.

TESTIMONY.

*Francis J. Fatio et al. vs. The United States. For seven hundred acres of land.*

George J. F. Clarke, being duly sworn, states that he was acquainted with F. P. Fatio, sr., deceased, and was always considered as a Spanish subject; could not have remained in the province if he was not. Witness says he knows the tract of land of New Castle, which was always ____ of years previous. Witness says that he knew Philip Fatio, who was son of the said Francis P. Fatio, deceased, and also his first wife.

Thomas Travers' heirs vs. The United States. For three hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of William Travers, in behalf of himself and the other heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, sheweth: That your memorialist, for and in behalf as aforesaid, claims title to a certain tract or piece of land in East Florida, consisting of three hundred acres; that the said tract of land was originally granted by the British government, by grant bearing date January 4, 1768, while East Florida was a province and dependence of the crown of Great Britain, to one James Penman; that the said James Penman, that is to say, on or about September 20, 1779, sold and conveyed the said land to one James Peavett; that, after the death of James Peavett, it became and was the property of Maria Evans, who for many years occupied, cultivated, and improved the said land, continuing to do so until the time of her death, which happened some time about the year 1792 or 1793; that the said Maria Evans devised the said tract of land, with others, by her last will and testament, made in the year 1792, to the aforesaid Thomas Travers; that the said Thomas Travers departed this life some time about the year 18—, leaving your memorialist and his sister his heirs-at-law; that the said land is now, and has been for some time past, in the actual occupancy and cultivation of one Francis P. Sanchez, who holds the said land under the heirs of the said Thomas Travers. Your memorialist further shows that the said land is situated at about five miles to the west of St. Augustine; that, at the time of the original survey, it was bounded on all sides by vacant lands; that it now adjoins a six hundred acre tract of one Francisco P. Sanchez, and has the following courses and dimensions, as appears by the original plat of the survey thereof, herewith filed: The first line begins at a pine marked X, and runs north 25° west, 54 chains and 80 links, to another pine with the same mark; then runs south 65° west, 54 chains and 80 links, to another pine with the same mark; then runs south 25° west, 54 chains and 80 links, to another pine, same mark; then runs south 65° east, 54 chains and 80 links, to the place of beginning. Wherefore, your memorialist claims confirmation of the title of the heirs of the said Thomas Travers to the said land.

DEPOSITIONS.

EAST FLORIDA, St. John's County:

This day personally appeared before me, the subscriber, one of the justices of the peace for the county aforesaid, Nicolas Eslefanopoly, who, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he has resided in St. Augustine for many years; that he was acquainted with Joseph Peavett before and after the cession of this country by Great Britain to Spain, and knew of the said Joseph Peavett becoming a Spanish subject; that he, this deponent, was employed by Peavett at sundry jobs at said Peavett's plantation, situated about two miles west from St. Augustine, and at a place called Peavett's Swamp; that he knows Peavett remained cultivating the said land up to the time of his death; and that he has not a doubt his widow continued in possession for many years after and planted the same; that he never heard the rights of Peavett's heirs to this land questioned. Deponent knew Maria Evans, the wife of Peavett; after the death of Peavett she married a man by the name of Hudson, who died here some time before the death of Maria Evans.

EAST FLORIDA, St. John's County:

This day personally appeared before the subscriber, one of the justices of the peace for the county aforesaid, Gabriel Triay, who, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he has resided in and about St. Augustine near fifty-five years; that he knew Joseph Peavett as early as 1779, and remained acquainted with him up to the time of his death; that Peavett remained here after the cession of the country by Great Britain to Spain, in 1784, and became a Spanish subject; that he, this deponent, was employed by Peavett, whilst the British had possession of the country, to build houses, &c., upon a plantation belonging to the said Peavett at a place about two miles west from St. Augustine, at a place called Peavett's Swamp; that Peavett retained possession of the said lands up to the time of his death, which took place some time after the Spaniards came into the country; that he never heard the right of Peavett's heirs to this property questioned. The improvements made upon this plantation were burnt by the Indians, and the plantation broken up many years ago. A man by the name of Penman had a plantation about a mile and a half to the northward of the place described by this deponent. Deponent knows that Peavett had negroes upon Penman's place for several years, and cultivated that place at the same time that he planted the plantation in Peavett's Swamp. Deponent does not know how much land Peavett owned in the swamp, but always thought the whole belonged to him. Deponent knew Maria Evans, the wife of Peavett, well; after the death of Peavett she married a man by the name of Hudson, who died here some time before the death of Maria Evans; Peavett had no children, and after his death his wife had possession of all his property to the time of her death. The house built by Peavett was from thirty to thirty-five feet long and sixteen or seventeen broad; he had about twenty-eight negroes, workers, and all necessary houses for them, and had about forty or fifty acres cleared and in cultivation in the swamp, besides a considerable quantity in the pine land.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain the aforesaid to be a valid British grant; that the grantee, after the cession of the country to Spain, continued to occupy and cultivate the same; that he became a Spanish subject, and died without issue; that his wife continued to occupy and cultivate the same until her death; that in her last will and testament she bequeathed the land in question to Thomas Travers, deceased. They therefore confirm to the heirs the title aforesaid. September 17.

William and John Lofton vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John and William Lofton, residents of East Florida and citizens of the United States, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated on the north branch of Nassau river, bounded by vacant lands, as per deed from Cornelius Raine to John Lofton, which lands have not been surveyed to their knowledge; which title your memorialists claim as grandchildren to the said John Lofton and as his heirs. The said land was originally granted to one Cornelius Raine, in the year 1768, by the British authorities in this province, by patent, which is by time and accident nearly destroyed; the remnant, with the seal attached, is herewith presented, having the certificate of registry faintly to be seen on the back of said remnant; and the said Cornelius Raine conveyed the same to the said John Lofton in 1769, as appears by his deed herewith presented. The said lands were occupied by your memorialists and ancestor for some years, as they have been informed, but they have no personal knowledge of the fact, their grandfather and father being dead many years; and they being young, and the province having been very much disturbed by the internal commotions, they have never been able to ascertain the particulars relative to their claim, so as to be able to point it out more particularly. All which is respectfully submitted, &c. St. Augustine, August 29, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimants.

[Here follows a British patent, with the great seal attached to it, very much mutilated, together with a deed of conveyance from Cornelius Raine, the original grantee, to John Lofton, also mutilated.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's:

Joseph Summerall, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he was well acquainted with John Lofton, the grandfather of the above claimants, during the residence of the British authorities in this province; that he occupied and cultivated a tract of two hundred acres of land on the north branch of Nassau river, now in the county of Duval; that he occupied said tract for at least twenty years, till 1794, when a disturbance took place in the province, and the Spanish government ordered the settlers in that part to remove to the south and east side of St. John's river, when the said Lofton removed from the said lands into the State of Georgia, and in two or three years after died; that the said Lofton bought the said land of one Cornelius Raine, who had a British grant for the same, which this deponent had seen many years ago, and had heard of long before he saw the same. This deponent further says that at his death he left his son, John Lofton, his heir-at-law; and at the death of the last-mentioned John Lofton he left the claimants, John and William Lofton, his sons, and his only heirs; that, after the disturbance of 1794 had ceased, the said John Lofton, the father, removed on to a tract of land which was granted to himself, and joined the land of John Lofton, the grandfather, and occupied them both for some years, when new disturbances took place, and he removed into the now county of St. John's. Deponent further says that he was well acquainted with John Lofton, the father, who had a tract of three hundred and fifty acres of land adjoining the former tract, which he lived upon and occupied about twelve years; at his death this tract, with the former one, descended to the claimants as his heirs, who have the possession undisputed by any one. Deponent further says that he is also well acquainted with another tract of three hundred and fifty acres of land, which was granted to the said John Lofton, the father, and lies between St. Mary's and Nassau rivers, and not far from the last-mentioned tracts, and was in occupancy of the said John Lofton, the father, all the time he occupied the last-mentioned tract of three hundred and fifty acres, and which said second tract of three hundred and fifty acres also descended to the claimants as the sons and only heirs of the said John Lofton, the father, and which is also in the undisturbed possession of the claimants. This deponent is also well acquainted with another tract of fifty acres of land, which is on Amelia island, at a place called Cabbage Hammock, and was granted by the Spanish government to John Lofton, the father, and on which he made a settlement and cleared about six acres; which said tract at his death also came to the claimants as the sons and heirs of the said John Lofton, the father, and is in their legal and undisturbed possession.

JOSEPH SUMMERALL.

Sworn to before me December 23, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Judge of the County Court.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's, scd:

William Hartley, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he is well acquainted with the tracts of land in the above affidavit of Joseph Summerall mentioned; and that he was well acquainted with John Lofton, the father of the claimants, and that he had the possession of all of them for at least twelve years before his death; and that after his death they came into possession of John and William Lofton, the present claimants, who have held the same, as his sons and only heirs-at-law, for the last nine or ten years; and further saith not.

WILLIAM HARTLEY.

Sworn to before me, December 23, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Judge of County Court.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain in this case that John Lofton, grandfather of claimants, obtained the land from Cornelius Raine, who had the same granted to him by the British government, (as per mutilated British patent.) Raine in 1769 conveys the tract to Lofton, (as per mutilated deed.) It appeared that Lofton afterwards inhabited and cultivated this tract until driven away by disturbances and commotions that took place in 1794. The commissioners deeming that this grant, together with those claimed by the above-named claimants, were valid under the late Spanish government, the same is hereby confirmed to them so far as the United States are concerned. September 28.

REMARKS UPON REPORT No. 7.

No. 13.—The warrant of survey bears date June 22, 1767.

We have duly examined and considered these claims. It does not appear that they were ever recognized by the Spanish government; and we are therefore of opinion that, at the period of the cession of the province to the United States, the memorialists had not a valid claim against the Spanish government. It is in proof in all the cases herewith reported, with the exception of two, (Pierce and wife for two tracts,) that the present claimants are citizens of the United States, and that neither they nor those under whom they claim have ever received any compensation from the British government. Although the commissioners do not feel themselves called on to express an opinion upon the merits or equity of these claims, they cannot close this report without remarking that many of the ancestors of the present claimants embarked in our revolutionary struggle, and by that act deprived themselves of the right to claim compensation for their lands from the British government.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. For six hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francis P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That he claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land consisting of six hundred acres, situate and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said tract of six hundred acres is part of grant of two thousand acres originally made to one Roque Leonardi, now deceased, by three several concessions, one of which was made December 24, 1792, and one April 11, 1793, by Governor Quesada, the governor of East Florida, and the other January 3, 1799, by Governor White, the governor of East Florida; which several concessions were made under and in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain, bearing date October 29, 1790, all which will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said concession, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A; that the said Roque Leonardi, upon obtaining the said concession, took immediate and actual possession of the lands, and improved and cultivated them, and remained in the actual possession and occupancy of them till his death, which took place about the year 1803; and that his heirs are now in the actual occupancy of that part of the said lands now sold to your memorialist; that the said lands were surveyed very soon after their concession by the surveyor general of the province of East Florida, Pedro Marrott; but his plat having been lost, application was made by the heirs of the said Leonardi for a resurvey of them, which was ordered April 5, 1819, as will appear by a reference to a certified copy of the application and order for the said resurvey, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B; that the said concession of two thousand acres was located by the said Roque Leonardi in two distinct tracts, one of which consisted of fourteen hundred acres, and the other of six hundred acres, the latter of which is that claimed by your memorialist, as appears by the certified copies of the plat thereof now submitted and filed, and marked exhibits C and B; that the said tract of six hundred acres is situated on the North river, about sixteen miles from the city of St. Augustine, between the road to San Vincent Ferrer and lands of John Andrew, and has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: the first line begins at a pine marked X, and runs north 77 degrees east, 60 chains, to another pine marked X; the second line runs north 13 degrees west, 100 chains, to another pine marked X; the third line runs south 77 degrees west, 60 chains, to another pine marked with a X; the fourth line runs south 13 degrees east, 100 chains, to the place of beginning. The said land was, at the time of the survey thereof, bounded on the south by lands of the heirs of Thomas Travers, on the north by vacant land, and is bounded on the west by the road to San Vincent Ferrer, as will more distinctly appear by the plat thereof contained in exhibit D. Your memorialist further shows that, May 25, 1821, a grant, in absolute property, of the aforesaid tract of six hundred acres of land was made by Don José Coppinger, then governor of East Florida, to the heirs of the said Roque Leonardi, as will appear by a certified copy thereof, now herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit E, and that Bartolome Leonardi, Juan Leonardi, and Maria Ugarti, the heirs of the aforesaid Roque Leonardi, afterwards, that is to say, March 21, 1822, for a valuable consideration paid to them by your memorialist, conveyed to your memorialist, in fee simple absolute, the said tract or parcel of six hundred acres of land, and its appurtenances, as will appear by the original conveyance thereof to your memorialist, now herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit F. And your memorialist further avers and shows that the said Roque Leonardi was, at the time the said six hundred acres of land were conceded to him as aforesaid, and at his death, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; and that his heirs were, at the time of their father's death, also settlers of East Florida, and subjects of the King of Spain, and were settlers of East Florida at the time they conveyed the said land to your memorialist; that your memorialist was, at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and has so continued ever since. Wherefore, he prays confirmation of his title to the said six hundred acres of land and its appurtenances, &c.

FRANCIS P. SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JNO. DRYSDALE.

MEMORIAL.

Don Roque Leonardi, an inhabitant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency that about fifteen miles to the north of this city there is a piece of land belonging to the King, which in former times was planted by a certain Mr. Men, and at present, for want of a person to possess it, it is uncultivated. Wherefore he prays the goodness of your excellency to be pleased to grant him the said land, by which he will receive a singular favor, which he hopes from the well known justice of your excellency.

ROQUE LEONARDY.

Sefior GOVERNOR.

St. AUGUSTINE, December 24, 1792.

As he requires, without injury to a third person, let this party be permitted to establish himself where he solicits until the commissioner appointed for the general survey of lands shall assign him those which correspond to his family.

QUESADA.

MEMORIAL.

Don Roque Leonardi, resident of this city, and inhabitant of the province, with all respect states to your excellency that his only business being that of a laborer, by which he has to maintain his large family, and for this same reason your excellency having done him the favor to grant him the plantation called Mr. Men's, agreeably to the distribution of lands to the other inhabitants, and having resulted to be in possession of another individual, by a former decree and disposition of the superior government. Wherefore he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant him three hundred acres of land, the boundaries of which to be north is where the cutting of wood for the King takes place, without injuring, in any manner, said place for cutting wood, the land being open and worked for a few years, and, in the whole, there is scarcely wood of any consideration; furthermore, those which your excellency should think proper to grant him four miles more to the north of that place, at the Rice plantation, so called, as your memorialist has family and slaves enough for the cultivation of said lands, and the three hundred acres which he has set forth not being sufficient; which is a favor he hopes for from the justice of your excellency.

ROQUE LEONARDY.

Señor GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

St. AUGUSTINE, April 11, 1793.

If the lands which this party solicits be not destined for the King's woods, nor previously [granted] to any other inhabitant of the province, the captain, Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned for the general distribution of them, shall assign those which correspond to him in the places which he points out.

QUESADA.

MEMORIAL.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

Don Roque Leonardi, inhabitant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency that, when the lands were surveyed, there remained a piece near his plantation, and to the south of it, which bounds that of Donna Teresa Gill. This said piece of public land consists of a scrub very thick and full of palmettos, although there is a small part a little cleared; but, although that which corresponds to him of the uncleared is but small, he receives much injury from the vicinity of it to the house of your memorialist. He humbly prays your excellency to be pleased to give him a piece of land, good and bad, that, by this means, he may lessen the increased damages which he receives in clearing and cultivating it, a favor which he hopes to receive from the equitable charity of your excellency.

ROQUE LEONARDY.

Señor GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

Let the commandant of engineers report.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

The lands on which the petitioner has his plantation correspond to those of North creek, and he sees no objection that the lands which he solicits shall be increased in his possession and placed in cultivation, it being not only useful to shun the damages which the thickness of the woods occasion him, but also advantageous to the improvement of the agriculture of the province; which is all he has to inform your excellency of, in compliance with the foregoing decree.

PEDRO DIAZ BERRIO.

Sefior GOVERNOR.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

Let there be granted to this party, without injury to a third person, the lands he solicits, until, agreeably to the persons he may have for its cultivation, the corresponding quantity be assigned him.

The legitimate heirs of Don Roque Leonardi and Donna Aguida Coll, now deceased, with due veneration, represent to your excellency, through the medium of Don José M. Ugarté, as husband of Donna María Leonardi, one of them, and the only one present, that there are belonging to them by concessions, which the annexed documents prove, as also long possession and constant cultivation for more than twenty-six years, the following lands, to wit: beginning by a line which should run east and west from that of their bounding neighbors on the south, the heirs of Francisco Arnau, on the creek named the King's Landing, distant twelve miles to the north of this place, on the margin of the West river, until it terminates to the north, with the lands and appurtenances of the old plantation named Merter Man, as all must run under the same lines, and amongst them the said possession of Men, three hundred acres marked out from the said boundary of Arnau, and the land also granted January 3, 1799; also, what is called the Rice plantation, distant sixteen miles on the said North river from this place; also, to the west, which, with their appurtenances, as well one as the other, have been formerly surveyed and laid off, except the scrub under the commission of Captain Don Pedro Marrot, at that time placed in the general plan of surveys of this province, the place of deposit of which is unknown and is wanting, to the injury of the memorialists. Wherefore they pray your excellency to have the goodness to permit that the private surveyor, Don Andrew Burgevin, may pass to said lands to make new surveys of them, under the regulations established in such cases; and that being effected, the corresponding documents be delivered to them to proceed to prove the other circumstances which consolidate the right of property which they ought to enjoy from having complied with the conditions imposed by the regulations of this government on this matter, they being ready to pay in full the expenses due. St. Augustine, Florida, April 3, 1819.

JOSE MARIA UGARTE.

DECREE.

St. Augustine, April 5, 1819.—Let it be granted as asked for, agreeably to the forms of law, and with notice to the bounding neighbors.

COPPINGER.

St. Augustine, on the same day, month, and year, the foregoing decree was made known to Don José Maria Ugarté; which I attest.

JUDICIAL SALE.

Don Juan Nepomuceno de Quesada, colonel of the royal armies, governor and commander-in-chief of this city and province of St. Augustine, Florida, for his Majesty, says that an official letter was transmitted to me from the accountant's office of the royal domain of this said city, dated the 9th of October, of the year last past, 1790, showing me that by the decease of Don Jesse Fish, of the English nation, under which Protestant religion he died, there remained a piece of cultivated land called the Grove, and that a son of the said deceased had retired to the dominions of his Britannic Majesty, and that the laws of these kingdoms forbid that foreigners should hold real property unless they are established in our dominions, soliciting said minister that thus the said landed property, as well as whatever others are found in this province and belong to said Fish, their rents and arrears, should belong to his Majesty; requesting me, at the same time, to take the necessary measures for the investigation of this business. In virtue of which, by a judicial decree of the same month and year, I ordered that, being included in one of the resolutions which the said official letter from the accountant's office points out in law 34, book 2, and chapter 32, of the recopiladas (abridgment) of these kingdoms, to give completion to the said estate, testimony is to be taken by the notary of the testamentary disposition of Fish, or any other under which he may have died, informing his executors or other persons, certifying also, and warning the tenants previously to anything else, that they have to account to the royal administration for the rents; that it ought to be made known that, unless lawful creditors appear, the King, our sovereign, is to enter subsidiarily into possession of the whole. In attention to which, the said notary having a copy of the will annexed, certified that the property of which he had notice, what the said Fish left besides what the said will contained, consisted of copies of deeds, which he produced. In which stage the executors, Don Thomas Travers and Don John Leslie, presented themselves, setting forth the just reasons which hindered them from soliciting a writing of inventory, and referring to the property in the said notice which the notary presented, they asked for a postscript "that many of the goods were of those that were perishable, (servando servari non passeunt,) and others, as the houses, which were every day losing their value for the want of repairs, so that their total ruin was to be dreaded in a little time to the injury of the creditors of his Majesty," I did order, having previously, according to law, received information of the ability of it, that all should be valued and sold regularly, that the proceeds might be placed or deposited in the royal coffers until the issue; and by a decree of the 6th of November of said year, 1790, I ordered that the master carpenter and masons should proceed to a valuation of the houses which were pointed out, also explaining by a sworn return what they think as to the necessity for selling them, and that along with what the accountant's office had to say, whose duty it is to interfere in said business, there shall be a decree. In attention to which, the valuation and survey of the houses and lots was proceeded to; the said masters swearing in due form that, in the state in which they found this property, it was threatened with entire ruin; that the sale of which would be favorable, since, if not, they would be exposed to the loss of their value; which being seen by the accountant's office of the royal domain, it was their opinion that the said sale should be proceeded to; and by a decree of the 15th of December of the said year, I ordered that the sale should be proceeded to, for which purpose handbills were posted up in the public places for the lawful time, and the day of the sale being made known, it was carried into effect at the gates of this government house in legal form, and various bids, offers, and outbids being made for said goods, the hour appointed for its conclusion having arrived, the said auction was concluded, of the houses and lots referred to, by various individuals. In consequence of which, by a decree of January 3, 1791, I ordered that what is contained in the proceedings at auction being prepared, let each person deposit, respectively, the sums which correspond to him; and in its virtue they shall prove the production of the said sums, as appears from the letters of payment which they produced, made by the royal treasury of this place, with the intervention of the accountant's office of the royal domain, and my approval thereof. By my decree of the 17th of February of the said year, 1791, I commanded that there should be delivered to each purchaser a competent deed of property, and concluded with the corresponding note in the proceeding that may be brought; said deeds being executed as well for the houses and lots referred to, as also the negroes belonging to the said estate, which were also auctioned with due solemnity to several individuals, depositing also its proceeds in the royal coffers, I commanded, by a decree of the 2d of April of the said year, there shall be given to each interested the copy which he requires, he paying the proper cost, and at the same time the cost of the judicial decrees, and its amount be paid out of the proceeds of the auctions deposited in the royal coffers; and when done, let it be brought forward that what is necessary may be decreed. In this stage, and various creditors of the said deceased having come forward claiming their credits, and as the tribunal has been informed that there are several others having presented what Don Thomas Travers and Don Juan Leslie in their representation in the eighth folio of the said proceedings, and having in every respect to act according to law, I have commanded that the proceeds of the whole sale being presented as it was in the royal coffers until another thing is determined in testimony of the accounts of the debts which are pointed out in said folio eight, and in every case that Don Manuel Hernandez Bendicho be presented, who was named as defender of said estate; that, having previously accepted and taken the oath, he shall explain what is necessary of the state and nature of the cause, calling together the present creditors by handbills, and, as respects the absent in the city of Havana and the Island of Cuba, a despatch shall be forwarded to the captain general, to the end that he may order edicts to be posted up, that, by themselves or their attorneys, they appear within the term of six months to allege their debts; and, in the meanwhile, everything shall remain suspended with the exception of whatever the said defender may move to be renounced; the charge for which purpose he presented a representation, setting forth in it that he did not consider himself to possess the necessary information for this delicate affair; that he found it necessary to give his attention to various business now pending of the rents of the post office, which he administered, on views of which I have admitted the said remuneration, and, in consequence, name in his place Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, to whom, having previously notified said appointment and taken his oath, the above-mentioned judicial decree shall be handed over; all being concluded, and the new defender having accepted of and sworn to his charge, he came forward representing and saying, in his petition of the 2d of July of the said year 1791, that, having examined attentively the steps taken in the said decree, and, in as far as they have proceeded, all appears to have been very regular, and thus he agreed to the whole; but, as many individuals who have to appear at said meeting may delay some time in coming or presenting their powers, he judged that, until they appeared, it would be proper not to cause them any delay afterwards, and to present every contingency of damage of the property which remains, that it be valued in due form and auctioned as the former, passing the proceeds to the deposit before provided; setting forth at the same time, in addition, that, inasmuch as the place named the Grove belonged to the deceased, although it does not appear in the deeds of title with which he enjoyed it, it being certain that he had an immemorial possession, I should be favored by having it ordered that the trees and buildings should be valued, and that they should go to auction with the rest, determining on what may be most correct as to the land. To all which I have acceded by my decree of the said month and year, commanding that all should be done as required and in proper form, which proceeding has been delayed some time by the great business of the notary, and sometimes by sickness, which prevailed at that time; the said defender represented again, stating that, from the well known injury sustained by the property of the deceased Fish from want of a master who would take care of it as his own, he prayed that I would order that, without loss of time, the valuation should be made and the sale provided for, explaining by an addition, for the better understanding, that, inasmuch as by the deeds of property of the possession of the said Don José Fish he was instructed that, of those without the walls, Don Juan Eliger de la Puente had not sold them under any survey, only marking the limits with creek, salt marshes, roads, and other marks which are yet in being, in virtue of which he asked that two measurers or surveyors should be hired, and it would be sufficient to name only two skilful persons who, informed of the places more or less advantageous, and instructed of what lands produce in this country, should value said possession, accompanied by the individual or individuals who may find it convenient to choose that in place of a notary, supposing there was not one, said valuation should be presented, it being well understood that the lots which were within the city were to be measured and valued without fail in the regular form, for which he asked for the judicial and final decrees. By my decree of 16th of January of the present year, I commanded, among other things, that, it resulting that the valuation and sale referred to had not had effect, it should be proceeded to in presence of the said defender of Don Vicente Meria and Don Fran. Revira, for want of a notary, and Don Manuel Solana and Don Roque Leonardi, who were named as skilful men; that the boundaries being regulated according to what is certain from the deeds of sale of the lands, they may proceed to its valuation, having first performed the customary forms, and may successively make the sale of the whole at public outcry, in favor of the best bidder, for which purpose the corresponding commission shall be expedited within an insertion of the lands which ought to be valued with the boundaries assigned; that orders may be complied with, which being done, it be added to the judicial decrees on the business to confirm them; and, as respects what relates to the lots, it may be done as the said defender proposes. In consequence of which the said commission was delivered and the said valuation made as was ordered. I commanded him to show it to the office of royal accountant general, to say if there was anything to be said relative to the royal interests, and in order that, in the accustomed manner, the survey and valuation of the lots should be proceeded to with its knowledge; which, notwithstanding, resulted without this circumstance, and, in consequence, to the sale of all, naming, as master carpenter, John Purcell, and mason, Joaquin Sanchez, who, in compliance with orders, and by virtue of the concurrence of the said royal accountant general's office, communicated in the opinion of 11th of February, they proceeded to the sale at auction, which was done in form of law, and various bids, offers, and outbids having been offered, the hour appointed for its conclusion having taken place, there remained auctioned in favor of Don Thomas Travers the savannas of St. Sebastian, which are situated at the distance from this city, to the southwest, of more than a quarter of a league, on the west side of the river of this name of St. Sebastian, and the said savannas, from a creek which leaves said river and turns to the west, which is called Gonzalez Mendez's run; to the south, more than a quarter of a league, on the bank of the salt marshes, this way, which runs towards the bar of the Matanzas, until it bounds with other salt marshes, which divide the savanna of Brioso, which is the last of St. Sebastian, with another, which is called De Jula; the breadth of said savannas is from east to west more than a quarter of a league; the boundaries of which are on the north of the said creek of Gonzalo Mendez, on the west by a pine barren and a gravelly place, from which proceeds a branch which runs to the south; on the south the said salt marsh of Jula, and on the east said river of St. Sebastian and its salt marshes, and that which communicates, as is already set forth, with the bar of Matanzas; which sale was verified in favor of said Don Thomas Travers for the sum of fifty dollars, there being no person who would give more, and I have approved it in favor of the aforesaid; and, by my decree of 22d of March, I have ordered that it should be notified to those contained in the proceedings of sale, that within three days they should each produce into the accountant general's office the sum which respectively corresponds to them, that it might be deposited in the royal coffers, placing a note to that effect on the judicial decrees, and, that being done, I would give a provisional judgment; after which, and having continued in various other proceedings relating to the said property, some of it being already sold, that they have not had a bidder for the former, and having already decreed provisionally on various removals of some creditors to the said property, Don Filipe de Aguirre, one of the purchasers, presented himself, praying me to order what may be convenient, in order that a deed or document of property should be delivered him which would accredit what had been performed relative to the land referred to, called the five miles, and as he had satisfied the amount and presented the receipt for payment, which prove it to the notary. In attention to which, by my decree of 28th of July, that it being certain that the said amount was satisfied, the corresponding deed should be formed which was solicited, and the same to other persons in a similar case. In virtue of which, and there being no person to represent the rights of the said Fish, with the exception of the said defender, given officially, with whose concurrence said sale was carried into effect, and that the said Thomas Travers may have a legitimate title to the said property or land sold to him at auction, and my orders the due effect, I declare by these presents, in the name of his Majesty, (whom God preserve,) and of his royal justice, which I administer, that I sell and give in absolute sale, forever, to the said Don Thomas Travers, for himself and his heirs, the said lands of the savannas of Sebastian, free of all tribute or mortgage, at the price of the said fifty dollars, which he gave in silver, paid and deposited in the royal treasury of this city, for which there was given a receipt of payment, and, it being necessary, let it be given anew, with the renunciation of the laws which may be necessary; and from hence, and for the future, I take from him, the said Don Jesse Fish, the power, and separate him from the right which he, his heirs, or other persons, may have to the possession, property, seigniory, title, power, appeal, and any other right which appertained or belonged to said savannas, since I cede, renounce, and transfer it all to the said purchaser and his representatives, that, as their own, they may possess, sell, and alienate the said savannas at their will, in virtue of this deed, which I deliver in their favor, by which they can take and acquire the possession when it best suits them; and, for its better validity and firmness, I interpose my authority and judicial decree, as I can and of right ought, to contribute thereby to the good administration of justice; and I deliver these presents in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, November 22, 1792. There being witnesses, Don Manuel Rengil, Don Tomas Aguilar, and Silvestre Miranda, inhabitants present, and his excellency signed it, and whom I, the undersigned notary, know and hold as such governor and commander-in-chief of this said city and its province, he, as such, exercising the administration of the royal justice in it; all of which I attest.

CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, merchant of this city, general attorney of Don George Taylor, who is absent, and which power he has conferred on me before the present notary, on February 15, 1804, which power has not been revoked, and is sufficient for what shall be said, I declare that I really sell to Don Gabriel W. Perpall, also of this place, certain savannas belonging to my principal, known by the name of St. Sebastian, and which are situated to the southwest of the city, at the distance of a quarter of a league, on the west side of the river of Sebastian, which, from a creek which it forms and turns to the west, called Gonzalo Mendez, runs to the south more than a quarter of a league on the bank of salt marshes, on this course, to the bar of Matanzas, which divide the savanna of Briaso, which is the last of St. Sebastian, with another called Juta, having in breadth, east and west, a little more than a quarter of a league, whose boundaries are on the north of the said creek of Gonzalo Mendez, on the west the pine barren, and a gravel bank, from which arises a creek turning to the south, and on this side the said salt marsh of Juta, and on the east the said river St. Sebastian and its salt marshes, and of that which communicates, as said before, with the bar of Matanzas; which said savanna my principal had and bought from Don Thomas Travers, deceased, by deed, which he made in these archives August 29, 1803; and I make him the said sale, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services which belong and appertain to the said savannas, and free of all encumbrance, as I, the said notary, certify from the results of the book of mortgages in my charge, which I have searched for the purpose, at the price of six hundred and fifty dollars, which the purchaser has paid me in cash, which sum I acknowledge as delivered to my will, on which I renounce proof, laws of delivery, acceptance to money not counted, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a receipt in form; in virtue of which, I separate my said principal from the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and other rights, real and personal, which he had or held to the said savannas of St. Sebastian; that I cede, renounce, and transfer them to the purchaser and his representation, that, as his own, he may possess, sell, and alienate them at his will; in virtue of this writing which I deliver in his favor as a token of real delivery, by which it is seen that he has acquired the possession without occasion for further proof, from which I release him, and I oblige myself to the eviction and guarantee of this sale in due form, and as may best suit, in favor of the purchaser, with my property, present and future power, and submission to the tribunal of his Majesty, that they may force me to compliance, as by sentence consented to, and passed in authority of a thing adjudged, on which I renounce all laws, customs, rights, and privileges in my favor, and everything in form which prohibits it. And I, the said Don Gabriel W. Perpall, being present, accept in my favor this writing, and by it receive, as purchased, the said savannas of St. Sebastian, at the price and agreement at which they were sold to me, and I acknowledge them as delivered to my will; I renounce proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen nor received, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a receipt in form. In testimony of which, this is dated in the city of St. Augustine, Florida, March 18, 1809.

I, the notary, attest that I know the parties who signed this, being witnessed by Don Juan de Entralgo, Don Bernardino Sanchez, and Don Bernardo Jose Segui, inhabitants present.

The board having ascertained, from the exhibits offered, that the quantity of land claimed is undefined, they order that this case be reported to Congress for their determination. April 14.

[2D SESSION.]

LANDS TO BE TAXED BY THE STATES AFTER SALE BY THE UNITED STATES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 26, 1825.

Mr. VINTON, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the joint resolution of May 24, 1824, proposing "that the several States which have been admitted into the Union under any compact prohibiting such States from levying and collecting a tax on land for five years next succeeding the sale of such land by the United States, shall be severally permitted, whenever they may deem it expedient, to subject all lands hereafter sold by the United States within their respective limits to the same tax that they may levy and collect on lands not subject to the provisions of such compact," reported:

That the first compact securing the exemption from taxation mentioned in the resolution was entered into between the State of Ohio and the United States upon the admission of that State into the Union. A similar stipulation has been entered into with each State since admitted into the Union in which the United States were possessed of public lands. At the time of making those contracts the vast quantities of uninhabited public lands were, and still continue to be, of great importance to the United States in respect both to the settlement of those lands and the revenue to be derived from the sale of them.

To afford every reasonable facility and encouragement calculated to effect these objects has been at all times the evident policy and interest of the government. The means adopted have been the sale of the public lands. To hold out every proper inducement to purchasers was the object of the United States in framing its land system, which, in all the subsequent legislation on that subject, has never been lost sight of. This exemption from taxation was no doubt intended to be an inducement to purchasers, and, at the same time, to secure to the government, to a certain extent, the payment of the purchase money by preventing any part of the means of the debtor from being drawn from him by taxation during the time given him to comply with his engagement to the government.

This arrangement with the States was, therefore, unquestionably politic, and has, without doubt, had its effect, among other causes, in advancing the settlement of the country. Under recent modifications, however, of the land system, this exemption from taxation has entirely ceased to operate as a security for the payment of the purchase money, and, in the opinion of the committee, has also ceased to be an inducement of any serious moment with the purchaser that would in any case be likely to determine him to purchase or deter him from doing so. Under the credit system, when the purchaser took upon himself a debt equal to all his means and ability to discharge during the term of credit given him, he might be deterred from entering into the contract with the government, if any portion of his resources were liable to be diverted into another channel. Since the abolition of credit, when the purchaser no longer anticipates his means, but pays when he purchases, it would seem that a liability to contribute, in common with his fellow-citizens, to the support of the government from which he receives the same common protection they enjoy, would not enter into his calculation in making his contract. Your committee know of no State in the Union in which a system of taxation prevails burdensome to its people, or that could for a moment deter any person intending to become an actual settler from purchasing land for the purpose of settlement. The committee, from the view they have taken of the object of the resolution, cannot see that the interest of the general government would be in any way injuriously affected by granting to the States the proposed authority to levy taxes upon all lands hereafter sold by the United States. The abolition of credit has rendered the exemption from taxation subsequent to the sale of the public land of little or no value to the general government, while its operation upon the States that are parties to the compact remains uninfluenced by this modification of the land system. The effect in those States where the public lands have been recently brought into market and meet with a rapid sale is to impose upon a part of the community, perhaps a minority, the burden incident to the maintenance and support of the government of the whole. The expense of every government must necessarily bear some proportion to its population, and the former has generally been found to keep pace in its increase with the increase of the latter. In most of the new States, with the greatest abundance of real estate, there is very little personal property, and that little requires to be fostered. The consequence of this has been, and must continue to be, that the revenue of their governments has been derived almost exclusively from land taxation. An immunity from taxation enjoyed by a large class of citizens will necessarily lead to one of two results: either to impose an undue burden of taxes upon a part of the community, or occasion the necessary revenue for the support of government to be anticipated by contracting a public debt to avoid this unequal burden, and in this way increase the tax of the purchaser of the public land so soon as his exemption terminates.

The State of Ohio furnishes a striking illustration of the operation of this compact, and of what will be its probable operation in Illinois, Missouri, and some of the other new States, for some years to come. For the first fifteen years after the admission of Ohio into the Union the population of that State more than doubled every five years; the consequence of which was, that during that time less than one-half of its people were obliged to bear the whole expense of the government. This is a state of things that ought not to exist without some good reason, and ought to terminate when the reason ceases. The committee, not being able to foresee that the interests of the United States will be likely to suffer any injury, and that an invidious inequality in the taxation of those States where large quantities of public lands may be sold in the course of a few years will be abolished by the adoption of the resolution, recommend it to the House accordingly for adoption.

APPLICATION OF INDIANA FOR RELIEF OF PURCHASERS AND FOR REDUCTION IN PRICE OF PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 14, 1825.

A JOINT RESOLUTION respecting purchasers of public lands.

Whereas many of the citizens of this State, purchasers of public lands, omitted to take advantage of the extended credit granted to them by acts of Congress under certain regulations—some being under a moral conviction that the earnings of honest labor would enable them to accomplish the original purchase, and others being ignorant of the requisition required, of applying to the register of their land district and filing an application under the law, to benefit by its enactments; whereas the honest purposes of many citizens have been frustrated by the increased depression of the staple productions of our soil, the scarcity of money, and the price of both real and personal property, and even the hope of others has darkened into despair by the authorized construction given to acts passed for their relief, which restricts all relinquishments received in payment to such certificates as were registered for extended credit; and whereas it cannot be the policy or the interest of the general government to exact a forfeiture of money for property which, in many cases, reverts, with improvements, without any wilful delinquency, and solely on account of paralyzed enterprise and general distress, but must rather be its aim and desire to grant equitable relief to all: Therefore—

Resolved, by the general assembly of the State of Indiana, That our senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives requested, to use their exertions to extend the salutary effects of laws heretofore passed for the relief of purchasers of public land to all holders of certificates who failed to file their application for extended credit, that they, or their legal representatives, shall hereafter be allowed to apply the instalments paid in the same manner and with the same privileges as they could now do if they had filed their application for credit with the register of their respective land districts.

Resolved, That his excellency the governor be, and he is hereby, requested to forward a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution to each of our senators and representatives in the Congress of the United States, as soon as convenient, with a request that they may present the same to the House of Representatives, of which they are members.

I, William W. Wick, secretary of state for the State aforesaid, certify the foregoing to be a correct and faithful copy of the original roll on file in this office. In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the State aforesaid, this 28th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1825.

[L. S.]

WM. W. WICK.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists, the general assembly of the State of Indiana, respectfully submit to the consideration of your honorable body the cases of many of our citizens whose lands were forfeited to the government prior to the passage of the several acts of Congress for the relief of purchasers of public lands. The several acts of indulgence passed by Congress within the last four years, whereby thousands of our citizens have been rescued from impending ruin, and a comfortable home secured for themselves and families, have not only accorded with a just and benevolent policy, but have elicited towards the general government the warmest gratitude of a great and rising community. So far as sacrifices made, hardships endured, and dangers encountered, constitute claims on the tenderness and forbearance of government, it is confidently believed that the early settlers and first purchasers of the public lands in our western wilderness present a more emphatic appeal to the liberality of government than the great majority of those who, at a later period, received its indulgence on a view of the several considerations which the history of our settlements renders familiar to many of your honorable body, and which cannot fail to strike the representatives of the people with their just force. Your memorialists are induced respectfully to suggest the expediency of permitting, by law, those individuals who, prior to the act of Congress for relief of purchasers of public lands passed in 1821, suffered a forfeiture of lands on which one or more payments had been made to apply the amount of their forfeitures in the purchase of other lands, confining them to the districts wherein the forfeitures accrued. In connexion with this subject your memorialists beg leave to introduce another suggestion of still greater importance to the interests of the State. They would respectfully submit the expediency of reducing the price of public lands in those districts where they have been offered for sale for ten or more years, and have not yet found purchasers.

In many of the oldest counties of this State there are extensive tracts of lands of an inferior quality, which it cannot be expected will find purchasers whilst they are held at the same prices for which lands of the best quality can be procured. These lands, if not brought into market by a reduction of the prices, will either remain in a wilderness state, or be deprived of all value by interlopers and trespassers, whose rude and transient settlements are a nuisance to society, and directly tend to the discouragement and suppression of all honest industry and enterprise. It is confidently believed that a course of policy that should favor the compactness of our settlements rather than their extension would be productive of the happiest effects. The natural curiosity and adventurous spirit of our citizens have hitherto prompted and will continue to invite large numbers to the extreme verge of civilization. It is the policy of enlightened legislation to curtail this unlimited range, and, by social allurements, to reclaim our wandering tribes to the blessings of humanity and refinement. This is alone to be effected by increasing and multiplying the means of education; and, to enable our citizens to enjoy these means in their full extent, the settlements of our country must become more compact. In a pecuniary point of view it is believed that the government would gain rather than lose by the measure proposed. If the price of inferior lands in the old districts continue the same, very few will be sold. It is not indulging a spirit of rash conjecture to say that future sales at the present prices will not more than defray the expenses of the officers in such districts; whereas, if the price is reduced to one-half or a third of the present standard, numerous sales will be effected, and the interest of the money accruing on the sales will insure a greater profit to the government than can reasonably be expected from adhering to the present order of things.

This reduction would furnish strong motives to many a parent to enlarge his domain in such manner as to provide for the settlement of his children around him. It would check that spirit of avarice which severs the dearest ties of blood and friendship in quest of remote wilds. It would foster the spirit of fellowship and kindred feeling by uniting in harmonious neighborhoods friends and kindred, and enable them to realize, in a much shorter time, the rich advantages and social enjoyments of our parent States. If the suggestion hazarded by the general assembly should be favorably received and acted upon, the tide of emigration may not move so rapidly, but it will never retrograde; for the loss of life and health, which is the frequent consequence of the exposures necessary in making new settlements, would seldom be witnessed, and the discouragements which these losses occasion would cease to retard the improvement of our country. By the adoption of the measure proposed government would be enabled in a few years to discontinue several land offices which must shortly become a burden; our State would derive the most sensible advantage from the superior compactness of its settlements; society would be ameliorated by the facilities afforded to education; and the Union at large receive a vast accession of moral and political strength. In offering the preceding suggestions to the consideration of your honorable body, the general assembly disavow and disclaim the slightest intentions of dictating a course of legislation which is safely confided to your superior wisdom. They, in common with their fellow-citizens, have largely experienced the munificent policy of the general government, and will be the last to distrust the equitable spirit by which the affairs of the Union are administered.

[1ST SESSION.]

APPLICATION OF MISSOURI IN FAVOR OF ACTUAL SETTLERS, AND FOR FIELD NOTES, PLATS, AND DESCRIPTIONS OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 14, 1825.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the legislature of the State of Missouri respectfully represents: That, notwithstanding the liberality of the general government, it is believed that there are many persons who had migrated to the then district of upper Louisiana, now State of Missouri, before the change of government, who were actually here on December 20, 1803; but, owing to the peculiar situation of the country then and their individual circumstances, the laws of Congress heretofore have not embraced their case. Those persons who had removed from other States expressly for the purpose of procuring lands whereon to settle their families, but finding that the article of provision was very scarce, in general the population small and scattering, and the savages, though professedly friendly, were so numerous, and frequently committing depredations on the stock of the inhabitants in such manner as to excite suspicion and occasion alarms, particularly among the women and children, in such manner as to prevent in some instances families from residing on the land selected for that purpose; while some were influenced, as above, to remain with or near their friends for the sake of sustenance and protection, others, and particularly mechanics, were obliged to betake themselves to villages for the same object, and not being able to see what would ultimately be requisite to entitle them to land have been entirely disappointed; whereas, if they had not been deterred from residing on the place of their choice at the time required by law, their claim would have been granted by the board of commissioners appointed for that purpose. Your memorialists, therefore, respectfully represent that in all cases where a notice has been filed, according to law, with the recorder of land titles, and where such persons or their legal representatives remain in the country, it would be an act of justice and liberal policy in your honorable body to provide further for claims of this description as you, in your wisdom, may deem reasonable and just.

Resolved, That the executive of this State be required to cause one copy of the foregoing memorial to be forwarded to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, and one to each of our senators and representatives in Congress.

H. S. GEYER,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
A. J. WILLIAMS,
President of the Senate pro tempore.

Approved January 26, 1825.

FREDERICK BATES.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The general assembly of the State of Missouri most respectfully represent to your honorable body that the people of this State labor under great inconvenience relative to their lands. At present there is but one office in the State from which full information can be obtained as to the precise boundaries of much of our land, and that office is not under the control of the State. It is true that at the several land offices in the State partial information may be obtained, but neither are these under the control of the State. Your memorialists fully believe that the prosperity of the Union is deeply connected with that of the individual States, and that the prosperity of this State would be greatly promoted by having, under the control of this State, a complete record or copy of the field notes, plats, and descriptions of all lands which have been surveyed in this State, and also of all the lands in the State which may hereafter be surveyed, as soon as may be convenient after such surveys are completed.

Such a record would greatly aid in collecting the revenue of the State, and would prevent much future litigation. Precision in our boundaries and clearness in our titles would induce emigration, and prosperity would ensue. But these desirable objects cannot be attained in any other way than from the liberality of the general government. Your memorialists believe that the expense which would accrue to the United States by the appointment of a few additional clerks for this purpose, who should, under the superintendence of the surveyor general of public lands in this State, make for this State such a record or copy, would be very inconsiderable, when viewed in connexion with the great good that would result to this State therefrom. Such record, when obtained, it is contemplated to file with the auditor of public accounts, and from thence to send unto each county in this State, to the recorder in such county, a complete record of all the lands within the limits of such county. Your memorialists moreover believe that full knowledge of the situation of all public lands being thus rendered more accessible to all persons, the sale of such land would be thereby promoted. All of which is submitted to the wisdom, discretion, and liberality of your honorable body, &c.

H. S. GEYER,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
B. H. REEVES,
President of the Senate.

Approved January 14, 1825.

FREDERICK BATES.

[The following letter was subsequently addressed to the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands of the House of Representatives on the subject of the foregoing memorial:]

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 30, 1828.

SIR: I return you the memorial of the State of Missouri on the subject of a record of lands in the State of Missouri.

It would unquestionably be a matter of great accommodation to the people of the State of Missouri to have copies of all records in relation to their lands diffused through the State; and I perceive no objection to their having them so diffused at their own expense. If the government undertake to incur the expense of furnishing a copy of the records of the surveyor's office to the State of Missouri, it will necessarily be compelled to extend the same advantage to all the States in which public lands have been sold.

With the view of permanently preserving the field notes and surveys, and to guard against accidents by increasing the number of these records, very substantial folio volumes were some time since procured by this office and forwarded to the surveyor general of St. Louis, with instructions to have all the field notes and surveys recorded in them, and as each volume was completed to return it to this office.

No progress has been made as yet in making these records. The present surveyor, Colonel McRee, having found the records of that office very much in arrear, has not had time, with the aid of the clerks allowed, to make out the records necessary for the use of his office and to attend to the current business; he has repeatedly applied for additional aid, but it has not been granted.

The regulation above referred to was a general one, but from a variety of causes no progress has been made in executing it, except in the State of Ohio. When these records shall have been completed in the offices of the surveyors respectively, it would be advisable that they be deposited either permanently with the executive of each State, or so long as it may be necessary for them to have copies made.

With great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

CLAIM OF THE MARQUIS DE MAISON ROUGE TO LAND IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 19, 1825.

Mr. BRENT, from the Select Committee, to whom was referred the consideration of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury relative to the claim of the representatives of the Marquis de Maison Rouge to a large tract of land situated in the parishes of Ouachita and Catahoula, in Louisiana, by a resolution of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of December 23, 1824, reported:

That on March 17, 1795, the governor of Louisiana entered into a contract with the Marquis de Maison Rouge, of which the following is a copy:

We, Francis Lewis Hector, Baron de Carondelet, knight of Malta, brigadier general of the royal armies of his Catholic Majesty, military and civil governor of the provinces of Louisiana and West

Florida; Don Francis Rendon, intendant of the army, and deputy superintendent of the royal domains in the said provinces; Don Joseph de Orue, knight of the royal and distinguished order of Charles the Third, principal accountant for the royal chests of this army, exercising the functions of fiscal of the royal domains, declare that we agree and contract with the Señor Marquis de Maison Rouge, an emigrant French knight, who has arrived in this capital from the United States, to propose to us to bring into these provinces thirty families, who are also emigrants, and who are to descend the Ohio for the purpose of forming an establishment with them on the lands bordering upon the Washita, designed principally for the culture of wheat and the erection of mills for manufacturing flour, under the following conditions:

1st. We offer, in the name of his Catholic Majesty, whom God preserve, to pay out of the royal treasury two hundred dollars to every family composed of two white persons fit for agriculture, or for the arts useful and necessary to this establishment, as house or ship carpenters, blacksmiths, and locksmiths; and four hundred to those having four laborers; and in the same way one hundred to those having no more than one useful laborer or artificer, as before described, with his family.

2d. At the same time we promise, under the auspices of our sovereign monarch, to assist them forward from New Madrid to Washita with a skilful guide, and the provisions necessary for them till their arrival at their place of destination.

3d. The expenses of transportation of their baggage and implements of labor, which shall come by sea to this capital, shall be paid on account of the royal domains, and they shall be taken on the same account from this place to the Washita, provided that the weight shall not exceed three thousand pounds for each family.

4th. There shall be granted to every family containing two white persons fit for agriculture ten arpents of land, extending back forty arpents, and increasing in the same proportion to those which shall contain a greater number of white cultivators.

5th. Lastly, it shall be permitted to the families to bring, or to cause to come with them, European servants, who shall bind themselves to their service for six or more years, under the express condition that, if they have families, they shall have a right, after their term of service is expired, to receive a grant of land proportioned in the same manner to their numbers. Thus we promise as we have here stated; and that it may come to the knowledge of those families which propose to transport themselves hither, we sign the present contract with the aforesaid Señor Marquis de Maison Rouge, to whom, that it may be made plain, a certified copy shall be furnished.

FRANCIS RENDON.
JOSEPH DE ORUE.
THE MARQUIS DE MAISON ROUGE.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17, 1795.

July 14, in the same year, this contract was approved by the King of Spain.

Having laid before the King what you have made known in your letter of the 25th of April last, No. 44, relative to the contract entered into with the Marquis of Maison Rouge, for the establishment on the Washita of the thirty families of farmers destined to cultivate wheat for the supply of these provinces, his Majesty, considering the advantages which it promises compared with the preceding, has been pleased to approve it in all its parts. By his royal direction I communicate it to you for your information.

God preserve you many years.

To the Intendant of Louisiana:

June 14, 1797, Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, certifies to have measured thirty superficial leagues for the said Marquis de Maison Rouge, as ordered by the governor general.

No. 1.

[Translation.]

Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, &c., certifies to have measured, in favor of Marquis de Maison Rouge, the several tracts of land represented in those parts of the plat shaded with vermilion, which may contain thirty superficial leagues, to wit: the tract No. 1, on the right bank of the Washita, to be taken five arpents below the mouth of the Bayou de la Cheniere au Toudre, and thence descending to the Bayou Calumet, with a corresponding depth, to complete one hundred and forty thousand superficial arpents; the tract marked No. 2, on the left bank of the same river, commencing two leagues below Fort Miro, and at the point called L'aïne, and extending one league below the Prairie de Lee, with a corresponding depth, to complete seventy thousand superficial arpents; the tract marked No. 3, to be taken in front of the Bayou Loutre, and thence on a line south 75° east, to the Bayou de Liar; which line to the Bayou de Liar, the Bayou Bartholemey, and the river Washita, are to include the tract No. 3; No. 4, on the right bank of Washita river, to be taken in front of the entry of Bayou Bartholemey; thence descending the river to Bayou la Loutre, with such depths as that the tracts Nos. 3 and 4 shall include the quantity of eight thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents, which, added to the first two tracts, makes a total superfice of two hundred and eight thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents, equal to the above said thirty leagues, at the rate of two thousand five hundred toises for the side of a league, the land measure in this province. Being well understood, that the land which may be included in the above, either by title in form or first decrees of concession, are not to be counted in computing the preceding thirty leagues; on the contrary, the Marquis de Maison Rouge promises to be of no detriment to the settlers occupying previously any part of the land, but will maintain and support them in their rights, in consideration that, if the said thirty leagues shall suffer any diminution on account of previous occupants, the Marquis de Maison Rouge has the right, and there will be no objection to his supplying the deficiency in any other part where the land is vacant. And that it may so appear I give this, by order of the governor general, Baron de Carondelet. All which I certify.

ANDRES LOPEZ ARMISTO.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20, 1797.

On August 5, 1803, Don Gilbert Leonard and Don Manuel Gonzales Armirez, Spanish officers, certified that the condition of the contract had been complied with.

No. 2.

Don Gilbert Leonard, treasurer of the army, exercising the functions of the royal accountant, and Don Manuel Gonzalez Armirez, exercising those of the treasurer, par interim, of the royal chests of this province of Louisiana:

We certify that the two foregoing copies are conformable to the originals which remain in the archives of the ministry of the royal domains under our charge, and that the contractor, the Marquis de Maison Rouge, complied punctually with the terms which he proposed in the said contract; and that this may be made manifest, conformably to the order above inserted of this intendancy general, we give the present in New Orleans, August 5, 1803.

GILBERT LEONARD.
MANUEL ARMIREZ.

Upon this evidence the land commissioners, acting under the act of Congress of March 3, 1807, by their report, placed this claim amongst a class of cases recommended for confirmation.

No. 16.

The undersigned commissioners have compared the documents, title filed in this claim, with the translation of them in pages 67, 68, and 69, of the appendix to the book entitled "Land Laws," &c., and find the said translation to be correct so far as it goes. The certificate, or proces verbal, which the surveyor general has annexed to his plat, not appearing in said book, a translation of that document, together with a copy of the plat, is transmitted for the further elucidation of the claim. No oral or other testimony has been adduced before the board to establish the occupancy of any part of these lands, or that there has been a compliance, upon the part of the grantee, with the conditions stipulated in the contract, except the certificate under date of August 5, 1803, signed by Gilbert Leonard and Manuel Armirez, to the translation of which, in page 69 of the appendix of said book, the commissioners beg leave to refer.

The undersigned have observed a remark in the 25th page of the introductory part of the book entitled "Land Laws," that no patent has issued on the claim under consideration. With great deference for that authority, the undersigned commissioners cannot but be of opinion that the instrument under date of June 20, 1797, is a patent (or what was usually, in Louisiana, denominated a title in form) transferring to the Marquis de Maison Rouge the title in as full and ample a manner as lands were usually granted by the Spanish government, subject, however, to the conditions stipulated in his contract with the government. The plat of survey above referred to will be found subjoined to this report.

All claims which did not exceed a league square were confirmed by act of Congress of April 29, 1816; and this being for a greater number of acres than are contained in a league square, was excluded from confirmation by said act, and is now presented for confirmation or rejection by Congress.

The confirmation of this claim is resisted by the government of the United States upon several grounds, amongst which are the following:

1. That the documents relied upon to establish the claim of the representatives of the Marquis de Maison Rouge to the thirty superficial leagues claimed, show that no contract or grant has ever been made to the Marquis de Maison Rouge in his own individual right, and that it was only a contract with him as agent of the persons he was to bring with him, by which the Spanish government bound itself to grant to each person, according to the conditions of the contract, a certain number of acres of land, and that De Maison Rouge did not acquire, by said contract, a right to dispose of said land by sale, deed, or last will and testament, or in any other way.

2. That the conditions of said contract were never fulfilled by the said Marquis de Maison Rouge.

3. That the said land never was surveyed, as certified, under the Spanish government; and if it were, that it was not done with a view to vest the Marquis de Maison Rouge with any right, individually, but for the sole purpose of designating a certain number of acres of land upon which the new settlers might establish themselves as they came in, and out of which the promised grants of 400 arpents each was to be made to each family containing two white persons, according to the fourth condition in said contract, and that said families not having settled the land as agreed, it remains as public land.

4. That the said land never was intended, nor never was located, as pretended by the representatives of De Maison Rouge, but was at a different place.

In support of these objections, and of others, to the confirmation of this claim, a reference has been made to the documents aforesaid, and to the depositions of sundry old inhabitants of Louisiana, and of Spanish officers, which were taken by proper authority, after due notice given, and which testimony is marked W, and accompanies this report; also to the certificate of Carlos Trudeau, translated by L. Derbigny April 17, 1804.

[Translation.]

I, Don Carlos Trudeau, surveyor royal and particular of the province of Louisiana, &c., do certify that the present draught contains 144 superficial leagues, each league forming a square, the sides of which are in length 2,500 toises, (a toise is six French feet long,) measure of the city of Paris, according to the custom and practice of this colony, the said land being situated in the post of Ouachita, about eighty leagues above the mouth of that river, falling into Red river, adjoining on the part of the southwest to the eastern shore of the river and Bayou Ouachita, Bartholemey, and Sicard, conformable to the red line which borders the said river and bayous, bounded on the south part by a line drawn from the south 75° east, about three leagues and one mile long: beginning from the shore C, of the Bayou Sicard, and continuing as far as the height of the junction A of the said Bayou Sicard with the Bayou Bartholemey; the said point A being as a basis on the line of measurement A B, of twelve leagues in length, parallel with the plane of Bayou Bartholemey, from the point A to the end of the said 12 leagues which terminates at point B, where is the mouth of the rivulet named Bayou Turniro; the lines D E and F G are parallel lines directed north 52° east, without minding the variation of the compass, which varies eight degrees to the northeast. In testimony, I deliver the present certificate, with the draught hereto affixed, for the use of the Baron de Bastrop, June 14, 1797. I, the surveyor, having signed the same, and recorded in the book A, No. 1, folio 38, department No. 922 of the surveys. I do certify the present copies to be conformable to the original which are lodged in the office under my care, to which I refer, and at the request of a party I deliver the present, same date as above.

CARLOS TRUDEAU, Surveyor.

I certify the above to be a true and faithful translation of the original certificate of survey written in the Spanish language, and to which is prefixed the plat of the land therein mentioned.

L. DERBIGNY, Interpreter to the Government.

NEW ORLEANS, April 17, 1804.

From a careful examination of the foregoing documents and testimony, the committee are of the opinion that the decision in the present claim depends entirely upon a question of law as to the title, and upon the examination of witnesses as to several important points to be ascertained; and that an investigation of the claim by Congress would not only be attended with great delay, but with so many difficulties, that justice, as well to the parties interested as to the government of the United States, requires a reference of the decision of this claim to the United States court for the western district of Louisiana, with an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States; and for that purpose report a bill.

CLAIM OF THE BARON DE BASTROP TO LAND IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 20, 1825.

Mr. BRENT, from the Select Committee to whom were referred, December 13, 1825, the petitions of the inhabitants of the county of Ouachita, in the State of Louisiana, and the owners of the land in the tract called "Bastrop's grant," in said county, together with the accompanying documents, reported:

That from the documents furnished, and from the title papers as published in the Land Laws of the United States, (of the authenticity of which they are unable to form any opinion,) it appears a petition was addressed to the governor general of Louisiana by De Bastrop, June 20, 1795, of which the following is a copy:

To the governor general:

The Baron de Bastrop, desirous of encouraging the population and cultivation of the Ouachita and its neighborhood, of passing into the United States to complete the plan of emigration which he has projected, and from thence to return with his family, makes known to your lordship that it is absolutely indispensable, on the part of the government, that a district be designated of about twelve leagues square, including the Bayou Liar and its vicinity, in which your petitioner may, without the least obstacle or delay, place the families he is about to bring in, on the express condition that concessions of land are to be made gratis, and under no title or pretext to exceed, at most, four hundred arpents square, with a view to prevent the introduction of negroes, and the making of indigo, which in that district will be entirely contrary and prejudicial to the cultivation of wheat, and will cause your petitioner irrecoverably to lose the expenses of his establishment. Your petitioner prays, also, that you will be pleased to grant him permission to export, for the Havana, the flour which may be manufactured at the mills on the Ouachita, without confining him to sell it, absolutely, in New Orleans and other posts in this province, unless it should be necessary for their subsistence, in which case they ought always to have the preference. It is also indispensable that the government should charge itself with the conducting and support of the families which the petitioner may introduce from the post of New Madrid to Ouachita, by furnishing them with some provisions for the subsistence of the first months, and assisting them to commence the sowing of their seed, granting to those inhabitants who are not Catholics the same liberty of conscience as is enjoyed by those of Baton Rouge, Natchez, and other districts of the province, and without fixing, on the part of the government, conclusively, the number of families which your petitioner is to introduce. The zeal which I feel for the prosperity and encouragement of the province, joined to a desire of securing tranquillity and quietude to that establishment by removing at once whatever obstacles might be opposed to those interesting objects, have induced me to represent to you what I have here done, hoping that you will recognize in these dispositions the best service of the King, and advancement of the province confided to your authority. New Orleans, June 20, 1795.

DE BASTROP.

Upon the 21st of June, 1795, an order was given upon said petition, of which the following is a copy:

NEW ORLEANS, June 21, 1795.

Seeing the advantages which will result from the establishment projected by Baron Bastrop, the commandant of Ouachita, Don John Fathiol, will designate twelve leagues square, half on the side of the Bayou Liar and half on the side opposite the Ouachita, for the purpose of placing there the families which the said baron may direct, it being understood that no greater concession of land is to be given to any one than four hundred square arpents at most, gratis, and free from all dues. With regard to the object of this establishment, it is to be for the cultivation of wheat alone. The exportation of the products of this province being free, the petitioner need not doubt that it will be allowed to him, for the flour which he may manufacture at the mills of the Ouachita, to the Havana and other places open to the free commerce of this province. The Government will charge itself with the conducting of the families from New Madrid to Ouachita, and will give them such provisions as may appear sufficient for their support during six months, and proportionably for their seeds. They shall not be molested in matters of religion, but the apostolical Roman Catholic worship shall alone be publicly permitted. The petitioner shall be allowed to bring in as many as five hundred families: provided that, after the lapse of three years, if the major part of the establishment shall not have been made good, the twelve leagues square he destined for those whom the petitioner may place there shall be occupied by the families who may first present themselves for that purpose.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET. [L. S.]

Registered: ANDREZ LOPEZ ARMISTO.

Upon the 20th of June, 1796, a decree was given by the same governor general, as follows:

The Baron de Carondelet, chevalier of the religion of St. John, marshal de camp of the royal armies, governor general, vice patron of the provinces of Louisiana, West Florida, and inspector of the troops, &c.: Whereas Baron Bastrop, in pursuance of his petition, dated 20th of June, of the year last past, and the decree of the 21st of the same month, has commenced the establishment of the Ouachita; that, for the fulfilment of the stipulation on the part of the government for avoiding, progressively, all obstacles, difficulties, and delays, and that the said baron might proceed, with every facility, in fixing the families which, to the number of five hundred, he was held to place or caused to be placed there, we have proceeded to designate the twelve leagues intended for the said establishment, in the terms, with the limits, metes, and bounds, and in the place marked, fixed, and defined by the figured plan and description affixed to the head of this instrument, verified by the surveyor general, Don Charles Laveau Trudeau, it having now appeared to us to be also most expedient for avoiding all contest and dispute; and approving them, as we do approve them, by virtue of the authority which the King has granted to us, we do destine and appropriate, in his royal name, the aforesaid twelve leagues, in order that the said Baron Bastrop may establish them in the manner and under the conditions expressed in said petition and decree. We give the present, signed with our hand, sealed with the seal of our arms, and countersigned by the underwritten honorary commissary of war and secretary for his Majesty for this commandancy general. New Orleans, June 20, 1796.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET. [L. S.]

ANDREZ LOPEZ ARMISTO.

Upon the 12th of June, 1797, De Bastrop presents another petition to the governor general, in the following words:

To the governor general:

Baron de Bastrop has the honor to make known to you that, it being his intention to establish in the Ouachita, it is expedient that you should grant to him a corresponding permission to erect there one or more mills, as the population may require, as also to shut up the Bayou de Liar, where he proposes to establish the said mills, with a dike in the place most convenient for his works; and as it appears necessary to prevent disputes in the progress of the affair, he begs also the grant along the Bayou Bartholemey, from its source to its mouth, of six toises on each bank, to construct upon them the mills and works which he may find necessary; and prohibiting every person from making upon said bayou any bridge, in order that its navigation may never be interrupted, as it ought at all times to remain free and unobstructed. This request, sir, will not appear exorbitant when you are pleased to observe that your petitioner, who will expend in these works twenty thousand dollars or more, will be exposed without these grants to lose all the fruits of his labors by the caprice or jealousy of any individual who, being established on this bayou, may cut off the water or obstruct the navigation, not to mention the loss which the province will sustain of the immense advantages to result from the useful project proposed for the encouragement of the agriculture and population of these parts. New Orleans, June 12, 1797.

DE BASTROP.

And upon the same day the governor general gave the grant, a copy of which follows:

New Orleans, June 12, 1797. Considering the advantages to the population on the Ouachita, and the province in general, to result from the encouragement of the cultivation of wheat and the construction of flour mills, which the petitioner proposes to make at his own expense, I grant him, in the name of his Majesty, and by virtue of the authorities which he has conferred upon me, liberty to shut the Bayou de Liar, on which he is about to establish his mills, with a dike at the place most proper for the carrying on of his works. I also grant him the exclusive enjoyment of six toises of ground on each side of the Bayou Bartholemey, from its source to its mouth, to enable him to construct the works and dams necessary for his mills, it being understood that by this grant it is not intended to prohibit the free navigation of the said bayou to the rest of the inhabitants, who shall be permitted to use the same, without, however, being permitted to throw across it any bridge, or to obstruct the navigation, which shall at all times remain free and open. Under the conditions here expressed, such mills as he may think proper to erect may be disposed of by the petitioner, together with the lands adjoining, as estates belonging entirely to him, in virtue of this decree, in relation to which the surveys are to be continued, and the commandant, Don John Fathiol, will verify and remit them to me, so that the person interested may obtain a corresponding title in form. It being a formal and express condition of this grant that at least one mill shall be constructed within two years, otherwise it is to remain null.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET. [L. S.]

Registered: ANDRE LOPEZ ARMISTO.

It also appears that a petition was made and decree granted, the same as the last mentioned, except that the petition asks for six toises of ground on each side of the Bayou de Liar, from its source to its mouth.

It also appears that, upon the 16th of June, 1797, De Bastrop made a contract with the Spanish government, as follows:

The Baron de Bastrop contracts with his Majesty to furnish, for the term of six months, rations to the families which he has latterly introduced at the post of the Ouachita, which are to be composed of twenty ounces of fresh bread, or an equivalent in flour, twelve ounces of fresh beef, or six of bacon, two ounces of fine menestra, or three of ordinary, and one-thousandth part of a celemín (about a peck) of salt, for which there is to be paid to him by the royal chests at the rate of a real and a half for each ration. For which purpose there shall be made out monthly a particular account, the truth and regularity of which shall be attested at foot by the commandant of that post. Under which conditions I oblige myself, with my person and estate, to the fulfilment of the present contract, subjecting myself in all things to the jurisdiction of this general intendancy.

In testimony of which, I sign it at New Orleans June 16, 1797.

BARON DE BASTROP.

And upon the same day the last contract was approved, as follows:

New Orleans, (date as above.) I approve this contract in the name of his Majesty, with the intervention of Señor Gilbert Leonard, principal contador of the army in those provinces, for its validity. Two certified copies are to be directed to the secretary, Juan Ventura Morales. With my intervention, Gilbert Leonard. Copy of the original, which remains in my keeping, and which I certify, and is taken out to be passed to the secretary of this general intendancy. New Orleans, ut supra.

GILBERT LEONARD.

NEW ORLEANS, June 18, 1797.

Upon the 18th of June, 1797, the governor general directed the following order and decree to "De Bastrop:"

Whereas the intendant, from the want of funds, has solicited the suspension of the last remittance of families until the decision of his Majesty, there ought to be no prejudice occasioned to you by the last paragraph of my decree, which expresses that if within three years the major part of the establishment shall not have been made good, such families as may first present themselves shall be located within the twelve leagues destined for the settlement which you have commenced; and this shall only have effect two years after the course of the contract shall have again commenced to be executed, and the determination of his Majesty shall have been made known to you. You will always remain persuaded that, on my part, I will observe religiously the engagement I have contracted—a principle which has constantly distinguished the Spanish nation.

God preserve you many years.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

BARON DE BASTROP.

The above statement contains all the title papers which have been presented, and which were before the land commissioners for the western district of the late territory of Orleans, who reported against the legal representatives of De Bastrop, or the right of De Bastrop to any part of the intended grant of twelve leagues square, as will be seen by their several reports as made and numbered in their report upon land claims in said western district, made to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States upon December 14, 1812.

The land commissioners of the United States having refused the confirmation of this claim as aforesaid, the owners now present themselves, and ask that Congress will confirm to them the aforesaid twelve leagues square, which they claim as deriving a legal title from De Bastrop.

From the evidence and documents which have been before the committee, it is proven that many persons were introduced under the contract of De Bastrop, but not to the number contracted for; and without touching the question as to the individual right of De Bastrop to the land, or of any person claiming under him, by purchase or otherwise, except those who came to Ouachita under the contract, the committee think that, in equity, the government of the United States ought to confirm to every person, or those claiming under them, who went to Ouachita under the contract with De Bastrop, the number of acres of land which the governor general of Louisiana agreed to give to each family or person according to said contract.

The government of the United States resists the confirmation of this claim to De Bastrop, or those claiming under him, by purchase or otherwise, for the following reasons, amongst others, viz:

1st. That the contract and grant, if any there was, were for the 500 families De Bastrop was to settle upon the lands, and not to De Bastrop in his individual right, so that he could sell or dispose of the same.

2d. That the conditions never were fulfilled.

3d. That the contract was revoked by the Spanish government.

4th. That the contract was never approved by the King of Spain.

5th. That the governor general had not the power of making such contract without the authority of the Spanish government.

6th. That if De Bastrop was entitled to any part of said land, that it could only be for the surplus, after the 500 families had taken, each family 400 arpents, according to said contract.

In support of these objections and others to the confirmation of this claim, or any part of it, to those who hold under De Bastrop in his individual rights, a reference has been made to the documents aforesaid.

From a careful examination of the foregoing documents and evidence, the committee are of the opinion that the decision in the present claim (as to the right of De Bastrop, or those who claim under him in his individual right) depends entirely upon a question of law, and upon the examination of many witnesses as to several important points; and that an examination of it by Congress would be attended with great delay and many difficulties, and that justice to the interested as well as to the government requires a reference of this particular point to the United States courts. The committee are also of opinion that, in case it should ultimately be decided that the said land belongs to the United States, it would be but fair and just to extend to all those who were settled upon the said land at the time the United States took possession of that part of the country the same provisions and privileges and donations as were granted to the actual settlers under the act of Congress of March 2, 1805, and the amendments thereto, as well as all other privileges extended to the inhabitants of Louisiana settled upon other public lands by any subsequent act of Congress, so as to place the settlers upon the said land upon an equality with the settlers upon other public lands.

To prevent further delay, and with a view of finally adjusting the claim upon what the committee consider to be fair and equitable principles, they report a bill.

APPLICATION OF ILLINOIS FOR A DONATION OF LAND FOR A CANAL IN THAT STATE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 20, 1825.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the general assembly of the State of Illinois respectfully represents: That the construction of a canal uniting the waters of Lake Michigan with the Illinois river will form an important addition to the great connecting links in the chain of internal navigation, which will effectually secure the indissoluble union of the confederate members of this great and powerful republic. By the completion of this great and valuable work, the connexion between the north and the south, the east and the west, would be strengthened by the ties of commercial intercourse and social neighborhood; and the Union of the States might bid defiance to internal commotion, sectional jealousy, and foreign invasion. All the States of the Union would then feel the most powerful motives to resist every attempt at dissolution. To effect so great and desirable an object your memorialists believe to be of sufficient importance to engage the attention and awaken the munificent patronage of a government whose principle of action is the promotion of the general welfare. Your memorialists are sensibly alive to the spirit of improvement that manifests itself in almost every section of our extensive country, and would fain lend a helping hand in so great and good a cause; their situation, however, forbids their doing much without the aid of the federal government, into whose treasury almost all the funds, whether brought hither by emigrants or earned by the industry of their citizens, are paid for the purchase of the public lands. While this state of things shall continue, and the money thus paid into the treasury of the Union is taken out of our State, our people will not be able to engage in the glorious work of improving our common country. Ought the people of this State to stand by with folded arms and behold the great work of internal improvement progress in other States without making an effort to improve their own condition, and at the same time advance the interests of our beloved country? A condition thus paralyzed is at war, not only with our interests, but with the best feelings of our hearts. Did this State possess the public domain lying within its bounds, as is the case with the older members of this confederacy, your memorialists would not appear before your honorable body to solicit aid in this important work. If, as your memorialists believe, the construction of this canal would be highly beneficial to the Union at large; if the receipts into the treasury of the United States would be augmented by the increased sales of public land; and if the interest of this State would be also advanced thereby, is it unreasonable to apply to a paternal government for assistance in the promotion of such beneficial ends? It is unnecessary for your memorialists to enlarge on the great advantages of this canal to the Union in the facilities to be afforded in the event of a war, either with the Indian tribes inhabiting our frontier or with the British nation. Your honorable body is aware that this State is situated on the borders of an Indian country, filled with numerous and powerful tribes of the sons of the forest. If our country should be again engaged in war, the saving of expense in the transportation of munitions of war would alone defray the expense of the contemplated canal, and justify the United States in making a liberal appropriation for its construction. Your memorialists do not, however, ask your honorable body to appropriate money out of the treasury to aid them in this work. They only ask for a tract of land through which the contemplated canal may pass, and which, for a series of years, will be wholly unproductive to the government, unless the canal shall be commenced under auspices favorable to its completion, in which event all the land in the vicinity would immediately become available to the United States. Your memorialists sincerely believe that a liberal appropriation of land for this object would, even in a pecuniary point of view, be of immense importance to the treasury of the Union. The public lands in the vicinity would not only sell, but at a considerable advance upon the minimum price. Should this opinion be correct, (and does not experience justify it?) the United States would be gainers by the proposed donation to the State. Your memorialists further state that at their last session they passed an act of incorporation upon very liberal terms, authorizing a company to construct the projected canal; but the remoteness of the country from the residence of capitalists has prevented them from engaging in the work. At their present session your memorialists have repealed the charter, and their only hope of soon beginning the work depends upon the liberality of your honorable body. Your memorialists have caused the route to be explored and estimates to be made of the probable expense of the work, from which it appears that the cost of constructing the canal will not be less than $600,000, and may possibly amount to $700,000.

To the end, therefore, that your memorialists may be enabled to commence and complete this great and useful work, we pray your honorable body to grant to this State the respective townships of land through which the contemplated canal may pass, the avails of which to be appropriated exclusively to the construction of said canal upon such terms and conditions as to your honorable body may seem proper.

No. 462.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN THE ST. HELENA DISTRICT, LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 28, 1825.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 28, 1825.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of the report of the register and receiver of the land office of the district of St. Helena, prepared in obedience to an act of Congress of May 26, 1824.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. JOHN C. CALHOUN, President of the Senate.

Register A contains complete Spanish patents, which we recommend for confirmation on the principle recognized by the acts of Congress of March 3, 1819, and May 8, 1822.

Register B, first class, contains incomplete titles derived from the Spanish authority, accompanied with such proof of settlement and cultivation as induces us to recommend them for confirmation to the same extent and under the same restraints that such claims have been confirmed by the former laws for adjusting similar claims in this district.

The second class on this register comprehends claims that have been sold for taxes, and the only titles the present claimants have to these lands are the collector's bills of sale or transfer. Many of these claims we believe to be as fairly entitled to confirmation as those on the first class; but the doubt with us is whether sales for taxes are valid until the claimant have a more valid title to the land.

There are on this register (first class) three claims, to wit: Henry Flower for eight hundred and eighty-six arpents; Luther L. Smith, for one hundred arpents; and Robert Young, for eight hundred and twenty arpents; all of which are in the same situation, being swamp land, and no part of it susceptible of either habitation or cultivation. This land was granted to the claimants, or those under whom they claim, for the purpose of getting timber, and the claimants have proved that they have regularly used the said tracts of land for that purpose since the time of their respective grants from the Spanish government; and we are of opinion that the use the claimants have made of these lands, (it being the only use of which they are susceptible,) although it amounts neither to habitation nor cultivation, may be fairly considered equal to either or both, and on this ground we recommend them for confirmation.

Register C contains British patents on which the claimants have not proven either habitation or cultivation. These we beg to leave to the consideration of Congress without any remarks.

Register D contains incomplete titles, which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought not to be confirmed, the claimants not having complied with the requisitions of the law as regards either habitation or cultivation.

Register E contains settlement claims on which satisfactory proof has been adduced of cultivation or habitation as early as is represented on the register opposite each claim. We therefore recommend them for confirmation.

LAND CLAIMS IN WEST FLORIDA.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 27, 1825.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 13th instant, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to communicate to the House any report he may have received from the receiver and register of the district of West Florida, under the provisions of an act of the last session of Congress entitled "An act to extend the time for the settlement of private land claims in the Territory of Florida," I have the honor to transmit a report herewith, signed by those officers, together with an explanatory letter which accompanied it, dated the 13th of July last. By the seventh section of the act the claimants described in it were allowed until the first of November to file their claims, but by the statement of the register and receiver it appears that none were expected to be filed after the date of their letter, and as no additional report has since arrived from them, it is inferred that such was the fact.

I have the honor to remain, with great respect, your obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

TALLAHASSEE, July 13, 1825.

SIR: In obedience to an act of Congress approved March 3, 1825, the undersigned have the honor to transmit herewith a report of their proceedings, in the shape of a general abstract, embracing all the claims in support of which any testimony has been exhibited, and upon which it became their duty to decide. It is a continuation of the abstract of the same description, marked N, (see No. 433, page —,) and forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury during the last session of Congress. The reasons upon which the present decisions have been made are to be found in the reports of the former board of commissioners upon abstracts to which the undersigned have referred, and now in the possession of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The undersigned have been induced to make their report thus early from a belief that the business of the board has been brought to a final close; that no additional claims will be filed, or further evidence exhibited to establish their validity. Notwithstanding the notice of the undersigned to claimants, published for three months past, no testimony has been adduced in favor of any claim except in an individual instance. The secretary completed the recording on the 9th of June, and the undersigned are of the opinion that no further duties will be required of the register and receiver under the act of Congress above cited. Should the contrary, however, prove to be the fact, the case or cases may be readily reported before the meeting of the next Congress.

With the highest respect and consideration, the undersigned remain your most obedient servants, SAMUEL R. OVERTON, Register.
R. K. CALL, Receiver.

Hon. SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, Washington city.

No. 2.

A gratuitous concession for a lot in the city of Pensacola, No. 253, 80 feet front by 166½ feet deep, issued by Intendant Morales, dated July 5, 1811, and built upon and enclosed from 1811 to 1812. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked D.

23. Francisco Balderas present claimant; Francisco Rodriguez original grantee. A gratuitous concession for the southern half of a lot in the city of Pensacola, No. 155, 86 feet 1½ inch, English measure, front by 80 feet, same measure, deep, issued by Intendant Morales, dated March 23, 1810, and built upon and enclosed in the same year. Confirmed as belonging to a class of claims marked D.

24. The heirs and legal representatives of Perina Masitte present claimants; Perina Masitte original claimant. No title papers filed in this case. The parol testimony shows that Perina Masitte obtained a grant of the Baron de Carondelet, in the year 1796, for a lot in the city of Pensacola, No. 93, 80 feet front by 170 feet deep; that it was built upon and enclosed within a year after the date of the grant, and occupied until 1803 or 1804. Recommended for confirmation.

25. Reuben Starke present claimant; Manuel Durante original claimant, as recited in an act of sale from Benito Gareza to Starke, duly authenticated, and dated July 6, 1818, for a lot in the city of Pensacola, No. 16, 80 feet front by 80 feet deep. The mesne conveyance from Gareza to Starke also recognizes the existence of edifices, &c., on the lot at the time of the transfer. Recommended for confirmation as belonging to class of claims marked E.

26. William King claims 640 acres in Escambia county, forming the suburbs of the city of Pensacola, and immediately contiguous to the two old forts, St. Michael and St. Bernard. He is proved to have been twenty-one years of age, the head of a family, and to have cleared and cultivated about four acres from the year 1818 to February 22, 1819, during which time he was a permanent resident of Pensacola; that between the years 1820 and 1821 three additional acres were cleared and enclosed, and a large two story framed house built thereon. This claim was reported as rejected at the last session of Congress, amongst the Spanish claims marked G, and is now recommended for confirmation under the first class of donation claims, marked H. All which is respectfully submitted.

SALE OF THE MORAVIAN LANDS IN OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 2, 1826.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 2, 1826.

SIR: I enclose you a list of the lots of land ceded by the Society of the United Brethren to the United States, (see act of May 26, 1824,) and which have been valued at more than $1 25 per acre. These lands have been improved, and the improvements daily deteriorating; they are subject to a State tax, and having been subject to entry for more than twelve months at the price at which they were valued, I think it probable that they will not sell for their appraised value, and that it is expedient to offer them at public sale in the same manner as other public lands; for which purpose I enclose you a copy of a bill.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

No. 1.

To the commissioners of land claims at Pensacola:

The memorial of William Ellis, of Gadsden county, Territory of Florida, humbly showeth: That your memorialist emigrated from McIntosh county, in the State of Georgia, and arrived in this country early in the spring of 1820; that your memorialist made a crop on the Apalachicola river that and the succeeding year; that your memorialist, in 1822, improved on the waters of Ocklockney, in said county, and has continued to improve there to this present day. Your memorialist, therefore, claims a right to the first improvement made on the Apalachicola prior to July 17, 1821, or the improvement near the Ocklockney river, where he now resides with a large family.

Your memorialist begs leave to refer you to the annexed proof of the facts which he now asserts, and that you will be pleased to take his case into your serious consideration, and grant him such relief as you shall deem meet, as it is evident your memorialist built, planted, and cultivated the soil in Gadsden county within the time limited by the act of May 24, 1824; and your petitioner will ever pray, &c.

WILLIAM ELLIS.

OCKLOCKNEY SETTLEMENT, July 12, 1824.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, Gadsden County:

This day personally appeared before me, Michael Harvey, a justice of the peace for the county aforesaid, John Collins and William Heaton Ellis, residents of the county aforesaid, and, being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists, depose and say: That they have perused and examined the within petition or memorial of William Ellis, and that the contents of the same are just and true to the best of their knowledge and belief.

To the commissioners of land claims at Pensacola:

The memorial of John Collins, of Gadsden county, humbly showeth: That your memorialist arrived in this country in the month of April, 1820, and made a crop on the river Apalachicola that year; that your memorialist, wishing to remove to a more convenient situation, improved, in the fall of 1823, a tract of land of upwards of twenty acres on the waters of Rocky Comfort creek, a branch of Ocklockney river, on which he built a temporary cabin; that your memorialist was prevented from the further improvement of said tract on being informed that the aforesaid tract was included in the reserve made to Neamatla, the principal chief of the Seminole Indians; that your memorialist came into this country for the purpose of actual settlement, and would have done so if it was not for the unsettled state of the Indians at the time of his first arrival in the country, as will more fully appear by the evidence produced herewith. Your memorialist therefore prays you will be pleased to take his case into your consideration, as it will fully appear that your memorialist was an actual settler in the country prior to July 17, 1821; and your petitioner will pray, &c.

To the commissioners of land claims, Tallahassee:

The petition of Henry Yonge, of Gadsden county, humbly showeth: That, in June, 1819, he visited this Territory for the purpose of exploring it and locating a situation for cultivation; that he selected a place on the eastern side of the Apalachicola river, and the following year, say 1820, actually commenced a settlement; that, having persevered for two years under every disadvantage attendant on first settlers in new countries, from the loss of crops by freshets, and slaves by the unhealthiness of the situation, he was compelled to remove to his present residence in Gadsden county, thereby adding to his losses two years' labor, in improvements, of upwards of twenty negroes.

Your petitioner, under all these losses, wishing to avail himself of the provisions of an act of Congress dated May 26, 1824, granting donations to certain settlers in Florida, submits to the commissioners the propriety of his claim under said act. And your petitioner will ever pray, &c.

The heirs of John Tanner, late a citizen of West Florida, petition for a tract of land of six hundred and forty acres, situated on the east bank of Apalachicola river, in the Territory of Florida, founded upon habitation and cultivation prior to July 17, 1821.

JOHN M. POPE, Agent.

The deposition of John M. Pope, taken in the case of the heirs of John Tanner, late a citizen of the Territory of Florida, and claimant under the donation act of Congress of May 26, 1824:

John M. Pope being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that the said John Tanner, in the month of November, 1820, made a settlement on the east side of Apalachicola river, in the Territory of Florida; that he cleared and improved land and built houses, and that he was, on July 17, 1821, actually an inhabitant and cultivator of that land, and that he was at that time the head of a family and over 21 years of age.

No. 7.

To the commissioners of land claims, Tallahassee:

The petition of John Carnochan, of Gadsden county, humbly sheweth: That in the month of April, one thousand eight hundred and twenty, he removed from Georgia some negroes into this Territory, and made a settlement on the east side of the Apalachicola river, where the said slaves planted and made a crop that year and every season since; that your petitioner arrived on the above place in the month of September of said year, 1820, and has since then expended and laid out a great deal of money and labor thereon, clearing large fields, being the first person who introduced the long staple cotton and sugar cane into West Florida, cultivating the same, making improvements, erecting sugar-mill works, copper or sugar boilers, the only apparatus of the kind in all Western Florida. Your petitioner would humbly represent that, from the inundations of said river, the disturbed state of the Indians for years, the price of provisions and other supplies of all kinds, the numerous difficulties attending settling any new country, making roads, &c., &c., a large and valuable gang of slaves have not for the four years of 1820, 1821, 1822, 1823, paid their own and plantation expenses. Your petitioner would wish to avail himself of the provisions of the act of Congress dated May 26, 1824, granting donations or priviléges to certain settlers in Florida, submits to the commissioners the propriety of claiming such rights as may accrue therefrom; and further solicits such relief from the said commissioners as it may be in their power to grant him; and your petitioner will, as in duty bound, ever pray, &c.

JOHN CARNOCCHAN.

TALLAHASSEE, Leon County, October 4, 1825.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, Gadsden County:

This day appeared before me, Jonathan Robinson, judge of the county court, Edmund Doyle, of said county, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that Mr. John Carnochan, also of said county, sent an overseer and number of slaves from the State of Georgia into this Territory, who settled on the east side of Apalachicola river in the month of April 1820, where they planted and made a crop that season and every year since; and that the said John Carnochan arrived himself at the place aforesaid in the month of September of same year, 1820; and this deponent further declares that the said John Carnochan and his before-named slaves have, there, on said river, in this Territory, made valuable buildings and improvements, and have cleared and cultivated large fields of the Sea Island or black seed cotton and the sugar cane, amounting to about fifty acres; and was the first person who introduced these two valuable staples into this quarter of the Territory, at considerable expense, and is now, at this very time, erecting a valuable sugar-mill and works, with three large boilers of copper, to grind his crop of sugar cane made there this year. The said mill and works this deponent believes to be the first sugar apparatus erected in the western part of this Territory.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, Jackson County:

Personally came before me Asbury Bush, who, being duly sworn to state what he knew concerning John W. Bush making a settlement on the valley east of John Bush, states that said John W. Bush commenced working at said place in 1819; took sick and came to his (said deponent's) father's; returned in 1820, and commenced working on said place again, and lived there ever since, and ever since 1820 has continued to cultivate said land to the best of his (said deponent's) knowledge; he hired F. Johnson to assist him in working on said premises in 1819, and John Menable to assist him in working on said premises in 1820, at the fall of which year John W. Bush and John Bush joined in farming; and that said John W. Bush has lived ever since on the above-described premises.

Bush settled a tract of land in Holmes' valley, Walton county, Territory of Florida, on the east side of a tract cultivated by this deponent, which the said John W. I hereby certify that J. W. Bush came to school to me in the summer of 1822; that he, the said J. W. Bush, had never been the head of a family, but lived with his father, and in 1823 he sued his father as he told me, for his wages, he having notes of hand of his father—each note I think was for $19 and $20—to a large amount; he sued his father before Justice W. Lewis, obtained judgment, &c., and had his father's negroes and other property sold, which is on Squire Lewis' docket book; and said J. W. Bush purchased in his father's property, and, from every appearance, I don't think there could have been any crop made in 1821 by Bush; and the cause said J. W. Bush told me he sued his father for his wages from the time he left Georgia.

Scurlock's renting of said land of John Innerarity, the said Presley makes the following statement: That said Eli Scurlock did occupy and cultivate a certain tract of land in the valley as above stated; that he had a considerable quantity of corn and Irish potatoes in cultivation; and that I saw a quantity of the potatoes after they were dug; and that said Eli lived there and cultivated in the year eighteen hundred and twenty; and that said Eli never rented said land of Innerarity, to the best of my knowledge, nor of any other person; and that I, said P. Scurlock, rented said land of said Innerarity, became dissatisfied, kept on up to Chipola, there made a crop in the said year 1820; the said Eli was twenty-one years of age at the time, viz: July 17, 1821, and was the head of a family.

Personally came before me Jefferson Scurlock, who, being duly sworn to state what he knew with regard to Eli Scurlock's cultivating and inhabiting a certain tract of land on the valley known by the name of the Big Field, whereon Wheriot Lewis now lives, which said place said Eli did cultivate and inhabit in the year eighteen hundred and twenty, by planting corn and potatoes; and that I saw a quantity of potatoes dug out of said plantation, and eat a part of them; to the best of my knowledge and belief he never rented said land of John Innerarity, nor any other person. My father, Presley Scurlock, rented said land of Innerarity, but did not stay to make a crop, but moved on to Chipola, and there made a crop in the year 1820.

COMPENSATION FOR AN INDIAN RESERVATION SOLD BY THE UNITED STATES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 6, 1826.

Mr. COCKE, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom were referred the petition and documents of James Wolcott and Mary, his wife, of the State of Ohio, submitted the following report:

That, by a treaty held at St. Mary's, in the State of Ohio, October 6, 1818, between the United States and the Miami nation of Indians, a section of land lying at the mouth of Stony creek, on the southeast side of the Wabash river, in the State of Indiana, was reserved to Mary Wells, a half-blooded Miami Indian, daughter of the late Captain William Wells. That the said Mary has since intermarried with James Wolcott, of the State of Ohio, who unites with her in the petition aforesaid.

It appears, from the depositions of several respectable witnesses, that said section of land is of the first quality in point of fertility of soil, and possesses superior water privileges for mills and machinery of every description, and it also embraces a valuable coal mine. It further appears that upwards of two hundred acres of said land, including the most valuable part, and water privileges, was, in the month of December, 1824, by mistake of the officers of the government of the United States, sold at the land office at Crawfordsville, and State of Indiana. That the purchasers have erected a mill and made other valuable improvements on said land. Several respectable witnesses have testified to the value of said section of land, in a state of nature, all of whom estimate it to be worth at least three dollars per acre. The petitioners being willing to execute a conveyance to the United States for the entire section, on their receiving its value, without regard to the improvements, your committee conceive it would not only be good policy, but an act of justice on the part of government, to grant the prayer of the petitioners; they therefore report a bill allowing them three dollars per acre.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 28, 1825.

SIR: Agreeably to your request, I enclose a plat of the survey of the reserve of 640 acres, for Mary Wells, exhibiting the tracts that have been sold, when, and to whom, and for what price. It is estimated that about 190 acres of her reserve have been sold by the United States.

I also enclose a copy of a letter from Mr. Tiffin, explanatory of the causes that delayed the surveying of this reserve.

With very great respect, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Hon. WILLIAM MCLEAN, House of Representatives.

SURVEYOR GENERAL'S OFFICE, Chillicothe, April 26, 1825.

SIR: I have this morning received a letter from Mr. Dunn, register of the land office at Crawfordsville, Indiana, dated on the 1st instant, of which the following is a copy:

"Your letter of the 14th of March, and plat of four sections at the mouth of Stony reek, including Mary Wells' reserve, has been received. You will find, by referring to my return for the 4th quarter of 1824, that her reserve includes a part of five eighty-acre lots, sold at the public sale of the public lands in December last."

This is a circumstance much to be regretted, but which has not grown out of any negligence on my part, or of any of my deputies. In 1819 I despatched Mr. Joseph S. Allen, one of my deputies, for the express purpose of laying off and surveying the several Indian reservations in the State of Indiana, according to the treaties of St. Mary's, in October, 1818. Mr. Allen, by my directions, reported himself to the Indian agent at Fort Wayne, (the late Dr. Turner,) and called on him for the necessary information respecting the situation of the various reserves, and to obtain of him the necessary guides, interpreters, &c., to accompany him. This was, in part, attended to by the Indian agent; but with all the information Mr. Allen could obtain, and all the exertions he could use, he was unable to find the situation of several of these reserves. Mr. Allen reported to me that because the Indians would not permit the survey of the section reserved (on the northwest side of the Wabash, at the mouth of Fork creek) to Ann Turner, the wife of Doctor Turner, the doctor forbade the survey of the section reserved to Mary Wells, who was his wife's sister, and would give no information as to where it was situated.

After Mr. Allen's abortive attempt to complete the survey of the Indian reservations, I sent out successively, and at different periods, Mr. Bently, Mr. Kellogg, and Captain Riley, beside specially instructing my deputies, who were employed in subdividing the townships, to survey any Indian reservations which, upon inquiry, they might find to be situated within their districts.

But with all these precautions, the reserve of Mary Wells and that at the mouth of Atchepongquame creek, on Salamarie river, remained unfound and unsurveyed. The present worthy agent at Fort Wayne, (General Tipton,) by his persevering exertions, has lately been able to find out and cause to be surveyed these two last named reserves.

I submit this statement in explanation of the cause of the delay in surveying the reserve of Mary Wells, which, you will perceive, was not surveyed until subsequent to the sale of part of the land on which it has been located, that such measures in relation to the case may be adopted by the government as may seem most proper.

I am, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

EDWARD TIFFIN.

GEORGE GRAHAM, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office, Washington.

Accompanying the original documents is a plat of the survey of Mary Wells' reserve.

The tracts colored blue have been sold by the United States, viz:

The E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of NE. $\frac{1}{4}$ 29, containing 80 acres, sold December 21, 1824, for \$100, to H. Robinson.

The W. $\frac{1}{2}$ of NE. $\frac{1}{4}$ 29, containing 80 acres, sold December 23, 1824, for \$100, to J. Clark.

The E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of NW. $\frac{1}{4}$ 29, containing 80 acres, sold December 23, 1824, for \$100, to J. Clark.

The E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of SE. $\frac{1}{4}$ 29, containing 80 acres, sold January 10, 1825, for \$100, to B. D. Angel.

The W. $\frac{1}{2}$ of SW. $\frac{1}{4}$ 29, containing 80 acres, sold December 21, 1824, for \$100, to H. Manary.

The E. $\frac{1}{2}$ of SE. $\frac{1}{4}$ 30, containing 80 acres, sold December 21, 1824, for \$100, to D. Baum.

The W. $\frac{1}{2}$ of SE. $\frac{1}{4}$ 30, containing 80 acres, sold December 21, 1824, for \$100, to D. Baum.

The W. $\frac{1}{2}$ of NW. $\frac{1}{4}$ 32, containing 80 acres, sold December 21, 1824, for \$100, to D. Baum.

Of the above sales about 190 acres are included within the lines of the reserve of 640 acres for Mary Wells.

LAND CLAIMS IN EAST AND WEST FLORIDA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 6, 1826.

Mr. Scott, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom were referred the resolution in reference to, and the reports of the boards of commissioners appointed to ascertain the titles and claims to lands in the Territory of Florida, reported:

That they have examined the reports of the boards of commissioners both of East and West Florida. As no satisfactory returns have been made by the board in East Florida, nor any good reason furnished for the delay, the committee deem it improper now to act in reference to those claims. If a report is early made, the whole of the claims in that district may be embraced in one general law; and if none is made, perhaps some other mode of settling the unfinished business in that district had better be resorted to.

The committee have looked carefully into the reports of the board of commissioners in West Florida, and find that they have performed the duties assigned them by the several acts of Congress with great care, neatness, and ability. The claims are all properly classed, and contained in general opinions and special abstracts, setting each class out in the most perspicuous manner, accompanied by the reasons for the confirmation or rejection, with an able exposition of national law, Spanish jurisprudence, and the rules, regulations, and usages on which the claims are founded. A few titles remain unsettled, recommended by the commissioners as equitable and just, and which, by law, they had not the power to confirm. In the opinion of the committee, ample justice has been done to the respective claimants, while, by the labor and diligence of the commissioners, the public interest has been zealously guarded, and all attempts at fraud and forgery detected and exposed. A part of the reports in question was made after the time limited by law for the operations of the board had expired; but as the commissioners, who knew the business was unfinished, had every reason to believe they would be continued, and were compelled to remain at their post, in possession of the papers and records of the office, subject to the order of the government; and as they employed that time in advancing the interest of the claimants and the country, the committee are of opinion that their acts ought to be recognized, and they and their secretary compensated therefor.

The committee therefore report a bill to confirm the commissioners' reports, to legalize the acts done by them after their time of service had expired, to compensate them and their secretary for their services, and to point out a mode to adjust those claims on which the commissioners had not authority to decide.

19TH CONGRESS.]No. 468.[1ST SESSION.

LAND IN LIEU OF CLAIM COVERED BY INDIAN RESERVATION.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 10, 1826.

Mr. CAMPBELL, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom was recommitted the bill for the relief of William Hambly and Edmund Doyle, reported:

It has been suggested to the committee that this case presents two questions for their investigation: 1. Ought Hambly, who has for many years resided among the Creek Indians, to profit by the act of Congress of May 26, 1824? 2. May not the Indian chiefs, whose reservations included the petitioners' improvements, have left the country, and thereby occasioned a vacancy on which their original claims may be confirmed?

In replying to the first question, it is proper to observe there is no proof to justify the conclusion that a difference ought to be made between Hambly and any other citizen whose claim for a donation received the favorable consideration of the board. Whether he actually inhabited and cultivated the land up till the date of the treaty with the Florida Indians, or until the time of exhibiting his proofs, does not appear. One of his witnesses testified before the commissioners that he was taken prisoner by the Indians in 1819. Another swears to his "habitation and cultivation" in the fall of 1821. Upon advertizing to the "Register," or "Blue Book," lately furnished the members, it will be seen William Hambly, presumed to be the petitioner of that name, is an interpreter stationed at Fort Mitchell, in East Florida, with a salary of $400. To be entitled to the benefit of the law to which reference has been made, the claimant was required to prove himself the head of a family, of the age of twenty-one years, and that he inhabited and cultivated the land which he solicited as a donation on the 22d of February, in the year 1819. All this Hambly did, and it appears too late now to demand additional proof. In this statute there is nothing novel or peculiar in dispensing with evidence of a continued habitation and cultivation. The phraseology of many of the acts which obtained their origin in the cession of Louisiana is precisely similar. A donation was granted to those who inhabited and cultivated a tract of land December 20, 1803, the day on which the surrender of the country took place under the treaty.

In responding to the second question, the committee will say they are not informed that the chiefs, or any of them, have abandoned their reservations; nor is it known to them within whose limits the petitioners' improvements fall. The treaty with the Florida Indians bears date September 18, 1823, and was ratified the 2d of January following. To the clauses making reservations is appended the following declaration: "The United States promise to guaranty the peaceable possession of the reservation, as defined, to the aforesaid chiefs and their descendants only, so long as they shall continue to occupy, improve, or cultivate the same; but, in the event of the abandonment of all, or either of the reservations, by the chief or chiefs to whom they have been allotted, the reservations so abandoned shall revert to the United States." It appears to the committee that, as so short a period has elapsed since the ratification of the treaty, the presumption is, no abandonment has taken place. It is hardly credible that improved lands, such as the petitioners resided on, would be so soon forsaken; but if they have, should the bill pass, the government will lose nothing, as it is believed the lands from which they have been removed are equal to any which may be acquired under the bill.

As the committee discover no reason to withhold the relief solicited, they recommend the passage of the bill.

LAND CLAIM IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 10, 1826.

Mr. CAMPBELL, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of the heirs of Louis de la Houssaye, deceased, reported:

Le Peltier de la Houssaye, Chevalier de la Houssaye, and Octave de la Houssaye, for themselves and the other heirs and legal representatives of Louis de la Houssaye, deceased, residents of the county of Attakapas, in the State of Louisiana, represent that, some time about the year 1813, Levin Wailes, register of the land office at Opelousas, and Louis Chacheré, sworn interpreter to the board of commissioners, came to the house of the said decedent, who was an old and infirm man, for the purpose of taking his deposition, and who then delivered to the said register a complete grant to him from the Spanish government for one league of land fronting upon each side of the Bayou Cailloux, of the ordinary depth; that the said register promised to record the said grant for confirmation; that soon after their father died; that upon inquiry at the land office it was ascertained that the register had not only neglected to record the grant as he had promised, but had actually lost or mislaid it, so that it could not be regained; that in consequence of his negligence their title to the said land has not been confirmed. Wherefore they solicit the passage of an act for their relief.

The proof exhibited in support of this claim is as follows: Louis Chacheré swears that he was present at the house of Louis de la Houssaye with Levin Wailes, the register, for the purpose of taking the said De la Houssaye's deposition in reference to a claim entered for confirmation by the late André Martin; that De la Houssaye exhibited a concession of the Spanish government, granting to him one league of land fronting on each side of the Bayou Cailloux, which concession he handed to the register for the purpose of entering the same before the board. The affiant thinks the concession was signed by Governor Galvez, and was a complete grant; he does not recollect at what time this instrument was handed to the register. Valery Martin swears he was present at the house of De la Houssaye at the time alluded to by Chacheré, but does not recollect whether the concession was handed to the register or not.

The committee do not find this case free from difficulty. The petitioners claim under a complete Spanish title, which has been lost in the hands of a United States officer, whose duty it was to admit it to record. C. Pellerin, whose testimony is strongest as to the character of the grant, swears "that Mr. De la Houssaye took possession of the land more than thirty years ago, and has always been in possession of the same, and enjoyed it as his property to the present day, and that his family is now in possession of it." He does not say the possession was actual, or such a one as would be produced by habitation and cultivation.

The opinions of men are so variant as to what constitutes a complete Spanish grant that it seems to the committee some doubt may rest on that of Mr. Pellerin. He may, in his first affidavit, allude merely to an order of survey. He says he went upon the land and located it and took possession. The fair deduction is that he acted as Mr. De la Houssaye's agent in having the land surveyed, which was an act preliminary to that of obtaining a perfect title. It was but rarely the case that a patent was given for land prior to the location. Upon what condition this grant was made does not appear.

As the claim is for a large tract of land, and the case susceptible of more particular and pointed proof, the committee recommend that they be discharged from the further consideration of the petition and documents, and that they be laid on the table.

Personally appeared before me, a justice of the peace of St. Martin, Chatillon Pellerin, aged sixty-three years, who, being sworn, says that he knows the land of the heirs of Louis de la Houssaye for more than thirty years as the property of Mr. De la Houssaye, and in his possession; that he frequently saw the grant and complete concession for the same land on Bayou Cailloux, as stated in his former deposition; that he saw the land surveyed and measured under the Spanish government; that he is well acquainted with Spanish titles, and that the title of Mr. De la Houssaye was a true and genuine Spanish complete grant, and that Mr. De la Houssaye took possession of the same more than thirty years ago, and has always been in possession of the same, and enjoyed it as his property to the present day, and that his family is now in possession of it.

Mr. Louis de Blanc, an old inhabitant, and commandant under the Spanish government, says that he has a perfect knowledge that, under the Spanish government, in the time that he was commandant, a tract of land of one league in front, upon both sides of the Bayou Cailloux, or Grand Cailloux, was always considered by the Spanish government as the property of deceased Mr. Louis de la Houssaye, and that it was always reputed to be his land during the Spanish government.

Mr. Nicholas Chatillon Pellerin, an old inhabitant, says that, under the Spanish government, it was always known and considered that the deceased Louis de la Houssaye owned a tract of land upon the Grand Cailloux, of a league in front, upon both sides of the said bayou; that he has seen and read the concession from the Spanish government to Louis de la Houssaye; that it was signed by Governor Galvez; that it was for a league front on both sides of the bayou; that he had the said grant in his possession, and was sent by Mr. De la Houssaye to take possession of said land for him; that he went upon said land and located it and took possession; that it has always been considered as his property.

Mr. John B. Mr. Hubert Pellerin, an old inhabitant, says that he has a perfect knowledge that, under the Spanish government, Mr. Louis de la Houssaye owned the land upon Grand Cailloux bayou; that the land was of great extent; it has always been considered by every person as his land; that this deponent was sent by Mr. De la Houssaye upon the land itself, and that he visited the spot where the grant was laid.

I certify that I know the several persons whose depositions are given to establish Mr. De la Houssaye's claim to the land upon Grand Cailloux—they are of the first families in Louisiana, and several of them filled high and honorable stations under the Spanish government. Their testimony is entitled to full credit and faith. Witness, March 29, 1824.

WM. L. BRENT, of Louisiana.

I further certify that I have always understood that said land, claimed by the Messrs. De la Houssaye, has always been in their possession and in the possession of their father, in virtue of a grant from the Spanish government from before the change of government; and they are in possession of the same at this time, and have been, to my knowledge, for some time; and, I believe, have always possessed it since they owned it.

19TH CONGRESS.]No. 470.[1ST SESSION.

QUANTITY OF LAND SURVEYED AND SUBJECT TO SALE, THE QUANTITY SOLD, AND THE QUANTITY REMAINING UNSOLD.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 11, 1826.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 9, 1826.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the Senate of the 27th of last month, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to lay before the Senate a statement showing the quantity of public lands originally subject to sale that has been surveyed, and the quantity thereof, including relinquished lands, that remains unsold in each of the land districts, I have the honor to transmit herewith a report and statement (marked A) from the Commissioner of the General Land Office containing the information desired.

I have the honor to remain, with the highest respect, your obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

The Hon. the PRESIDENT of the Senate.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 5, 1826.

SIR: In compliance with a resolution of the Senate of the United States bearing date December 27, 1825, in the following words: Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to lay before the Senate a statement showing the quantity of public lands originally subject to sale that has been surveyed, and the quantity thereof, including the relinquished lands, that remains unsold in each of the land districts," which resolution was referred to this office, I have the honor to enclose you the statement marked A. The first column in that statement shows the quantity of land actually surveyed and subject to be sold by the United States in each land district, agreeably to the present limits of the respective districts.

The second column shows the quantity of land, after deducting those relinquished and reverted, which has been sold at the respective land offices; but, as the land offices have in a great number of instances been divided and altered as to limits, the amount of land sold at each land office does not correspond with the amount of land sold in the land district in which the offices are now situated. The third column, therefore, which is formed by deducting the amounts stated in the second from those of the first column, does not exhibit the quantity of land which remains unsold in each land district as they now exist, and as the terms of the resolution require. It exhibits the quantities, in detail, in all cases where the land district has not been altered; in all those cases where the land district has been divided it exhibits aggregate quantities.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Hon. RICHARD RUSH, Secretary of the Treasury.

DISPOSAL OF LANDS SUBJECT TO INUNDATION.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 11, 1826.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the resolution directing them to "inquire into the expediency of providing by law for disposal of such portions of the public lands as have not been surveyed and prepared for sale in consequence of their liability to periodical inundations," reported:

That no case has been presented to them of the character alluded to in the resolution; nor has the attention of the committee been directed to any particular portion of the country where such provisions would be necessary. The United States have already surveyed and prepared for sale such immense quantities of land in every State and Territory of the Union where public lands are situated, that the committee believe that, were the lands contemplated in the resolution ordered to be prepared for market, but little or any would be purchased. Agriculturists are not disposed to purchase lands covered with water, and incur the expense of draining it before it can be rendered useful and profitable, when for the same or perhaps a less price they can procure high and healthy situations, which, with but little trouble and less expense, they can immediately render productive.

The committee therefore submit the following resolution:

Resolved, That the committee be discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

19TH CONGRESS.]No. 472.[1ST SESSION.

CLAIMS BETWEEN THE RIO HONDO AND THE SABINE, IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 13, 1826.

Mr. WHIPPLE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the report of the register and receiver of the land district south of the Red river, in Louisiana, upon the land claims situated between the Rio Hondo and the Sabine, in what is called the Neutral Territory, [see No. 446,] reported:

That on March 3, 1823, an act was passed by which the above-named territory was annexed to the land district south of Red river, and the register and receiver of said district were required to receive and record all written evidences of claims to land in said tract of country derived from, and issued by, the Spanish government of Texas prior to December 20, 1803, according to the regulations as to the granting of lands, and the laws and ordinances of said government. The register and receiver of said district were also required to receive and record all evidences of claim founded on occupation, habitation, and cultivation, designating particularly the time and manner in which each tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated, prior to and on February 22, 1819, and the continuance of such habitation and cultivation subsequent to that time, with the extent of improvement upon each tract. They were further required by said act to receive and record such evidence as may be produced touching the performance of conditions required to be performed by any holder of any grant, concession, warrant, or order of survey, or other written evidence of claim, and on which the validity of such claim may have depended under the government from which it emanated. They were also required by said act to receive and record all evidence of fraud in obtaining or issuing the written evidence of such claims, and of their abandonment or forfeiture.

The said act further requires that the register and receiver shall transmit to the Secretary of the Treasury a complete record of all claims presented to them under the act, and the evidence appertaining to each claim.

They are also required to make an abstract, dividing said claims into four distinct classes, and to transmit it to the Treasury Department.

The first class is required to contain a specification of the nature and extent of complete titles, the time when, by whom, and to whom issued; with the date of any transfer, the name of the person transferring, and to whom transferred; and whether the conditions of such grants have been complied with.

The second class is required to contain all claims founded on written evidence, and not embraced in the first class, when the conditions on which the perfection thereof into complete titles have been complied with, according to the laws and ordinances of the Spanish government.

The third class includes all claims founded on habitation and cultivation prior to February 22, 1819, where such habitation and cultivation would have entitled the claimants to a title under the government exercising the sovereign power over that country, and which, in the opinion of the register and receiver, ought to be confirmed.

The fourth class is required by said act to consist of such claims as, in the opinion of the register and receiver, ought not to be confirmed.

The said act also contains a proviso that none of the proceedings directed to be had under it shall be considered as a pledge, on the part of Congress, to confirm any claim thus reported.

The committee are of opinion that the act above referred to made it the duty of the register and receiver, in the first and second classes specified in said act, to report to Congress the rules and regulations, laws and ordinances of the government of Texas under and by virtue of which grants were made, as well as the evidences of title which existed in the form of written evidence on which claims were founded; and likewise the conditions attached to said grants by the Spanish authorities, and whether such conditions had been complied with by the claimants or their representatives.

It appears by the report of the register and receiver of the land district south of Red river that they repaired to Natchitoches, and held their sittings therein; that no record of land titles, nor other certain written evidence of title, was presented to them for examination; that the laws and ordinances under which the Spanish authorities of Texas granted or pretended to grant lands were not to be found, and, consequently, were not examined by them; and that no traces of evidence of the right by which persons settled upon the Neutral Territory held their lands could be subjected to the examination of said officers, except what could be obtained from the recollection of the inhabitants, examined under oath; and that resort was therefore had to the testimony of such witnesses as the said officers of the land office deemed worthy of credit.

Your committee will not here pause to animadvert upon the danger of permitting those directly or indirectly interested in the confirmation of land titles claimed either by themselves, their representatives, or friends, to testify even on oath, not only to the origin and progress of their respective grants, but also to the rules and regulations by which the Spanish authorities of said province were governed in the exercise of the power of granting lands, which power must have been conferred by the laws and edicts of the Spanish monarchy.

It is further manifest that the usages of those who pretended to grant lands in said Neutral Territory, if those who testified before the register and receiver are to be credited, were not in conformity to the rules and regulations adopted in the provinces of Louisiana and Florida while under the Spanish government, nor did they conform to any regulations which are known to have been established either by the King of Spain or his Council of Indies. It, however, appears from the report of the register and receiver that, while claims of the first class were under their examination, certain written documents, purporting to be grants emanating from the governor of Nacogdoches, or the commissioner of the same, were presented to them, and upon these papers they have founded their report, recommending the confirmation of the claims in this class.

The register and receiver have not reported whether any, and if any, what, conditions were annexed to these grants; nor have they informed whether, if conditions were annexed, such conditions have been complied with by the grantees. These grants are therefore reported as perfect and absolute grants, without any assignable inducements on the part of the Spanish authorities to the making of them, and without any condition subsequent upon the performance of which their perfection or completion might depend.

The claims of this class are not, therefore, brought within the purview of the act of Congress, nor do they conform to any description of claims known to this government to have been grants regularly and legally issued by the Spanish government.

The committee here beg leave to refer to the able and lucid report of the commissioners of West Florida on the general nature of Spanish grants.

The first class of cases reported by the register and receiver of the land district south of Red river ought not, therefore, in the opinion of the committee, to be confirmed.

In the examination of the second class under the act of Congress, the register and receiver have not complied with the provisions of the act. This class, as will be seen above, was, by said law of Congress, to consist of claims founded on written titles, where conditions were imposed; and subsequent proceedings were, therefore, necessary to complete the grants. In some of the cases of claim in this class, as appears by the report of the register and receiver, conditions were annexed to the concessions, such as the final approval of the superior authority, &c., &c., which the committee will not minutely detail; and yet no proof is reported by said land officers to show that the necessary approval or confirmation was ever obtained, or any of the conditions complied with. The surveys in many, if not all, of these cases have been made by surveyors of the United States; but it does not appear by what authority these surveyors acted in running the lines of the claims in question. The committee are of opinion that it would be dangerous to the interests of the government to permit such loose and imperfect evidence to constitute the foundation of title to any portion of the public domain, and cannot, therefore, recommend the recognition of this class of claims.

The third class of claims is founded on habitation and cultivation prior to February 22, 1819, where such habitation and cultivation would have entitled the claimant to a title under the government exercising authority over that country, and which, in the opinion of the commissioners, ought to be confirmed.

The register and receiver have reported a very considerable number of claims for confirmation in this class; the habitation and cultivation is sufficiently proved, according to the act of Congress, but no evidence whatever is returned by which the claimants would appear to be entitled to grants, in consequence of such habitation and cultivation, from the Spanish authorities. It is also proper to remark, that the several claimants in this as well as in the other classes of claims reported have testified for each other, all having a direct and common interest in procuring confirmation of their titles by the United States. This single fact must very much weaken the force of their testimony, and, where it is not supported by other circumstances and evidence, ought to cause it to be received with great caution.

In addition to the foregoing facts, the committee deem it incumbent on them to state that it appears, from documents submitted to them by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that sixteen claims reported for confirmation by the register and receiver of the land district south of Red river are upon lands claimed by the Caddo Indians.

These claimants were, by the former Secretary of War, ordered off the Caddo lands, but, it seems, did not obey the order, and have, by some process unknown to your committee, induced the said register and receiver to report their claims for confirmation. The Indian agent for that quarter has, in behalf of these sons of the forest, transmitted a statement of their case for the consideration of the government.

Under all the circumstances presented, the committee are of opinion that it is not expedient, at present, to confirm any of this class of claims.

The several claimants who have, for some time prior to the possession of the said Neutral Territory by the United States, inhabited and cultivated lands under the expectation of obtaining final titles from the Spanish authorities, may hereafter be considered as entitled to some consideration from the government of the United States; and it may become a question how far they shall have extended to them the regards and liberality of the government, which have frequently been extended to others in the shape of donations. Of this the government may, however, consider, when no adverse and conflicting Indian claims shall exist. At present, the committee are of opinion that no measures should be taken on the report of the register and receiver of the land district south of the Red river. They therefore ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the subject.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 6, 1826.

SIR: The report of the commissioners for adjusting claims to lands in the Neutral Territory being before the Committee on Public Lands, I take the liberty of enclosing to you the paper marked A, containing information relative to several of the claims recommended in that report for confirmation

SIR: The War Department having furnished me with an extract of your letter of the 26th May last, in relation to claims to land, I have to inform you that, on an examination of your list with the report of the commissioners on the claims to land between the Rio Hondo and the Sabine rivers, which has not been acted upon by Congress, I find they recommend for confirmation the claims of the following persons mentioned in your list, viz: Leonard Dyson, Samuel Norris, B. Poiré, Henry Stockman, Peter Stockman, Moses Robertson, James Farris, Cæsar Wallace, and John Armstrong. SIR: On the 6th instant I enclosed to you a copy of my letter to G. Gray, esq., Indian agent on Red river, in relation to some claims to land recommended for confirmation by the register and receiver at Opelousas, in their reports on the neutral country, which were stated to be in the Caddo tract; and I now enclose a copy of his answer received this day.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

GEO. GRAHAM.

Hon. JOHN SCOTT, of the House of Representatives.

CADDY PRAIRIE, Red River Agency, November 30, 1825.

SIR: I had the honor of receiving yours of the 4th of August last, in relation to the lands entered by certain persons residing on Caddo lands. I have no evidence to offer, except that those persons were, in the first instance, permitted to settle on the lands they now wish to hold under the donation act by the Caddo chief some years since; and that the Caddo nation of Indians have had quiet possession of those lands under both the Spanish and French governments, and have never been termed neutral lands, and are situated immediately on Red river, and are not within sixty miles of any of the waters of the Rio Hondo, and are, beyond any doubt, Caddo lands. Those persons were all, eighteen months since, ordered off those lands by order of the Secretary of War, and generally removed to the east side of Red river, entirely out of the Indian boundary. Last spring Red river was uncommonly high, and inundated the east side of Red river, and those intruders were permitted to remove to their former residence. The persons whose names I have forwarded some time since to the War Department are intruders, and are violators of the laws of the United States, with a very few exceptions, and first settled on the lands they now wish to hold for the purpose of trading whiskey to the Indians; and I am informed that those people formerly paid the Caddo chief a rent for the lands they now occupy. Those persons settled on the Caddo lands some time previous to my being appointed Indian agent.

I have the honor to be, respectfully, your most obedient, humble servant,

G. GRAY, Indian Agent.

GEO. GRAHAM, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

19TH CONGRESS.]

No. 473.

CLAIM OF THE NEW ENGLAND MISSISSIPPI LAND COMPANY.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 17, 1826.

Mr. MILLS, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom was referred the petition of Ebenezer Oliver and others, directors of an association called the New England Mississippi Land Company, reported:

1st. That by the articles of agreement and cession of April 24, 1802, between the United States and the State of Georgia, it was agreed that the United States might (in such manner as not to interfere with the payment to be made to the State of Georgia, or with the satisfaction of certain land claims agreed to be confirmed by the United States) appropriate not exceeding five millions of acres for satisfying certain claims on the land then ceded to the United States, commonly called the Yazoo claims, provided the act of Congress making such appropriation was passed within one year.

2d. That by the act entitled "An act regulating the grants of land, and providing for the disposal of the lands of the United States," passed March 3, 1803, so much as should be found necessary of the five millions of acres, reserved as before stated, were appropriated to the purpose for which they had been reserved. But it was provided by that act "that no other claims shall be embraced by this appropriation but those the evidence of which shall have, on or before the first day of January next, been exhibited by the claimants to the Secretary of State, and recorded in books to be kept in his office for that purpose," &c.

3d. That, pursuant to the provisions of the last-mentioned act, the claims to the said lands were exhibited to the Secretary of State, including those now in question; but the passage of the final act, providing for their adjustment and satisfaction, was delayed until the year 1814.

4th. That many of the claims so exhibited were found to conflict with each other, and also with rights which had been acquired by the United States, in consequence of surrenders made to the State of Georgia, and which, by virtue of the cession, enured to the United States.

5th. That to make the indemnity and provide for the adjustment of the claims in question the act of March 31, 1814, was passed, by which—First. The President was authorized and required to cause to be issued from the treasury of the United States, to such claimants respectively as had exhibited their claims agreeably to the act of 1803, certificates of stock, payable out of moneys arising from the sale of said public land, and, among other companies, to the persons claiming in the name or under the Georgia Mississippi Company, a sum not exceeding in the whole one million five hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Second. That the claimants of the lands might file in the office of the Secretary of State a release of all their claims to the United States, and an assignment and transfer to the United States of their claim to any money deposited or paid to the State of Georgia; such release and assignment to take effect on the indemnification of the claimants, according to the provisions of that act.

Third. Commissioners were to be, and were accordingly appointed, "to adjudge and finally determine upon all controversies arising from such claims, so released as aforesaid, which may be found to conflict with and be adverse to each other, and also to adjudge and determine upon all such claims under the aforesaid act or pretended act of the State of Georgia as may be found to have accrued to the United States by operation of law."

6th. That the provisions of the act of 1814 were, in all respects, pursuant to a compromise made in behalf of the United States with the claimants, including the present petitioners, and that the release required by the said act was made by them.

7th. That before the commissioners the petitioners, as trustees of the New England Mississippi Land Company, claimed as the persons entitled to the one million five hundred and fifty thousand dollars, directed to be issued to the Georgia Mississippi Company, their claim to indemnity for 957,600 acres, amounting to $130,425, was resisted in behalf of the Georgia Mississippi Company, on the ground that the consideration money for said lands had not been paid; and that, therefore, they were, in equity, entitled to the indemnity provided by the act of Congress. It appeared before the commissioners that the land included in said grant, estimated to contain eleven million three hundred and eighty thousand acres, had been sold by the Georgia Mississippi Company to the New England Mississippi Company, at the rate of ten cents per acre, two cents whereof had been paid in cash, and the residue secured by negotiable notes, with approved endorsers; of which notes about one-tenth part, say $95,760, then remained unpaid, and belonged to the said original grantees, called the Georgia Mississippi Company, most of the members of which (about three-fourths in amount) had surrendered to the State of Georgia, and received from the treasury the sum they had paid therein, by virtue of the rescinding act, so called, of Georgia; but the other members had released to the United States, in virtue of said act of Congress of March 31, 1814, and claimed, in conflict with said petitioners, such proportion of the indemnity as was equal to their interest in said notes. The commissioners decided that the said notes, although no mortgage was given therefor, and though the signers of said notes had long since transferred their interest in said lands, and although the conveyance from the Georgia Mississippi Company was absolute, and the deed delivered by their written direction to the grantees, upon their giving security, as aforesaid, created a lien upon said land, and in consequence of such decision they deducted from the claim of said petitioners the said sum of $130,425, and distributed the same as follows, to wit: the sum of thirty-five thousand and twenty-two dollars was paid to the said Georgia members, who released, as aforesaid, being their proportion in said notes; and the residue, say ninety-five thousand four hundred and three dollars, were ordered to be retained in the treasury of the United States, as representing the other owners of said notes, who had surrendered, as aforesaid, and thus accruing, by operation of law, to the United States.

8th. The petitioners object to this decision as erroneous, and they ask to have the $130,425 paid to them by the United States, or their release to the extent of the 957,600 acres cancelled, so that they may assert their title to the lands in a court of law. The Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Brown and Gilman, 4 Wheaton, 256, have decided that the grant from the Georgia Mississippi Land Company to the individuals who afterwards constituted and composed the New England Mississippi Land Company conveyed the legal estate, notwithstanding the act of Georgia prohibiting the deeds for the same from being recorded; and that, by the terms of the contract and the law of the land, the grantors had no lien on the land for the consideration money, and that, therefore, the decree of the commissioners in that respect was erroneous. For the grounds of that decision, its operation upon the interests of the petitioners and those they represent, and for a more particular statement of the facts and circumstances connected with the whole transaction, the committee refer to the case of Brown and Gilman, to the decree of the commissioners accompanying this report, to the accompanying certificates of the two commissioners, and to a more particular statement made by the petitioners to the Judiciary Committee, and adopted by them in their report of February 7, 1823.

9th. The committee acquiesce in the correctness of the decision of the Supreme Court, and believe that the decision of the commissioners on the point of law raised before them was erroneous; which error is fully certified by said commissioners, and manifestly appears in their records.

It is expressly provided by said act that the release of the claimants was "to take effect on the indemnification of such claimants being made conformably to the provisions of said act;" and it is also provided that the commissioners were to adjudge and finally determine upon all controversies arising from such claims so released.

Taking these sections into view, the committee are of opinion that, as respects said sum paid on said conflicting claim to said Georgia members as aforesaid, the petitioners ought not to be relieved, such decision being made final by the act; but as respects said sum now in the treasury, which, by virtue of said act, ought to have been paid to said petitioners as indemnification for their said release, but which was erroneously withheld from them as aforesaid, the committee apprehend that the petitioners are well entitled to relief; and for that purpose they report a bill.

Decree of commissioners on Yazoo claims, Georgia Mississippi Company.

This company having sold all the lands included in their grant (excepting the reservations for citizens) to certain individuals in Boston, associated under the name of the New England Mississippi Land Company, the whole indemnity provided by the act of Congress for claimants under this grant was demanded by the trustees of the latter company in behalf of the members thereof, the trustees having released to the United States all the title of the company to the land comprehended in the grant.

This claim was opposed, first, by the scripholders of the original Georgia Mississippi Company, claiming under certain certificates issued to the proprietors under that grant, before the sale made to the New England Mississippi Land Company, which certificates were produced by them and released to the United States. The foundation of this claim rested on the allegation that the New England purchasers had not fully paid the purchase money for the land, and that the original shareholders had a lien on the land for whatever balance was due. The board considered that the principles of equity sanction this opposition; and having ascertained, from the evidence exhibited, that the sum of $95,760 remained due to the original company for the purchase which, upon the terms of the sale, amounted to 957,600 acres, they decreed, upon the grounds stated more particularly in their first decree in this company, that $130,425 12, the proportion of indemnity to which that quantity of land would be entitled, should be deducted from the amount claimed by the New England Mississippi Land Company.

The claim of the New England Company was further opposed in behalf of the United States, who claimed to be considered as representing the interest of such of the old Georgia Mississippi shareholders as have surrendered their claims to the State of Georgia, and drawn their proportions of the original purchase money from the treasury of that State, and as thereby entitled to retain, out of the sum deducted as above stated, from the indemnity claimed by the New England Company, such proportions as those shareholders would have been entitled to had they not surrendered such claims. The board decreed that the United States were entitled to represent the interest of these original surrendered shares, and that the sum stated, of $130,425 12, could neither be awarded exclusively to the shareholders who released to the United States, nor lessened by the New England Company's retaining to the amount of the shares surrendered to Georgia; but that the United States, representing the surrendered shares, should take equally with the releasing shareholders. By this decree the above sum was proportioned as follows:

To shares of Georgia Mississippi Company released to the United States.....	$50,608 48
To the United States, representing 284 surrendered shares.....	123,903 94

The claim of the trustees of the New England Company was still further opposed by some of the shareholders in that company, who produced their certificates to the board, and executed, individually, releases to the United States, and prayed to have their respective proportions of the indemnity awarded to them separately, and protested against its being awarded generally to the trustees for the benefit of the company.

The board considered themselves bound to grant this application for the reasons stated in their second decree under this grant of June 29, 1815, but, at the same time, thought the demand of the trustees, that these individual claimants should bear their proportion of the expenses incurred by the company if allowed to receive their proportions of the indemnity separately, just and reasonable.

These claimants, holding shares amounting to _____ acres, were, therefore, by the award of the board, entitled to receive $259,132 72 as their proportion of the indemnity, deducting their proportion of the expenses, and subject to some other charges for expenses, which they settled with the trustees.

The following statement shows the particular distribution, according to the principles above stated, of the indemnity provided by the act for claims under this grant, and the proportion reserved to the United States:

The fund out of which the holders of Georgia Mississippi Company's certificates were paid, and the surrenders to the State of Georgia in the said company, consisted of the sum of $130,425 12 reserved from the claim of the New England Mississippi Land Company for unpaid notes of certain original purchasers in that company, and the amount of 691,667 acres of the New England Mississippi Land Company's certificates in the hands of Amasa Jackson, making together the amount of $213,305 55, deducting for allowance to the specie payment to the New England Mississippi Company $2,399 22.

RICHARD WALLACK,
Late Secretary Board of Commissioners on Yazoo Claims.

Having acted as one of the commissioners under the act of Congress providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory, I do certify that the board of commissioners did reject the claim for indemnification made by the New England Land Company for that portion of land which was the subject of controversy in the case decided by the Supreme Court between Gilman and Brown, and reported in the fourth volume of Wheaton's Reports. The ground upon which this rejection was made was an opinion which the commissioners then entertained, that the title of this land, through its whole course of transfer, was an equitable title; and the original purchase money not having been paid for it, they considered that the debt was a lien upon the land, and that the claimant had no right to the indemnification until that lien was discharged.

I recollect that our information of the laws of Georgia upon the subject of land conveyances was but imperfect; but in the discussion of this claim before the board it seemed to be given up that the title in all its stages was an equitable title, and so we finally thought. The decision, however, of this question by the Supreme Court is otherwise. They have decided that the title was a legal one throughout; and that question being so settled, I have no hesitation in saying that I should, under such an impression of the law, have awarded the indemnification to the claimants; and I doubt not but that my associates would have concurred with me in this opinion. I now consider this a fair subject for the interposition of the legislature, and should deem it reasonable that the claim should be allowed.

THOMAS SWANN.

ALEXANDRIA, December 30, 1822.

I have examined, as carefully as I could upon so short a notice, the decree of the Yazoo commissioners of March 8, 1816, upon the claim of the New England Mississippi Company, by which the sum of $130,425 12 was deducted from the indemnity claimed by that company and awarded to the Georgia Mississippi Company, on the ground of a lien asserted by the latter company for part of the purchase money due for the land which had been granted to the Georgia Company, and by them sold out to the persons composing the New England Mississippi Company.

The Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of Brown and Gilman, express an opinion that the claim of the Georgia Company to this lien could not be supported. I have not seen the records sent up to the Supreme Court in this case, and do not see in the printed report of the cause that the same documents and evidence, showing the agreements and correspondence of the two companies upon this subject, were before the court that had been laid before the commissioners. If they were, I suppose it would be right to conclude that the commissioners, and not the Supreme Court, had erred in their decision. The board, in their decree of March 8, 1816, refer to the agreements and correspondence of the parties; and the record in the case of Brown and Gilman will show whether they were introduced into that case.

F. S. KEY.

It is now represented to me that, by the laws of Georgia, a vendor has no lien upon land sold when he takes a note for the purchase money. If this be the case, the commissioners certainly erred in their decision. If such a ground had been supported before them they would certainly have decided against the lien.

GEORGETOWN, January 2, 1823.

F. S. K.

To the honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The petition of Ebenezer Oliver, Benjamin Joy, Thomas L. Winthrop, George Blake, and Joseph Sewall, all of the State of Massachusetts, humbly sheweth: That, by an act of Congress bearing date March 31, 1814, entitled "An act providing for the indemnification of certain claimants of public lands in the Mississippi Territory," a certain sum of money was granted to persons claiming said land under the Georgia Mississippi Company who should give a sufficient legal release of their claims to the United States, to take effect on their indemnification of such claimants being made conformably to the provisions of said act; and that in virtue thereof, and of the acts in addition thereto, commissioners were appointed to adjudge and determine upon the sufficiency of the release of said claims, and also to adjudge and determine upon all controversies arising from claims so released.

Whereupon your petitioners, acting as trustees or directors for said claimants under said Georgia Mississippi Company, caused to be released to the United States all their claim in and to the said lands, and fully complied with all the requisitions of said acts, trusting that they should receive the indemnity therein made, provided their title was just and legal; but the said commissioners, having erroneous information respecting the laws of Georgia, adjudged the title of said petitioners to be invalid as respects a certain portion of said land, viz: nine hundred and fifty-seven thousand six hundred acres, and that certain certificates (commonly called scrip) issued for the said land were not obligatory in law.

Your petitioners were much surprised at said decree, but trusted, from the superior knowledge of the commissioners, that the same might be correct. It now appears, however, that on process of law against your petitioners before the Supreme Court of the United States, it has been decided that the title so rejected by the commissioners was good and valid in law and equity; and your petitioners have, accordingly, been compelled to pay and satisfy the persons who held the title so pronounced imperfect.

It is apprehended that said commissioners are now fully sensible of the error in their decree, founded on misinformation respecting the laws of Georgia, by means of which your petitioners have incurred great loss and damage.

Wherefore, your petitioners humbly pray that the proportion of indemnity granted to them by said act, and which has been withheld from them as aforesaid, may be delivered to them, or that they may be reinstated in the title to said proportion of land, which they have ceded to the United States without having received the indemnification therefor granted by said act.

EBENEZER OLIVER,
BENJAMIN JOY,
THOMAS L. WINTHROP,
GEORGE BLAKE,
JOSEPH SEWALL,

LAND CLAIM IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 17, 1826.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of John H. Mills, reported:

The petitioner states that, as far back as 1800, Matthew O'Fallan obtained from the Spanish government a large tract of land, situated in the parish of West Feliciana, in the State of Louisiana, which has been "inhabited and cultivated" from that period until the present; that on August 10, 1805, the said O'Fallan sold a part of the said tract of land to Ellis and Stewart; that on March 7, 1809, the said purchase was divided by amicable arrangement, when 195 arpents, fronting on Thompson's creek, and lying between the lands of Samples and Lush, were set off to the said Stewart; that in the year 1810 or 1811 the said Stewart removed with his family to Mobile, where they all died; that owing to this circumstance, as the petitioner believes, the evidences of title to the land so owned by him were not exhibited to the proper board for confirmation; that Ellis' claims to his moiety under the partition has been confirmed; that on July 23, 1825, at a probate sale of the land allotted to the said Ellis, the petitioner became the purchaser. Wherefore, he prays the passage of an act to confirm him in his claim against the United States.

John Murdock swears that, in the month of January, in the year 1800, he returned from Mexico and settled on Thompson's creek, where he now resides; that on his return he found Matthew O'Fallan in possession of and cultivating a tract of land lying on the west side of the said creek, fronting 12 arpents and running back 40; that in the year 1805 the said O'Fallan sold the said land to John Ellis and Christopher S. Stewart, merchants, who cultivated the same until the close of the year 1808; that the same has been generally in the cultivation of persons claiming under Ellis and Stewart. The affidavit, of which the foregoing is an extract, is sworn to on June 12, 1820.

Moses Samples swears that about the year 1805 John Ellis and Christo. Strong Stewart purchased from Matthew O'Fallan a tract of land situated on Thompson's creek, containing about 480 arpents, more or less; that they moved to and took possession of the same, and continued their habitation and cultivation until 1809, when a division took place; that soon after Stewart moved to Mobile, and has not returned since; that it has been reported and believed that he and every member of his family died; that he, the affiant, lives on the part which was allotted to Ellis, and which was confirmed to Isaac Johnson, who exhibited his evidence of claim to the board at St. Helena Court-house. Sworn to October 27, 1825.

An authenticated copy of the proceedings, in reference to the probate sale, from the office of the judge of the parish of West Feliciana, is exhibited. From this voucher it appears partition of the land was made between Ellis and Stewart, and that the petitioner became the purchaser for $150.

The committee think the petitioner entitled to relief, and report a bill for that purpose.

SETTLERS ON PUBLIC LANDS AND THE RIGHT OF PRE-EMPTION.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 18, 1826.

Mr. VINTON, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom were referred the resolution of the 14th December, instructing them "to inquire into the expediency of adopting some provision which may secure to the person in possession of public lands the benefit of the crop growing at the time of sale, and also to grant to those who may have relinquished lands under laws heretofore passed the pre-emption right of becoming the purchaser of those lands at the price such lands may have been originally sold for;" and also the resolution of the 6th of January, instructing them "to inquire into the expediency of permitting settlers on lands that have been relinquished by them to the United States under any of the acts for the relief of the purchasers of public lands, and who had improved the same previous to making such relinquishment, to occupy the same until they shall be again sold by the United States, and to have the right of removing any crop that may be growing on the same at the time of making such sale," reported:

That, in discharge of the duty assigned them, the committee proceeded to examine the several matters referred to them, in the order in which they are presented in the foregoing resolutions; and in the first place directed their attention to the first branch of the resolution of the 14th of December, instructing them "to inquire into the expediency of adopting some provision which may secure to the person in possession of public lands the benefit of the crop growing at the time of sale."

It has been the policy of the government, for the most obvious reasons, to discountenance all settlements upon the public lands before they are brought into market and sold; and among the many existing evidences of this policy is to be found a legal prohibition, now in force, against all unauthorized settlements upon the public domain. The committee know of no cause to be dissatisfied with this policy, but on the contrary are of opinion it ought to be carried into strict and undeviating execution. This branch of the resolution proposes an innovation upon that policy, which would be likely to result in consequences in their nature subversive of the principles upon which the land system is based. The adoption of it would hold out an indirect invitation and encouragement to all who were so disposed to possess themselves of the public lands, without title or interest in them. It would, in effect, place those who had tortuously entered upon the footing of tenants at will with a possession recognized and sanctioned by the government. It has been found that legal prohibitions are entirely inadequate to repress trespasses to a considerable extent upon public lands; and with this encouragement those innovations would be likely to become so numerous as seriously to obstruct their sale. This effect would be produced in a variety of ways. In the first place, those who would otherwise become purchasers would, instead of purchasing, be induced, under this encouragement, to settle down upon the lands of the public with the intention perhaps of purchasing when compelled to do so, but not before. In the next place, the circumstance of possession being withheld until a growing crop were taken off would be a serious obstacle in the way of purchasers, who, in a great majority of cases, are poor, and have occasion to occupy the premises and commence the business of improvement as soon as possible. And, again, those who now are or should be in possession of lands under such a tenure would have a direct interest in preventing their sale. A purchaser would be looked upon by this class of men as their enemy, and whatever combination, violence, and artifice could do to prevent his ingress into their neighborhood, or to drive him from it, would in many instances be effected. Experience has shown that those who fasten upon the public lands with one moment's encouragement can never afterwards be loosened from their hold. The adoption of this measure would be immediately followed up by a claim to a pre-emption right or donation of the lands so possessed; and if denied, that which was granted as a favor would be treated as an act of oppression. The government would be murmured against, and reproached with inducing the occupants to devote their time and labor to the improvement of these lands, for the unworthy purpose of reaping the proceeds in the enhanced price it would be pretended was obtained for them in consequence of such improvement. For these reasons, and others that might be suggested, the committee are of opinion that the adoption of the measure proposed by this part of the resolution now under consideration would be impolitic and inexpedient.

As to the second branch of the resolution of the 14th of December, which proposes "to grant to those who may have relinquished lands under the laws heretofore passed the pre-emption right of becoming the purchasers of those lands at the price such lands may have been originally sold for," the committee have to observe that all relinquishments are entirely optional with the party making them, being in their nature an act of grace and favor on the part of the government, by permitting the purchaser to release himself from his contract to the extent of his relinquishment, when he wants the inclination or ability to comply with it, and that, too, under the most favorable circumstances, being left to choose for himself what part to relinquish and what to retain. When he avails himself of this privilege his contract to the land relinquished is entirely at an end, with no lien upon it in his favor, either legal or equitable. The land being thus restored to the government in all respects as it was before the purchase, the committee can see no reason for the introduction of a new class of pre-emption rights, that have been already so multiplied by one pretext or another as to create no little difficulty and embarrassment in the legislation of Congress upon the public lands.

As to the resolution of the 6th instant, the committee look upon it as falling within the more general proposition of that of the 14th of December, and the reasons just urged against it as conclusive against the policy of permitting those who have relinquished to remain upon lands the possession of which, as well as their interest, have been, in contemplation of law, surrendered, and the premises left vacant.

Besides, so long a time has elapsed since any relinquishments have been made that the committee are at a loss to imagine what crops can still remain upon the ground that were put into it previous to such relinquishments; and if since, such use of the land is tortuous, and contrary to good faith. The committee are therefore of the opinion it is inexpedient to adopt any measures proposed by the above-mentioned resolutions.

APPLICATION OF THE PURCHASERS OF PUBLIC LANDS IN ALABAMA FOR RELIEF.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 20, 1826.

Mr. STRONG, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of George S. Gaines and others, inhabitants of the State of Alabama, reported:

That the petitioners represent that, previous to the abolition of the credit system, large purchases of lands in Alabama were, from time to time, made at the government sales, and at high prices; that some of these purchasers made prompt payment, while others availed themselves of the credit system, but completed their payments before Congress passed the relief law. Upon this representation they pray Congress "to pass a law extending the same relief to purchasers of public lands who made prompt and complete payments as was made to purchasers who availed themselves of the credit allowed by law, and that they may be authorized to vest whatever amount may be deducted from their former payments, and allowed them in any vacant and unappropriated lands" in the State of Alabama. The committee do not think the petitioners entitled to relief. They bought their lands at the market price and have paid for them. The whole transaction was fair, and the bargain has been consummated. If land was of greater and money of less value then than now, it was rather their misfortune than the fault of the government. Should Congress grant relief in this case, there would probably be no end to applications of a similar character. The unfortunate purchaser whose land, in consequence of his inability to complete the payments, has reverted to the United States, and the merchant whose goods have so far depreciated upon his hands as not to be worth the amount of the duties charged upon them, would have equally strong, if not stronger, claims for equitable allowances. But the petitioners seem to have mistaken the principles upon which relief was granted to the debtors for the public lands. That class of debtors were not relieved because they had paid too much for their lands, or because they had depreciated in value, but because the debt which had been suffered to grow to an enormous bulk had become a grievous burden upon those portions of the country that bore it, and because it was perceived that the government could not enforce its collection without producing great individual distress. It was, moreover, both prudent and wise to avoid, if possible, those fatal results which an increasing debt of that magnitude, and due from a comparatively small portion of the country, to the government was so peculiarly calculated to produce.

The committee therefore submit the following resolution to the consideration of the House:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioners be not granted.

NUMBER OF LAND WARRANTS ISSUED TO THE OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS OF THE REVOLUTION.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 23, 1826.

To the House of Representatives of the United States:

In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 23d ultimo, I transmit herewith reports from the Secretary of War and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, with the statements desired by the resolution.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, January 18, 1826.

The Secretary of War, to whom was referred so much of the resolution of the House of Representatives of the 23d ultimo as requires "the number of land warrants which have been issued, and the quantity of land mentioned in them," has the honor to transmit herewith a statement marked A, which furnishes the information required by that part of the resolution.

Respectfully submitted.

JAMES BARBOUR.

The PRESIDENT of the United States.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, Bounty Land Office, January 17, 1826.

SIR: In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives of December 23, 1825, I have the honor to hand you a statement of the number of warrants (and acres of land contained in each warrant) which appears to have been issued and delivered from this office for services rendered during the revolutionary war; viz:

14 warrants of	1,100 acres each	15,400 acres.
27 warrants of	850 acres each	22,950 acres.
115 warrants of	500 acres each	57,500 acres.
114 warrants of	450 acres each	51,300 acres.
226 warrants of	400 acres each	90,400 acres.
865 warrants of	300 acres each	259,500 acres.
902 warrants of	200 acres each	180,400 acres.
130 warrants of	150 acres each	19,500 acres.
8,653 warrants of	100 acres each	865,300 acres.

NOTE.—I have frequently heard it said that General Knox, when at the head of the War Department, had all the warrants issued which then appeared to be due before he commenced with the delivery of any one of them. If that information be correct, it is easily accounted for why there are so many numbers in the books of locations opposite to which there are no names inserted. For instance, there is no name opposite Nos. 1, 5, 12, 15, 20, 25, 26, 27, &c., &c., &c.; and the list of numbers to which I advert ran up to 17,056, and those opposite to which I find names entered are 9,913. The excess, if made out, must have been consumed in the conflagration of the office, with its effects, in 1801.

It is probable that some few may have been delivered, as now and then a single one comes in for entry.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,

WM. M. STEUART.

Hon. JAMES BARBOUR, *Secretary of War.*GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 19, 1826.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office, to whom was referred the resolution of the House of Representatives of December 23, 1825, has the honor to submit to the President the following statements, numbered 1, 2, and 3, which exhibit the information called for.

[1ST SESSION.

APPLICATION OF ALABAMA FOR FOUR SECTIONS OF LAND FOR THE CITY OF MOBILE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 23, 1826.

To the honorable Speaker and members of the House of Representatives:

The enclosed letter from the representatives of the town and county of Mobile may be regarded as the immediate cause of this special communication. But the great importance of the subject itself, connected, as it is supposed to be, with the present and permanent interest of the State, and no less in union with every principle of our nature, which delights to insure happiness and relieve distress, gives it a high claim to particular attention, and would render an apology not only unnecessary but offensive. During the last season our commercial emporium was severely afflicted by those malignant diseases to which southern seaports are so peculiarly exposed. The distresses, the sufferings, the anxieties and confusion, which suspended the ordinary hopes and engagements of men, those only can realize who have witnessed, in similar circumstances, the ravages of mortal disease. The distressing situation of the city of Mobile was greatly relieved by a place of more healthy resort in the vicinity, to which almost all the inhabitants removed who were in condition to make a removal, or who had not fallen victims to the early and insidious progress of the prevailing malady. In this place their hopes of security were more than justified, under circumstances of deficient accommodation, and destitute of those comforts which more mature arrangement might have provided. It is my present purpose to invite the attention of the general assembly to this place, and to the interests of Mobile and of the State, which are supposed to be connected with it. Our southern seaports cannot expect to be free from the occasional and perhaps frequent recurrence of yellow fever; and even when this malignant disease does not appear, those of a milder type may be constantly expected, and occasion losses severely felt by society. The great desideratum, therefore, is a place of health sufficiently near to the centre of business, and in which the confidence of the population may be safely reposed. It is very gratifying to believe that the vicinity of Mobile affords such a situation; and this belief is sustained by the experience of several years, especially the present, by the natural appearance of the country and the report of the oldest inhabitants. It is well worthy of consideration what important effects may be made to result from this auspicious circumstance. It is supposed that it will afford a reasonable security against the most appalling disease to which the human constitution is subject. That it will increase the population of our commercial city, and with its population increase its business and resources. That it will locate and fix capital, as those who find it their interest to do business in the place will be inclined to form permanent establishments for the sake of convenience, when they find they can do so with safety to themselves and their families. That it will benefit the people in the interior of the State, as their necessary intercourse with the city will be less interrupted by the absence of men engaged in the transactions of commerce. That it will provide for institutions of learning, so much to be cultivated in our large commercial cities, a situation in which their progress will not be interrupted. That such part of the population as may be engaged in mechanical employments may be enabled to pursue their useful and industrious professions to almost equal advantage at all seasons of the year. That it will be a suitable place, on account of its health and vicinity to the city, for the site of hospitals and other charitable foundations. To secure these and other advantages which will be readily perceived, I beg leave, very respectfully, to recommend to the general assembly to aid the corporate authority of the city of Mobile to obtain from the United States four contiguous sections of land at Spring Hill, or a quantity equal to four sections, at the discretion of the corporation, on which to build a summer town or place of retreat for health. It is likely that four sections would not be more than sufficient, in order that the town should not be built too compactly for health; that nuisances might be kept at a greater distance, and the natural healthiness of the place be improved by artificial means.

To accomplish these objects a new and suffering city may require aid from the treasury of the State, the advance to be reimbursed at such time and in such manner as the wisdom of the general assembly may direct. It would also seem expedient to address a memorial to the Congress of the United States for the acquisition of the land at a fair price. The land is not in market; no conjecture can be formed when it will be offered for sale, and the wants of the city are immediate. A matter so important, in a general point of view, ought not to be left to the uncertainty of individual enterprise, where there will be neither unity in the design nor concert in the execution. Most southern cities are precluded by their localities from the prosecution of such a plan; our situation is more fortunate, and a systematic attention to everything which may promote the prosperity of our commercial city will be found to contribute largely to the general interest.

Very respectfully submitted.

JOHN MURPHY.

REPRESENTATIVES' HALL, November 29, 1825.

SIR: The undersigned representatives of the county of Mobile have been requested by a number of their constituents to call the attention of the general assembly to the late awful and distressing visitation which the city of Mobile has suffered from that dreadful scourge of our southern seaports, the yellow fever, and to solicit the interposition of that body in behalf of the application of the citizens of that place, through the corporate authority, for the privilege of purchasing of the United States, on such terms as may be deemed reasonable and proper under the circumstances, four contiguous sections of public land on Spring Hill, in the vicinity of said city, for the purpose of laying off and building up a summer town, or place of refuge from disease during the sickly season, or on the approach of infectious, malignant, or pestilential disorders.

Believing this to be a subject justly entitled to the consideration of the public authorities, from the important and intimate connexion which subsists between the great agricultural and commercial interests of the State which concentre at that emporium, the undersigned have felt it to be their duty to represent the matter to your excellency, and to claim for it such notice as your excellency may think it deserving in a special communication to the general assembly.

We have the honor to be, &c.,

W. BARTON.
T. L. HALLETT.

His Excellency JOHN MURPHY.

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the State of Alabama in general assembly convened,
That our senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives requested, to use their best exertions to obtain for the corporation of the city of Mobile a grant of the privilege of purchasing from the United States four contiguous sections of public land on Spring Hill, near said city, or the quantity contained in four entire sections, as a place of retreat for health to the inhabitants of said city.

And be it further resolved, That his excellency the governor be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing resolution, together with a copy of the executive communication and the accompanying document on the same subject, to each of our senators and representatives, to be laid before Congress.

WILLIAM KELLY,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
NICHOLAS DAVIS,
President of the Senate.

Approved December 28, 1825.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN THE ST. HELENA DISTRICT, LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 24, 1826.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 21, 1826.

Sir: The register and receiver of the land office for the district of St. Helena having made a report, under the provisions of the act of Congress of May 26, 1824, supplementary to the report submitted to the House of Representatives, with the letter from this department of December 28, 1825, I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of the same.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect, your obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

LAND OFFICE, St. Helena, December 8, 1825.

Sir: The abstract of orders of survey has been detained on account of forwarding with it a supplement to our report of claims, forwarded under the law of May 26, 1824. The reasons that have induced us to forward this supplement are, that the claimants have regularly filed their notices of claims with our predecessors in office, with sufficient proofs to establish their claims, but still we do not find that our predecessors have reported on the said claims in any way; and we, believing that the government would never attempt to take from the claimants in question their lands, have thought it better to attach their claims as a supplement to our former report not yet acted on, than that the claimants should torment Congress with separate petitions.

We remain, very respectfully, your obedient servants,

SAMPL J. RANNELLS, Register.

PRE-EMPTION RIGHT IN MICHIGAN.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 24, 1826.

Mr. VINTON, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Charles Noble, reported:

That the petitioner prays for a donation or pre-emption right to a tract of land containing one acre, situate in the county of Monroe, in the Territory of Michigan. The circumstances of his case are these: the tract of land was originally reserved for a military stockade, and a small stockade erected, which was destroyed by the enemy during the late war, at the close of which, being vacant, it was occupied by some emigrant, who built upon it a dwelling-house and some other out buildings; these came into the hands of Noble by purchase, who has made valuable and substantial improvements upon it. It appears, from a letter from the late Secretary of War laid before the committee, that this spot of ground is no longer of any use for military purposes, and that he had certified that fact to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that the land might be sold as other public lands are.

It appears from the certificate of the register of the land office at Monroe, where this lot of ground lies, that it is worth, exclusive of the improvements, the sum of forty dollars, which, from statements made before the committee, founded upon personal knowledge and entitled to the highest respect, is the full value of the land.

The committee therefore report a bill to authorize a conveyance of this lot of land to the petitioner on his paying into the treasury the sum of forty dollars.

LAND CLAIM IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 24, 1826.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of Elizabeth Keary, reported:

The petitioner states that in the year 1791 the Spanish government issued a patent to Caleb Weeks for 400 arpents of land, through which the line between the States of Mississippi and Louisiana runs; that on February 13, 1798, Weeks conveyed the same to Richard Graves, who presented his claim to the board of commissioners west of Pearl river, which was confirmed; that on January 23, 1817, Graves conveyed the said land to William V. Keary, the late husband of the petitioner, he being now dead; that she sent the patent to the board of commissioners sitting at St. Helena Court-house to be recorded; that one of them, Mr. Cosby, said it was unnecessary, as another board had acted in the case; that she rested content until of late, when she was informed she could not obtain an order of survey, as the board at St. Helena Court-house had not allowed confirmation; that she lives on the land and has made valuable improvements; that, as the time for entering claims has expired, she fears that so much as lies within Louisiana will be considered as public land; wherefore she asks that she and her children may be confirmed in their title to said land.

To support her petition she exhibits the translation of a patent from Don Estevan Miro, governor of Louisiana and Florida, to Caleb Weeks, for 400 square arpents in the district of Natchez, dated May 25, 1791. As the certificate of survey is dated May 24, 1795, it is presumed there is an error as to the date of the one or the other of these instruments. On February 13, 1798, Caleb Weeks, who it seems was a minor, with the consent of his father, Wm. Weeks, in the presence of an alcalde, endorsed the patent to Richard Graves. This patent, by No. 673, was, March 17, 1804, recorded in the land office west of Pearl river. By an abstract from the General Land Office it appears that the board of commissioners west of Pearl river confirmed to Richard Graves (Caleb Weeks being the original grantee) twenty-eight acres on the waters of Bayou Sarat, under a Spanish title dated May 25, 1791.

On November 19, 1825, William Dawson made oath, before a notary public, that in 1803 he became a resident in the neighborhood of Richard Graves, who at that time occupied the place on which Mrs. Keary now dwells, as he had done several years previous to that period; that William V. Keary purchased out R. Graves in the year 1810, took possession, and remained therein until the year 1818, when he died. There is also some testimony on file intended to show that Mrs. Keary sent the patent by her father (who is now dead) to Mr. Cosby to be recorded. The petitioner produces the deed from Graves to her late husband, which appears to be duly executed, and bears date January 25, 1817. About ninety-six acres of this tract are represented by the deed to lie in the county of Wilkinson, in the State of Mississippi, then a Territory, and the remainder in the parish of Feliciana, in the State of Louisiana.

As the petitioner appears to be entitled to relief, a bill is herewith reported.

APPLICATION OF LOUISIANA FOR LAND IN NEW ORLEANS FOR THE BANK OF LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 24, 1826.

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the State of Louisiana in general assembly convened, That the senators and representatives in Congress from this State be instructed and requested to solicit from the general government a cession of a lot of ground situated in New Orleans, and bounded by Canal, Thepitoulac, Common, and Magazine streets, to the president, directors, and company of the Bank of Louisiana, for the purpose of building thereon a banking-house and exchange, and on condition of their furnishing rooms for the office department free of rent on said lot.

Resolved, That the governor be requested to cause a plan to be made of the said lot, in order to be annexed to these resolutions.

A. B. ROMAN,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
ISAAC A. SMITH,
President of the Senate.

Approved February 18, 1825.

H. JOHNSON,
Governor of the State of Louisiana.

WASHINGTON, February 9, 1826.

DEAR SIR: Not having before me the plan of the lot mentioned in your note of the 7th instant, I dare not speak, with certainty, as to its dimensions; and the price of landed property in the city fluctuates so much that it is difficult to form a proper estimate. Some idea of the value of the whole may be formed by calculating how many lots of 40 feet front by 100 in depth could be laid out in the square of which you speak, and fixing a value of about $3,000 for each, which, I suppose, would be the minimum price in ordinary times, at a reasonable credit. An offer has been made to the War Department by a gentleman who purchased the old barracks belonging formerly to the United States, to exchange them on a valuation for this square; to this offer I believe no answer has yet been returned.

I am, respectfully, your most obedient servant,

EDWARD LIVINGSTON.

PURCHASE OF LAND ON THROGG'S POINT, LONG ISLAND, NEW YORK, FOR A FORTIFICATION AND LIGHT-HOUSE.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, January 24, 1826.

SIR: In obedience to the resolution of the House of Representatives of January 23, 1826, directing "that the Secretary of War inform the House whether any arrangement has been made for the purchase of Throgg's Point, on Long Island sound; and, if any has been made, what sum will be necessary to carry the same into effect," I have the honor to submit the accompanying report of the chief engineer, who was intrusted with the negotiation for the purchase of Throgg's Point, under the direction of my predecessor, for the information required by the above-mentioned resolution.

As the present moment is probably the most favorable for obtaining the lands on Throgg's Point, I would respectfully recommend that an appropriation be made for fulfilling the agreement entered into for the purchase of the point, and also for the purchase of the right of way from the point to the public road, as stated in the accompanying documents furnished by the chief engineer.

I have the honor to be, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JAMES BARBOUR.

Hon. JOHN W. TAYLOR, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

ENGINEER DEPARTMENT, Washington, January 24, 1826.

SIR: In obedience to your directions to state whether any arrangement has been made for the purchase of Throgg's Point, Long Island sound, and, if any has been made, what sum will be required to carry the same into effect, as required by the resolution of the House of Representatives of yesterday, I have the honor to inform you that a conditional agreement was entered into between this department and Mr. C. H. Hammond on the 18th of February last, by direction of the Secretary of War, for the purchase of Throgg's Point, containing about fifty-two acres, for the sum of fifteen thousand dollars. Throgg's Point is the site of a fort projected by the board of engineers for the defence of the city of New York. Three acres of the fifty-two have been selected for a light-house; and, on finding a difficulty in procuring a site for the light-house, the collector of New York made an application to the legislature of the State, on behalf of the United States, for the cession of the jurisdiction of the three acres, and for the appointment of appraisers to ascertain the value of the land and the damage which would be sustained in consequence of a light-house being placed thereon. The cession was made and the appraisers appointed, who, under oath, awarded the sum of ten thousand five hundred dollars; which, however, the government did not think proper to accept. By the agreement entered into with Mr. Hammond the whole of the point, including the site for the light-house, was to be conveyed to the United States for the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, on the condition of Congress making the appropriation, viz: fourteen thousand dollars to be paid by the War Department, and one thousand dollars to be paid by the Treasury Department. A difficulty arose about a right of way leading to the public road; but Mr. Hammond, the present proprietor, renewed the agreement, with the addition of the right of way, under certain conditions, which were accepted. Copies of the agreement and of the acceptance are submitted, together with Colonel Totten's opinion of the property; also the correspondence on the subject, which has been submitted to the Committee of Finance of the Senate at the last session of Congress; but as there was not time to act upon the subject, the chairman returned the papers to the War Department. The papers referred to and accompanying this report are numbered from 1 to 8. In addition to these documents, a letter has been received from Mr. C. H. Hammond, dated the 5th of last month, stating his willingness to abide by the agreement referred to until the end of the present session of Congress, with the exception of that part which relates to right of way; upon which subject he recurs to the original proposition, viz: to take two thousand dollars for the right of way, as prescribed in the agreement, or to leave the amount to be paid to the award of arbitrators, to be appointed by both parties. I would recommend the acceptance of the right of way at two thousand dollars, as offered, rather than submit it to arbitration, or to leave it to future adjustment. A copy of Mr. Hammond's letter of the 5th December is herewith transmitted, marked A.

All which is respectfully submitted.

ALEX. MACOMB, Major General, Chief Engineer.

JAMES BARBOUR, Secretary of War.

No. 1.

NEW YORK, December 9, 1823.

SIR: Your letter of the 2d instant, on the subject of the value of Throgg's Point, is at hand. I am not in possession of any maps from which I can ascertain the quantity of land which ought to belong to the government in the event of their erecting the work projected for Throgg's Point, but my impression is that a tract of fifty acres would have its western boundary far enough inland for all purposes. You, however, on consulting the maps in the Topographical Bureau will be able to determine this matter with certainty.

As to the price demanded by Mr. Hammond, I have to observe that, though it is greatly beyond the real value of the land, there is no reason to doubt, from all experience in such transactions, and especially from the appraisement made, under oath, of three acres of this point for a light-house, that Mr. Hammond is right in saying that $15,000 "is a price much below what it will ever be had for by appraisement, or in any other way, after it has passed into other hands." Owners and appraisers always seem to act as well on the principle that it is fair to take advantage of the necessities of the general government, or on the more just ground that the damage is rather in bringing a body of soldiers, often undisciplined, into the neighborhood of the farmer than in reducing his farm. If, in the case of a light-house being required on the ground, which could only open the way to trifling depredations in comparison, such heavy damages were assessed by a jury, we may infer that damages at least not less heavy would be given when the ground was wanted for a military establishment. It is probable that, in treating with Mr. Hammond as to the exact limits, you may be able to obtain some reduction in the price, but I am of opinion that this tract can never be bought by the government at so reasonable a rate as under the circumstances which now induce Mr. Hammond to offer it. He cannot, indeed, obtain so much from an individual for farming purposes as he demands; but, on the other hand, he cannot sell the rest of his land advantageously if he sell this to the government. If the whole is bought by an individual, it will be with the determination of getting as much as possible for what the government may require. If the commencement of a work there were known to be at hand, I have no doubt Mr. Hammond's price would readily be given by moneyed men here, on speculation.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, &c.,

JOS. G. TOTTEN, Major Engineers, Brevet Lieutenant Colonel.

Brevet Major General ALEX. MACOMB,
Colonel commanding United States Engineers.

ENGINEER DEPARTMENT, Washington, December 18, 1823.

SIR: The Secretary of War has examined your report of the 9th instant, with regard to the piece of Mr. Hammond's property at Throgg's Point, whereon it is contemplated to erect a fort and light-house, estimated to be worth $15,000; and I am instructed by the Secretary of War to direct you to enter into a conditional purchase of the said property for the sum of $15,000, to be paid for by an appropriation from Congress this session, viz: $14,000 by the War Department, and $1,000 by the Treasury Department; the purchase to be on the contingency of the appropriation. You will employ a suitable person to examine the titles and papers, and to draw the instrument conveying the land to the United States in due form. You will attend to this subject as early as possible.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

ALEX. MACOMB, Major General, Chief Engineer.

Lieutenant Colonel J. G. TOTTEN,
Corps of Engineers, New York.

ENGINEER DEPARTMENT, Washington, February 21, 1825.

SIR: A letter was filed in this office by Mr. David B. Ogden, of New York, dated November 18, 1823, from A. Hammond, esq., of New York, stating that the government of the United States wanted a part of his land (Throgg's Point) to erect a light-house thereon; and that on his refusing to sell it an application was made by the collector of New York, on behalf of the United States, to the legislature of the State for the cession of the jurisdiction of three acres of the point, and for the appointment of appraisers to ascertain, on oath, the value of the land, and the damage which he would sustain in consequence of a light-house being placed thereon; that the cession was made, and appraisers appointed, who awarded $10,500; and that the government of the United States had not thought proper to accept a conveyance of the land upon the terms of the appraisement. The three acres of land in question are part of the position which the government will require for the site of a fort projected by the board of engineers for the defence of the city of New York; and as Mr. Hammond was desirous of selling his property at the point, Mr. D. B. Ogden was authorized by him to offer the whole point, consisting of fifty-two acres and upwards, for the sum of $15,000. Colonel Totten, of the engineers, was directed to ascertain the value of the land offered by Mr. Hammond, and to report his opinion to this department, in order that the same might be laid before you, and, if approved, the necessary appropriation asked for the purchase of the site. The report of Colonel Totten was examined by you, and I was directed to instruct Colonel Totten to make a conditional purchase of the said property for the sum of $15,000, to be paid for out of an appropriation to be made by Congress, viz: $14,000 to be paid by the War Department, and $1,000 by the Treasury Department; the purchase to be made upon the contingency of an appropriation, as will appear from my letter to him, dated December 18, 1823, a copy of which is submitted herewith; also a copy of Colonel Totten's report, dated December 9, 1823, before alluded to. A difficulty, however, arose about a right of way leading to the public road; but Mr. Charles H. Hammond, the present proprietor, has since renewed the agreement, with the addition of a right of way, under certain conditions, which have been accepted. Copies of the agreement and the acceptance thereof are submitted, together with Colonel Totten's opinion of the value of the property. I am acquainted with the position and am clearly of opinion that the terms are reasonable, and more so than could be obtained in any way hereafter; and considering the difficulty, expense, and delay of acquiring land under appraisements, I recommend that an appropriation of $14,000 be asked, in order that the site may be procured before the commencement of the contemplated fortifications, $1,000 being now in the treasury applicable to this purpose.

Respectfully submitted.

ALEX. MACOMB, Major General, Chief Engineer.

No. 4.

The owners of Throgg's Point, in the county of Westchester, in the State of New York, will accept the offer made by the Secretary of War for the purchase of the said point for the use of the government of the United States, at the sum of $15,000, provided the money be paid and the purchase completed on or before the first day of April next. Should the money not be paid by that time, this agreement is not to be considered as binding on the owners of said point.

The owner's will also agree to sell to the United States ground for a road to the said point for the further sum of $2,000, the said road to be laid over that part of the property of the present owners of the said point which is under the bank on the west side of the farm lately belonging to Abijah Hammond, esq., beginning at the most westerly dock on said farm, and running thence, above high-water mark, along the margin of the sound to the point, the land to be conveyed for said road whenever the government may please to pay the said sum of $2,000; it being always understood that the owners of said land lately belonging to Abijah Hammond, esq., shall have the privilege of using said road. Dated February 18, 1825.

C. H. HAMMOND.

If the government is not satisfied with the amount named in the above agreement for the purchase, &c., of the land for a road to Throgg's Point, the owners of the point are willing to leave that question subject to arbitration, whenever the United States may require the road.

C. H. HAMMOND.

No. 5.

WASHINGTON, February 18, 1825.

SIR: I agree to the alteration made in my proposition, viz: to limit the award of arbitrators as to the right of way. I wish it to be understood, however, that if Congress should not make the necessary appropriation this session I do not consider any part of the arrangement as binding on my part.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

C. H. HAMMOND.

Major General MACOMB.

No. 6.

WASHINGTON, February 18, 1825.

SIR: In relation to the subject just referred to me, namely, the contemplated purchase of Throgg's Neck, I have only to remark that I have hitherto considered that the sum of $15,000, demanded by Mr. Hammond for the tract of about fifty-two acres, is not unreasonable; and I am still of the same opinion. As to the further sum of $2,000 for a road-way along the water's edge, from the said tract to the public road at the ferry, I am not competent to express any opinion; for, in such cases, the proper amount depends rather on the inconveniences and damages arising to one part, than the value of the accommodation to the other. It is to be remembered that the present proprietors are not willing to sell the tract of fifty-two acres for the price stated, unless they are allowed to make a bargain at the same time for the right of way; or, in other words, they will not sell at all, if, by doing so, they are to leave any point to be mooted as to a legal right of way.

The proposition is now simply this: to sell the tract and also a road-way for $17,000; $2,000 of this sum to be paid whenever the United States think proper to improve the privilege as to the right of way.

Since the above was written, Mr. Hammond has suggested this alternative, viz: to sell for $15,000, leaving the price to be paid for the road-way to be determined by arbitration whenever the United States may require the road.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, &c.,

JOS. G. TOTTEN, Major of Engineers, Brevet Lieut. Col.

Brevet Major General ALEX. MACOMB, Colonel commanding United States Engineers.

ENGINEER DEPARTMENT, Washington, February 18, 1825.

SIR: I have submitted to the Secretary of War your proposition to sell Throgg's Point, in the county of Westchester, in the State of New York, to the United States for the sum of $15,000, as stated in your agreement of this date, with the right of way as proposed therein; and I am instructed to say that the Secretary of War accepts the offer, provided that the award of the arbitrators as to the right of way, should the government require it, should not exceed $2,000. It is understood that this arrangement cannot be binding without the assent of Congress, or the money paid until an appropriation be made.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

ALEX. MACOMB, Major General, Chief Engineer.

C. H. HAMMOND, Esq., Washington City.

WAR DEPARTMENT, February 21, 1825.

SIR: I have the honor to lay before you the accompanying report of the chief engineer, stating the advantages of procuring at this time the site selected by the board of engineers for a fort to be built on Throgg's Point, on the East river, in the State of New York, for the defence of the city of New York, and recommending the purchase of the same, as will more fully appear by reference to his report and the papers connected with it. The proprietors of the site are willing to sell to the government the quantity of land requisite for a site of a fort and light-house on terms which are thought reasonable. I submit to the consideration of the committee the propriety of their recommending at this time the appropriation of a sum necessary to enable the government to avail itself of the offer of the proprietors, viz: $14,000 for this department, the sum of $1,000 applicable to this purpose being now at the disposal of the Treasury Department.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

J. C. CALHOUN.

Hon. SAMUEL SMITH, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, Senate, U. S.

A.

NEW YORK, December 5, 1825.

SIR: As the agreement made on the 18th February last between the Department of War and myself, on the part of the owners of Throgg's Point, for the sale thereof, was not to be binding upon us after the 1st April ensuing, we beg to inform the department that we are willing to abide by that agreement until the end of the present session of Congress, with the exception, however, of that part of it which relates to compensation for the right of way. Upon this subject we have decided to recur to our original proposition, viz: we will either take $2,000 for the right of the way, as prescribed in the agreement, or we will leave the amount to be paid to the award of arbitrators to be appointed by both parties.

We would remind the department that two acres (or three) of this point are already in possession of the United States, for which we have never yet received $10,000 awarded by the appraisers appointed by an act of the legislature of the State of New York, at the application of the government of the United States. You are aware that the proposal to sell the whole point (say fifty-two acres, more or less) for $15,000 would include the $10,000 for the two or three acres already ceded.

Very respectfully, I am your obedient servant,

C. H. HAMMOND.

Major General MACOMB, Chief Engineer.

PROPOSITION TO WORK THE COPPER MINES ON LAKE SUPERIOR.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 27, 1826.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

The petition of the undersigned citizens of the State of New York and New Jersey respectfully represents: That your memorialists are desirous of undertaking to work the copper mines which are said to exist on the south shore of Lake Superior, within the jurisdictional limits of the United States. Your memorialists, or a part of them, made application to the late President Monroe, in April, 1822, for a privilege of the kind now asked for; and which, as they have understood, laid the foundation of an Executive message to the Senate on that subject in the month of December in the same year. From that period to the present no measures of a public nature have been taken respecting it; but, inasmuch as our country is dependent for copper on foreign supply, both for public and private use, it is believed to be a matter worthy of the attention of Congress. Of native ore, there is probably a sufficient quantity for our own wants within our own limits. Capital and enterprise are requisite to develop the mineral riches of our country; and although such undertakings are almost proverbially ruinous to the projectors, yet your memorialists have associated with them persons of capital and practical skill who, with adequate encouragement, are willing to encounter the hazards it may involve. Without entering into a detail of facts and considerations at the present time, your memorialists beg leave to express the prayer of their petition; which is, that in consideration of the great expenses and hazards of the experiment on their part, and of its important bearing as a leading effort, that a law may be passed authorizing the President of the United States to grant and confirm to them the right of ore on forty thousand acres of land to be selected and located on or near the south shore of Lake Superior, on the river Ontonagon, within ten years from the passage of the said act, for such rent reserved, either in money, or in copper sheets suitable for the use of the navy of the United States, as may be deemed just and reasonable, and subject to the condition that, if the petitioners, their heirs or assigns, shall not, within that time, have expended the sum $20,000 in exploring or working mines and minerals thereon, then the said grant shall be void; and that the memorialists be empowered to make fresh contracts with the Indians claiming the territory thereof as may be requisite to secure the declared objects of their undertaking. And, as in duty bound, they will ever pray.

BOUNTY LANDS UNFIT FOR CULTIVATION EXCHANGED.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 27, 1826.

Mr. Scott, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom were referred the petitions of Robert Brigham, Kelly Halsey, Richard Yielding, Francis Dunross, John Watson, John Hill, Benana Stafford, and George Frederick, soldiers in the late war, and the resolution of the 19th December on the same subject, reported:

That each of the petitioners were enlisted soldiers during the late war, who, severally, "faithfully performed his duty while in service," and obtained an honorable discharge; that to each of them lands have been patented as bounty lands in the military tract in the Territory of Arkansas. The petitioners state, and furnish evidence of the fact, that they are poor, and have removed from a great distance to settle on and cultivate the lands thus by them drawn; that they are aged, infirm, and men of families, but that, on arriving in the Territory to take possession of and settle on their lands, they find, as they prove, that the same is totally "unfit for cultivation," and that they could not subsist were they to settle thereon. The petitioners now ask of Congress to allow them to surrender the lands thus patented to them, and that they be allowed to locate and enter another quarter or half section "fit for cultivation" in lieu thereof.

The committee have examined the several acts of Congress passed to encourage enlistments during the late war, and find that every inducement was held out to engage men to enlist under the banners of their country; double, nay, triple bounty, three months' extra pay, double bounty of lands, protection to the widows and children of the soldier, and an exemption of the lands by them drawn from all liability for debts or contracts entered into before the date of the patent, were among the inducements held out to those who should join the army. The soldier was incapacitated by law from disposing of the land himself anterior to the date of the patent. All the provisions of the several laws go clearly to show that it was the intention of Congress to secure to the soldier, or to his wife and children, if he should die or fall in battle, a home; and this opinion is greatly strengthened by looking at the act of May 6, 1821, setting apart lands to satisfy the bounties promised by former and subsequent laws. In this law it is expressly provided, in so many words, that the lands which the soldiers are to receive shall "be fit for cultivation." This was one of the inducements to enlist, and forms a part of the contract between the soldier and the government. If, then, the government has been deceived by the surveyors who surveyed the land and stated it fit for cultivation when in fact it was not so; and if the soldier, in turn, has been deceived in receiving a patent for land "unfit for cultivation," when it should have been "fit for cultivation," the committee think it but just and fair on the part of the government to take in the land so by the soldier in the lottery drawn, and give him or his heirs other lands in lieu thereof. The committee are aware that a great portion of those lands have been sold and are now in the hands of third persons who purchased the same on a speculation. To this class the committee do not think any relief ought to be granted, nor do they intend to embrace them in any provisions they now recommend to the House. Those who have purchased procured them for but little, and not with an eye to settle and actually cultivate; but to the soldier, or his heirs, who have retained their land "to make it a home for themselves and families in the evening of life, the committee think it proper to grant relief. The committee have thought it best to report a general bill embracing all that class of cases similarly situated with the petitioners. The case of Moses Plummer fixed the principle. The committee think it right, and therefore report a bill.

RELINQUISHED LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 27, 1826.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 26, 1826.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 24th instant, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to furnish the House "with a detailed report of the average price at which the lands were originally sold which have been relinquished to the government in pursuance of the several acts 'for the relief of purchasers of public lands,' and, if any such may have been resold, the medium price at which they were resold in each land office district, respectively," I have the honor to transmit herewith a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated January 25, 1826, and the statement therein referred to, which contain the information required by the resolution.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect, your most obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 25, 1826.

SIR: In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives, dated January 24, 1826, in the following words: "Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to furnish this House with a detailed report of the average price at which the lands were originally sold which have been relinquished to the government in pursuance of the several acts for the relief of the purchasers of the public lands, and, if any such may have been resold, the medium price at which they were resold in each land office district, respectively," I have the honor to enclose to you the statement marked A, showing the quantity of land relinquished to the government in each land district, under the several acts for the relief of the purchasers of public lands, and the average price at which such lands were originally sold.

Of these lands, those relinquished under the act of 1821 have been offered at public sale, with the exception of those relinquished at the land office at Huntsville, and there appear to be but few instances where the lands thus offered have sold for more than the minimum price of one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre.

All which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE GRAHAM.

PROVISION FOR A SURVEYOR GENERAL FOR MICHIGAN.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 30, 1826.

Mr. WHIPPLE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was, by resolution of December 14, 1825, referred so much of the memorial of the legislative council of the Territory of Michigan as relates to the establishment of a surveyor general's office in said Territory, reported:

That as early as the year 1796 provision was made by law for the appointment of a surveyor general, whose duty it was made to engage a sufficient number of skilful surveyors as his deputies, whom he was to cause, without delay, to survey and mark the unascertained outlines of the lands lying northwest of the river Ohio and above the mouth of the river Kentucky.

The surveyor general had, by law, authority to frame regulations and instructions for the government of his deputies, and to remove them for any negligence or misconduct in office.

By the act of March 26, 1804, the powers vested in the surveyor general were extended over all the lands of the United States north of the river Ohio and east of the river Mississippi; and it was by said act made his duty to cause the said lands to be surveyed, and to do and perform all such other acts in relation to said lands as he was empowered to do and perform in relation to the lands of the United States situate northwest of the river Ohio and above the mouth of Kentucky river. On April 29, 1816, an act was passed to provide for the appointment of a surveyor general in the Territories of Illinois and Missouri, which reduced the quantity of the public lands placed by former acts under the jurisdiction of the surveyor general of the lands of the United States northwest of the river Ohio and east of the river Mississippi. Under the provisions of the several acts relating to the survey of the public lands northwest of the river Ohio, large quantities of land in the Territory of Michigan have been surveyed and brought into market; nor are the committee aware that all reasonable demands for the survey and sale of the public domain in the Michigan Territory have not been fully and seasonably met to the full extent of the wants of the people. By inspection of the plats of surveys in that Territory, it will be seen that a very large portion of the lands in Michigan to which the Indian title has been extinguished is surveyed. The committee are therefore of opinion that the accommodation which might be afforded to individuals residing within the Territory of Michigan would not justify the expense of such an office as is prayed for by the legislative council, and therefore recommend to the House the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petition ought not in this respect to be granted.

APPLICATION OF INDIANA FOR RELIEF OF PURCHASERS AND REDUCTION OF THE PRICE OF PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 31, 1826.

JOINT RESOLUTIONS of the general assembly of the State of Indiana relative to purchasers of public lands.

The general assembly of the State of Indiana, in behalf of her inhabitants, with grateful feelings acknowledge the relief and indulgence which her citizens have already received from the several very liberal acts which have been passed by the general government in aid of purchasers of public lands within her jurisdiction; and, with a full reliance upon the justice and forbearance of the United States, with all due deference beg leave to represent that many of her people have joyfully embraced the opportunity of taking advantage of an act of Congress for the relief of purchasers of public lands prior to July 1, 1820, approved March 2, 1821, and the several acts amendatory thereto; but from the scarcity of those funds that are receivable in the land offices in the western country, and the general want of a circulating medium, and the consequent depression in all kinds of business, and the absence of a market for the produce of the western farmer, it is becoming manifest that very many of those who availed themselves of the advantage of the said acts in extending the time of payment, and who belong to either the first or second class, will unavoidably fail to meet their instalments as they become due under the provisions of the existing statutes, and being aware that the last instalment on the second class becomes payable December 31, 1826: Therefore—

Resolved by the general assembly of the State of Indiana, That our senators in Congress be instructed, and our representatives requested, to use their best endeavors to procure the passage of a law which will extend the times of payment of the different instalments as they become due to those who may have filed their acceptance under the existing laws, in as ample a manner and for as great a period as the liberality of Congress will allow, and to prevent all debtors to the United States who hold certificates for lands purchased, which have been forfeited and remain unsold under the provisions of the acts of Congress, to avail themselves of the first, second, and fourth sections of the above-mentioned act of March 2, 1821.

Resolved, That our senators and representatives be instructed to make use of their best exertions to procure the passage of a law to graduate and reduce the price of public lands heretofore offered for sale in the old land districts, agreeably to a memorial of the general assembly of Indiana adopted at their January session in 1824.—(See No. 436.)

Resolved, That his excellency the governor be requested to forward a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolutions to each of our senators and representatives in Congress forthwith.

[1ST SESSION.]

APPLICATION TO LOCATE LAND IN LIEU OF SPANISH GRANT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 6, 1826.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The memorial of John Mathews, of the parish of Rapides, in the State of Louisiana, humbly sheweth: That Pedro Lamero, about the year 1791, obtained from Estevan Miro, then governor of the province of Louisiana, an order of survey for three thousand two hundred arpents of land, having a front of forty arpents on each side of Bayou Bœuf, with the depth of forty, in the post of Opelousas; that the register and receiver, forming a board of commissioners at Opelousas, recommended the claim of Lamero for confirmation, and it was afterwards confirmed by act of Congress of April 29, 1816, and by an act supplementary thereto passed in 1825, as will appear by reference to the certificate which accompanies this memorial, and lettered A. Your memorialist represents that Pedro Lamero sold and conveyed said land to John Thompson by deed passed before notary, dated October 27, 1818, as will appear by the annexed copy, B. And John Thompson, October 28, 1820, sold and conveyed eleven hundred and thirty-eight American acres of said land to your memorialist and John Stafford, on the west side or right bank of Bayou Bœuf, as will appear by reference to copy of deed C. Your memorialist represents that before the change of government no definitive line of division had ever been established between the districts or posts of Opelousas and Rapides, but that for the purpose of locating such claims on the Bayou Bœuf, as called to be, in the district of Opelousas, the surveyor general referred the question of boundary between the two counties to the decision of the register and receiver at Opelousas. Those officers established a line of division, and the claim of Lamero was located and surveyed in conformity therewith, and the location approved. This will be shown by reference to the copies from the surveyor general accompanying this memorial and lettered D. But your memorialist further represents that afterwards a suit was instituted by Isaac Baldwin, esq., against your memorialist and the said John Stafford to recover the land under a title calling to be located in the post of Rapides, and which had been surveyed and located in the same place without regard to the division line between the two counties as settled by the commissioners, and that your memorialist was evicted of the land on the ground that it had been in fact located in Rapides, contrary to the calls of the title. This will appear by reference to the decree of the court, a copy of which, lettered E, is annexed. Repeated applications were afterwards made to the surveyor general of the public lands south of Tennessee to change and remove the location of your memorialist's claim, and to give him lands somewhere else in lieu of that of which he had been evicted by the fault of the department, but that he has constantly refused to interfere, notwithstanding the judgment of a competent court. Copies of his letters above referred to will explain his views on the subject. Your memorialist further represents that previously to the decision of the said suit partition of the land had been made between your memorialist and John Stafford, and that the upper part was assigned to your memorialist, as will be shown by document F; that he had erected buildings and made other valuable improvements on his part of the land, which he has entirely lost. The annexed paper, G, will show the local situation of the land, and in what manner it was surveyed.

Your memorialist has applied in vain to the surveyor general to have the location removed until all the lands at that time vacant on the Bayou Bœuf, within the acknowledged limits of Opelousas, have been surveyed for other claimants. After paying a high price for a title which is admitted to be good and valid by the general government, and being ruined by the clashing opinions of courts of justice of undoubted competency, and of the officers of the surveying department, he finds himself without remedy unless your honorable body will interpose for his relief.

He therefore prays that Congress would grant him the same quantity of land which he has lost, to wit: five hundred and forty-two acres, to be located on any public and vacant lands on the Bayou Bœuff, in the parish of Rapides.

And, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

JOHN MATHEWS.

A.—No. of entry 529.—REPORT No. 50.—Class No. 2.

The heirs of Pedro Lamero claim 3,200 superficial arpents of land, viz: 40 arpents front on both sides of Bayou Bœuf, by 40 arpents in depth, in the county of Opelousas, held under an order of survey to Pedro Lamero, dated October 2, 1791, and signed by Estevan Miro, then governor of Louisiana. The order of survey accompanies the notice, and is for 40 arpents front on each side of the bayou, at the most convenient place being vacant. No conditions are attached thereto.—(See note B at the end of the report.)

LAND OFFICE AT OPELOUSAS, State of Louisiana, May 9, 1825.

I do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true and correct copy of the original in my office, reported by the register and receiver at Opelousas, acting as a board of commissioners for ascertaining and adjusting titles and claims to lands in the western district of the State of Louisiana, by virtue of the acts of Congress approved March 10, 1812, and February 27, 1813, in their report of December 30, 1815, under No. 50, and in class No. 2, which comprises "claims founded on authentic orders of survey conceded by the Spanish government of Louisiana, which, with or without proof of occupancy, ought, in the opinion of the said register and receiver, to be confirmed."

I do further certify the following to be a true and correct copy of note B, referred to in the above report.

The register and receiver are of opinion that, in justice and equity, all claims founded on orders of survey ought to be confirmed, and especially those in the western district. The conditions on the performance of which the completion of the title depended being inapplicable to the local circumstances and situation of the country, it is believed were never insisted upon. Indeed, by clearing the fronts of their lands to a certain depth the proprietors must, in most instances, have deprived themselves even of fuel. Cutting roads were necessary in very few instances, and making levees in scarcely any. Even claims founded on orders of survey, without special locations, conceded, for example, for any vacant land in the post of Opelousas, are considered as valid. It is known that such concessions were sometimes made for the remuneration of persons from whom lands had been taken by the Spanish government for garrisons or other public uses. The property so taken from the claimant or his ancestor has, by the cession of Louisiana, become vested in the United States. Would it then be just to withhold the indemnity for which the former government had become pledged? There are but few claims of this description, and if allowed, provision ought to be made for locating them so as to avoid conflicting with other private claims, though founded on titles of subsequent date, or with tracts of land to which occupants, under existing acts of Congress, are entitled to the right of pre-emption.

And I do further certify that the same has been acted upon and approved by act of Congress of the 29th day of April, in the year eighteen hundred and sixteen; and an act supplementary thereto, approved in the year eighteen hundred and twenty-five.

Given under my hand, at my office aforesaid, the day and year above written.

VALENTINE KING, Register.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, Washington, Miss., March 7, 1819.

SIR: Your letters of 27th January and 10th February on the subject of Mr. Stafford's claim in Opelousas have been received, and answered by my letters of the 27th and 28th ultimo, transmitted by mail.

Since these letters have been forwarded Mr. Stafford arrived here and produced several papers and documents on the subject of his claim, the boundaries of Opelousas, &c., &c. From a hasty view of these papers, and conversation with Mr. Stafford, I find that very few or no new lights have been thrown on the subject of the northern limits of Opelousas.

In addition to my observations to you on this subject, I will only further add that the most probable mode of deciding that question will be by referring it to the decision of the board of commissioners in your district. The information they must have already acquired on this subject from their official duties, with what they may further procure by specific investigation of the question, will, I conceive, enable them to decide, as satisfactorily as the nature of the case will admit, where the limits of Opelousas and Rapides should be fixed or admitted, so as to do justice to all parties concerned. Under these impressions I request you will submit the question to the board of commissioners where the northern limits of Opelousas shall be fixed for the purpose of locating private claims in that district, and abide by their decision in the location and survey of Mr. Stafford's claim, and all other claims similarly circumstanced.

I am, respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

THOS. FREEMAN.

GIDEON FITZ, Esq., Principal Deputy Surveyor.

N. B.—A copy of this letter has been delivered to Mr. Stafford. Let me know the decision of the commissioners on the above question.

Extract of a letter from Thomas Freeman, esq., surveyor, &c., to John Dinsmore, principal deputy surveyor, &c., dated SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, Washington, Miss., September 27, 1825.

On the subject of locating private claims you will see my opinion and instructions communicated to your predecessor, and particularly that of Mr. Stafford's claim, which has already caused more trouble to the department than any other claim. The mode that has been adopted to ascertain the limits of the districts of Opelousas and Rapides, on Bayou Boeuf, was by submitting the investigation and decision of that question to the register and receiver of the land office, who were in possession of all the facts on the subject that had fallen into the hands of the land commissioners, and who were at the trouble of procuring all the further additional information that they could collect or deemed necessary. They have examined and decided, without prejudice, interest, or bias, as public officers, the question, and fixed the point on the Bayou Boeuf, limiting the district of Opelousas and Rapides on that bayou. I have adopted the limits of those districts as fixed by the register and receiver, and ordered Stafford's claim to be surveyed accordingly within the district of Opelousas. The opinion and decision of the court, jury, and attorneys of Rapides, however respectable, cannot induce me to believe they acted in that case with better information or more impartiality than the register and receiver have done. Of course, my opinion is that the survey of Stafford's claim should not be removed by this department. Mr. Stafford may refer his case to the General Land Office, or petition Congress, or contend with his opponents; the next decision of the court may be in his favor.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your friend and servant,

THOS. FREEMAN.

JOHN MATHEWS AND JOHN STAFFORD. } Sixth district court, Parish of Rapides and State of Louisiana.

The plaintiff in this case has an order of survey and commissioner's certificate of confirmation thereon, in the name of Patrick Uriel, for twenty arpents front on the Bayou Boeuf, on the right-hand bank descending the same, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents, situated at the time of granting the order in the post of Rapides, bounded below by the lands of George Row, and above by vacant lands. He has also a conveyance of the right of Patrick Uriel to the said tract of land.

The defendants have an order of survey in the name of Pedro Lamiro, with the commissioner's certificate of confirmation thereon, for forty arpents front of land on both sides of the Bayou Boeuf, with the ordinary depth in the post of Opelousas, in the place which will suit him best, (en el parage que mas le accomodaire.) They have also a regular conveyance from the said Pedro Lamiro of the said land.

The plaintiff contends that his land is properly located by Kenneth McCrummen, January 27, 1819, as shown by the yellow lines on the plat marked L, and filed in the cause.

The defendants contend that their land is properly located by Joseph Irvine, April 16, 1819, as shown by the red lines on the plat marked L, and filed in the cause.

It appears from the date of the respective surveys that the plaintiff made the first location. The plat signed by James Haggard, dated December 3, 1818, is accompanied by no proof either of the signature of Haggard or of the fact of location by the chain-carriers, whose names are affixed to the plat, consequently can make no proof of a location. The title of the defendants is limited to the post of Opelousas; that of the plaintiff to the post of Rapides. Without reference to the acts done by the registers of the land office and receiver of public moneys in order to establish an equitable limit between the said two parishes, the court have no hesitation in declaring that there is a weighty, precise, and constant presumption that the limits of the parish of Rapides extended to Ray's ferry, three lines in a straight line from the centre of the tract of land as located by the plaintiff, and upwards of five miles from the same point, following the bank of Bayou Bœuf, as will appear by a reference to the testimony of Vollant Layssard, Stephen Lynch, and K. McCrummen, even admitting that the maxim of the law, "In antiquis enuntialio a probant," would not permit the reception of the record of the suit in 1809 between Corkroon and Peel, marked K, and filed in the cause. The land claimed by the plaintiff is in the parish of Rapides, and located in the parish of Rapides; his location is prior to that of the defendants. The title of the defendants call for land in Opelousas; the interference with the plaintiff is in the parish of Rapides. Their location is subsequent to that of the plaintiff. In cases of doubt as to the locality of title the first location should be respected. It is therefore ordered, adjudged, and decreed, that the plaintiff be forever quieted in the possession and enjoyment of the tract of land claimed in his petition against the claims of the defendants, and that the said defendants pay the costs of this suit to be taxed.

W. MURRAY, Judge Sixth District.

JULY 26, 1821.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy of the judgment in the above case.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed the seal of office, February 6,

PARISH OF AVOYELLES, State of Louisiana:

This memorandum of agreement, made on this first day of February, eighteen hundred and twenty-one, between John Stafford, of the parish of Avoyelles, of the one part, and John Mathews, of the parish of Rapides, of the other part, witnesses: That the said parties, having made a purchase of a tract of land lying on Bayou Bœuf, and received a title jointly for the same from John Thompson, of Opelousas, a reference to said sale recorded in the parish judge's office, parish of St. Landry, dated —, will more fully appear, have and do agree upon the following division of the same: John Mathews to keep the upper part of the tract thus described, and on which he now resides, to the amount of six hundred and forty American acres; and the balance, containing four hundred and ninety-five acres of the lower part, to belong to John Stafford. And there being a suit now depending in the supreme court of the parish of Rapides between these parties and Isaac Baldwin for a part of this tract of land, it is further agreed that, if said Baldwin should finally recover any part of the land, the loss, whatever it may be, shall be borne by the parties in the proportion of six hundred and forty by John Mathews and four hundred and ninety-five by John Stafford; and, after the determination of said suit, the line to be run out between them according to this agreement. And the parties hereby mutually relinquish all claim to the respective parts to the other.

[1ST SESSION.]

LAND CLAIMS IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 7, 1826.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 6, 1826.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith a report of the register of the land office at Opelousas, prepared in obedience to the act of Congress of May 11, 1820, entitled "An act supplementary to the several acts for the adjustment of land claims in the State of Louisiana."

The report embraces the examination of ninety-six claims, filed under the provisions of the said act in the land office at Opelousas previous to December 31, 1820. Of the claims recommended for confirmation, those marked A, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 25, 26, 31, 33, 34, 38, 39, 40, 42, 43, 44, 48, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 65, 66, 69, 70, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 82, and 83, are founded on grants or orders of survey, of which there is recorded evidence. The land, in almost every case, has been occupied by the parties claiming for a long series of years, and the quantities are such as the Spanish authorities were in the habit of granting to actual settlers. They are therefore recommended for confirmation on the grounds stated by the register, and under the presumption that the title papers on which the claims are founded are genuine.

The claim marked A No. 27, and recommended for confirmation by the register, is the claim of the Chetimache Indians, for themselves and those claiming under them. This claim is recommended for confirmation by the register to the extent of one square league. The register observes that "the documents herein adduced are equal to the highest order of grants." If these Indians had, under the Spanish government, an absolute right to the soil, it is presumed that their claim is equally good to the whole as to a part of the land occupied by them; but whether they had such right of soil, and to what extent their claim ought to be confirmed to themselves, and to those who have purchased from them, are questions submitted for the decision of Congress.

The claims marked A Nos. 29, 30, 64, 68, 74, and 81, are founded on titles derived, or said to be derived, from various officers of the government of Texas residing at Nacogdoches. As the powers of the different officers of Texas to grant the land in question, with several other questions incidental to the decision of these claims, (which cover a large extent of country,) will be necessarily involved in the decision to be made by Congress on some of the claims embraced in the report of the commissioners for ascertaining land titles in that part of the State of Louisiana situated between the Rio Hondo and the Sabine, dated November 1, 1824, these claims are therefore submitted for the consideration of Congress.

The claims marked A Nos. 32, 45, 46, and 47, are founded on concessions, but the evidence of title has been lost. The evidence to prove the validity of the claim, and the loss of the title papers, appearing to be satisfactory to the register, these claims are submitted for the favorable consideration of Congress.

The claims marked A Nos. 87 and 90 are not of that description which come within the provisions of the act; but as the tracts of land claimed are small, and as there has been long possession by the claimants, they are, upon equitable principles, entitled to the consideration of Congress.

The residue of the claims filed with the register have either been rejected or suspended for further consideration.

I have the honor to remain, with the highest respect, your obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, September 7, 1824.

SIR: Your predecessor, Mr. Wailes, made no report to this office relative to the claims filed with him, agreeably to the provisions of the second section of the "act supplementary to the several acts for the adjustment of land claims in the State of Louisiana," passed May 11, 1820. As the surveying of the private claims which have heretofore been confirmed in your district cannot be so closed as to give to the claims their respective sectional numbers until all the claims in each township shall have been finally acted upon, and as much time will be lost, and the claimants generally as well as the public subjected to great inconvenience by delaying the returns until a special act of Congress can be procured which shall authorize you to make the report which was required by law of Mr. Wailes, I take the liberty of suggesting the propriety of your investigating and reporting on the claims which have been filed with Mr. Wailes, when register, within the period prescribed by the act above mentioned.

Your report would be submitted to Congress, and I have no doubt would be acted upon by them in the same manner that any report would be which should be made under any act that might be passed at the next session authorizing you to report on these claims.

In making your report you will confine yourself to the provisions of the act which limits your jurisdiction to claims founded on Spanish grants, concessions, or orders of survey, and which shall have been filed with your predecessor previous to December 31, 1820. These restrictions are equally applicable to the claims provided for by the second and fourth sections of the act.

As to the form of your report, and the classification and numbering of the claims, I would refer you to the report made by Messrs. Wailes and Garrard, dated December 30, 1815, which affords the simplest form in which the substance of the evidence in each case may be embodied.

It is possible Mr. Wailes may have neglected to file some of the claims which may have been presented to him previous to December 31, 1820, or the evidence of their having been filed may have been lost. In such cases you will make a special report, accompanied by the evidence that the claim was filed within the period limited by law.

In addition to the fees for recording specified in the act, a part of which I presume Mr. Wailes has received, a further sum of $600 is allowed to the register for making this report, which Mr. Wailes has not received, and which would be paid to you whenever Congress should act upon the report.

I am, &c., &c.,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

VALENTINE KING, Esq., Register of the Land Office, Opelousas, Louisiana.

LAND OFFICE AT OPELOUSAS, State of Louisiana, October 13, 1825.

SIR: I have this day mailed, through your address, to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, my reports of the claims entered with my predecessor, by virtue of the law of Congress approved May 11, 1820, and in obedience to your request of September 8, 1824.

You are advised that, in December last, I had executed the work in one original, intending to present it to you in person, and to have it finished during my stay at Washington; but circumstances preventing my intended journey, I reserved them purposely for reconsideration. I have re-examined them with much care, and have had occasion to change my opinion in two claims only, which will be seen in the report of the particular claims. In a thorough examination which I have given the office this year, I have found among files purporting to contain affidavits and depositions in claims long since decided by the board of commissioners, and in other places where I as little expected it, twelve or fourteen claims which have been included in the report from Nos. 84 to 96, both inclusive. The circumstances most strongly inducing me to recommend some claims for reconsideration, was the unfortunate negligence which my predecessor had shown both in his public and private affairs, which I concluded might possibly have been the cause of no testimony having been taken to support a doubtful grant.

These claims are to the number of 14, and I have observed in the introduction that they are designated in the recapitulation by the letter R, in red ink; but this circumstance was forgotten, and I must beg the favor of you to cause it to be done. They are as follows, viz:

- No. 28. John Thompson.
- No. 36. John Thompson.
- No. 35. Celistin Lavergne.
- No. 37. Stephen Tippet.
- No. 41. John José Caradine.
- No. 49. Legal representatives of Miguel Erasmo.
- No. 50. Legal representatives of Juan de Leon.
- No. 51. Martin Despallier.
- No. 57. Santiago Crus.
- No. 58. Legal representatives of Juan Lopez.
- No. 67. Legal representatives of Pierre and Julien Besson.
- No. 71. Juan Aldereta.
- No. 72. Jean Tomazeau.
- No. 73. Louis Duran.

This work disposed of, we shall turn our attention to the pre-emption claims, and I think I shall be able to return all the forfeited claims in about two weeks.

Among these, claims are found to the number of forty or more on which no payments appear to have been made; they have been, consequently, thus marked and thrown aside, because where there is no payment there is no forfeiture. If, however, it is necessary to make any return of these, you will please direct it.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant,

VALENTINE KING.

Hon. GEORGE GRAHAM, Commissioner General Land Office, Washington.

LAND OFFICE AT OPELOUSAS, State of Louisiana, October 1, 1825.

The undersigned, register of the land office at Opelousas, in the State of Louisiana, in obedience to the wishes of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in his letter of September 7, 1824, has the honor to report the following claims for lands which have been entered at this office pursuant to the second and fourth sections of an act of Congress entitled "An act supplementary to the several acts for the adjustment of land claims in the State of Louisiana," approved May 11, 1820.

On examination of these claims, the plan of the former register, (whose duty it was to have made these reports on the first of January, 1821,) as far as it can be learned from the small progress of his work, was to have given the nature of his claim, with the documents and evidence in support thereof, in one series; and his remarks, or "his opinion of the credit to which the evidence was entitled," as expressed in the act of Congress, in another.

It will be seen that this plan has not been pursued in the following reports, for reasons that will appear very obvious.

The plan adopted by the register and receiver of this district in their report of December 30, 1815, was recommended to the undersigned by the Commissioner of the General Land Office in his letter before alluded to; but considering the nature of these claims, confined to grants and orders of survey, this minute classification was considered unnecessary, and the simpler mode has therefore been adopted of prefixing to the numbers the letters A and B, the former to denote a favorable report, the latter the contrary. Some of the claims have been recommended for reconsideration, and are marked in the recapitulation with the letter R, in red ink.

A No. 1. John Andrus claims a tract of land containing 252 superficial arpents, equal to 213.52 American acres, to wit: six arpents in front by forty-two arpents in depth, situated in the quarter of Belieu, in the parish of St. Landry, about three leagues from the church of Opelousas, in a southwesterly direction; bounded, at the date of the concession, on one side by land conceded to Lanuge Bourge, and on the other side by land of one Padion.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, that is to say: 1st, the requête of Joseph Landry, dated February 27, 1778, soliciting a grant of the tract of land above described; 2d, the certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Opelousas and Attakapas, stating that the land solicited was of his Majesty's domain, dated March 3, 1778, to which is subjoined, 3dly, the concession or order of survey by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited; this instrument is given at New Orleans under the signature of the governor, De Galvez, but without date; 4th, the certificate of the same commandant, setting forth that, in pursuance of the governor's decree, he had put the party in possession of the land solicited, and fixed his boundaries in presence of the neighbors, whose names are subscribed; this is dated at Opelousas, June 2, 1778; 5th, a deed of obligation, dated at Opelousas, January 29, 1780, by which Joseph Landry, the grantee, promises to make a transfer in due form, after the titles of his land shall have been perfected, to Fabien Richard, in exchange for other land; 6th, a deed of sale from Fabien Richard to Baptiste Grange, dated January 7, 1787; 7th, a deed of sale from Fabien Landry and Jean Baptiste Grange to David Arkason, dated September 2, 1817; and, 8th, a deed of sale from David Arkason to the claimant, dated the 5th October, in the year 1818. In this claim the signatures of the governor and commandant, and particularly the handwriting of Mr. De Clouet, appear to be genuine, and there is no doubt that the documents throughout are authentic, and entitled to the fullest credit. From the best information, the land has been occupied for near forty years. The confirmation is therefore recommended.

A No. 2. George King, and the legal representatives of Simon Taylor, deceased, claim a tract of land containing three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, equal to two thousand seven hundred and eight American acres, to wit: forty arpents in front on the Bayou Boeux, with a depth of forty arpents on each side of said bayou, adjoining on the upper side to land conceded by the Spanish government to Jacques Lafleur, and on the lower side to vacant land; one undivided moiety of the said land being the property of the said George King, and the other that of the legal representatives of the said Simon Taylor, deceased.

In support of this claim the following documents of title are filed: 1st, a requête in the name of Laurent Dupré, dated at Opelousas, October 29, 1791, for the tract of land above described; to which is subjoined an order of survey by Governor Miro, dated at New Orleans, November 9, 1791, ordering the commandant of the post of Opelousas to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, with no other condition than that it shall not prejudice any other person; 2d, a deed of sale duly executed and authenticated from Laurent Dupré to Simon Taylor for the entire tract of land described, dated December 14, 1818; 3d, a deed of sale from the said Simon Taylor to George King for one undivided moiety of the said tract, dated December 23, 1818.

In support of this claim, the following oral testimony has been adduced: General Garrigues sworn and examined before the register, says that he brought from the city of New Orleans the order of survey or concession made by Governor Miro in favor of Laurent Dupré; that he received it from Mr. François Thomequez some time in the spring of 1817 or 1818; that Mr. Thomequez inquired of deponent if he knew such a man in Opelousas as Laurent Dupré, to which deponent replying in the affirmative, the said Thomequez said he had found a concession of land to said Dupré among the private papers of his, the said Thomequez's, deceased father-in-law, Mr. Pedesclaux, formerly a notary public in the city of New Orleans. Deponent says that he knew Mr. Pedesclaux in his capacity of notary public; that Laurent Dupré requested him, the deponent, to search for the paper in question, knowing that it must have been in some of the public offices in the city; that he inquired of Mr. F. Duplessis, with whom the concession was said to have been left; that said Duplessis informed deponent he had said concession, among others, which he had deposited in the proper office of the government, or land department. The deponent then searched in all the offices of persons whom he understood had been notaries under the Spanish government, but could never find the concession until the time above mentioned. Deponent says that his searches had always been directed among the public papers of the said notaries, and was informed by Mr. Thomequez that it was found among the private papers of the said notary as above stated. Deponent says that since the year 1805, being the year of his arrival at Opelousas, and at that time, and many years after, a surveyor for the United States by the appointment of Mr. Briggs, surveyor general, he has often heard from the said Laurent Dupré and the inhabitants that he had a title for the land in question, but that it had been mislaid in New Orleans; that he had always understood the Spanish government had granted a tract of land to each of the three brothers, Jacques Dupré, Laurent Dupré, and Antoine Dupré; the first being the uppermost tract, that of Laurent Dupré adjoining, and that of Antoine the next below.

Jacques Dupré, being sworn and examined before the register, says he distinctly recollects that the requêtes of his two brothers, Laurent and Antoine Dupré, were, about the time of their dates, sent by Mr. François Pitre, sen., to New Orleans, to obtain on them the necessary concession from the governor; that, on the return of said Pitre, he informed this deponent that he had left the said requêtes in the hands of Mr. François Duplessis, who had engaged to pay the necessary attention to them. Deponent further says that, some time afterwards, going to New Orleans, he was requested to ask for the said concessions; that on his arrival in the city he applied to Mr. Duplessis, who expressed surprise at learning that the grants had not been sent up, remarking that he had placed the requêtes in the proper office without delay, to be carried into grants; that he, the deponent, then inquired at the land offices, but that the papers could not be found during his stay. Deponent being asked if he knew why the certificate of the commandant or surveyor had not been obtained to the requêtes in question, says he was informed by Mr. Piernass, an attorney-at-law, the son of the late governor at Illinois, that it was not necessary, and that he relied on such information as correct.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine and in due form, except the usual certificate of the commandant, of the vacancy of the land, which is certainly not material to the validity of the grant.

The testimonial proof may be relied upon implicitly, the witnesses who have deposed being gentlemen of the first respectability.

The claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 3. Cyprien Arceneau claims a tract of land containing 720 superficial arpents of land, equal to 609.30 American acres, to wit: eighteen arpents in front by forty in depth, situated on the west side of the Vermilion river, in Grand Prairie of Attakapas, at the extremity of the depth of the land which he owns by purchase on the Vermilion river.

In support of this claim the following documents of title, given as copies from the land office of the eastern district of Louisiana by Charles Appé, signing as clerk and translator of the land office, have been filed: 1st. The requête for the land in question by the claimant, and dated March 6, 1801, with the opinion of the fiscal royal, dated May 20, 1802, together with the decree of the intendant general, Morales, dated June 2, 1802. The following testimonial proof has been adduced in this claim, to wit: Edward Prejean, sworn and examined before the register, hath deposed as follows: "That he is thirty years of age, a native of Attakapas, and resides within less than two miles from the land in question; that it is within his knowledge that the claimant has occupied and cultivated the said land for fifteen or eighteen years; that the claimant, from the earliest recollection of deponent, resided on the front tract, of which the land in question is the second depth, until eight or nine years past, when he built on the tract now claimed, (meaning the westernmost one,) where he has resided ever since; that the claimant is also a native of Attakapas, and about thirty-six years of age, charged with the support of a wife and five children.

The claimant in this case appears to have used due diligence to obtain the original document, which is the basis of his title, and there is no doubt the original title paper does exist in the land office at New Orleans.

The testimonial proof in this claim is very credible, and the claimant himself a man of good moral character.

The claim is therefore recommended for confirmation, and, in this event, it is further recommended that the sum of \$253 87 $\frac{1}{2}$ be refunded to the claimant, that amount having been paid by him at this office July 6, 1820, by virtue of the 5th section of an act of Congress of March —, 1811, and revived May 11, 1820, of which he availed himself to avoid being disturbed in his possession,

A No. 4. The legal representatives of Jean Baptiste Melançon, of the parish of St. Martin's, claim a tract of land containing 240 superficial arpents, equal to 203.10 American acres, to wit: six arpents in front with forty arpents in depth, situated in the Grand Prairie of Attakapas, on the west side of the river Vermilion, adjacent to and back of a tract heretofore conceded by the Spanish government to the said Jean Baptiste Melançon.

In support of this claim the following authenticated copies of documents under the hand of John W. Gurley, late register of the eastern district of the then territory of Orleans, have been filed, that is to say: 1st. The requête of Jean Baptiste Melançon, dated March 6, 1801, soliciting the grant of the tract of land above described. 2d. The certificate of Louis C. de Blanc, commandant of the post of Attakapas, of the same date, stating that the land petitioned for may be granted. 3d. The opinion of Gilbert Leonard, dated at New Orleans, May 19, 1802, to which is subjoined, 4th, the order of the intendant general, Morales, granting the prayer of the said petitioner as soon as the petitioner shall have forwarded a survey of the said land.

The title papers in this claim appear to be in the usual forms; the claimant states that the original having been refused to him, he could only file copies. There is no doubt but that the originals do exist in the land office at New Orleans.

The claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 5. Robert Taylor, of the county of Opelousas, as the agent or representative of Leon Bertamy, claims a tract of land of 2,400 superficial arpents, equal to 2,031 American acres, to wit: thirty arpents front on the Bayou Huffpower, in the county of Opelousas, with the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the said bayou. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st, the requête of the said Leon Bertamy, dated March 14, 1792, soliciting a grant of the tract of land above described; to which is subjoined, 2d, a certificate dated March 14, 1792, stating that the land solicited was of his Majesty's domain, with the signature of "Fran'co Forstal" subjoined thereto; and, 3d, the concession or order of survey by Baron de Carondelet, ordering Don Carlos Trudeau, surveyor, to put the party in possession of the land solicited, and dated at New Orleans, May 15, 1792. "That the document on which this claim is predicated counterfeit, almost to demonstration, is manifest. The register believes it to be counterfeit, because the requête and the order of survey annexed to it are both in a handwriting which he knows very well to be that of a Spaniard who was in this town two or three years past, and, from information, is believed not to have come to the country, certainly not to Opelousas, until long since the change of government; because, for the purpose probably of changing the appearance of the paper and the writing, and making both seem as ancient as their date, the paper had been so completely saturated by the application of some saline mixture as to become damp whenever the atmosphere was humid, so much so that it became necessary to wrap it in several folds of waste paper to prevent the injury of other papers in the bundle in which it was filed, until, by changing these envelopes, the effect has in a great degree been counteracted; because, from good authority, it is believed that the bayou called Huff-power, where this land is claimed, was so little known, and the lands on it so little esteemed, that none of them were granted under the Spanish government; and if the bayou was known, it was not by the name of Huffpower nor of 'Ozpor,' as it is written in the requête, but by that of 'Sanfacon,' because, although in the petition or requête Leon Bertamy is called an inhabitant of the parish of Opelousas, none of the present inhabitants of Opelousas ever knew the man or any family of that name; because Opelousas has at no time been known as a parish by that name, but at the date of this requête was called the post, sometimes the district of Opelousas, and subsequently the county of Opelousas and parish of St. Landry; because, to the certificate stating the land solicited was of the King's domain the name of Franc. Forstal is affixed as the commandant of Opelousas, when it is well known that no such person was ever commandant of Opelousas, but that at the date of said requête Mr. Nich. Forstal was the commandant; and, lastly, because a paper has been presented at this office, in the same handwriting of the one under consideration, purporting to be an order of survey conceded by the Baron de Carondelet for land on the same bayou, to which the name of Balentine Layssard is signed instead of Valentine Layssard, who was at that time commandant of the post of Rapides."

The foregoing is an exact copy of the opinion of the former register with whom these claims were filed, he having reported his opinions as far as this number. It appears, indeed, so well founded and correct that it has been adopted entire, and the claim is therefore not recommended for confirmation.

B No. 6. David Caruthers, of the county of Attakapas, claims a tract of land containing 420 superficial arpents, equal to 355.43 American acres, to wit: ten arpents in front with forty-two arpents in depth, situated in a place commonly called the Grand Prairie of Attakapas, on the right bank of the Bayou Vermilion, bounded on the lower side by Pierre Bernard's part of the same original tract. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, that is to say:

1st. The requête of Amant Prejean, dated November 27, 1776, soliciting a grant of a tract of land of twelve arpents by forty-two arpents in depth. 2d. The certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Opelousas and Attakapas, stating that the land prayed for was of his Majesty's domain, dated November 28, 1776. 3d. The order of survey by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, dated April 1, 1777. 4th. The commandant's certificate stating that, in pursuance of the governor's order, he had put the party in possession, and fixed the boundaries of the land prayed for, in presence of the neighbors whose names are subscribed to the said certificate, dated September 4, 1777. 5th. The title in form to Amant Prejean, the petitioner, dated at New Orleans, March 5, 1778, and signed by Governor de Galvez. 6th. An extract from the general sale of the property of the said Amant Prejean by the Chevalier de Clouet, January 16, 1788, whereby the above-described land was sold to William Caruthers, the said extract being signed by Francisco y Luengo Caso, commandant of Attakapas, and dated July 2, 1795. 7th. A plat of survey of the above-described land by Gosouint, dated July 4, 1795. 8th. A deed of sale passed before Luengo and witnesses, January 2, 1796, from William Caruthers to the claimant for four arpents front of said tract, with the ordinary depth. The claimant states in his notice that he will produce in due time the title for the remaining six acres which he claims. In this claim the documents are no doubt authentic and genuine. In the abstract of patents one is found corresponding with that filed herein. But on examining the claims confirmed by the commissioners, two arpents front of this tract are found to be confirmed to Pierre Bernard, and the other ten arpents now claimed are found confirmed to William Caruthers by commissioners' certificate A No. 2122. This, therefore, ought not to be confirmed.

B No. 7. Gerard and Hypolite Chretien, brothers, of the parish of St. Landry, inheriting from their deceased brother, Pierre Chretien, claim a tract of land containing three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, equal to two thousand seven hundred and eight American acres, being forty arpents front on the Bayou Nezpique, with forty arpents in depth on both sides of said bayou, in the said parish of St. Landry, bounded on one side by the land of McNamara, and on the other side by vacant land.

In support of this claim the following documents are filed: 1st. A title in form, signed by Bernardo de Galvez, dated August 23, 1781, to Pierre la Cost for the tract of land above described. 2d. A deed of sale duly executed and authenticated from John Gradnigo to the aforesaid Pierre Chretien, dated October 9, 1806, for the above land. 3d. A plat of survey of the above-described land by William Darby, a deputy surveyor under the authority of the United States, dated August 25, 1816.

On examining the claims confirmed by the commissioners, this tract is found to have been confirmed to Pierre Chretien precisely as herein described by the certificate marked A No. 1887. It is therefore not recommended for confirmation.

A No. 8. Gerard and Hypolite Chretien, brothers, of the parish of St. Landry, joint heirs of Joseph Chretien, deceased, claim a tract of land containing 480 superficial arpents, equal to 406 American acres, being twelve arpents front by forty arpents in depth on the Bayou Bourbeaux, in the prairie called at the date of the concession of said land, "Grand prairie," in the county of Opelousas.

The claimants file in support of their claim the following documents: 1st. A requête in the name of Louis St. Germain, dated September 16, 1776, for the above-described tract of land. 2d. The certificate of approval by the commandant, the Chevalier de Clouet, dated September 17, 1776. 3d. The order of survey by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, and dated April 1, 1777. 4th. The certificate of the same commandant, stating that he had put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, dated June 10, 1777. 5th. The patent or title in form by Governor de Galvez, dated July 9, 1777. 6th. The deed of sale from Louis St. Germain to Mr. Chretien, December 7, 1781, and passed before the Chevalier de Clouet and witnesses. 7th. A plat of survey of the said tract of land together with an adjoining one, dated April 7, 1793.

The documents in this claim seem to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation. As, however, the family of the claimants is large, and they have not established an exclusive heirship, the register recommends, as in the foregoing claim, that the confirmation should be in the names of the heirs and legal representatives of Joseph Chretien.

A No. 9. Gerard and Hypolite Chretien, brothers, of the parish of St. Landry, claim a tract of land containing 240 superficial arpents, equal to 203.10 American acres, to wit: six arpents front by the depth of forty arpents on the Bayou Bourbeaux, in the prairie called at the date of the concession of said land Grand prairie. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of Louis St. Germain, dated June 17, 1777. 2d. The certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, commandant of the post of Opelousas, stating the land above described to be of the domain, dated July 2, 1777. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land prayed for, dated July 21, 1778. 4th. Certificate of same commandant, stating that he had put the party in possession of the said land, and fixed his boundaries in presence of a neighbor, whose name is subscribed to the said certificate, dated at Opelousas, October 26, 1778. 5th. The patent or title in form to Louis St. Germain for the said described tract of land, dated at New Orleans, June 23, 1781, and signed by Governor de Galvez. The claimants refer, 6thly, to a deed of sale filed in their claim No. 8, from the said Louis St. Germain to Mr. Chretien, dated December 7, 1781, and passed before the Chevalier de Clouet and witnesses, and likewise to a plat of survey filed in the said last-mentioned claim of said tract of land, dated April 8, 1793.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and the confirmation is therefore recommended, and for the same reasons as in the preceding claim, to the heirs and legal representatives of Joseph Chretien.

A No. 10. Gerard and Hypolite Chretien, brothers, of the parish of St. Landry, heirs of the deceased Joseph Chretien, claim a tract of land containing 1,600 superficial arpents, equal to about 1,354 acres American measure, being for forty arpents front with forty arpents in depth on Bayou Bourbeaux, adjoining other land of the claimant.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st. The requête of Joseph Chretien, their deceased father, dated at Opelousas, July 20, 1774, soliciting a grant of the tract of land above described. 2d. The certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Opelousas and Attakapas, stating that the land solicited was of his Majesty's domain, and that the said Joseph Chretien had been settled on it three months, dated July 22, 1774. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor de Unzaga, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, and to fix and place the boundaries thereof, dated January 19, 1776. 4th. The certificate of the same commandant, setting forth that, in pursuance of the governor's decree, he had put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited in presence of a neighbor, whose name is subscribed, dated September 27, 1776. 5th. The patent or title in form to Joseph Chretien for the said tract of land, dated at New Orleans, October 7, 1776, and signed by Governor de Unzaga. 6th. A plat of survey of the said land by Christ. Bolling, dated February 21, 1806.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and the confirmation is therefore recommended, and for the same reasons as in claims Nos. 7, 8, and 9, to the heirs and legal representatives of Joseph Chretien.

A No. 11. Gerard and Hypolite Chretien, brothers, and joint heirs of Joseph Chretien, late of Opelousas, deceased, claim a tract of land containing 1,200 superficial arpents, equal to 1,015½ acres, American measure, being for thirty arpents front with forty arpents in depth on Bayou Bourbeaux, adjoining other land of the claimants.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. An authenticated copy of a requête in the name of the aforesaid Joseph Chretien for the above-mentioned tract of land, dated April 24, 1802. 2d. A certificate of approval of the same date, signed by Martin Duralde, then commandant of the post of Opelousas, stating that the land solicited was of his Majesty's domain. 3d. The proceedings of the fiscal royal and other officers under the Spanish government at New Orleans. 4th. The decree of Morales, then intendant of the province of Louisiana, dated October 7, 1802, granting the said land as solicited.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and the confirmation is therefore recommended, and for the same reasons as in the preceding reports, to the heirs and legal representatives of Joseph Chretien.

A No. 12. Joseph Young, sr., of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of land containing four hundred superficial arpents, equal to about three hundred and thirty-eight and one-half acres, American measure, being for ten arpents front on Bayou Cannes, in the said parish of St. Landry, with the depth of forty arpents, bounded, at the time solicited, on all sides by vacant land. The following documents of title have been filed in support of this claim:

1st. The requête of Pierre Fontenot, soliciting the above-described land, dated at Opelousas, May 14, 1780. 2d. The certificate of approval, stating that the land solicited was of the domain, and signed by the commandant of Opelousas, the Chevalier de Clouet, and bearing date May 19, 1780. 3d. The order of survey or concession by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, and dated at New Orleans, June 20, 1781. 4th. A deed of sale of the above-described land, passed before George King, notary, and witnesses, at Opelousas, December 21, 1820, from one William Hay to the said Joseph Young, sr., the claimant; in which deed it is stated that Pierre Fontenot, the petitioner, sold the said land to Joseph Ouachin, who sold it to Robert McKim, and by him left to his wife, who sold the same to the said William Hay, her son-in-law, the aforesaid sales all having been made by a delivery of the title papers.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine. The chain of title being defective from the original claimant, (the sale of real estate in Louisiana requiring an act before a notary public and witnesses,) it is therefore recommended for confirmation in the name of the legal representatives of Pierre Fontenot.

A No. 13. The legal representatives of Alexander de l'Home, late of the county of Attakapas, claim a tract of land containing two thousand superficial arpents, equal to sixteen hundred and ninety-two and one-half acres, American measure, being for fifty arpents front with forty in depth, situated in the parish of St. Martin's, on the right bank of the river Teché; bounded on the upper side by land conceded to Fusilier de la Clair, and vacant land, and on the lower side by the land of Pierre Nezat.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, that is to say: 1st. A plat of survey, by Don Carlos Trudeau, of the above-described tract of land, in favor of Madame Marie Jeanne Caron, widow of Joseph Deville de Goutin, stating that the same had been granted to her by the order of Governor Miro, dated May 9, 1786, and likewise by the patent or title in form of the Baron de Carondelet, dated May 24, 1792. 2d. The confirmation of the above grants to the said Marie Jeanne Caron, widow of Joseph Deville de Goutin, signed by Morales April 8, 1802. 3d. A deed of sale, dated July 30, 1802, passed before Antoine N. Broutin, public writer, of the above-described tract of land, from Charles Jumonville de Villier to Alexander de l'Home, in which sale it is stated that the said Charles Jumonville de Villier had acquired the same by purchase from the grantee, Marie Jeanne Caron, widow of Joseph de Villier.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine. The sale from the original grantee, Caron, is wanting; but in the deed from Charles Jumonville de Villier, before the notary public in the city of New Orleans, of date July 30, 1802, mention is made by the said notary that the said Marie Jeanne Caron had sold the land in question to the said De Villier on the 21st of the same month, by a public act before the same notary. The undersigned register considers this a sufficient proof of sale to warrant the confirmation in the name of the claimant, which is recommended accordingly.

A No. 14. The legal representatives of Alexander de l'Home, late of the county of Attakapas, deceased, claim a tract of land containing five hundred and four superficial arpents, equal to four hundred and twenty-six and one-half acres, American measure, being for twelve arpents front with forty-two in depth, situated in the large cove of the Prairie Gros Chevreuil, and bounded on one side by the land of Fusilier de la Clair, and on the other by the land of Pierre Nezat.

The following documents of title have been filed in support of this claim, to wit: 1st. The requête of Jean Dartes, dated August 24, 1775. 2d. The certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Attakapas, stating that the land solicited and above described was of his Majesty's domain, dated August 24, 1776. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to settle the petitioner on the land solicited, to wit: twelve arpents front with forty-two in depth. 4th. The certificate of possession by Mr. De Clouet, dated November 8, 1777, by which he certifies to have measured to the grantee twelve arpents front with twenty arpents in depth in the woods, and twenty arpents in the prairie.

The patent in form by the said Governor de Galvez, dated March 5, 1774, conceding the said twelve arpents front with twenty arpents in depth—which word “twenty” the claimants contend is a mistake, and should have been forty-two to embrace the quantity expressed in the first concession of the said governor, or forty to correspond with the quantity of which the commandant appears to have put the petitioner in possession. An instrument of writing signed by the said Chevalier de Clouet, and dated June 15, 1786, whereby Mr. De Clouet, jr., confesses to have transferred the titles to the above-described land to his cousin, the Chevalier de l'Home, in exchange for another tract; and further, that he, Mr. De Clouet, jr., became the proprietor of the said land by purchase from Mr. Latiolais, to whom it was sold by the petitioner, Dartesse.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine; and, from the tenor of the whole proceedings, the equitable extent of the claim ought to be twelve by forty arpents. The requête asks for the depth of forty-two arpents. The actual location of the commandant, in presence of the claimant and the adjoining proprietors, is for the depth of forty arpents, viz: twenty in the woods and twenty in the prairie; the title in form gives, indeed, but twenty arpents in depth, but the mistake might have very naturally happened from the hurry incident to these proceedings, and the actual subdivision of that number of acres into woods and prairies in the return of the commandant.

The claim is therefore recommended for confirmation for twelve arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, to the legal representatives of Alexander de l'Home.

A No. 15. The legal representatives of Anaclet Broussard, late of the parish of St. Martin's, deceased, claim a tract of land containing three hundred and twenty superficial arpents, equal to 270.80 acres, American measure, being eight arpents in front with forty arpents in depth, commencing at the termination of the depth of the land of the late Silvain Broussard, father of Anaclet, whose land fronts on the river Teché, in the parish of St. Martin's. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st. The requête of Anaclet Broussard, dated January 29, 1798, praying for the grant of the tract of land above described. 2d. The reference by the commandant of Attakapas to the surveyor, Mr. Gonsolin, dated January 29, 1798. 3d. The certificate of Mr. Gonsolin, stating that the above-mentioned land is vacant. 4th. The certificate of the commandant of Attakapas, Louis Le Blanc, dated February 7, 1798, stating that no objections existed to the lands being granted to the petitioner. 5th. The concession or order of survey by Governor Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, dated October 24, 1798, ordering the surveyor to put the party in possession of the land solicited.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 16. The legal representatives of Ignace Babin, of the parish of St. Martin's, claim a tract of land containing four hundred and twenty superficial arpents, equal to 355.27 American acres, to wit: ten arpents in front with forty-two arpents in depth, in the Grand Prairie of Attakapas, bounded, at the date of the concession, on one side by the lands of Joseph Babin, and on the other side by the King's domain.

In support of this claim the following document of title has been filed, that is to say: An authenticated copy, under the hand of Samuel H. Harper, register of the eastern district, of a patent or title in form to the said Ignace Babin, granting to him the above-described land, dated March 5, 1778, and signed by Governor de Galvez. The patent mentioned in this claim corresponds with one on the abstract of patents certified by the register at New Orleans for the use of this office; but, on examining the claims, this is found to have been confirmed to Thomas Caruthers by commissioners' certificate No. 1756. It is, therefore, not recommended for confirmation.

A No. 17. The legal representatives of Solomon Andrus, late of the county of Attakapas, deceased, claim a tract of land containing four hundred and eighty superficial arpents, equal to ____ American acres, to wit: twelve arpents front by forty arpents in depth, at a place called Grand Cote, in said county.

The following documents of title have been filed in support of this claim: The requête of Solomon Andrus, dated April 6, 1795, praying for a grant of the above-described land; the certificate of approval of François Caso y Luengo, the commandant of Attakapas, dated April 4, 1795; and the order of survey of the Baron de Carondelet, dated May 4, 1795, granting the above-described land to the petitioner.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 18. The legal representatives of Joseph Carriere, late of the county of Attakapas, deceased, claim a tract of land containing eight hundred superficial arpents, equal to ____ American acres, to wit: twenty arpents front on the east side of Vermilion river, in the parish of St. Martin's, by the depth of forty arpents; bounded on one side by land formerly belonging to Santiago Fusilier. The claimants have filed in support of this claim an exemplification from the records of the register's office at New Orleans, of a complete patent in favor of the said Joseph Carriere, made and granted in New Orleans on June 23, 1781, by Don Bernardo de Galvez, then governor of the province of Louisiana, for the above described land, and which is found to correspond with the extract of patents in this office.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 19. The legal representatives of Paul Le Blanc, late of the city of New Orleans, deceased, claim a tract of land containing two thousand superficial arpents, equal to 1,692.56 American acres, to wit: twenty-five arpents front on both banks of the Bayou Sallé, in the county of Attakapas, with the depth of forty arpents on each side of said bayou. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of Paul Le Blanc, without date, soliciting a grant of the above-mentioned tract of land, to which are subjoined certain proceedings and decrees of the officers of the land department under the Spanish government, to wit: Mr. Louis Charles Le Blanc, commandant of the post of Attakapas; Pierre Pedesclaux, delegated judge; Gilberto Leonard, the fiscal royal; together with the order of survey of Mr. Morales, intendant of the province of Louisiana, dated at New Orleans, from October 30 to November 8, 1802.

The following testimonial proof has been adduced in this claim:

Before me, Philogene Favrot, judge of the parish of West Baton Rouge, State of Louisiana, personally came and appeared Armand Duplantier and Pierre Favrot, both residing in the State aforesaid, and, after being duly sworn, depose and say that they are well informed, by personal knowledge, that Paul Le Blanc, late an officer in the Spanish service, and De Villeneuve Le Blanc, Terence Le Blanc, and Octave Le Blanc, his sons, all residing within the State aforesaid, own several tracts of land situated on the Bayou Sallé, in the county of Attakapas; that the said Paul Le Blanc, Villeneuve Le Blanc, Terence Le Blanc, and Octave Le Blanc had their claims to said tracts of land in the office of Laveau Trudeau, late surveyor general of the province of Louisiana; that, both under the Spanish and territorial governments, they made great exertions to get said claims from said office, but could not get them owing to the said Laveau Trudeau's bad state of health; that, since the State of Louisiana has become independante, the aforesaid claimants could not get said claims, as the said State of Louisiana had made no provisions for the purchase of said office until the year 1818; and the said deponents further say not.

DUPLANTIER.
FAVROT, Pere.

Signed before me November 22, 1820.

P. H. FAVROT, P. Judge.

The documents of title in the foregoing claim appear to be genuine. The extraordinary fact mentioned by the witnesses, of the purchase of the office of the late surveyor general of the province of Louisiana, is actually true. The legislature of the State of Louisiana, in 1818, passed an act, and made a large appropriation to this effect; and until this era numerous claimants had been deprived of their title papers, which should have been transferred among the essential archives to the succeeding government. This claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 20. Octavio Le Blanc, of the city of New Orleans, claims a tract of land containing 2,000 superficial arpents, equal to 1,692.56 American acres, to wit: twenty-five arpents front on Bayou Sallé, in the county of Attakapas, with the depth of forty arpents on each side of said bayou.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of the claimant, without date, soliciting a grant of the above-mentioned land, to which are subjoined certain proceedings and decrees of the officers of the land department under the Spanish government, dated at New Orleans from October 30 to November 8, 1802, to wit: Mr. Louis Charles de Blanc, commandant of the post of Attakapas; Pierre Pedesclaux, delegated judge; Gilbert Leonard, fiscal royal, together with the order of survey signed by Morales, intendant of the province of Louisiana at the dates above mentioned.

The testimonial proof is the same in this as in the preceding claim, (No. 19.) The documents of title appearing to be genuine, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 21. Joseph Le Blanc, of the city of New Orleans, claims a tract of land containing 2,000 superficial arpents, equal to 1,692.56 American acres, to wit: twenty-five arpents on both sides of the Bayou Sallé, in the county of Attakapas, front by the depth of forty arpents.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of the claimant, without date, praying for a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which are subjoined certain proceedings and decrees of the officers of the land department under the Spanish government, dated at New Orleans, from October 30 to November 8, 1802, to wit: Mr. Louis Charles De Blanc, commandant of the post of Attakapas; Pierre Pedesclaux, delegated judge; Gilbert Leonard, fiscal royal, together with the order of survey signed by Morales, intendant of the province of Louisiana at the above-mentioned dates.

The testimonial proof is the same in this as in the preceding claim, (No. 19,) and the documents of title appearing to be genuine, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 22. Terence Le Blanc, of the parish of St. Jean Baptiste, claims a tract of land containing 2,000 superficial arpents, equal to 1,692.56 American acres, to wit: twenty-five arpents front on both sides of the Bayou Sallé, in the county of Attakapas, with the depth of forty arpents.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of the claimant, without date, praying for the above-described tract of land, to which are subjoined certain proceedings and decrees of the officers of the land department under the Spanish government, dated at New Orleans, from October 30 to November 8, 1802, to wit: Mr. Louis C. De Blanc, commandant of the post of Attakapas; Pierre Pedesclaux, delegated judge; Gilbert Leonard, fiscal royal; together with the order of survey to the claimant signed by Mr. Morales, intendant of the province of Louisiana at the dates above mentioned.

The testimonial proof is the same in this as in the preceding claim, (No. 19,) and the documents of title appearing to be genuine, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 23. Pierre Favrot, of the parish of West Baton Rouge, claims a tract of land containing 640 superficial arpents, equal to 541.60 American acres, being for sixteen arpents front, (or the quantity that may be found between the lines of Pierre Broussard and Rene Trahan, by which this claim is limited,) with the depth of forty arpents, fronting on the Bayou Tortue of the Vermilion, being part of an ancient patent or title in form from the Spanish government to Bernard Dautrieve, conceded by Governor de Unzaga on September 4, 1771. The aforesaid patent having been destroyed by fire, the claimant cannot adduce any original document, but begs leave to refer to the abstract of patents for the evidence of the patent under which he claims.

In support of this claim the following documents are filed, being certified copies from the office of the parish judge of the parish of San Martin: 1st. The act of possession, dated December 8, 1775, given by the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Attakapas, to Mr. Dautrieve, for the tract of land mentioned. 2d. The judicial sale, dated December 9, 1775, of Mr. Dautrieve's property, before the Chevalier de Clouet and witnesses, by which Madam Dautrieve became the purchaser of the said tract of land. 3d. A sale passed before the Chevalier de Clouet and witnesses, from Mr. and Madam Degruise, (the late widow Dautrieve,) to the claimant, of date May 11, 1779, of the land first above described, being part of the tract which Madam Degruise purchased at the said judicial sale of property of her former husband, Mr. Dautrieve, as above stated.

On referring to the abstract of patents in this office, it appears that there was a complete concession to Bernard Dautrieve, of the date mentioned in this claim, for forty-two arpents front on the Bayou Teché, in the county of Attakapas, by the depth of one hundred and twenty arpents, or one league and a half, out of which the following seem to have been confirmed by the board of commissioners, to wit: five arpents front on the west or right bank of the Teché, to extend for depth to the Bayou Tortue, No. 1314; six arpents front with the same depth, No. 1315; six arpents front with the depth of forty, No. 1321; five arpents front with the depth of forty, No. 1322; and three arpents front by the depth of forty, No. 1345; making a front of twenty-five arpents, and leaving the quantity herein claimed. It is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 24. Louis Bertrand, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land containing one league square, situated at the head of the Bayou Nabenchas, in the Bayou Pierre settlement, in the said parish of Natchitoches.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of Bazil Gagne, dated at Bayou Pierre, September 3, 1804, addressed to Don José Joachim de Ugarté, commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land. 2d. The concession of the said commandant, dated September 10, 1804, granting the said land to Jacintha Gagne, widow of Jacques Gaulé, and sister to the petitioner, in consideration of the settlement which she had formed thereon. 3d. A receipt from Joseph Manuel de Castro, dated September 17, 1804, to Bazil Gagne, for the fees of office due, on giving possession of said land. The two following declarations being translations from the French language, are also filed in this claim, though the same have not been taken under the solemnity of an oath.

"I do hereby certify that for ten years last past Mr. Louis Bertrand has been a planter, and resided on the land which he occupies, without any hindrance. Bayou Pierre, May 30, 1814."

"MARCEL DE SOTO."

"I do hereby certify that for the last ten years Mr. Louis Bertrand has resided on the land which belongs to him without any obstruction. Bayou Pierre, May 30, 1814."

"PIERRE LAFITTE."

The land herein claimed is no doubt situated in the Neutral Territory, or in that district of country whose jurisdiction was in dispute between Spain and the United States before the ratification of the treaty of February 22, 1819; it therefore could have no place in these reports. But, independent of this circumstance, the claim, considered on its merits, comes in a very questionable shape. The claimant makes not even an apology for an entire want of proof that he holds legally from Jacintha Gagne. The concession, too, is of an extraordinary kind; the original demand is made by B. Gagne; the concession is in the name of another. The oral testimony seems, also, to be studiously equivocal, affording no sort of proof that the residence of which it speaks was on the land claimed. This claim, therefore, could not be recommended for confirmation.

A No. 25. The heirs and legal representatives of David Smith, late of the county of Attakapas, deceased, claim a tract of land containing 1,600 superficial arpents, equal to 1,354 American acres, being for twenty arpents in front, on the river Teché, with forty arpents in depth on both sides of the said bayou, between the island Tochonne and the woods "des Yocleé," bounded, at the date of concession, on one side by the land of François Boutté, and on the other side by land of Hilaire Boutté.

In support of this claim the following documents of title are filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of Antoine Boutté soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, dated at Attakapas, May 16, 1777. 2d. The certificate of approval, stating that the land solicited is of the domain, dated September 2, 1777, and signed by the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Attakapas. 3d. The order of survey or concession by Governor de Galvez, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, dated at New Orleans, February 26, 1778. 4th. The certificate of the same commandant, stating that, in pursuance of the governor's order, he had put the said Antoine Boutté in possession of the said land, and fixed the boundaries in presence of witnesses, dated December 30, 1778. 5th. The patent or title in form for the said tract of land to the petitioner, dated March 20, 1779, and signed by Governor de Galvez. 6th. A certified copy under the signature of James White, parish judge of the Attakapas, of a power of attorney from Antoine Boutté to François Caesar Boutté, his brother, whereby he is authorized to partition the above-described tract of land among his (the grantee's) children, that is to say: Louis Hilaire Boutté, François Zenon Boutté, Jean Leon Boutté, and Modeste Boutté, wife of Louis Judice; the said procuration passed at New Orleans, October 13, 1806, before Narcisse Broutin, notary public, and witnesses. 7th. A certified copy under the signature of James White, parish judge of Attakapas, of a letter from Antoine Boutté to his brother, François Caesar Boutté, dated at New Orleans, October 14, 1806, enclosing the above power of attorney, and containing particular instructions to the said François C. Boutté respecting the above partition. 8th. An act passed before James White, parish judge of the Attakapas, dated August 29, 1807, whereby François Caesar Boutté partitions and divides the said land among the grantee's children above named. 9th. A deed of sale of the above-described land from the said Louis Hilaire Boutté, Marie Modeste Boutté, and Louis Judice, Jr., to David Smith, passed before James White, parish judge of the Attakapas, April 21, 1808. 10th. The opinion, in writing, dated April 3, 1819, of the late commissioners for adjusting land claims in this district, annexed to the said patent, expressive of their belief of its genuineness, and recommending a survey of the land to be made by the principal deputy surveyor, the time for enregistering the same being elapsed.

On the genuineness of this claim there can be no doubt, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 26. Pierre Sauve, of the county of Attakapas, claims a tract of land containing 400 superficial arpents, equal to 338.50 American acres, to wit: ten arpents front on the west side of Bayou Capuchin, at its junction with the Bayou Tortue, with the depth of forty arpents.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête, which has been defaced and torn, but which appears to be by François Gonsolin, dated October 1, 1787, and bearing his signature, being for ten arpents front by forty in depth. That part of the requête is torn off on which the description and situation of the land should have been written. 2d. The commandant's certificate entire, dated October 3, 1787, in the handwriting and bearing the signature of the Chevalier de Clouet, approving the request of the petitioner, and certifying that the land is vacant, and of the King's domain. 3d. So much of the order of survey or grant under the signature of Governor Miro as would show that it was dated some day in June, 1788, and that the land was conceded with the usual conditions.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 27. John Louis and Gros Pierre, acting as the representatives, and two principal men of the Chetimaches Indians, claim, in behalf of the said nation, a tract of land, of which their nation has been in possession, and which they have occupied and cultivated for more than fifty years preceding the present date, situated on both sides of the river Teché, in the county of Attakapas and parish of St. Mary, having a front of about one league on a right line from the upper to the lower limit; bounded on the upper side by a large live-oak, standing on the line between the land of Madame Widow Gregoire Pellerin and the said nation, and below by land conceded to Joseph Prevost, alias Collet, with a depth not absolutely defined, but which the said nation contends could not have been short of forty arpents on each side of the said river.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st. An act dated at New Orleans, June 19, 1767, under the signature of Mr. Aubry, then governor of the province of Louisiana under the French dynasty, recognizing the Chetimaches nation, and ordering the commandant at Manchee to treat their chief with regard. 2d. An act under the signature of Governor de Galvez, dated at New Orleans, September 14, 1777, commanding the commandant and other subjects of the Spanish government to respect the rights of the said Indians in the lands which they occupied, and to protect them in the possession thereof.

The claimants make known that they do not at present own the whole of the lands within the limits aforesaid. That they only retain the title in such portion thereof as has not been sold by the said nation. That the sales which have been made by them and their ancestors, and which they recognize as having been made in good faith, and for full and valuable considerations, are as follows: To Mr. Frederick Pellerin a tract of thirty-five arpents front on both sides of the river, to be taken from the upper boundary; to Mr. Hyacinthe Bernard thirty-three arpents front on both sides of said river, twenty-three arpents of which to be taken adjoining on the upper side to the land which the nation has sold to Mr. F. Pellerin, and ten arpents adjoining below to lands which they had sold to Baptiste Carmouche, whose claim has been confirmed by the government of the United States from long and subsequent occupancy.

The following testimonial proof has been adduced in this claim: Agricole Fusilier deposeth that "he is fifty-three years of age, and was born in the county of Attakapas, where he has resided from the time of his birth; that from his earliest recollection the Chetimache Indians have resided on the river Teché, at the place where they have claimed, between the boundaries of the land of the Madame Widow Pellerin and the land conceded to Joseph Prevost; that the rights of the Indians in that situation and on both sides of the river have always been respected by the Spanish government, and no person permitted to interfere with them but such as had acquired a title from them by fair purchase, and for full and valuable considerations."

Frederick Pellerin deposeth that "he is in his fiftieth year, and a native of Attakapas, where he has resided constantly from his birth; that he has known the Chetimache Indians and their lands from his infancy, and that it is perfectly within his knowledge that the testimony of Mr. Fusilier, as above given, is in all respects true."

The claim herein alluded to as conveyed by the Indians to Baptiste Carmouche, and confirmed to him by the United States, cannot be found, and consequently the extent of the claim cannot be exactly ascertained.

It appears that the documents herein adduced are genuine, and equal to the highest order of grants, if we are to credit the testimony of Mr. Louis C. de Blanc, now living in Attakapas, and enjoying an unsullied reputation, who was for many years a commandant, civil and military, first for the post of Natchitoches, and afterwards of Attakapas, "that the claims of Indians were always recognized by the Spanish government, and no act thereof was ever considered necessary to their validity." See claim No. 1, in the reports of the commissioners on the Opelousas claims, reported April 6, 1815.

This claim can only be recognized to the extent of one league square, or for eighty arpents front on both sides of the Bayou Teché, with the depth of forty arpents on each side. The confirmation is therefore recommended for that quantity, to commence at the live-oak on the lower boundary of Madame Gregorie, Widow Pellerin, and to run down the Teché, for quantity, eighty arpents, and to include the land herein recognized by the claimants to have been sold by them, viz., to Mr. Frederick Pellerin thirty-five arpents front on both sides of the bayou; to Mr. Hyacinthe Bernard thirty-three arpents front on both sides of the bayou, and the claim of Carmouche. It may be proper to observe that the claim of Hyacinthe Bernard, herein mentioned, was formerly before the board of commissioners, and the testimony not having been sufficient they reported unfavorably on it in their report of the Attakapas claims, No. 14. The additional testimony herein offered has induced a confirmatory decision in recognizing it as valid in the present claim.

B No. 28. John Thompson, of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of land containing six thousand four hundred superficial arpents of land, to wit: eighty arpents front on the Bayou Sansfaçon, with the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the said bayou, to be taken at the end of forty arpents from Bayou Bœuf, already conceded.

In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st. The requête of Estevan Flores, dated at New Orleans, November 11, 1791, soliciting the land as above described. 2d. The concession or order of survey by Governor Miro, dated at New Orleans, November 26, 1791, ordering the surveyor general of the province, Don Carlos Trudeau, to establish the petitioner on the land solicited. 3d. An authenticated copy of a deed of sale executed before Hugh Lavergne, esq., notary public in the city of New Orleans, dated March 15, 1820, by Estevan Flores, conveys to the present claimant all his right and title in the tract of land above described.

From a close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in this claim, there are very strong doubts of their genuineness, and it is apprehended that the gentleman who has filed them has been defrauded by the grossest counterfeits; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as this inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by the honorable Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony be incorporated in the report.

A No. 29. The legal representatives of Bernardo Pantaleon, late of the parish of Natchitoches, deceased, claim a tract of four square leagues of land situate about twenty or twenty-five miles in a northwesterly direction from the village of Natchitoches, in the parish of Natchitoches, at a place called Tapalcote, northwardly from a rivulet called Tierra Blanca; its boundaries running along a rivulet called Arroyo del Durasno, (the ancient name of Tapalcote bayou,) extending two leagues to the westward and two leagues to the southward, bounded on the east by a lake called Spanish lake.

In this claim the claimants file the following documents of title, to wit: a concession from Don José Joaquin Ugarte, then governor and commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, dated April 20, 1798, granting the above-described land to the said Bernardo Pantaleon.

The following oral testimony has likewise been adduced in this claim: Doctor John Sibley, being duly sworn, deposeth that he is well acquainted with the tract of land above described; that it is within his knowledge that the family of the deceased, Mr. Pantaleon, has been in possession thereof since the year 1804; and it is known to the deponent that the said land has been respected as their property ever since that date; and from what he has understood in the parish, it is well known that the land has been occupied by the claimant and the late Mr. Tolin for more than twenty years before the date of their concession.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine, and the evidence of Doctor Sibley, a gentleman whose declarations may be relied upon, establishes a long residence on the land claimed.

It is therefore recommended for confirmation to the extent of one league square, that is to say, having a front of eighty-four arpents, equal to seventy-six American acres, on the bayou or rivulet Arroyo del Durasno, with the same depth, to include the settlement made by the family of the deceased Pantaleon at and since the year 1804.

A No. 30. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land containing one thousand six hundred arpents, equal to one thousand three hundred and fifty-four and a half American acres, to wit: forty arpents front with the depth of forty arpents, situated about seven leagues above the village of Natchitoches, on the road to Bayou Pierre, being the tract of land formerly occupied by François Morvant, and which he acquired from the Spanish government. The claimant refers to the following documents filed in a claim, No. 761, entered with the register of the land office at Opelousas, in the name of John and Edward Bolin, June 15, 1813, to wit: a concession by Don Antonio Gil y Barvo, then lieutenant governor and commandant at Nacogdoches, to the said François Morvant, dated October 16, 1799; a deed of sale duly executed and recorded in the office of the judge of the parish of Natchitoches January 10, 1810, from Maria Euphrosyne Morvant, daughter and heir of the said François, to the aforesaid John and Edward Bolin; and hath filed herewith an authentic copy of a deed from Patrick Murphey, sheriff of the parish of Natchitoches, to the claimant, dated January 24, 1814, by which he has acquired all the right and title which they, the said J. and E. Bolin, had in the tract of land aforesaid.

This is a claim presented for revision under the 4th section of the act by virtue of which these claims have been entered. It has heretofore been reported by the register and receiver of this district, in their report of December 30, 1815, under the No. 1106, and in class 8, in the name of John and Edward Bolin. It was there rejected on two grounds: 1st, that there was no proof of occupancy; and 2d, that the register and receiver had no knowledge of the governors of Texas, its laws, jurisdiction, &c. On referring to the evidence of William Ettridge, taken before David Chase, as justice of the peace for the county of Natchitoches, August 30, 1815, on the subject of this claim, and of record in this office, in the book of evidence, page 303, the witness states that he knows the land to have been occupied twenty-one years previous to 1815 (the time of his deposition) by the original grantee, which makes the occupancy to have existed four years after the date of the concession.

On the subject of the powers and jurisdiction of the lieutenant governor of the province there now remains no doubt, since the register and receiver of this district held their late session at Natchitoches to receive and report on the claims of the Neutral Territory. It was then established, by incontrovertible testimony, that the lieutenant governor of the province of Texas had the full power and authority to make concessions of the domain to any extent, and to give patents and consummate all titles.

There is a remaining difficulty, however, as to the lieutenant governors who, from time to time, exercised jurisdiction in the province. The concession filed in this claim has nothing, however, in its appearance to induce an apprehension that it is not genuine. The deed by the sheriff to the claimant is in due form and authentic, and, the whole circumstances considered, the claim is recommended for confirmation.

A No. 31. William Moore, of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of about eighty superficial arpents of land, to wit: two arpents front with forty arpents in depth, being part of a tract of land conceded by an order of survey, under the signature of Governor Miro, dated April 18, 1782, to John Hernandez, parts of the said tract being confirmed by the board of commissioners, by their certificates B No. 2005 and B No. 2006; the first to the heir of John Bureau, the other to Antoine Anselin, bearing the quantity above expressed, and to which the claimant has acquired a title by regular purchase; in support of which he hath filed herewith certified extracts from the records in the office of George King, esq., parish judge at Opelousas, that is to say: 1st. A deed of sale, dated February 17, 1806, from Albert Beausergent to Antoine Harcelin. 2d. Deed of sale, of the same date, from Albert Beausergent to Vitral. 3d. A deed of sale, dated September 23, 1816, from Paul Vitral to the claimant. He likewise files a plat of survey representing the part hereby claimed. In this claim the following oral testimony has been adduced, that is to say: John Pousony, being sworn, deposeth that he has, for thirty-three consecutive years preceding this date, resided within about two leagues of the land claimed; that he is perfectly acquainted with the claim of Antoine Anselin, holding under the title of Hernandez, and has always understood that between that claim and the land held by Antoine Lacour, (alias Regest,) a free man of color, under a requête in his own name, and also under a purchase of the claim of Malbert Sansfaçon, there is one common line or limit; that the title of the said Antoine Anselin is perfectly recognized in the neighborhood as covering the whole of the land to Lacour's boundary.

The claimant, for further explanation, refers to the record of the above-mentioned commissioners' certificate, and also to the record of the order of survey.

On referring to the two claims stated to have been part of the same original grant under which the present claimant holds, (B No. 2005 and B No. 2006,) they are stated to be each a half of an original tract founded on an order of survey in favor of Jean Hernandez, "for the tract lying between the land of Louis Roman de Hafosse and Jean B. Malhebert, (alias Sansfaçon,)" dated April 18, 1782, under the signature of Miro, then governor of the province of Louisiana. If these confirmations are correct, it follows that this claim has nothing to support it; added to this, the claimant has not shown that the title of these two arpents was ever conveyed from the original grantee to his vendees, but he vouches for the existence of such evidence; he also shows by a sketch from the surveyor's office that the surveys of the claims under the certificates 2005 and 2006 leave the precise quantity which he claims; and as the principal object of Congress in these cases must be to disavow any title, and not to decide between the contending claims of individuals—all these circumstances considered, together with the oral testimony herein adduced, which is entitled to credit, this claim is recommended for confirmation in the name of the legal representatives of Jean Hernandez, and subject to the claims aforesaid, marked B Nos. 2005 and 2006.

A No. 32. Peter O'Connor, of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of land containing eight hundred superficial arpents, to wit: twenty arpents front with forty arpents in depth, equal to six hundred and seventy-seven American acres, situated in the Prairie Mamon, fronting on the Bayou Cane, and commencing at the road commonly called Don Manuel's road, which is the upper limit of the tract; the place being also known by the name of Point du Lac, which tract of land was conceded by the Spanish government of Louisiana to the claimant in the year 1801, but the title papers being accidentally destroyed the claimant thinks it proper to state all the circumstances, in order that the nature and justice of his claim may be perfectly understood. In the year 1801 the claimant, having a young and increasing family, and only a very small tract of land, applied in the usual form for a grant for the above-described tract. His petition was sanctioned by the then commandant of the post of Opelousas, Don Martin Duralde, on the surveyor's certificate that the land was vacant; and some time afterwards sent to New Orleans for the purpose of obtaining an order of survey, which was granted, but, owing to untoward circumstances, the papers were taken, with others, to Pensacola, and there accidentally burnt; that, not being able to recover his title papers, he, the claimant, in the year 1806, entered a notice of his claim for the said land with the register of the land office at Opelousas, under that section of the act of Congress which gave a donation to settlers having made some improvement on said land in the year 1803; but, as he did not reside there on the 20th of December in that year, his claim was rejected by the board of commissioners. The claimant further states that, from the time of the entry until the rejection of his claim, which came to his knowledge some time in the year 1814 or 1815, he paid State or territorial taxes on the land, and a part of the time taxes to the United States. To establish the most material and important circumstances herein set forth, the claimant has filed with this notice the following document, being an extract of a letter in the handwriting of the late Gilbert Leonard, attorney general for the King of Spain, at the date of the claimant's application, the same being addressed to Doctor Theophilus Elmer, at Opelousas, and in the following words:

"P. S.—In order to serve Peter Connor, you must send me a copy in the manner or form I should make out my certificate or declaration in his favor; it must mention the time he petitioned for the land and the name of the commandant who recommended it. I recollect it was granted by the intendant, but, for want of applying in time for the title, it was taken with others papers to Pensacola, where since all the archives of the intendancy were burnt by accident. The land was, I repeat, granted to Connor by my assent or consentment as attorney general then for his Catholic Majesty's finance. All these circumstances, I presume, should be mentioned in my declaration or certificate, and I will sign and swear to it before the justice of the peace."

On the said extract is the following endorsement: "September 1, 1820. I certify that the within is a part of a letter received by me from the late Gilbert Leonard, deceased, early in the year 1816, the remainder of the letter being private, and, in nowise touching the subject, was torn off.

"THEO. ELMER."

The following oral testimony is filed by the said claimants: John Corman, aged thirty-eight years, being sworn, deposeth that he distinctly recollects going in company with Peter O'Connor and François

Fontenot to Mr. Duralde, then commandant of the post of Opelousas, in the latter part of the month of October, or some time in the month of November, in the year 1801, for the purpose of applying for lands; that the said O'Connor and this deponent applied for lands adjoining each other in the Prairie Mamon, to front on the Bayou Cane, and the deponent distinctly recollects that the requête of Mr. O'Connor was sanctioned by the said commandant at that time for a tract of twenty arpents front with the ordinary depth, taking for the upper limit of the said tract the road commonly known as Don Manuel's road, and thence descending the bayou for the front. The deponent is the more confident and positive as to the particular location and quantity of land because of an agreement between the deponent and the said O'Connor before the application to the commandant to make the said road the division between their respective claims, and also from having seen and read the said requête, at the house of Peter O'Connor, after it had received the commandant's sanction, and before it was sent to New Orleans for the governor's decree.

This claim is most unquestionably genuine, and the evidence entitled to perfect credit; it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 33. The legal representatives of the widow of St. Marc Darby and the representatives of Louis de la Houssaye claim, as their joint and undivided property, a tract of land situated in the county of Attakapas, on the river Teché, of thirty arpents front, with the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the said river, being one-half of a tract of sixty arpents front, with the depth aforesaid, which was claimed by Edward Forstall as executor of the estate of the deceased widow of Mr. St. Marc Darby.

The claimants refer to the late board of commissioners' reports, No. 62, by which it will be seen that only one-half of their claim as aforesaid has been confirmed.

This is a claim presented for the revision of the register, under the fourth section of the act by virtue of which these claims have been entered. On referring to the Attakapas claims reported by the commissioners May 1, 1815, this claim is found to have been recommended for confirmation, under the No. 62, for only thirty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on the east side of the river.

The testimony taken therein establishes that the requête and order of survey were for thirty arpents front on each side of the bayou; that for the accommodation of her neighbors the grantee consented that her survey of sixty arpents front should be made on the east side of the bayou; that in pursuance of this agreement the surveyor general, Mr. Laveau Trudeau, (an officer of great authority and consideration under the Spanish Government,) did actually make the location, and thus returned it. It does not appear that this act was ever objected to by the Spanish government; and, under the circumstances, the commissioners rejected one-half of the claim as having been abandoned by the grantee, and under the belief that this change of location could not be made by the party and the surveyor general. But this was an opinion most certainly contrary to equity and justice. The object of the present government is certainly to carry into effect the views of the former; and as it does appear that the Spanish government did actually divest itself of 2,400 superficial arpents of the domain; that from a spirit of compromise and good understanding among her neighbors, and not from any unfair attempts to defraud the government, (for a front on each bank is much preferable to the present location,) the grantee consented to take her survey entirely on the east side of the bayou; that the survey was so made by an officer of high rank, and acquiesced in by the neighbors to the present day, as appears in the aforesaid report of the commissioners, the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation for thirty arpents front on the east side of the Bayou Teché, as prayed for by the claimants.

A No. 34. The legal representatives of Louis and Alexander de la Houssaye give notice that they claim sixteen hundred superficial arpents of land, equal to 1,354 $\frac{1}{2}$ American acres, situated at the place called Fause Point, on the river Teché, in the county of Attakapas. The claimants refer to the certificate of the late board of commissioners, No. 947, and to the documents of title recorded by the deputy register for the county of Attakapas, in the book kept by him, in pages 104, 105, and 106, by which it will be seen that their claim, under a concession from the Spanish government to the late Mr. Paul Augustin le Peltier Chevalier de la Houssaye, was forty arpents front, by the depth of forty arpents, on each side of the river Teché, making a superficial quantity of three thousand two hundred arpents, equal to 2,708.10 American acres; whereas, by the certificate above referred to, there has been confirmed to the claimants' father, the late Mr. Louis de la Houssaye, so much of their title only as lies on the left bank of the river Teché, to wit: 1,600 superficial arpents. The object, therefore, of the present claimants is to bring before the Congress of the United States the aforesaid claim.

On examination of the documents as referred to in this claim, it appears that there was an error as herein expressed, and that the order of survey is for forty arpents front on each side of the Bayou Teché, with the depth of forty arpents.

It is therefore recommended for confirmation, as prayed for, in conformity to the ancient survey found of record.

B No. 35. Celestin Lavergne, of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of land containing eight hundred superficial arpents, equal to 667 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents front, with forty arpents in depth, situated in the Grand Prairie of Bellair Fontenot, and bounded, at the date of the concession, on one side by the land of Joseph Boisdoré, and on the other by that of Louis Veillon. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of Valerie Boisdoré, soliciting the tract above described, dated at Opelousas, June 21, 1788. 2d. The certificate of the commandant, Mr. Forstall, stating that the land solicited is not of the domain. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor Miro, dated at New Orleans, July 2, 1788, conceding, with the usual conditions, the land as solicited; subjoined to which order of survey is a transfer of the said land signed by Valerie Boisdoré, the grantee, to Joseph Petit. 4th. An authenticated copy of a deed of sale, passed before Philip Pedes-claux, notary public at New Orleans, bearing date August 6, 1818, from the above-named Valerie Boisdoré to the claimant, represented by his agent Valerie Nicholas, transferring the above land.

From close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in this claim, there are very strong doubts of their genuineness, and it is apprehended that the gentleman who has filed them has been defrauded by the grossest counterfeits; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as this inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony be incorporated in the report.

B No. 36. John Thompson, of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of land containing three thousand two hundred superficial arpents of land, equal to 2,708.9 American acres, to wit: forty arpents front on the Bayou Bœuf, in the county (formerly post) of Opelousas, with the depth of forty arpents on each side of said bayou. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of Foribio Mendoza, dated at New Orleans, July 9, 1791, soliciting a grant of the above-described lands. 2d. The concession or order of survey by Governor Miro, dated also at New Orleans, July 16, 1791. 3d. A deed of sale of said lands from the said Foribio Mendoza to the claimant, executed before John Lind, esq., then a notary public in the city of New Orleans, dated February 24, 1819.

From a close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in this claim, there are very strong doubts of their genuineness, and it is apprehended that the gentleman who has filed them has been defrauded by the grossest counterfeits; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as this inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by the honorable Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony be incorporated in the report.

NOTE.—Since the undersigned has taken up the consideration of this claim testimony has been furnished to establish the genuineness of this grant; but as the undersigned does not conceive himself authorized to take into consideration any evidence or documents which were not furnished previous to December 31, 1820, it has been disregarded. At the urgent solicitation, however, of the interested the substance of this testimony has been presented, viz: "Joseph Fernandez says, under oath, that four or five years before the change of the Spanish government he knew a man named Foribio Mendoza, who was then a corporal in the Louisiana regiment; that he knows he had obtained a concession of a tract of land on Bayou Boeuf; that the said Mendoza, after having left Louisiana about the change of government to the United States, returned some years ago to sell his land; that some time after his return he informed the deponent that he had sold it to a man named Thompson; and that a few days after he, the said Mendoza, set out for Havana."

"Joseph A. Silva says, on oath, that during the Spanish government in 1791, to his knowledge, Foribio Mendoza, formerly a corporal in the Louisiana regiment, obtained a concession for a tract of land situated on Bayou Boeuf, having forty arpents in front, on each side of the said bayou, by the depth of forty arpents; that the said Mendoza left the country immediately after the change of government to the French, and returned in the beginning of the year 1819 to Louisiana; some time after his arrival he told the deponent that he wished to sell all his lands, (that is, all the concession;) some days afterwards he set out for Havana, after having said that he had sold the land." A man by the name of Mathias Cordon certifies that, in 1790, he knew Joseph A. Silva, at that time a soldier of the Louisiana regiment, and that his good conduct and probity had induced his superior officers (ses chefs) to give him a certificate to enable him to gain a livelihood, (pour lui faciliter à gagner sa vie.)

Considering that this evidence has been taken entirely ex parte, without the knowledge of the undersigned; that the witnesses reside at a great distance, and the failure of testimony to establish their veracity, it is thought unadvisable to make any change in the report.

B No. 37. Stephen Tippet, sen., of the parish of Rapides, claims a tract of land containing six hundred superficial arpents, equal to 507.57 American acres, to wit: fifteen arpents in front, with forty arpents in depth, to be taken on any vacant lands in the counties of Attakapas or Opelousas.

The claimant has filed in this claim a requête addressed to the Spanish government August 29, 1796, soliciting a grant of the above quantity of land; to which is annexed the decree of the Baron de Carondelet, dated September 21, 1796, conceding the above-described land for either of the above-mentioned counties.

The concession in this claim is not in the usual form, it being merely stated in the margin of the requête, "conceded for Attakapas or Opelousas," with the signature of the Baron de Carondelet.

The undersigned is rather inclined to the opinion that the above concession is genuine, and had, in the first instance, recommended its confirmation; but possessing such immense advantages of location, and being unaccompanied by any testimonial or other proof why its presentation has been thus long delayed, or even any remark to that effect by the claimant in his notice, it has been thought most prudent to postpone it, among other claims in this report, for further proof; and its reconsideration is recommended accordingly.

A No. 38. Valerie Martin, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing 400 superficial arpents, equal to 338½ American acres, being for ten arpents front, on the right bank of the river Teché, with the depth of forty arpents, bounded on the lower side by the land of Fran. Moreau, and on the upper side by the land of Henry Hebert, being part of a tract formerly conceded by the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé, sold by his testamentary executor, Mr. Solomon Malines, as appears by an authenticated copy of a judicial sale filed in this claim, and dated March 14, 1786, at which Claude Martin, the father of the claimant, became the purchaser of the above-described tract of land, as well as of other portions of the said grant, as is established by the receipt of the said executor to the said Claude Martin, dated January 22, 1787, an authenticated copy of which is likewise filed in the said claim.

The claimant hath referred to the abstract from complete patents in the office of the register of the land office, by which it is seen that the land in question was conceded to the said Jean François Ledé February 14, 1769; he also refers to the testimony of Pierre Broussard, given August 5, 1812, before the board of commissioners, in the claim of the widow of the said Claude Martin, and to the testimony taken August 6, 1812, in the claim of John Charles Dugas, to establish the grant of the said Ledé, which is said to have been accidentally burnt.

This claim appears to be just; the confirmation is therefore recommended.

A No. 39. The legal representatives of Claude Martin, of the parish of St. Martin's, claim a tract of land containing 888 American acres, having a front of ten arpents, to be taken at the extremity of forty arpents from the right bank of the river Teché, at the back of land claimed by Valerie Martin, and extending thence, for depth, to the river Vermilion, bounded on the northwest by Pierre Broussard's land, and on the southeast by land of François Moreau; which tract of land the said Claude Martin acquired by purchase from the testamentary executor of François Ledé.

The claimants have referred to documents filed in the claim of Valerie Martin, No. 38, to establish their title and the former existence of the grant to Jean François Ledé.

This claim appears to be just, and the confirmation is therefore recommended.

A No. 40. The legal representatives of Luke Collins, late of the county of Opelousas, deceased, claim a tract of land of ten arpents front on the river Teché, in the Petit Bois, with the depth that may be found without entering into the Prairie Bassé, to be taken from the boundary of Luke Collins, father of the deceased Luke Collins, and adjoining on the lower side to public land. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of the said Luke Collins, dated at Opelousas, July 11, 1786, soliciting a grant of the above-described land; 2d, the certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of the post of Opelousas, dated July 12, 1786, approving of the said requête; 3d, the concession or order of survey signed by Governor Miro, dated at New Orleans, October 6, 1786, conceding the above-described land to the said Luke Collins with the usual conditions.

The claimants have stated that this claim must have been entered by their deceased father in his lifetime, and have referred to the record book, No. 4, page 63, in the register's office for the record of the above requête and order of survey under which they hold, which document is in the possession of them, the said claimants, without their being able to account for its being delivered to them without any certificate having issued in confirmation of the claim, or any report having been made on it, unless the words written on the back of the said order of survey "confirmed August 28, 1809," may have been considered a confirmation of the claim, which they have again submitted, in order that it may receive from the government a legal confirmation.

This claim appears to be just, and the confirmation is therefore recommended.

B No. 41. John José Caradine, of Adams county, State of Mississippi, claims a tract of five hundred superficial arpents of land situated on the Bayou Sansfaçon, in the parish of Avoyelles, near the Bayou Rouge. The claimant hath filed in this claim a requête, to which his own signature is affixed, dated at Natchez, February 16, 1797, and directed to the commandant general of the province of Louisiana.

The reference of the Baron de Carondelet to the governor at Natchez, dated at New Orleans, March 2, 1797, to which is subjoined the decree of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor of the Natchez district, dated at Natchez, April 2, 1797, conceding to the petitioner five hundred arpents of land at the place mentioned in a certificate of the surveyor, which has been lost; and, to establish that the same did exist, the claimant hath filed an affidavit, taken before Samuel Thornberry, a justice of the peace.

This claim was originally recommended for confirmation, but there existing some doubt of the authenticity of the titles, it is now thought most prudent to postpone it, among other claims in this report, for further proof, and its reconsideration is recommended accordingly.

A No. 42. The legal representatives of Reuben Dyer claim a tract of one thousand arpents of land, equal to 846.25 American acres, situated on the Bayou Bœuf, near the Bayou Sansfaçon. In this claim the following documents have been filed, to wit: an authenticated translation from the office of the keeper and translator of the Spanish records in the State of Mississippi of the requête of the said Reuben Dyer, dated at New Orleans, January 18, 1799, to which is subjoined the decree of the governor, Gayoso, of the same date, conceding the quantity of land above claimed, all certified by David Harper, keeper of the said records, by his certificate, dated January 14, 1818. The claimants have likewise filed a certificate of Governor Holmes, stating that the said Harper was, at the date of the last-mentioned certificate, keeper of the said office. They also have filed the following testimony of William Thompson, taken before William B. Jackson, justice of the peace for Adams county, in the State of Mississippi, to wit: "Personally appeared before the undersigned, a justice of the peace in and for the said county, William Thompson, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that in the month of December, and year eighteen hundred and three, and previous thereto, a man by the name of Reuben Dyer was in possession and raised a crop on the east bank of the Bayou Bœuf, just above where the Bayou Sansfaçon joins with the said Bayou Bœuf. Sworn and subscribed before me this 4th day of December, 1820.

"WILLIAM B. JACKSON, J. P."

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 43. William Collins, as guardian or tutor for the heirs of William Collins, deceased, claims a tract of land containing one thousand arpents, situated on both sides of Bayou Bœuf, and adjoining below the land of Reuben Dyer, on Bayou Sansfaçon, commonly called Sandy Bayou. The claimant, in his said capacity, hath filed in this claim the following documents, being authentic translations from the records of the county of Adams, in the State of Mississippi, to wit: a requête in the name of the said deceased William Collins, praying for a grant of the above-described lands, and dated at New Orleans, January 18, 1799, to which is subjoined the decree of Governor Gayoso, of the same date, stating that the petitioner is entitled to the above-described land.

The following written testimony has been filed in this claim:

No. 1.

STATE OF LOUISIANA, Parish of Concordia:

Before the undersigned judge personally came William Thompson, who, being solemnly sworn on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, to the best of his knowledge and belief, that William Collins did cultivate and reside on a certain tract of land containing one thousand arpents, situated on the Bayou Bœuf, at the mouth of the Bayou Sansfaçon; that he resided on the said land in the year one thousand eight hundred and two, and the year after; that he had obtained it from the Spanish government, during the administration of Don Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, for himself, his mother, brothers, and sisters; and that his legal representatives still have possession of the said tract of land; that the grant or ricket was placed in the hands of Peter Walker, esq., counsellor at law, for the purpose of entering the same in the land office authorized to receive the same, but that he was prevented from doing so by death; that the representatives of William Collins were unable to obtain the same until about five years last past, and that the land office was then closed, and that there was no possibility of entering the same.

STATE OF LOUISIANA, Parish of Feliciana:

Before me, William C. Wade, judge of the parish aforesaid, came and appeared James Thomas, who, being duly sworn, says that a grant or ricket, calling for the Bayou Bœuf, adjoining lands claimed by Reuben Dyer, was placed in deponent's hands to send on to Judge Henry Johnson, a member of Congress, by the legal representative of William Collins, to get the title confirmed; which grant has either been lost or taken from among his papers, for it cannot be found; also, that the petition of William Collins, signed by him, and the decree to said petition, signed by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, is also lost or taken out of deponent's possession, and cannot be found. Deponent further says that he is well acquainted with the signature of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, and that the said order was in his own handwriting.

No. 3.

STATE OF MISSISSIPPI, Adams County:

Personally appeared before me, the undersigned, a justice of the peace in and for said county, William Thompson, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that in the month of December, in the year one thousand eight hundred and three, he was at the house of William Collins, and at that time, and had been previously thereto, cultivating and inhabiting a tract of land on the Bayou Bœuf, just below where it makes a junction with the Bayou Sansfaçon, which said Collins is now in possession of said lands by his tenants; and that there is now cleared on said tract of land between one hundred and eighty and two hundred acres; and that he has always understood that said Collins claimed one thousand arpents in said tract by virtue of a grant from the Spanish government.

WM. THOMPSON.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 4th day of December, 1820.

WM. B. JACKSON, J. P.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 44. The heirs and legal representatives of Maria Josepha Dauphin, widow Senet, claim a tract of land containing four hundred and eighty superficial arpents, to wit: twelve arpents front with a depth of forty arpents, situated on the right bank of the river Teche, in the county of Attakapas, and being the residue of a tract of thirty arpents front with forty arpents in depth, conceded by the Spanish government to the said Maria Josepha Dauphin September 2, 1786, as will appear by an authenticated extract from the order of survey filed with the notice of the claims of Jean Baptiste Senet and Jean Louis Drouet, to whom the titles of the other eighteen arpents front have been confirmed by the certificates of the board of commissioners, No. 1915, to Jean B. Senet for eight arpents front by forty arpents in depth, and the certificate, No. 1916, to Jean Louis Drouet for ten arpents in front with forty arpents in depth, to which confirmations, and the documents and testimony accompanying their notices, the claimants refer.

On examination of all the claims in this office, no report or confirmation is found for the residue of the concession herein mentioned; the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 45. Michael Cormier, of the county of Attakapas, claims a tract of land containing two hundred and forty superficial arpents, equal to 203.2 American acres, to wit: six arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, situated in the Grand Prairie of the Vermilion, in the said parish, and bounded on all sides by vacant land; which tract of land was conceded by Mr. Delluzaga, then governor of the province of Louisiana, by grant to this claimant, bearing date May 4, 1776.

The claimant has reason to believe that the original grant for the said tract of land still exists among the archives of the city of New Orleans, but, although he has used due diligence to obtain it, he has not yet been able to do so. He therefore begs leave to refer to the abstract of patents in this office for the extract or memorandum of a patent agreeing with the one in question, and also to a memorandum from the register's office in New Orleans, which he has filed in this claim. The claimant also states that the word "Opelousas" in the said abstract must have originated in a mistake, as it was well understood that the land solicited, though near the limits of Opelousas, is in the Grand Prairie of the Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas.

The documents of title as mentioned by the claimant in this case have no doubt existed; and the abstract of patents in this office, and that from the city of New Orleans, being considered sufficient evidence of this fact, the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation for the quantity claimed in the Grand Prairie of the Attakapas.

A No. 46. The legal representatives of Jean Baptiste Cormier, of the county of Attakapas, claim a tract of land containing four hundred superficial arpents, equal to 336.86 American acres, to wit: ten arpents front with forty arpents in depth, situated in the quarter of Belvue, in the county of Opelousas, bounded, at the date of the concession, on one side by the land of Fabien Richard, and on the other by the land of Pedro Primo.

The claimants have filed in this claim an authenticated extract from the records of the office of the register of the eastern district, whereby it appears that the above-described land is enregistered in the name of the said Jean B. Cormier.

The claimants refer also to the abstract of patents in this office, by which it will be seen that the said tract of land was granted to the deceased, Jean Baptiste Cormier, by the Spanish government June 23, 1781.

The foregoing claim, on examination of the abstract of patents in this office and the documents herein filed, has every appearance of being just and genuine, and is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 47. The legal representatives of Fusilier de la Claire claim a tract of land containing six hundred and forty superficial arpents, equal to 541.62 American acres, to wit: sixteen arpents front with the depth of forty arpents, on the west side of the river Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas, which tract of land was conceded, February 17, 1772, to the said Fusilier de la Claire, as appears by the abstract of patents in this office, and a memorandum from the office of the register of the land office at New Orleans filed in the claim of Michael Cormier, (No. 45,) to which the claimants refer.

The documents of title in this claim are certainly genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 48. Louis Richard, sr., and Louis Richard, jr., of the county of Opelousas, claim a tract of land containing eight hundred superficial arpents, equal to 677 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents front on the east side of the Bayou Vermilion, in the county of Attakapas, with the depth of forty arpents, adjoining on one side to the land of Pierre Carriere, and on the other side to the King's domain at the date of the concession. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st. The requête of Michael Carriere, praying for a tract of the above-described land, dated at Opelousas, November 24, 1777, to which is subjoined, 2d. The certificate of the commandant, the Chevalier de Clouet, stating that the said land is of the domain, and dated at Opelousas, January 10, 1778. 3d. The order of survey or concession by Governor de Galvez, without date, conceding the above-described land as solicited. 4th. An authenticated copy of a judicial sale, dated December 24, 1820, by which they, the said claimants, have acquired the title of the said land above described. The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine; they were found among the successional papers of an ancient inhabitant of this country, who died some years since, and, after being inventoried according to law by the parish judge, were sold to the claimants at public auction, December 24, for the sum of $130. The claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 49. The legal representatives of Miguel Erasmo claim a tract of land containing three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, equal to 2,708.76 American acres, to wit: forty arpents front on the Bayou Rouge, in the parish of Avoyelles, with the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the said bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st, a requête in the name of the said Miguel Erasmo, dated at New Orleans, July 3, 1788, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land; to which is subjoined an order of survey or concession under the signature of Estevan Miro, dated at New Orleans, July 6, 1789, conceding the aforesaid tract of land as prayed for, with the usual conditions.

From a close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in this claim, there are very strong doubts of their genuineness; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as this inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by the honorable Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony incorporated in the report.

B No. 50. The legal representatives of Juan de Leon claim a tract of land containing three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, equal to 2,708.10 American acres, to wit: eighty arpents front on the right bank of the Bayou Vermilion, at its mouth, with the depth of forty arpents, in the county of Attakapas, bounded, at the date of the concession, on both sides by the King's domain.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, viz: 1st, the requête of the said Juan de Leon, dated at New Orleans, March 4, 1790, praying for a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined an order of survey or concession under the signature of Estevan Miro, dated at New Orleans, March 7, 1790, conceding the above-described tract of land as solicited.

From a close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in these claims, there are very strong doubts of their genuineness; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as the inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by the honorable Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony incorporated in the report.

B No. 51. Martin Despallier, of the parish of Rapides, claims a tract of land containing three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, to wit: forty arpents front on the Bayou Lafanier, in the district (now parish) of Rapides, with the depth of forty arpents on both sides of the said bayou, bounded above and below by the domain of the King at the date of the concession.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of Bernard Lacroi, dated at New Orleans, September 3, 1776, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land. The concession or order of survey of Bernardo de Galvez, then governor of the province of Louisiana, dated September 8, 1776, conceding the said land as solicited, which tract of land was, August 4, 1798, sold by the said Bernard Lacroi to Jaques Denau, and, on September 11, 1820, by the said Jaques Denau to the said claimant, as appears by the assignments on the back of the concession aforesaid.

From a close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in this claim, there are very strong doubts of their genuineness; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as this inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by the honorable Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony incorporated in the report.

A No. 52. François Breau, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing five hundred and forty-five American acres, having a front of ten arpents on the left bank of the river Vermilion, with the depth represented in a plat herewith filed; bounded on the northwest by the land of Hypolite Breau, and on the southeast by the land of Orilliant Breau, being part of a tract formerly ceded by the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé, and after his death sold by his testamentary executor, Mr. Solomon Malines, in distinct portions; at which sale the father of the present claimant, Mr. Firmin Breau, became the purchaser of a portion of ten arpents front on the river Teché, with the depth of forty arpents on the left or east of said river, and with the depth on the opposite side from the Teché to the river Vermilion, within which portion is the tract at present claimed and represented in the said plat of survey. The claimant hath also filed with this notice an authenticated copy of an act of the then commandant of the post of Attakapas, the Chevalier de Clouet, by which it will appear that his father, the late Firmin Breau, was put in possession of the tract of land in question, in pursuance of his purchase aforesaid, as long since as January 12, 1788, which possession has ever since been maintained by him and those who have held under him. He hath also filed the following documents, viz: an act passed before Judge White, of the parish of St. Martin's, dated January 30, 1809, signed by all the persons concerned, for the partition and adjustment of the estate of the said F. Breau, and a deed of sale from Charles Breau to this claimant, dated December 18, 1815. The claimant hath referred to the documents filed in the claim of Valerie Martin, No. 38, to the extracts of complete patents in the office of the register, and also to the testimony given in the claim of John Charles Dugas, August 6, 1812, before the register and receiver, all of which he believes will sufficiently establish the validity of his title.

An endorsement in the handwriting of the former register on the notice of this claim refers to the connected plat of the Ledé tract, in which it appears that this immense claim has been often recognized by the commissioners in the various claims that have been presented as purchases out of it. And, after examining all the circumstances of this claim, it is recommended for confirmation.

A No. 53. Hypolite Breau, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing two hundred and twenty American acres, having a front of about four arpents on the left bank of the river Vermilion, with the depth; thence in a northeasterly direction to the land of François Bernard; bounded on the northwest by the land of John Charles Dourant, and on the southeast by the land of François Breau; which tract of land is a part of the grant from the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé, and was acquired by the claimant by purchase from Mr. Neuville de Clouet, as will appear by an authenticated copy of a deed of sale herewith filed, dated "August 15, 1808." This notice is also accompanied by a plat of survey; and, for the better understanding of his claim, the claimant refers to documents in the claim of Valeri Martin, No. 38, and also to the abstract from patents in the register's office in Opelousas, and to the testimony adduced before the register and receiver August 6, 1812, in the claim of John Charles Dugas.

This claim is circumstanced precisely as the preceding, being a bona fide purchase out of the great Ledé tract; and the proofs being considered sufficient, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 54. Jean Charles Dourant, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing one hundred and ninety-seven American acres, having a front of three arpents on the left bank of the river Vermilion, in the parish of St. Martin's, with the depth extending from the said river, in a northeasterly direction, to the land of the Widow Dourant; bounded on the northwest by the land of Jean Landry, and on the southeast by the land of Hypolite Breau, agreeably to a plat of survey herewith filed; which tract of land is a part of a grant from the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé. The claimant refers to documents filed in the claim of Valerie Martin, No. 38, to the abstract from patents in the register's office at Opelousas, and to testimony adduced before the register and receiver in the claim of Jean Charles Dugas.

This claim is circumstanced precisely as the preceding, being a bona fide purchase out of the great Ledé tract; and the proofs being considered sufficient, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 55. Orelian Breau, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing three hundred and thirty-six American acres, as represented in a plat of survey herewith filed, having a front of six arpents on the left bank of the river Vermilion, in the said parish of St. Martin's, and extending in depth, in a northeasterly direction, from the said river to the land of Margaret and Adelaide Breau; bounded on the northwest by the land of François Breau, father of the claimant, and on the southeast by the land of Pierre Broussard; which tract is a part of a grant made by the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé, and was sold by his testamentary executor, Mr. Solomon Malines, as will appear by the documents filed in the claim of Valerie Martin, the abstract of patents in the office of the register at Opelousas, and the testimony adduced before the register and receiver in the claim of John Charles Dugas; to all of which the claimant refers. He has also filed, as a further evidence of title, a deed of sale duly authenticated by the judge of the parish of St. Martin's, from his father, Mr. François Breau, for the said tract of land, which deed is dated December 18, 1815.

This claim is circumstanced precisely as the preceding, being a bona fide purchase out of the great Ledé tract; and the proofs being considered sufficient, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 56. Olivia Bodreau, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing fifty-eight acres and one-half of an acre, as represented by the plat which is herewith filed; bounded on the northwest by the lands of Constant Breau and Pierre Broussard, on the southwest by the land of Paul Breau, on the southeast by the land of John Charles Durant, and on the east by the land of Neuville de Clouet; which tract is situated within the limits of a grant made by the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé, and was sold, after the death of the said Ledé, by his testamentary executor, Mr. Solomon Malines, as will appear by documents filed in the claim of Valerie Martin, by the abstract of patents in the office of the register at Opelousas, and by the testimony in the claim of John Charles Dugas, reported by the register and receiver December 30, 1815; to all of which the claimant refers, as well as to a deed of sale duly authenticated by the judge of the parish of St. Martin's from Julian Melançon to the claimant, herewith filed, dated February 6, 1813.

This claim is circumstanced precisely as the preceding, being a bona fide purchase out of the great Ledé tract; and the proofs being considered sufficient, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 57. Santiago Crus, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land containing eight hundred superficial arpents, equal to 677 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents of land front on the right bank in descending of the Bayou Rouge, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents, situated in the parish of Avoyelles; bounded, at the date of the concession, on both sides by the King's domain. In support of this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: a requête in the name of the claimant, dated July 2, 1802, praying for a grant of the above-described land, to which is subjoined the concession or order of survey under the signature of Governor Manuel de Salcedo, dated at New Orleans, July 6, 1802, conceding the said land solicited.

From a close examination of the requête and order of survey filed in this claim there are very strong doubts of their genuineness; but as it would be unjust to report positively against it without instituting a strict inquiry, and as the inquiry could not be instituted without delaying the exhibit of these claims before the ensuing Congress, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given by the honorable Congress, that a full examination may be had, and the whole testimony incorporated in the report.

B No. 58. The representatives of Juan Lopes claim a tract of land containing sixteen hundred superficial arpents, equal to 1,365.20 American acres, to wit: forty arpents front on the right bank of Bayou Bœuf, to commence from the foot of the Island of Pines, with the depth of forty arpents.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, viz: a requête in the name of the said Juan Lopes, dated May 3, 1798, praying for a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the concession or order of survey by Governor Gayoso, dated at New Orleans, May 8, 1798, conceding the said land as solicited.

The documents of title in this claim have the appearance of being counterfeits. From reasons, however, which have been adduced in claims Nos. 28, 36, and 37, &c., it is recommended that the final decision of this claim be postponed until testimony may be adduced upon it, and examined and recorded at more leisure.

A No. 59. The legal representatives of Jean B. Figuran, late of the parish of St. Landry, deceased, claim a tract of land containing sixteen hundred superficial arpents, equal to 1,365.20 American acres, to wit: forty arpents front, with forty arpents in depth, at the place commonly called the Point of Rushes, at the Pass of Malette, in the parish of St. Landry. The claimants have filed in support of this claim the following documents of title, to wit: a requête in the name of the said Jean B. Figuran, dated at New Orleans, September 24, 1784, praying for a grant of the above-described land. The certificate of the commandant of Opelousas, Mr. De Clouet, dated December 28, 1784; the concession or order of survey by Governor Miro, dated (doubtlessly through mistake) December 24, 1784, conceding the said land as solicited.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 60. The legal representatives of Narcisse Carriere claim a tract of land containing eight hundred superficial arpents, equal to 677 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents front on the river Vermilion, with the depth of forty arpents; bounded, at the date of the concession, on one side by the land of Pierre Carriere, and on the other by the King's domain. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st, the requête of the said Narcisse Carriere, dated at Opelousas, November 24, 1777, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land; 2d, the certificate of the commandant, the Chevalier de Clouet, dated November 25, 1777, stating that the land petitioned for was of the domain; 3d, the order of survey by Governor de Galvez, dated at New Orleans, February 26, 1778, conceding the said land as solicited to the petitioner, and ordering the commandant to fix the boundaries of the said land; 4th, the return or certificate of the commandant, the Chevalier de Clouet, stating that he had fixed the boundaries of the said land in presence of the said Narcisse Carriere and the neighbors, dated November 28, 1778; 5th, the patent or title in form by Governor de Galvez to the said Narcisse Carriere, dated at New Orleans, June 23, 1781, for the above-described land.

This claim is founded upon a complete Spanish patent—the most authentic and complete that is known. The patent bears every mark of genuineness, is printed, and its date corresponds with one on the abstract of patents in this office, together with the quantity and boundaries of the land conceded. It is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 61. Emanuel Prudhomme, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land containing sixty superficial arpents, equal to 50.72 American acres, to wit: one arpent and a half front on the left bank of the Red river, nearly opposite to the village of Natchitoches, with the depth of forty arpents; bounded, at the date of the concession, on the lower side by the land of Madame Alexis, and on the upper side by the land of Mr. Badin, the depth extending towards the east.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st, the requête of Madame Widow Chaigneau, dated at Natchitoches, April 17, 1782, soliciting a title to the above-described tract of land, of which she had formerly become possessed by purchase; 2d, the certificate of M. de Vaugine, then commandant of Natchitoches, dated June 19, 1782, approving of the said requête, and stating that he had surveyed the said land and fixed the boundaries in presence of witnesses; 3d, the concession or order of survey by Governor Miro, conceding the above-described land as solicited, and ordering the commandant to establish the petitioner thereon. The following authenticated written evidence has likewise been filed in this claim:

STATE OF LOUISIANA, Parish of Natchitoches:

Before the subscriber, judge of the parish of Natchitoches, appeared Felix Trudeau, formerly commandant of the post of Natchitoches, who made oath that the land claimed by Emanuel Prudhomme, in the name of the Widow Chaigneau, is one of the first settled tracts in this parish; that the same has been inhabited and cultivated from the year 1796, at which time this deponent came to this parish, and, to appearance, from long before until the present day.

FELIX TRUDEAU.

Sworn and subscribed this 21st day of December, 1820, before me.

CHARLES SLOCUM, Judge of the Parish of Natchitoches.

I, Charles Slocum, judge of the parish of Natchitoches, do certify that the said Felix Trudeau was former commandant of the post of Natchitoches, and that full faith and credit is due to his testimony.

CHARLES SLOCUM, Judge of the Parish of Natchitoches.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation; but, as the claimant has failed to produce a regular chain of titles, the confirmation is recommended in the name of the legal representatives of the Widow Chaigneau.

A No. 62. Emanuel Prudhomme, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land having three arpents and a half and fifty-five feet front, with the depth of forty arpents, situated in the parish of Natchitoches, on Red river, nearly opposite the post of Natchitoches, and bounded below by the Bayou Mobile.

In this claim the following documents of title are filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of Madame Widow St. Denis, dated at Natchitoches, April 17, 1782, soliciting a grant of the above-described land. 2d. The certificate of M. de Vaugine, then commandant of the post of Natchitoches, dated April 20, 1782, approving of the said requête, and stating that he had surveyed the said land and fixed the boundaries in presence of two witnesses. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor Miro, conceding the above-described land as solicited, and ordering the commandant to establish the petitioner thereon. The following authenticated written evidence has likewise been filed in this claim:

STATE OF LOUISIANA, Parish of Natchitoches:

Before me, Charles Slocum, judge of the parish of Natchitoches aforesaid, appeared Felix Trudeau, formerly commandant of the post of Natchitoches, who made oath that the tract of land claimed by Mr. Emanuel Prudhomme, in the name of Madame St. Denis, at the Bayou Mobile, immediately opposite the upper part of the post of Natchitoches, is one of the first tracts settled in the country, and that the same has been occupied, cultivated, and possessed from the year 1796, at which time this deponent came to the post of Natchitoches, and for a long time before, from appearances, until the present date.

FELIX TRUDEAU.

I, Charles Slocum, judge of the parish of Natchitoches, in the State of Louisiana, ex-officio notary public in and for the said parish, do certify that Felix Trudeau was former commandant of the post of Natchitoches, and that full faith and credit is due to his testimony.

Given under my hand and the seal of my office, at Natchitoches, December 21, A. D. 1820.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine; but as the claimant has not produced a regular chain of title, its confirmation is recommended in the name of the legal representatives of Madame the Widow St. Denis.

A No. 63. The heirs and legal representatives of the late Madame Louise de Favrot, widow of Don Alexander Chevalier de Clouet, claim, in virtue of an order of survey under the signature of Governor Miro, dated at New Orleans, May 17, 1790, an exact translation of which is herewith filed, a tract of land which may contain about nine hundred and twenty superficial acres, American measure, situated in the parish of St. Martin, and bounded on the east and southeast by other lands of the claimants; on the west by the lands of John Guilleau, François Arseneau, Alexander Arseneau, the widow of Pierre Arseneau, the widow of Louis Arseneau, François Carmouche, and Joseph Breau; and on the northwest and northeast by vacant lands. For the better elucidation of their pretensions they have filed in this claim a connected map of the lands in the vicinity of the tract claimed, a copy of which they have requested to be laid before the honorable the Congress of the United States. They have also deemed it expedient to state the particular circumstances of this case, for which purpose it is to be understood that, in conformity with the laws and regulations of the United States, a notice for this claim, and the order of survey which is the basis of the title, and to which the claimants have already referred, were, at an early period, and under the first law, passed for the purpose, filed and enregistered with the late register of the land office for this district. That when his successor came into office their said claim was laid before the board of commissioners appointed for the purpose of deciding on land claims. That the said commissioners gave their certificate, marked B No. 983, an extract from which is also herewith filed, in confirmation of only sixteen hundred superficial arpents of the land claimed, to wit: For that part which is represented in the plat by the lines A, G, H, I, whereas, as well from the concession of Governor Miro as the oral testimony which has been adduced in support of their claim, it will be seen that their title should have embraced the parts circumscribed by the lines A, B, C, D, F, G. In making known the foregoing facts, which are necessary to a full understanding of their claim, the claimants have wished it to be understood that they are well satisfied that the commissioners, in deciding in their case, have been actuated by just and upright views. They believe, however, that either from an erroneous translation or some other cause their title has not been correctly understood; they have further stated that, although they believe their title is anterior in date to those of Messrs. John Guilbeau, François Arseneau, and others, whose lands front on the river Vermilion, and with whose lines those of the claimants seem to conflict, they have expressly disclaimed any intention or wish to disturb their neighbors in their possessions, and therefore have confined their claim to those parts represented in the said plat by the lines shaded with yellow. The claimants have further filed in this claim a renunciation by the said persons to the right of pre-emption, to which they might be entitled at the back of their respective tracts.

The following are the documents which the claimants have filed in this claim, the first whereof is an exact translation of the said requête and order of survey, as follows:

"To Mr. De Miro, brigadier of the King's army, inspector and intendant general of the province of Louisiana, &c.: Madame Louisa D. Favrot, Widow de Clouet, residing at Attakapas, has the honor of representing to you most humbly that she has been greatly surprised at not finding among the papers of the succession the concession for the continuation of the forty arpents of land where her domicil is, and which her deceased husband, Don Alexander Chevalier de Clouet, had always assured her he had, and on which continuation is her cypress, which has at all times been used for the wants of the habitation.

"Having been under necessity, by reasons of debts, of selling the first concession adjoining that formerly belonging to the deceased Ledé, where she resides, she prays for you, sir, to be pleased immediately to grant her the concession of the continuation as far as the Bayou Vermilion, which is at the distance of forty arpents, more or less, from the boundary of depth—a favor which she expects to receive, praying to God for the duration of your days."

DE FAVROT DE CLOUET.

ATTAKAPAS, September 8, 1789.

"There is no hindrance to the demand made by the petitioner, the neighbors assuring that it is the continuation of the land on which she resides, and to which no person forms any opposition."

J. DE LA VILLEBOUVRE.

ATTAKAPAS, September 8, 1789.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17, 1790.

"The surveyor of this province, Don Carlos Laveau Trudeau, will establish the party upon the second depth of land which is solicited and described in the widow's memorial, it being well understood that the said second depth shall not exceed forty arpents, being vacant and not causing any prejudice to the neighbors; he will extend his proceedings in continuation hereof, signing the same with the aforesaid neighbors; and he will remit the same to me in order to provide the person interested with a title in form."

ESTEVAN MIRO.

The following is an extract from the certificate of the commissioners above referred to:

"B No. 983. Joseph Alexander de Clouet, of the county of Attakapas, is confirmed in his claim to a tract of land containing about sixteen hundred superficial arpents, equal to 1,354.03 American acres, founded on an order of survey in favor of Louise de Favrot, widow of Alexander Chevalier de Clouet, for forty arpents in front, to be taken at the extremity of the other land of the claimant, with the depth to the river Vermilion, but not to exceed forty arpents, bearing date March 17, 1790, and signed by Estevan Miro, then governor of the province of Louisiana, situated in the county of Attakapas, bounded at the time petitioned for, on all sides except the front, by the domain of the King."

The following is an exact translation from the French of the renunciation by the persons therein named to the right of pre-emption:

"We, the undersigned persons, whose lands front on the Bayou Vermilion, and extend in depth to the lands belonging to the legal representatives of the late Madame Louise Favrot, widow of Mr.

Alexander Chevalier de Clouet, do hereby renounce, expressly, all right of preference whatsoever which we might have under the pre-emption law of 1811, which has been revived by the act of Congress of 11th May of the present year, it being well understood by us and the neighbors in general that the land back of our respective tracts was, or ought to have been, embraced in the concession made by Governor Miro to the said widow of the second depth of the land which has been granted to her husband.

"For which reason we think it but just that the government of the United States do confirm the said heirs, &c., in their right and title to the said land; and we ask permission to recommend the renewal of the confirmation to them of the title to the vacant lands lying south of the lands of Mr. J. Guilbeau, and between the back lines of the land of the said heirs and the left bank of the Bayou Vermilion, as an equivalent for the interference of our lands with those of the said representatives, as set forth in the plat."

The following oral testimony has been adduced by the said claimants, to wit:

"In the claim of the representatives of Madame Louise de Favrot, widow of Don Alexander Chevalier de Clouet, Joseph Latiolais, being sworn, deposeth that he is nearly fifty years of age; that his residence for twenty-six years past has been on the land adjacent to the land claimed; that during the whole of that time the said widow, and those holding under her, have occupied the whole of the land embraced by the notice of the claim, which the said representatives have this day made under the order of survey accorded by Governor Miro for the second depth of the land which the said M. de Clouet held on the river Teché; and that the neighbors have always respected the right of the said widow lady and her heirs in the land aforesaid; that it is well known to the deponent that the cypress timber which the grantee required for the use of her other lands, and to obtain which was one of the motives for soliciting the grant, extends from the line marked in the map with the letters L M back to the rear of the tract. He also knows that the late Colonel Alexander de Clouet, son of the aforesaid lady, had resided for nearly thirty years on the back part of the said tract, and near to the river Vermilion; that at one time his residence was about at that part of the map where the letter P is marked; that afterwards he built—about fifteen year since, to the best of the deponent's recollection—at or near that part of the map where the letter K is marked, and which is the place of the present residence of Mr. François Benoist de St. Clair, the grandson of the aforesaid lady."

In the same claim, Andrew Martin, being sworn, deposeth and saith: "That having heard and had explained to him the testimony of Jos. Latiolais, he knows that the facts stated in the said testimony throughout are veritable; that the deponent is in his fifty-second year, a native of Attakapas, and has never resided at a greater distance than two leagues from the land claimed; that he knows perfectly well that the late Colonel Alexander de Clouet, his father, the late Don Alexander Chevalier de Clouet, and their respective families, have occupied the land in the rear of their front tract, and to the left bank of the river Vermilion, from an earlier date even than that stated by Mr. Latiolais; that he, the deponent, was present when the lands belonging to the succession of the late Mr. Ledé were laid off by the surveyor, at which time he perfectly recollects the late Chevalier de Clouet was put in possession of the land in question, to the bank of the Vermilion river, being bounded on the lower side by the land belonging to the said Ledé's estate."

From a thorough examination of this claim, there is little doubt of its justness.

On referring to the files in the claim confirmed by the commissioners, B No. 983, as referred to in this claim, it appears that the double depth of forty arpents, by virtue of the above-mentioned concession, was claimed by Joseph Alexander de Clouet in his notice, and the commissioners have given the area found in the square of forty arpents, without regard to the diverging lines of the original tract.

As the order of survey gives the land in continuation of the front tract, it must be complied with by continuing the lines of the original tract to the depth prayed for.

The circumstances considered, this claim is recommended for confirmation.

A No. 64. Charles Pavie and Charles Noyrit, trading under the firm of Pavie & Noyrit, of the parish of Natchitoches, claim a tract of land containing 5,876 American acres, to wit: one league square of the measure of Paris, which gives 2,500 toises, or eighty-three arpents and one-third of an arpent, situated at a place called and known by the name of "Los Tres Llanos," in the said parish of Natchitoches, being the tract of land on which Louis Latham lately resided, and which was granted many years ago by the Spanish government to a man named Sanchez. The titles to this land having been taken away from the grantee by irresistible force, the claimants rely on establishing the validity of their claims by the testimony which was adduced before the district court at the last term for the parish of Natchitoches, in a suit instituted by the claimants against the aforesaid Louis Latham; a copy of which testimony, authenticated by the honorable Judge Murray, is herewith filed, and to which they beg leave to refer.

PAVIÈ & NOYRIT.
LOUIS LATHAM.

NATCHITOCHES, District Court, December term, 1820.

This suit was brought for the recovery of a certain tract of land containing one league square, situated on the Bayou de los Tres Llanos, at the place called Los Tres Blancos, in the parish of Natchitoches, now in the possession of Louis Latham, who occupies it as a tenant at will of the United States, according to the act of Congress passed —— 1816, on the ground that the said tract of land had been granted to Sanchez by the Spanish government about sixty years ago, and that his title had been taken from him by irresistible force.

Plaintiff's evidence. "Donation of Sanchez to Sepulvedo, first proved by the subscribing witnesses, read and marked No. 1, dated June 2, 1818, for one league square. Sale from Sepulvedo to Pavie & Noyrit, dated November 18, 1820, and marked No. 2, for same land."

Felix Trudeau, sworn, says the Adizes were evacuated in 1772; the grants of land, now generally two leagues each or more, in that part of the Spanish province, were granted to all who demanded them by the governors of provinces; never less than one league square was granted. There were not any surveys made of lands thirty years ago; there was no surveyors at that time; a surveyor was sent, and became blind shortly after. In 1802 or 1803 there was an order given to send no requêtes to New Orleans without a plan, but the commandant had the power to give permission to settle. There was less strictness observed in granting titles on the other side of the Rio Hondo than on this.

Sanchez, the grantee of the land, introduced and objected to, the objection maintained, and the testimony taken to form part of the bill of exceptions; sworn, says his father had a grant for a tract of land four leagues around, or one league square; that governor Salcedo took the title with him to St. Antonio, when he went to take possession of St. Antonio. Louis Latham is in the place where the father of the witness cleared and had his house; the place is called "Los Tres Llanos;" his father had but one child; does not recollect the time his father left the Adizes; does not know how to write. Governor Lavois signed the title. He does not recollect his age. Lavois was governor of the internal provinces; the governor lived at Adizes; he was at Nacogdoches when Salcedo took the titles from there, but does not know in what year they were taken. He told Latham in 1803 that the land was his when Latham first settled on the same.

José Ramon Chaban, (objected to,) sworn, says that he knows Sanchez had a title to the land at "Los Tres Llanos;" cannot read and write; carried the title to Salcedo, at Nacogdoches, who took the title with him. Governor Salcedo asked the title of the witness; he does not recollect in what year. The land had a league square, as his father-in-law told him.

Pedro de Lara, sworn, knows that Sanchez had a title for a tract of land of one league square; knows the title was taken from Nacogdoches; has read the title of Sanchez; the title was signed by Lavois, the governor, and had a small seal. He is eighty-six years old, and was born in the Adizes, the father of Sanchez at the Adizes; he was settled at the "Tres Llanos." Latham lives where Sanchez was settled. The settlement of the Adizes was broken up by order of the Spanish government. Lands were granted to some of them on the other side of the Sabine. Sanchez had other lands given him. Does not know why Salcedo took the titles from Nacogdoches, but he knows that Salcedo never returned them. Sanchez had a rancho* near Nacogdoches.

Cherino, sworn, says that the father of Sanchez lived at "Tres Llanos." Latham lives where the father of Sanchez lived, and cultivates the land which Sanchez opened; cannot read nor write. There were grants made to all those who asked for lands. Was a child when the Adizes was evacuated. Is sixty-seven years old. The witness has seen Sanchez in the possession of the land "De Los Tres Llanos." The land is the best in the country for pasture. Sanchez and Pedro de Lara were married when the witness was a child. Is a native of the Adizes. The father of the witness lived with the priest, and had no land of his own either at Adizes or at Nacogdoches. When Sanchez left the Adizes, he left a man named Mansola on his land to take care of it; this man died there.

Pedro Procla, sworn. The proprietor of the Tres Llanos was the father of Sanchez. The witness worked with him for three years. The house of Latham is near where the house of Sanchez was. Latham cultivates where Sanchez cultivated, and where the witness ploughed. The order was given by the King of Spain that the troops and inhabitants of Adizes should be removed to St. Antonio; there was no clause in the order disposing of their lands. Knows that Salcedo passed through Nacogdoches in 1810, as he can recollect, and took the titles of the inhabitants, saying that he would confirm them, and give them greater force. The best pasture and the best land of Adizes is at Los Tres Llanos. The inhabitants of the Adizes were settled there, raised cattle, and made corn. He never saw the title of Sanchez. In 1772 the inhabitants left the Adizes; Rippardo, governor, gave the orders; the witness recollects him well; the witness is sixty-five years old. Sanchez had a title to a small tract of land given him at Nacogdoches. Saw the title of Jacinto Mora about four or five years ago. Inhabitants formerly settled in good faith on land under a verbal permission; some with titles, but rarely. Had heard of Governor Lavois, but he was before his time. Salcedo told the witness that he took the titles to have them renewed in the audience of Guadalaxara, to give them, as he said, more effect. The witness was appointed by Salcedo to survey for those who requested land; that the manner of obtaining titles at Nacogdoches was by presenting a requête to the commandant, asking for the quantity of land the parties wished, ordinarily one league square. The commandant then gave an order to the syndic to put the party in possession; the governor then gave an order to the surveyor to measure the land; the survey took, ordinarily, three men to witness, and there was a proces verbal, in writing, made of the proceedings, which was considered as completing the title. The witness was syndic at Nacogdoches during the time the Spanish government was in existence at that period. The abandonment of the Adizes was forced; the inhabitants were obliged to leave their crops in the month of June, and were not permitted to gather them; two or three families who were sick remained; the government did not take their lands. The inhabitants went to St. Antonio. Captain y Barbo went to Mexico from there, and made a representation to the viceroy, who permitted them to return to Trinity. From there they went to Nacogdoches, and the revolution has driven them here.

I, William Murray, judge of the district court for the sixth district in the parish of Natchitoches, and State of Louisiana, do hereby certify that the foregoing testimony, contained in six pages, was taken down in writing by me on the trial of the cause of Louis Latham at the suit of Pavie & Noyret, and delivered on oath, the opposite parties cross-examining. I further certify that the witnesses are aged and infirm, and Pedro Procla, whom I personally know, is a respectable witness; and from their manner of giving in their testimony, I think full faith and credit due to the evidence of the other witnesses.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 22d day of December, A. D. 1820.

WILLIAM MURRAY, Judge of the Sixth District.

From the examination of all the facts in this claim, it appears to be genuine; and, as has been mentioned in another, it is not the object of the government to decide between contending claimants, but simply to disavow the public claim. It is therefore recommended for confirmation, subject to such other claim as may be established in due course of law.

A No. 65. The legal representatives of Jacob Schemel, late of the parish of St. Landry, claim a tract of land of six hundred arpents, more or less, situated in the Prairie des Femmes, in the parish aforesaid, to wit: fifteen arpents front on the Bayou Bourbeau, with the depth of the land of Mr. Maurre. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: a requête made by the said Jacob Schemel May 4, 1780, to which is annexed the certificate of approval by the then commandant, the Chevalier de Clouet, dated May 25, 1780, and the order of survey by Governor de Galvez, dated June 21, 1781, conceding the land as solicited.

The documents of title in this claim, among many others, have been drawn from the office of the surveyor general of the city of New Orleans since the purchase, by the sale of the office of the former surveyor general of the State of Louisiana, as mentioned in a former report. They appear to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 66. Jean Landry, of the parish of St. Martin's, claims a tract of land containing one hundred and seventy-three and one-half American acres, having a front of three arpents and a half on the left bank of the river Vermilion, with the depth extending from said river in a northeasterly direction to the land of Neuville de Clouet, bounded on the northwest side by the land of Paul Bro, and on the southeast side by land of Jean Charles Douran, agreeably to a plat of survey filed. This tract of land is a part of a grant from the Spanish government to Jean François Ledé. The claimant refers to documents filed in the claim of Valerie Martin, No. 38, to the abstract from patents in the register's office, Opelousas, and to testimony adduced before the register and receiver in the claim of John Charles Dugas.

This claim is circumstanced precisely as that of No. 52 and others, being a bona fide purchase out of the great Ledé tract, and the proofs being considered sufficient, it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 67. The legal representatives of Pierre and Julien Besson, brothers, claim a tract of land containing twelve hundred superficial arpents, equal to one thousand fifteen and a half American acres, at a place called Ecore Rouge, in the Geese prairie, about six leagues above the post of Natchitoches, bounded on one side by the Bayou Ecore Rouge, and on the other by that called Bourbeaux. The claimants file herewith a requête for the said land, made by the said Pierre and Julien Besson February 25, 1770, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the concession of the same date, and granting the said land as solicited, made by Mr. Athanase Mazieres, at that time lieutenant governor and commandant for the post of Natchitoches.

In this claim there are not sufficient, indeed no data in the office to test the genuineness of the documents filed herein. Without knowing even that there was ever such an officer at the post of Natchitoches as Lieutenant Governor de Mazieres, and in the absence of any oral testimony, this claim cannot for the present be recommended for confirmation. As it bears marks of some authenticity, and as it would be unjust to condemn it without allowing the claimants further time to substantiate it, which it may be in their power to do, it is therefore recommended that a further time be given to the claimants for that purpose.

A No. 68. Isaac Crow, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land containing twenty-seven thousand seven hundred and seventy-five arpents and one-half of an arpent, equal to twenty-three thousand five hundred and five American acres, being for four square leagues, measure of Paris, situated on the east or left bank of the river Sabine, in the parish of Natchitoches, to Nacogdoches, one-half of the said tract lying above or north of the said road, and the other half below or south of it, which tract is one moiety of a tract of eight superficial leagues, to wit: four leagues on the east, and four leagues on the west side of the Sabine, which were conceded to Vicente Michelé June 17, 1797, by Don José M. Guadiana, lieutenant governor for the King at Nacogdoches and its dependencies, and of which he, the said Vicente Michelé, was formally put in possession on the 20th day of the same month and year, by Don José Cayetano de Zepeda, agreeably to the usages under the Spanish government for that district. The part of said grant hereby claimed having been transferred by Vicente Michelé to the claimant for the consideration expressed in his deed of sale, bearing date at the post of Nacogdoches, June 19, 1802, and the said claimant having occupied and cultivated the said land ever since, and having fully complied with the conditions and stipulations on which he obtained the said land, as appears by the authenticated documents filed in this claim, as follows:

To the lieutenant governor, Mr. Joseph M. Guadiana:

Sir: Vicente Michelé, a settler of this place of Nuestra Señora del Pilar, of Nacogdoches, in the district of the province of Texas, with due respect before your honor, I take the liberty to ask and solicit, agreeable to the rules of equity and justice, without any injury to previous solicitations, saith that, residing in the settlement of Nacogdoches, and with the intention of remaining in it as a settler, and subject to orders, I beg of your benevolence, as invested with the faculty of the distribution of the lands in favor of those who should come to settle within this comprehension, grants to me the privilege to settle myself at the place called Las Sabinas, my object being to raise horses, cattle, hogs, &c.; the lands on both sides of the river Sabine, up to the borders of Gulley, or Arroyo de las Borregas; said place is vacant and unsettled, the Indian, Pedro Captain, having quitted and abandoned it, and also his son-in-law, John Boden, since better than one year past, as it is well known to the land commissioner of this district; in consequence of which, if you are pleased to grant to me, on this side of the river Sabine, two leagues of land, extending to the Arroyo de las Borregas on the north course; two more leagues, from the main roads to the middle, on the south course; two leagues on the other side of said river, in an easterly direction; two leagues to the north, meeting the said main roads; to the south two leagues, leaving the Sabine free to the public; promising to your honor that a great deal of advantage and benefit will be found by travellers at my establishment, as it is my intention to have a canoe for the people to cross with more safety, which ferriage I will receive from those who will go about their own business, with exception to those in the King's service or the interests of government, and, besides not admitting any pay, I will at any time be ready personally to render any service whatever, and the same with the ministers who will be duly bound to cross the river. I will oblige myself to build houses on the said lands, enclosures, and cultivate that portion of the land that I possibly can within the time required by the law, by your honor giving me a real and personal possession of the said land; and all that is required as testimony for my own safety and my rights, granting me this writing or document on this paper, as there is none of the stamped paper in all this vicinity, as the law directs. In witness whereof, I have hereunto signed. Nacogdoches, June 17, 1797.

VICENTE MICHELÉ.

Apply to the procurador, say land commissioner of this district, which will leave the interested party in possession of the land of his solicitude, provided there be no interference of a third.

JOSE N. GUADIANA.

I, José Cayetano de Zepeda, land commissioner and surveyor for this settlement of Nacogdoches, in virtue of the foregoing decree: I have been on the said lands solicited by the said Vicente Michelé, which lies on each side of the river Sabine, at the ferry, and known by the name of Las Sabinas; and having seen and examined the said place named Las Sabinas, I found no objection in granting to him on the north course two leagues on the one and the other side, and on the westward two leagues on each side, leaving free and for the public good the Sabines, as also the canoe that will be put for the benefit and good of the public, each person paying twenty-five cents, and twenty-five cents for each load of mules, and twenty-five cents for each load of horses; and he is to be at any time in readiness for the service of government, without any charges, also with the ministers. I took with me the said Vicente Michelé, and we went on the said courses, and at each corner of said land, and in sign of possession, he made marks on trees, cut some trees down, &c.; and I granted him the said possession in the name of his Majesty, in presence of the witnesses, my assistants, with whom I did, and for want of a notary public, as there is none here, and having wrote this on common paper, having none of the stamped, which I certify. Nacogdoches, June 20, 1797.

JOSEPH CAYETANO DE ZEPEDA.

JOSEPH LOUIS DE LA VEGA.

[Here follows the transfer of Vicente Michelé to Joseph Miguel Crow, in the post of Nacogdoches, June 19, 1802.]

I, Miguel de Musquez, commandant of this post, lieutenant, military and political, acting in place of notary public, with witnesses of assistants, for want of a public officer or notary public, as there is none in this comprehension, personally appeared before me Vicente Michelé and Miguel Crow: the first says that the lands are his own on the river Sabine, passage to the Sabines, to be transferred unto the said Crow, those in the said comprehension that lie on the eastern side of the said river, under the condition that he is to remain on the ground and discharge the duties mentioned in the title granted to him for the said land, and that the person or persons representing or acting for the above-mentioned Crow, to cross as is stipulated and agreed with Vicente Michelé; and in case he should wish to sell or dispose of said land, he is duly bound to do it with regard to the conditions herein mentioned, and that the said receives the same, and agrees to observe the above conditions as they are stipulated in the grant thereof; and that this of writing was extended the same way. It was agreed upon and signed by the said Michelé, and Crow made his cross, and I, the said judge, have signed the same, with two witnesses required, which I certify.

VICENTE MICHELÉ.

BOSIE DAVENPORT.

[Here follows the agreement respecting the plat.]

To the commandant:

SIR: Joseph Miguel Crow, a settler of this jurisdiction of Nuestra Senora del Pilar, of Nacogdoches, on the borders of the river Sabines, before you, with due respect, says that, in the month of April, 1796, he settled himself on said river, and built a flat on his own account to cross said river with. The conditions stipulated in the petition presented at that time for this purpose, which grant was made to him by decree of the commandant that had the command that year, and, having misunderstood the said contract, has experienced and suffered to this day the greatest extortions with his numerous family, as it is evident, seeing himself obliged either to quit or to ask of your notorious goodness to make void his obligations in the said contract, and admit the same, as it is an act of justice, and make the following: "That all public affairs or King's business, and also the priests, will pass as soon as they will call, without charges; that the carts or wagons, when the river is high, in that case only will pay three dollars, and when the water extends in the swamp six dollars each cart. It is well understood this price is for the cart, oxen, &c., belonging to the same, together with the horses for the use of those that conduct the cart. That an empty cart at low water will have to pay two dollars, and four dollars at high water; that a single passenger or traveller at high water will pay two bits ferriage for himself and two bits for his horse, if he has one, and two bits for the load of each mule or horse. In consideration of your goodness, I expect to receive the sanction of this my solicitude." Nacogdoches, May 24, 1803.

Acting in behalf of JOSEPH CHABEAU, MICHAEL CROW.

"In the town of Nacogdoches, May 25, 1803, I, Miguel de Musquez, military and political commandant of this town and its jurisdiction, in consideration of the exposure or representation made by Miguel Crow, and the benefit deriving by it to the public of this place, I do hereby approve of the establishing of a flat to the foregoing solicitude in order to cross this river, which is commonly wide and rises very frequently. In consequence of the same, I declare to be granted as he asks, and I have caused the same to be made known to the public, and delivered him a copy of this document, and I have signed the same with two witnesses."

STATE OF LOUISIANA, Parish of Natchitoches:

Personally before me, David Case, justice of the peace in and for the parish aforesaid, appeared Joseph Carriere, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that the foregoing is a true translation from the original copy in Spanish.

Sworn and subscribed to this 8th day of August, A. D. 1820, before me, said David Case, justice of the peace in and for the parish aforesaid.

JOSEPH CARRIERE.

The following oral testimony has been filed in the claim of Isaac Crow, of a tract of land on the river Sabine, at the place where the road from Natchitoches to Nacogdoches crosses the said river:

"William Shewell, being sworn, deposeth that he is at present nearly eighty years of age, a native of the State of Pennsylvania; that about twenty-five years ago he went to Nacogdoches, where he resided several years; that his place of residence has been frequently changed since; but having resided under the Spanish government, and chiefly within the province of Texas, for the last twenty-five years, and during that time having frequently travelled the road between Natchitoches and Nacogdoches, he has been well acquainted with a tract of land claimed by Isaac Crow, under his purchase from a man named Vicente Michelé, on the river Sabine, where the said road crosses it. The deponent knows that a man named Chabineau, was established on the land in question, for the purpose of keeping a ferry, about twenty years ago, to the best of his recollection. That the said Chabineau had resided at the place about two years, when he was accidentally drowned in crossing the river. That about sixteen or seventeen years ago the claimant, Isaac Crow, having married the widow of Chabineau, settled on the land in question, and purchased from the said Vicente Michelé the part of the tract which lies on the east or left bank of the river, on condition of his keeping up the ferry and crossing of the King's troops, and the priests, and the said Michelé, and those in his employ, free of any ferrage; that he has reason to believe these conditions were fully complied with on the part of the said Crow, who continued to reside at the place until about seven years since, when he left home to attend to some affairs on the east side of the Mississippi, and has not since returned, although his family still remains there and has kept up the ferry, and has nearly fifty acres of land under cultivation."

LEVIN WAILES, Register of the Land Office.

The land mentioned in the foregoing claim is situated in the Neutral Territory, or in that district of country between the Rio Hondo and Sabine, whose jurisdiction was in dispute between the governments of the United States and the province of Texas before the treaty ratified February 22, 1819.

The undersigned register being one of the commissioners for receiving and reporting those claims in the Neutral Territory aforesaid, it is proper here to observe that those commissioners agreed to pass over all those claims that might have been entered with the register under the act of May 11, 1820, to be disposed of in these reports. This claim has therefore been taken up and examined, and, from the documents filed and testimony adduced, the claim is recommended for confirmation for a quantity not exceeding one league square, or five thousand seven hundred superficial American acres, to be taken on the east bank of the river Sabine, in the county of Natchitoches, at the ferry where the road crosses from Natchitoches to Nacogdoches, and to be located the one-half north and the other half south of said road.

A No. 69. The legal representatives of George Miller, late of the parish of St. Landry, claim a tract of land of four hundred and eighty arpents, equal to 406.21 American acres, to wit: twelve arpents in front by forty in depth, situated on the Bayou Bourbeaux, in the same parish, and bounded on one side by land of Jacob Miller, and on the other side by the domain, at the time of the concession thereof. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of the said George Miller, dated at Opelousas, September 19, 1788, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the certificate of approval by the commandant of Opelousas, Mr. Forstall, dated the day and year above mentioned, stating that the said described land was of the domain, together with the order of survey of Governor Miro, dated June 15, 1791, granting the said land, as solicited, to the said George Miller.

The requête and concession filed in this claim have been drawn from the office of the surveyor general in the city of New Orleans, which were purchased by the State of Louisiana in 1818, from the succession of the late surveyor general of the Spanish province of Louisiana. They appear to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 70. The legal representatives of Joseph Silvestre, late of the parish of St. Landry, claim a tract of land of three hundred and twenty superficial arpents, equal to 270.81 American acres, to wit: eight arpents front, with the ordinary depth of forty, situated at a place called the Grand Prairie, in the aforesaid parish, and bounded, at the time of the concession thereof, on one side by Mr. Franche, and on the other side by Mr. Joseph Fonteneau.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: the requête of the said Joseph Silvestre, dated at Opelousas, August 30, 1780, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of Opelousas, dated September 4, 1780, stating that the said land was of the domain. The concession or order of survey by Governor de Galvez, dated at New Orleans, June 21, 1781, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the above-described tract of land.

The requête and concession filed in this claim have been drawn from the office of the surveyor general in the city of New Orleans, which were purchased by the State of Louisiana in 1818, from the succession of the late surveyor general of the Spanish province of Louisiana. They appear to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

B No. 71. Juan Aldereta, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land of eight hundred superficial arpents, equal to 677 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents front, situated on the river Colorado, with forty in depth, at twenty arpents distance, more or less, from the mouth of a river which enters four leagues below Rapides, in the parish of Rapides, and bounded, at the time of the concession thereof, on both sides by his Majesty's domain.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: The requête of the said claimant, without date, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the concession or order of survey of Governor de Galvez, dated at New Orleans, June 8, 1777, ordering the surveyor of the province to establish the petitioner on the above-described tract of land.

From a view of the documents filed in this claim, it has the appearance of being a forgery. The claim is unaccompanied by any oral testimony, and as it may be in the power of the claimant to remove all doubts and to establish his title by the introduction of further evidence, it is therefore recommended that further time be allowed for that purpose.

B No. 72. Jean Tomazeau, of the parish of Rapides, claims a tract of land of sixteen hundred superficial arpents, equal to 1,354 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents of land front on both sides of the Bayou Delorme, in the said parish of Rapides, and below the village Bilocci, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents, and bounded above and below by the domain. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: The requête of the said claimant, dated at New Orleans, November 8, 1798, praying for a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the concession or order of survey by Governor Gayoso, dated at New Orleans, November 11, 1798, ordering the surveyor, Don Carlos Trudeau, to establish the party upon the above-described land.

From a view of the documents filed in this claim, it has the appearance of being a forgery. The claim is unaccompanied by any oral testimony, and, as it may be in the power of the claimant to remove all doubts and to establish his title by the introduction of further evidence, it is therefore recommended that further time be allowed for that purpose.

B No. 73. Louis Duran, of the parish of Ouachita, claims a tract of land of three thousand two hundred superficial arpents, equal to 2,708.10 American acres, to wit: forty arpents of land front, situated on both sides of the Petit Bachele, below the village of the Bilocci, in the parish of Rapides, with the depth of forty arpents, and bounded on both sides by his Majesty's domain at the time of the concession thereof. In this claim the following documents of title have been filed: The requête of the claimant, without date, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, to which is subjoined the order of survey of Governor Miro, dated May 4, 1788, granting the said land as solicited, and ordering the surveyor, Don Carlos Trudeau, to establish the claimant thereon.

From a view of the documents filed in this claim, it has the appearance of being a forgery; but, as has been mentioned in the other claims, it is recommended to give further time for the introduction of testimony, as it may be in the power of the claimant, by that means, to substantiate his claim.

A No. 74. Joseph Irwin, of the parish of St. Landry, claims a tract of land containing six thousand four hundred square arpents, equal to five thousand four hundred and sixteen and two-tenths of an acre, to wit: eighty arpents square, situated at the place called the Ant Hill, in the parish of Natchitoches, about twenty leagues in a northwesterly direction from the village of Natchitoches, on the river Sabine; which tract of land was conceded by the Spanish government to Paul Bonet Lafitte August 16, 1800, by Don Miguel de Moral, then civil and military commandant, exercising the office and authority of lieutenant governor for the town of Nacogdoches and its dependencies. The claimant hath filed in his claim the original concession above referred to, to which is annexed an assignment or donation by the said Paul Bonet Lafitte to Louis and Caesar Lafitte for the said tract of land, dated September 18, 1800, and a transfer, by assignment, of the said land by the said Caesar Lafitte and Louis Lafitte to the claimant, dated September 10, 1814, which has been duly proved and authenticated before the judge of the parish of Natchitoches, as will appear by the certificate under his signature and the seal of his office, dated April 21, 1818.

It will be seen that no definite quantity of land is expressed in the concession already referred to. The claimant, nevertheless, relies on the justice of Congress to confirm his title to the extent he claims, because he is well assured that it was well understood between the lieutenant governor and commandant at Nacogdoches and the grantee that there were to have been laid off under the said concession the quantity of two square leagues of land; and that the claim has, ever since the date of the concession, been respected as a valid one by the neighbors to that extent.

The claimant might refer to many documents in the register's office of the western district to establish that, under the Spanish authorities at Nacogdoches, the grants of land were frequently for two, four, and sometimes as many as eight square leagues; he will, however, confine his references to the documents filed in the claim of Isaac Crow, and to the testimony in the claim of Pavay and Noyrit, which he hopes will satisfy the honorable Congress of the United States that he is at least entitled to so much land as he has claimed, and which is less than the area of a square league, the smallest quantity for which grants from Nacogdoches were usually made.

The following is an exact translation of the above-mentioned grant, and the transfers made thereof:

Don Joseph Michel del Moral and Zenaltos, acting as commandant, military and civil, of this town of Nacogdoches and its jurisdiction, &c.

In the execution of the royal jurisdiction which I exercise, and in consideration of the just right which Paul Lafitte has to a piece of land to be located at the place called the Ant Hill, he hath appeared for the purpose of having the same granted to him; which I order and command, and have signed the same, with the two assistant witnesses undersigned, August 16, 1800. In faith whereof, I hereby certify the same.

This is a claim situated in the Neutral Territory, and the same may be here observed as in No. 68, to which reference is made. The documents seem to be genuine, and the claim is recommended for confirmation.

A No. 75. The legal representatives of Joseph Valliere Dauterive claim a tract of land containing 1,600 superficial arpents, equal to 1,354 American acres, to wit: twenty arpents front on both sides of the river Teché, with forty arpents in depth, bounded at the time of the concession on one side by the land of the Widow Gregoire, and on the other side by land claimed by the Chetimaches Indians.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of the said Joseph Valliere Dauterive, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land, and dated August 2, 1788. 2d. The certificate of approval by the Chevalier de Clouet, commandant of the post of Attakapas, stating the lands to be of the domain, dated September 22, 1778. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor de Galvez, ordering the said commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land prayed for. 4th. The certificate of the said commandant, stating that he had put the party in possession of said land in presence of witnesses, dated November 20, 1780. 5th. The patent or title in form to Joseph Valliere Dauterive for the said described tract of land, dated at New Orleans, January 15, 1783, and signed by Governor Miro.

The documents of title in this claim have been examined, and are thought to be genuine. An endorsement, in the handwriting of the former register, is found on the files in the following words: "Copied from the originals, which have been carefully examined and found to be of unquestionable authenticity," and signed by the said register.

The claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 76. The legal representatives of Pierre Naizat claim a tract of land containing 480 superficial arpents, equal to 406.21 American acres, to wit: twelve arpents front, with forty in depth, twenty whereof to be taken in the woods, and the remainder in the prairie at a place called the Grande Coulee, running east and west, and bounded at the time of the concession by the King's domain.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed, to wit: 1st. The requête of the said Pierre Naizat for the above-described tract of land, dated July 28, 1774. 2d. The order of the survey or concession by Governor de Unzaga, ordering the commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the land prayed for, and to fix and place the boundaries thereof, dated January 15, 1776. 3d. The certificate of the Chevalier de Clouet, commandant of Attakapas, setting forth that, in pursuance of the governor's decree, he had put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, and fixed the boundaries, in presence of witnesses, dated November 24, 1776. 4th. The patent or title in form to the said Pierre Naizat for the above-described tract of land, dated at New Orleans, January 5, 1777, and signed by Governor de Galvez.

On examination of the patent or title in form, (título en forma), it is found to correspond with the abstract of patents deposited in this office. It is believed to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 77. The legal representatives of Mr. De Villieres claim a tract of land containing 480 superficial arpents, equal to four hundred and six and twenty-one-hundredths American acres, to wit: six arpents front by forty in depth, situated on the left bank of the river Teché, and the same quantity on the east bank, commencing at the boundary of Gregoire Pellerin, thence descending the said bayou to the Indian village.

In this claim the following documents of title have been filed: 1st. The requête of Thomas Acken, dated at Attakapas, September 15, 1771, soliciting a grant of the above-described tract of land. 2d. The certificate of the commandant of Attakapas, Mr. Fuselier de la Claire, approving the said requête, and certifying that the land was of the domain, dated January 24, 1772. 3d. The concession or order of survey by Governor de Unzaga, without date, ordering the said commandant to put the petitioner in possession of the above land, and to fix and place the boundaries thereof. 4th. The certificate of the same commandant, setting forth that, in pursuance of the governor's order, he had put the petitioner in possession of the land solicited, in presence of the neighbors, and fixed the boundaries thereof, dated May 12, 1772. 5th. The patent or title in form to Thomas Acquin for the said tract of land, dated at New Orleans, November 6, 1772, and signed by Governor de Unzaga. 6th. A certificate written on the above requête, dated May 20, 1778, and signed by the Chevalier de Clouet, then commandant of Attakapas, certifying the transfer of the said title to Mr. De Villieres. 7th. A paper written under the private signature of Thomas Acken, whereby it appears that he had transferred the said land to Mr. De Villieres.

On examination of the patent or title in form, (titulo en forma), it is found to correspond with the abstract of patents deposited in this office. It is believed to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 78. The legal representatives of John Gradenigo, late of the county of Opelousas, deceased, claim a tract of land containing 240 superficial arpents, equal to about 203 acres, being for six arpents front, with forty arpents in depth, situated in the parish of St. Landry. The claimants have referred for evidence of their title to the following documents already on record in the register's office at Opelousas, that is to say: a concession made February 11, 1765, by Messrs. Aubrey, commandant, and Foucault, ordonnateur, officers under the government of the French province of Louisiana, to Mr. Guillory, for "six arpents of land front on the bayou of Opelousas, with the ordinary depth, bounded on one side by the vacherie of Mr. Ricard, and on the other side by the part which may be occupied by Mr. Lamerand, and ten other arpents front on the bayou Boeuf," an authenticated extract from which concession or grant, given by Mr. Gurley, former register of the land office at New Orleans, is recorded in the register's office at Opelousas, in book No. 4, page 104; also an extract from the registry of proceedings of the superior council of the province of Louisiana, dated December 29, 1766, by which the land mentioned in the preceding are adjudicated to the grantee in a suit between him and a Madame Girard; subjoined to which, under date of April 27, 1778, is an original instrument, by which Baptiste Guillory (supposed to be the son of Gregoire Guillory, the grantee) has sold and transferred, in presence of Mr. de Clouet, then commandant, the title of the land mentioned in the decision of the superior council aforesaid to the above-named John Gradenigo, which decision and transfer of title are also recorded in the register's office at Opelousas, in book No. 4, pages 105 to 108, inclusive, out of which lands the said Gradenigo having sold but the part fronting on bayou Boeuf, of ten by forty arpents, to John Tear, to whom the title was confirmed by the certificate of the late board of commissioners, marked A No. 93, it necessarily results that the six arpents front now claimed must still be of right the property of the heirs of the deceased John Gradenigo, who have solicited a confirmation of their title.

The documents of title in this claim seem to be genuine, the facts stated in the notice to be true, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 79. The legal representatives of Louis Latiolais, of the county of Attakapas, deceased, claim 800 superficial arpents of land, equal to 677 acres, to wit: twenty arpents front by the depth of forty arpents, situated in the quarter of Bellevue, on Placquemine Brule, in the parish of St. Landry, and bounded on one side by land formerly owned by Sibrairie Saunier, and on the other side by that which formerly belonged to Mr. Mondon.

The claimants have referred for evidence of their title to the abstract from patents furnished for the use of the board of commissioners, and now making part of the records in the office of the register at Opelousas, by which it will be seen that on March 5, 1778, the said tract of land was patented by the then governor of the province of Louisiana to Bertrand Auret. And they have filed with this notice an authenticated copy from the records of the office of the judge of the parish of St. Landry, of a sale made of the above-described tract of land, dated November 21, 1790, by the commandant of Opelousas, to Dejean and Lastrapes, for the benefit of the creditors of the said Auret; and also of an act executed before Celestin Lavergne, notary public for the parish of St. Landry, dated September 23, 1820, by which Henry Lastrapes, surviving partner of the house of Dejean & Lastrapes, acknowledges to have sold and received payment from the aforesaid Louis Latiolais, deceased, of the above-described tract of land.

The patent or title in form (titulo en forma) filed in this claim has been examined, and is found to correspond with the abstract of patents making part of the records of this office. It is believed to be genuine, and the claim is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 80. The legal representatives of Michel Bernard, late of the parish of St. Martin's, deceased, claim 800 superficial arpents of land, equal to seven hundred and ten and eighty-six-hundredths American acres, being for ten arpents front by the depth of forty-two arpents on each side of the Bayou Carencro, bounded, at the date of the grant on one side by the land of John Gilbeau, and on the other side by the land of Silvian Broussard; which tract of land was granted by Governor de Galvez March 5, 1778.

The claimants have referred for the evidence of their title to the abstract of patents furnished for the use of the commissioners, and now making part of the records of the register's office in Opelousas; and also to the record book No. 3, page 316, in which the original patent herein referred to has been re-registered by the late register, but delivered out without the same having been acted on by the board of commissioners.

On examining this claim it is found not exactly to correspond with the abstract of patents, as it regards the quantity; the dates and boundaries, however, are found to be similar. But on referring to the record, the patent is found in due form as mentioned by the claimant. No claim corresponding with this has ever been acted upon in this office.

It is considered genuine, and is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 81. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, claims a tract of land containing 6,944 superficial arpents, equal to 5,876.57 American acres, being the place known by the name of Peach Mount, in the said parish of Natchitoches; which tract of land was conceded by the Spanish government to Joseph Wallace April 12, 1790, by Antonio Gil y Barvo, then captain of militia, and exercising the functions of governor of the town of Nacogdoches and its dependencies.

The claimant hath filed the original concession above referred to, on which is endorsed a transfer of the above-described land to the claimant and William C. Alexander, signed by Thomas Wallace, the son of the grantee, as well in his own name as for the other heirs of the said Joseph Wallace, and dated at Natchitoches, May 20, 1809. He hath likewise filed an authenticated copy of a judicial sale of the undivided half of the said land, being the part appertaining to William C. Alexander, dated June 21, 1819, under the signature and seal of Charles Slocum, judge of the said parish of Natchitoches, at which sale the claimant became the purchaser, thereby making himself the proprietor of the whole tract above described.

The documents of title in this claim appear to be genuine, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation.

A No. 82. Simon Le Blanc, of the county of Attakapas, claims a tract of land containing two hundred and forty superficial arpents, equal to 203.10 American acres, to wit: six arpents front on the west side of the Bayou Vermilion, with the depth of forty arpents, in the county of Attakapas, bounded on one side by the land of Michel Pevoto, as set forth in the original requête and certificate of the commandant, and on the other by vacant land.

In support of this claim the claimant refers to the requête and certificate of the commandant of the post of Attakapas, Mr. Louis C. Le Blanc, of date September 3, 1798, which was entered with the register and receiver under the act of March 10, 1812; and by some neglect the claim by them was reported No. 71, for only four arpents front instead of ten, as will be seen in the record of the above-mentioned claim, No. 30, pages 23 and 24, in which it will be seen that he was entitled to the residue he now claims.

This is a claim presented for revision, and on examining it the register and receiver have certainly erred in their report, and it is therefore recommended for confirmation for the quantity claimed.

A No. 83. The legal representatives of Jacques Fontenot. It appears by the register's letter of date July 14, 1820, to Mr. De Baillou, a person of intelligence in the neighborhood of this claim, that a requête and order of survey for a tract of land conceded by Governor Galvez to Jacques Fontenot, of ten arpents front, with forty in depth, in the Grand Prairie at the Petit Chene, on the Bayou Catarau, in Opelousas, was delivered to the register before the passage of the law by Congress of May 11, 1820, after which, as appears by said letter, the register wrote to Mr. De Baillou for information.

It seems from the memorandum of the register that the grant was filed with him by one Joseph Fontenot, and his object seems to have been to ascertain all the owners of the land; and from a letter on file, from Samuel Hook, of date November 8, 1820, it seems that part of the land is owned by the heirs of Simon Hook, but no deeds of sale are produced.

In acting upon these claims, the undersigned considers it the great object of the government of the United States to carry into effect the inchoate acts of the former governments, and where it is manifest that the former government intended to invest an individual with part of its domain the present government ought to consummate it in favor of the legal representatives of the grantee. For a person holding under the original grantee may, it is conceived, avail himself of such a confirmation in the same manner as if the act of confirmation had been special to him. And the original grant in this claim bearing every mark of authenticity, it is recommended for confirmation, for the quantity and at the place mentioned in the grant, to the legal representatives of Jacques Fontenot, the original grantee.

B No. 84. John Hayes has filed a notice for a tract of land on the Bayou Petit Ance, for ten arpents front, with the ordinary depth, founded, as stated in the notice, on a Spanish grant which is lost, or in the hands of Louis de Blanc, absent in New Orleans. It has never been produced, and no document of title accompanies the notice; it is therefore rejected.

B No. 85. Mathurin Guillot. This is a claim founded on a requête to Pierre Landerneau, and not coming within the provisions of the law, it is rejected.

B No. 86. Heirs of King Holstein. This claim is founded on a requête only, and not coming within the provisions of the law, it is rejected.

A No. 87. John Stine has filed his notice for the revision of his claim under the 4th section of the act by virtue of which these claims have been entered. It was rejected by the late board of commissioners, composed of the register and receiver, in their report of December 30, 1815, under the No. 721, and in class No. 8. In the files of this claim is found the following note, by and in the handwriting of the then register, of date September 9, 1820, viz:

"The enclosed requête is filed by Mr. John Stine, to be laid before Congress as evidence of the validity of his claim filed with the register October 29, 1812, No. 576. The circumstances attending this claim are the following, as known to the present register, to wit:

"That in filing his claim with the late register for a tract of land conceded to said Stine by the Spanish government, of eight arpents front, with the ordinary depth of forty arpents, at a place called Grand Coat, the requête now filed must have been presented, and as no notice was made for it, it is presumed the register must have supposed the requête to be a paper belonging to the Grand Coat claim; it was accordingly laid among the papers of that claim and overlooked. It bears on the back, in the handwriting of the then translator of the board, these words, 'Stine's requête.' Mr. Stine can establish by testimony that he has exercised ownership over the said land by building a cabin on it and cultivating a garden, before the change of government, intending at that time to make it the place of his residence. The paper above mentioned was not found until after the claim No. 576 had been reported."

The following testimonial proof is also found on file, viz:

"In the claim of John Stine, Luke Briant, being sworn, deposeth and saith that he is well acquainted with the said land, and with the claimant, who is the head of a family, and more than fifty years of age; that in the latter part of the year 1801, or the commencement of the year 1802, he, the deponent, was on the said land, when he recollects there was a small house thereon, in which the claimant had (as the deponent was informed and believes) resided; that there were several acres of the land then cleared and prepared for cultivation, a part of which had been cultivated that or the preceding year; that there were several bearing peach trees on said land, which was spoken of then by the neighbors as belonging to said Stine, and has ever since been respected by them as his property. The deponent further saith that he acquired a knowledge of the above circumstances from being in treaty with the said Stine for the purchase of the said land at the time he visited it, but as the terms of payment which he proposed were not such as Mr. Stine thought proper to accept, they did not agree. Sworn November 25, 1820."

The requête is filed, bearing date June 26, 1796, in which the said John Stine states himself for some years a resident in the post of Attakapas, and, wishing to form a settlement in the said post for the subsistence of his wife and two children, solicits a grant for 10 arpents front, with the depth of 20 or 25 arpents, on the east side of the Bayou Teché, in the rear of Mr. McCarty's land, to commence at a point on the grand woods fronting the island called Sassafras, and thence running downward. The certificate of vacancy by the commandant, Luengo, is attached. The whole seems to be genuine and authentic. Although the claim does not come within the terms of the law, being neither a grant nor order of survey, yet presenting the strongest points of equity, showing that everything was done by the claimant which could have been required of him, many years ago, when the claim would have been sanctioned had not the requête been unfortunately mislaid.

It is therefore recommended for confirmation for 250 superficial arpents, in conformity with the requête.

B No. 88. Claim of John Shult. This is a claim presented for revision under the fourth section of the act by virtue of which these claims have been entered.

It was reported by the register and receiver in their report of December 30, 1815, under the No. 407, in class 7. The additional testimony offered tends to establish the claim by settlement only; besides which, it appearing to be north of Red river, it is out of this jurisdiction. It is therefore rejected.

B No. 89. Claim of François Gonsoulin. This is a claim founded on a requête of date December 10, 1802, in the name of the claimant, for 640 superficial arpents of land in the rear of a tract already owned by the said claimant. This, also, is a claim presented for revision, as appears from the register's note on the files, in the following words:

"François Gonsoulin's requête, to be filed in his claim entered December 24, 1812, see registers No. 187, received August 30, 1820, and to be reported under the act of Congress entitled 'An act supplementary to the several acts for the adjustment of land claims in the State of Louisiana,' approved May 11, 1820."

"On referring to this claim it is found to have been reported by the register and receiver in their report of December 30, 1815, under the No. 384, in class No. 7. It was there claimed by virtue of settlement only."

It does not come within the provisions of the law, nor is it accompanied by any of the equitable circumstances of the preceding claim, No. 87. It ought therefore to be rejected.

A No. 90. Claim of Louis Guillory. This is a claim for nine arpents front by forty deep, situated in the county of Opelousas, in the quarter of the Grand Prairie, alleged in the notice to be a part of a grant to one Pinel from the Spanish government, which is said to have been destroyed by fire.

It is much to be regretted that the claimant has not furnished more proof, both of the existence of the grant and of its probable loss by fire, because the undersigned is persuaded, from the character of the claimant and witnesses, that a grant must have existed, as is stated in the notice, and by one of the witnesses themselves.

In this claim Jean Lafleur, aged forty-nine years, being sworn, says that the land in question is well known to him; that it is a matter of public notoriety that it makes part of the concession from the Spanish government to a man named Pinel, for twenty-five arpents front; that it was purchased by this deponent more than twenty years past from a man named Lamoth, and about seventeen years past sold by this deponent to the present claimant, who is forty-one years of age, and has a family consisting of a wife and ten children; that the land in question has been constantly inhabited and cultivated from the earliest recollection of the deponent to the present time: first by the grantee, Pinel, afterwards by Nicholas Lamoth, and subsequently by the present claimant, by Madame the Widow Fusilier, and others; that it is known to this deponent that the present claimant never had any concession of land from the Spanish government, and that the tract in question is the only land from which he expects to draw subsistence and support for his numerous family of children. The deponent further saith that, although the title of a part of the said land has passed through him, he is in no respect interested in its confirmation or rejection, having made a sale without guaranteeing the validity of the title.

Charles Soileau, being sworn, and having had explained to him the testimony of J. Lafleur, declares that the principal facts therein stated are known to him to be true. Sworn September 14, 1820.

"NOVEMBER 15, 1798.

"Nicholas Lamoth sells to Jean Lafleur six arpents front of land, with the ordinary depth, in Grand Prairie, bounded on one side by Nicholas Deshotel, and on the other by Jacques Deshotel."

"JUNE 7, 1803.

"By two deeds of sale duly executed, both of this date, by Jean Lafleur to Louis Guillory, jr., one for four and the other for two arpents front, the tract of land above described, in the deed from Lamoth to Lafleur, appears to have been conveyed to said Guillory."

"OCTOBER 25, 1797.

"Nicholas Lamoth sells six other arpents, understood to be out of the same original tract, to Jacques Deshotel. This deed is written in Spanish, and is signed by Lamoth, but does not appear to have been officially executed."

"OCTOBER 24, 1810.

"Jacques Deshotel sells the same land to François Guillory. This deed executed before George King, parish judge, and duly recorded."

"It is understood that the tracts claimed by the Messrs. Guillory, making together twelve arpents front, are a part of the same original tract out of which Madame Helen Soileau claimed, and has had confirmed to her under occupancy, by certificate B 1420, a tract of ten arpents front. The whole of these three tracts are said to proceed originally from a man named Pinel, to whom it is said to have been conceded by the Spanish government. It is also said that the original document of title under which Pinel held was destroyed by fire, and that the land being a donation from Pinel to Lamoth, no deed was ever executed. It is known that at that date it was very common to transfer lands in what was termed good faith, without executing any deed."

Perhaps this claim does not come within the provisions of the law, regarding its strict letter; but, taking into consideration the length of time, and the quo animo the claimant has possessed the land, a title to which he solicits, it would be but just on the part of the government to confirm the party in his claim to nine arpents front by forty in depth, in the place above mentioned, to adjoin the land confirmed to Madame Helen Soileau, by commissioners' certificate marked B No. 1420.

B No. 91. The legal representatives of Marie de St. Denis. This claim is for a league square on the Kesatchie, in the county of Natchitoches, situated between two bayous which run out above the land cultivated by Goutierre at the time of the concession.

The claim is founded on a grant which accompanies the notice, of date September 11, 1769, in favor of Marie de St. Denis, wife of De Soto, and signed by the Chevalier de Villier, in these words: "In consideration of the above statement, we have granted, by the ordinary depth, to the said Madame de St. Denis Soto, the land which she demands, in order to make crops, as well as to settle the said vacharie. In faith whereof, we have signed at Natchitoches, this 12th September, 1769.

"LE CHE. DE VILLIER."

The requête preceding this grant is in the usual form, praying for a tract as described above, situated between two small bayous, &c., with the ordinary depth, called the Laurel tract.

The Chevalier de Villier is addressed in the requête by the style of "captain of infantry, and commanding at Natchitoches for the King."

Judge Murray, agent for the claimants, in his notice, styles him the "French governor of Natchitoches."

The nature of the present document of title depends upon the capacity in which the Chevalier de Villier acted, whether as commandant or as governor; if the first, the document is but a requête, his act amounting to the usual certificate of vacancy only; if the latter, it must be considered as a grant, though not clothed with the usual forms. The claim as it now presents itself cannot be recommended for confirmation; but the undersigned would recommend that a further time may be given for its re-examination, in order that the nature and authenticity of the grant may be scrutinized and the location properly fixed.

B No. 92. Representatives of Louis Monet. This is a claim for forty arpents front on Red river, by the depth of four arpents, making the superficial area claimed one hundred and sixty arpents, by virtue of a Spanish grant by the Baron de Carondelet to Louis Monet, of date May 12, 1792.

On examining the claims of this office, the same, or one precisely similar, has been confirmed to the widow of the said Louis Monet, by commissioners' certificate, marked B No. 2112. This, therefore, ought to be rejected.

B No. 93. Claim of Edward McLaughlin, assignee of Joseph Procelle. This is a claim presented for revision; it has been reported by the register and receiver in their report of December 30, 1815, under the No. 954, in class 8. Additional testimony is now offered to substantiate the claim by settlement only. It is therefore not recommended for confirmation.

B No. 94. Legal representatives of Jane Ramsay claim 2,000 arpents, in virtue of a decree of concession of March 8, 1787. L. J. Barbin styling himself clerk and translator L. O. E. D., State of Louisiana, certifies, February 17, 1818, that among the Spanish records, &c., the following was found, which, translated, is as follows:

"MARCH 8, 1787.

"To Mrs. Jane Ramsay, a decree which is in file of this office. To Mrs. Jane Ramsay, widow of Mr. Ramsay, an officer who was in the service of his Britannic Majesty, who solicits the possession of 3,150 acres for an English concession which her husband possessed in West Florida; she may place or locate the following decree or order for Natchez:

"NEW ORLEANS, March 3, 1787.

"As soon as the party shall have found 2,000 arpents of vacant land, in conformity with her solicitation, the concession thereof may be granted her in consideration of what she states."

It does not appear by this certificate that the decree was obtained in the usual form, and signed by the Spanish governor, who, at that time, was Miro. Besides which, what is called the grant seems only a special permission to the party to locate 2,000 arpents on vacant land, that the concession thereof may be granted her. It does not appear that she ever availed herself of this permission, and, for aught we know, she may have left the Spanish dominions before locating her claim, which, of itself, would operate the nullity of the grant.

B No. 95. Louis Cartier claims 280 acres of land in the county of Opelousas, Grand Prairie. It was formerly reported by the register and receiver, December 30, 1815, under the No. 924, in class 8. The additional testimony now offered only tends to establish the claim by right of settlement and occupancy. It ought therefore to be rejected.

B No. 96. Thomas Wallace has presented this claim for revision. It was reported by the register and receiver, December 30, 1815, under the No. 726, class 8. The additional testimony now offered tends only to establish the claim by right of settlement and occupancy. It ought therefore to be rejected.

All which is respectfully submitted.

The Secretary of War, to whom was referred the resolution of the Senate of the 15th ultimo, requesting the President of the United States "to cause the Senate to be furnished with an abstract of the leases made for lead mines and salt springs since March 3, 1807, with the amount of rent annually accruing upon each lease, and the amount paid into the treasury; also, with a copy of the instructions under which the agent for lead mines is now acting in the State of Missouri and upon the Upper Mississippi, and a statement of the annual expense attending upon his agency," has the honor to transmit herewith a report of the Ordnance department, with accompanying documents, marked A, B, and C, which furnish all the information in the Department of War in relation to the resolution.

JAMES BARBOUR.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, Washington, January 11, 1826.

SIR: In answer to the resolution of the Senate of the 15th ultimo, in the following words, to wit: "Resolved, That the President of the United States be requested to cause the Senate to be furnished with an abstract of the leases made for lead mines and salt springs since March 3, 1807, with the amount of rent annually accruing upon each lease, and the amount paid into the treasury; also, with a copy of the instructions under which the agent for lead mines is now acting in the State of Missouri and upon the Upper Mississippi, and a statement of the annual expense attending his agency," I have the honor to transmit to you, herewith, papers marked A, B, and C, which contain all the information required that can be furnished by this department.

Statement A exhibits an abstract of all the leases made of United States lead mines since November 29, 1821, (the date of the transfer of their superintendence to the War Department,) the amount of rent (in lead) which has annually accrued upon each lease, and the amount paid to the United States. In reference to that part of the resolution making inquiry as to "the amount (of rent) paid into the treasury," I have to state that no money has been paid into the treasury on account of rent, as all the rents have been paid in lead, which has been deposited in store for the public use.

Statement B exhibits the amount of expense attending upon the agency for the year ending September 30, 1825, and the amount of the estimate for the same object for the year ensuing, calculated to meet the demand which the probable increase of rents will create.

It will be remarked, that neither the pay of the agent nor of his assistant have been included in the statement of the expenses of the agency for the last year. These have been omitted for the reasons that the agent is an officer of the army, and has been paid no more than his rank entitled him to, and that his assistant has been paid in lead from the rents received by the agent. This mode of compensating the assistant is not, however, considered to be the most approved; and therefore, in the estimate for the present year, an item is inserted expressly to meet that object, but it was adopted at the time from necessity. It was found by experience that, from the great distance of the principal mining districts from each other, the business could not be properly attended to without an assistant, and one was therefore employed, and upon the terms stated, as there was no other way perceived by which the consequent expense could be met.

Statement C contains the instructions under which the agent for the lead mines is now acting.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your most obedient,

G. BOMFORD, Brevet Colonel, on ordnance service.

HON. JAMES BARBOUR, Secretary of War.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, January 11, 1826.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that Lieutenant Martin Thomas, of the army of the United States, has been appointed by the President, on the part of the United States, agent for granting leases of the lead mine lands belonging to the same, subject to his approval and ratification, and to receive all rents which are and which may become due on all mines the property of the United States which have been worked, and which may hereafter be worked during the continuance of this appointment or agency; and to which all those concerned are hereby required to attend, and govern themselves accordingly.

By order of the War Department:

GEO. BOMFORD, Lieutenant Colonel, on ordnance duty.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, Washington, August 18, 1824.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, Washington, August 18, 1824.

SIR: I am directed by the Secretary of War to inform you that you have been appointed by the President of the United States to superintend the interests and general concerns of the government in the lead mine lands, more particularly those lying in the range of country within the limits of the Northwest or Michigan Territory.

The conditions upon which the mines are to be worked you will find enumerated in the leases and bonds furnished you herewith, numbered 1 and 2, which are to be filled up and executed under your direction, and transmitted to this office for the consideration of the President.

The necessity for your keeping regular accounts and entries of all your transactions is too obvious to require but little more than barely mentioning. Some form should be adopted best calculated to give the history of each quarter section, and from which you will at any time be able to form a general statement of the concern; and such general statement you are now required to make out and forward to this department at the end of every quarter.

As to the lead which you shall find on hand, as well as that which you may thereafter collect, you will cause it to be transmitted to the military storekeeper at Bellefontaine for safe-keeping, reporting the same to this office as you make the deliveries. To meet expenses which may thus necessarily arise, as well as others which are not foreseen, but which you may find it necessary to incur while upon this duty, I have requested a remittance to be made to you of three hundred dollars, for which you will forward accounts with the other quarterly returns which you are required to make.

Very respectfully, &c.,

GEO. BOMFORD, Lieutenant Colonel, on ordnance duty.

Lieut. MARTIN THOMAS, Frankford, Pennsylvania.

No. 3.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, Washington, January 31, 1825.

SIR: It has been represented to me by the officers of this department who have been appointed from time to time to superintend the leasing and working of the lead mines of the United States that a change in the system originally adopted, and now in force, could be advantageously made.

Up to the present period it has been a condition of the lease required by the United States that the lessee should pay, in lead, as a rent to the United States, one-tenth part of the lead produced from all the mineral procured from his lot. And the operation of this clause of the lease has heretofore been the establishment of a furnace upon every location, and to make every lessee a smelter also.

The change proposed is to do away this obligation upon the lessee to smelt his own mineral, and, in lieu thereof, to license persons specially to do the smelting, with the privilege of obtaining from the regular lessee, upon any terms the parties may agree on, all the mineral they can for that purpose, the lessee or miner to be bound to account for all the mineral which he raises, and the smelter for all the lead produced from his works, and who shall be accountable for the rent in proportion to the quantity of lead which he makes. In this way, although nothing is paid by the lessee directly, yet payment is made in the gross by the smelter. The number of smelters to be left to the discretion of the government, and their employment at the option of the lessee.

At present it is stated that the smelting part of the business is generally very imperfectly understood and executed, and, consequently, that there is much waste and loss sustained by all parties; that the number of accounts which are now obliged to be kept, (one for each furnace,) many of them for very small amounts, renders the collection of rents extremely perplexing and uncertain.

It is stated that, by the adoption of the plan proposed, persons of ability and experience to conduct the smelting operations in a proper manner would soon apply for the privilege; that many of the lessees would doubtless find it to their advantage to employ them; and that this part of the business, as it got into fewer and better hands, would tend not only to simplify the duties of the superintendent, but would have the effect to augment the amount of rents, and render their collection much more certain.

With these remarks the proposition is respectfully submitted for your consideration. Should you think proper, the experiment can be made with safety, as it could not, in no way, conflict with what has heretofore been done upon the subject.

I have the honor to be, &c.,

GEO. BOMFORD, Lieutenant Colonel, on ordnance duty.

Hon. JOHN C. CALHOUN, Secretary of War.

ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, Washington, February 17, 1825.

SIR: In regard to the proposition respecting the granting of licenses to persons for carrying on the business of smelting, it has been approved of by the Secretary of War, as per copy herewith, (No. 3,) by which you will perceive that the measure is approbated with the express understanding that it is not to impair, or interfere, or sanction anything contrary to existing regulations. All is left to act freely as before; and, in regard to the advantages derivable from the employment of the smelter, the lessee may or may not avail himself, as he may think proper, so that the success of the smelter must depend upon the voluntary support which he may receive. The rules and regulations for the government of the experiment will therefore be made accordingly.

As to the number of smelters to be employed under the above-mentioned authority, it will be regulated by the degree of necessity there may be for them, of which you will be the best judge. They should not, however, be increased beyond that number which is sufficient, by constant attention, to smelt all the mineral to be obtained; and, if practicable, such men only should be employed as are of good character, and from whom the government would be likely to meet with the least trouble and difficulty.

As the department may not be fully acquainted with all the provisions and restrictions which a license should contain, or of the necessary rules and regulations which should follow, their preparation is referred to you.

After these smelters shall have got into operation, application for leases may be made from lessees, with a view only to the collection of the mineral for the smelter, and not for the purpose of smelting it themselves. In such cases leases will be granted and such bonds required as will insure the most faithful accountability from them. By a slight alteration of the leases and bonds furnished you they can be made to answer in these cases.

The licenses will all be made subject to the approbation of the President of the United States, as the leases are. The bonds will refer to the instrument (license) upon which they are predicated, and be made payable as is provided in the blanks (see No. 2) furnished you. It will not be necessary, I presume, for the penalty, in any case, to exceed the sum of $10,000.

You will have known of the recall of Major Anderson ere this reaches you. A copy of my letter to the Engineer department requesting it has been forwarded to you. It was done under the belief that he was no longer serviceable; and the place of an assistant to you was not supplied at the same time, because, in the first place, it was not known that it was necessary, and, in the next, that if it was necessary it would not be judicious to make an appointment without first consulting you as to the particular qualifications requisite. Your recommendation has therefore been just attended to and approved of by the Secretary of War. You are therefore hereby authorized to employ whoever you shall think best qualified to assist you, and who shall do all the surveying, &c., about which you shall want assistance, provided his compensation does not exceed $550, and provided he accepts the same in lead, at a fair market price. As soon as you make an agreement send on a copy of it.

Very respectfully, &c.,

GEORGE BOMFORD, Lieutenant Colonel, on ordnance duty.

Lieut. MARTIN THOMAS, St. Louis, Missouri.

Extract of a letter from Lieutenant Martin Thomas, superintendent of the United States lead mines, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated Potosi, Missouri, January 21, 1825.

"It is my wish to know what regulations exist with respect to reservations of mineral lands. Very much of the mineral land in this vicinity is not reported as such; and as it has been the policy of the government not to sell lead mines, I would request some directions given to the registers and receivers how to proceed when I report officially the existence of signs of lead ore, in doing which I shall, of course, consult the true interests of the government.

"I perceive by the law concerning lead mines in Indiana that all purchases of lands, knowing them to be mineral, are considered fraudulent, and declared void. This I should suppose the best policy in all cases. Any system, however, would be preferable to the present uncertainty. The losses to the government by trespasses on the mine lands have been enormous, and, to a person unacquainted with the country, almost incredible. I am now endeavoring to make such arrangements as will prevent future losses, in doing which I shall want the co-operation of the registers and receivers at Jackson and St. Louis in particular."

Extract of a letter from the General Land Office to Lieutenant M. Thomas, dated February 22, 1825.

"Your letter of the 21st ultimo has been received. You inquire what has been the regulations in relation to the reservation of the mineral lands. In reply, I have briefly to state that the practice has been for the register of the land office to make the reservation of such lands as the surveyors filed in his office indicated to contain lead mineral; but it is presumed that the partial examinations made by the surveyors were such as to have occasioned numerous omissions of appearances of lead in the interior of sections, their remarks being almost exclusively confined to the appearances on the immediate line of survey.

"Herewith is transmitted a copy of a circular letter to the registers and receivers of the land offices at Jackson and St. Louis, directing them to reserve from sale such lands as you may report to them to contain lead ore, which may not have already been reserved. Similar instructions will be given to other officers, should your researches induce you to suggest the propriety of any further measures."

Copy of the circular enclosed in the above.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, February 21, 1825.

GENTLEMEN: Lieutenant M. Thomas, of the United States army, who has heretofore been introduced to you by letters from this office, is acting, under the direction of the War Department, as superintendent of the United States lead mines. He is engaged in exploring the country and ascertaining the extent to which lead mines exist on the public lands. In the execution of this duty it is to be presumed that the scrutiny of his researches may lead to the discovery of lead mineral to a much greater extent than it has been reported by the United States surveyors to exist. He is instructed to report to you all such information as he may deem necessary in relation to the lands which ought to be reserved by the government in consequence of the value of the lead mineral contained therein. And whenever the land recommended by him to be reserved from sale shall not already have been so reserved, you are authorized to exclude the same from sale, and to make the necessary entries of the fact upon your books and maps; and whenever it shall appear that any tract of land which is recommended by the said agent to be so reserved from sale shall have been sold, you will be pleased to report immediately to this office.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 26, 1826.

19TH CONGRESS.]No. 493.[1ST SESSION.]

APPLICATION OF ALABAMA FOR RELIEF OF PURCHASERS, FOR REDUCTION OF PRICE, CHANGE IN MODE OF SELLING, AND CESSION OF CERTAIN PUBLIC LANDS TO THAT STATE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE FEBRUARY 8, 1826.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the senate and house of representatives of the State of Alabama in general assembly convened respectfully represents: That a considerable portion of the debt contracted by citizens of the State of Alabama for lands of the United States sold prior to the first day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty, remains unpaid. The acts of Congress heretofore passed for the relief of purchasers of the public lands, while they extended relief to the unfortunate debtor, contributed to the increase of the public revenue, and tended to destroy the odious relation of debtor and creditor which existed between the government and its citizens. Those acts, wise and beneficent as they were, have not, however, carried relief into the bosom of many meritorious families who are dependent for their support upon the sweat of their own brow, and for salvation from utter ruin upon the justice and liberality of the general government. Many persons, not then recovered from the infatuation produced by a period of unexampled but deceitful prosperity, failed to accept the boon which had been proffered by the general government, and only postponed the time of their suffering by claiming a further credit upon the lands which they had purchased. It is known to the Congress of the United States what untoward circumstances combined prior to the first of July, eighteen hundred and twenty, to give a fictitious value to every article of merchandise, and to wild and unsettled lands in the Mississippi Territory a supposed value beyond that of the best improved lands in the most populous parts of the United States. More than four millions of dollars of Mississippi stock, issued while three-fourths of the Mississippi Territory were covered with Indian titles, were to be redeemed at the treasury of the United States, after paying to the State of Georgia one million two hundred thousand dollars, and defraying the expenses of surveying and selling the public lands lying in that Territory. This stock was, however, receivable in payment of the public lands lying in that Territory, purchased after the date of said stock. Much of this stock was purchased by persons desirous to lay it out in lands in the Mississippi Territory at from forty to fifty dollars for the hundred. The depreciation of this stock induced purchasers of the public lands to give more than double the amount they would have otherwise given for the same land to be paid for in money. The high price of the staple product of the soil in the States of Alabama and Mississippi, which continued only a sufficient time to make the ruin of the citizens the more complete, added to the high prices of the public lands, and increased the calamity which finally overwhelmed the purchasers. At that time, too, the paper issuing from a multitude of banks without capital, and procured easily, increased the facilities of paying the first instalments upon lands purchased at prices varying from twenty to one hundred dollars per acre. It is known that the Mississippi stock, from the enormous prices of the lands purchased with it, was very soon almost withdrawn from the market, or attained a value little less than its nominal amount. Lands purchased with a medium thus depreciated, with the paper of banks which soon ceased to exist, and when cotton commanded thirty cents per pound, were in a short time to be paid for in cash, and at a time when the staple commodity of the country had declined from thirty to less than ten cents per pound. A just regard to the rights and interests of the citizens required of the government at this crisis a manifestation of its paternal regard and a modification of the contracts which were ruinous to the citizens and not beneficial to the government. Relief was extended to the purchasers of the public lands by several acts of Congress. From unavoidable accident, from want of information, or from a vain hope of complying with a contract, the ruinous nature of which was not yet discovered, many of the purchasers of lands in the State of Alabama failed to relinquish their purchases in conformity to the acts of Congress passed for their relief. The wealth of a nation is founded on the prosperity of its citizens, and the strength of the government is based on the affections of the people. To strengthen the southern frontier has heretofore been the laudable object of the government. With this view they have laid the foundation of a fortification in the State of Alabama which will be viewed by future generations as a monument of the wisdom and magnanimity of the age in which it was founded. It would not consist with this wise policy of the government, nor with its magnanimity, to turn from his home, which has been reclaimed from the wilderness by hard and scanty means, the yeoman who is ever ready to defend the soil at the bidding of his country. The interest of the government, it is conceived, even if it were to regard its revenue alone, would be promoted by granting relief to its citizens. At the end of six and eight years, for which credit has been claimed, the husbandman will find himself still unable to pay for his land. No payment will be made in the meantime, because he cannot hope to obtain a title for the land which he had purchased. At the expiration of the time for which credit has been claimed, the lands will revert to the United States after eight years of ruinous cultivation. The legislature of the State of Alabama cannot forbear respectfully to suggest a wish, in behalf of its citizens, that the Congress of the United States will take into its consideration the situation of the purchasers of the public lands, and extend for their benefit the time for relinquishing lands in conformity to the acts heretofore passed, and will allow such discounts upon cash payments as may be deemed just. Here they think justice requires that they should represent that the lands which were purchased at prices near their real value have been generally paid for either by lands relinquished or in cash, and that the lands yet unpaid for are those purchased at prices more above their value than those paid for, and are generally in the hands of persons least able to pay for them. This circumstance, it is conceived, ought to induce the representatives of the nation to allow a larger discount upon such cash payments as may hereafter be made. It is respectfully represented that the last law for the relief of the purchasers of the public lands did not afford any relief to a large and meritorious class of citizens who had not taken the benefit of the first law. Relief in behalf of this class of purchasers is respectfully prayed. The legislature would also respectfully represent that many good and worthy citizens who are settled upon public lands are, as the law now stands, in the power of the merciless speculator, and that his hard earnings may either be taken from him, or may be used as a means of extorting from him his last dollar. It is therefore respectfully prayed that a law may be passed protecting the settler in the enjoyment of his crop, and saving him from the "tender mercies" of the unfeeling speculator. It is respectfully prayed that when the public lands shall be sold, after the season of preparing for a crop, the planter may be permitted to continue in possession of the land until he shall have gathered the fruits of his labor. The legislature of the State of Alabama cannot forbear the expression of an opinion that it would best comport with the wise policy which has heretofore governed the councils of the nation to permit the purchasers of lands not yet paid for to surrender them to the United States, and to receive certificates for the amount of the purchase money receivable in payment of the same lands when resold, or in payment of other lands of the United States.

Resolved, That the governor be requested to forward a copy of this memorial to each of our senators and representatives in Congress, and that our senators be instructed, and our representatives be requested, to use their exertions to obtain the objects contemplated by the said memorial.

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

RESOLUTIONS instructing our senators and requesting our representatives in Congress to use their best endeavors to procure the passage of a law to reduce the price of the public lands.

The legislature of the State of Alabama would respectfully represent to the Congress of the United States that the present mode of selling the public land to the highest bidder, though free from most of the objections attending the former system, is liable to some abuses in practice that it would be very desirable to correct or obviate. Every public sale is attended by a host of speculators, who really do not wish to own the soil, but to extort a premium from the occupants for the privilege of purchasing the cabin they have built and the field they have cleared. To effect that object, they enter into a combination and act in concert. They threaten the occupant to run his land to a higher price than his means will enable him to give unless he will pay them not to bid against him or buy the land from them at a considerable profit. Thus combined, they levy a contribution on the honest and industrious part of the community, and divert considerable sums from the treasury. A single individual has no chance to compete with such a formidable combination. The fear of being driven from his home compels him to yield to such terms as may be prescribed. Competition is stifled, and the land bid off at the minimum price in many instances, when a fair competition would enhance the price considerably. The legislature can see no remedy for this evil but in a change of the mode of selling the public land, and would therefore suggest, with great respect and deference, the propriety of dividing the unsold land into three or more classes, and fixing a price on each class, at which it might be entered. A much better price would be obtained by the government, and the citizen, perhaps, give less for his land. A price sufficiently high might be fixed, in the first instance, to guard against loss to the treasury. That price might be reduced at suitable intervals, if not entered at the former price, until all the land in any manner fit for cultivation would be entered. The legislature is aware that dividing the lands into classes according to quality, where the surveys are completed, would be attended with some little expense, but feel very confident that the increased price would greatly exceed the additional expense. The offering of great bodies of land for sale at the same time is calculated to drain the country of money, by inducing all who are able to purchase at the same time. By this means great embarrassment is felt in the traffic and commerce of the country. The exhaustion of the circulating medium would in a great measure be avoided by the proposed system; entries would be made from time to time, and the money thereby withdrawn from the common course of business less sensibly felt. There would be great propriety in ultimately reducing the quantity to be entered to forty acres, and the price to twenty-five cents an acre. Should this system be adopted, there can be no doubt that the United States would receive a great deal more money for their land, and the citizen obtain a home for less than he will inevitably have to give if the speculators can force him to buy from them the privilege of buying from the government, as they certainly will do if the auction system is continued. The gradual reduction of the price from time to time, at such intervals as will allow time for a fair experiment, will sell the good lands for their value more nearly than they bring at auction, and ultimately sell a vast quantity of poor land that can never be sold under the present system. It is highly important to every government that the soil should be taxable. Under the system of cash sales it cannot be important to continue the prohibition of the power of the State to tax the land for five years from the date of the purchase. That restriction, it is believed, was a part of the old credit system, and should have been abolished with it. Many citizens of this State are living on public land; they have improved it by their labor; and if the system of offering the land for a fixed price shall be adopted, the actual settler might be allowed a preference in the right to purchase for a reasonable period, through all the gradations of price, without the least prejudice to the treasury. The land should be subject to entry by the actual settler, at the price fixed, for a limited time, and if he failed to do so, it should be subject to entry by any other person for another space; and if not then entered, the price should be reduced, and the preference at the reduced price again allowed to the settler. Should this be done, many poor men will procure land on which they can raise their families; the country at large will be greatly improved, its industry increased, and its morals cherished.

Resolved, therefore, by the senate and house of representatives of the State of Alabama in general assembly convened, That our senators be, and they are hereby instructed, and our representatives requested, to use their best endeavors to procure the passage of a law to dispose of the public lands in the manner recommended in the foregoing memorial.

Resolved, also, That our senators be instructed, and our representatives requested, to use their best endeavors to procure for this State the lands lying within its limits to which the Indian title was extinguished by the treaty made at the Indian Springs; and, particularly, that they use their best endeavors to prevent the settlement of the Creek Indians residing in the State of Georgia within the limits of this State.

And be it further resolved, That the governor be, and he is hereby, requested to forward one copy of the foregoing memorial and resolutions to each of our senators and representatives in Congress.

[1ST SESSION.]

APPLICATION OF TENNESSEE FOR A GRANT OF CERTAIN LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 9, 1826.

Mr. POLK, from the Select Committee, to whom was referred the memorial of the legislature of the State of Tennessee, asking a relinquishment of the title of the United States to certain vacant lands therein described, lying within the limits of that State, to be appropriated by the legislature thereof to the purposes of education, reported:

That in the year 1782 the State of North Carolina, by an act of the general assembly of that State, promised to her officers and soldiers lands proportioned in amount to their rank in the army, to be located by them in the then western territory of that State, as an additional compensation for their valor and services during the revolutionary war, and directed that military land warrants should be issued to all such as should make application to the proper authorities, and who should appear to be entitled to the same according to the provisions of the act; that during the war specie certificates, as they were termed, to a large amount, were issued under the authority of the State of North Carolina to defray the expenses incident to the prosecution of the war; and these certificates constituted a public debt, due by the State to the individuals who were the holders of them, and which the State was bound in good faith to redeem and pay off. And for this purpose, and likewise to dispose of her surplus western lands, by an act of the general assembly of the State of North Carolina, passed in the year 1783, an entry taker's office, subsequently called and generally known by the name of John Armstrong's office, was created, in which, according to the provisions of the act, for every two pounds in cash or in specie certificates paid into the office the individual was entitled to enter and obtain a warrant of survey for one hundred acres of western lands. Nearly all the holders of specie certificates, and, many others, embraced the provisions of the act, and obtained incipient titles to lands to be laid out in the western territory of the State, and to which grants were subsequently to issue. At that time, and until the year 1789, the chartered limits of the State of North Carolina extended west to the Mississippi river, and included what is now the State of Tennessee; and entries of land were made even to the western confines of the State, many of them in that section of the State to which the title of the Chickasaw tribe of Indians was not then extinguished. In the month of December, in the year 1789, the State of North Carolina ceded to the United States all that portion of her western territory which now constitutes the State of Tennessee, upon certain express conditions and limitations therein enumerated. Among the conditions thus enumerated, she reserved to herself the right to issue grants and perfect titles to all the unsatisfied and bona fide claims of her officers and soldiers for whom provision had been made by law, and likewise to satisfy all other claims properly chargeable upon the territory thus ceded. At the period of the cession many of the military land warrants of the officers and soldiers of the North Carolina line had not been issued. Other claims were floating and unlocated to any particular spot or parcel of land, and their number and amount were unascertained. Many other claims had been located and entered upon particular spots or parcels of lands, to the claimants of which no grants had issued, and thus the titles remained incomplete. This was the state of things at the period when the act of cession was passed by the State of North Carolina, in the month of December, 1789. In the month of April, 1790, the Congress of the United States accepted the cession made by North Carolina, and shortly afterwards established a territorial government therein. In the month of June, 1796, Tennessee was admitted into the Union as a free and independent State, and upon equal footing with her sister States. North Carolina, however, continued to exercise the powers which she had reserved to herself in the cession act, from its date, in 1789, until the year 1803, and continued to issue grants and perfect titles to lands lying within the State of Tennessee, according to the reservation which she had made to herself in the act of cession. In which year, (1803,) in consequence of the great inconvenience to the public, and particularly to warrant holders, in being compelled to have their titles perfected and grants issued at the seat of government of North Carolina, a distance of several hundred miles from the land entered and claimed by them, lying in the State of Tennessee, a negotiation was instituted between the two States (North Carolina and Tennessee) which resulted in a compact entered into between them, whereby the State of Tennessee was vested with full power and authority to issue grants and perfect titles to the remaining unsatisfied claims of North Carolina, in as full and ample a manner as North Carolina possessed the same by virtue of the cession act, subject to certain restrictions and limitations therein contained, one of which was that North Carolina reserved to herself, exclusively, the right of issuing military warrants. On the 18th day of April, 1806, the Congress of the United States assented to and ratified the compact thus made between the two States, and, by an act of Congress passed on that day, recognized the power thus vested in the State of Tennessee, and authorized her, in the room and stead of North Carolina, to issue grants and perfect titles north and east of a line in the said act of Congress designated, commonly called the Congressional reservation line; but imposed as an express condition, among others enumerated in the act, upon which Tennessee was authorized to issue grants and perfect titles, that certain college and academy lands should be laid off, and likewise that six hundred and forty acres of land within every six miles square, where existing claims would admit in the said territory, north and east of the said line, should be laid off for the use of schools for the instruction of children forever; and by the same act of Congress provision is made that if the territory north and east of the said line should not contain a sufficient quantity of land fit for cultivation, according to the true intent and meaning of the original act of cession, to satisfy all the bona fide and outstanding claims of North Carolina, Congress would thereafter provide by law for the satisfaction of all such as could not be located in the territory aforesaid out of the lands lying south and west of the said line, denominated the Congressional reservation line. In September, 1806, Tennessee, by virtue of the power thus delegated to her, made provision to issue grants and perfect titles on the remaining unsatisfied claims of North Carolina, within the territory aforesaid, north and east of the said line; and likewise to carry into effect the benevolent intention of Congress with regard to the donation made for the use of schools. And for this purpose, under the authority of her laws, land offices were opened in August, 1807. But the memorial of the legislature of Tennessee states that, in consequence of the great number of existing claims derived from North Carolina but few of the school tracts of land were laid off, amounting only to 22,705 acres, leaving a deficit or balance unprovided for, of school lands, of 421,739 acres, which would have been the amount located if a 640 acre tract of school land had been laid off in every six miles square in the territory aforesaid, north and east of said line, as contemplated by the act of Congress of 1806. Tennessee, from 1807, and for many years thereafter, kept her land offices open, and continued to issue grants and perfect titles north and east of the line, on North Carolina claims, so long as the owners of warrants derived from North Carolina could find land in the territory aforesaid which they conceived worth appropriating, or upon which they were willing to sink their claims. All the lands fit for cultivation were taken up and exhausted, and still it was found that North Carolina claims to a considerable amount remained unsatisfied. The United States stood pledged by the act of Congress of 1806, before referred to, that if there should not be a sufficient quantity of land fit for cultivation north and east of the line in the said act designated to satisfy all the outstanding and bona fide claims of North Carolina, Congress would thereafter provide by law for satisfying all such as could not be located in the territory aforesaid out of the lands lying south and west of the said line. The fact having been clearly and certainly ascertained that there was not a sufficient quantity of land north and east of the said line to satisfy the outstanding claims of North Carolina, but that a large balance still remained unsatisfied, the United States, by an act of Congress passed April 4, 1818, (after the Indian title, by a treaty made with the Chickasaw tribe of Indians, had been extinguished to all that portion of the country south and west of the congressional reservation line, to which that tribe had previously claimed title, and over which they exercised dominion,) made provision to redeem the pledge thus given by the act of Congress of 1806, and directed that the balance of claims still unprovided for should be satisfied in that section of country, viz: in the country south and west of the congressional reservation line; and authorized the State of Tennessee to issue grants and perfect titles there, as she had done, under the act of 1806, north and east of the line, but made no provision similar to that of 1806 for the benefit of schools or the instruction of children. In 1819 Tennessee, in pursuance of the act of Congress of 1818, opened an office, and established a board of commissioners for the adjudication of the remaining unsatisfied North Carolina claims, in order to ascertain their validity; and likewise opened land offices, and proceeded to issue grants and perfect titles south and west of the congressional reservation line upon all such claims as were adjudicated valid, and limited the time of filing claims for adjudication. In 1821 the legislature of Tennessee gave further time for the adjudication and satisfaction of claims, and declared by law that her land offices should remain open for the satisfaction of claims until the first Monday in May, 1823, at which period they should be forever closed, and that all claims which should not be presented before that period should be forever barred. In the month of September, 1823, the general assembly of the State of Tennessee again convened, when it was discovered that a few claims were still unprovided for, and the legislature, for the purpose of providing for every honest and bona fide claim, again opened her offices for the adjudication and satisfaction of all such claims still remaining unprovided for as the legislature deemed bona fide, and directed her offices to remain open for this purpose until the first day of June, 1825; at which time, as she had done before, she directed her offices to be forever closed. At that session the legislature memorialized Congress to grant to the State of Tennessee the lands which should remain vacant south and west of the congressional reservation line after the first day of June, 1825, at which period her offices were to be closed, to supply the deficit in the common school fund north and east of the congressional reservation line, which had been promised to the State by the act of Congress of 1806, but which had been but partially realized. At the session of the legislature of Tennessee held in September, 1825, the State of North Carolina, by her agents, presented for satisfaction certain other claims which had been issued by that State; and the State of Tennessee, upon the presentation of the said claims, although her land offices had been directed to be forever closed on the first day of June, 1825, yet, being desirous to provide for the satisfaction of every bona fide claim properly chargeable upon the territory within her limits, and on being assured that the State of North Carolina had, by law, closed the issuance of any further claims, again opened her land offices for their satisfaction, upon terms acquiesced in by the two States. And for this purpose her land offices are directed to remain open until the first day of January, 1827, at which time, as she had twice before done, she directed her offices to be forever closed. The few remaining claims will doubtless be satisfied within that period. Tennessee, at the same session, (1825,) again memorialized Congress to grant to her the lands which should remain vacant and unappropriated south and west of the congressional reservation line after the first day of January, 1827, at which time her land offices are to be closed to supply the deficit in the common school lands north and east of the line, which had been promised to the State by the act of Congress of 1806, but which had only in part been received. The two memorials of the legislature of Tennessee state, and, from satisfactory information received by the committee, that statement is confirmed, that so numerous have been the claims derived from North Carolina that all the valuable lands, whenever they were to be found in the country south and west of the congressional reservation line, have been taken up and appropriated to the satisfaction of these claims; for it was not the policy adopted by North Carolina to lay off the lands to which her officers and soldiers and other claimants were entitled in a body, in townships, or in tracts adjoining to each other, as the United States have done in laying off bounty lands to their soldiers; but the claimants were permitted to explore the whole country, and select their lands wherever they thought proper; and Tennessee was necessarily compelled to pursue the same policy, and did pursue it, after she became authorized to perfect titles on North Carolina claims. The consequence has been that all the good lands in every part of the country where they were to be found have been selected and appropriated by the claimants, and the poorer and less valuable lands have been left unappropriated, and do not, of course, lie in a body, but in detached parcels, and are of inconsiderable value for any purpose but for the convenience of outlets, timber, range, &c. Twelve and a half cents per acre is believed to be a fair price for much the greater portion of it that is worth appropriating at any price. Much of it consists of barrens and hills that are not worth the annual taxes required to be paid by the State, and will not be taken up at all. The State of Tennessee, in the two memorials of her legislature hereinbefore referred to, prays Congress to relinquish to her the title of the United States to the lands thus remaining vacant, and pledges the State to appropriate them to the purposes of education. The committee are of opinion that the said lands so remaining vacant in the State of Tennessee are no object to the United States, but, if relinquished to the State of Tennessee, would supply in part the deficiency which the memorials state exist in the school lands of the State, and might be usefully applied in the promotion of education by the establishment of common schools for the instruction of children; and therefore they beg leave to report a bill.

CLAIM OF A DEPUTY SURVEYOR FOR PAYMENT FOR SERVICES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 10, 1826.

Mr. WHIPPLE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of Silas Dinsmore, Jr., reported:

That the petitioner sets forth in his petition "that some years since he surveyed a portion of the lands of the United States south of the State of Tennessee; that his field notes were returned to, examined, and approved of by a legal officer; that his accounts were made out and duly certified; that he has made frequent applications to the surveyor general of the district for payment, but without success;" he therefore prays that a law may be passed for his relief. By the accounts of the petitioner, which are duly authenticated, there appears due to him the sum of two thousand and thirty-three dollars and eighteen cents. It appears by the correspondence transmitted to the committee, between the petitioner and the surveyor general, that the original notes of survey, with the maps and description of the work performed, for which compensation is asked, were, by the petitioner, deposited in the office of the principal deputy surveyor of the land district east of the Island of New Orleans. It further appears by the certificate of Silas Dinsmore, the then principal deputy surveyor of that land district, that the documents abovementioned are detained in his office "on the belief that there are private claims in them not yet surveyed."

The particular date of the time of depositing the documents in question with the then principal deputy surveyor of the land district east of the Island of New Orleans does not appear, but the deposit was probably made some time in the year 1823.

At the close of the year 1824 Silas Dinsmore resigned the office of principal deputy surveyor, and David B. Morgan was appointed as his successor.

The surveyor general declines paying the accounts of the petitioner for the following reasons:

1st. He requires the petitioner to obtain from David B. Morgan, the present principal deputy surveyor, a certificate stating that the field notes and maps of the townships surveyed by the petitioner are in his (said surveyor's) possession, and explaining the cause why they are withheld from the surveyor general's office.

2d. The surveyor general intimates that Silas Dinsmore, the uncle of the petitioner, and former deputy surveyor, has not delivered the field notes and maps in question to his successor, David B. Morgan, but detains them in his own possession.

The committee are of opinion that it is not expedient to grant the relief prayed for, and for the following reasons:

1st. Because the several surveyors general are, by law, empowered and required to appoint their own deputies.

2d. Because the several surveyors general are vested by law with the power of dismissing their deputies for misconduct, and are made responsible to the government for the conduct of their deputies.

3d. The moneys appropriated by the government for the purposes of the surveying department are committed to the care of the surveyors general, to whom the deputies and contractors are to look for their compensation; and should the government adopt the principle that, in the event of a dereliction of duty on the part of a superior officer, it would pay the deputies dependent on such superior officer, numerous instances would probably occur in which the government would be called upon to make double payment for the same object.

4th. The surveyors general are by law required to return the field notes, plats, and maps of all surveys made by them, or under their direction, to the Treasury Department. They must, therefore, be left in possession of full power to enforce returns from their deputies and those employed by them; and should the government, in any instance, consent to make payment before satisfactory returns have been made, the main design of the laws regulating the surveying department would be defeated.

The committee, therefore, recommend to the House the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petition ought not to be granted.

QUANTITY OF LAND SURVEYED AND NOT OFFERED FOR SALE, AND THE RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES AT CERTAIN LAND OFFICES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 13, 1826.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 10, 1826.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 7th instant, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the "House what quantity of public land has been surveyed and not yet offered for sale; the quantity of such land in each State and Territory; also to transmit a list of land offices, if any such there be, at which no moneys have been received from the sale of public lands, with the date of their establishment and cause of their unproductiveness; also to state whether there are any land offices at which the receipts for lands sold within the last four years have been less than the expenses of the offices, and the names of such offices," I have the honor to transmit herewith a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with the statements marked A and B, therein referred to, which contain the information required by the resolution.

I have the honor to be, with the highest respect, your most obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, February 9, 1826.

SIR: In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives, dated the 7th instant, directing "the Secretary of the Treasury to inform this House what quantity of public lands has been surveyed and not yet offered for sale; the quantity of such land in each State or Territory; also to transmit a list of land offices, if any such there be, at which no moneys have been received from the sale of the public lands, with the date of their establishment and the cause of their unproductiveness; also to state whether there are any land offices at which the receipts for lands sold within the last four years have been less than the expenses of the offices, and the names of such offices," which resolution having been referred to this office, I have the honor to enclose the statements marked A and B, which exhibits the information called for.

The land office at St. Helena is the only one at which no money has been received from the sale of the public lands. This has arisen from the several acts of Congress extending the time for the adjustment of land claims under the direction of the registers and receivers of that office. The private land claims extending to every part of this district, it becomes necessary to suspend the sale of the public lands until they shall have been confirmed and surveyed.

It may be proper to remark, that there has been a considerable quantity of land surveyed in some of the States and Territories, the surveys of which have not yet been received at this office.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Hon. RICHARD RUSH, Secretary of the Treasury.

[1ST SESSION.

LAND CLAIM IN MISSOURI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 15, 1826.

Mr. WHIPPLE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of John Baptiste Pratte and others, the heirs and legal representatives of Francis Vallé, reported:

That it appears by the evidence submitted for the examination of the committee that as early as the year 1763 one of the ancestors of the present claimants, by the name of Vallé, explored the tract of land called the Mine la Motte; that in the year 1769 the Chickasaw Indians killed the son of said Vallé, and by other acts of hostility compelled said Vallé to abandon the mine.

Some short time after this period said Vallé made another attempt to work said mine, but one of his companions being seized and burned by the Indians, he was compelled to relinquish his design. In the year 1780 or 1782 Vallé again resumed working the mine in question, and that he and his associates have been in peaceable, quiet, and uninterrupted possession ever since.

It further appears that the mine and tract of land in question had, during the early period of the history of the settlement of Upper Louisiana, been the subject of sale and transfer, and that no one had ever disputed the right of those interested to make such sales and transfers.

In the year 1790 the whole of the Mine la Motte, and the tract of land adjoining or annexed to it, was bought by and vested in Jean Baptiste Pratte, Jean Baptiste, St. Germaine Beauvais, Francis Vallé, and Jean Baptiste Valle, and said tract and mine have continued in their possession and the possession of their descendants to the present time.

On October 15, 1800, the claimants preferred a petition to Don Charles Dehault Delassus, the military lieutenant and lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana, praying for a grant of the mine, and two leagues of the land adjoining, for the purpose of supplying fuel for the smelting of the ore, and to enable them to prosecute the working of the Mine la Motte.

On February 22, 1801, Delassus replies to the petitioners that he has not the power to grant so large a tract of land as that prayed for, and refers them to the intendant; but in the meantime, on account of the distinguished services, known loyalty, the antiquity and known worth of the family, and the utility of the working of lead mines to the province and government, he gives them permission to cut fuel upon the tract of land prayed for until the pleasure of the intendant can be known.

On April 29, 1802, Don Santiago Maxwell, attorney for the applicants, presents the request of the petitioners to the intendant, Morales, for the legal grant of the tract of two leagues square prayed for by the petitioners.

The intendant, Morales, on the same day orders the petition and accompanying documents to be translated into the Spanish language, and to be presented to the fiscal.

During this season the assessor or fiscal died, and the intendant issued his order closing the tribunal for concessions and grants of land, and assigns as the reason that a learned man, competent to supply his place, was not to be found in the province.

On April 30, 1803, the United States acquired by treaty the province of Louisiana, and Don Manuel Salcedo and the Marquis of Caso Calvo were appointed commissioners for the delivery of possession to the United States.

On February 8, 1804, these commissioners addressed a note to Delassus, lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana, approving of his measures to secure to the ancient possessors their property, and recommends that, if this note be received in time, a report should be made and sent to them; at the same time stating that some difficulty might arise on account of the approaching transfer of the province to the United States.

On July 1, 1804, Delassus transmitted to Baptiste Vallé, one of the claimants, the note of Salcedo.

and Casa Calvo, stating that it was received by him on the 24th of June preceding, "long time after the transfer of the province to the United States," "to the end that it may serve to assure their property, causing to be known this approbation of the superior, who holds his power of the King."

The claimants, on February 26, 1806, procured a survey of the tract of land in question to be made by the deputy surveyor of the United States for the district of St Genevieve, which was recorded at St. Louis.

The claimants submitted their claim to the board of commissioners appointed to examine claims and titles to lands in Missouri, and it was rejected by a majority of the commissioners, but for what reason does not appear from the records of their proceedings.

Considering the foregoing facts, the committee are of opinion that the petitioners present a strong equitable title to the land in question, which would have been recognized and perfected by the Spanish authorities had Spain continued in possession of the province of Louisiana.

The descendants of the original claimants being now in possession of the tract of land in question, it is presumed by the committee that the government of the United States will not be disposed to dispossess them of their ancient possessions and homes. The committee therefore report a bill confirming to the said claimants the tract of land so long occupied and quietly possessed by them.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

That shortly after the first settlement of the part of the province of Upper Louisiana (under the French government) included in the limits of the State of Missouri, and so early as the year 1720, it was discovered that a certain tract of country, situated about thirty miles southwest of the present village of St. Genevieve, in said province, abounded in lead mineral, and in honor of M. de la Motte, the governor of this country in the year 1713, being the first under the grant to Sieur Anthony Crozat, was called Mine la Motte, by which name it has ever since been known.

That the French government, in order to encourage the discovery and working of lead mineral in that part of the province, gave permission to some individuals to work and occupy portions of land of greater and less dimensions at the Mine la Motte; concessions of land of greater and less dimensions to others at same place; which permissions and concessions have been transferred from one to another, sometimes by formal instruments in writing drawn up by a notary, sometimes by mere words; all evidence of which transfers have, from the lapse of time, from the indifference felt by the proprietors in those early periods of this country, and from the want of offices where the same might be preserved as muniments of titles, from accident, ignorance, and other causes inevitable in a country situated as this was in those periods, been lost, and now known but imperfectly by tradition from father to son, through one, two, and sometimes more generations; which titles had, at an early period, become vested in the before named Jean Baptiste Pratte, Jean Baptiste Vallé, St. Gemme Beauvais, and François Vallé.

That these persons continued to work the said mine, to make improvements on the same, and enjoy the undisturbed and quiet possession of the whole tract known as Mine la Motte, without disturbance from the public authority, or by their fellow-citizens; that they rested secure in their possession, and believed that a title could be obtained from the government of Spain at any time when the same should be requested, all the proprietors being ancient, respectable, and faithful subjects of his Catholic Majesty, and one of them, François Vallé, being an officer in the government, and from the year 1792 till his death, which happened in the year 1804, the commandant, civil and military, of the post of St. Genevieve.

That in the year 1800 they presented their petition to the lieutenant governor of his Catholic Majesty over the province of Upper Louisiana, praying him to grant and concede to them a tract of land of two leagues square, being 28,224 arpents, (French measure,) equal to 24,010 acres, (United States measure;) that the said lieutenant governor, by his decree of January 22, 1801, (conceiving it out of his power to grant the quantity of land prayed for,) referred the said petition to the intendant general of the province of Louisiana, at the same time observing that it was absolutely necessary that a grant ought to be made of the said tract of two leagues square to the petitioners for the purpose of working the lead mines; that they had for a long time before been at great expenses, and employed all their means in the raising of ore and smelting of lead therefrom; that the petitioners were most ancient and respectable inhabitants of the country, and faithful subjects of his Majesty, and concluded by permitting them to cut timber for the use of their works from the tract prayed for, and hoping that the intendant would, from his goodness, grant them the concession prayed for, as in and by the said petition and decree, the originals of which, and faithful translations of the same, hereunto annexed, and numbered one, will fully appear.

That in the spring of the year 1802 the above petition and decree were transmitted to the intendant general at New Orleans by the hands of the Rev. James Maxwell, curate of St. Genevieve, who, on the behalf of the petitioners, presented a memorial to the intendant, praying for a grant of the said tract of land, and that the intendant, by his decree underneath the said memorial, ordered the documents accompanying it to be translated into the Spanish language by the interpreter, Don Peter Derbigny, and then presented to the fiscal, as in and by the said memorial and decree, the originals of which, and faithful translations of the same, hereunto annexed, numbered two, will fully appear.

That by reason of the death of the assessor of the intendancy, (the concurrence of which officer was necessary in the granting of lands,) which happened shortly afterwards, no further steps could be taken for the obtaining of the same until the appointment of another assessor by the King, which vacancy was never filled, and also the removal of Morales, the intendant ad interim of Louisiana, to whose department belonged the power to grant lands.

That Don Manuel de Salcedo and the Marquis of Casa Calvo, the Spanish commissioners for the delivery of Louisiana, did, by their official letter of February 8, 1804, (a sworn copy of which letter, and faithful translation of the same, together with the depositions of Mr. Delassus, is hereunto annexed, numbered three,) addressed to Don Carlos Delassus, lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana, in such his official capacity, and received June 24, 1804, say the disposition made of the memorials of those who anciently possessed lands in this country was approved, being according to justice; but as difficulties may, notwithstanding, arise, it would be proper, should this communication arrive in time, that your lordship should make a report and send it to us, that measures may be taken to secure their property to them. This is in answer to your official letter No. 24. On July 1, 1804, the said Don Carlos Delassus transmitted a copy, in the French language, of the same letter to Mr. Jean Baptiste Vallé, one of your petitioners, the successor of François Vallé in the office of commandant at this post of St. Genevieve, being the last commandant, and commissioned by Major Amos Stoddard, at the same time remarking that as he had not received the said official communication until the 24th of June, and long after the delivery of possession of the country, he then sent a translation thereof, in order that he might communicate it to those interested in the mines, and that it might serve to assure their property to them, and inform them of the approbation of the superior who holds his powers under the King; all which will appear by the original letter of Delassus to J. B. Vallé, and a faithful translation of the same, hereto annexed, numbered four.

That they, and those under whom they claim, have been in peaceable possession of the mine called La Motte, time whereof the memory of any person now living runneth not to the contrary. More than a century has rolled by since the origin of their title.

That they have been in peaceable possession and enjoyment of the said tract of two leagues square of land since the year 1800, before it was known or even suspected by the inhabitants of the province that a cession of it would be made. Confident, however, they are that, but for the premature death of the assessor, the grant which was prayed for would have been made. The official letter of Don Manuel Salcedo and the Marquis of Casa Calvo, above cited, will, they humbly hope, satisfy your honorable bodies that such their confidence was not ill founded.

That the said tract of land prayed for in said petition has been surveyed by a deputy surveyor of Antoine Soulard, who was surveyor general of the province of Upper Louisiana under the government of Spain, and also under the American government, being continued in office by Major Amos Stoddard, the first civil commandant after the change of government, the boundaries of which survey are as follows: beginning at a white oak, designated A; thence south 51° east, 560 poles, to a black oak; thence north 39° east, 1,120 poles, to a white oak; thence north 51° west, 1,532 poles, to a stake; thence south 55° west, 284 poles; thence north 35° west, 270 poles, to a cherry; thence south 39° west, 1,540 poles, to a stake; thence south 51° east, 1,306 poles, to a stake; thence north 39° east, 610 poles, to a white oak, the beginning, as will appear by the original plat of survey hereunto annexed, and numbered five.

Your petitioners refer your honorable bodies to the letter from the King of France to M. d'Abbadie, the director general and commandant of Louisiana, informing the Louisianians of the treaty of cession to Spain, and declaring the expectation of the French King that the inhabitants would be preserved and maintained in their estates which had been granted to them by the governors and directors of the colony; and that, finally, all their grants, though not confirmed by the French authorities, would be confirmed by his Catholic Majesty; the sentiments of which letter, it is believed, correspond with the stipulations of the treaty.

They refer your honorable bodies to the proclamation of Don Manuel de Salcedo and the Marquis of Casa Calvo, commissioners on the part of the government of Spain for the delivery of the province of Louisiana to the French republic, dated at New Orleans, May 18, 1803, whereby the inhabitants of the province are assured that they will be maintained and preserved in the peaceable possession of their estates, and confirmed in all the grants or properties, of whatsoever species, to them made by the governor of these provinces, although the same should not have been confirmed by his Majesty.—(See the proclamation, a governmental paper.)

They refer your honorable bodies to the treaty of cession between the United States of America and the French republic, wherein it is stipulated that the inhabitants of the ceded territory shall be maintained and protected in the free enjoyment of their property. They would recall to your recollection the declarations of Major Amos Stoddard, the first civil commandant of Upper Louisiana under the government of the United States, wherein the claimants to land in Upper Louisiana are assured that the United States feel all the ardor for their interests which a warm attachment can inspire; that it will be among some of their first objects to ascertain and confirm their land titles; that they are cognizant of the deranged state of these titles, and of the existence of a multitude of equitable claims, under legal surveys, where no grants or concessions have been procured; that, ultimately, the most ample justice will be done, and in the final adjustment no settler or landholder will have any just cause to complain. But, alas! twenty-one years have passed away and no final adjustment has been made. Ever since the change of government the difficulty of settling land claims has been a source of uneasiness. The ancient inhabitants have been superseded in their influence and in the trade of the country by strangers.

It is upon these claims they place their dependence. Under the former government these claims were little regarded; they knew that they were then secure, but now things have changed. What was formerly of no consequence is now the only resource of their declining years and the support of their children and children's children, and the number of descendants of the four original claimants are one hundred and forty-one, (see deposition marked seven.) In this case it is literally true. They have come under the government of the United States without consultation, and they trust that what they once claimed as their own will not now be wrested from them.

And your petitioners further show unto your honorable bodies that the claim herein exhibited has been before the board of commissioners appointed to adjudicate upon the claims to land derived from the French and Spanish governments in the Territory of Louisiana; that said board being prohibited in the confirmation of claims exceeding one league square, or including either a lead mine or salt spring, did not confirm this claim. The decision of the board against confirming it was made December 27, 1811, (see message from the President of the United States, transmitting a report of the Secretary of War, and of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in relation to the salt springs and lead and copper mines, of March 28, 1824, read on the 30th same month, pages 48, 49, 103, 104, and 105, also an examined copy of the proceedings of the board in relation to said claim, made by the Hon. John Scott, the representative of the State of Missouri in the Congress of the United States, numbered six.) That the recorder of land titles was, from the limited authority conferred on him, incompetent to decide on this claim.

In support of the facts and allegations in this petition set forth, they refer your honorable bodies to the history of this country, to oral tradition received and believed here, to the governmental papers, to the documents hereunto annexed and herein referred to, and to the depositions accompanying this petition.

And, finally, your petitioners show that the act of Congress entitled "An act enabling the claimants to lands within the limits of the State of Missouri and Territory of Arkansas to institute proceedings to try the validity of their claims," approved May 26, 1824, does not embrace this claim; wherefore, your petitioners are without remedy except before your honorable bodies, no other tribunal now constituted, or heretofore constituted, being competent to decide on the same; and to the Congress of the United States, their dernier resort, they prefer their petition; and the whole being examined, they pray that a law may be passed confirming to your petitioners, according to their respective interests, the said tract of land of two leagues square. Personally appeared before me, the subscriber, judge of the probate court in and for the county of St. Louis, Charles Dehault Delassus, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that he was lieutenant governor of Upper Louisiana from the month of July, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, until the ninth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and four; and that on the twenty-fourth day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and four, he received from Don Juan Manuel de Salcedo and the Marquis de Casa Calvo, commissioners for the delivery of this (then province) to the United States, a letter dated the eighth of February, one thousand eight hundred and four, signed by them with their own proper signatures and names, a copy of which letter, with his name signed in the margin thereof, for the purpose of identification, is hereunto attached; the original of which letter he has not now in his possession, having received the same from those officers as an official letter directed to him in his official capacity, and written by them in their official capacity. He considered the same as a proper public document to be delivered up for the benefit of the claimants and the country.

And he further deposeth and saith that he was well acquainted with John Bte. Vallé, St. James Beauvais, François Vallé, and John Bte. The undersigned have the honor to represent to you that having purchased the lead mine named La Motte, by purchasing what belonged to Jean Datcherat, which they have united to what belonged already to some of the undersigners; and that since that time they have worked said mine with considerable expenses, said mine having remained without exploration for a number of years, and that it was by their continual work and industry that they have been enabled to put it in a situation to indemnify them of their expenses, and begins to be profitable to the supplicants. And as the timber or fire-wood is of the most necessary for the smelting of ore, and as it begins to get scarce around the mine for the reason of its long being worked, the number of years being out of the recollection of the supplicants, only by hearsay from their fathers and friends who have worked at it without being able to give them a fixed epoch, said supplicants draw near you, sir, that you may be pleased to grant them the quantity of two leagues square of land joining to said mine, to enjoy of the forest, woods, materials, and other convenient commodities for the working of said mine, for want of which they will suffer considerable damages, and may lose their present and future works; the supplicants obligating themselves to conform to the laws, customs, and constitution of the kingdom, and they will not cease to pray God for the conservation of your days.

It not being in our power to grant a concession of the extent of the one asked for, we send the supplicants to his lordship, the intendant, to whom we have the honor to inform that the use which the suplicants intend to make of those two leagues square are of absolute necessity to them to enable them to work the mine and get out the lead; and, besides, the four persons who make the demands have, since a long time, employed their means with large expenses to get out the lead—a mineral so useful to the State and to the public—and are of the most ancient and notable inhabitants of the country, and faithful subjects of his Catholic Majesty; and who have, in all circumstances, been employed by the government, having always manifested the greatest zeal every time they could render themselves useful. In this consideration, that their works suffer no delay, we permit them, in the meantime, to cut the wood of which they may be in want on the domains of his Majesty, on the place which they have demanded, hoping that his lordship the intendant will be so good as to grant them this concession—a grace to which they are by all means worthy.

MISSOURI TERRITORY, St. Genevieve County, ss:

On the —— day of October, eighteen hundred and eighteen, before me, Thomas Oliver, one of the justices of the peace for said county, personally came Auguste Abuchon, of the town of St. Genevieve, in the said county, and John Baptiste Janis, sr., of the same, who, being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists, depose and say that they have resided in the Illinois country ever since their births, (the said Abuchon being now seventy-two years of age, and the said Janis sixty years of age,) and that, from the first of their recollection, they well know the tract of country called La Mine à la Motte, and that it was occupied, held, and possessed by divers citizens of the said country, who raised and smelted on their own account lead and mineral thereon; that it was well understood by all the inhabitants that the same had been originally granted by and under the authority of the French government during the time they held the same; that the lots and tracts of land were bought and sold like all other real estate in the country, and title deeds executed before the public functionaries of the country; that about the year seventeen hundred and ninety it was well known and understood the whole of the said Mine à la Motte tract came by purchase and was vested in Jean Baptiste Pratte, Jean Baptiste St. Germe, Beauvais, Francis Vallé, and John Baptiste Vallé, who have remained in possession thereof to this time. And the deponents further say that they never knew or heard of any other person or persons claiming the said tract of land, or any part thereof, but the said original grantees or their assignees; and they further say that during the time of the Spanish government (they think about eighteen years ago) it was well understood by the inhabitants of the country that a concession had been granted by that government to the said Messrs. Pratte, Beauvais, François, and John Baptiste Vallé, for a quantity of land, round the said Mine à la Motte of two leagues square.

STATE OF MISSOURI, County of St. Louis, ss:

Personally appeared before me, the subscriber, judge of the probate court for the county of St. Louis, State of Missouri, Auguste Chouteau, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that when he first came in this Upper Louisiana, in 1763, he found one of the Vallés in possession and exploring the mine called Mine à la Motte; that he, in company with his son, to wit, Vallé, Jr., continued to explore the said mine until the year 1769, at which time the son of said Vallé was killed by the Chickasaw Indians, which circumstance compelled the said Vallé to abandon the said mine; but that some short time after he, said Vallé, went to the said mine and explored it, and was again attacked by the said Chickasaw nation, where, in the attack, a man called Labastille was burned by said Indians, which circumstance occasioned said Vallé to abandon again said mine; and that some short time after the second attack, to wit, as the affiant believes, about the year 1780 or 1782, the said Vallé went again to explore said mine; and that the said mine was explored by said Vallé, and through or under him ever since, without interruption. And this affiant further saith that he is personally acquainted with John Baptiste Vallé, John Baptiste Pratte, St. Germe, Beauvais, and Francis Vallé, and that he knows that they were under the Spanish government for a long time before the acquisition of this country by the United States, and he believes ever since in possession of the aforesaid Mine à la Motte, and that he has always understood they claimed title to the same; and their possession of the property and enjoyment of said lands and mine, and of those claiming under them, has been peaceable, quiet, undisputed, and uninterrupted to this day.

19TH CONGRESS.]No. 498.[1ST SESSION.]

PURCHASES OF REAL ESTATE FOR THE UNITED STATES WITHIN THE LIMITS OF THE STATES SINCE JULY 4, 1776.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 15, 1826.

To the House of Representatives of the United States:

I transmit to the House of Representatives a report from the late Secretary of War to the late President of the United States, with documents containing information requested by a resolution of the House of April 10, 1824, relating to purchases of real estate in behalf of the United States within the territorial limits of any State since July 4, 1776. These papers were prepared during the last session of Congress, but by some accident were not then communicated to the House.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

WASHINGTON, February 15, 1826.

DEPARTMENT OF WAR, February 14, 1825.

The Secretary of War, to whom was referred the resolution of the House of Representatives requesting the President of the United States to cause to be submitted to the House a "statement of the several purchases of real estate in behalf of the United States within the territorial limits of any State since July 4, 1776, for public purposes, in pursuance of any act of Congress, or by any department or officer of the general government, denoting in each case the particular authority under which each purchase was made; its date, and the end or use for which it was effected; the nature of the estate thereby acquired, and the person or persons by whom and to whom such estate was conveyed; together with the fact whether such purpose was or was not accompanied with the express consent of the State of whose territory such real estate constituted a part; and, in the former case, whether any, and if any, what special jurisdiction accompanied the cession or conveyance," has the honor to transmit herewith a statement prepared by the chief engineer, which contains all the information in relation to the subject which this office can furnish.

All which is respectfully submitted.

J. C. CALHOUN.

The PRESIDENT of the United States.

ENGINEER DEPARTMENT, Washington, February 12, 1825.

SIR: I have prepared, and have the honor to present herewith, agreeably to your instructions, a statement of the several purchases of real estate in behalf of the United States since July 4, 1776, required by a resolution of the House of Representatives of April 10, 1824.

This statement is founded upon documents in the department, and upon returns received since the date of the resolution from the district attorneys of all the States and Territories of the Union, except Connecticut, the eastern district of Virginia, the two districts of Tennessee, Louisiana, and Indiana. The receipt of returns from these States would, however, scarcely vary the report, as it is believed that little, if any, real estate for military purposes has been acquired therein which is not included in the documents referred to.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,

ALEXANDER MACOMB, Maj. Gen., Chief Engineer.

Hon. J. C. CALHOUN, Secretary of War.

Statement of the several purchases of real estate in behalf of the United States since July 4, 1776; agreeably to a resolution of the House of Representatives of April 10, 1824.

19TH CONGRESS.]No. 501.[1ST SESSION.]

GENERAL OPERATIONS AND HISTORY OF LEAD MINES IN MISSOURI AND THE UPPER MISSISSIPPI COUNTRY.

WAR DEPARTMENT, February 18, 1826.

SIR: Since the report of this department on the resolution of the Senate of the 15th of December last, relating to leases for lead mines and salt springs, communicated by the President to the Senate on the 7th instant, the colonel of ordnance has made an additional report in relation to lead mines, which contains much valuable information, in addition to the report on the subject already rendered; and I have, therefore, the honor of communicating it herewith for the consideration of the Senate.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

JAMES BARBOUR

The VICE PRESIDENT and PRESIDENT *Senate United States.*ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT, Washington, February 7, 1826.

SIR: Lieutenant Thomas, the officer employed in superintending the operations of the United States lead mines in the western country, has made a full report upon the subject generally. The report contains much valuable information concerning the lead mines, and demonstrates their great value. It also exhibits general and just views respecting the management of them, and I beg leave to submit it for your examination.

It is due to Lieutenant Thomas on this occasion to state that the industry and ability which he has manifested in the conduct of this business since he has had the superintendence of it entitles him to commendation, and I take great pleasure in expressing this opinion of his merits.

I have the honor to be, respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEO. BOMFORD, *Brevet Colonel, on ordnance service.*Hon. JAMES BARBOUR, *Secretary of War.*WASHINGTON, D. C., January, 1826.

SIR: I have reported to you from time to time my transactions whilst superintending the United States lead mines and mineral lands in the State of Missouri and at the river Au Ferre, near the north boundary of the State of Illinois; but from the desultory manner the information has been transmitted, and its having been chiefly confined to business transactions arising under leases, I deem it requisite to make a report of a more general nature, embracing the subject in all its details.

The lead mines of Missouri, we are informed in a view of them published by Mr. Schoolcraft, were discovered about a century ago, by Renault and others, in the employ of the French "Company of the West," who wrought them extensively during the time this part of the country was under their control, a period of about twenty-four years, after which individuals continued to work at the mines until Louisiana passed into the possession of Spain, in 1796.

Some grants of mining privileges were received by individuals from the Spanish authorities, but it was customary to permit all residents of the country to dig lead ore in any part of the King's domain which was not granted to individuals. This was the situation of the mine country when taken possession of by the United States, in March, 1804.

The fame of the lead mines was well known to the government at the period we acquired the country, and we find that as early as December, 1805, they are noticed in the message of the President to Congress.

In 1807 the law directing the reservation of the mines from sale and authorizing them to be leased to individuals was enacted. It has frequently been observed that the power of leasing was of little use, as no provision was made for the appointment of an agent to attend to it. This duty was attached to the office of the recorder of land titles at St. Louis, a distance of seventy miles from the principal seat of the mines. I am not aware of the extent of the proceedings in this business by the recorder, but the following extract of a report made by him to the Commissioner of the General Land Office in 1816, extracts from a report made by the late Moses Austin, esq., to the same, from the work of Mr. Schoolcraft, and the letters of individuals, will render some idea of the state of the mine country from 1807 to 1824, a period of seventeen years.

In 1816 the recorder writes to the commissioner (Mr. Meigs) on the subject of intrusions by individuals on public mineral lands: "With unexampled lenity, however, the government has not only forbore to inflict those penalties provided by law, but has left persons thus offending in the undisturbed possession of the most valuable mines in the county of St. Genevieve. From hence it has arisen that your agents have possession of but a small portion of those lead mines and salt springs to which you have unquestionable titles. I know of none except those leased to Partenay, of which you are already sufficiently informed, and a recent discovery near Mine à Burton, of which I have put his son in possession. A settler in the neighborhood, who has no survey and who expects five hundred arpents of land from your bounty on account of his improvement, has instituted a suit for that trespass. Such is the situation of your agents here. I should not be surprised if in a little while we were fined and imprisoned by those for whose punishment the intrusion acts were intended. Speculative mischiefs should be suppressed in their origin; they acquire accession and strength every day they are tolerated; the confederacy extends itself, the interest becomes diffused and ramified, and he who at first thought of no more than a momentary advantage begins to plead principles in support of his own violations of law."

1816. In answer to the commissioner, Mr. Austin writes: "Intrusions, permanent or transitory, I do not think come within my province to point out; that there are intruders on public lead mines is true; that the public have suffered some thousands of dollars annually is an unquestionable fact, but these facts may be drawn from the officer charged with the care of the domain."

1818. Schoolcraft, in his view of the mines, states: "When a discovery of lead has been made, the miners from the neighboring country have flocked to it, and commenced digging as usual, no one troubling himself about a lease, and thus the provisions of the law have been, in a great measure, disregarded."

1822. In a letter addressed to the Ordnance office by Mr. John Perry, of Potosi, Missouri, he states: "When a person makes a discovery of ore, either on public or private land, all the miners in the neighborhood gather in, and each man marks off a hole four or five feet square, from which he claims twelve feet (superficial) in every direction, taking care not to interfere with each other; and for each 1,000 pounds of mineral, if raised on private land, the proprietor pays 400 pounds of lead; if raised on public land, the miner sells it at the rate of 460 pounds of lead for each 1,000 pounds of mineral." Mr. Perry was informed he could not, at that period, obtain a lease, and he replies: "In the meantime I should be glad to be put in possession of the land by permit or otherwise. Should it be delayed until a formal lease is forwarded, the mineral will be dug out so that the land will be scarcely worth leasing. I should feel myself as much bound for the rent by a permit to take possession as if I should receive a lease."

Such was the state of the public mines in Missouri upon my arrival there, in the latter end of November, 1824. Notwithstanding I avoided interfering in any manner with such of the mines to which there was a shadow of a private claim, a large population having had undisturbed possession of all the public mines for a number of years, appropriating the whole produce to their private benefit, it was not an easy matter to dispossess them, nor is it yet entirely effected. It is, however, but doing justice to a great majority of the mine population to state that those who yet adhere to the practice of trespassing upon the public mines are the most worthless and abandoned part of the community, and are equally disposed to plunder the private as public mines. Under such embarrassments my whole operations had to be carried on; and I am much indebted to the firm conduct and uninterrupted support, in all my movements, received from the lessees of the first mine I leased, (Messrs. Wm. M. & John Perry, of the town of Potosi.) Their example had much influence upon the people of the district. They are among the oldest and most respectable inhabitants of the mine country.

Situation and extent of the mine country.

The district of country in Missouri in which lead mines are at present wrought is situated may be stated at about fifty miles square, taking the town of Potosi as a centre. Potosi is situated in the county of Washington, in latitude 38° north, about 30 miles west of the Mississippi river, and 40 miles south of the river Missouri, distant from St. Louis about 70 miles. There is but one mine at present wrought out of the bounds of this district, that of La Motte, situated about 35 miles southeast of Potosi. That lead ore exists over a larger space than the above bounds I have every reason to believe, but at present I shall confine my observations to this district.

The bounds above stated comprise 2,500 square miles. This land has been surveyed, and the greater part of it has been offered for sale; a part has been purchased by individuals, another portion is held under Spanish and French grants, donations from the United States, &c., &c. The land thus owned is principally confined to that best adapted to agricultural purposes, the cause for which is obvious; the Spanish authorities permitted the inhabitants to dig lead ore on any part of the King's domain; the United States government has heretofore omitted to prevent digging on public mineral land, and, at the same time, forbidden the sale of it.

The plat of survey annexed to this report will show the position of the mines, or rather diggings, where lead ore is obtained under the leases from the United States. It will be observed they are scattered over the country; the intermediate land will produce much ore when properly searched.

The reservations from sale on account of indications of lead ore are chiefly in the vicinity of Potosi. The first of them were made upon the reports of the surveyors, and of others who knew the facts and stated them to the registers of the land offices.

On this subject, in the report made by the Commissioner of the General Land Office (George Graham, esq.) in 1824, it is stated: "The only measures which the government has yet taken to discover the extent to which minerals may exist on the public lands are the instructions given to the surveyor general to note, on the official returns of surveys, all the appearances indicative of their existence. Agreeably to the general provisions of the laws regulating the sale of public lands, reservations have been made, by registers of the proper land offices, of those lands on which mineral appearances are indicated by the returns of the surveyor general; but, inasmuch as the observations of the surveyor must necessarily be restricted to the immediate vicinity of the lines of survey, consequently, evidences of the existence of minerals must be partial and indefinite; and in excluding from sale the lands supposed to afford mineral the register of the land office, in the absence of definite information, must act according to the best of his judgment, from the means afforded him. Under such circumstances it may reasonably be expected that many tracts of productive mineral land may have been omitted to be reserved, and that many tracts of inferior mineral land may have been reserved."

After observing that a list of the reserved lands was not in possession, the report goes on to state: "I have caused the lands which have been sold in those townships, up to the date of the latest returns, to be designated by the yellow color, in order to give an idea of the extent of the reservations, as it is presumable that a very great portion of what remains uncolored (unsold) has been excluded from sale on account of its minerals."

This conclusion was very natural from the evidence in possession, yet far from being correct. On examining the plats of surveys in the offices of the registers, I discovered that the township lines (noted in the report of the commissioner as being the place of principal reservations then positively known) constituted nearly all the reservation on account of lead ore in the mine district. A personal examination of the country disclosed the fact that the persons who surveyed the township lines had noted mineral appearances, and those who surveyed the section lines had omitted to do so. It was thus to be seen that in the vicinity of the exterior lines of entire townships the land had been reserved, and not a single acre in the interior. I obtained authority from the Commissioner of the General Land Office to report to the registers such land as contained signs of lead ore, and had it reserved from sale. The extent of all these reservations is shown on the plat accompanying this report. The reservations are large, but believing it for the interest of the public that all the mineral land should at present be excluded from sale, I have not hesitated to make reservations where my observations or information demonstrated mineral appearances. Upon this point Mr. Austin, in the report before quoted, after enumerating about thirty mines or diggings, observes: "The intervening land between the diggings herein named will undoubtedly produce mineral in great abundance, and I have no doubt, with proper inducements, lead ore within this circumference will be found, equal in goodness and extent to any of the mines or diggings now opened or worked."

1816. Every year's experience has proven the correctness of Mr. Austin's statement. The mines at this time (1825) have more than doubled in number since 1816. Almost every month adds to the number; and from the advantages to be derived by individuals under the leases of public mines, the searches for discoveries will hereafter be principally upon public land.

Face of the country.

Upon crossing the Mississippi river at Herculaneum (thirty miles below St. Louis) we find the bank composed of perpendicular rocks from eighty to two hundred feet high. This rock is a secondary limestone, containing marine and other remains; under the limestone is a red compact sandstone; this latter is on a level with the river. Upon ascending the bluff and advancing into the country we find it broken and hilly. At the distance of four miles the sandstone, which at the bank of the river was overlaid by limestone upwards of a hundred feet, is at the surface. It is a remarkable place, being an almost perpendicular wall of rock, forty feet high, and several miles in circumference. After passing this place the rock changes from a secondary to a primitive limestone, destitute of remains of any kind. Here commences the lead mine country, and over its whole extent one common feature is observed; a broken hilly surface, the soil a poor clay, intermixed with shivers of flint, covered with a scanty growth of timber; on the hills principally oak; on the bottoms it is various. There is an abundance of fine springs. Upon examining the map which accompanies this report, it will be seen that in the mine country the following streams have their heads: the Black, St. Francis, Gasconade, and Merrimack rivers. They flow to the east, northwest, and south. This denotes the elevation of the mine district. I am of opinion the town of Potosi is three hundred feet above the level of the Mississippi river. The rapidity of the streams which rise in so hilly a country affords many places well adapted to erect machinery, and they are fed by the most abundant and never-failing springs. I have observed the soil was generally a poor clay; there are exceptions, and in small detached bodies very good land may be found. South of Potosi is a ridge of mountains, where the rock formation is different from the rest of the country, being granite and sandstone. In the valleys of this vicinity are bodies of excellent land. Limestone is found composing the base of the whole country; it is invariably found at greater or less depths, and in numerous places is found at the surface. In high rocky bluffs the veins of lead ore may be sometimes traced in those bluffs where the water has worn channels.

With respect to timber it may be observed it is tolerably plenty; and where the fires are kept out it is increasing in quantity. Places entirely destitute of it twenty years ago are now covered with thriving young timber. South and west of Potosi is a range of pine timber of excellent quality and very large growth.

Method of obtaining the ore of lead.

This is merely to dig pits in the earth; the ore is found in detached masses, from an ounce to several hundred pounds weight. It is the common galena, and is frequently intermixed with iron pyrites and sulphate of barytes; sometimes it is found free from any foreign substance, being very pure, yielding seventy per cent. (in the large way) when smelting.

When the rock is reached the digger generally abandons the place; if, however, the prospect of obtaining ore is tolerable, the rock is penetrated, especially if it is of the softer kind. The digger works upon his own account, and, consequently, seeks the ore where least labor is required. When the ore is found in the rock it is in regular veins, sometimes adhering to the rock, at others loose in the fissures, in a dark colored substance, apparently an oxide of lead and earth intermixed. The diggings in the immediate vicinity of Potosi are generally in the clay; the rock has put a stop to most of the digging. At Mine à Joe (noticed on the plat) the ore is found in regular veins, and at several other mines in the same vicinity. The pits are seldom more than forty feet deep, some few exceptions. Sometimes the digger, if the soil is loose, cribs the pit with small timber; but generally no precautions are taken.

It is thus seen that the local term "diggings" is more appropriate than "mines," when applied to the places where lead ore is obtained in Missouri at the present time. The only implements are a few spades, picks, and shovels, with a common windlass and tub to remove the earth, stones, and water from the pits.

As before stated, the miners work upon their own account. They sell the ore to the smelters, who pay them the value of 800 pounds of lead for each ton of ore they deliver.

Of the smelting.

I have but to state that it is done in a negligent and wasteful manner, in furnaces built of limestone, of a construction peculiar to the country. There is much fuel consumed, and the loss in this branch of the business is considerable; and as it benefits no one it should be obviated as early as practicable. The average yield may, at the present time, be about sixty-two per cent.

Quantity of lead produced.

On this point I have no certain information, except as respects the public mines under lease; the amount at those in Missouri during 1825 will be about 1,200,000 pounds; all others, from the best information I could obtain, about three millions; at Fever river, about one million; in all, five millions two hundred thousand pounds, which is not one-half the amount required to meet the demand of the country, (estimated at twelve millions.)

Schoolcraft has estimated the amount made in Missouri from 1803 to 1818 at fifty-five millions of pounds; from 1818 to 1824 at least four millions per annum has been made, which would make seventy-nine millions of pounds since the United States acquired Louisiana. If we take one-half of this amount as the produce of the public mines, (certainly a very low estimate,) one-tenth of it as a rent would amount to about four millions of pounds; this, at the present time, at $5\frac{1}{2}$ cents, would amount to about \$220,000, or eleven thousand dollars per annum, which has been lost to the government. In 1824 the mines of Missouri paid no rent to the United States; in 1825 about \$7,000 worth of lead will have been received; and if the present system is pursued with vigor, in 1826 the amount will be more than double that of 1825.

Manufacture of shot.

On the top of the rocky cliffs on the bank of the Mississippi, small wooden towers are erected, and the shot are formed by dropping to the foot of the cliff; a small building is here erected to polish, assort, &c.; the whole expense less than $1,500. These manufactories can supply the whole country, and large quantities for exportation. I am informed that neither of the factories could obtain sufficient lead during the past season, the demand for the eastern market was so great.

Profits to smelters and miners.

On this point I find it difficult to obtain an accurate estimate; the smelters are unwilling to disclose the amount of their profits; the data I have, however, will afford a tolerably correct idea of the business.

1816. In a statement furnished by the late Judge Jones, of Potosi, to Mr. Bates, then agent for the United States, we find the following calculation of the cost of smelting two hundred and seventy tons of lead ore, viz:

Wages of two log furnace men, seven months, at $22 per month.....	$308
Wages of one chopper, three months, at $15 per month.....	45
Provisions for the above, at $6 per month.....	102
Paid for building log furnace.....	60
Paid for building ash furnace.....	100
Wood for the latter—16 cords for every five tons of ore—86 cords, at $1 50 per cord.....	129
Wages of six hands, three weeks, at ash furnace.....	112
Hire of oxen, cart, and driver, four months, at $1 50 per day.....	168
Tools, liquor, &c., &c.....	36
	1,060

Or about $4 per ton.

This estimate is predicated on the smelting of only 270 tons at one furnace per annum, and only to be charged three times a week. At present it is calculated that five men can smelt at least 500 tons in a year at one furnace; but admitting Judge Jones' estimate of $4 expense on smelting each ton, the profit will be as follows:

500 tons of ore will produce at least 300 tons of lead, worth at Potosi $110 per ton.....	$33,000
The digger is paid at the rate of 800 pounds of lead for each ton of ore delivered to the smelter; this at $110 will amount to.....	$22,000
The United States rent, one-tenth lead made—30 tons.....	3,300
Expenses of smelting, at $4 per ton	2,000
	27,300
Profit to smelter.....	5,700

The smelting is chiefly performed by slaves. It is sufficiently obvious that the smelter's profits are considerable, from the eagerness they seek to obtain the ore. The above statement makes the profit of the smelter a little upwards of $11 per ton. The only capital invested is for a few tools, cart, &c. If the smelter pays the miner money for his ore, and ships the lead to the Atlantic cities, he generally makes a clear profit of $20 per ton on the lead by the shipment, after paying freight and all other charges.

Miner's profits.

As before stated, the miner or digger is paid at the rate of eight hundred weight of lead for each ton of ore he digs; very large amounts are frequently earned by the miners in a little time. I have, myself, seen common laborers earn fifteen dollars in a day, and instances are frequent where much larger sums are earned. It is my belief, from what I have seen, that a miner will earn at least a dollar a day throughout the year; and this is also the opinion of others who have resided a long time in the country. Schoolcraft states, in his view, &c., from the authority of those long conversant in the business, that a miner will average one hundred weight of ore a day throughout the year; this would be $2 25. But let us take my estimate of one dollar, and what part of the United States affords such wages to laborers? Mr. Austin states "it was not uncommon for a miner (at the 'new diggings') to raise from $20 to $60 worth of ore in a day."

The habits of the miners are so erratic that it is impossible to estimate their number; from the best information, I am induced to believe about two thousand persons are engaged in all the branches, mining, smelting, and transporting; a part of their time is devoted to farming.

Transportation.

The lead is transported in carts and wagons to the river Mississippi; there are at present three places of depot: St. Genevieve, distant from Potosi 45 miles; Herculaneum, distant from Potosi 36 miles; Cliffs of Selma, distant from Potosi 33 miles.

The roads are pretty much in a state of nature; they are along the ridges and high grounds, and the soil is generally well adapted for good roads. I have before observed that the town of Potosi is central as respects the mines. I would earnestly recommend the appropriation of a portion of the present year's rent of the public mines to making a good road from Potosi to the Mississippi. It will facilitate the transportation of lead, and will not require a large sum to be expended. The country is poor, and individuals cannot be expected to do much towards such objects; and it would have a beneficial effect in many respects.

Value of the mineral lands to the government.

Upon this part of my report I feel somewhat at a loss. I am desirous of not overrating, and yet of giving a due estimate; a few facts will assist in elucidating the subject.

The land at present reserved from sale, on account of appearances of lead ore, may be estimated at 150,000 acres. The amount now under lease is about 9,000 acres, leaving unoccupied 141,000 acres. It is not to be supposed that all this extent of surface will afford lead ore in large quantities; but from past experience, from similar geological and mineralogical features, we know that it will afford ore more or less. The most productive mine in Missouri (Shibboleth) does not extend over more than thirty acres, and none of the shafts or pits are deeper than sixty feet.

The mine "Ishmael," leased to the late Colonel William M. Perry, has produced about a million of ore in a year. This does not cover more than ten acres.

The "Pigeon Roost" mine, leased to Mr. S. Perry, will produce about half as much in the same time. This does not extend over more than four acres.

These two mines will pay a rent to the United States of $5,000 worth of lead the first year.

I have quoted freely from the late Mr. Austin's report to Mr. Meigs on the subject of the lead mines because I found his statements generally correct, and some of his predictions fulfilled to the very letter, and because he states what he has said upon mines and mining "is the result of an experience of twenty-five years"—(eighteen years in Missouri.)

With respect to the revenue which may be expected to be derived from the mines, Mr. Austin, after noticing two or three in particular, observes, "all the other mines spoken of (thirty-three) have produced some in greater, others in a less degree, all of which would, under proper leases, have yielded a valuable revenue to the government. Taking into view the mines now opened, and such as undoubtedly will be opened, under a regular system, the revenue may, in my opinion, be raised to forty or fifty thousand dollars per annum; as the population increases so will the miners, and, consequently, the mines. But you are to understand that everything depends upon a new order of things. Lessees must be supported in the quiet possession of their leases; intruders must be removed. The produce of leases heretofore falls so far short of what I have stated the revenue may be raised to, that an explanation may be expected. In the first place, you are to understand that lessees under the government have not been properly supported in their leases. It has invariably been the case that they have been involved in law-suits and personal vexation, and in some cases the leases have been abandoned altogether. Secondly, the leases have been very injudiciously granted; but here let me say that it is not my intention to call in question the good intentions of the public agent, (Mr. Bates;) there is no man acting under the authority of the government for whom I have a greater respect, and to whom I think the government is more indebted for faithful services; yet I am compelled to say that, in the business of the mines, he has greatly misjudged, in leasing all the public mines contained in this report to a man whose ability does not extend to the working of more than one with energy. It therefore results that every miner in Washington county must become tributary to this "farmer [general]," or abandon mining. The consequence of this arrangement is, that the revenue from all the mines is not greater than would be received from each of them divided into thirty or forty leases. So long as such a state of things exists no valuable revenue can be expected. These observations will apply to all the mines. Had the government entered into a regular system of leasing and working the mines in 1804 the revenue might have been benefited at this time not less than four or five hundred thousand dollars. At that time there were no intruders, and any system the government had deemed expedient would have been acceptable, provided it held out reasonable advantages, but will now be attended with some difficulty, inasmuch as the practice of trespasses has been so long continued with impunity that the most reasonable restrictions will, I am apprehensive, give the government some trouble; but once established, all opposition will vanish. Whatever system the United States may think proper to adopt must be carried into execution by an agent at the mines."

Again, Mr. Austin states: "Were the government to say they would take $500 per acre for mineral land, few men would be willing to give that sum, or the half of it; and yet I have seen fifty feet of ground produce that amount of mineral in a month with the labor of two or three miners; and, again, the same number of hands may labor with the same assiduity and not make over common wages. From this state of facts it is impossible to estimate their value; that it is immense no one will deny; nor can they be exhausted for ages if properly managed. Nothing is wanting to make them productive to the United States but a judicious system."

The discoveries now making (1825) are principally upon public land. The terms offered by the government are very advantageous to the lessees; this is sufficiently obvious from the number of leases taken in so short a time, (thirty-four in one year;) the great number of applicants, consisting of the most respectable inhabitants, and the unremitting activity of search for discoveries of ore.

Individuals are now certain of receiving the reward of their exertions, in being able to obtain quiet possession of their discoveries under a lease, and if unsuccessful they lose but their time and labor, as no capital is required under the present system of working the mines. In this manner the whole mine country will be searched; a full development of the extent to which lead ore exists in it be obtained; a large amount of lead accrues to the government, (the only expense a few contingencies,) and the miners and smelters make large profits.

It has been frequently urged that, were the mines the property of individuals, they would be better wrought and produce more lead. I beg leave to dissent from that opinion; and in support of this dissent would remark that there are many causes operating to prevent scientific mining in Missouri at this period.

First. The absence of capital, science, and practical skill in the art of mining.

Second. The scarcity and high price of labor.

Third. The extreme facility of obtaining large quantities of ore near the surface of the earth.

Fourth. There are a number of mines private property, and have been such for many years, and yet they are not better wrought, nor do they produce more than the public mines.

Those persons who lament the absence of regular mining in Missouri will, no doubt, be pleased to hear that for the quantum of labor bestowed, the mines of Missouri produce more, and yield greater profits, than any mines in the world, if we are to believe the writers on the subject of mining.

The produce of the mines of Missouri is about $300,000 per annum; this is distributed in a small district; it is the interest of five millions of dollars, and not one dollar is invested in permanent works. A few years will double this amount, and probably triple it.

Fortunately for the inhabitants of the mine country, the lead ore is found in large quantities near the surface; it requires no deep excavations nor expensive works so long as these beds or floats of ore are to be found near the top of the earth. The miner of Missouri will make large wages; and from the quantity of land which remains to be searched, there appears to be no cause to fear that deep mining must be resorted to for some years at any rate. The miner, working on his own risk, seeks the ore where easiest obtained; he understands his own interest, and will not go deep into the bowels of the earth without an absolute necessity for so doing.

In estimating the value of mineral lands, we should never lose sight of the fact that it is the surface only which is producing such quantities of ore. A few years will fully develop the immense value of the mine country, and if it is then deemed advisable to sell it, it will certainly bring more money than at present; and in the meantime the government will accumulate a large quantity of lead, sufficient for its wants for many years.

Lead mines on the Upper Mississippi, at the River au Ferre, and its vicinity.

On ascending the Mississippi river from St. Louis, the first primitive limestone (in which the lead ore is found) I observed was on the right bank, about twenty miles above Rock island; the cliffs on the bank having hitherto been entirely of secondary limestone, containing marine remains similar to that at St. Louis, and below that town.

The mineral hills are observed approaching the river obliquely, and cross it extending to Illinois. From the best information I could obtain, I am induced to believe this chain of mineral hills extends over the country watered by the Gasconade, northwest of Potosi, crosses the Missouri river into Calloway county, (see map,) and keeps a northerly course, crossing the rivers Des Moines and Iowa, and finally the Mississippi, above Rock island, as I have stated. There may be spurs diverging from this course, but the main chain will be found as I have stated.

About one hundred miles above Rock island (five hundred above St. Louis) we find Apple, Small-pox, Fever, and Sasinawa rivers; they are small streams of pure water, fed by living springs. In this vicinity are the lead mines, commonly termed the "Fever River mines."

These mines are different from most of those in the vicinity of Potosi. The ore is obtained in regular veins in the rock, and generally in large quantities for the amount of labor bestowed. It is of various qualities, mostly a very pure galena, free from any foreign matter except a small portion of iron; there is no sulphate of barytes whatever, which is so common in Missouri. The large veins of ore are found running almost a due east and west course; there are smaller ones running north and south; so that in making searches for the large veins, the small ones generally yield sufficient to pay good wages to the miners. When the large veins are found the profit is immense. The smelters have paid from $500 to $3,000 for these discoveries of large veins. The last time I ascended the river a common laborer of St. Louis was in the boat; he had been at work at the mines less than two months when he made a discovery of ore, which, it has been reported to me, he sold for $1,300.

The face of the country is broken and elevated, generally prairie; there is some excellent land. The diggings, or mines, are situated from one to ten miles from the River au Ferre, where the furnaces are established. Fuel is easily obtained by means of the river. The smelting establishments are immediately on the bank of Fever river, about six miles from its mouth. The steamboats which ascend the Mississippi in the spring of the year come close to the lead furnaces, and keel boats at all seasons, when not impeded by ice. Transportation costs less from the Fever River mines to St. Louis than from the mines near Potosi to the depots on the Mississippi.

There were about thirty miners at Fever river when I first visited them in March last; the business was laboring under some embarrassments, after the removal of which the number of miners began to increase, and has continued to do so. There were on the 30th of September last upwards of one hundred. I am fully of the opinion that the quantity of lead made in 1825 (about a million of pounds) will be but about half the amount which may be expected in 1826.

The mines are near the north boundary of the State of Illinois; it is doubtful whether they are within the bounds of that State or the Territory of Michigan. As the population is increasing, civil law is requisite; it is, therefore, very desirable that some provision be made for running this part of the boundary line of Illinois and Michigan.

The whole vicinity is mineral land, and it is said to continue to the Wisconsin river, about one hundred miles from Fever river.

Dubuke's celebrated mines are on the west bank of the Mississippi river, about fifteen miles from Fever river; the geological appearances of which are precisely the same. Dubuke's mines are wrought for a short period of the year by the Sac and Fox Indians, who derive much benefit from them in trading the ore to the white smelters. The squaws are the principal miners, and they frequently smelt the ore in small temporary furnaces erected at the side of a bank of earth. They invariably obtain more metallic lead than the whites from the first process, (the log furnace;) the cause is sufficiently obvious; the whites apply too great a fire when first lighting up the furnace.

I was not enabled to visit the mineral lands in the district of Shawneetown, Illinois, but propose to do so in the spring. The reservations there were made by the surveyors, and are considerable.

With respect to the specimens of minerals, I would suggest the propriety of sending them to the Military Academy at West Point. The collection is small, but I propose to continue it.

Concluding observations.

In reflecting on the measures of the government with respect to the public mines, we should view the subject in all its bearings, and we will then find that, so far from the system of leasing being based upon narrow pecuniary views, it is the reverse.

First. As a part of the general system of protecting domestic resources, the duty on lead imported from abroad was doubled in the tariff of 1824. This enabled the miners and smelters of Missouri to enter into competition with the foreign lead, and they will eventually drive it from the market. That such is the case the following facts will prove: Previous to the new tariff, lead was selling at four cents at the depots in Missouri; on the passage of the tariff bill it rose to five cents per pound, and has since gradually risen to six and a quarter cents, its present price; and such is the constant demand in the Atlantic cities that the manufactories of shot have not been able to procure enough lead (at Herculaneum, &c.) This is occasioned by the profit on shipping lead to the Atlantic cities, affording a profit, at the present prices, of twenty dollars per ton. It would be supposed the foreign lead could now be introduced, as the rise in price is more than the increase of duty; this undoubtedly would be the case, but lead has risen in Europe also. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, when proposing in Parliament during the past year to reduce the duty on lead imported into Great Britain, gave as a reason that the rise in price was equal to the proposed reduction—one cent per pound.

Second. The miners and smelters of lead having a protecting duty of twenty-five per cent. (the duty is two cents, and lead is now eight cents per pound,) and are only charged a rent of ten per cent. on the public mines. It is not proposed to increase this rent, but surely complaints of the terms come with an ill grace, when it is seen that the rent is but two-fifths of the amount of the protecting duty. The whole mine country is thrown open and every inhabitant can obtain a lease.

Third. Were the government to prohibit working the public mines under leases, and offer the mines for sale, the present inhabitants of the district, who are destitute of capital, could not of course be the purchasers. It would be the large capitalists of other sections who would become the owners, and the present inhabitants would have to labor on such terms as the proprietors chose to afford. It is not to be supposed that terms as liberal as those of the government would be given by individuals. Of this fact, if I am not in error, the present population of the mine district are becoming aware; they are certain of obtaining leases on liberal terms from the United States, but they are by no means certain that they would obtain the mines if offered for sale.

Viewing the present system of leasing the public lead mines as a part of the great plan of developing the resources of our country, and keeping the foreigner from competing with our own citizens, is a correct and fair view of the case. It is certain that if the duty on lead had not been increased in 1824 the Missouri lead could not keep the foreign lead out of the market; and it is equally certain that the amount which would have accrued to the treasury on the foreign lead is more than the rent received from the public mines, and, consequently, the difference is paid to the miners and smelters of Missouri.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 23, 1826.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 21, 1826.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 7th instant, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to communicate to the House copies of the registers or abstracts of the claims to lands in East Florida, lately deposited in this department by the commissioners of that district, under the quantity of three thousand five hundred acres, with the general report of said commissioners, containing their reasons for the admission or rejection of the said claims, and full copies, with the evidence and decision of all claims over that quantity which have been made and lately deposited in the Treasury Department, I have the honor to transmit herewith copies of the following documents, to wit:

1. The abstracts of the decisions of the commissioners, numbered from 1 to 10, inclusive.
2. The evidence transmitted in cases exceeding 3,500 acres, referring to abstract No. 3, and numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 25, 26.
3. The evidence (numbered 11) in the case of Francis P. Fatio et al., lately deposited in the department, but referring to abstract No. 5, printed among the documents of Congress, with the report from this department dated February 21, 1825.*
4. The reports of the commissioners dated January 1, 1826, and 31st of the same month.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

RICHARD RUSH.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

Sr. AUGUSTINE, January 1, 1826.

SIR: Since my last report the claims to lands in East Florida, accompanying this communication, have been investigated and decided on by the commissioners. With the greatest diligence and industry, our secretary, and the two additional clerks appointed by authority of the law of the 3d of March last, have not been able to translate and copy the whole of the claims filed before us. There now remain to be acted on five hundred and twenty-eight.

From an inspection of the documents now forwarded, you will readily perceive that no want of industry has been manifested by the officers of the board. We last year urged the propriety of our being allowed by Congress the privilege of employing clerks and translators at discretion, at a rate for every hundred words written or translated. This, however, was denied, and hence the business before the commission is not yet completed.

For the principles on which the board have acted, they beg leave to refer to the former reports made by this board, as they have not in any material degree varied from them in the cases now reported.

Register No. 9 embraces a class of cases differently situated in some respects from any yet reported; for at the time of the cession they were not found amongst the records of the government, the only proper place for them. Those circumstances have in some cases been explained, or an effort at explanation has been attempted, that the evidence introduced, although perfectly competent by the legal rules of evidence, we feel bound to say that it has not always been of that clear, disinterested character which is calculated to carry conviction to the mind. Most if not all the witnesses have been interested in the principle to be decided, although not interested in the particular case before the board. We have forwarded the testimony as nearly in the phraseology of the witnesses as practicable. To that testimony, and that which relates to Tomas de Aguilar, one of the officers of the government, we beg leave particularly to refer. The cases which have been reported as finally acted upon, the commissioners have been as particular as the reason of the cases would justify, and have generally demanded strict proof of the right of the party, so far as the United States are interested; but in the derangement of title we have not been particular, as our decisions can in no case prejudice the rights of individual claimants; and where a clear, equitable right against the United States has been proved by one claimant, we have considered ourselves at liberty to relax on the rules in behalf of a second claimant for the same land; otherwise (if our decisions be correct) we might have done justice, but would not have given public satisfaction.

We have the honor to remain your most obedient servants,

DAVIS FLOYD.
W. H. ALLEN.

Hon. RICHARD RUSH, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington.

WASHINGTON, January 31, 1826.

The undersigned commissioners for ascertaining claims and titles to lands in East Florida report that, in the discharge of the duties assigned them, they have examined and disposed of the claims herein set forth, in the manner and upon the principles exhibited in the following nine classes, numerically arranged.

Number one is a class of claims, as per register transmitted herewith, to lands not exceeding 3,500 acres in quantity, and which have been confirmed by the board. This class of claims is founded on royal titles and on concessions, some of which are unconditional and others conditional. A royal title is the highest order of title known by any law, usage, or principle in the province of East Florida. Titles of this description were designed to convey the fee simple to the grantee; they were usually made by the acting governors of the province in the name of the King; they recited the grant to be in "perpetuity," and also the specific metes and bounds of the land, although it is believed there were a few exceptions. This title may be said to correspond in character with that of a patent issued by our government. Concessions without condition are understood to differ from a royal title only in this, that most of the latter recite the metes and bounds, whereas the unconditional concession, although definite in quantity and location of the land, is still subject to a survey which, when made, was followed up by maturing the concession by a royal title. In concessions with conditions it was always expected by the Spanish authorities that the grantee was to comply with them, and not until then could he obtain a royal title; yet, on proof of conditions performed, it is believed that they were never very rigorous. Orders for survey were generally predicated upon concessions previously granted, yet a few have come before the board that were not, but were made by the deputy governor (as stated in his testimony) by virtue of a verbal order of the governor. In no case, however, has the quantity exceeded 640 acres, which has been confirmed; and then not until the document proved that the grantee had been in the actual possession and cultivation of the land at and before February 22, 1819. In deciding on the cases comprehended in this class the board have, in all cases of royal titles and concessions without condition, where the documents were found amongst the archives of the country, and no allegations on the part of the United States appearing against them, considered themselves bound to grant certificates of confirmation to the claimants; and in all cases exceeding 1,000 acres, and not exceeding 3,500, where the parties, in addition to the preceding qualifications, proved that they were in the actual possession and cultivation of the land at the time of the cession, the board have also considered themselves bound to grant certificates of confirmation, as well as in the cases of concession with condition, where the claimants, in addition to the qualifications mentioned, proved also the conditions to have been substantially performed.

Number two comprises claims not exceeding 3,500 acres, which, although found to be valid Spanish grants, yet have not been confirmed from the want of proof of actual possession and cultivation at the time of the cession. They consist of royal titles and concessions, as in class No. 1.

Number three comprehends claims exceeding 3,500 acres, the titles to which were found amongst the public archives of the country, and are ascertained by the commissioners to be valid Spanish grants, and reported accordingly to Congress for confirmation. On this class the commissioners think it necessary to remark that, although the subject has continued to engage their attention, they have perceived no principle calculated materially to alter their rules of adjudication as set forth in their first report. From the most correct information they have received, they are of opinion that the rules for granting lands were, in East Florida, different from those in the other Spanish provinces. In East Florida the governors seem to have exercised a discretion in granting lands for various purposes to all such as made application for them; but the commissioners have been much perplexed in endeavoring to ascertain the limit of their authority; hitherto their researches have been in vain. That this discretionary power was uniformly exercised by the governors is clearly to be inferred from their own acts; for the first governor after the cession of the province in 1783 made no grants of lands, or but few, and those only in small quantities. The one who succeeded him (Governor Quesada) established and published rules and regulations for the distribution of the public lands, one of which was the appointment of a commissioner, who, with the assistance of a surveyor, was specially intrusted with the distribution of the public lands. This they did in the following proportions: to the heads of family 100 acres, and to each other member, of whatever age, sex, or color, 50 acres. Nevertheless, it is found that Governor Quesada made grants in violation of these rules. His successor (Governor White) established rules differing from those of Quesada, and reduced the quantity to be given to the heads and other members of a family, and added the condition of ten years' possession before the party should be entitled to a royal title; and White also is found to deviate, in some cases, from the rules established by himself, as well as those of Quesada. There is also a peculiarity in the phraseology of a royal title; in all the grants of this nature the legal right to grant the lands is asserted, from which it is clearly to be inferred that the governors considered themselves entitled to and did exercise a discretionary power to grant the public lands to those who might make application for them in such quantities as they conceived might tend most to encourage the population and improvement of the country. By examining the correspondence between the King and the intendants, it will be found that they were particularly charged, and especially in East Florida, to promote the population and improvement of the province by all the prudential means in their power. To this end the commissioners find all the governors giving grants of land for the declared purposes of agriculture, pasture, grist and saw mills, as well as indemnity for losses, and for military services, each of which seem to be embraced in the discretionary exercise of gubernatorial power. The commissioners trace this exercise, with a few exceptions, up to the year 1814, about which period, whether from a change of policy as applicable exclusively to the province or connected with an expected transfer to the United States, a practice of distribution was introduced differing from the former in the magnitude of the grants. Some of these grants favor the belief that the gratification of individual cupidity may have had some influence in their formation, but how far they comport with the laws of Spain and are entitled to confirmation the commissioners submit to the superior knowledge of Congress. There is one rule which the commissioners suppose it would not be unreasonable to apply in the adjustment of these claims. In cases where an application shall have been made for a grant of land as a remuneration for services, or other object embraced in the policy of the government, and the grant shall have been made accordingly, if the same individual shall have made a second application for remuneration for the same services, it would be no more than just to suppose that the first concession was full and ample, unless otherwise recited in the grant itself, and that the subsequent grant was an assumption of power not warranted by the laws and usages nor the policy of the government.

Number four comprehends claims under the donation act of May, 1824, and not exceeding 640 acres, and which have been confirmed by the board upon satisfactory proof that the claimant was twenty-one years of age, the head of a family, and that he had never received any written evidence of title from either the British or Spanish governments of East Florida; and furthermore, that he was actually settled on and cultivating the land at and previous to February 22, 1819, according to the requirements of the said act.

Number five comprises a class of claims reported to Congress on the ground that the settlements were made between February 27, 1819, and July 17, 1821, the time of the change of government, and originating under the aforesaid donation act.

Number six comprehends claims derived from the Spanish government by written evidence, and which have been ascertained to be valid Spanish grants, and have been reported to Congress on the ground that they were undefined in quantity.

Number seven comprises claims not exceeding 3,500 acres, founded on British grants, which have been recognized by the Spanish authorities, and confirmed by the board upon proof of such recognition; and in cases over 1,000 acres, on proof of actual occupation and cultivation.

Number eight is a register of town lots and out-lots, founded on actual occupation and cultivation previous to February 22, 1819, and which have been confirmed upon proof that they were actually in possession at and previous to the aforesaid day, by and with the consent of the government.

Number nine is a class of claims differing from all the others in an apparent want of formality. The other claims were authenticated by documentary evidence filed in the office, and were entitled to all the legal presumption in their favor which applies to records in our government; but the claims of this class were found in the possession of the claimants, and without any trace of evidence in the archives; and this circumstance, coupled with the equivocal character of the officer who verifies them, casts a shade of suspicion over the whole. In the investigation of these claims the commissioners have required the parties to show reasons why they were not on file in the archives, as well as to prove the execution; but from the interested character of the witnesses produced, the evidence on these points has been hitherto inconclusive. Thinking it probable, however, that some if not many of these claims are good and valid, and being informed by the parties of their ability to remove the suspicion, the commissioners have thought it due to justice that their opinion be suspended, and that a reasonable time should be afforded for the production of testimony.

With the outline afforded by the preceding classification, the commissioners transmit the documentary evidence, and their opinions thereon in each case, in detail. This arrangement of their opinion was suggested by the act by which the board was created, which dictated a minute transcript and investigation of the records, and a periodical accountability to the Secretary of the Treasury; and it was further enforced by the necessity of adjudicating on principles between which no summary can afford an absolute or definitive line of demarcation; and if the documents transmitted should be considered voluminous, it will at the same time be perceived that the features of the claims are various, and that the commissioners, in their operations, have been guided by the injunctions of the law. These operations have been retarded by the labor which was unavoidable in translating and transcribing the original grants and mesne conveyances, and the inadequate assistance afforded by the employment of three clerks, for which number only the law provides.

The operations of the board, independently of those contained in the first report, have resulted in the confirmation of 326 claims, in the rejection of 61, and in a reference to Congress of 88. Besides these claims, there are 528 undetermined, of which 233 are held under advisement for further proof, and 295, although filed, have not been matured to translation; and the commissioners, being sensible that the public interest demands an acceleration of the adjustment of these claims, have to suggest, as a mean of promoting this object, that the work of transcribing and translating be performed for a pro rata compensation.

All which is respectfully submitted.

DAVIS FLOYD.

Hon. RICHARD RUSH, Secretary of the Treasury.

My friend and colleague, Mr. Floyd, having addressed the above letter to you previous to my arrival at Washington, and approving highly of its remarks in general on the different abstracts, I have signed the letter, without requiring any alteration; but, of course, I should not be considered as participating in such remarks on abstract No. 3 as are only applicable to the cases acted on by him and Mr. Blair previous to my being a member of the board.

Yours, respectfully,

W. H. ALLEN.

Hon. RICHARD RUSH, Secretary of the Treasury.

And your memorialist further sheweth that she has ever since been in quiet possession of the said land, and cultivated and improved it, and now actually resides on it; that she was an inhabitant resident on said land at the time of the cession of Florida to the United States. Floyd, John Floyd, and Andrew Floyd, children and heirs of John Floyd, otherwise called José Juaneda, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of two hundred acres of land situated on the North river, about twenty miles from the city of St. Augustine, bounded as follows: the first line runs north 65° , beginning at a pine tree marked with the sign of the cross, on the border of the marsh of the North river, and terminates at a stake with the same mark at the border of the marsh of Guana creek, containing 75 chains; the second line runs south 75° west, beginning at a stake marked with the same sign, planted at the border of a marsh of Guana creek, and terminates at a pine tree with the same sign, at the border of a marsh of the North river, containing 70 chains, as appears by the certificate of survey and plat, dated May 15, 1793, a copy of which is herewith presented. The said tract of land was granted by Governor Quesada on February 1, 1793, to Augustine Buyck, under the royal order of October 29, 1790, and by the said Augustine Buyck transferred to the said José Juaneda on April 30, 1799, the father of your memorialists; and the said land was held and cultivated by your memorialists' father until his death, about five years ago, and since his death has been in the uninterrupted possession of your memorialists, who were resident inhabitants of East Florida at the time of the cession of Florida to the United States. In confirmation of the title of your memorialists the following documents are herewith presented:

Robert Pritchard's heirs vs. The United States. For four hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of James Hall and Eleanor Hall, his wife, formerly wife of Robert Pritchard, deceased, John Creighton and Mary Creighton, daughter of the said Robert Pritchard, Ann Stallings, widow of Elias Stallings, also daughter of the said Robert Pritchard, Robert Pritchard, son of the said Robert Pritchard, and Amelia Pritchard, daughter of the said Robert Pritchard, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists, the said James Hall and Eleanor Hall, his wife, were residents in Florida, and your other memorialists in the States of Georgia and South Carolina, at the period of the cession of Florida to the United States; that your memorialists, James Hall and Eleanor Hall, and Ann Stallings, are now actual residents in East Florida, and your other memorialists in the United States; that your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of four hundred and fifty acres, situated in Jacksonville, comprising the town of Jacksonville, on the west side of the river St. John's, in the county of Duval, formerly called the ferry of St. Nicholas, which said tract of land is part of a grant from the Spanish government, made in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, by Governor Quesada to the said Robert Pritchard, on January 3, 1791, as appears by a certified copy of the original grant herewith presented. Your memorialists further show that immediately after the aforesaid grant was delivered a regular survey of the same was duly made, but which survey has been lost in consequence of the troubles which took place in this country in the years 1811 and 1812; the making of the said survey and the running of the lines can, however, be proved by living witnesses residing near the said tract of land. That the said Robert Pritchard, immediately on receiving the grant in the year 1791, took possession of said land, planted it, and erected buildings thereon, and the agents of the heirs, under their authority, remained in possession of the same until compelled by the troubles and insurrection in the country in 1811 and 1812 to quit the same, and that since then they have been unlawfully kept out of possession by different persons, some of whom are now on the premises. All of which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, October 23, 1823.

JOHN RODMAN, Attorney for Memorialists.

F. Clarke, and Mr. Clarke gave him the one for the land this side the river St. John's, where said Hendricks lives. The plat for the other side he put back into the office, and told this deponent he had traced out his lines by Pritchard's plats, and he found everything to answer according to what he had been told; and found the stump of the corner tree near the garrison, on the river side, which the soldiers had cut down, a short leaf pine, and said he would hew a light wood post and set down at the corner. Hendricks wished to know whether this deponent thought if there was more land in the lines than the plat called for, whether the American law would take it from him, as the plat called for 215 acres, to the best of my recollection. Hendricks said he thought there were near 300 acres. Hendricks further told this deponent he had got all his papers in his own name, and that he could go on with his buildings in safety, and that Doctor Stiles had told him so to do, as he had more sense than half the men in Florida.

Teresa Marshall's heirs vs. The United States. For five hundred and thirty-three and a third acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Eliza Burnett, for herself and the other heirs of Teresa Marshall, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist, as one of the heirs of the said Teresa Marshall, as such heirs, and also in their own rights, claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land containing five hundred and thirty-three and one-third acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said land was granted without any condition, and in absolute property, on the tenth day of October, in the year 1791, by the governor of East Florida to the said Teresa Marshall, then Teresa Hills, the widow and relict of one Lodowick Hills. Your memorialist and the other heirs of the said Teresa Marshall, being children of the said Teresa Marshall by the said Lodowick Hills, as the headrights of her, said Teresa Marshall, then Teresa Hills, and of her children, and upon the joint property of herself and her said children, under the order of the King of Spain of October 29, 1790, as will more fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the original grant to the said Teresa Marshall, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A. Your memorialist further sheweth that the said tract of land was surveyed, by order of the government, by Josiah Dupont, a surveyor regularly authorized for that purpose, and under the superintendence and direction of one Pedro Marrot, an officer appointed by the government to make a special delivery of this land to the said Teresa Marshall, then Teresa Hills; and that the said tract or parcel of land was formally delivered to her, after the survey thereof by the said Pedro Marrot, on May 28, 1793, as will appear by a reference to the exhibit B, herewith submitted and filed. Your memorialist further shows that the said tract or parcel of land is situated on the North river, on the west side thereof, about nine miles from the city of St. Augustine, and is known by the name of Santa Teresa, and has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: the first line begins at the stake marked with a cross on the margin of the marsh of a branch called the Sweet Water branch, and runs north 78 degrees west, 45 chains, to another stake with the same mark; the second line runs thence north 32 degrees east, 25 chains, to a live-oak marked with a cross; the said two lines were, at the time of the said survey of the said land, bounded by vacant lands; the third line runs from the said live-oak north 58 degrees west, 62 chains, to a pine also marked with a cross, and was bounded at the time of survey by lands of one Roque Leonardi; the fourth runs south 10 degrees east, 87 chains, to another pine marked with a cross; the fifth line runs thence south 37 degrees east, 43 chains, to a pine marked with a cross; the sixth line runs thence north 78 degrees east, 53 chains, to another pine marked also with a cross, which said last-mentioned pine is on the margin of the said Sweet Water branch; all which will more fully and distinctly appear by a reference to a copy of the original plat of the survey thereof, being part of exhibit B. Your memorialist further shows that the said Teresa Marshall occupied and cultivated the said land for many years after the grant thereof, and that she departed this life about the year —, leaving your memorialist and her other children her heirs. Your memorialist further shows that she and the other children of the said Teresa Marshall were, before and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, and are now, inhabitants and settlers of East Florida; and that the said Teresa Marshall was, when the said land was granted to her as aforesaid, and at the time of her death, a resident and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of the title of the heirs of the said Teresa Marshall in and to the said tract of land and its appurtenances, conformably to the acts of Congress in such cases made and provided.

EAST FLORIDA, Duval County:

In the matter of William Berrie's claim to a certain tract of land in Duval county, called Turkey island, on the river Nassau, granted to Thos. Mann:

William Braddock, an inhabitant of this county, planter, aged about 46 years, being duly sworn, says that for the last 27 years he has lived in that section of country between the St. Mary's and the St. John's known as part of Duval county. Deponent says that he well knows William Berrie, and well knows that tract of land on the river Nassau commonly called Turkey island; that he was present at the purchase of the said tract by the said William Berrie from the said Thomas Mann, the date of which purchase I do not recollect particularly, but I believe it was in one of the years 1804, '5, or '6; that said William Berrie paid one hundred dollars for the same to the said Thomas; that the said William Berrie, a year or two after the purchase, cultivated about eight acres of the said land in cotton, but the dews in the neighborhood were so bad that they destroyed the crop. Deponent does not know whether Berrie has ever cultivated it since that time; that William Berrie removed to Georgia in 1812 or '13, in consequence of the troubles then existing in Florida, and has since not returned. Deponent says he is interested in the subject-matter.

Joseph Simeon Sanchez vs. The United States. For one thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, East Florida:

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph Simeon Sanchez, for himself and the other heirs of Francisco Xavier Sanchez, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist, for himself and the other heirs of the said Francisco Xavier Sanchez, deceased, claims title to a certain tract of land situated and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said tract of land was originally granted to the said Francisco X. Sanchez by the British government while East Florida was a province and dependency of the crown of Great Britain; that after the acquisition of said province by the Spanish government, to wit: March 4, 1793, the said tract of land was conceded and confirmed to the said Francisco X. Sanchez by the Spanish government, as will fully appear by a reference to the original decree, of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives of East Florida, confirming the said land to the said Francisco X. Sanchez; that the said Francisco X. Sanchez departed this life some time about the year 1808, leaving your memorialist and those for whose benefit this claim is made; that he died in the actual occupancy and possession of the said land; was surveyed by one Robert McHardy, as surveyor appointed by the government for that purpose, about April 26, 1819, as will appear by a reference to the certified copy of the plat and certificate of survey of that date herewith filed, and marked exhibit A; that the said one thousand acres were surveyed in four different tracts of unequal quantities near each other, and are situated in Diego plains, at a place in the said plains called "Montes de San Diego" in the Spanish language. Your memorialist begs leave to refer to the plat of the said survey as setting forth the lines of the said different tracts. Your memorialist further shows that the heirs of the said Francisco X. Sanchez obtained a royal title or grant in absolute property for the said tract of land, June 5, 1821, from Don José Coppinger, then the governor of East Florida, as will appear by a certified copy of the said grant herewith filed, marked exhibit B. Your memorialist further represents and shows that the said Francisco X. Sanchez became and was a Spanish subject when the Spanish decree herein first mentioned was made to him for the said land, and also an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and so continued to the time of his death; that the heirs of the said Francisco X. Sanchez were all, at the time of the death of the said Francisco X. Sanchez, inhabitants and settlers of East Florida and Spanish subjects, and have ever since continued to be, and are now, inhabitants and settlers thereof. Wherefore they pray a confirmation of this title to the said tract of land and its appurtenances.

Sanchez August 4, 1801, by Governor White, then the governor of East Florida, and while it was a dependency of the Spanish crown, under and in virtue of the royal order of the King of Spain of October 29, 1790, as will appear by a certified copy of the said concession herewith filed, marked exhibit A; that the said tract of land was surveyed, by authority, by Andres Burgevin, as appears by the certified copy of the original plat and certificate of survey herewith filed, marked exhibit B; that the said land is situated at a place called in the Spanish language "Montes de Puercos," in Diego plains; that it has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: the first line begins at a palmetto tree marked with a X, and runs south 75° east, 50 chains, to a pine marked with a X; the second line runs north 15° east, 20 chains, to a pine marked X; the third line runs north 75° west, 50 chains, to a palmetto marked X; and the fourth line runs thence to the place of beginning, as will distinctly appear by a reference to the copy of the said plat herewith filed. Sanchez obtained a title in absolute property to the said tract of land, June 5, 1821, from Don José Coppinger, then the governor of East Florida, as will appear by a certified copy of a royal title of that date herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C. And your memorialist avers that the said Francisco X. Sanchez was, at the time of the original concession as aforesaid and at the time of his death, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida and a subject of the King of Spain; that your memorialist and the other heirs of the said Francisco X. Sanchez were, at the time of the death of the said Francisco X. Sanchez, and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, Spanish subjects and inhabitants and settlers of East Florida, and have ever since been and now are settlers of the same. James A. Hutchinson's heirs vs. The United States. For two thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of James A. Hutchinson, for himself and the other heirs of James Hutchinson, late a Spanish subject, residing in East Florida, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist, for himself and the said heirs, claims title to a tract of land consisting of two thousand acres, situated on an island in the lagoon, which runs south from the mouth of Indian river to Jupiter inlet; which title your memorialists derive from a grant or concession made to the said James Hutchinson, deceased, by Henry White, governor of the province of East Florida, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, as well as in consideration that the said James Hutchinson had abandoned two thousand acres of land that had been previously granted to him on the first hammock south of Indian river, all of which will appear in the accompanying document marked A, bearing date April 17, 1807. Your memorialist further shows that the said James Hutchinson took actual possession of the said island and made improvements thereon; and that at the time of his death, which happened in August, 1808, before he could have the lands surveyed, his family, twelve in number, (see documents marked C and B,) resided on the tract of two thousand acres. In consequence of the death of the said James Hutchinson, and the helpless condition of his family, they were compelled to leave the island and return to their friends in the United States. This they did with the approbation of Governor White. The situation of the lands claimed being so remote from the inhabited part of the province, and surrounded by Indians, your memorialists have not been able to reoccupy the said lands. They therefore pray that their title to the said two thousand acres, as granted to the said James Hutchinson, may be confirmed; and, as in duty bound, they will ever pray.

GEORGE MURRAY, Attorney for Petitioners.

The petitioners are residing now in the State of Mississippi.

[Translation.]

St. AUGUSTINE, East Florida, April 13, 1807.To the governor:

Don James Hutchinson, the only inhabitant in the vicinity of the river Ys, (Indian river,) respectfully showeth: That your excellency was pleased to grant him two thousand acres of land in the first hammock to the south of said river; but finding that said hammock, on the main, was very much exposed to the incursions of the Indians, and with little hopes of being protected by other immediate settlements, he has therefore established himself on an island extending from said river to the entrance of Jove, and is formed by the creek named Santa Lucia on the west and the ocean on the east, consisting of a narrow strip of land, the greatest part sand hills, with only a piece of hammock, where your memorialist has established himself, and contains about three hundred and fifty acres, there being no other spot that admits of cultivation, as the rest consists of said sand hills, mangroves, and palmettos, and some spots of low land which experience has taught your memorialist are suitable for raising swine, to which he intends particularly to dedicate himself. Agreeable, therefore, to the reasons above stated, he begs your excellency will be pleased to grant him the said island in place of the former grant of the two thousand acres of land, where he considers himself rather more protected from the Indians, who commit acts of depredation and violence when they find a single family, and he can, without being molested, attend to the raising of cattle.

J. HUTCHINSON.

St. AUGUSTINE, April 14, 1807.

Admit from the memorialist the return he makes of the two thousand acres of land granted him on the river Ys, and, in place thereof, he is permitted to reside on the island where he has established himself, for the reasons he sets forth, until the land be measured according to the number of his family and working hands he may have.

A certificate was given.

NOTE.—The certificate of the two thousand acres of land granted him on the river Ys, he said, was lost with the rest of his papers in the gale which took place in September of the preceding year.

STATEMENT.

In the summer of the year 1808 I saw my brother (now deceased) James Hutchinson, who was then settled on an island at the mouth of Indian river, in East Florida, then and since called "Hutchinson's island." I then understood from him that, in consequence of his relinquishing a settlement he had made previously, he was to receive the whole of the island where he then was located; that the number of his family, and others with him, would entitle him thereto, and that Governor White had been pleased so to decree. He had lived in Florida a number of years, but how long I do not now recollect. In the month of September, 1808, and not many weeks after I had the above-mentioned interview, I received an account of his death, which happened about the last of August preceding. I immediately wrote on and made arrangements to bring his wife and young children to this State, first making application to Governor White to obtain leave for them to visit the United States during pleasure. This I had always believed, and do still believe, was granted by Governor White to answer the purpose intended by him, as well as the friends of the widow and her family, that such absence should not operate as an abandonment of their lands; and, under this express understanding, the family came to Georgia, leaving, however, a young man, who had for some time composed one of the household, in charge of the settlement, to look after it for them or in their behalf. The widow and children arrived in Savannah some time in the month of November, 1808. Some time after this, (the particular time I do not recollect,) the eldest son of my deceased brother was, by his mother and myself, fitted out to go and look after and take charge of the said island property. I heard of him in Florida, but have not heard from him for several years, and he is now believed to be dead. In all this lapse of time it never was, as I believe, the intention of the widow or her children to give up or abandon their just and equitable claim to the property, for the attainment and safe-keeping of which my brother lost his life, leaving a large and helpless family.

City of Augusta, } Notary Public's Office.

I, John G. Cowling, notary public for the city of Augusta aforesaid, duly admitted, lawfully appointed and sworn, do hereby certify that, on the date of the day hereof, personally came and appeared before me Colonel Joseph Hutchinson, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that the facts set forth in the above statement, within his own knowledge, are true, and such as relate to the knowledge of others he believes to be true; and he further swears that he is no ways interested in the above-mentioned claim, nor will be gainer or loser by the issue or event.

Given under my hand and seal of office, at Augusta aforesaid, April 24, 1823.

JOHN G. COWLING, N. P. [L. S.]

ADDITIONAL STATEMENT.

Colonel Joseph Hutchinson, of the city of Augusta, in the State of Georgia, further states, on oath, and in addition to the statement made by him of this date, viz: That the number of his late brother's family, when he brought them from Florida, as mentioned in his other statement, were twelve, consisting of the widow and seven children, and four negroes; besides which, the deponent understood, and so believes, that one child died on the island, and that a number of negroes had been stolen or carried off by pirates or wreckers. The deponent further states that the reasons which induced him to cause the said family to be brought away were, that the husband and father being dead, they had no protector, and were exposed to the maraudings of wreckers and Indians, and that it was always the intention of the family to return when they could do so with safety. The deponent further saith that he was possessed of a large parcel of paper and written documents belonging to said family, which they brought with them from Florida, among which he thinks it very probable there were some which would have been material in the final adjustment of their claim to said land, but that the whole of them were consumed by the fire which destroyed this deponent's property in Augusta in the year 1817.

Personally appeared before me, Horatio S. Dexter, a justice of the peace for said county, Andreas Roach, and, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that about the year 1807 he was employed by James Hutchinson to assist in forming a settlement on Hillsborough island, near Jupiter inlet; that while in the employ of said Hutchinson, the deponent, with several slaves, the property of said Hutchinson, erected three buildings, and cleared and planted on said island about thirty-five acres of land; that the deponent was employed about eight months the first time, and six months the second, and five months the third time; the two latter periods the employment of the deponent was principally in that of fishing and wrecking. Title of property.

Don José Coppinger, lieutenant colonel, &c., &c., &c.:

Whereas, in a royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, amongst other things, that lands should be surveyed gratis to those foreigners who, of their own free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, in proportion to the workers which each family have; that Don Zeph. Kingsley having presented himself as one of them, he solicited from the government, and there were granted to him, two thousand acres of land, situated at a place known by the name of Twelve-mile swamp, which land is known and distinguished under the following dimensions and boundaries: the first line runs east; its measurement consists of 110 chains; its measurement begins by an oak marked with a cross, on the western edge of a swamp, which ends with a pine tree marked with a cross on the opposite side. The second line runs north $22\frac{1}{2}$ ° west; its measurement consists of 199 chains; begins with said pine tree and ends with another of the same kind marked with a cross. The third line runs west; its measurement consists of 110 chains; begins by said pine tree and ends with another marked with a cross. The fourth line runs south $22\frac{1}{2}$ ° east; its measurement consists of 199 chains; begins by said pine tree and ends with the oak aforesaid, where the first line began, as results from the certificate given by the surveyor general appointed by this government, Don George Clarke, dated October 20, 1815, with the corresponding plat, which he has attested in continuation of it; and as no title has been issued for the security and proof of his dominion to the said lands, that he has made buildings on them, cultivated them, and finally complied with all the other conditions which the government has established for grants and concessions of this nature, existing in the titles delivered to other settlers, as is set forth in the proceedings moved by the interested, soliciting that the corresponding title should be issued to him for the land which he has already measured and laid off, and of which he is in possession: Wherefore, and in consideration of everything, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, unto the said Don Zeph. Kingsley the said two thousand acres of land in absolute property, for himself, his heirs and successors, and despatch to him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said land; and I cede and transfer it unto the said Kingsley, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatsoever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and of custom and by law belong or may appertain unto it; and, at their will, sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all which I give the sanction of my authority, as I can and of right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Don José Coppering, colonel of the royal armies, political and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal domain in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, in a royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has deigned to approve of the favor and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both regulars and militia, of this province, who assisted in its defence in the time of the rebellion, one of the said favors being the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of family each individual may have; that Don Domingo Fernandez, an inhabitant of Amelia island, of this province, having presented himself, showing the concession of one thousand seven hundred acres of land made him by this government by decree of August 19, 1814, in consideration of his tried services performed in said defence in person, by his slaves and in implements, as appears more at length from the certificate of the proceedings given by the secretary of said government, and soliciting that, according to the royal order, there should be issued a title of property of one thousand one hundred and fifty acres on account of the said one thousand seven hundred, on the creek called Big Dun's creek, on the south side of the river St. John's, which land is known and distinguished under the following dimensions and boundaries: the first line runs north twenty degrees east, measures one hundred and thirty chains, bounding public lands; the second runs south seventy degrees east, measures seventy chains, bounding also public lands; the third line runs south twenty-five degrees east, measures twenty-nine chains, bounding the lands of Lewis Christopher; the fourth line runs south twenty-nine degrees west, measures one hundred and ten chains, bounding the land of John Houston, as appears from the certificate of the surveyor, Don George Clarke, dated November 28, 1816, which, with the corresponding authenticated plat, is annexed to the proceedings on the matter which exist in the archives of the present notary, with my decree of this date, in which I have thought proper to grant said petition: Wherefore, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, unto the said Don Domingo Fernandez the said one thousand one hundred and fifty acres of land at the place already pointed out, without injury to a third person, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in despatching to him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said land; and I cede and transfer it unto the aforesaid Don Domingo Fernandez, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatsoever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and of custom and by law belong and may appertain unto it; and, at their will, sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all which I give the sanction of my authority, as I can and of right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of Government and the royal domain, in this city of St. Augustine, April 10, 1817.

Juan Blas Entralgo vs. The United States. For four thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Juan Blas Entralgo respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of four thousand acres, situated about five miles east of Spring Garden, and bounded as follows: beginning at the head of a mountain, and running south 60° west, 100 chains, to a stake; thence south 30° east, 105 chains, to a stake; thence north 60° east, 235 chains 20 links, to a pine marked —; thence north 30° west, 220 chains, to a pine marked + +; thence south 60° west, 135 chains 20 links, to a stake; thence south 30° east, 115 chains, to the beginning; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to F. M. Arredondo by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of 1815, who sold the same to your memorialist, as will appear by document A, which, together with the grant to Arredondo, marked B, is herewith filed. And your memorialist further sheweth that he has legal possession of said lands, and that he was a Spanish subject, living in St. Augustine, at the change of government in 1821, and that he now resides in Havana. In consideration of what is herein set forth, he prays his title to the said 4,000 acres may be confirmed.

J. B. ENTRALGO,
By GEORGE MURRAY. Attorney for Memorialist.

[Translation.]

SEÑOR GOVERNOR: Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., an inhabitant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency that, from the beginning of the insurrection of the year 1812, he took up arms and acted as commandant of a party of cavalry to reconnoitre the enemy, one of whom he took prisoner afterwards when they presented themselves in sight of this city; and afterwards the memorialist continued performing service in the militia, and patrolling at night, when necessary, for the guard and defence of this city, without pay, rations, or any emolument; at which time he performed other important services for the Government, among others, provision of meat and victuals for the support of the garrison; all of which is known to your excellency. And as his Majesty, in his royal order of March 29, 1815, has deigned to reward with a distribution of lands the faithful inhabitants who contributed to the defence of this province, the memorialist being one of them, and, as is more fully expressed, one of those whom the laws and royal dispositions regard with attention, distinguishing the merit and quality of the services; as, besides all the other circumstances which concur, it is also a very powerful one that he is a native of the country, established in it with more than eighty negroes of his property: Wherefore, he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant him, in absolute property, ten thousand acres of land situated, to wit: five thousand acres of them on a hammock, which is about five or six miles to the east of Spring Garden, and the other five thousand to the west of the river St John's, in the neighborhood of a creek known as Black creek, near Flemings' island, and the lake near Doctor's lake; titles of dominion to which to be made out and delivered as soon as the surveyor accomplishes the survey and laying off of both tracts of land, and that the corresponding plats are formed, which shall designate and mark out perfectly the situation and boundaries. A favor which he hopes for from the justice of your excellency. St. Augustine, Florida, March 18, 1817.

FERNANDO DE LA MAZA ARREDONDO.

ST AUGUSTINE, March 20, 1817.

In virtue of the services which Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo has performed and alleges, which are certain and notorious, and using the authority which I exercise agreeably to the intentions and desires of his Majesty to reward his faithful subjects, which the laws recommend in similar cases, and considering the large number of slaves he possesses, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice which I administer, I do grant, in absolute property, and with a title of dominion from this day and henceforward, to the said Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, the ten thousand acres of land in the places he solicits, without injury to a third person, for which the corresponding titles of property shall be issued as soon as the survey and laying off are performed by the surveyor. This decree, in the meanwhile, serving for an equivalent with which the proceedings shall be filed in the notary's office, giving to the interested an authenticated copy for his security.

CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., an inhabitant of this province, declare that I really sell to Don Juan de Entralgo, notary of government and the royal domain in this city, four thousand acres of land, which I hold as my property in this province, situated about five miles to the east of Spring Gardens, known under the following dimensions: the first line begins at the head of a hammock and runs south 60° west, measures 100 chains, and ends with a stake; the second runs south 30° east, contains 105 chains, and ends also with a stake; the third line runs north 60° east, measures 235 chains 20 links, and ends with a pine marked =; the fourth line runs north 30° west, measures 220 chains, and ends with a pine marked ×; the fifth line runs south 60° west, measures 135 chains 20 links, and ends with a stake; the sixth line runs south 30° east, measures 115 chains, and ends at the head of the said hammock; which 4,000 acres of land, with a portion more, this Government granted me, in absolute property and dominion, as a reward for services, March 20, 1817, and the corresponding title was issued to me on the 9th of August of the year last, as all appears in the archives of the said notary. And I sell the said 4,000 acres of land under the dimensions and other things, which are explained, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and belong, or may appertain to it, free of all encumbrance, at the price of $4,000, which the purchaser has paid me in cash; which sum I acknowledge as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, exception to money not counted, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I grant a receipt in form; in virtue of which I separate myself from the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and other rights, real and personal, which I had or held to said lands; and I cede, renounce, and transfer them to the purchaser, and whoever shall represent his right, that they may possess, sell, and alienate them at their will, in virtue of this deed which I deliver in his favor as a mark of real delivery; from which it is seen that he has acquired the possession without occasion for other proof, from which I release him. And I oblige myself to the eviction and guarantee of this sale in sufficient form, and as may best suit, in favor of the purchaser, with my goods, present and future, power and submission to the tribunals of his Majesty, that they may force me to compliance as by sentence consented to and passed in authority of an adjudged case, on which I renounce all the laws, customs, rights and privileges in my favor, and formal exceptions which prohibit it. And I, the said Juan de Entralgo, being present, accept in my favor this deed, and by it receive as purchased the aforesaid 4,000 acres of land at the price and agreement upon which they were sold to me, and I acknowledge them as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen or received, fraud, and everything else in the case; for which I grant a receipt in form. In testimony of which, this is dated in the city of St. Augustine, Florida, January 5, 1821.

FERNANDO M. ARREDONDO.

I, Don José Coppinger, colonel of the royal armies, military governor, political chief, and sub-delegate of ultramarine possessions for this said city and province, certify that I know the parties who have granted, delivered, and signed in my presence, and in that of the assistant witnesses, whom I have chosen for this act, Don Tomas de Aguilar and Don Antonio Alvarez, there being no other notary in the entire province. There being witnesses to this deed, Don José Mariano Hernandez, Don Bernardo Sequi, and Don José Bernardo Reyes, residents present.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, September 15, 1817.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR: Don Antonio Huertas, an inhabitant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency that, although he has obtained a concession of ten thousand acres of land on March 27, 1813, for the pasture of cattle, in the rearing of which this party has employed himself for many years; as the said land is almost all composed of pine land and very little arable, and the memorialist being one of the individuals who, by his well known and constant good services in defence of this province, and by his having been one of the first settlers of it, is entitled by every claim to be rewarded with a greater number of acres, as the laws so provide which treat in the matter, as from the character of his services, which he omits stating, as they are well known to your excellency, not only those which he has performed in the service of his Majesty, in which he has been employed since the age of 18 years, but the extraordinary ones of succoring the garrison of this city in calamitous times, and in the insurrection, making a sacrifice of his interests, and encountering perils, by the help of which he can say he has preserved the said garrison: Wherefore, he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant him 15,000 acres of land more, in absolute property and dominion, on a creek which comes from the west, and joins the river St. John's about 12 miles to the south of Lake St. George; its survey to commence about four or five miles to the west of the river St. John's, and dividing the said lands in two parts by said creek, reserving the delivery of the title in form until the memorialist finds it convenient to proceed to the survey and demarcation of said land, by an intelligent person, during the difficulties which exist at this day, and from the absence of the surveyor, Don George Clarke, who is named by the Governor. A favor which he hopes for from the justice of your excellency.

In attention to what this party represents, and the services which he sets forth being certain, I grant him, in the name of his Majesty, and of his royal justice, which I administer, the fifteen thousand acres of land which he solicits, that he may possess and enjoy it in absolute property and dominion; and, in order to make this grant secure, let a certified copy be furnished him of this proceeding, which shall be lodged in the archives of the notary, where titles in form shall be issued when the survey and plats are accomplished, as is expressed by the interested.

CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, Don Juan B. Entralgo, notary of government and of the public domain in this city, as attorney of Don Philip Robert Yonge, citizen of this province, now absent, which power he has conferred on me in this office, May 29, 1819, before Señor Don José Copinger, colonel of the national armies, military governor and political chief of this province, and before witnesses, assisting for the want of another notary in the province, which power is not revoked, and is ample for what shall be said; in virtue of which I also have an order or instruction in writing from the said principal, and of the same date for the purpose. I declare that I really sell to Don William Travers, an inhabitant and merchant of this city, eight thousand acres of land, the property of my said principal, situated on the west side of the Long lake, distant about forty-five miles to the south of Lake George, to the west of the river St. John's, which are a part of 13,000 acres which, under date of February 11, 1817, were granted by this government to the said Don Philip Robert Yonge, in absolute property and dominion, as a reward for his services, and for which a corresponding title was issued on the 22d of the same month, the plat and survey of which, made by the private surveyor, Don Andrew Burgevin, August 2, 1819, with the other documents referred to, and which form the proceedings existing in my archives; the said dimensions being known under the following form: the first line runs south, bounding the 5,000 acres remaining to the person who empowers me; the second line, west, measures 140 chains; the third line, south, eight chains; the fourth line, west, 215 chains, and terminates with a pine tree; the fifth line north, 240 chains, beginning with said pine and terminating with a cypress, as appears by another plat made by said surveyor on the 20th of May last in consequence of superior order; all which is added to the said proceeding. And I sell him the said 8,000 acres of land at the place, under the dimensions, and on the terms set forth, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has and belong to it, free of all encumbrance, (as I, the seller, certify, as appears from the book of mortgages in my charge, which I have searched for the purpose,) at the price of eight thousand dollars, which the purchaser has paid me in cash, which sum I acknowledge as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, exception to money not counted, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I grant a formal receipt, in virtue of which I separate the said Don Philip R. Yonge from the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and other rights, real or personal, which he had or held to the said 8,000 acres of land, and that I cede, renounce, and transfer them to the said Don William Travers, and whoever represents his rights, that they may, as their own, possess, sell, and alienate them at their will, in virtue of this writing, which I deliver in his favor as a mark of real delivery, by which it may be seen that he has acquired the possession, without occasion for further proof, from which I believe him. And I oblige the said Don Philip R. Yonge to the eviction and guarantee of this sale in sufficient form, and as may best suit, in favor of the purchaser, with all his property, present and future, power and submission to the tribunals of his Majesty, that they may compel me to compliance with it, as by sentence consented to and passed in authority of an adjudged case; moreover, I renounce all the laws, customs, rights, and privileges in his favor, and everything in form which prohibits it. And I, the aforesaid Don William Travers, being present, accept in my favor this writing, and by it receive as purchased the said 8,000 acres at the price and terms they were sold to me on, and I acknowledge them as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen or received, fraud, and all other things in the case, for which I deliver a formal receipt. In testimony of which, this is dated in the city of St. Augustine, Florida, December 22, 1820. I, the notary, as the only one in this city, and as the seller, sign this writing for myself, and before me, with the purchaser and the witnesses, who are Don Pedro Miranda, Don Jose Mariano Hernandez, and Don Fernando M. Arredondo, jr., inhabitants present. By me and for myself.

JUAN B. ENTRALGO.
WIL'M TRAVERS.

William Travers vs. The United States. For eight thousand acres of land.

William Travers vs. The United States. For twelve thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Travers respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of twelve thousand acres, situated at the lagoon called south of Lake George, in St. John's river, bounded as follows: first line, south 65° west, 320 chains, beginning at a palmetto tree marked to a pine tree with the same mark; thence north 25° west, 400 chains, to a stake; thence north 65° east, 320 chains, to a stake on the bank of said lagoon; which title your memorialist derives from an absolute grant to Felipe Roberto Yonge by Governor Copinger, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who sold the same to your memorialist; a certified copy of the grant, which was made February 22, 1817, is herewith filed. And your memorialist further sheweth that he has possession of said lands; that he resided in St. Augustine at the change of flags, and still does so; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine.

WILLIAM TRAVERS.

Title of property for twenty-five thousand acres of land in favor of Don Felipe R. Yonge.

Don José Coppinger, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, &c., &c.:

Whereas, by a royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has designed to approve the gifts and favors proposed by my predecessor, Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both regular and militia, of this province, who assisted in its defence at the time of the rebellion, one of the said favors being the distribution of royal lands; and considering that Don P. Robt. Yonge has made evident to me the distinguished and extraordinary services by which he has contributed personally and with his money to the defence of this said province at different times, and principally during the insurrection which took place in the year 1812, with the sacrifice of his property, and saving to the royal treasury, as the memorial which he has presented me of the date of the 5th December of the last year more fully shows; in consideration of which, and in virtue of the authority which I exercise, I have judged fit, by my decree of the 11th instant, to accede to his solicitations as set forth, and that, in remuneration, there shall be granted him twenty-five thousand acres of land, with a title in absolute property, to the south of the place known as Spring Garden, in this form: twelve thousand acres of them in the neighborhood of the lake or lagoon called and known as Valdes', and the thirteen thousand remaining at the lake higher up, known as Long lake, all on the west of the river St. John's, with the reserve of establishing the boundaries and dimensions when he proceeds to the survey of both tracts of land, as is shown by the said memorial and decree, which exist in the archives of the notary: Wherefore, and in consideration of the said commendable services, agreeably with the will of the sovereign, and with what the laws recommend for distinguished rewards to those who are deserving, attending to the quality of said services, and of the persons who have performed them, I have granted, and in the name of his Majesty, whose royal justice I administer, I do grant, unto the said Don Philip R. Yonge the said twenty-five thousand acres of land in the places pointed out, without prejudice to a third person, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and, in expediting to him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title of property by which I separate from the royal domain in the right of dominion it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the said Don Philip R. Yonge, and his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatsoever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and in fact and law belong or appertain to it; and, at their will, sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. In all which I interpose my judicial authority as I can, and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will and what has been set forth.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the notary of government and the royal domain, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 22, 1816.

POWER.

Be it known that I, Don Philip R. Yonge, an inhabitant and merchant of this province, resident in this city, declare that I give all my full, ample, and sufficient power, which is required, and may be necessary in law, unto Don Juan de Entralgo, notary of government and the royal domain in this said city, especially that he may in my name, and representing my proper person, rights, and actions, administer, and do administer, all and every my property, both landed and movable and immovable, sell some and purchase for me others, rent or mortgage them for the prices and terms which he shall adjust and agree to, delivering the deeds, receipts, and letters of payment which may be necessary, which from now I approve and ratify, as if I were present at their delivery; for which sale of lands, houses, or any my property whatsoever which I may have in this said province, he shall govern himself precisely by the instructions which I have given and shall give him on the subject, since with them I confer on him sufficient power, without any other limitation, free, open, and general administration, incidences and dependencies, power to prepare causes for judgment, to swear and substitute, revoke substitutes, and name others with substitution in form; and for the fulfilment of what he shall perform in virtue of this power, I bind myself, with my property, present and future power, and submission to the tribunals of his Majesty, that they may compel me to its performance, as by sentence consented to and passed in authority of an adjudged case, on which I renounce all laws, customs, rights, and privileges, in my favor, and the general in form which prohibits it. CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, Don Juan de Entralgo, notary of government and the public domain in this city, as attorney for Don Philip Robert Yonge, citizen of this province, now absent, which power he has conferred on me in this office, May 29, 1819, before Señor Don José Coppinger, colonel of the national armies, military governor and political chief of this said city and its province, and before witnesses assisting for want of another notary in the province, which power is not revoked, and will be sufficient for what shall be said; in virtue of which I also have written orders and instructions of the same principal and of the same date for the purpose. I declare that I really sell to Don William Travers, inhabitant of this city, twelve thousand acres of land of the property of my said principal, situated on the lake named "Second," on the west side of said lake, which were granted him by this government as a reward for services February 11, 1817; and on the 22d of the same a complete title of absolute property and dominion was issued to him, the dimensions of which are distinguished under the following form: the first line runs south 65° west, measures three hundred and twenty chains, beginning with a palmetto marked \equiv , and finishing with a pine of the same mark; the second line begins with said pine, running north 25° west, measures four hundred chains, and ends with a stake; the third line begins with said stake, north 75° east, measures three hundred and twenty chains, and terminates with another stake in the neighborhood of Second lake, as appears from the plat formed by the surveyor, Don Andrew Burgevin, August 2, 1819, agreeable to superior order, which, with the other documents I refer to, are added to the proceedings in the business, which are in the archives in my charge; and I sell him the said twelve thousand acres of land at the place, and under the dimensions and terms expressed, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which they have and belong to them, free of all encumbrance, (as I, the seller, certify, from the result of the book of mortgages, which I have searched for the purpose,) at the price of twelve thousand dollars, which the purchaser has paid me in cash, which sum I acknowledge as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, exception to money not counted, fraud, and everything besides in the case, for which I deliver a formal receipt; in virtue of which I separate from him who empowered me the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and other actions, real and personal, which he had or held to the said twelve thousand acres of land, which I cede, renounce, and transfer to the purchaser, and whoever shall represent his right, that they may possess, sell, and alienate them at their will, in virtue of this writing which I deliver in his favor as a mark of real delivery, with which it is seen that he has acquired its possession, without occasion for any other proof, from which I deliver him. And I oblige myself to the eviction and guarantee of this sale in due form, and as may be most favorable to the purchaser, with the property of my principal, present and future power, and submission to the tribunal of his Majesty, that they may compel him to its compliance, as by sentence consented to and passed in authority as a thing adjudged, on which I renounce all laws, customs, rights, and privileges in his favor, and everything in form which prohibits it. And being present, I, the said purchaser, accept in my favor this writing, and by it receive as purchased the said twelve thousand acres of land at the price and agreement which they were sold to me; and I acknowledge them as delivered to my disposal, with a renunciation of proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen or received, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a formal receipt. In testimony of which, this is dated in the city of St. Augustine, Florida, December 22, 1820. I, the notary, as the only one in this city, and as the seller, sign this writing for myself, and before me, with the purchaser and the witnesses, who are Don Pedro Miranda, Don José Mariano Hernandez, and Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., witnesses present for me and before me.

John B. Entralgo vs. The United States. For four thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Juan B. Entralgo respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of four thousand acres, situated at a place called Big Spring, on the river St. John's, and about twenty-five miles south of Lake George, on the west bank, bounded as follows: on the east by St. John's river, on the north by lands of Pedro Miranda, on the south by vacant lands, on the west by lands also belonging to Pedro Miranda, (see description in the grant filed herewith;) which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Pedro Miranda by Governor Coppinger, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who sold the same to your memorialist, (see document A,) the said four thousand acres being part of a grant made, as above stated, to Pedro Miranda for ten thousand acres, dated April 11; and this title is founded upon a memorial and concession made September 16, 1817, by Governor Coppinger. And your memorialist further sheweth that he has possession of said lands, and was, at the exchange of flags, living in St. Augustine; at present he resides in Cuba.

[Translation.]

ST. AUGUSTINE, Florida, September 16, 1817.

SEÑOR GOBERNADOR: Don Pedro Miranda, first pilot of the bar, and captain of the port, with due respect, states to your excellency that the government is well aware of the services which the memorialist has performed, from the insurrection in this province in the year 1812, contributing with his person and property to its defence, besides there having been, and now being in his charge, several extraordinary commissions, for which he has never had any recompense. It is also certain and well known that, in the insurrection of the year 1794, he was likewise engaged in an extraordinary manner, and employed in other commissions for the royal service, having contributed, on all occasions, with his greatest exertions, to the economy of the royal treasury. For these considerations, and that of having served his Majesty from his youth, and being of the first families that came on the occupation of this province, which circumstance of being a settler makes him entitled to the favor of a grant of lands, as has been given to others, since those which your excellency has been pleased to grant him do not equal your liberality to those: Wherefore, he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant him, in absolute property and dominion, ten thousand acres of land on a creek which runs from the west, and joins the river St. John's, called in English Big spring, about twenty-miles to the south of Lake St. George; the said land to be divided in two parts by said creek, and to have one of its fronts on the river St. John's, leaving free the concession of two thousand acres which were made to him on the first of July last, reserving the titles of property until he can complete the survey and plat, it being out of his power at present to pay the expenses. A favor he hopes from the justice of your excellency.

PEDRO MIRANDA.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, September 16, 1817.

In attention to what Don Pedro Miranda represents in the foregoing memorial, and as the services he mentions are certain, agreeing at the same time with what the laws and royal orders direct for the encouragement of population, I grant him, in the name of his Majesty, and of his royal justice, which I administer, the ten thousand acres of land in the places which he points out, that he may enjoy them in absolute property and dominion; for which end, and that he may prove this grant, let a certified copy of the proceeding be furnished him, which shall be lodged in the notary's archives, from whence titles in form shall be given him speedily, or whenever required by the interested.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Antonio Huertas, late of St. Augustine, in East Florida aforesaid, now residing at Havana, in the Island of Cuba, respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to ten thousand acres of land, situated on Six-mile creek, bounded westward by the said creek, eastward by the large mount, southward by the road of Picolata, running northward to its termination, being the same land formerly granted to Panton, Leslie & Co., and afterwards relinquished by them. The grant to your memorialist of the said land was made March 27, 1813, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, and an absolute title granted to your memorialist by Governor Coppinger July 20, 1816. The original grant, absolute title, and survey, are in the office of public records in the city of St. Augustine, kept by Wm. Reynolds, esq. And your memorialist further sheweth that he was a resident inhabitant of East Florida at the time of its cession to the United States, and in possession of the said land; that he had for about thirty-six years previous to said cession resided in the city of St. Augustine, whence he removed to the Havana in the year 1822. All of which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, February 25, 1823.

Know ye that I, Don Juan Huertas, resident of this city, do really sell to Don Francisco Julian Avice 6,000 acres of land, situated between the old fort of Buena Vista and a place where the military post is stationed or properly known by the name of Moore; which 6,000 acres of land are part of 15,000 conceded to me by this government, giving me for the same a title of absolute property December 24, 1817, which are known and distinguished under the following dimensions and boundaries: bounded on the north by the lands of Don Pedro Cocifacio, near the old fort of Buena Vista; on the east by vacant lands; on the south by those of Moore; and on the west by the river St. John's; and I sell him the boundaries and dimensions already explained in the place pointed out, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, which it has, or may belong to it, free from any claim whatever, in the sum of $3,075, which the purchaser has paid me in cash. In virtue of all which I separate myself from the right of property and possession I had to said land, which I cede, renounce, and transfer in favor of the purchaser, and in whomsoever may represent his right, that he may, as his own, dispose of it at his will, binding myself to the eviction and goodness of this sale in favor of the purchaser with my present and future property, with power to the tribunals that they may compel me to the compliance thereof. And I, the said Don Francisco J. Avice, being present, do accept in my favor this deed, and by it received as purchased the said 6,000 acres of land in the price and manner they are sold me. Joseph M. Arredondo vs. The United States. For twenty thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Joseph M. Arredondo respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of twenty thousand acres, situated at a place called the Big Hammock, about twenty miles from the river Suwanee; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to him by Governor Coppinger, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815; a certified copy of the said title is herewith filed, and is dated March 20, 1817. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is legally in possession of said lands, and was so before the cession in 1821; that he is a Spanish subject, native of East Florida, and at present a resident of the Island of Cuba.

JOSE' M. ARREDONDO.

Title of property in favor of Don José de la Maza Arredondo for twenty thousand acres of land.

Don José Coppinger, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, political and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal domain of the city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the favors and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier General Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the regulars and of the militia, of this province, who contributed to the defence thereof during the rebellion, one of the said favors being the concession of vacant lands; and whereas Don José de la Maza Arredondo, captain of the local militia of the Spanish company in the town of Fernandina, has made known to me the distinguished and extraordinary services rendered by him, in a personal and pecuniary manner, in the defence of this said province during the insurrection therein, with economy to the royal revenue as a faithful subject, as is fully stated in his memorial, dated the 18th of the present month, according to which, by my decree of this day, I have thought proper to accede to his prayer relative to the granting of him twenty thousand acres of land, with a title of absolute property, in the lands known by the name of Alachua, about eighty miles distant from this city, at a place called Big Hammock, about twenty miles from the river Suwanee, and sixty miles west of St. John's river, not preventing, as soon as there is an opportunity, and the tranquillity of the province is entirely re-established, that a survey of the lands be made, that the limits and boundaries may be made known by the corresponding plat, as will be fully seen by the said proceedings filed in the office of archives of the present notary: Wherefore, and in consideration of said commendable services, agreeably to the will of the sovereign, and what is set forth in the laws to recompense with distinction those who may be worthy, according to the nature of said services, and the individuals who have rendered them, I have thought proper to grant, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, to the said Don José de la Maza Arredondo the said twenty thousand acres of land in the place pointed out, without injury to a third person, for himself, his heirs, and successors, in absolute property; and in granting, as I do by these presents, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and domain it had to said land; and I cede and transfer the same to the above-mentioned Don José de la Maza Arredondo, his heirs and successors, that they may, in consequence thereof, possess the same as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and of custom and by law belong or may appertain thereto; and, being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all which I give the sanction of my authority, as I can, and of right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal domain, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, March 20, 1817.

JOSE' COPPINGER.

By order of his excellency:

JUAN DE ENTRALGO, Notary of Government and the Royal Domain.

Charles W. Bulow's executors vs. The United States. For four thousand acres of land in two tracts.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Geddes, Duke Goodman, and William Lance, executors of the last will and testament of Charles W. Bulow, deceased, on behalf of the heirs of the said Bulow, respectfully sheweth:

That the heirs of said Bulow claim title to four thousand acres of land comprised in two separate tracts, as follows: the first tract is situated between the rivers Tomoca and Matanzas, in the place called Graham's swamp, containing three thousand four hundred and eighty-six acres, bounded on the west by the public road from Mosquito to St. Augustine, on the north and northeast by a marsh and the Haulover creek, and on the south by the lands of Mr. Ormond. The second tract contains five hundred and fourteen acres, is situated on the west side of the river Halifax, bounded on the south by John Russell's land, on the north by Farquhar Bethune's land, and on all other sides by vacant lands; which two tracts above mentioned, making four thousand acres, were granted to John Russell by the Spanish government under Governor Estrada, July 28, 1812, in exchange for a vessel called the schooner Barbarita, which will fully appear by a reference to a volume of original documents on the subject, stitched together, and remaining in the office of public archives kept by W. Reynolds, esq., in this city, to which are annexed the order of survey, certificates of survey, and plats. And your memorialists further show that, immediately on receiving said grant, the said John Russell took possession of the said land, but a few years afterward died, and the title to the same was confirmed by the Spanish government to his heirs, as appears by the above documents; that the said Charles W. Bulow purchased from the heirs of Russell, for a valuable consideration, August 1, 1821, the two tracts of land aforesaid, the deed of conveyance for which is recorded in the public office of records in the city of St. Augustine, kept by Mr. Tingle; that, in virtue of said purchase, the said Charles W. Bulow immediately took possession of the said tracts of land, and planted and improved a part of one of the tracts, and erected buildings; that your memorialists still keep a great number of slaves on the said land employed in the cultivation of the cane; that the said Charles W. Bulow died in the city of St. Augustine a few months ago, a citizen of the United States. All of which is respectfully submitted by JOHN RODMAN, Attorney for Claimants.

St. AUGUSTINE, November 29, 1823.

Charles W. Bulow's executors vs. The United States. For six hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Geddes, Duke Goodman, and William Lance, executors of the last will and testament of Charles W. Bulow, deceased, on behalf of the heirs of said Bulow, claim title to six hundred and seventy-five acres of land, situated on the west side of the Halifax river, bounded on the north by lands of John Russell, on the south by lands of Fulano Dean, on the east by lands of John Russell, and on the west by vacant land; which said tract of six hundred and seventy-five acres are granted to the said John Russell by the Spanish government under Governor Estrada, July 12, 1828, on what is called headrights, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790; the original grant for which, with the survey and plat, is annexed to and forms a part of a volume of original documents relating to two tracts, comprising four thousand acres of land, which were granted to John Russell at the same time, in exchange for a vessel called the Barbarita; which said volume of original documents are stitched together, and remaining in the office of public archives kept by W. Reynolds, esq., in this city. And your memorialists further show that, immediately on receiving said grant, the said John Russell took possession of the said land, but a few years afterwards died, and the title to the same was confirmed by the Spanish government to his heirs, as appears by the above-mentioned document; that the said Charles W. Bulow purchased from the heirs of Russell, for a valuable consideration, August 1, 1821, the said tract of six hundred and seventy-five acres, together with the two tracts making four thousand acres aforesaid, the deed of conveyance for which is recorded in the public office of records in the city of St. Augustine kept by Mr. Tingle; that in virtue of the said purchase the said Charles W. Bulow immediately took possession of the said tracts of land, and planted and improved a part of one of the tracts of land, and erected buildings; that your memorialists still keep a great number of slaves on the said land employed in the cultivation of the cane; that the said Charles W. PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

I, Mr. John Russell, a new settler in this province, do appear before your excellency, and, with due respect say that when I took the oath of fidelity and allegiance to his Catholic Majesty his excellency Don Juan José de Estrada, governor pro tempore of this province, insinuated to me that the government was in want of a vessel, the size of which should be calculated to go in and out over the bar of this harbor; and that as the funds of the royal treasury were exhausted, and such vessel could not be paid for in specie, they would be glad to buy it and pay for it with a grant of land proportioned to its value. In consequence of that insinuation, I ordered the building of the schooner in which I have just arrived to this port with my family and some of my slaves, called the Perseverance, of fifty-eight tons burthen, drawing only six feet when loaded. The capacity of the vessel is equal to three hundred flour barrels and more; her timbers and materials are of the best quality, which can be ascertained by a survey of experienced men; on account of all which, besides being a fast sailing vessel, she is well calculated for this port, and I offer the same to the government, contenting myself to receive in payment for it the title of absolute domain and property to four thousand acres of land situated in some part of this province, as I may fix my choice; also, the absolute title of such lands which I have petitioned for, and which I am entitled to in virtue of my headrights, according to the number of persons composing my family and that of my slaves. Therefore, I beg your excellency to consider my preceding proposal as being actually made, and to accept it should your excellency deem it just and reasonable. St. Augustine of Florida, July 8, 1812.

JOHN RUSSELL.

DECREE.

Let the governor pro tem., my predecessor, Don Juan José de Estrada, give such information as may be in his power.

KINDELAN.

INFORMATION.

When I admitted as a vassal of his Catholic Majesty our lord Don Ferdinand VII, the petitioner, which took place in the preceding year as it appears by the oath he took, which is registered in the office of the secretary of the government, he represented to me that in Providence, of which place he was an inhabitant, he had left on the stocks a schooner in which he intended to bring to this place his family and property, and he believed that vessel was very well calculated for the service of this port, and he would offer it for sale to the administrator of the royal domain in case it would suit. Having received this information, and knowing the general scarcity of specie in the royal treasury, I gave him to understand, through the organ of Mr. John Forbes, that if he thought proper to make a gracious present of the same to the King, in that case, as soon as he would take possession of the lands which he was to have as a new settler, the royal title to them would be immediately granted to him, which otherwise he was not entitled to until after having cultivated them for ten years without intermission. The said Forbes insinuated to me that the proposal had not been disagreeable to the petitioner, who answered that when, in due time, the vessel with other circumstances relating to it would be examined, he would then enter into a treaty about it. This is what took place with respect to that business, and this is all the information I have to give your excellency, in conformity to the superior decree which precedes. St. Augustine, July 8, 1812.

JUAN JOSE DE ESTRADA.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 8, 1812.

Let the officers of the royal domain give their information.

KINDELAN.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 9, 1812.

The officers of the royal domain observe a notable difference between the exposition of Don Juan José de Estrada—having offered to Mr. John Russell the title of property to the lands which would be awarded to him in proportion to the number of persons comprising his family, provided he would convey to the royal domain the property of the schooner said to be building, from which title it would follow that he would immediately acquire the faculty of disposing of said lands as he would think fit, which otherwise he could not do, as the royal title to them would not be granted until after having cultivated them for ten years together and proving the same to the satisfaction of the government, and the exposition of Russell, saying that four thousand acres more were offered to him, with the faculty of locating them where he chose; but for all that, considering that Russell has every appearance of being a settler of good faith; that to all such lands are granted gratuitously; that a great number of acres are still left unceded, and of course without utility to anybody; considering, also, the situation in which we find ourselves, and the want of such a vessel as the proposed schooner is said to be for the service of this port; our opinion is that, after somewhat reducing the number of acres, or in case of a refusal on the part of Russell to accede to put a reduction, his proposal ought to be accepted in its full extent, with the reserve, however, of what his Majesty may determine, after taking cognizance of the subjects, and with the reserve of what may follow from the survey and her appraisement, made by proper judges, of the said vessel.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

DECREE.

Let this be communicated to the interested party, who, in his answer, will make known where he wishes to locate the lands he petitions for.

KINDELAN.

PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

I, Mr. John Russell, a new settler of this province, with due respect appear before your excellency, and, being informed of the decrees and informations which have taken place relative to my annexed petition, say that, as I am not sufficiently acquainted with lands in this province, it is not in my power to designate precisely the site of the four thousand acres alluded to in my first petition, but I do promise, without hesitation, to take them out of the vacant lands situated between the head of the river Matanzas and the river Tomoca, in which territory the surveyor whom the governor may appoint will survey them in such place or places which I may select, and in which are also located the lands which, as a new settler, I solicited, which may be seen in my petition recorded in the secretary's office; as to the notable difference which the officers of the royal domain observe between my exposition and the information given by Don Juan José de Estrada, it would not have appeared to them so notable if they had read my first petition with more attention. In no part of it do I say that four thousand acres of land were offered to me, as said officers have it; my proposal is clear, plain, and just. Besides, as the value of my schooner is greater than that of the lands I solicit in payment of it, for this reason, as I do not accede to the reserve mentioned by the treasury department, of submitting ultimately to the decision of a superior authority, I expect to receive the lands at the moment I deliver up my vessel in the manner expressed in my petition, and the business will be then concluded. I therefore pray that your excellency will be pleased to determine what you may think proper on the subject.

JOHN RUSSELL.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 10, 1812.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 10, 1812.

Let the above proceedings be carried back to the treasury department, in order that the officers of the same may make their remarks.

KINDELAN.

INFORMATION.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 11, 1812.

Any one, without much meditation being required on his part, will perceive that Russell wishes to have the title of property to two tracts of land—one in payment for his schooner, and the other on his quality of a new settler, according to the number of his family; and that Don Juan José de Estrada spoke only of granting immediately the title of property to the tract which the petitioner had obtained for his headrights as a compensation for the schooner; but the treasury department waives all this, although at the same time the officers of the same are surprised at the expressions in which it is attempted to make void their first information; and they are now of opinion that the vessel may be surveyed and appraised by the King's master ship-carpenter and caulkier, he being the only judge of such matters in this place, and by the captain of the schooner St. Augustine, Don Miguel Acosta, as soon as he arrives, and who it is expected will arrive in a very short time. However, your excellency will determine for the best.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 11, 1812.

Be it as it seems proper to the officers of the royal treasury, who will appoint on their part a person to superintend the proposed operations.

KINDELAN.

SURVEY.

In conformity to the preceding decree, we went on board of the vessel which is the subject of this transaction. We examined it minutely, also everything respecting the masts and rigging thereof, and, after a consultation as to its value, we believe, according to our knowledge and conscience, that it is worth two thousand six hundred dollars, this being the sum resulting from the inventory which was taken. The whole proceeding took place in the presence of Don Tadeo de Arribas, commissioned by the treasurer to superintend the survey and the appraisement. In proof of which, we sign the document in St. Augustine, Florida, July 13, 1812.

RAFAEL DEAZ, for Don Miguel Acosta, who cannot sign.
FERNANDO DE LA MAZA ARREDONDO.

Under my inspection:
TADEO DE ARRIBAS.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 15, 1812.

Let these proceedings be returned to the treasury department for such purposes as may be convenient. Annex to them the appraisement which has been made in detail of the vessel and its appurtenances, the hull, the sails, &c., as without such document it is impossible to judge of the appraisement.

KINDELAN.

INFORMATION.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 15, 1812.

According to the report of good judges, the vessel is found with every necessary requisite, is in good state for service, and well calculated to go in and out over the bar of this harbor, which is very bad. The schooner which is at this time in the service of the governor was formerly the launch of the pilot of the bar, and for a long time was employed in piloting vessels in and out; it was afterwards rigged as a schooner, is now very old, and is not worth the expense of putting to it a new set of sails, which is much wanted; and would have been sold in the Havana last year if a vessel could have been procured fit for the same service. From these circumstances, from the difficulty of meeting another opportunity as good as this, and from the scarcity of specie in the royal treasury, it appears that we are justified and authorized to take advantage of this opportunity, without waiting for the decision of his Majesty, who, it is believed, will approve it as soon as he is well informed of the whole. But your excellency will determine what you may deem most proper. The officers of the department of the royal treasury abstain from speaking about lands, as the royal orders which regulate these matters have never been communicated to them, as they are not acquainted with the locality of those which Russell petitions for, as they do not know whether the same are or are not claimed by some other persons, as they are ignorant of their value, although this cannot be great, where there is still so much land unoccupied and distributing gratis.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

APPRASEMENT.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 15, 1812.

In conformity to the decree of his excellency the governor of this place, dated this day, relative to the transactions with John Russell, a new settler of this province, the following appraisement has been formed by the master ship-carpenter, Don Rafael Deaz, and Don Miguel Acosta, captain of the King's schooner the St. Augustine, under the inspection of Don Tadeo de Arribas, commissioned by the treasurer, Don Manuel Lopez, comptroller of the royal treasury, of the schooner called Perseverance, commanded by Don Thomas Forrest, owned by the children of the said Russell, to wit: for the hull of the schooner, which measures from head to stern 54 feet 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches, 16 feet and $\frac{1}{2}$ inch beam; her hold 5 feet 10 inches deep, and 58 $\frac{1}{2}$ tons burden, with her two masts, yards, bowsprit, topmast, &c., \$1,938.

[Here follows the appraisement of the apparel and furniture of the schooner, which, with $1,938, the sum which the vessel, masts, yards, &c., is valued at, makes the amount of the appraisement at $2,600.]

RAFAEL DEAZ, for Don Miguel Acosta, who cannot write.
SQUIRE ARREDONDO.

Under my inspection:
TADEO DE ARRIBAS.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 17, 1812.

I approve the opinion of the officers of the treasury department; and, in conformity thereto, let the bargain relative to the said schooner be concluded with every requisite formality, and let the title of property be given to John Russell to four thousand acres in that part of the country he indicates in his last petition.

KINDELAN.

PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

I, John Russell, a new settler of this province, with due respect, appear before your excellency and say that, knowing the purport of your excellency's decree which follows the proceedings concerning my said schooner Perseverance, to which I gave my assent, and expect at the same time to receive the titles of property to the land which have been granted to me as a new settler, of which I make mention in my first petition; in consequence of which I beg your excellency to order that the title of property to the four thousand acres which I am to receive as a consideration for my schooner, and the title of property to the lands granted to me as a new settler, be given to me at the same time.

JOHN RUSSELL.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 17, 1812.

DECREE.

Let the treasury department inform on the subject.

KINDELAN.

INFORMATION.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 17, 1812.

In the first petition which Russell presented on the 8th instant he offered his schooner on the condition that he would receive for it the title of 4,000 acres, and also the title of property to the lands which, as a new settler, he had petitioned for, proportioned to the number of his family; and the decree of your excellency of yesterday refers only to the 4,000 acres, the price of said schooner. The officers of the treasury are ignorant of the import of John Russell's petition, as they have already said, and say again, that they are as yet unacquainted with the royal orders by which such matters are regulated; but it appears to them that if the title of property be given to the petitioner to 4,000 acres in consideration of his schooner, the same may be given, also, for his other lands as a new settler, particularly as we understand that, without that condition, the proportion to the number of his family and the slaves he has imported. Your excellency will, nevertheless, determine what you will deem best.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 20, 1812.

Let the above be communicated to the interested party.

KINDELAN.

PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

I, John Russell, a new settler in this province, with due respect, appear before your excellency, and having received notification of the information of the treasury department, and of the decree of your excellency annexed to it, say that, as all the timbers of my schooner are mahogany, it is worth at least $5,000, although the surveyors appointed to survey and appraise her have limited its value to two thousand six hundred dollars. This difference is owing to their not having considered the intrinsic value of mahogany, and that of pine and other inferior timber, which do not cost half the labor which the mahogany does. Therefore, the genuine value of said schooner ought to be considered equivalent to $5,000, and I would not take less for her if I was to be paid in cash. At the same time I have to observe to your excellency that, during the war between Great Britain and the United States, it will be impossible for me to import in this province the rest of my slaves, and, considering the difficulty of exporting negroes from Bahama islands, I shall want at least twelve months from the time the said war is concluded to take away my slaves; and, as I wish to invest the greater part of my property in negroes, I have to beg your excellency to delay giving me the title to the lands which I petitioned for on the 22d of June last year, until the conclusion of the term mentioned; and as soon as this is granted to me, together with the title of property to the 4,000 acres of land already decreed by your excellency on the 16th instant, and that in case said lands could not be found in the place mentioned, when the surveyor shall have to survey them, they may be located in the part known under the name of Twelve-mile swamp. I am ready to deliver faithfully my vessel to the government; therefore beg your excellency to accede to this my petition, and order a certificate of the document, which will be drawn to that effect, be given to me to serve me as a guarantee.

JOHN RUSSELL.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 22, 1812.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 22, 1812.

Let this be communicated to the comptroller of the treasury, together with the document showing the oath of fidelity and allegiance which John Russell took before my predecessor, with everything relating to this business.

KINDELAN.

INFORMATION.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 25, 1812.

Mr. John Russell declared on June 10, 1811, that he had in Providence a schooner, 62 tons burden, worth $6,000, with all her apparel, and one hundred negroes, and that he wished to import the whole to this province; that, in the same place, he had landed property to the amount of $15,000, nineteen horses, four hundred sheep, and sixty head of cattle. He has now brought property to the amount of $7,004 87 in effects, household furniture, sheep and horses, including his schooner, valued, as he says, at $5,000. He has also brought his wife and children, and eighteen slaves. What he petitions for now appears to be reasonable, and the officers of the treasury department, and that the title of the property may be given to him now according to the number of his family he presents, together with the title to four thousand acres already granted him for his schooner, and keep in reserve for him for the space of ten or twelve months after the conclusion of the war between Great Britain and the United States, the land contiguous to the first grant, in order to enlarge it in proportion to the number of hands he will import, and not grant the said lands reserved for John Russell to anybody else, although petitioned for, until the expiration of the stipulated period, and then only the government will be at liberty to grant the said reserved lands to anybody they please, in case John Russell should not have completed the importation of what he has mentioned in his declaration. If your excellency agree that, in conformity to this opinion, the said titles of property may be granted to the petitioner, you will be pleased also to order the delivery of the said schooner to Captain Miguel Acosta, with all the articles mentioned in the inventory, and whatever may belong to the said vessel, and might not have been included in said inventory, and would be necessary for the navigation of the same; and also the delivery of a certified copy of all these proceedings to the petitioner according to his wish.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

OATH.

I, Don Tomas de Aguilar, secretary pro tem. of this government, certify that, in the book No. 10, in which are registered the oaths of fidelity which the non-settler takes, the oath taken by John Russell is registered in the second folio, the tenor of which is as follows: "In the city of St. Augustine, Florida, on June 10, 1811, before his excellency the governor pro tem. of this place and province, the lieutenant colonel of the army, Don Juan José de Estrada, appeared Mr. John Russell, born in South Carolina at the time it was a possession of the British crown, married and having five children, three of whom between sixteen and twenty-five years old, and the other two above eight years old, ship-carpenter by trade, but now dedicates himself to agriculture, and of the Protestant persuasion; under which, and with every form required by law, took the oath of allegiance in the presence of the secretary, deceased, and promised to keep fidelity and remain a faithful vassal to our sovereign the Lord Don Ferdinand the Seventh, and to be faithful to the authorities constituted in his name, to bear arms in defence of the province against any enemy that would intend to invade it, and submit entirely to the laws of the kingdom. After having taken said oath, he took another relating to his property, and said that, in the harbor of Providence, he has a schooner of 60 tons which he values at $5,000, and a parcel of sails and rigging worth about $1,000; one hundred negroes in Nassau, eighty of whom are above sixteen years old, and the remaining from eight to sixteen years old; also, landed property to the value of $1,500 situated in said place of Nassau; nineteen horses, four hundred sheep, and sixty head of cattle; the whole of which, or the value thereof, he intends to import to this province, and dedicate himself to the agriculture; and he signed the same with his excellency the governor, and the above-mentioned office, and which I affirm."

PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

Mr. John Russell, a new settler of this province, with due respect, appears before your excellency, and says that he has taken the oath of fidelity and allegiance to his Majesty, with the sincere intention to dedicate himself and the slaves he has, manifested in the solemn act of his oath, to the agriculture, and all the slaves whom he may acquire, with the proceeds of the land and other property which he has declared he owned on Bahama islands; and in order to realize the said project in its due time, he humbly begs your excellency to be pleased to grant to him 1,200 acres of uncleared lands, situated west of the river Halifax, bounded north by lands granted to Mr. Farquhar Bethune, and south by lands also granted to Mr. Patrick Dean; and three thousand acres, or the complement of what he is to have according to the number of his family and slaves, north of the mouth of the river Tomoca, or where it is limited by the said river Halifax, bounded south by lands granted to Mrs. Russell Ormond, widow of James Ormond, running north, and concluding both sides of the Smith's road, until the point which will terminate the lands petitioned for; and says he conforms himself to what his Majesty may please to determine, as to the quantity allotted, and the conditions of the grant. The whole of which is a favor which he expects to receive from the known justice of your excellency.

JOHN RUSSELL.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, June 19, 1811.

DECREE.

Reserving to act on the petition of John Russell at the time he shall have imported the property he has sworn to, let the officers of the secretary's office, where the said petition will be kept in reserve until said period, inform the petitioner of the method adopted, and the conditions prescribed by this government in grants of a similar nature; and to the whole of which due attention will be paid with respect to the grants now in question.

ESTRADA.
QUINTANO.

I, Tomas de Aguilar, secretary pro tem. of this government, do certify that the preceding copy is faithfully drawn from the original, which remains in the secretary's office under my charge; and in conformity to the decree of his excellency, I deliver the present in St. Augustine, Florida, July 18, 1812.

TOMAS DE AGUILAR.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 28, 1812.

In consequence of these proceedings, and of the information of the comptroller of the treasury relating to the acquisition of the schooner proposed by John Russell to the government in exchange for vacant lands, it is hereby declared that the said Russell is lawfully and absolutely proprietor of 675 acres of land, to be in the vacant lands west of the river Halifax, bounded north by lands granted to Mr. Farquhar Bethune, and south by others also granted to Mr. Patrick Dean, according to the said number of 675 acres to the family which Russell now presents, at the rate of 50 acres to himself, and the same number to his wife, both being head of family, and 25 acres for every one of his five children and 18 slaves, according to the customary rule observed in granting lands, and a reserve will be made; but no grant will be given of 2,050 acres, which will be the complement for the one hundred slaves which he said he would import, which reserved lands will be granted in proportion to the number of hands he will import; said reserve will have the full force for the space of ten months after the conclusion of the present war between Great Britain and the United States of America, and in the case John Russell, in the specified time, had not imported more hands, then the government will be at liberty to dispose of said lands as they please. It is also hereby declared that John Russell is equally absolute proprietor of the 4,000 acres of land mentioned in my decree of the 16th instant, situated between the Matanzas and Tomoca rivers; and in case that, at the time the surveyor will go and survey them, the said number of acres will not be found, let it be completed in that uncleared tract called Twelve-miles swamp; and after ascertaining the measurements and boundaries, which cannot be known now, the title of property will be granted to John Russell, and, in the interim, the certificates he solicits will be to him as an equivalent of the titles in form. And he will receive said certificate from the witness and assistant, Don Juan de Entralgo and Don Bernardo José Segui, as the only notary of the government and province is very sick. Let this determination be made known to John Russell, in order that, in virtue thereof, he deliver the schooner to the officers of the royal domain, and with her, all her appurtenances, of which the treasury department will receive due notice; let it be understood that said schooner will henceforward be called the Barbarita, and will be manned by a captain, a pilot, a boatswain, and five sailors; let a consultation take place to determine the precise salary of every one of them; and let this be communicated to the officers of the royal treasury that they may carry it into effect.

[Here this part of the record contains irrelevant matter.]

PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

Mr. John Russell, a new settler of this province, respectfully represents to your excellency that, as he is entitled to 4,000 acres of land, situated between the rivers Matanzas and Tomoca, which the government thought fit to grant him in exchange for a schooner to him belonging; and also to 675 acres of land west of the river Halifax, corresponding with the number of persons composing his family, and which he manifested in his oath when he was admitted as a new settler, with the reserve that said grant would be increased after completing the introduction of his slaves; and as he wishes to have the two tracts surveyed, and as there is no surveyor general in this place to do it, he begs your excellency may be pleased to authorize to that effect Mr. William Lawrence, who is acquainted with that possession, and has performed the duties of it in the case of other persons. And the petitioner doubts not that he will receive this favor from the well-known justice of your excellency.

JOHN RUSSELL.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, February 29, 1813.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, March 1, 1813.

Let the comptroller's office inform on the subject.

KINDELAN.

INFORMATION.

St. AUGUSTINE, March 10, 1813.

In the decree of your excellency, dated July 28, 1812, it was ordered to give to John Russell a copy of the whole proceedings relating to the mentioned lands, in order that the said copy should serve him as an equivalent of the titles of property which would be given to him in due form as soon as the said lands could be surveyed, the measurement and boundaries being unknown at the said date. In the same decree it was ordered to keep in reserve, for the use of John Russell, until ten months after the conclusion of the present war between Great Britain and the United States of America, as much land as corresponded to the complement of 100 negroes, whom he declared he would import, after which period the government was to be at liberty to dispose of said lands in case that the petitioner should not then have brought a greater number of hands. Considering the above circumstance, and considering also that every time Russell would bring in more hands the survey should be repeated, it appears that, as the copy he has obtained is equivalent to the title itself, the want of which cannot be prejudicial to him, as in such a case the government should interfere in his behalf, it is proper to wait until the said epoch of ten months after the conclusion of the war between the mentioned powers, and then at once survey and assign the boundaries of such lands as the petitioner will be then entitled to; and let a copy of this and of the decree which will follow, be given to him, if he requires it, in order that he may at all times prove his desire to obtain the titles. But your excellency will determine, as you think proper, whether the survey ought to take place now or be delayed, so that the interested party be best satisfied, as the treasury department is deficient in the knowledge of these particulars.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

DECREE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 10, 1813.

Let it be done in conformity to the opinion of the comptroller. Therefore let the copy called for by the officer be drawn by Don Juan Entralgo and Don José Bernardo Segui, who, after having accepted the commission, and sworn to the fulfilment of it, will serve as witnesses and assistants in lieu of the notary; and all this being done, let it be annexed to the former proceedings, and delivered to the interested party.

PETITION.

To his excellency the governor:

Don José Mariano Hernandez, a planter of this province, in his capacity of attorney of Mrs. Maria Russell, widow and administratrix of Mr. John Russell, as it is proved by the power duly annexed, with due respect represents to your excellency that in the year 1812 the government admitted as a new settler of this province the said Russell, deceased. He brought to this place from the island of New Providence, as part of his property a schooner, which he proposed to convey to the treasury department in exchange for four thousand acres of land, and the title of property to such as were granted to him in proportion to the number of his family and slaves, in his quality of a new settler; and the government having acceded to the said proposition, as it is proved by the documents recorded in the secretary's office, he petitioned that the four thousand acres of land granted for the consideration of said schooner might be located and surveyed between the rivers Matanzas and Tomoca, which so essential a requisite did not take place for reasons detailed in said proceedings, in which the government offers to interfere in his behalf against any other claimant, in order that, in case a sufficient number of acres could not be found unlocated in the place aforesaid, he may be entitled to complete the same in the swamp called the Twelve-mile swamp. The said John Russell having taken sick and died in Fernandina, his widow met with many difficulties to import the remainder of the slaves whom she owned in New Providence, and lost by that the hope of obtaining more lands than those which were granted to them at the time of their emigration to this province, and, by the same reasons, was prevented from petitioning again for the location and survey of said lands; which location and survey are indispensable circumstances, although she considers herself as the absolute proprietor of said land, in virtue of the proceedings aforesaid. Therefore, she now petitions that the said location and survey may be carried into effect in the place designated by the surveyor, Don George Clarke, who is now in this city, and she begs your excellency to order in conformity to her petition, which act of justice she expects from the correct administration of your excellency. PETITION.

Mrs. Maria Russell, a new settler of this province, in the proceedings that have occurred before the tribunal of your excellency relating to 4,000 acres of land, granted as an equivalent of the vessel which my husband, deceased, sold to his Majesty for the public service of this place, which vessel was then called the Perseverance, and afterwards the Barbarita, and to 675 acres which are granted agreeably to the number of our family, and of the slaves whom we imported in this province, in the most proper form my right may require, which right was acknowledged by the act of this government, dated July 28, 1812, which comprehends the two grants aforesaid, appears before your excellency, in the person of my attorney, and say that, in consequence of my petition having been acceded to, as appears by said act, dated February 11, 1820, I took the necessary measures to ascertain the survey of the wooded lands to be found in the territory situated west of the river Halifax, bounded north by lands belonging to Mr. Farquhar Bethune, and south by lands belonging to Mr. Patrick Dean, where the 675 acres belonging to my family are to be located, and the 4,000 acres to be located from the head of the river Matanzas to the river Tomoca is more minutely explained in said act, dated July 28, 1812; but it appears that after the surveyor, Mr. George Clarke, had taken the points my deceased husband fixed upon, in conformity to the grants, that all times they may serve as the basis of the survey, which the superior decrees declare in the most ample manner ought to be favorably made in behalf of the grantee, I find that within the limits of the points alluded to, the government has granted four tracts, to wit: one of 800 acres to Mr. Isaac Wicks; one of 1,100 acres to Mr. P. Lynch; one of 500 acres to Mr. James Darley; and another of a smaller size to Mrs. Mariano Wicks. Therefore, in addition that these new grantees in no case whatever can or ought to prejudice my right, as their grants are subsequent to the conclusion of my contract with the government, and as my singular, extraordinary, and privileged requisition cannot have any relation, or meet with any competition with any of them, except that they ought to be ejected from their assumed points, I will offer to your excellency other short reflections, by which your excellency will see that in the case that I should wish to occupy the vacant lands they have left, my acquisition would be illusory, as said lands are of no value whatever, as it appears that these new grantees have located their grants on the only spots that would give a value to mine, which, without — or equivocation, is to consist of wooded lands, for which very reason the government, in case I should not find the complement of my lands in the wooded parts of it for the cultivation between the two rivers aforesaid, gave me the right of completing my said grant in the wood known by the name of Twelve-mile swamp, in order that my contract with the government might be fulfilled in all its parts. Neither the series of vicissitudes which have prevented to carry into effect the survey and fixing the boundaries, as it is indicated in various parts of the proceedings, can, it appears to me, intercept my rights to said wooded lands, and this is proved sufficiently, without adducing others, by the two particulars already exposed, which I consider as decisive, as they cannot be contested by the four new grantees; neither do I consider that against both exceptions the right sense of justice which distinguishes, your excellency can oppose a determination which may be contrary to the acts of your worthy predecessors: Therefore, with due reverence, I beg your excellency be pleased to acknowledge this my presentation, together with a draught, simple, but conformable to the original, which shows that the boundaries which correspond with my grant comprehend within them the possessions aforesaid, in order that, on consideration thereof, and of all that has been exposed, your excellency be pleased to order that the grantees aforesaid yield to my right; and in order to obtain this end, I hope that your excellency will have the goodness to order, with a view that the interested parties may have the shortest notice of it, that the secretary of this government do notify a certification of the royal order obtained in approbation of my said contracts, the whole of which appears to me agreeable to justice in general, and in particular to which distinguishes your administration; and I swear that I do not proceed from malice, &c. Moreover, in order to legalize my lawful representation as it ought to be, I beg your excellency be pleased to order the notary in this cause, who is the only one employed in this government, to annex to the proceedings a certificate of the substitution of power granted by Don José Mariano Hernandez, and also to acknowledge the presentation of the certificate of the will, which is duly annexed to it. PETITION.

St. AUGUSTINE, June 16, 1821.

Mr. James Russel, an inhabitant of this province, in his capacity of a lawful heir and executor of Mr. John Russell, deceased, in continuation of the proceedings, the object of which is to claim certain lands allotted to his father aforesaid, and in order to proceed in other particulars in the best legal form, appears before your excellency, and says that in order to produce a greater proof of what is asserted in the proceedings, although the survey of said lands have been prevented by a variety of circumstances which have been mentioned, still I can do it now with propriety, in observing, when I take possession, to draw a line north and south on the road which, west of this place, leads to the territory of Mosquito, stopping on the N. NW. to the S. SE., and remarking a pine tree north on the boundary line of Mr. Francis Pellicer, and another south on the boundary line of Mr. Ormond's land, from which two points, both marked B R, the lines had to run east in order to embrace Mr. John Russell's property: Therefore, I hope your excellency will be pleased to order the admission of such witnesses as I am ready to produce, who, under their legal oaths, will declare whether or no whatever I have related is certain, from which the spoliation of the grantee has suffered in his absence, will evidently appear, and in consideration of all which your excellency will be pleased — the restitution to be made in toto. Therefore, I supplicate your excellency to provide, in conformity to my petition, the issuing the titles of property which are wanting as a matter of form. I claim justice. know relating to the questions that will be put to him respecting the case, and the meaning of the representation which precedes, and said that, in the year 1813, he accompanied Mr. James Russell when he went with some of his slaves to take possession of the lands which this government had given him in consideration of the schooner Barbarita, and in his capacity of new settler, between the rivers Tomoca and Matanzas, in which place Russell himself designated the limits by marking some trees with letters which still exist, and affirmed that what he has said is the truth; that he is forty-five years old; that the law exceptions which have been made known to him do not affect him. DECLARATION.

In continuation appeared Don Francisco Pellicer, an inhabitant of this place, married, who, in the hands of the auditor, before me, the secretary, took his legal oath, promising to tell the truth in all what he might know relating to what he may be interrogated upon relating to the same business; said that he has seen the marks of letters which are found on two trees, one on the east and the other on the west; which two points embrace the wooded land, which is situated between the rivers Matanzas and Tomoca, where this government granted lands to the deceased, Mr. John Russell; which marks, as witness has been informed by his own children, were made by Mr. John Russell himself, as a mark of the limits and boundaries which were to enclose said granted lands; that this act of John Russell is of public notoriety, as well as his going personally with his slaves to do it. Witness says that what he has deposed is the truth; that he is 67 years of age; that the law exceptions do not affect him; and he signed his deposition. The auditor affixed his flourish; which I certify.

DECLARATION.

In continuation appeared Don José Mariano Hernandez, one of the members of the constitutional council of this place, who, before me, the secretary, took his legal oath, promising to tell the truth in all he might know, upon which he might be interrogated, relating to the representation of Mr. James Russell, and said that, on the wooded lands situated between the rivers Matanzas and Tomoca, he has seen some trees marked with initials, which operation he knows, from public notoriety, was made by the deceased Mr. John Russell at the same time he went with his slaves to mark the limits and take possession of the lands which he obtained from this government in exchange for a schooner which he sold to the revenue department, and of those lands which were awarded to him as a new settler. And witness has no doubt that the deceased John Russell aforesaid went on the mentioned lands with said intent, and that this happened immediately after he was declared the owner of said lands. And witness says, under his oath, that all this is the truth; that he is thirty-three years of age, and signed his deposition; and the auditor put his flourish; which I certify.

ACT.

St. AUGUSTINE, June 18, 1821.

Seeing the preceding, and Mr. James Russell having proved that he is a lawful son and heir of the deceased Mr. John Russell, and of the age of twenty-five years, he is hereby considered as a party in this, and as such can represent what he will think convenient on all and whatsoever rights belonging to his deceased father; the remuneration of Don José M. Hernandez as accepted, and the mentioned James Russell having sufficiently proved the spoliation of the land which the Treasury Department sold to the deceased in consideration for the schooner which was bought of him for the service of this place, and of the lands which were granted to him as a new settler, as appears in the proceedings entered into to that effect, and by which this process begins, as appears also in the documents he has presented, and the declarations taken of witnesses; first of all, let the possession which he claims be restored to him, with the reserve of the respective right which the actual possessors may consider themselves to hold in order that they make use of it should they think proper so to do; in virtue of which, in order that the restitution may be carried into effect, let Don Francisco José Fatio be commissioned for that special act, with all the faculties the law requires in consideration of the physical impossibility in which the auditor and the only notary of this province are of going personally to execute said act of restitution; which impossibility is occasioned not only by the great distance of said lands, but also because said officers cannot for a moment leave this capital in this critical epoch of the delivery thereof to the government of the United States: this most important event claiming all their attention, let the necessary orders be given to the said commissioner, in order that he may be assisted by witnesses; discharge the duties of said commission; of the result of which he will make his report.

Fernando de la Maza Arredondo vs. The United States. Claim for fifteen thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Fernando de la Maza Arredondo respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of fifteen thousand acres, situated on the west side of Lake George, in East Florida, bounded and beginning at a palm tree marked +, on the margin of Lake George; thence south 65° west, 400 chains, to a pine; thence north 25° west, 400 chains; thence north 65° east, 400 chains, to a palm tree on the banks of said lake; thence along the meanders of said lake to the beginning; which tract was surveyed by Andres Burgevin August 5, 1819; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to him August 9, 1819, by Governor Copinger, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, a concession of which was made to memorialist March 24, 1817, as will be seen by a certified copy of royal title herewith submitted. And your memorialist further showeth that he is legally in possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of Spain and resident of Cuba. All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. M. ARREDONDO.

[Translation.]

Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, inhabitant of St. Augustine, and actually residing in the city of Havana, through his son, of the same name, residing in this place, to your excellency showeth: That he has the honor of having served his Majesty in different employments and destinations, and particularly in the department of commissary of the Indians, without any salary or any other emolument whatever, for more than twenty years, having discharged the duties of that office with the utmost exactitude to the satisfaction of all the governors of this place, contributing thereby to the peace and harmony which existed with those savages; with which commission, and that of comptroller pro tem. of the royal military hospital of this town, which he likewise discharged for many years without any salary or emolument, which meritorious services have saved to the royal revenue many thousands of dollars, as is well known to your excellency and to the public authorities of this place. Latterly, after obtaining a discharge from the different employments, he separated himself from the service of his Majesty to attend to the discharge of his duty towards his family; he engaged himself in the fatiguing service of patrols and aid-de-camp to the Governor de Estrada, in consequence of the invasion of this province in the year 1812, and for want of officers for that service, in which he was occupied until the year 1813, when, having been elected by a majority of votes, with all the necessary solemnities on the occasion, elector of the parish and district of this said province, he was obliged to go to the city of Havana and remain there as one of the deputies of the provincial junta. To discharge the said duty he was under the necessity, as a loyal subject, to expend large sums, which he willingly did in the service of his King and country, being well persuaded that he would be rewarded for it at a future period. He has been informed that the royal order of his Majesty of March 29, 1815, directs that a remuneration of grants of land be given to all the individuals who were armed in the defence of their country during the insurrection which began in 1812; and as the petitioner is one of them, and is entitled for this reason to said gifts, as also being one of the oldest settlers and having augmented his family and negroes ever since the cession of this province to his Majesty, and one of those whom the royal ordinances and laws recommend that they may be attended to, both in quality of first settlers as also on account of his distinguished services, that he be preferred in the partition of lands; he therefore prays your excellency will be pleased to grant him, in absolute property, thirty thousand acres of land, that is to say, 15,000 acres to the southwest of the large lagoon known by the name of Lake George, which survey may be made that a creek of sweet water situated in that place may occupy the centre of the front thereof, and the remaining 15,000 on the west side of St. John's river; the measurement of which to commence from the old Indian Chacichalty path, opposite the site on which the firm of Panton & Leslie had their store established, known by the name of Upper Store, being at the south side of the great lagoon by the name of Lake George, and thence in a line to run southerly until it completes the number of acres. And as the actual circumstances of the province do not permit at present the measurement and chaining of said lands, and, at the same time, as the survey could not take place for want of surveyors, as Don George Clarke, named by this government, has other occupations which give him no time to attend to it, he therefore hopes, from the justice of your excellency, that you will be pleased to suspend the acknowledgment of the titles of the property whilst the memorialist does not obtain the plats of said lands, in order that their situation and limits may be specified with exactness for perfecting the location and situation of the same. In the meantime the grant which your lordship may think fit to make him may serve as a title under your decree in continuation, for it is the wish of the memorialist that, when the same be given him, it may have all the requisites necessary; a favor which he hopes to receive from the justice of your excellency. St. Augustine, Florida, March 1, 1817.

FERNANDO DE LA MAZA ARREDONDO.

St. AUGUSTINE, March 24, 1817.

In attention to the services which this party specifies, which are manifest and notorious, and making use of the power conferred on me by the laws and the royal will, I administer to Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, the senior, the thirty thousand acres of land he solicits, in absolute property, in the places he has designated, without prejudice to a third person, of which titles of dominion will be given as soon as the plats to be made by the surveyor be presented, saving, in the meantime, this decree, and an equivalent in all its parts; which, with the foregoing petition, will be filed in the archives of the notary of government.

and royal finance. The interested will be furnished with a certified copy of the proceedings, properly authenticated and in due form, in order that this concession may be duly credited, and that he may be able to make use of said lands, and to dispose of them as he may think proper.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that the claimant obtained a concession, without condition, for thirty thousand acres of land from Governor Coppering, dated March 24, 1817, the fifteen thousand acres being included in said concession, and its location set forth in claimant's memorial to this board. In consideration whereof, we recommend the same to Congress for confirmation. June 5, 1824.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Juan de Entralgo respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of four thousand acres, situated on Black creek, and is bounded on the south by Governor's creek; first line runs south 45° west, 170 chains, to a pine tree marked thus ≡; thence south 45° east, 250 chains, to a cypress tree marked =; which title your memorialist derives from a royal grant made to F. M. Arredondo by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who sold the same to your memorialist; a copy of the said grant is herewith filed, as is the deed from Arredondo to your memorialist. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he resided in St. Augustine at the change of flags, and now in Cuba.

CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., an inhabitant of this city, do declare that I really sell to Don Juan de Entralgo, notary of government and the public domain in this city, four thousand acres of land, which I hold as my property in this province, situated to the west of the river St. John's, on a creek known in English as Black creek, and having for a boundary another creek named the Governor, known under the following dimensions: the first line runs south 45° west, measures 170 chains, and ends with a pine tree marked ≡; the second runs south 45° east, measures 250 chains, and ends in a cypress marked =; which 4,000 acres of land, with another portion more, this government granted me in absolute property and dominion, as a reward for services, on March 20, 1817, and for which a full title was given me on the 9th of August last, as appears in the archives of the said notary. And I sell the said 4,000 acres of land under the dimensions and other things which are explained, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has and belong to it, free of all encumbrance, at the price of four thousand dollars, which the purchaser has paid me in ready money; which sum I acknowledge as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, exception to money not counted, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a formal receipt. In virtue of which I separate myself from the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and all other rights, real and personal, which I had or held to the said 4,000 acres of land; and I cede, renounce, and transfer them to the said Don Juan de Entralgo, and to whoever shall represent his right, that, as their own, they may possess, sell, and alienate it at their will, in virtue of this writing, which I give in their favor as a mark of real delivery, by which it is seen that he has acquired possession without occasion for other proof, from which I release him. And I bind myself to the eviction and guarantee of this sale in sufficient form, and as may be best, in favor of the purchaser, with my property, present and future, power and submission to the tribunals of his Majesty, that they may force me to compliance with it as by sentence confessed and passed in authority of an adjudged case; on which I renounce all laws, customs, rights, and privileges in my favor, and formal exception which prohibit it. And I, the said Juan de Entralgo, being present, accept in my favor this writing, and by it receive, as purchased, the said 4,000 acres of land, at the price and agreement upon which they were sold to me; and I acknowledge them as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen or received, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a formal receipt. In testimony of which, this is dated at St. Augustine, Florida, January 5, 1821.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John Forbes respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of seven thousand acres, situated on Little St. Mary's, and bounded as follows: first line commencing at a pine tree near Spell's swamp, running north 10° west, 246 chains, to a pine; thence south 80° west, 286 chains, to a pine; thence south 10° west, 246 chains, to a pine; thence north 80° , 286 chains, to the beginning, and containing within the said boundaries seven thousand acres, as appears by a survey made by George J. F. Clarke, and a plat of which is herewith filed, marked B; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to himself by Governor Kindelan on July 28, 1814, (see document marked A, filed herewith.) And your memorialist further sheweth that the said tract of land was surveyed by George J. F. Clarke, above named, on October 23, 1816, as will appear by the paper marked B. Your memorialist further sheweth that he is in possession of said lands, and that at the change of flags he was a Spanish subject and resident of Cuba.

[Translation.]

MEMORIAL.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR: I, Don Juan Forbes, partner of the house of Juan Forbes & Co., successors of Panton, Leslie & Co., merchants of this province, before your excellency, with due respect, appear and say that the aforesaid house of Panton, Leslie & Co. obtained in the year past, of 1799, a concession of fifteen thousand acres of royal lands in the district of St. John's, to employ their negroes in agriculture and pasture their cattle, as appears by the annexed certificate; but at the end of a very little time it was found necessary to abandon them, from their being of an inferior quality, having experienced what commonly happens in this province where the farmer does not succeed in his choice until sad experience; and as it has been seen by many precedents that the government, attending to similar misfortunes, and the injuries and expenses which have been incurred, has had the goodness to allow that they should select lands belonging to the King, always giving up the former concession. Finding myself in this case, and desirous to establish a plantation of rice, which up to this time we find ourselves obliged to bring from abroad, I make from now a surrender of the said fifteen thousand acres of land in favor of his Majesty, (whom God preserve,) praying that you will be pleased to allow it, and, in its place, grant me an equivalent in the district of Nassau river. In virtue of which, he prays your excellency to be pleased to command that the formal surrender which I make shall be allowed, and that, in consequence, there be granted to me ten thousand acres in the said district of the river Nassau, the survey of which I shall present as soon as the province becomes tranquil, and gives an opportunity to effect it; which I will receive as a favor, &c.

JUAN FORBES.

DECREE.

Let the report be made from the comptroller's office.

KINDELAN.

REPORT.

As in this province lands are given gratis, the comptroller's office has not taken cognizance of their distribution, nor to whom; for which reason it is ignorant of the grants and of the lands remaining vacant, and therefore cannot say anything respecting the particular which it is ordered to report. Nevertheless, it appears that the culture of rice crops is useful, for which, according to the statement of the interested, the lands are not fit which were granted to him on August 7, 1799, with the expression of for pasture, as the accompanying certificate shows, given by the former secretary of the government, Don Juan de Pierra. St. Augustine, Florida, July 27, 1814.

MANUEL LOPEZ.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, July 28, 1814.

Let this interested party be allowed the formal cession which he makes of the fifteen thousand acres of land which the document accompanying this memorial comprises, and, in their place, let there be granted him, without injury to a third person, the ten thousand acres for the purposes which he solicits in the district or margin of the river Nassau; and in consequence, let the correspondent certificate be issued to him from the secretary's office, that it may serve him for a title in form. Sarah Fish vs. The United States. For ten thousand acres of land, Anastasia island.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the board of commissioners appointed by Congress to try the validity of titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of the subscriber respectfully sheweth—

1. That your memorialist claims title to the island lying in front (i. e., to the east) of the city of St. Augustine, and running south above 18 miles, more or less, along the east bank of the river Matanzas, known by the name of the Island of St. Anastatia, supposed to contain ten thousand acres, as belonging to the deceased husband, Jesse Fish, sr., in the year 1763.

2. That in the year 1792 this island was sold at public sale by order of the Spanish governor, Quesada, when her son, the late Jesse Fish, jr., deceased, became the purchaser.

3. That the Spanish governor, Quesada, or his deputy, Morales, from the indisposition of Governor Quesada, with the advice of the King's attorney, Ortega, did then reserve a certain part of the quarry existing in said island; which reservation was made for the sake of the stone only, for the purpose of keeping in repair the King's fortification and other public buildings. The part so reserved has always been known by the name of the King's quarry, and begins at what is called the King's road to the south, and as far as a small distance to the north of the light-house; east and west no further than where the quarry ends, as appears by stakes, and (if not taken away) were planted at the delivery.

All the above explanation will appear by the annexed voucher's delivery of said island, with witness, and Spanish custom, and receipt from the treasurer for the money.

St. AUGUSTINE, August 31, 1823.

[Translation.]

FLORIDA, 1794.

Don José Fish, soliciting from the government that the ten thousand acres of land should be granted to him which his deceased father of the same name possessed at the plantation named the Orange Grove, which was sold at public auction.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, December 2, 1796.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: Don Jesse Fish, native and resident of this city, presents himself to your excellency with the most profound respect; states that, at the public auction which was made of the property of his deceased father for the payment of his creditors, the memorialist purchased the place called the Orange Grove at $1,700, which sum he only gave with a view to the fruit trees of said place and the wood which is on the land belonging to it, as the land is entirely useless for planting; that he has observed that several residents are cutting the said wood, and therefore he humbly prays your excellency to be pleased to declare him owner of the lands which his said father possessed, annexed to said place of the Orange Grove, which, according to the deeds granted in the time of the British possession, amounted to ten thousand acres, according to what Don John Leslie and Don Manuel Solana can declare, it being well known to them, from their having been here at that time, whether it may be as a new settler of this province or by the right which his deceased father had to them. Since, if your memorialist does not obtain this favor from your excellency, he will consider himself as at the greatest loss of the part of his purchase, because the lands will not produce crops of any kind, and a great number of the fruit are dried, which is likely to occur to the remainder of them. A favor which he does not doubt to enjoy from the justice of your excellency.

JESSE FISH.

Let his honor, the assessor general, consult with me. Thus it is decreed and ordered by Señor Don Juan Nepomuceno de Quesada, brigadier of the infantry of the royal armies, governor, commander-in-chief, vice legal patron and sub-delegate of the royal domain of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, for his Majesty, who signed it December 15, 1794; which I attest.

QUESADA.

Before me—

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

On the same day this was made known to Don Jesse Fish; which I attest.

ZUBIZARETTA, Notary.

I have seen this memorial of Don Jesse Fish, and if it directed itself to the setting forth that he would prevent other persons from cutting wood on his lands, or to recover them according to the titles of his property and the injuries which it had caused or might have caused him, I would consult on the interlocutory decree with your excellency, according to law; but this memorial ending in making out for Fish the boundaries of the lands which his father possessed at the time of the British dominion, which he desires should be granted to him to the same number of acres which he sets forth as annexed to the Orange Grove, which he purchased at public auction held of the property left by the decease of his said father—the said sale, as the present notary states, and setting forth the boundaries of those which this party purchased when he did the Orange Grove, it remains with your excellency to assign him these which he asked for as a new settler, to which the possession of his father, alleged by him, gives him sound right of preference, and the more if he proves it, or to distribute to him these which your excellency thinks proper, and which may be without injury to another possession; with which hearing in the case it ought to be determined judicially. This is my opinion, which I sign in St. Augustine, Florida, December 15, 1794.

LICENTIATE JOSEF DE ORTEGA.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, December 15, 1794.

In conformity with the foregoing opinion, let the interested make the proof which announces before the present notary, to whom it is committed, and in sight of it the matter on which it treats shall be decreed upon; for which purpose let the proceedings be brought forward.

On the same day, month and year the foregoing decree was made known to Don José Fish; which I attest.

ZUBIZARETTA, Notary.

In the city of St. Augustine, Florida, September 22, 1795, before me, the notary, Don Jesse Fish presented as a witness for the proof which he was ordered to give, Don John Leslie, resident, &c., and merchant of this said city, from whom, in conformity with the commission which was conferred upon me, I received the oath which he made in all form of law, under which he promised to tell the truth, to the best of his knowledge, in what should be asked him, and it being done so in consequence of the aforesaid petition presented by the said Fish; that as the person who declares was one of those who, in the time of the British government, valued the lands, houses, and lots which Don José Fish, deceased, had in his possession, and amongst them was the plantation named the Orange Grove, which his son of the same name now claims; which he possessed with lawful titles given in the time of the former Spanish government, and it is known to him that he had the ten thousand acres of land, a little more or less, according to the knowledge and belief of the deponent, in possession of which he remained peacefully while the British government held this province; and answers that what he has said is the truth, by virtue of the oath which he has taken; that he is over twenty-five years of age, and signed this; which I attest.

JOHN LESLIE.

Before me— .

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

In the city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 10, 1795, the said Don José Fish presented as a witness Don Lorenzo Llanes, resident of this said city, and a native of it, from whom I, the notary, received the oath which he made by God and the Holy Cross, according to law, under which he promised to say the truth in what he knew and should be asked of him; and it being done so in consequence of the foregoing petition, he said that, as a native, which he is, of this city, having lived in it both during the time of the old Spaniards as well as the greater part of that in which this province was governed by the British arms, he is certain of having always seen the deceased Don Jesse Fish, the father of the memorialist, in possession of the Orange Grove, which, a little more or less, contains the ten thousand acres of land which is stated, which it is also well known to him he possessed, with lawful titles from the old Spanish government; and he answers that this is the truth under his oath; that he is of the age of forty-five years, and signed this; which I attest.

LORENZO LLANES.

Before me—

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

In the city of St. Augustine, Florida, in the same day, month and year, he presented as a witness Don Manuel Solana, native and resident of this said city, from whom I, the notary, received the oath which he made by God and the Holy Cross, according to law, under which he promised to tell the truth, to the best of his knowledge, in what should be asked him, and being so as to the tenor of what the foregoing petition presented by Don José Fish contained, said that, as a native and resident of this said city, in which he has always resided, he is certain that Don Jesse Fish, the person who brings him forward, has possessed in the island called St. Anastasia the plantation called the Orange Grove, in which he lived since the — of the old Spaniards until they returned to take possession of this province in the year 1784, and since that until 1790 or 1791, when he died, and was buried on the same plantation; and from what the deponent has heard of the result of the survey and valuation, which was generally made before the English had delivered this province to the Spaniards, of the real property of the said Fish, he knows that, at the said plantation, he possessed the ten thousand acres of land, and the deponent corroborates it, a title more or less, from what he has seen on the many occasions when he was at the said plantation, and he answers that this is the truth by virtue of his oath; that he is of the age of forty-six years, and he adds, that he recollects that at the time of the old Spaniards the deponent went with the notary, Don José de Leen, by command of the government, to separate the King's quarries on the said island, in order to grant the remainder of it to Don José Fish, who solicited it after it was actually granted to him, after having made said separation; that, after the Spaniards returned to take possession of the province, by the treaty of peace with the English, who rented it about twenty years, and the second year of possession the government commissioned him, that, with the engineer, Don Manuel de la Roque, and two other workmen, they should designate the old quarries, which they actually did, and they set up four stakes to mark out the lands of the King on the said island, and Fish remained owner of the remainder as he had been; until then he did not sign it, as he said he did not know how to write; which I attest.

Before me—

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, February 12, 1795.

The foregoing proof being completed, and in order to the making a decree, now fully, let the whole be submitted to the collector of the royal treasury, that, as fiscal of it, he may represent as convenient in the discharge of his functions; and, with what he may say, let it be brought forward.

QUESADA.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, February 27, 1795.

The collector of the army and the royal domain, as fiscal of it, in the proceedings moved by Don Joseph Fish, on which he was declared owner of the lands which his father possessed annexed to the situation called the Orange Grove, which he bought at auction, and according to the decree of your excellency of the 12th of the present month, in which your excellency was pleased to order that they should be submitted to him, states that, at the sale which was made of the said place, the Orange Grove, to Don Joseph Fish, son of the deceased of the same name, the boundaries of the land were not taken into consideration, and only the valuation of the trees within the precincts of the said grove, without noticing the 10,000 acres of land annexed to it, according to the report of the notary of government and the royal domain, the fiscal minister is of opinion that, although Fish proves by the proofs he has given in that his father possessed, in the time of the British and Spanish government, all that land, he ought to have a right to nothing more than what he proves by the inventory, valuation, and sale which was made of the said Orange Grove; that this land being laid off, the remainder up to the 10,000 acres of land ought to be sold as belonging to his deceased father, and for the benefit of the creditors of his estate, said Fish getting the preference for as much as another would give; that, for the better proof and elucidation of this proceeding, it seems fit to the minister your excellency should be pleased to order that there be annexed to the testimony the inventory, valuation, and sale of the said Orange Grove, which was sold by auction to Fish at the sum of $1,605; and in case that Don Joseph Fish has occasion for public lands, without injury to a third person, the fiscal minister does not find any objection that your excellency should grant them to him as a new settler, according to what his Majesty has commanded of this particular; which is all that offers itself to me for your excellency's information, who will please to determine as appears most just.

GONZALO ZAMORANO.

Let the testimonial which is indicated be placed in continuation, and with it those proceedings returned to the assessor general, that he may consult with me as to what is proper as respects the other points to which the foregoing fiscal representation refers. It is thus decreed and ordered by Señor Don Juan Nepomuceno de Quesada, brigadier of infantry of the royal armies, governor, commander-in-chief, vice royal patron, sub-delegate of the royal domain of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, for his Majes'y, which he signed March 6, 1795; which I attest.

COMMISSION.

Don Juan Nepomuceno de Quesada, colonel of the royal armies, governor, and commander-in-chief of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, for his Majesty:

Whereas, in the proceedings which took place in this tribunal, arising from the recovery of the estate which remained by the decease of Don José Fish, resident that was of this city, for the payment of his debts, on which the proceedings being opened, several creditors appeared on the memorial of the defender appointed for said estate, Don Fernando Arredondo, I have granted permission that there should be valued and sold at public auction the lands which result in the said proceedings to be the property of Fish, to avoid the deterioration some of them were about to experience, and which would ultimately result to the injury of the creditors, and according to what was resolved in the decree of the 15th of December last, with the houses and lots of the same. Wherefore, according to what has been decreed by me under date of the 16th instant, I have appointed, and do appoint, as said valuators, men skilled in such business, Don Manuel Solana and Don Roque Leonardi, the former of the justice of the peace, and the latter ensign of the local militia of it; that, taking into consideration the boundaries, and whatever else appears on said proceedings, which extract will be placed in continuation, and in presence of the said defender of the estate of Don Vincente Mexias, Don Francisco Revira, as witnesses present, commissioned by the government for want of a notary, let them pass to said places, with proper justice and integrity; for which purpose let the said valuators previously appear before this government, and then proceed, and then begin the commission in the following form:

9th item. The place called the Orange Grove, which belongs to the deceased, although the title under which he enjoyed it does not appear in the proceedings; and, when concluded, let it be returned, with their account of what has been done, to this government, to proceed further, as they may think proper. St. Augustine, January 18, 1792.

In the city of St. Augustine, Florida, January 31, 1792: I, the governor, with the assistance of the collector of the royal revenue, and defender of the estate of the deceased British subject, Don José Fish, and the assistant witnesses, by whom, when it was despatched, for want of a notary, according to what is provided in the decree of said month and year, for the auction and sale of said estate, which remained to be sold at the sound of a drum and by the voice of the free negro Francisco Blasco, who performed the duty of a crier; having called together a sufficient portion of the people, he began in a loud and distinct voice to declare the sale to the best bidder, from eleven in the morning of the said day, stating that it was to be sold without reserve; and several bids and outbids having been made by the meeting, and called for by the crier, without more having been offered, which being finished, the auction, the hour having arrived which was pointed out, was concluded in favor of the individuals, and for the prices which follow: to Don José Fish the Orange Grove was laid off, which answers to number nine of the commission, for the sum of 1,605 hard dollars; and there being no person who would offer a larger sum than the foregoing, the hour pointed out being finished, it was ordered that they should be bid off in favor of the aforesaid, interposing therein my authority and judicial decree, as I can, and of right ought to do, in virtue of which he was declared the purchaser; and there signed with me the collector of the royal domain, and defender of the estate, and the assistant witnesses, for want of a notary.

This is conformable to the commission, ninth clause of it, sixth of the valuation, and that of the auction, which originated from the proceedings of the meetings of creditors caused by the death of the Englishman Don José Fish, which remain in the archives in my charge, to which I refer. And in obedience to orders I have caused the present copy, which I sign and seal in St. Augustine, Florida, March 12, 1795.

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

Having been seen, it was passed over to Don José Fish, and was thus ordered and decreed by Señor Don Juan Nepomuceno de Quesada, brigadier of the infantry of the royal armies, governor, vice royal patron and sub-delegate of the royal domain of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, for his Majesty, who signed it, with the opinion of his honor the assessor general, March 26, 1795; which I attest.

On the same day, month and year, the foregoing decree was notified to Don José Fish; which I attest.
ZUBIZARETTA, Notary.

On the same day it was communicated to Señor Don Gonzalo Zamorano, collector of the royal revenue; which I attest.

ZUBIZARETTA, Notary.

Don José Fish, a new settler in this province and a subject of his Majesty, in consequence of the proceedings which I am following up, in order to have granted to me the ten thousand acres of land which my deceased father, of the same name, possessed, at the place named the Orange Grove, which was sold at the public auction which was held of all his property left at his decease, before your excellency, in the manner most conformable with law, through the medium of the public solicitor, appears and says that said proceedings shall be delivered to me, to answer the copy which was given me of the representation of the fiscal, informed of the contents of which, and also of the subsequent proceedings of the valuation and auction of the said Orange Grove, the said señor fiscal not giving a solid and convincing reason that his opinion should take effect, contrary to my right and just pretension. And whereas I have sufficiently confirmed it by the proof which I have adduced, proving by it the ancient possession which my father had of said grove, the same for which I have always been anxious, and on which account I have given the excessive price, which the proceedings at auction, copied in the judicial proceedings, show, which sum I would on no account have given for the trees alone, which have been valued much less for the lands which these occupy, in virtue of which, I, submitting to the consideration of your excellency, that I have not enjoyed the least valuable article of the many which my said father left, as even by the possession to which I aspire I injure my interest, giving more for it than it lawfully is worth, solely impelled by the great love I have for that place, in which I have not only been born, but also brought up and educated—the ancient residence of my dear parents and beloved sisters, who are actually under my protection and charge, without any other help to protect them, which I also do for my dear mother, although with very limited means, which can only be obtained from the few trees which have been sold at auction, and to which space only the fiscal pretends to restrict me: Wherefore, and hoping that whatever else may be said in my favor will be taken into consideration, as I cannot express myself properly, from the little knowledge I have in those matters, and for want of directors in them, I ask and pray your excellency to be pleased to grant me the said island as I have solicited; which favor I hope for from the justice of your excellency, swearing that I do not proceed from malice, and what is necessary, &c.

Furthermore, to prove the little value and estimation which the place I claim and bought had, and also my intentions, and that I had given such a large sum, not alone for the trees, but for the land which I have solicited, I pray your excellency to be pleased to order that the present notary place in continuation a copy of the deed which he presented, asking for the island for a valuation, which are united to the principal proceedings of the meeting of the creditors of the estate of my deceased father, and that he may so certify at foot, as, although before it was brought to public sale and auction, there was nothing offered, that all may produce the corresponding effects. I demand justice as above.

JOSE FISH.

BARTOLOME DE CASTRO Y FERRER.

The copy which is solicited in the note being placed in continuation, let the whole be passed over to the fiscal representation. It is thus decreed and ordered by Señor Don José de Ortega, advocate of the royal council, lieutenant governor, auditor of war, and assessor general of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, for his Majesty, who signed it in consequence of the illness of the governor and commander-in-chief April 17, 1795; which I attest.

REPRESENTATION.

FLORIDA, March 22, 1792.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: Don José Fish, with the greatest respect, states to your excellency that, at the auction which was yesterday made of the property of my deceased father, there was no person who would bid for the island of the Orange Grove; and that being the place which his father inhabited during his life, the possession of it would be the greatest satisfaction to your memorialist, obliging himself to deliver for it $1,605 in government money, in consideration of which, and the said island being abandoned, losing much of its value every day, he prays your excellency to have the goodness to order that he be placed in possession of it. A favor which he hopes for from the benevolence of your excellency.

JESSE FISH.

This is conformable to the original, which is in folio 135 of the proceedings of the meeting of the creditors of the deceased Don José Fish, to which I refer, certifying, as I do certify, that, at the auction which was made March 21, 1792, which runs to leaves one hundred and twenty-nine of the said proceedings, it does not appear that the Orange Grove was brought forward to public outcry and auction; but, from the various memorials which were presented since said auction, soliciting the purchase of some lands, and the plea of the defender of the estate of the said Fish, which runs up to leaves one hundred and forty-two, it is evident that said lands of the Orange Grove had no bidder at that sale at auction. And in conformity with orders I sign and seal these presents in St. Augustine, Florida, April 20, 1795.

JOSE DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, May 4, 1795.

The first officer of the chief comptroller's department of the army, who performs the duties thereof from the occupation of the collector, who is charged with the administration and judicature of the royal revenue, from the illness of his excellency the governor, and as attorney fiscal of the royal revenue, in proceedings moved by Don Joseph Fish, in order that he should be declared owner of the lands which his father, of the same name, possessed, annexed to the situation called the Orange Grove, which was sold at auction, and in consequence of the preceding decree of the 17th of the month before, in which orders were given that he should examine them, states that, by the copy annexed to this proceeding, it is proved that Don Manuel Solana and Don Roque Leonardi were named as appraisers; that, taking into consideration the boundaries which appear in the testamentary proceedings of the deceased Don Joseph Fish, that possession which belonged to him was valued in presence of the defender of the estate, Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, of Don Vincente Mexias, and Don Francis Revira, as assistant witnesses, for want of a notary; that, in consequence of this, the said appraisers proceeded only to the valuation of the trees of the said Orange Grove, which amounted to $2,180, without ascertaining boundaries, nor the number of acres of land which these valued trees occupy, much less made mention of ten thousand acres of land as belonging to the estate of the deceased Don Joseph Fish. But what does not admit of doubt is that, in virtue of that valuation of trees, the sale of them at auction was proceeded to, and was made to Don Joseph Fish, son of the deceased of the same name, for the sum of $1,605, a little more than two-thirds of said valuation; and consequently the reason of the fiscal attorney, in his opinion of the 27th February last, is well founded, in considering Don Joseph Fish as owner only of the land and trees which the said valuation occupy, which is what was lawfully sold at auction, because until then nothing appeared of the number of acres of which the said Orange Grove consisted—a defect, in truth, very easy to be remedied by the appraisers, since, it having been promised to them that they should lay off the land, they should have done it with the particular designation of the land which properly belonged to the deceased Fish, from which defect this new appeal arises. Under these circumstances, the fiscal attorney thinks that, in virtue of the proof which Fish has made in these proceedings, he proves that the land or site named the Orange Grove consisted of ten thousand acres of land, and that his intention was, when he bought it, without doubt, under the impression that the ten thousand acres of land which his said father enjoyed would be included in said sale, because, separating the land occupied by the fruit trees which were valued, the remainder is not fit for planting, and as respects the defect, (a negligence of the appraisers, Don Manuel Solana and Don Roque Leonardi, in laying off the boundaries of said —,) he considers that it ought not to prejudice the right which favors Don Joseph Fish. From all these reflections, to which this proceeding gives rise, the fiscal attorney concludes, and it appears to him that your excellency may order, that the boundaries be marked which correspond to the Orange Grove, to the number of ten thousand acres of land, which he proved belonged to his father, and are annexed to the said Orange Grove; or your excellency will determine what you may think most proper, and with your usual justice.

JOSE ANTONIO DE YGUINEZ.

Having examined the proceedings, it was thus decreed and ordered by Señor Don Bartolome Morales, colonel of the infantry of the royal armies, commandant of the third battalion of Cuba, which garrisons this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and political and military governor of it and its province, from the indisposition of the governor, who signed it May 16, 1795; which I attest.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, June 17, 1795.

Don Rafael Saavedra de Espinosa, attorney general of this city, and defender of the estate of the deceased Don José Fish, who was a resident of this city, and in consequence of the proceedings commenced by Don José Fish, son of the aforesaid deceased, appear before your excellency, and, in the manner most conformable to law, state that I have examined, with all the attention my little capacity allows me, what the son of the said Fish sets forth in favor of his right; and I find that up to this time he proceeded inadvertently to the time when he purchased the place called the Orange Grove at auction, since he ought at that time to have shown clearly and distinctly to what his petition referred; notwithstanding which he now endeavors to remedy his inadvertency by the proof which he has adduced in said proceeding. For all which reasons, and agreeing with the well-founded exposition of the first officer of the royal comptroller's office, Don José Antonio de Yguinez, who performs the functions of his honor the fiscal attorney, which exposition is in folio 47, on which reference is made to the want of precaution with which the appraisers, Don Manual Solana and Don Roque Leonardi, proceeded, who ought to have shown at that time the boundaries which that land had, by advertizing to which they would not only have given full effect to their commission, but also obviated the present litigation; and consequently it would have operated with entire effect in the present case, and without waiting for the injury done both the estate and the mover of these proceedings, for which reasons it appears to me that your excellency may grant to Don José Fish the ten thousand acres of land which his deceased father of the same name possessed; and especially your excellency will decree according to what is every day exhibited in your judicial decrees, this being all I have to say as defender of said estate, in compliance with the discharge of my duty.

RAFAEL SAAVEDRA DE ESPINOSA.

Having examined those proceedings, and seen the proof adduced in them by Don José Fish, it appears not only his father, of the same name, possessed, since the time of the old Spaniards, and in that of the British dominion, the ten thousand acres of land, possession of which he claims at the place called the Orange Grove, which he purchased at public auction, but also that he made a bid for the said land, under which his purchase ought to be understood, which defect in not explaining it thus, at that time, should not be prejudicial to him, and has given cause to this litigation. His excellency said that declaring it, as he declared now, he ordered, in consequence, that whether by the right which the burdensome acquisition of the said land gives Fish, which cost him $1,605, which it appears he paid for the purchase of the Orange Grove, or by the right which the ancient possession of his father gives him to the said ten thousand acres of land; or, finally, in consequence of the petition of Fish, that they should be granted to him as a new settler, he be placed in possession of the said land, which it appears his said father possessed, and is already laid off, with the reserve of the quarries, and the remainder which was not granted to his said father, and which the King has reserved, renewing, in case of necessity, at the cost of the interested, the boundaries by said appraisers, Don Manuel Solano, who, at the time of the old Spaniards, and at the new possession by them of the province laid off by order of the governor, the aforesaid quarries, to give possession, as is proven, to the father of the memorialist of the land which he claims, and let them be granted to him on the terms above set forth, the present notary, who is commissioned for the purpose, when with the said appraiser, and any other workman that may be necessary, he shall assist at marking the boundary, at which also shall assist, to represent the royal treasury, the person whom the minister of the royal domain may depute for the purpose. All of which shall be made appear on the proceedings with which, and the taxation of the costs, which the interested shall satisfy, this proceeding shall be held as concluded. It was thus decreed and ordered by Señor Don Bartolome Morales, colonel of infantry of the royal armies, commandant of the third battalion of Cuba, which garrisons this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and political and military governor, who signed this, with the opinion of his honor the assessor general, June 19, 1795; which I attest.

PROOF OF BOUNDARY AND POSSESSION.

Being at the plantation called the Orange Grove, in the island of St. Anastasia, July 10, 1795, in conformity with what is provided in the foregoing decree, we proceeded to the marking the boundaries of the land comprised in these proceedings. Don Manuel Solano, the appraiser appointed for the purpose, passing from said place to where the quarries of the King and of individuals are situated, who, passing along the ancient boundaries with Don José Lorente, chief master of the royal works, who accompanied him, to inform himself; Don Tadeo Arribas, officer of the royal comptroller's office, from the employment of the collector, for his fiscal cognizance, and I, the present notary, went, fixing up stakes, to point out said boundaries, across the island, and separated the said quarries, saying that all besides them was what corresponded to Don José Fish; to whom, being also present, I, the said notary, in discharge of the commission which was conferred upon me, put him in possession of the land pointed out, leading him into it by the hand, and riding together on horseback by various places, until arriving at the dwelling-house; all of which I did as a token of said possession, which he took quietly, peaceably, and without contradiction. In testimony of which, and for the due proof, I have extended the present proceedings, which all signed, with the exception of Solano, who said he did not know how; and all of which I attest.

[Translation.]

Having seen that of the justification set forth in these proceedings by Don Joseph Fish, it not only appears that his father, of the same name, possessed since the time of the old Spaniards, and during the British dominion, the ten thousand acres of land, which possession he claims at a place called Vergel, which he purchased at public auction, but also he fixed a price to the said land, according to which sale ought to have taken place, which defect, in not making it known at the time of the same, ought not to injure him, and which has given cause to this litigation, his excellency said that, declaring it, as by these presents he does declare, and ordering, in consequence, by the right which the honorable acquisition of the said land, purchased in the sum of $1,605, gives to Fish, as is proven by the sale which he paid for the Burgal, or by the right given him by the old possession of his father of the above-mentioned ten thousand acres of land; or, lastly, in consequence of the petition of Fish, that it should be granted him as a new settler, he be put in possession of the same land which is known his father possessed, and is already laid off, with the exception of the quarries, and also what was not granted to his said father, and was always reserved by the King, renewing, if thought necessary, at the expense of the interested, the boundaries by the same skilful person, Don Manuel Solano, who, at the time of the old Spaniards, and the repossession of these of the province, laid off by order of government the aforementioned quarries, to give possession, as was effected to the father of the memorialist of said land, and he is granted on the same terms as above set forth, giving him possession thereof by the present notary, who is commissioned for that purpose, whenever the skilful person named, and some other person that may be named for the purpose of laying off the same, and also the minister of the royal finance, who will attend as representative of the royal exchequer. All of which will be made to appear in the returns, and with the valuation of the costs, which the interested will pay, these proceedings will be at an end. Being thus decreed and ordered by his excellency Don Bartolome Morales, colonel of infantry of the royal armies, commandant of the third battalion of Cuba, which garrisons this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and military governor pro tem. of the same and its province, on account of the indisposition of the incumbent; signing it, with the advice of the attorney general, June 19, 1795. I attest.

TESTIMONIAL.

I certify that at the session held by the most excellent provincial deputation the day of the date hereof, presided over by his excellency the captain general, superior political chief of the province, there was read the report of the commission presented on the 15th of the preceding November, on the solicitation of Don Juan Xavier de Arrambide, that there should be granted him in property a certain extent of land in East Florida, with the object of establishing on it mills for sawing timber and of exporting resins, with respect to which Señor Don José Ferreque said that in the distribution of these lands the letter of the sovereign decree of the 4th of January of this year ought not to be observed, but rather the laws of the Indies in the matter, as that decree applies to the division of vacant and royal lands in the provinces already peopled, in which state the Floridas are not; since, with the exception of a small part of their coasts, the remainder of which, and the entire of the interior, which is of incalculable extent, remains uncultivated and desert. Arrambide ought, therefore, to be considered as one of the settlers of whom the said laws treat, and, consequently, the land granted to him in absolute property should not be limited to the small tracts pointed to in said decree; and having sufficiently discussed the business, the most excellent deputation agreed that in virtue of the conformity manifested by the council of St. Augustine, Florida, in its act of the 16th of August last, with which the deputation resolved in this case, after having consulted the captain general, superior political chief of that province, with a certified copy of the present act, the most excellent deputation were pleased to state to that council that they grant, in property, to Don Juan X. de Arrambide two leagues square to each cardinal point of the compass of the land he may choose, from the mouth of the Rio Nueva, which discharges itself on the coast of East Florida, and the Punta Larga, on the south part, following the same course to the seashore, permitting him to cut timber without the square set forth, and, when the bounding lands are not granted to other inhabitants, prohibiting him from burning them and offending the Indians, returning the proceedings to the commission, that they may propose the best mode of distributing the remaining lands, conforming as nearly as possible to the said decree. Joseph Delespine vs. The United States. For ninety-two thousand one hundred and sixty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, East Florida:

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph Delespine respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title, in fee simple absolute, in and to ninety-two thousand one hundred and sixty acres of land, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid. Your memorialist shows that on the 15th day of November, in the year 1813, one Juan Xavier de Arrambide, a Spanish subject, applied to a certain body—a committee called the "Provincial Committee"—then established in the city of Havana, in the Island of Cuba, whose business and duty it was to consider, consult, advise, and determine as to the most proper and advantageous distribution and disposition of the public lands in the Island of Cuba, and also in the then provinces of East and West Florida, over which its authority in this respect extended, for a grant, in absolute ownership and property, of two leagues of land to each point of the compass, for the purpose of erecting saw-mills, making rosin, &c.; that the said committee, at its session on the aforesaid 15th day of November, 1813, at which its president, his excellency the then captain general of the Island of Cuba and of the two Floridas, was present and presided, resolved that the lands solicited by the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide should be granted to him in complete and absolute ownership and property, and that his excellency the said captain general, at the said session of the said committee, directed that the act or proceedings of the said committee at their said session, in relation to the said grant of land, should be transmitted to the governor and chief civil magistrate of East Florida, in order that the corporation of the said province might make a grant to the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide of two square leagues of land to each point of the compass, on the spot which he, the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide, might choose, from the mouth of the Rio Nueva, which empties itself on the coast of Florida, to the Punta Larga, on the south side, running said side up to the seashore. Your memorialist further shows that at a regular meeting of the corporation of East Florida, held at St. Augustine, March 22, 1814, at which presided his excellency Don Sebastian Kindelan, then governor and chief civil magistrate of East Florida, a memorial of the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide, dated at the Havana, on the 1st day of February, in the year 1814, was presented, accompanied by an authenticated copy of the aforesaid resolution and act of the said provincial committee, and of the aforesaid order of the captain general; in which memorial the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide, after referring to the said proceedings of the provincial committee and of the captain general, solicited a grant of the said two leagues of land to each point of the compass to the north of the river De los Miamies, which lies on the northwest of Cayo Viscayno; that the said corporation, at its said meeting, resolved to grant, and did grant, to the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide the said lands then solicited by him, in full and absolute property, and directed that a copy of this act and proceedings in relation to the claim of the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide, together with his memorial to said corporation, should be duly authenticated by their secretary, and be directed to him, the said Arrambide, for his security, and as a title to the said land, which was accordingly done; all of which will fully and at large appear by a reference to certified copies of the proceedings and acts hereinbefore mentioned and set forth, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A.

Your memorialist further shows that immediately after the completion of the said grant the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide entered upon and took actual possession of the lands embraced by it, and carried a number of persons with him from the Island of Cuba for the purpose of settling the said lands, and of promoting and proceeding in the purposes he had in view in obtaining the said land; that the said Arrambide for several years prosecuted the settlement and improvement of the said land, and the making of tar and rosin, and the cutting of timber thereon, when he was driven from it, and compelled to abandon his plans founded on the possession of it, by the hostility of the Indians and fugitive negroes who infested that part of the country; that the said Juan Xavier de Arrambide (by his agent, lawfully authorized in that behalf) sold and conveyed the said lands, in absolute property, to one George J. F. Clarke, a Spanish subject, according to the formalities required by the Spanish law, April 29, 1820, as will appear by a certified copy of the said conveyance herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B; that, after the purchase of the said land by the said George J. F. Clarke, that is to say, May 7, 1821, he applied for, and obtained from the then governor of East Florida an order for the survey of the said land, which will appear from a certified copy thereof herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C; that, after the appointment of the surveyor to execute the said order, his acceptance thereof, and preparations made to effect the said survey, it was found that it could not, with any safety, be attempted, on account of the decided and open hostility of the Indians to the whites just at that period, in consequence of which the design to survey the said land at that time was laid aside; that, January 4, 1822, the said George J. F. Clarke sold and conveyed the said lands to one John B. Strong, as will appear by his original conveyance thereof, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit D; and that the said John B. Strong, for a large and valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, sold and conveyed the said lands and their appurtenances to your memorialist, in fee simple absolute, February 25, 1822, as will appear by the original conveyance thereof to your memorialist, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit E.

Your memorialist further avers and shows that there are a number of families and settlers established on the said land under the title of your memorialist—believes are persons placed on the said lands by the aforesaid Arrambide at the time he attempted to establish himself on it as aforesaid; and that considerable improvements have been made thereon by clearing and cultivating the ground and erecting buildings. All of which is respectfully submitted by your memorialist.

JOSEPH DELESPINE,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, John B. Strong, citizen of the United States of America, at present a resident of this city, and attorney of Don Juan Xavier de Arrambide Goicoechea, resident of Puerto Principé, in the Island of Cuba, as appointed by him before the notary of that council, Don Jose Rafael Castellanos,

January 17 of the present year, a copy of which shall be added in continuation, and is sufficient for what shall be said. I declare that I really sell to Don George Clarke, an inhabitant of this province, surveyor general in it, two leagues of land to each point of the compass, which is in square in the territory on the south side of this province, situated about two leagues to the north of the river Miamies, which is on the northwest side of Cayo Biscayno, and is between the mouth of Rio Nueva, (New river,) which discharges itself on the coast of Florida, and the long point on the south side, following the same course to the sea-shore; which land was granted to me in full property by the constitutional junta of this city, by an act passed March 22, 1814, in virtue of the determination of the most excellent captain general of the Island of Cuba and both Floridas, communicated with an authenticated copy of the opinion of the most excellent provincial deputation. And I sell him the said two leagues to each point of the compass on the terms and under the circumstances on which they were granted to my said principal, Don Juan Xavier de Arrambide Goicoechea, with its pastures, roads, waters, entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, in the manner which corresponds to him, and that he may use it for himself and his successors free of all encumbrance, (as I, the notary, certify from the result of my search of the book of mortgages in my charge, which I have made for the purpose,) at the price of $20,000, which the purchaser has paid me in current money, which I acknowledge as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, exception to money not counted, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a receipt in form; in virtue of which I separate my principal from the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and other actions, real and personal, which he had and held to said lands, as I cede, renounce, and transfer it to the purchaser and his representatives, that, as his own, he may take possession in the manner most convenient to him by virtue of this deed, by which he may dispose at his will of the thing acquired without occasion for further proof, from which I relieve him. And I bind my principal to the execution and guaranty of this sale in sufficient form, and as may best suit, in favor of the purchaser, with the goods of my principal, present and future power and submission to the tribunals of his domicil, that they may compel him to its performance as by sentence consented and passed in authority of an adjudged case, in which I renounce all the laws, customs, rights, and privileges in his favor, and the general law in form which prohibits it. And I, Don William Travers, being present by order of the purchaser, Don George Clarke, accept in his favor this deed, and by it receive as purchased the said lands at the price and agreement on which they have been sold to him, which he gives as delivered to his will, with a renunciation of proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen or received, fraud, and everything else in the case, for which I deliver a receipt in form.

In testimony of which, this is dated in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, April 29, 1820. I, the notary, attest that the parties said thus and signed it; there being witnesses, Don Bernardo Segui, who served as interpreter, there being no public one; Don Pedro Miranda and Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., inhabitants present.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR: Don Miguel Isnardy, an inhabitant and merchant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency, as, by the annexed memorial and decree of your excellency's predecessor, it is evident that he is in possession of the land cited in it until the royal command; and understanding that his Majesty has resolved to distribute lands to the inhabitants of this province, he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant him and ratify the said concession, from its being certain that your memorialist has been the due time in possession of it in proper form, a favor which he hopes to merit from the justice of your excellency. SEÑOR GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: Don Miguel Isnardy, an inhabitant of this city, with all due respect, states to your excellency that the officer commissioned for the survey of lands having arrived in the neighborhood of those he possesses on the North river, as he has proved by the preceding memorial which he presented, and by it asked that there should be surveyed for him one hundred acres in the said place; and, besides this, that he shall be put in possession until the complete extension of his family, which is composed at present of twenty-one persons, including himself, in the place known as the Old Savannas, and its vicinity, where rice was planted by a former English inhabitant, Mr. Mann; he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant his petition, and command what is proper for the purpose, in order that they may be surveyed for him in the places already mentioned, a favor which he does not doubt to receive from among the many which your excellency distributes daily. Florida, April 26, 1793.

MIGUEL ISNARDY.

St. AUGUSTINE, May 10, 1793.

Let this be placed with the foregoing, and confirming by them the possession which the party has in the lands which Don Pedro Marrot refers to—this decree not opposing the former which he has from this government; and let him proceed to the survey of the hundred acres on the North creek, and the remainder, to complete what his family is entitled to, at the Old Savannas.

Be it known that I, Don Francisco Rovina, attorney and agent of the widow of Don Miguel de Isnardy, and charged by the said widow and the tribunal to adjust and liquidate the accounts which were pending by the death of said Isnardy, having examined the accounts pending between Dr. Don Thomas Travers and the deceased, it results in the property which I administer owing to the said Don Thomas the sum of four hundred dollars; in virtue of which, and the said doctor having proposed to me that he would take in payment of the balance in his favor a piece of land which the said Isnardy obtained and cultivated, situated on the Little beaches of Santa Lucia, and having been informed by men who have a knowledge of the said land that it is well paid for at that sum, I have agreed, in the name of the said widow and the other heirs, to sell them; and by this document which, until the government permits a deed of sale to be made in form, shall serve as a title, I sell him the above-named piece of land for the precise sum of four hundred dollars—all accounts at both sides being settled and paid up to this date, without any claim remaining on either side. And I, Don Thomas Travers, acknowledge myself satisfied with the settlement of accounts above mentioned, and receive in payment of the above balance in my favor the lands mentioned, and which I consider as delivered to me; and to confirm all, we sign this in St. Augustine, Florida, August 31, 1805.

EAST FLORIDA, ST. AUGUSTINE, St. John's County:

This day personally appeared before me, the subscriber, one of the justices of the peace of the county aforesaid, Bartolome Leonardi, who, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he was well acquainted with Don Miguel de Isnardy, and recollects of his planting for many years up the North river, at a place called the Old Savannas, distant about fifteen miles north from St. Augustine, and adjoining to the north by the place now in the occupation of this deponent; that he has always understood that the land in question belonged to said Miguel Isnardy; that he never heard it disputed to the contrary.

Bartolome Mestre vs. The United States. For three hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

Bartolome Mestre, jr., for his mother, Mariana Mestre, respectfully represents: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred acres, situated on Thompson's branch, on the opposite side of the Matanzas river from the Little bar, which has not been surveyed; that the same was granted to her husband, Bartolome Mestre, without specifying the number of acres, but according to the number of his family, which consisted of himself, his wife, and three children, and to take possession in one month; which conditions were performed. And your memorialist states that the said Bartolome Mestre afterwards abandoned his family, and left his children with the said Mariana, who has supported them for many years, and ever since the said Bartolome abandoned his wife and family; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to the said Bartolome Mestre by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, June 28, 1796, as appears by the memorial and decree herewith presented. And your memorialist further sheweth that the said Mariana Mestre is in legal possession of said lands, and was at the time of the cession, and has been ever since the grant; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, October 11, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Translation.]

To the Governor:

Bartolome Mestre, an inhabitant of this city, with due respect, submits to your excellency that, finding himself obliged to attend to the daily support of his family, and not having the means to do it in this city without the greatest toil, by reason of his not meeting with a vacant place in which to employ himself; and as he has always lived desirous of complying with his duties, he desires to employ himself in some honest calling which, by its produce, may lead to this intent; and finding himself well acquainted with country labor, which he has exercised for some time, as his Majesty has deigned to grant to the inhabitants of this province lands in proportion to the family which each person may have, embracing this favor he has solicited a piece of land on which to settle himself—he met one in front of the Little bar, on the river Matanzas, named Thompson's branch, which no person is in possession of. Wherefore, he supplicates your excellency to be pleased to grant him the said land until the survey and distribution of lands already commenced, which has been put a stop to by the declaration of the last war; he followed up a request which he promises himself from the goodness of your excellency. Florida, June 21, 1796.

The memorialist not knowing how to write his name, I sign for him at his request.

DECREE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, June 23, 1796.

Let the commandant of engineers report if the land asked for, being settled, would embarrass the defence of this city and province.

WHITE.

REPORT.

All the uncultivated land from the tower of Matanzas to the south would be very useful for the support of the province, the cultivation of it not being in any respect prejudicial to the defence of the city or province; and as the land which the memorialist asked for is comprised in that part, there being no objection to your excellency's granting it, it being on the main land, at a small distance; and opposite the Little bar there is a small island named the Rock, or Large bar, where the predecessor of your excellency permitted the inhabitants to make lime, but ascertaining that his partner, Bike, raised some stone from the borders of the bar in order to sell it to individuals of the city, with manifest injury to the entrance of vessels by it, it being now capable of admitting small canoes, deponent was ordered by the government to quit that post, and not use the license granted to him. If the land which the party asks for is at the said Large bar, and if it be on the main land, there is no inconvenience in your excellency's granting it, if it be your pleasure, for the purpose he pretends, which is all I can report to your excellency in compliance with your preceding decree. St. Augustine, Florida, June 27, 1796.

PEDRO DIAZ BERRIO.

CONCESSION.

St. AUGUSTINE, Florida, June 28, 1796.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's:

Francis Pelliser, jr., being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he was acquainted with Bartolome Mestre, of this county; that about twenty years ago, or something more or less, he settled a tract of land on the Matanzas river, west of the Matanzas fort, and is the same tract of land for which he obtained a grant from the Spanish government about that time. This deponent knows he was there making improvements for some time, but cannot say precisely how long; he had a wife and several children; his wife's name is Mariana Mestre, and now resides in the city of St Augustine. The said Bartolome Mestre, some time after, left his said wife and family, and has never afforded them any support for many years, his wife having supported and raised the children. The said Bartolome went to Darien, and has there lived with a colored woman, by whom he has had children, as this deponent has been informed and believes. The tract of land above alluded to is said to contain about three hundred or three hundred and fifty acres.

Jehu Underwood vs. The United States. For six hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Jehu Underwood, a citizen of the United States, residing in the county of Camden, in Georgia, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land situated in the county of Duval, on a creek called Black creek, containing six hundred acres, lying in the following form, to wit: the first line running east twenty chains; second, south eighty-six chains; and the third, west twenty chains, bounded, as your memorialist believes, on all sides by vacant lands; which said tract of land your memorialist claims as follows: first, under a concession made to him on May 20, 1805, granting him the privilege of building a mill thereon, and cutting timber, which said concession is hereunto annexed, marked A; that, in virtue of said concession, shortly thereafter the said Jehu Underwood went into possession of said tract of land, namely, the same year, and built a saw-mill on said Black creek, and continued in the possession of the same until 1812, when the said mill was burnt down by the Indians, and he was driven off by them; that as soon as with safety he could, which was some years after, he went on to said tract of land again, and recommenced another saw-mill, which he shortly thereafter completed, in consideration of which, on February 20, 1821, he obtained a royal title to six hundred acres of land as above described, which said tract of land he was in actual possession of on the day East and West Florida were transferred to the United States. Your memorialist refers, as evidence of such royal title, as per exhibit marked B, which he hereby introduces, not as direct evidence of the deraignment of the title, but as collateral evidence, to establish the fact of the quantity of land he was in possession of by virtue of the concession marked exhibit A, at the time of the transfer of this Territory to the United States. All which is humbly submitted to your consideration. August 27, 1823.

To the governor:

Don Jehu Underwood, inhabitant of this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That in April, 1804, he swore allegiance to his Catholic Majesty; that in December last he began to cultivate a tract of land, which he has hired on the river St. John's, with fourteen negroes and six white laborers, where has the pleasing prospect of an abundant crop of provisions; that his intention was, from the moment of his arrival in this province, to ask of the government, for the purpose of cultivating them, but has neglected doing so until the present moment; that the government could not doubt his intention of establishing himself in this province; that, lastly, being convinced of the abundance of timber therein, he has determined to erect two saw-mills on the banks of the river St. Mary's, on two creeks, the one called Dunn's creek the other Deep run; the first is situated three miles west from Pigeon creek, appertaining to Don Thomas Travers, bounded on the north by the river St. Mary's, and on all other sides by vacant lands; the last mentioned is situated about ten miles from the first; its front is bounded by the river St. Mary's; on all other sides by vacant lands; the intention of your memorialist being that of erecting the said two saw-mills immediately, with a part of his said laborers, and thirty new negroes, for whom he has written, and expects them very soon. He therefore prays your excellency will be pleased to grant him your superior permission for that purpose, conceding him the land sufficient, that the said two saw-mills may have sufficient quantity of pine timber for their use in their respective neighborhoods. In the city of St. Augustine, Florida, May 16, 1818, before his excellency, Don José Coppering, colonel of the royal armies, political and military governor of this city and its province, appeared Don George Fleming, captain of militia, with the rank of provincial in this city, and planter, native of Ireland, of the married state, from whom his excellency, in virtue of the information moved by Don Jehu Underwood, received the oath which he made, according to law, under the obligation of which he promised to tell the truth to the best of his knowledge, in what should be asked him; and, having been questioned as to the tenor of the memorial, said that he knows positively that Don Jehu Underwood built the water saw-mill to which he refers in his representation, in virtue of the permission granted by this government, in which he invested, according to the opinion of the deponent, about eight or ten thousand dollars, which water saw-mill remained working until the year 1812, when the insurrection of this province took place; at which time the deponent knew, by persons worthy of credit, that the said Underwood was ruined, because of fire having been set to the said water saw-mill, and he lost what he had there; that all that he has set forth is amply public, and well known, as also that Underwood was one of the faithful subjects at the time of the said insurrection; so that, to avoid following the course of the malcontent inhabitants of the province, he absented himself from it for the United States, after having been harassed by the said insurgents; and that, further to confirm the deponent that the said saw-mill was in operation at the period referred to, he obtained from it quantities of lumber, which he bought for his own use; further, he does not know that, at the present day, what Underwood says is right, because he has not been at that place since said rebellion, and he answers that all is truth, by virtue of his oath; that he is of the age of sixty years; that the exceptions of the law, which he was made acquainted with, do not affect him. And having been also apprized of the contents of this, his declaration, he signed it with his excellency; which I attest.

On the same day, month, and year, Don Jehu Underwood, for the information which he is giving, presented as a witness Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., native, resident, and planter in this city, from whom his excellency, before me, the notary, received on oath, which he made according to law, under the obligation of which he promised to tell the truth, to the best of his knowledge, in what should be asked him; and, examining the tenor of the foregoing memorial, said that it is very certain, public, and notorious, that Don Jehu Underwood built a water saw-mill on the place pointed out in his representation, where the deponent was with the schooner Palafax, in the year 1810, to load her with lumber, which he effected, carrying it to the Havana; that said mill was in full operation, and very effective; since, for its establishment, the said Underwood expended about ten thousand dollars, which accounts the deponent had in his hands, as they came through those of his father, Don Fernando, is in said Havana; but that, in the year 1812, said mill was destroyed by the fire which the Indians put to it—the said Underwood having been ruined, having lost what he had there, being, as he was, a faithful inhabitant, who did not meddle in said insurrection; that he does not know if said water saw-mill has been actually re-established, because he has not been since at that place; and answers that all is the truth, by virtue of his oath; that he is thirty years of age; not affected by the exceptions of the law; and he signed this, with his excellency; which I attest.

burned by the Indians, by which Underwood suffered losses which left him unable to rebuild said mill, which he has now returned to re-establish, although not with all perfection; but as the deponent lives near the said establishment, he has seen that it has been sawing for these six months; and that, according to the declaration of the deponent, he has sawed since last spring about 100,000 feet of lumber, being at present fit to continue if the waters permit; and answers that all is the truth, by virtue of this oath; that he is of the age of forty-five years, and that the exceptions of the law, which were explained to him, do not affect him. And, being informed of what is contained in this declaration, he said that it was faithfully written; and signed it, with his excellency; which I attest.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. For six hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francis P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That he claims title in and to a tract or parcel of land consisting of six hundred acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said tract of six hundred acres is part of a grant of two thousand acres originally made to one Roque Leonardi, now deceased, by three several concessions, one of which was made on December 24, 1792, and one on April 11, 1793, by Governor Quesada, the governor of East Florida, and the other on January 3, 1799, by Governor White, the governor of East Florida; which several concessions were made under and in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain, bearing date October 29, 1790—all which will fully appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said concession now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A; that the said Roque Leonardi, upon the obtaining said concession, took immediate and actual possession of the lands, and improved and cultivated them, and remained in the actual possession and occupancy of them till his death, which took place about the year 1803, and that his heirs are now in the actual occupancy of this part of the said lands now sold to your memorialist; that the said lands were surveyed very soon after their concession by the surveyor general of the province of East Florida, Pedro Marot, but this plat having been lost, application was made by the heirs of the said Leonardi for a resurvey of them, which was ordered April 5, 1819, as will appear by a reference to a certified copy of the application and order for the said resurvey herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B; that the said concession of two thousand acres were located by the said Roque Leonardi in two distinct tracts—one of which consisted of one thousand four hundred, and the other of six hundred, the latter of which is that claimed by your memorialist, as appears by the certified copies of the plat thereof now submitted and filed, and marked exhibits C and D; that the said tract of six hundred acres is situated on the North river, about sixteen miles from the city of St. Augustine, between the road to San Vincent Ferrer and lands of John Andrew, and has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: the first line begins at a pine marked +, and runs north 77° east, 60 chains, to another pine, marked +; the second line runs north 13° west, 100 chains, to another pine marked +; the third line runs south 77° west, 60 chains, to another pine marked with a +; the fourth runs south 13° east, 100 chains, to the place of beginning. The said land was, at the time of the survey thereof, bounded on the south by lands of the heirs of Thomas Travers, on the north by vacant lands, on the west by the road to San Vincent Ferrer, as will more distinctly appear by the plat thereof contained in exhibit D. Your memorialist further shows that, May, 25, 1821, a grant in absolute property of the aforesaid tract of six hundred acres of land was made by Don José Coppering, the governor of East Florida, to the heirs of the said Roque Leonardi, as will appear by a certain certified copy thereof now herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit E; and that Bartolome Leonardi, Juan Leonardi, and Maria Ugarti, the heirs of the aforesaid Roque Leonardi, afterwards, that is to say, March 20, 1822, for a valuable consideration paid to them by your memorialist, conveyed to your memorialist in fee simple absolute the said tract or parcel of six hundred acres of land, and its appurtenances, as will appear by original conveyance thereof to your memorialist, now herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit F. And your memorialist further avers and shows that the said Roque Leonardi was, at the time the said six hundred acres of land were conceded to him as aforesaid, and at his death, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject to the King of Spain; and that his heirs were, at the time of their father's death, also settlers of East Florida, and subjects of the King of Spain, and were settlers of East Florida at the time they conveyed the said land to your memorialist; that your memorialist was, at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and has so continued ever since. Wherefore, he prays confirmation of his title to the said six hundred acres of land and its appurtenances, &c.

FRANCIS P. SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

MEMORIAL.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR: Don Roque Leonardi, an inhabitant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency that about fifteen miles to the north of this city there is a piece of land belonging to the King, which in former times was planted by a certain Mr. Menn, and at present, for want of a person to possess it, is uncultivated. Wherefore, he prays the goodness of your excellency to be pleased to grant him the said land, by which he will receive a singular favor, which he hopes from the well-known justice of your excellency.

ROQUE LEONARDY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, December 24, 1792.

As he requires, without injury to a third person, let this party be permitted to establish himself where he solicits until the commissioners appointed for the general survey of lands shall assign him those which correspond to his family.

QUESADA.

MEMORIAL.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: Don Roque Leonardi, resident of this city and inhabitant of the province, with all respect, states to your excellency that his only business being that of a laborer, by which he has to maintain his large family, and for this same reason your excellency having done him the favor to grant him the plantation called Mr. Menn's, agreeably to the distribution of lands to the other inhabitants, and having resulted to be in possession of another individual by a former decree and disposition of the superior government. Wherefore, he prays your excellency to be pleased to grant him three hundred acres of land, the boundary of which, to the north, is where the cutting of wood for the King takes place, without injuring in any manner said place for cutting wood, the land being open and worked for a few years, and in the whole there is scarcely wood of any consideration; furthermore, those which your excellency should think proper to grant him four miles more to the north of that place at the Rice plantation, so called, as your memorialist has family and slaves enough for the cultivation of said lands, and the three hundred acres which he has set forth not being sufficient, which is a favor he hopes for from the justice of your excellency.

ROQUE LEONARDY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, April 11, 1793.

If the lands which this party solicits be not destined for the King's woods, nor previously to any other inhabitant of the province, the captain, Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned for the general distribution of them, shall assign those which correspond to him in the places which he points out.

QUESADA.

MEMORIAL.

ST. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: Don Roque Leonardi, inhabitant of this city, with due respect, states to your excellency that when the lands were surveyed there remained a piece near his plantation, and to the south of it, which bounds that of Don Teresa Gill; this said piece of public land consists of a scrub, very thick, and full of palmettos, although there is a small part a little cleared; but, although that which corresponds to him of the uncleared is but small, he receives much injury from the vicinity of it to the house of your memorialist. He humbly prays your excellency to be pleased to give him a piece of land, good and bad, that, by this means, he may lessen the increased damages which he receives in clearing and cultivating it, a favor which he hopes to receive from the equitable charity of your excellency.

ROQUE LEONARDY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

Let the commandant of engineers report.

ST. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR: The lands on which the petitioner has his plantation correspond to those of North creek, and he sees no objection that the lands which he solicits shall be increased in his possession and placed in cultivation, it being not only useful to shun the damages which the thickness of the woods occasions him, but also advantageous to the improvement of the agriculture of the province, which is all he has to inform your excellency of in compliance with the foregoing decree.

PEDRO DIAZ BERRIO.

DECREE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, January 3, 1799.

Let there be granted to this party, without injury to a third person, the lands he solicits until, agreeably to the persons he may have for its cultivation, the corresponding quantity be assigned him.

Wherefore, they pray your excellency to have the goodness to permit that the private surveyor, Don Andres Bergevin, may pass to said lands to make new surveys of them under the regulations established in such cases; and that being effected, the corresponding documents be delivered to them to proceed to prove the other circumstances which consolidate the right of property which they ought to enjoy from having complied with the conditions imposed by the regulations of this government on this matter, they being ready to pay in full the expenses due. Gabriel W. Perpall vs. The United States. For six hundred and forty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of G. W. Perpall sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of a mile square, (640 acres,) situated on the river St. Sebastian, about one mile in a southwest direction from this city; bounded on the east by the river Matanzas and St. Sebastian; on the south by a little creek called Jula; on the north by another creek called Gonzalez; and on the west by the pine barren; which title your memorialist derives from a judicial sale by Governor Quesada to Thomas Travers, and by him sold to George Taylor, who, by his attorney, F. M. Arredondo, sold to your memorialist. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine. November 10, 1823.

JUDICIAL SALE.

Don Juan Nepomuceno de Quesada, colonel of the royal armies, governor, and commander-in-chief of this city and province of St. Augustine, Florida, for his Majesty, says that an official letter was transmitted to me from the accountant's office of the royal _____ of this said city, dated 9th October of the year last past, 1790, showing me that, by the decease of Don Jesse Fish, of the English nation, under which Protestant religion he died, there remained a piece of cultivated land called the Grove, and that a son of the said deceased had retired to the dominions of his Britannic Majesty, and that the laws of these kingdoms forbid that foreigners should hold real property unless they are established in our dominions, soliciting said minister that thus the said landed property, as well as whatever others are found in this province and belong to said Fish, their rents and arrears, should belong to his Majesty, requesting me, at the same time, to take the necessary measures for the investigation of this business. In virtue of which, by a judicial decree of the same month and year, I ordered that, being included in one of the resolutions which the said official letter from the accountant's office points out in law 34th, book 2d, and chapter 32 of the recopilatos (abridgment) of these kingdoms, to give completion to the said estate, testimony is to be taken by the notary of the testamentary disposition of Fish, or any other under which he may have died, informing his executors or other persons; certifying also, and warning the tenants previously to anything else, that they have to account to the royal administration for the rents; that it ought to be made known that, unless lawful creditors appear, the King, our sovereign, is to enter subsequently into possession of the whole. In attention to which the said notary, having a copy of the will annexed, certified that the property of which he had notice, what the said Fish left, besides what the said will contained, consisted of copies of deeds which he produced; in which stage the executors, Don Thomas Travers and Don John Leslie, presented themselves, setting forth the just reasons which hindered them from soliciting a writing of inventory, and referring to the property in the said notice which the notary presented—they asked for a postscript, "that many of the goods were of these that were purchased (servando servare non passunt) and others, as the houses which were every day losing their value for the want of repairs, so that their total ruin was to be dreaded in a little time, to the injury of the creditors or his Majesty. I did order, having previously, according to law, received information of it, that all should be valued and sold regularly; that the proceeds might be placed or deposited in the royal coffers until the issue; and, by a decree of the 6th of November of said year ago, I ordered that the master carpenter and masons should proceed to a valuation of the houses which were pointed out; also explaining, by a sworn return, what they think as to the necessity for selling them, and that, along with what the accountant's office had to say, whose duty it is to interfere in said business, there shall be a decree. In attention to which the valuation and survey of the houses and lots was proceeded to, the said master's swearing in due form that, in the state in which they found this property, it was threatened with entire ruin; that the sale of it would be favorable, since, if not, they would be exposed to the loss of their value, which, being seen by the accountant's office of the royal domain, it was their opinion that the said sale should be proceeded to, and by a decree of the 15th December of the said year I ordered that the sale should be proceeded to; for which purpose handbills were posted up at the public places for the lawful time, and the day of the sale being made known, it was carried into effect at the gates of this government house in legal form; and various bids, offers, and outbids being made for said goods, the hour appointed for its conclusion having arrived, the said auction was concluded of the houses and lots referred to, by various individuals. In consequence of which, by a decree of January 3, 1791, I ordered that what is contained in the proceedings at auction, being prepared, let each person deposit, respectively, the sums which correspond to him, and in its virtue they shall prove the production of the said sums, as appears from the letters of payment which they produced, made by the royal treasury of this place, with the intervention of the accountant's office of the royal domain, and my approval thereof. By my decree of the 17th of February of the said year, 1791, I commanded that there should be delivered to each purchaser a competent deed of property, and concluded with the corresponding note in the proceeding that may be brought, said deeds being executed as well for the houses and lots referred to, as also the negroes belonging to said estate, which were also auctioned with due solemnity to several individuals, depositing also its proceeds in the royal coffers. I commanded, by a decree of the 2d April of the said year, there shall be given to each interested the copy which he requires, he paying the proper cost, and at the same time the cost of the judicial decrees, and its amount be paid out of the proceeds of the auctions deposited in the royal coffers, and, when done, let it be brought forward, that what is necessary may be decreed in this stage; and various creditors of the said deceased having come forward claiming his credits, and as the tribunal has been informed that there are several others having presented what Don Thomas Travers and Don Juan Leslie in their representation in the 8 volio of the said proceedings, and having in every respect to act according to law, I have commanded that the proceeds of the whole sale being presented, as it was in the royal coffers until another thing is determined on testimony of the accounts of the debts which are pointed out in said 8 volio, and, in every case, that Don Manuel Fernandez Bendicho be presented, who was named as defender of said estate, that, having previously accepted and taken the oath, he shall explain what is necessary of the state and nature of the cause, calling together the present creditors by handbills; and, as respects the absent in the city of Havana and the Island of Cuba, a despatch shall be forwarded to the captain general, to the end that he may order edicts to be posted up that, by themselves or their attorneys, they appear within the term of six months to allege their debts, and in the meanwhile everything shall remain suspended, with the exception of whatever the said defender may move, who renounced the charge, for which purpose he presented a representation, setting forth in it that he did not consider himself to possess the necessary information for this delicate affair; that he found it necessary to give his attention to various business now pending of the rents of the post office which he administered, on views of which I have admitted the said renunciation, and in consequence name in his place Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, to whom, having previously notified said appointment, and taken his oath, the above-mentioned judicial decrees shall be handed over: all being concluded, and the new defender having accepted of and sworn to his charge, he came forward representing and saying in his petition of the 2d July of the same year of 1791, that, having examined attentively the steps taken in the said decree, and in as far as they have proceeded all appears to have been very regular, and that he agreed to the whole; but, as many individuals who have to appear at said meeting may delay some time in coming or presenting their powers, he judged that, until they appeared, it would be proper not to cause them any delay afterwards, and to prevent every contingency of damage of the property which remains, that it be valued in due form, and auctioned as the former, passing the proceeds to the deposit before provided, setting forth at the same time, in addition, that, inasmuch as the place named the Grove belonged to the deceased, although it does not appear in the deed of title with which he enjoyed it, being certain that he had an immemorial possession, I should be favored by having it ordered that the trees and buildings should be valued, and that they should go to auction with the rest, determining on what may be most correct as to the land. To all which I have acceded by my decree of the said month and year, commanding that all should be done as required and in proper form, which proceeding has been delayed some time by the great business of the notary, and sometimes by sickness, which prevailed at that time. The said defender represented again, stating that, from the well-known injury sustained by the property of the deceased, Fish, from want of a master who would take care of it as his own, he prayed that I would order that, without loss of time, the valuation should be made, and the sale provided for; explaining by an addition, for the better understanding, that inasmuch as by the deed of property of the possession of the said Don Juan Eliju de la Puenta had not sold them under any survey, only marking the limits with creek, salt marshes, roads, and other marks, which are yet in being; in virtue of which he asked that two measurers or surveyors should be hired, and it would be sufficient to name only two skilful persons, who, informed of the places more or less advantageous, and instructed of what lands produce in this country, should value said possession, accompanied by the individuals who may find it convenient to choose, that, in the place of a notary, supposing there was not one, if said valuation should be presented—it being well understood that the lots which were within the city were to be measured and valued without fail, in the regular form, for which he asked for the judicial and final decrees by my decree of the 16th January of the present year—I commanded, among other things, that, it resulting that the valuation and sale referred to had not had effect, it should be proceeded to in presence of the said defender of Don Vicente Maria and Fran. Rovira, for want of a notary, and Don Manuel Solana and Don Roque Leonardi, who were named as skilful men; that the boundaries being regulated according to what is certain from the deeds of sale of the land, they may proceed to its valuation, having first performed the customary forms, and may successively make the sale of the whole at public outcry in favor of the best bidder, for which purpose the corresponding commission shall be expedited, with an insertion of the lands which ought to be valued, with the boundaries assigned, that orders may be complied with; which being done, it being added to the judicial decrees on the business to confirm them; and as respects what relates to the lot, it may be done as the said defender proposes; in consequence of which, the said commission was delivered, and the said valuation made as was ordered. I commanded him to show it to the office of royal accountant general, to say if there was anything to be said relative to the royal interests; and in order that, in the accustomed manner, the survey and valuation of the lots should be proceeded to with its knowledge, which, notwithstanding, resulted without this circumstance, and, in consequence, to the sale of all, naming as master carpenter John Purcell, and mason Joaquin Sanchez, who, in compliance with orders, and by virtue of the concurrence of the said royal accountant general's office communicated in the opinion of the 11th February, they proceeded to the sale at auction, which was done in form of law, and various bids, offers, and out-bids having been offered, the hour appointed for its conclusion having taken place, there remained auctioned in favor of Don Thomas Travers the savannas of St. Sebastian, which are situated at the distance from this city, to the southwest, of more than a quarter of a league on the west side of the river of this name of St. Sebastian; and the said savannas, from a creek which leaves said river and turns to the west, which is called Gonzalez Mendez, runs to the south more than a quarter of a league on the banks of the salt marshes this way, which runs towards the bar at Matanzas until it bounds with other salt marshes which divide the savanna of Brioso, which is the last of St. Sebastian, with another which is called de Jula. The breadth of said savannas is, from east to west, more than a quarter of a league; the boundaries of which are: on the north of the said creek of Gonzalez Mendez; on the west by a pine barren and a gravelly place, from which proceeds a branch which runs to the south; on the south, the said salt marsh of Jula; and on the east, said river St. Sebastian and its salt marshes, and that which communicates, as is already set forth, with the bar of Matanzas; which sale was verified in favor of said Don Thomas Travers for the sum of fifty dollars, there being no person who would give more, and I have approved it in favor of the aforesaid; and by my decree of the 22d of March, I have ordered that it should be notified to those contained in the proceedings of sale, that within three days they should each produce into the accountant general's office the sum which respectively corresponds to them, that it might be deposited in the royal coffers, placing a note to that effect on the judicial decrees, and, that being done, I would give a provisional judgment; after which, and having continued in various other proceedings relating to the said property, some of it being already sold, that they have not had a bidder for the former; and having already decreed, provisionally, on various memorials of some creditors to the said property, Don Felipe de Aguirre, one of the purchasers, presented himself, praying me to order what may be convenient, in order that a deed or document of property should be delivered to him, which would accredit what had been performed relative to the land referred to, called the Five Miles, and as he had satisfied the amount and presented the receipt for payment, which prove it, to the notary; in attention to which, by my decree of the 28th July, that it being certain that the said amount was satisfied, the corresponding deed should be formed, which was solicited, and the same to other persons in a similar case. In virtue of which, and there being no person to represent the rights of the said Fish, with the exception of the said defender, given officially, with whose concurrence said sale was carried into effect, and that the said Thomas Travers may have a legitimate title to the said property or land sold to him at auction, and my orders the due effect, I declare by these presents, in the name of his Majesty, (whom God preserve,) and of his royal justice, which I administer, that I sell, and give in absolute sale forever, to the said Don Thomas Travers, for himself and his heirs, the said lands of the savannas of Sebastian, free of all tribute or mortgage, at the price of the said fifty dollars, which he gave in silver, paid and deposited in the royal treasury of this city, for which there was given a receipt of payment, and, it being necessary, let it be given anew, with the renunciation of the laws which may be necessary; and from hence and for the future I take from him, the said Jesse Fish, the power, and separate him from the right which he, his heirs, or other persons, may have to the possession, property, seigniory, title, power, appeal, and any other right which appertained or belonged to said savannas; since I cede, renounce, and transfer it all to the said purchaser and his representatives, that, as their own, they may possess, sell, and alienate the said savannas at their will, in virtue of this deed, which I deliver in their favor, by which they can take and acquire the possession when it best suits them; and for its better validity and firmness, I interpose my authority and judicial decree, as I can and of right ought to contribute thereby to the good administration of justice; and I deliver these presents in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, November 22, 1792, there being witnesses, Don Manuel Rengil, Don Thomas Aguirre, and Sylvester Miranda, inhabitants present, and his excellency signed it, and whom I, the undersigned notary, know, and hold as such governor and commander-in-chief of this said city and its province, he as such exercising the administration of the royal justice in it. All of which I attest.

CONVEYANCE.

Be it known that I, Don Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, merchant of this city, general attorney of Don George Taylor, who is absent, and which power he has conferred on me before the present notary, February 15, 1804, which power has not been revoked, and is sufficient for what shall be said: I declare that I really sell to Don Gabriel G. Perpall, also of this place, certain savannas belonging to my principal, known by the name of St. Sebastian, and which are situated to the southwest of this city, at the distance of a quarter of a league, on the west side of the river of St. Sebastian, which, from a creek which it forms and turns to the west, called Gonzalo Mendez, runs to the south more than a quarter of a league on the bank of salt marshes on this course to the bar of Matanzas, which divide the savanna of Briesto, which is the last of St. Sebastian, with another called Juta, having a breadth east and west a little more than a quarter of a league, whose boundaries are on the north of said creek of Gonzalo Mendez, on the west the pine barren and a gravel bank, from which arises a creek, turning to the south on this side the said salt marsh of Juta, and on the east the said river St. Sebastian and its salt marshes, and of that which communicates, as said before, with the bar of Matanzas, which said savanna my principal had and bought from Don Thomas Travers, deceased, by deed, which he made in these archives August 29, 1803; and I make him the said sale, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which belong and appertain to the said savannas, and free of all encumbrance, as I, the said notary, certify, from the results of the book of mortgages in my charge, which I have searched for the purpose, at the price of six hundred and fifty dollars, which the purchaser has paid me in cash, which sum I acknowledge as delivered to my will; on which I renounce proof, laws of delivery, exception to money not counted, fraud, and everything else in the case; for which I separate my said principal from the right of property, possession, use, seigniory, and other rights, real and personal, which he had or held to the said savannas of St. Sebastian; that I cede, renounce, and transfer them to the purchaser, and his representation, that, as his own, he may possess, sell, and alienate them at his will, in virtue of this writing, which I deliver in his favor as a token of real delivery, by which it is seen that he has acquired the possession, without occasion for further proof, from which I release him, and oblige myself to the eviction and guarantee of this sale in due form, and as may best suit, in favor of the purchaser, with my property, present and future power, and submission to the tribunal of his Majesty, that they may force me to compliance, as by sentence consented to and passed in authority of a thing adjudged, on which I renounce all laws, customs, rights, and privileges in my favor, and everything in form which prohibits it. And I, the said Don Gabriel W. Perpall, being present, accept in my favor this writing, and by it receive as purchased the said savannas of St. Sebastian, at the price and agreement on which they were sold to me, and I acknowledge them as delivered to my will. I renounce proof, laws of delivery, those of a thing not seen or received, fraud, and everything else in the case; for which I deliver a receipt in form. In testimony of which, this is dated in the city of St. Augustine, March 18, 1809. DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case exhibited a judicial or government sale of the land by Governor Quesada to Thomas Travers, which sale we ascertain was made in conformity to the laws and usages of the late Spanish Government, and dated November 22, 1792. An abstract from the office of the public archives was also exhibited, by which it appears that Travers sold and conveyed the land to George Taylor, by his attorney, Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, who sold and conveyed the same to the claimant. The board having ascertained from the exhibits offered that the quantity of land claimed is undefined, they order that this case be reported to Congress for their determination. April 14.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Robert Gilbert respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred acres of land, situated on the Matanzas river, and has not been surveyed, the original documents of which are in the office of the archives, as is supposed, and a certificate of which from the government secretary is herewith presented, dated March 1, 1798; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to him by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790; and your memorialist further sheweth that he is not in actual possession of said lands, they not having been set off to him by the government, but were granted to him on account of grievances which he had suffered by the government; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida.

Don Juan de Pierra, sub-lieutenant of the fourth company of the third battalion of the infantry regiment of Cuba, and secretary of this government, and commanding general: I certify that a memorial presented by Robert Gilbert the 27th of last month, soliciting, in virtue of the definitive sentence in the decrees against various inhabitants for the crime of rebellion, lands which are vacant in the place named Mosse, this day the following decree was made: "This party having made it appear that the lands which he solicits are not in Mosse, but in Matanzas, this error originating from the mistake of the writer, let those he solicits be granted him, without prejudice to a third person, until, according to the persons he may have for its cultivation, the corresponding quantity is assigned. This writing having to be passed to the military assessor in order that it may be united to the proceedings instituted against the petitioner for the crime of rebellion, and that it may serve for the interested, I give these presents at St. Augustine, Florida, March 1, 1798.

William Travers vs. The United States. For four hundred and twenty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Travers, son of Thomas Travers, late of St. Augustine, deceased, for himself and the other heirs of the said Thomas Travers, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land containing four hundred and twenty acres, situated about two or two and a half miles west of St. Augustine, and bounded as follows: beginning at a pine marked with a cross; running thence north 63° east, 70 chains 71 links, to a pine marked with a Roman number XII; thence south 27° east, 52 chains, to a pine marked with a cross; thence south 74° west, 24 chains, to a pine with III; thence north 34° west, 12 chains, to a pine with III; thence north 63° west, to a pine with a cross; thence north 27° west, to the beginning; which title your memorialist derives from a sale made to Joseph Peavitt, May 18, 1779, by Henry Skinner, of the said land; and your memorialist further sheweth that the said Peavitt cultivated the said lands, and had possession of them up to the time of his death, when they came legally into possession of Maria Evans, wife of the said Peavitt, who, by her last will and —, devised them to your memorialist's father, Thomas Travers. Your memorialist further shows that he is in actual possession of said land, and that he is an American citizen, and a resident of St. Augustine.

WILLIAM TRAVERS.

[Here follows a mutilated instrument of writing, purporting to be a lease from Henry Skinner to Joseph Peavitt for one year, dated May 17, 1775; also a mutilated release in fee, dated May 18, 1779, and also an order of survey directed to Benjamin Lord by Governor Pat. Tonyn, dated March 10, 1783.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey, by A. Burgevin, of the 428 acres, dated December 20, 1819.]

EAST FLORIDA, St. John's County:

This day personally appeared before me, the subscriber, one of the justices of the peace for the county aforesaid, Gabriel Triay, who, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he has resided in and about St. Augustine near fifty-five years; that he knew Joseph Peavitt as early as 1779, and remained acquainted with him up to the time of his death; that Peavitt remained here after the cession of the country by Great Britain to Spain in 1784, and became a Spanish subject; that he, this deponent, was employed by Peavitt, whilst the British had possession of the country, to build houses, &c., upon a plantation belonging to the said Peavitt, at a place about two miles west from St. Augustine, at a place called Peavitt swamp; that Peavitt retained possession of the said lands up to the time of his death, which took place some time after the Spaniards came into the country; that he never heard the right of Peavitt's heirs to this property questioned. The improvements made upon this plantation were burnt by the Indians, and the plantation broken up many years ago. A man by the name of Penman had a plantation about a mile and a half to the northward of the place described by this deponent. Deponent knows that Joseph Peavitt had negroes upon Penman's place for several years, and cultivated that place at the same time that he planted the plantation in Peavitt's swamp. Deponent does not know how much land Peavitt owned in the swamp, but always thought the whole belonged to him. Deponent knew Maria Evans, the wife of Peavitt, well; after the death of Peavitt she married a man by the name of Hudson, who died here some time since—some time before the death of Maria Evans. Peavitt had no children, and, after his death, his wife had possession of all his property to the time of her death. The house built by Peavitt was from thirty to thirty-five feet long, and sixteen or seventeen broad; he had about twenty-eight negroes, workers, and all necessary houses for them, and had about forty or fifty acres cleared and in cultivation for them, besides a considerable quantity of pine land.

BERNARDO SEGUI, J. P.

EAST FLORIDA, St. John's County :

This day personally appeared before the subscriber, one of the justices of the peace for the county aforesaid, Nicholas Estefanopoly, who, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that he has resided in St. Augustine for many years; that he was acquainted with Joseph Peavitt before and after the cession of this country by Great Britain to Spain, and knew of the said Joseph Peavitt becoming a Spanish subject; that he, this deponent, was employed by Peavitt at sundry jobs at said Peavitt's plantation, situated about two miles west from St. Augustine, and at a place called Swamp—this — whilst under the government of Great Britain; but that he knows Peavitt remained cultivating the said land up to the time of his death, and that he has not a doubt his widow continued in possession for many years after, and planted the same; that he never heard the right of Peavitt's heirs to this land questioned. Deponent knew Maria Evans, the wife of Peavitt; after the death of Peavitt she married a man by the name of Hudson, who died here some time before the death of Maria Evans.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we ascertain that the land was originally granted to one Skinner by the British government; that he conveyed it by deed to Joseph Peavitt; that Peavitt, after the cession of this country to Spain, continued to occupy and cultivate it; that he became a Spanish subject, and died without issue; that his wife continued to occupy, and cultivated the same until her death; that in her last will and testament she bequeathed the land to Thomas Travers, deceased. We confirm the title to claimant. April 15.

Joseph Allen Smith vs. The United States. For a lot of land in St. Augustine.

MEMORIAL.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, East Florida:

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of J. Allen Smith respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a certain lot or parcel of ground situated and being in the city of St. Augustine, in East Florida aforesaid, having the following lines, dimensions, and boundaries, that is to say: the north line thereof is ninety varas long, and is bounded by lands belonging to George J. F. Clarke; the east line is eighty-four varas long, and is bounded by the head of Matanzas river; the south line is eighty varas in length, and at the time of the survey thereof was bounded by lands of the King; and the west line thereof is two hundred and seventy-five varas in length, and is bounded by the road or street which leads from the powder-house to the city. The said lot of ground is situated near the southern extremity of the boundaries of the city called Sully's Buildings Stand; which said lines and several boundaries will fully appear by a reference to the description of the said lot, as it is contained and set forth in the royal title to the same granted March 9, 1818, which is of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives of East Florida. Your memorialist further shows that the said lot of land was originally granted in or about the year 1793, to one José Ximenes, under the royal order of the King of Spain of March 29, 1790; that possession of said lot was actually taken and kept by the said Joseph Ximenes until his death; that the original grant or concession to the said José Ximenes has been lost, and appears to have been lost before the royal or absolute title thereto was granted; that Catalina Acosta, after the death of her husband, the said José Ximenes, applied for said royal title, alleging the loss of the original concession, making proof of its existence, the possession and actual occupancy of the said lot of land from about the year 1793, by her husband and his family, and after his death by herself; and of the cultivation thereof, and her right to an absolute title: Whereupon, an absolute or royal title was made to the said Catalina Acosta, the widow and heir of the said José Ximenes, March 9, 1818, and the said allegations with respect to the right of the said Catalina Acosta will appear by a reference to the said original grant, of record as aforesaid. Your memorialist further shows that the ancient concession and grant of the said lot of ground to the said José Ximenes is further proved by the original plat and certificate of the first survey of the same for the said José Ximenes made in the year 1797, which is of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives, and to which your memorialist prays a reference; that the said lot of land and its appurtenances were, on the 12th of March, conveyed by the said Catalina Acosta to the late Michael Crosby, deceased, and by the said Michael Crosby to your memorialist on June 25, 1821, for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, as will appear by a reference to the original conveyances of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives, since which your memorialist has erected three large dwelling-houses, and otherwise improved the said lot of ground, and the said houses are occupied by tenants of your memorialist. Your memorialist further shows that the said José Ximenes, and Catalina Acosta, and Michael Crosby, were severally, at all the times herein mentioned, inhabitants and settlers of East Florida and Spanish subjects; and that your memorialist was a resident of East Florida at the time of the conveyance to him of the said lot, and at the cession of this Territory to the United State. Wherefore, your memorialist prays confirmation of his title to the said lot of land and its appurtenances; and he will ever pray, &c.

J. ALLEN SMITH,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

TESTIMONY.

J. Allen Smith vs. The United States. A lot of land in St. Augustine.

John Drysdale, being sworn on the part of claimant, states that it is within his knowledge that the buildings which now stand on the lots claimed by the memorialist were erected by Chester Sully, as the agent for claimant, soon after the purchase of the property; that from that time until Mr. Sully left this city, which was about eighteen months ago, had charge of the property as agent for the claimant; that at the time when Mr. Sully left this, this deponent was appointed the agent of Mr. Smith for the purpose of taking care of said property; and that said property now belongs, as the deponent believes, to claimant; and that one of the houses on the said lot is now occupied.
