EXTINGUISHMENT OF TITLE OF QUAPAW INDIANS TO LAND IN ARKANSAS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 8, 1823.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The general assembly of the Territory of Arkansas represent: That in the very heart of the Territory, and claiming one of the finest sections of our country within our limits, reside the Quapaw Indians. They claim the south bank of the Arkansas from the old post to the present seat of government, a distance of two hundred and fifty miles, with a depth of ninety miles. Above this point the principal objects of agriculture are corn, wheat, &c.; below, including their entire claim, the soil is peculiarly adapted to the culture of cotton. The north side of the river opposite their claim is, in many places, subject to overflow, and much inferior to the south, which is high and commanding. Add to this, the best part of the northern bank is covered by the claim of Winters, which in a great measure prevents its settlement. Thus, out of five millions of good cotton land on the banks of one of the finest navigable streams in the west, but one is open to settlement, and that one the most indifferent of the five. The first object in the improvement of a new country should be good roads. The Quapaw claim, separating the southern and western parts of the Territory, precludes the practicability of a direct communication between them. The remnant of what was once a nation claiming this land, from their insulated situation, surrounded as they are on all sides by the whites, have degenerated into the most perfect sloth and idleness, and the country which they inhabit, which would sustain fifty thousand souls, is scarcely furrowed by a plough. The possession of this country, in three years, from its exports, would produce a balance of trade to Orleans in our favor, instead of the destructive drain which the purchase of necessaries now produces. Its purchase might now be effected for twenty thousand dollars, and the revenue which its sale would produce to the government in five years would be twenty times that amount. They are willing to sell, and would remove beyond the limits of the United States, and unite with the Caddoes of Texas, a tribe who speak their language.

Your petitioners feel satisfied that a view of a map of their country would convince any disinterested mind that the removal of these Indians are essential to our prosperity and advancement. They therefore confidently appeal to your honorable body for a redress of their grievance, and ask for an appropriation that will effect an object so paramount, and so universally desired by their constituents.

BOUNTY LANDS IN ARKANSAS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 8, 1823.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled:

The general assembly of the Territory of Arkansas would most respectfully represent: That most of the lands patented to the soldiers of the late army of the United States are now subject to taxation, nearly all of which are withheld from the knowledge of the proper officers of the Territory, depriving her of a large revenue to which she is justly entitled. We therefore ask of you the passage of a resolution directing the Commissioner of the General Land Office to furnish a list of all the bounty lands lying in the Territory of Arkansas, designating the quarter section, to whom and when granted; which list shall be forwarded, under the direction of our delegate, to the governor of our Territory.

POSTPONEMENT OF THE SALE OF PUBLIC LANDS AND PRE-EMPTIONS TO SETTLERS IN ALABAMA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 12, 1823.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the general assembly of the State of Alabama respectfully represents: That the lands in the counties of Decatur and Jackson have been surveyed with a view to be sold pursuant to the existing laws, and that a majority of the present settlers on those lands and upon all the unsold land in this State, for many considerations of public justice and national policy, deserve the favorable interposition of Congress. They were among the first who relinquished their prospects in their native States and adventured to open the country. They made settlements and improvements upon the land, then unsold, greatly enhancing its value. But those improvements were taken by capitalists and companies, who, having superior means, were permitted to purchase and enjoy without an equivalent the fruits of enterprise and labor not their own. The inhabitants thus supplanted and turned adrift and homeless upon the frontier were among the first who were called to engage in the contest for more territory, and were not the least efficient in obtaining the acquisition; yet, being still unable to obtain permanent possessions, they were constrained to open and cultivate lands remaining unsold. The improvements made by them at the labor and expense of several years have not, however, increased their means of purchasing, while they have greatly raised the saleable value of the land. The causes of this are obvious. The price of cotton, the staple of the country, has fallen; and the bank paper circulated, and which has become almost the only currency of the northern part of Alabama, has, by the refusal of the banks to redeem it, depreciated so greatly as to be rejected at the land offices. Hence, if the sales of the lands in question be immediate, the product to the United States will be inconsiderable when compared to what may be derived under more favorable circumstances. If it be now sold, the small quantity of sound currency in the hands of a few can, in a great degree, be funded for the purpose not only of purchasing at the lowest prices, but of withholding from many of the meritorious settlers even the means of acquiring their improvements at those prices; and the consequence will be that the settlers will be again supplanted, and that, too, in a manner disadvantageous to the United States.

This general assembly, therefore, submit for the consideration of the Congress of the United States the propriety of postponing the sale of the public lands in the counties of Jackson and Decatur, and also the justice of making provisions by law for the benefit of those who have made improvements of permanent value on said lands by granting to settlers the right of pre-emption to one quarter section or half quarter section, embracing their improvements, under such regulations as may seem reasonable and expedient.

And be it resolved, That his excellency the governor be required to cause two copies of the foregoing memorial to be made out and forwarded—one to our senators and one to our representative in Congress.

LAND FOR SEATS OF JUSTICE IN ALABAMA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 15, 1824.

MEMORIAL TO CONGRESS ON THE SUBJECT OF PRE-EMPTION RIGHTS.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the general assembly of Alabama respectfully represents: That whereas the Congress of the United States at their last session passed an act granting to certain counties in this State in which the public lands have not been sold the right of pre-emption to a certain quarter section of land for the location of the seats of justice in the said counties, respectively.

Your memorialists would further show that in the counties of Bibb, Henry, and Pike, public buildings have been erected on the public lands at considerable expense to the said counties; your memorialists are therefore of opinion that a similar law in relation to the counties above recited would not only be an act of justice, but would greatly enhance the value of the land adjacent thereto; your memorialists would further represent that, in several of the counties in this State, a part only of the public lands have been sold by the government; and in some of the counties thus situated the positions most eligible for the establishment of the seats of justice have been sold; and that, therefore, as the act of your honorable body before alluded to requires the location of the seats of justice on the land to which the pre-emption right is granted, the counties so situated are deprived of the benefit which your memorialists believe was intended by the said act of Congress; your memorialists, therefore, in consideration of the premises, pray your honorable body to pass a law granting to the counties situated as herein set forth the right of pre-emption to a quarter section of land to be selected in any part of the county (of such land as has not been sold) to be sold, and the proceeds to be applied to the erection of the public buildings in said counties; and your memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

Resolved, That the governor be required to transmit two copies of the foregoing memorial to the Congress of the United States—one copy to our senators and one copy to our representatives, and request their exertions to procure the passage of a law embracing the objects of the same.

REGULATIONS FOR GRANTING LAND UNDER THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 17, 1824.

REGULATIONS FOR THE GRANTING OF LAND UNDER THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT OF LOUISIANA, AND MR. GALLATIN'S INSTRUCTIONS TO THE LAND COMMISSIONERS IN LOUISIANA AND MISSOURI.

Don Alexander O'Reilly, commander of Benfayon, of the Order of Alcantara, inspector general of infantry, appointed by special commission governor and captain general of this province of Louisiana.

Divers complaints and petitions which have been addressed to us by the inhabitants of Opelousas, Attakapas, Natchitoches, and other places of this province, joined to the knowledge we have acquired of the local concerns, culture, and means of the inhabitants, by the visit which we have lately made to the Cote des Allemands, Cote des Accadians, Hyberville, and La Pointe Coupee, with the examination we have made of the reports of the inhabitants assembled, by our order, in each district, having convinced us that the tranquillity of the said inhabitants and the progress of culture required a new regulation, which should fix the extent of the grants of lands which shall hereafter be made, as well as the enclosures, cleared lands, roads, and bridges, which the inhabitants are bound to keep in repair, and to point out the damage by cattle, for which the proprietors shall be responsible; for these causes, and having nothing in view but the public good and the happiness of every inhabitant, after having advised with persons well informed in these matters, we have regulated all those objects in the following articles:

1. There shall be granted to each newly arrived family who may wish to establish themselves on the borders of the river six or eight arpents in front (according to the means of the cultivator) by forty arpents in depth, in order that they may have the benefit of the cypress wood, which is as necessary as useful to the inhabitants.

2. The grantees established on the borders of the river shall be held bound to make, within the first three years of possession, mounds sufficient for the preservation of the land and the ditches necessary to carry off the water. They shall, besides, keep the roads in good repair, of the width of at least forty feet between the inner ditch, which runs along the mound, and the barrier, with bridges of twelve feet over the ditches which may cross the roads. The said grantees shall be held bound, within the said term of three years' possession, to clear the whole front of their land to the depth of two arpents; and in default of fulfilling these conditions their land shall revert to the King's domain, and be granted anew; and the judge of each place shall be responsible to the governor for the superintendence of this object.

3. The said grants can neither be sold nor aliened by the proprietors until after three years of possession, and until the above-mentioned conditions shall have been entirely fulfilled. To guard against every evasion in this respect, the sales of the said lands cannot be made without a written permission from the governor general, who will not grant it until, on strict inquiry, it shall be found that the conditions above explained have been duly executed.

4. The points formed by the lands on the Mississippi river, leaving in some places but little depth, there may be granted in these cases twelve arpents front; and, on a supposition that these points should not be applied for by any inhabitant, they shall be distributed to the settlers nearest thereto, in order that the communication of the roads may not be interrupted.

5. If a tract belonging to minors should remain uncleared, and the mounds and roads should not be kept in repair, the judge of the quarter shall inquire into the cause thereof. If attributable to the guardian, he shall oblige him to conform promptly to this regulation; but if arising from want of means in the minors, the judge, after having by a verbal process attained proof thereof, shall report the same to the governor general, to the end that the said land may be sold for the benefit of the minors; (a special favor granted to minors only;) but if no purchaser shall, within six months, be found, the said land shall be conceded gratis.

6. Every inhabitant shall be held bound to enclose, within three years, the whole front of his land which shall be cleared; and for the remainder of his enclosure he will agree with his neighbors in proportion to his cleared land and his means.

7. Cattle shall be permitted to go at large from the eleventh of November to the fifteenth of March of the year following; and at all other times the proprietor shall be responsible for the damage that his cattle may have done to his neighbors. He who may have suffered the damage shall complain to the judge of the district, who, after having satisfied himself of the truth thereof, shall name experienced men to estimate the value of the same, and shall then order remuneration without delay.

8. No grant in the Opelousas, Attakapas, and Natchitoches shall exceed one league in front by one league in depth; but when the land granted shall not have that depth, a league and a half in front by half a league in depth may be granted.

9. To obtain in the Opelousas, Attakapas, and Natchitoches a grant of forty-two arpents in front by forty-two arpents in depth, the applicant must make it appear that he is possessor of one hundred head of tame cattle, some horses and sheep, and two slaves to look after them; a proportion which shall always be observed for the grants to be made of greater extent than that declared in the preceding article.

10. All cattle shall be branded by the proprietors; and those who shall not have branded them at the age of eighteen months cannot thereafter claim a property therein.

11. Nothing being more injurious to the inhabitants than strayed cattle, without the destruction of which tame cattle cannot increase, and the inhabitants will continue to labor under those evils of which they have often complained to us, and considering that the province is at present infested by strayed cattle, we allow to the proprietors, until the first day of July of the next year, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-one, and no longer, to collect and kill to their use the said strayed cattle; after which time they shall be considered wild, and may be killed by any person whomsoever; and no one shall oppose himself thereto, or lay claim to a property therein.

12. All grants shall be made, in the name of the King, by the governor general of the province, who will, at the same time, appoint a surveyor to fix the bounds thereof, both in front and depth, in presence of the judge ordinary of the district, and of two adjoining settlers, who shall be present at the survey. The above-mentioned four persons shall sign the verbal process which shall be made thereof, and the surveyor shall make three copies of the same; one of which shall be deposited in the office of the scrivener of the government and the cabildo, another shall be delivered to the governor general, and the third to the proprietor, to be annexed to the titles of his grant.

In pursuance of the powers which our lord the King (whom God preserve) has been pleased to confide to us by his patent, issued at Aranjuez April 16, 1769, to establish in the military, the police, and in the administration of justice and his finances, such regulations as should be conducive to his service and the happiness of his subjects in this colony, with the reserve of his Majesty's good pleasure, we order and command the governor, judges, cabildo, and all the inhabitants of this province, to perform punctually all that is required by this regulation.

Given at New Orleans February 18, 1770.

SPANISH REGULATIONS FOR THE ALLOTMENT OF LANDS.

Instructions of Governor Gayoso for the administration of the posts and distribution of lands.

Instructions to be observed by the commandants of the posts in this province for the admission of new settlers:

1. If the new settler comes from another post in the province where he has obtained a grant of land no other grant shall be made to him; and if he undertakes to fix himself down he must buy lands, or produce my special permission for the grant; and in order to determine whether he has before obtained land or not, the commandant of the post from which he goes shall express it in his passport.

2. If the new settler is a stranger, and is not a farmer, nor married, nor has property in negroes, merchandise, or money, he shall have no right to solicit a grant of lands until he has remained four years, conducting himself well in some honest and useful occupation.

3. Artisans shall be fully protected, but no land shall be granted to them until they have acquired property, and have lived three years in the exercise of their art or profession.

4. To no unmarried emigrant who has not a trade or profession shall lands be granted till after the expiration of four years, and then only on his showing that he has been without interruption honestly employed in the cultivation of the earth; without which necessary circumstance he shall not be entitled to a grant.

5. If any person as described in the last article, after having lived in the country two years, shall obtain a recommendation from a farmer of honesty, who shall be willing, from his industry and application, to give him his daughter in marriage, as soon as the marriage is accomplished in due form he shall be entitled to receive a grant of land, agreeably to the terms contained in this instruction.

6. The privilege of enjoying liberty of conscience is not to extend beyond the first generation. The children of those who enjoy it must positively be Catholics. Those who will not conform to this rule are not to be admitted, but are to be sent back out of the province immediately, even though they possess much property.

7. In the Illinois none shall be admitted but Catholics of the classes of farmers and artisans. They must also possess some property, and must not have served in any public character in the country from whence they come. The provisions of the preceding article shall be explained to the emigrants already established in the province who are not Catholics, and shall be observed by them, the not having done it until this time being an omission, and contrary to the orders of his Majesty, which required it from the beginning.

8. The commandants will take particular care that no Protestant preacher, or one of any sect other than the Catholic, shall introduce himself into the province. The least neglect in this respect will be a subject of great reprehension.

9. To every new settler answering the foregoing description, and married, there shall be granted two hundred arpents of land; fifty arpents shall be added for every child he shall bring with him.

10. To every emigrant possessing property and uniting the circumstances before mentioned, who shall arrive with an intention to establish himself, there shall be granted two hundred arpents of land; and, in addition, twenty arpents for every negro that he shall bring: provided, however, that the grant shall never exceed eight hundred arpents to one proprietor. If he has such a number of negroes as would entitle him, at the above rate, to a larger grant, he will also possess the means of purchasing more than that quantity of land if he wants it; and it is necessary, by all possible means, to prevent speculations in lands.

11. No lands shall be granted to traders: as they live in the towns they do not want them.

12. Immediately on the arrival of a new settler the oath of fidelity shall be required of him. If he is married, he shall prove that the wife whom he brings with him is his lawful wife. If he has goods or personal property, they shall both declare what part of them belongs to the portion of the wife, and whether any part belongs to any person who is absent, giving them to understand that if the contrary of what they assert is proved the lands which are granted to them shall be taken back, with all the improvements they may have made upon them.

13. At the time when they take the oath the above particulars are to be attended to; and no lands are to be granted for any negroes which are not proved to be lawfully and wholly the property of the emigrant, nor for the wife whom he brings with him, unless she is proved to be his lawful wife. In default of making such proofs he is to be taken as coming within the description given in the second article.

14. The new settler to whom lands have been granted shall lose them without recovery if in the term of one year he shall not begin to establish himself upon them, or if in the third year he shall not have put under labor ten arpents in every hundred.

15. He shall not possess the right to sell his lands until he shall have produced three crops on the tenth part of his lands, which shall be well cultivated; but in case of death he may leave them to his lawful heir, if he has one resident in the country. If he has no heir in the country they shall in no event go to an heir who is not of the country, unless such heir shall resolve to come and reside in it conformably to the established conditions.

16. Debts contracted out of the province cannot be paid with the produce of lands thus granted, if there are debts due in the province, until after five harvests have been gathered. If for bad conduct it shall become necessary to eject the settler from the country before he shall have made the three crops necessary to give him the dominion of the soil and the right to dispose of it, the lands shall then again become united to the domain of the King, and in the same state shall be granted alternately to the young man and to the young woman residing within one league of the land which shall thus become vacant who, by their good conduct, shall best deserve such a gift. The question who is entitled to this preference shall be decided in an assembly of the most considerable people, headed by the commandant, which decision they shall make without any expense. They shall only consult me in the case, making known the circumstances for my approbation, and shall without delay put the deserving person in possession.

17. The forms established by my predecessors in which to petition for lands shall be followed under the conditions expressed in this order, with the difference only that when the quantity of land amounts to or exceeds three hundred arpents the fees to the secretary must be paid.

18. It shall not be permitted to any new settler to form an establishment at a distance from other settlers. The grants of land must be so made as not to have pieces of vacant ground between one and another, since this would offer a greater exposure to the attacks of the Indians, and render more difficult the administration of justice and the regulation of the police, so necessary in all societies, and more particularly in new settlements.

EXTINGUISHMENT OF INDIAN TITLE TO LAND IN INDIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE FEBRUARY 13, 1824.

A JOINT RESOLUTION on the subject of extinguishing the Indian title to lands within the State of Indiana.

Whereas the further extinguishment of Indian title to lands within the State of Indiana would greatly facilitate the intercourse of the whole western country with the eastern and middle States, increase in a great degree the population of the northern sections of this State, tend to improve the navigation of our rivers in the interior, and further the grand object of effecting a canal communication between the waters of the Ohio and the lakes:

Resolved, That our senators be instructed, and our representatives in Congress requested, to use their best exertions to procure an appropriation by Congress for the purpose of effecting this desirable object, and in all respects to promote the object of this resolution.

Resolved, That his excellency the governor, at as early a period as possible, forward to our senators and representatives in Congress a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution, accompanied with a request that the same be laid before Congress for their consideration.

EXEMPTION OF PUBLIC LANDS FROM TAXATION AFTER SALE IN INDIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE FEBRUARY 23, 1824.

A JOINT RESOLUTION of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana relative to taxing lands within this State.

Resolved by the general assembly of the State of Indiana, That the reasons of the compact between the general government and this State, by which this State guaranteed an exemption from taxation of all lands for five years from and after the purchase thereof, purchased of the general government after the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and sixteen, have, by the act of Congress changing the whole land system, totally ceased.

Resolved, That the right of taxation on the part of this State from and after the day of sale cannot by any possibility be injurious to the interests of the United States.

Resolved, That our representatives in Congress be requested, and our senators instructed, to use their utmost exertions to obtain a repeal or modification of the compact between the United States and this State, as referred to in the foregoing resolution.

Resolved, That his excellency the governor be requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing resolutions to the Speaker of the House of Representatives in Congress, and a copy to each of our senators and representatives.

COMPENSATION OF REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 25, 1824.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 24, 1824.

In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives, passed on the 11th instant, the Secretary of the Treasury has the honor to transmit herewith a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, which, with the accompanying documents, constitutes all the information in this department touching the several matters referred to in the resolution.

With respect to the compensation allowed by law to the registers and receivers, the Secretary is convinced it has not been adequate to the services rendered in all cases where fees have not been demanded which were not authorized by the law. The Secretary therefore respectfully recommends that the President be authorized to make such additional compensation as may be considered just and reasonable, but in no case exceeding the clerk hire actually paid by each receiver and register during the twelve months immediately preceding July 1, 1821.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the *House of Representatives.*GENERAL LAND OFFICE, February 16, 1824.

SIR: In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to state what practical construction has been given by the several registers and receivers, respectively, to the act of 1821, for the relief of the purchasers of the public lands, and the instructions given them relative to said act with regard to fees or compensation, &c., &c., and which has been referred by you to this office, I have the honor to submit a copy of the instructions given in regard to the fees sanctioned by the seventh and eighth sections of the act above alluded to. It is not known at this office that any other or greater fees were demanded or received by the registers and receivers than those sanctioned by the instructions; it is, however, possible that there may have been instances where the registers have charged more than fifty cents for each declaration, on the ground that the declaration embraced more than one tract for further credit. As no returns of the amount of fees received by the officers were required to be made to this office, we have no means of ascertaining this fact, or the amount of fees which was received by the officers respectively.

It appears that a great variety of constructions have been given by the registers and receivers, respectively, as to the compensation to which they were entitled for services rendered under the act for the relief of the purchasers of the public lands; and as it seems to have been the universal opinion of these officers that the fees allowed by law were inadequate to compensate them for the extra services imposed, and as they appear to have been stimulated to a proper execution of the work by prospects held out from this office that further remuneration for their services would be granted by Congress, I have deemed it proper to submit the correspondence on that subject.

On the adjustment at this office of the accounts of the officers, no charge made for extra services under the act for the relief of the purchasers of the public lands, either in the shape of clerk hire or as a percentage on the amount of the lands relinquished, is admitted.

In those instances where the officers may have received the fees allowed by law and resigned their offices before the business had been finished, their successors have been instructed to have the unfinished business executed and the necessary returns made, and for the extra expense incurred the officer who received the fees will be held liable under his bond.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

GEO. GRAHAM.

Hon. Wm. H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of the Treasury.Extract from a circular to the registers and receivers, dated"TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, June 1, 1821.

"The registers are entitled to receive fifty cents for receiving, recording, and filing the declaration of each and every person or company who shall avail themselves of the benefit of the act."

"The registers and receivers, respectively, are entitled to receive fifty cents from the party relinquishing for each half quarter section, quarter section, half section, section, fractional section, or legal subdivision of a fractional section so relinquished."

There are also transmitted a blank declaration and relinquishment. It will be observed that there was no more compensation allowed for a declaration embracing fifty tracts than for one including a single tract.

LAND OFFICE, Steubenville, July 14, 1821.

SIR: I have received your letter of the 29th June, with the circulars of the 1st, 15th, 26th, and 27th, and sundry books and forms, &c. The blank declarations and relinquishments to be executed by purchasers are immediately wanted. The business cannot be entered on without them, as the parties are entirely incapable of writing them for themselves. The blank books for records of relinquishments will probably be sufficient, or nearly so, but of these I cannot make an accurate estimate. I have no data from which a calculation can be made. About four books more for recording declarations will be required. The number of declarations may probably be about one thousand.

I have, unfortunately, been acting on the law. I have not received or entered any relinquishments, but, believing it necessary that a declaration should be filed for every tract to entitle the party to the benefit of the law, and the applications being numerous, and great complaints made of the delay, many stating their inability to attend again, and complaining of the distance they had to travel, I consented to receive and file declarations. I considered the declaration as an entirely distinct thing from the relinquishment, and, being an act necessary only to entitle the party to a benefit, it did not appear to me that as much formality was necessary in this case as in case of a relinquishment. I therefore drew up a short form, stating the consent of the party as purchaser of the tract therein named to the law, which was signed by him or his agent in my presence. Of this transaction I made a marginal note at the original entry, and endorsed the same on his certificate, which was returned to him. One hundred and five declarations have been entered in this manner.

Several payments have been made, and a considerable sum of money received which otherwise would not have been paid, for I did not consider the party as entitled to any benefit of the act until he had filed his declaration. If any of these parties wish to relinquish any part of their land, the relinquishment, which must be entered before the 30th of September, will supersede the declaration, and the whole can, after that day, be entered in the abstracts to which they properly belong. You say "the duties of the office will be arduous" for a few months. To me they appear to be impracticable, on the plan proposed, within the time prescribed. The calculations alone necessary to make the entries in the different abstracts could not be made in the time prescribed. If this plan be insisted on, I must beg leave to decline it entirely. I will take the liberty of suggesting a plan which I think will answer every purpose, and which may be practicable. I will undertake to make the entries required in the abstract of relinquishments, as far as they can now be made, leaving the certificates to be issued and the journal entries to be made out at a time of more leisure, if that time ever occurs. In the case of declarations where no part of the land is to be relinquished, I propose to receive, file, and record the declaration, make the marginal note of it, and endorse the original certificate, leaving it, for the present at least, in possession of the party. In this way every act to be done by the purchaser to entitle him to the benefit of the law may, possibly, be got through against the 30th of September. After that day, when the pressure of business will be over, the entries can be made in the abstract of further credits from the declarations, and the new certificates, if it be necessary, can be issued when the party comes to pay an instalment, when more time can be taken to make the calculations. But I would beg that new certificates in this case might be dispensed with; they do not appear to me to be absolutely indispensable, and the issuing these will impose an intolerable burden on the register, for which there is no compensation allowed.

The entries in the abstract of lands fully paid for can be made, likewise, after the pressure of business, from my register of certificates.

There is another difficulty which may be insuperable. By the second section of the law "the interest which shall have accrued before the 30th day of September next upon any debt to the United States for public lands shall be, and the same is hereby, remitted and discharged." What interest is remitted by this law? When the payment of an instalment has been completed and the interest charged in the ledger I presume that interest is not remitted. But, in many cases, payments on account have been received. In these cases the calculations of interest and discount were never made until the instalment was closed, and, in some cases, not until the final settlement of the account, when they appeared in the receiver's receipts and were charged in the books. These payments may be entitled to discount, or be chargeable with their proportion of interest, according to the existing law at the time the payments were made, but no actual entry of interest or discount is made in the books, the instalment or the account not being closed. Now, is all this unsettled interest remitted? If it be not remitted it will be impossible to make the entries in the abstract of relinquishments. The time allowed would not be sufficient to make the calculations alone. And it is evident that until the calculations be made, and all the interest and discount actually entered in the ledger, we have not the data from which the entries required in the abstract of relinquishments are to be made. If this interest on these partial payments be remitted by the law, but the party be entitled to a discount on any partial payment made before due by former laws, the entries cannot be made in the abstract until the calculations be made and the discount entered in the ledger, because we cannot determine the amount transferable from lands relinquished, of which the discount forms a part, nor the balance due on lands retained; so that if any notice is to be taken, either of interest or discount, on partial payments where the instalment is not closed, it appears to me to be impracticable to make the entries required in the abstract of relinquishments. I mean within the time required by law; for, if sufficient time were allowed, and sufficient assistance, every difficulty can be overcome.

In taking a view of the duties imposed on me by this law, and the plan adopted for carrying it into effect, I am ready to sink in total despair of being able to discharge them to your or my satisfaction. The difficulties appear insurmountable, considering the shortness of the time; and I will not attempt or promise what I am unable to perform. Other registers may judge for themselves; but I must declare my decided conviction that the law cannot be executed without allowing clerk hire for one year, at least at the rate of not less than seven hundred and fifty dollars, or giving the register a salary that will enable him to procure the necessary assistance. I presume the Secretary of the Treasury has power to allow clerk hire, and I am persuaded that, on a representation of the case to him, he will see the necessity of it. My whole compensation will not exceed seven or eight hundred dollars per year—a sum which falls far short of supporting my family—and the whole of which would not pay the clerk hire imposed on me by this law. The sum I have mentioned for clerk hire may appear large; but it must be considered that a clerk capable of doing this business is rarely to be found; and as a permanent situation cannot be promised, the salary will probably be higher. As it would require at least one year to do this business as it ought to be done, and secure correctness, the only mode which appears practicable now is to file and record the declarations, as already mentioned, and to record and file the relinquishments, and enter all the tracts which will come into view in effecting the relinquishments in the abstract. The debtors will then have complied with everything required of them to entitle them to the benefit of the law in due time; and the other entries in the abstract can be made at leisure, after making the necessary calculations and entries of interest and discount.

I shall anxiously await your answer, and will in the meantime do no business other than receive cash payments.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

DAVID HOGE, Register Land Office.

LAND OFFICE AT STEUBENVILLE, July 20, 1821.

SIR: In my letter of the 14th instant, which was written with much haste immediately after receiving the forms, I may have used some expressions which may be misunderstood. I did not mean to express any reluctance to any duty, or to engage in any labor that might be required; but merely my fear of not being able to do the business within the time required, and lest, by that means, purchasers might be deprived of the benefit of the law.

I have now more fully examined and considered your plan. It is admirably calculated to give a connected view of the accounts, and of the operation of the law on them. There is nothing wanting but sufficient time to carry it into complete effect. The great difficulty is the uncharged interest and discount on partial payments. As soon as I receive your final instructions respecting these, and the forms for purchasers, I will engage in the business, and no exertion in my power shall be spared to give you satisfaction and fulfil the law. No inconvenience will result from the present delay. People being now engaged in the labors of harvest, not a single application has been made for a week or two.

As this accumulation of business will oblige me to employ an additional clerk or two, and my compensation is far below what it ought to be, I hope you will think it reasonable to allow clerk hire.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

DAVID HOGE, Register.

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 2.

KASKASKIA, November 2, 1821.

SIR: Herewith you will receive accounts of lands applied for and moneys entered during the month of October last, together with two receipts, Nos. 4766 and 4767, granted by the receiver in conformity with the provisions of the act of the 2d of March last; also receipt No. 31 and final certificate No. 31, granted to Thomas Ferrill under the cash system; the receipts issued prior to the 30th September last, for payments made for lands purchased prior to July 1, 1820, we have retained, and shall forward them with our abstracts, which will be ready for transmission in a short time. You will perceive that the receipts issued under the act of March last are of the same series of numbers with those issued for the lands purchased prior to July 1, 1820.

I have had for some time four clerks, and never less than three, employed in my office; the duties are very arduous, and will require much labor and time to complete the whole accurately, and I trust the government will allow the registers compensation commensurate with their services. A per centum on all lands relinquished would, in fact, not amount to an adequate reward for the additional services required of them.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

MICH. JONES, Register.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 3.

RECEIVER'S OFFICE AT STEUBENVILLE, July 16, 1821.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your circular of the 30th ultimo. The abstracts, receipts, &c., have come to hand in good order. I shall make my returns of the proceedings under the law of the 2d March at the same time as the register, and in the manner instructed.

As this is one of the oldest land districts, individual accounts, almost innumerable, are open, alone composing several ledgers. It is, therefore, impossible at this time to estimate the number of the books of the abstract B which will be requisite for the use of this office. So soon as it can be done with a probability of certainty I shall inform you. It is equally difficult to estimate the number of receipts of the different forms received; if more are required they can be printed here.

I take the liberty to suggest one thing to you as to the increased and arduous duties the new land law imposes on these offices, an accurate idea of which you have, no doubt, obtained from the examination and complete analysis it has undergone in your office. The limited time that yet remains to those persons who are inclined to take the benefit of that law will necessarily crowd the business almost to pressure in the months of August and September. Very many purchasers of public lands are now waiting until the forms shall be received and understood, so as to enable them to complete their business. To do the necessary business of that period, and to make out and transmit the abstracts and reports within three months thereafter, agreeably to the law and your instructions, will require the whole attention of myself and one clerk. I shall, therefore, be under the necessity of employing another to do the ordinary and current business of the office, and I hope his compensation will be allowed me at the treasury; I am the more inclined to believe that this additional expense will be allowed, as you recollect that the receiver's compensation has within the last few years been curtailed of a half per cent. The remaining percentage received at this office would be no more than sufficient to pay a competent clerk, as none could be useful in it but a person of considerable talents and strict integrity—qualifications not procured in this country without considerable compensation. I should, therefore, in the employment of two clerks (and with fewer I am convinced I cannot complete the business in that correct and satisfactory manner that is contemplated in the instructions) receive nothing for my own labor and attention, risk and responsibility. Although it is extremely irksome for me to ask anything of the government except the usual and ordinary fees of the office, yet I have the less hesitation in making the above request as I consider it to be contemplated by the laws and usages regulating the Treasury Department. I find from letters of record in this office, received from that department, that the receivers of public moneys have been allowed additional compensation for particular services and unexpected duties, such as the transportation of specie, &c., and their reasonable account admitted. I hope, therefore, to receive your instructions to do so in the present instance, as the business of the office has arrived at an unexpected exigency, and to have an additional allowance for clerk hire so long as one shall be necessary.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

SAMUEL STOKELY, Receiver.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office.

RECEIVER'S OFFICE AT ST. STEPHEN'S, August 14, 1821.

SIR: Some doubt exists in relation to the fees allowed by the act of Congress for the relief of the United States debtors for public lands, upon which I respectfully request your opinion. The law allows a fee of fifty cents to the register and receiver for each relinquishment, and the doubt is whether this fee is also allowed where the debtors relinquish their former contract and claim a further credit. There is as much labor imposed upon the officers in making the entries and balancing the books where a further credit is claimed as where a part of the land is given up; and these entries are made entirely for the benefit of the debtors. As no compensation is allowed by the United States for this labor, it would seem reasonable that those who receive the benefit of it should pay for it fifty cents.

I am, with great respect, your obedient servant,

WM. CRAWFORD.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office.

LAND OFFICE, ST. STEPHEN'S, August 14, 1821.

SIR: A doubt has occurred whether, under the late land relief law, any fees are allowable to the receiver and register in cases where further credit only is claimed, other than the register's fees for the filing, &c., of the declaration.

We have declined taking any other fees in those cases; but if your construction of the law will entitle us to any further compensation for this portion of trouble, we are interested how soon you may apprise us of your opinion.

Your most obedient,

ISRAEL PICKENS.
WM. CRAWFORD.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 5.

LAND OFFICE WEST OF PEARL RIVER, July 21, 1821.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you will receive my return for the month of June last; also a list of lands reserved from the sale held in the present month for the use of schools.

The sale consisted of the lands situated among private claims not heretofore offered, (or sold at private sale,) together with the subdivisions of fractions. The lots and out-lots in the city of Natchez were not offered, it being conceived that the President's proclamation did not embrace them.

The forms and instructions accompanying your letter of the 23d ultimo have been received. I discover that the duties that devolve on me are various, complicated, and arduous, requiring my utmost care and circumspection to prevent confusion, and to carry into effect fully the views of the treasury in relation to the law. All that I can promise under this additional weight of responsibility and accumulation of duties is, that every exertion will be made by me to carry into effect the provisions of the law. I am, however, apprehensive that it will not be in my power to perform all the duties without the assistance of a clerk. May I not reasonably expect that the salary of one (say $800 per annum for about six months) will be paid by the government.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office.

B. R. GRAYSON.

No. 6.

LAND OFFICE AT FRANKLIN, Receiver's Office, December 1, 1821.

Sir: I have the honor to transmit herewith my accounts of moneys received under the cash system for the month of November.

The register having offered his resignation and left the country puts it out of my power to make the returns required by law or progress with the entries in the books of my office. The abstract of relinquishment and further credits would now have been ready if I could have obtained the requisite information from the register's office. The abstract of lands fully paid for in cash is now ready, but will not be forwarded until the returns of the register are ready, in conformity with your letter of instructions of June 30.

The late period at which the instructions under the law of the 2d March were received, and the resignation of the register, has caused me to incur an expense which the emoluments of the office will not pay, unless the government will pay the clerks for the period which they were, without my instrumentality, unemployed. This claim I flatter myself will be considered a just one, as the law required certain duties to be performed within a limited period. The clerks necessary to perform it were employed, and the duties would have been executed but for casualties over which I had no control.

I have the honor to be, sir, with high respect, your obedient servant,

T. A. SMITH, Register.

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 7.

LAND OFFICE, Cahaba, January 16, 1822.

Sir: I received yours of the 3d and 8th November, stating the transmission of 18 and 36 quarter quires of abstract C. Those abstracts have been delayed on the way, as I understand from the postmaster, to give room for some public documents which have come to the executive department of this State; but they have at last been received. Not having completed the first copy of that abstract, I am unable to say how many of these blanks will be required for this office; but I presume the quantity in hand will be sufficient. The first copy of my abstract A is made up, and has employed eleven of the books or quarter quires, and we have four blanks of this description left; we shall, consequently, want seven more of abstract A to make the duplicate. We are progressing with this labor as expeditiously as we can, but it is so great a task that I can form but a very imperfect idea when we shall have them completed. I have myself been, and am still, so afflicted with biles that I can do but little at my part of it. I shall add the abstract of relinquishments as soon as I am able to do it, and give you the result of the addition.

It has occurred to me that a great saving of labor may be made by posting each individual account directly from the abstract of relinquishments, instead of first journalizing them. And, in addition to the saving of the labor of journalizing, the chances of errors will be saved manyfold, as I should perform the labor myself in this way; otherwise, I shall have to depend on clerks to do the journalizing, in whom I have less confidence, as to correctness, than in my own work. It will occupy the time of a clerk two years at least to do the journalizing. Will the Congress give us any additional compensation this session for those heavy labors? We shall surely need it.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

ALEX. POPE.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 8.

REGISTER'S OFFICE, Franklin, January 24, 1822.

Sir: I have the honor to inform you that I arrived here on Thursday, the 17th instant, qualified myself agreeably to your instructions of November 14, and immediately entered upon the duties of the office assigned me. I find, on taking charge of the register's office, that all the business which accrued under the law of Congress of March 2, 1821, granting relief to purchasers of public lands prior to July 1, 1820, is yet to perform, or nearly so. From the best information I can obtain from gentlemen acquainted with the business of the office, it will require three or four good clerks twelve or sixteen months to bring up the books and perform the other duties required by the instructions under the law above mentioned.

Exclusive of bringing up the books, the relinquishments and declarations are all yet to record. Certificates of relinquishment and of further credit (with the exception of a few) have yet to be furnished to the receiver. Final certificates and certificates of further credit yet remain to be made out to purchasers, and but little progress has been made in the abstracts, with the exception of the abstract of relinquishments, which is made out as far as relinquishment No. 630, the whole number of relinquishments being 860.

Believing it to be necessary, and the wish of the honorable the Commissioner of the General Land Office, that the business which accrued under the law of March 2, 1821, should be brought up and closed as speedily as possible, I have employed three clerks with that view, relying confidently that the government will defray the whole of the expense of bringing up the business of my predecessor. Allow me to request that you will be good enough to write me on this subject at as early a period as is convenient.

Every effort shall be made by me to have the abstracts of relinquishment and of further credit, &c., required made out and forwarded as speedily as possible. My present impression is that we can commence enclosing them by the 10th of March.

I enclose by this day's mail returns for the months of November and December. They could not be forwarded sooner for the want of the register's signature. Your circular of November 30 has been received, and shall be attended to.

I have the honor to be, with great respect and esteem, sir, your obedient, humble servant,
JOHN MILLER, Register.

Hon. JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 9.

FRANKLIN, MISSOURI, July 16, 1822.

SIR: Enclosed you will receive my quarterly account, ending 30th June last, and nine monthly returns for moneys received for lands purchased of the United States prior to July 1, 1820. These returns are for the months of October, November, and December, 1821, and for January, February, March, April, May, and June, 1822. The final certificates for lands sold prior to July 1, 1820, and fully paid for under the law of March 2, 1821, are now making out, and will be forwarded as speedily as possible; the receiver's receipts for final payment, &c., will accompany the final certificates.

You will perceive from my quarterly account that I have charged a commission of one per cent. on $253,294 01, being the amount of moneys transferred from lands relinquished at this office to the payment of lands retained under the law of March 2, 1821. In making this charge, I consider myself as clearly entitled to a commission on the above-mentioned sum as if it had been actually received in cash. The responsibility and labor in performing the duties required by the law of March 2, 1821, are infinitely greater than they would have been under the old law had the same amount in cash been received. Although I have received to Thomas A. Smith, esq., receiver, for $2,532 94, being the commission on the above-mentioned sum, I have not drawn the money, nor shall I do so until a decision is made on the subject by the proper department. Should the amount charged be allowed, I shall consider myself bound to refund to the government the amount charged by me for clerk hire in bringing up the business which accrued under the law of March 2, 1821.

I will here observe that no part of the fees allowed to the register at this place for receiving, filing, and recording relinquishments and declarations, &c., amounting as they did to near $2,000, were received by me, notwithstanding I have performed nearly the whole of the labor which those fees were intended to have compensated.

Your letter of the 29th and a patent for Mr. Peter Bass have been received, as also your circular to United States land debtors.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,
JOHN MILLER, Register.

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office.

No. 10.

LAND OFFICE, Chillicothe, January 10, 1822.

SIR: The same mail that carries this letter carries the abstract of relinquishments and further credits and lands fully paid for in cash. The statement of tracts on which the law has not been accepted will be put in the mail in a few days, and also the relinquishments and declarations which have been filed by the purchasers. It has been a very laborious business; the compensation allowed is by no means adequate to the labors performed. I hope it will be found correct. I have given all the attention in my power to have them so.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your most obedient servant,

JESSE SPENCER.

JOSIAH MEIGS, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office, Washington.

No. 11.

LAND OFFICE AT EDWARDSVILLE, February 12, 1822.

SIR: But for my having been led to believe, from what I had heard, that I should have received a communication from you, I should long since have written to you on the subject of the compensation to be allowed to the officers of the land offices under the act of the 2d of March last. I have been informed that the Secretary of the Treasury thought the officers were entitled to their per cent. upon lands relinquished; but the silence of the instructions on this subject created some embarrassment, which has since increased by the different views which different officers in this section of the country take as to the sum on which the per cent. should be charged. Most of them contend that they are entitled to one per cent. on the amount of money due on lands relinquished. This I think doubtful. But I am clearly of opinion that they are legally entitled to the per cent. on the amount of moneys heretofore paid on lands relinquished which are transferred and applied to the payment of lands not relinquished.

Those who claim the per cent. on the amount due contend that when the land was sold, the map marked, the certificate issued, and a separate account opened for each tract, the labor was chiefly performed, and but little, comparatively, remained to be done, and that little was required by the old law to be completed within two, three, or, at most, four years, during which time the officers would be reaping a profitable harvest from labor previously bestowed; but by the late law the whole was forced to be done in one year, and, of course, but $3,000 compensation could be received; one-half of which, in large offices, would be required to pay the number of clerks necessary to complete the business within the very short time limited by law. Their claims are further strengthened by the consideration that in future their emoluments will be greatly postponed and the labor much augmented, in consequence of the increased number of entries, there being now, as you know, in one case, four, where there was but one; in another, six, where there were but two; and in another, eight, where there were but three entries formerly.

These considerations, as well as others which could be adduced, present strong claims on the justice of the government for further and more equitable remuneration to the officers of the land offices for the arduous duties which have been performed under the act of the 2d of March last, and it is hoped they will not be overlooked. But I conceive that the officers are strictly, and, under existing laws, legally entitled to the per cent. on the amount of cash paid on lands relinquished which has been transferred to the payment of lands not relinquished. The fee of 50 cents paid by individuals for each tract relinquished I consider was intended as a compensation for the trouble of making out "abstracts," remarking or lettering the maps, and closing in the books the account of the tract relinquished; and, by the way, a very poor and insufficient compensation it has proved to be for this labor and trouble. The relief law had the effect of converting the certificates of land to be relinquished into a species of land stock, or scrip, which it made receivable in payment of other lands, in the same way that Congress originally made the evidence of public debt and more recently the Mississippi stock; and in this State certificates of unlocated confirmed claims, and in Missouri the certificates granted to Lewis and Clarke's men, were receivable in the land office, and the officers allowed their commission in the same manner as if money had been paid. Indeed, so far as the registers are concerned, it is more troublesome to receive these various species of stock in payment of lands sold, as it is always a longer entry than when money itself is paid. It is not a good objection to urge that the officers have already received their commission on the amount of money paid, for the contract has been, by mutual consent, cancelled, and the money which was paid again placed at the disposal of the original owner to be applied as he may think proper in the payment of lands heretofore sold, and requires more labor to make the entry than if the payment had never been applied to other land. It is, in fact, a payment, and as such, the officers are entitled to their commission, whether the same be made in money, bank notes, public stock, or land certificates.

I therefore consider that the officers have an unquestionable right, under existing laws, to their commission on the amount of money which has been transferred from lands relinquished to the payment of lands not relinquished, and I should have felt no hesitation in having presented my account and received my commission on it without consulting you on the subject, but for other land officers, among others the receiver of this office, having claimed and sent on their accounts charging commission on the amount due on lands relinquished. Having doubts, as I observed before, whether we were legally entitled to this, I declined settling my account for the quarter ending on the 30th of September until the question should be settled on which of these sums the government should think we were entitled to a per cent. That the land officers should receive, from the justice of government, more than what I claim as a legal right, will not be denied by any who are acquainted with the detail of the proceedings under the relief act; and not believing that it could have been in the contemplation of Congress to impose unusually arduous duties, which were extra official, and such as never could have been contemplated at the time the officers accepted their offices, (for they were appointed to sell and not to repurchase land,) I cannot but presume that a compensation proportionate to the service rendered will be allowed. To show you how completely the fees paid by individuals have fallen short of being a compensation for the service performed, I will state the receipts and disbursements of this office.

The amount of fees received from individuals for filing notices, and on tracts relinquished, was about $800. For clerk hire and office rent, from the 1st of July to the 1st of January last, $570. On the 1st of January there was between four and five months' employment for one clerk to post the books and complete the business under the relief act, which would cost at least $200. This, therefore, leaves but thirty dollars as a compensation to the register, who, during the whole period, labored as hard, if not harder, than any clerk in the office; and this, I should think, must be pretty much the case in every register's office (I say register, because he has had three times more to do than the receiver) where, in compliance with the law and your instructions, "abstracts" were made out and transmitted within the time prescribed, and where care was taken to keep the abstracts written up as the business came in, and where certificates of further credit were made out and issued in proper time. By the by, the making out of these certificates was a very laborious job, for which the registers received no compensation, nor did they for making out "abstracts" of further credit—fifty cents being the whole amount of fee paid for recording a "declaration," no matter how many tracts it contained.

The commission of one per cent. upon the amount of cash paid on lands relinquished, which has been transferred and applied to the payment of lands not relinquished, amounts to but about $700. This, it certainly must be admitted, is not an adequate compensation, and gives us just claims on the government for further and more liberal remuneration.

I ask the favor of you to show this letter to Mr. Crawford, to give it an early answer, and to be assured of my great respect.

EDWARD COLES.

The COMMISSIONER of the General Land Office.

No. 12.

SHAWNEETOWN, March 7, 1822.

SIR: The law granting relief to the purchasers of public lands, and the instructions recently received, pointing out the mode of carrying that law into effect, imposes on the registers of the several land offices a most laborious duty, for which, in many cases, there appears to be no adequate compensation.

In cases of relinquishment and consolidation the fees may perhaps be considered as adequate to the additional labor which the law imposes, which is not the case; taking into view the immense labor of the abstracts, in making them out and comparing them with every individual account, certainly imposes an additional labor on the officers which the law never contemplated.

But in all cases where the extended credit is preferred, though the duty of the land officer in those cases is very laborious, scarcely the shadow of a compensation seems to have been provided, and yet it is hardly to be credited that the national legislature would impose so much additional labor and consequent expense upon the registers of the respective land offices without granting, or intending to grant, a reasonable compensation. There can be no doubt but a very large proportion of the purchasers of public lands have availed themselves of the relief offered by an extension of credit, and, in those cases, the only fee to which the registers seem to be entitled (let the duty be ever so great) is fifty cents from each applicant. Cases have occurred in my office of an application of a single individual for an extension of credit on from twenty to thirty tracts; the labor in the office of the register required by this operation is in every respect equal to that attending the relinquishment of an equal number of quarter sections; in the latter case, where the fees would amount to about fifteen dollars, which in the former they amount to fifty cents only. This disproportion of compensation to the duties required is, no doubt, to be attributed to accident or inadvertence on the part of the government rather than to an intention to throw an uncompensated labor and burdensome expense on the officers of the land offices.

I cannot but persuade myself that it was the intention of government to allow the registers and receivers a fee of fifty cents as well on each case of an extension of credit as on each case of relinquishment, since it is as just and necessary in the one case as the other.

It may not be improper to observe that the compensation in cases of relinquishment and consolidation is not adequate to the additional labor and expense of clerk hire required by the additional duties imposed.

Under these circumstances, and with this state of facts, would not the government, on a fair and just representation of the immense labor, afford some relief; and would not the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of the General Land Office give to such application the weight and influence of their sanction and advice? It is, indeed, a fact susceptible of demonstration, that the present emoluments of office under the old system are barely equal to the current expenses of the office.

It is equally clear that, after the laborious duty required by the new law shall have been performed and the expenses of the offices paid, the register and receiver will be in debt. There is a subject of importance that I beg leave to call your attention to. Are not the register and receiver entitled by law to their commission on all the lands relinquished? If you are of opinion they are, will you, sir, have the goodness to obtain the opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury on the subject, and advise us of the same.

Your very obedient and humble servant,

THOMAS SLOO.

No. 13.

VINCENNES, March 12, 1822.

DEAR SIR: I have just seen a copy of the letter which my worthy colleague, Mr. Badollet, addressed to you some days since upon the subject of our commission on the amount of money paid upon land relinquished, and I have thought it best to inform you that the contents of that letter coincide exactly with my views of the matter.

It has ever been my opinion that we were justly and legally entitled to our commission on this sum, if not upon the balance due on said lands, and it was my intention to have made the charge in my account current for September last; but, hearing that my brother officers to the south and west were divided in their opinions upon the subject, I thought proper to delay making the charge.

I am well convinced that the members of Congress could have had but little idea of the business and trouble they were creating for the land officers, or they would have made some provision by which they might have been recompensed. It is certainly hard, and, indeed, unjust, that they should alone suffer by the operations of a law so well calculated to relieve the rest of society.

But it is needless for me to enter into a detail of our grievances; they have, no doubt, been copiously narrated by persons more able than myself to do justice to the subject.

Sincerely hoping that you will give us all the assistance in your power, and that you will pardon the liberty taken by my addressing you in this manner, I shall conclude by subscribing myself, with respect and esteem, your obedient servant,

J. C. S. HARRISON.

No. 14.

ST. LOUIS, December 4, 1823.

SIR: By this mail, a full view of the receipts and expenditures of my office is transmitted to you; I have claimed my commission upon the full amount of the relinquishments, for the following reasons: When I took possession of this office, within the term of the appointment, the whole amount of the debt due from purchasers of public lands must have been paid or the lands forfeited, and the legal and moral presumption was that the debt would have been discharged by actual payment; and upon this amount I had a claim, under the existing laws, to one per cent.; the government interpose, change the contract, and agree to receive property instead of money in discharge of this debt; money represents property; when receiving actual cash we were only receiving that which represented so much property, either in the hands of government or individuals; by the relinquishment law, government changed this relation between money and property, and in the transactions under that law made property represent so much money then due to them; it could never have intended by this transposition to have deprived us of our commission, because the law did not diminish but increase the labor and expense of the office.

The money paid to the government for the lands relinquished did not pass through my hands; it was received by my predecessor; he reaped the benefit of the commission as compensation for his expense and trouble in that transaction; if, therefore, the government receive back property representing this money thus paid, and I am employed to superintend the operation, and subjected to the expense and labor of conducting it, it appears to me law, justice, and reason proclaim my right to the commission; otherwise the government liquidates a debt of $411,612, subjecting me to extraordinary labor and expense, and make by depriving me of the commission on $411,612. If A should employ me to collect a debt from B, and subsequently request me to receive property in payment at valuation, or an agreed price, no man living would suppose me not entitled to the agreed commission; otherwise, shifting the mode of payment, although more troublesome, would enable the principal to deprive his agent of compensation under that agreement.

It is objected to this that the government will pay two commissions on the same money. This is not the fact; but if it was, it is of every day's occurrence amongst men of business; for example, if A employs B to collect a debt from C, receives payment from his agent B, and again loans it to D, and employs B to collect the debt thus contracted from D, he would be entitled to his commission as compensation for his expense and trouble in the collection. If A had consented to receive property, in the last instance, in discharge of the debt, both law and equity would give the agent his per cent. Certainly the case put is not diminished in weight by the change of agency in the period intervening between the contracting of these debts; the principle cannot be changed by substituting the government for A.

I have charged clerk hire, because, if the business had been conducted in the ordinary manner, the whole amount could have been received, and the business of the office managed by one clerk. The relief laws crowded an immense mass of business within a small space of time, and has increased the labor and expense of the office two-thirds; the office is yet suffering under the burden of business imposed upon it, and every expense is at this moment doubled by the effects of the relinquishment law.

In reply to their just claims, it is said the registers and receivers might have resigned; we could not anticipate the embarrassing result of the relief laws, even if gifted with the spirit of prophecy; they could not have resigned; their duty as citizens and officers of the government forbid it; it was a beneficent act in the government, and based upon the deepest and wisest policy; it rescued the morals of the debtors from the danger of two powerful temptations, and brought back the unsettled affections of the extremity of the empire, and chained them to the centre by inspiring confidence and gratitude in the best of governments. If we had not proceeded, we should have thrown the country into confusion, embarrassed the department to which we belonged, and sacrificed ourselves. The practice of all governments authorize us to expect compensation for extra labor and unanticipated expense, and many precedents of our own government justify the expectation of remuneration. The last session of Congress there was an appropriation allowing an extra clerk for the surveyor general to bring up business in arrear, there being, I presume, an unexpected accumulation of business in his office. Upon the same principle we claim clerk hire. If we, at our own expense, have brought up the business, our claim is the stronger; for we have performed a necessary work, relying upon the justice of the government, when it postponed the work until the funds were appropriated, risking nothing.

The charge of office rent and fuel does not stand so firmly upon indisputable legal principle, but I have introduced it, because I understand it has been sanctioned, and I claim it as just, and sustained by precedent.

Yours respectfully,

Hon. GEORGE GRAHAM.

GEORGE F. STROTHER.

RECEIVER'S OFFICE WEST OF PEARL RIVER, Washington, January 2, 1823.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit to you herewith my account of moneys received for public lands sold during the month of December, 1822, (nothing having been received on account of lands purchased from the United States prior to July 1, 1820;) also a duplicate of my monthly account current with the United States for December, 1822, accompanied by the necessary vouchers in support of the charges therein expressed.

I am aware that the item of $500, charged in my account for an assistant, is unauthorized; but when the excessive labor necessary to the completion of the duties prescribed under the act of March 2, 1821, and the confident expectation that compensation will be provided for that service is taken into consideration, I trust that item will not be deemed inadmissible.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,
JOHN MCLEAN, Esq., Commissioner General Land Office, Washington City.

J. DUNBAR.

A.

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated August 15, 1821, to David Hoge, esq., register, Steubenville.

"It will be necessary that you employ such assistance as may be indispensably requisite to the execution of your duties within the period limited by law. There is every reason to expect that at the next session of Congress some suitable provisions will be made in favor of the land offices for the additional trouble imposed by the late act."

B.

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated December 5, 1821, to Michael Jones, esq., register, Kaskaskia.

"I am happy to learn that your report, under the law, is in a state of forwardness, and trust that general provisions will be made to compensate registers and receivers for their arduous exertion in the execution of the law in proportion to the labors respectively performed."

C.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, August 4, 1821.

SIR: Your letter of the 16th ultimo, acknowledging the receipt of my circular of the 30th of June last, and the forms therewith transmitted, has been received. In reply to the difficulties enumerated in your letter attending a proper compliance with the forms and instructions drawn up under the law, without additional aid and compensation, I can only briefly state that there is every reason to expect that government will make a suitable allowance to the registers and receivers of United States land offices generally for the additional burdens imposed on them by the act of the 2d of March last, and that every exertion that I can make will be used to effect some liberal provisions in their favor.

I am, &c.,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

SAMUEL STOKELY, Esq., Receiver of Public Moneys, Steubenville, Ohio.

D.

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated September 17, 1821, to William Crawford, esq., receiver, St. Stephen's.

"The fees allowed by the act are fifty cents to the register and receiver, respectively, for every tract relinquished; and it moreover allows fifty cents to the register for each declaration.

"The trouble of the receiver, in cases of declaration, has not been provided for by the act. In my opinion the compensation should have been equal. But, in the absence of legal provisions, I have no authority to authorize the receipt of fees."

E.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, August 30, 1821.

SIR: Your return for June last, and a list of lands reserved from sale in July last for the use of schools, have been received with your letter of the 21st ultimo.

In reply to your inquiry whether the assistance of a clerk will be allowed you in the execution of your arduous duties under the act of the 2d of March last, I am fully of the opinion that your request ought to be granted. I have been authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury to inform the land officers generally that every disposition exists to afford them facilities in the despatch of public business, particularly the arduous duties imposed by the act of the 2d of March last, and that it may with great reason be hoped that some provisions may be made in their favor at the next session of Congress.

With great respect, I am, your obedient servant,

J. MEIGS.

BEVERLY R. GRAYSON, Esq., Register, Washington, Mississippi.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, August 30, 1823.

SIR: In the accounts of the receiver of public moneys at Franklin, for the first and second quarters of 1822, are found $781 29 charged by you for clerk hire to bring up the books under the relief law, and the sum of $2,532 92 as commission on the moneys transferred from lands relinquished. The commission is inadmissible; but, as it is proper that you should be compensated for closing the transactions of your predecessor, it has been deemed proper to submit your letter of July 16, 1822, which treats of the subject, to Mr. Carroll, with a request to settle the matter amicably with you, and to determine that, should that gentleman make any difficulty on the subject, the clerk hire will be allowed you and charged to his account.

In order that this incident do not delay the examination of the quarterly account, the sums charged for clerk hire shall be suspended until the result of the transaction between you and Mr. Carroll be made known to this department.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEO. GRAHAM.

JOHN MILLER, Esq., Register, Franklin, Missouri.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, August 30, 1823.

SIR: I transmit herewith a copy of a letter from the present register of the land office at Franklin, and a copy of the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury in relation to it. That letter and its endorsements explain so fully the nature of the affair under consideration that I shall merely add a request to communicate to this department, as early as convenient, the result of the transaction between yourself and Mr. Miller.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEO. GRAHAM.

CHARLES CARROLL, Esq., late Register at Franklin, now at Rochester, N. Y.

H.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 15, 1824.

SIR: I have duly received your letter of the 4th ultimo, stating your reasons for charging a commission on the full amount of the lands relinquished, and for a further charge for clerk hire. Agreeably to the usages and instructions of the Treasury Department, neither of these items can be admitted to your credit on the adjustment of the account at this office. I will, however, take great pleasure in submitting your letter to the particular consideration of the Secretary of the Treasury so soon as his health will enable him to attend to the details of the business of his department. I wish it were in my power to give you some assurance that such submission would probably result in the modification of the general principle heretofore adopted, but I am induced to believe that yourself, and other officers similarly situated, will obtain no relief except by legislative interference.

With sentiments, &c.,

GEO. GRAHAM.

GEO. F. STROTHER, Esq., Receiver, &c., St. Louis, Missouri.

[1ST SESSION.]

EXTINGUISHMENT OF INDIAN TITLE TO LAND IN MISSISSIPPI.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MARCH 4, 1824.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists respectfully represent: That on the extension of the boundary line between this State and the State of Alabama, a considerable extent of country, situated on the east bank of the Tombecbee river, was included within the limits of this State; that it is separated from the other settled parts of this State by the intervention of Indian territory of something upwards of one hundred miles in extent; that the section of country above alluded to is too limited, under our constitution, to form a judicial district or an additional number of counties; that from the great distance our judges are compelled to travel, the greater part of which is through a wilderness, and along roads which cannot be kept in repair, the consequence of which is that our courts are frequently disappointed, and justice, although not denied, cannot be extended to a considerable number of our citizens: therefore your memorialists pray the adoption of such measures as are best calculated to remedy the evils complained of. Your memorialists further represent that there is a section of Indian territory, situated on the east of Tombecbee river, belonging to the Chickasaw nation that, in all probability, could be purchased, and thereby the disagreeable situation of that section of our State in some measure alleviated; though your memorialists would further represent that, if it was possible to purchase a small portion of the Indian territory on the western bank of the Tombeckbee river, it would add in a much greater degree to the interest of that section of the State.

Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of Mississippi.

[1ST SESSION.

CONTRACTS FOR SURVEYING THE PUBLIC LANDS IN ILLINOIS, MISSOURI, AND ARKANSAS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MARCH 5, 1824.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit to the Senate a report of the Secretary of the Treasury containing copies of the contracts made by the surveyor general and called for by a resolution of the Senate bearing date February 24, 1824.

JAMES MONROE.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, March 2, 1824.

The Secretary of the Treasury, to whom was referred a resolution of the Senate of the 24th ultimo, has the honor to report to the President that the copies of the contracts made by the surveyor general, and called for by a former resolution of the Senate, were received some time since at this department, and, in consequence of the indisposition of the Secretary, have been overlooked; they are now, however, respectfully submitted to the President, accompanied by a copy of the Secretary's letter to the surveyor general on the subject.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, July 7, 1823.

SIR: The Senate having, by resolution of February 25, 1823, requested the President to procure and lay before the Senate at the next session of Congress the originals or copies of all the contracts for surveying the public lands made by the surveyor general of Illinois, Missouri, and Arkansas, since January 1, 1819, I therefore request that you will forward them as early as practicable.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

WM. RECTOR, Esq., Surveyor General, St. Louis.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, St. Louis, August 1, 1823.

SIR: Herewith you will receive copies of all the contracts which I have entered into with deputy surveyors in conformity with the instructions which I received from the General Land Office dated April 22, 1823. The balance of the surveying which I am required by the said instructions to have done has been engaged by deputy surveyors, who will come forward in a short time and sign contracts.

You will also herewith receive an estimate of the expense of surveying the whole of the lands directed by the aforesaid instructions to be surveyed. Most of the deputy surveyors who entered into contracts set out for the woods immediately thereafter in order to do the work; consequently, funds will be wanting immediately to pay for that part of the surveys.

I am, with much respect, your most obedient servant,

WM. RECTOR.

As these contracts are similar in their form (being nearly all printed) and varying only in the particular descriptions of the surveying and work to be done, it was deemed unnecessary to include them all in this compilation as they belong to the details of the surveys, and will be found in the General Land Office; a few of them, however, to exemplify the forms of those contracts and the instructions given to the deputy surveyors, are here inserted, as follows:

Instructions of William Rector, surveyor general of Illinois, Missouri, and Arkansas, to deputy surveyors for surveying the confirmed claims of individuals therein.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE FOR THE STATES OF ILLINOIS AND MISSOURI AND TERRITORY OF ARKANSAS,
St. Louis, A. D. 182 .

SIR: You will herewith receive a description of each of the confirmed claims of individuals that are supposed to lie within your district. Such of these claims as you may find to be in your district you will lay off and survey in strict conformity with the confirmations as expressed in the transcript.

In making these surveys you will be careful at all the intersections of the lines of the surveys of the public lands with the lines of the surveys of individuals to establish corners by taking bearing trees or erecting mounds, and to mark in the corner of each fractional section the number of the range, township, and section, and also to ascertain the distance from each intersection to the nearest corner of both surveys, so that you may be able thereby to know and state in your returns the precise length of each line of each fractional section.

All surveys, both of the public lands and claims of individuals, must be surveyed agreeably to the true meridian, and you will keep your reckoning or distances in chains and links.

Where the quantity of land confirmed to an individual is expressed in arpents on the transcript of confirmations, you will in your returns express on the survey the quantity in acres and decimal parts of an acre, and also in arpents.

When the transcript with which you are furnished does not give such a description of the situation of a claim as will enable you to know at what place the survey ought to be made, you will use all means that may be in your power to ascertain where such claim is situated. Information given you by a claimant or his agent with respect to the situation of such claimant's lands you will be governed by, provided such information does not disagree with the description given of such land in the transcript, and you may believe, from all the circumstances that may have come to your knowledge, that such information is correct. You will then proceed to survey the land accordingly, provided the survey does not interfere with the right of any other person. And where two or more confirmed claims interfere with each other, you may, provided the parties concerned shall mutually agree, lay off each claim in such manner that there be no interference in the surveys, and provided the surveys so made shall embrace the nearest unappropriated lands, and do not interfere with the right of any other person, and shall in every other respect conform to the rules and regulations for laying off the claims of individuals.

Where the boundaries of an old survey can be found and known with certainty, you must conform your survey to such boundaries, unless you discover that considerable error was made in the old survey, in which case it will be your duty to correct such error.

Where a survey is found to contain an excessive quantity of land, the claimant, if present, will have the right to point out the side or end of the survey at which such excess must be thrown off. If the claimant does not attend and superintend his survey, you will throw off the excess of land at the side or end that you may suppose will be most convenient for the claimant. Where a survey is found not to contain as much land as is expressed in the confirmation, you will extend the lines of the survey as the claimant may direct or you may think right, so as to include the proper quantity of land, provided by such extension of the lines you do not interfere with the right of any other person.

In making the surveys of the claims of individuals you will keep your field notes in the following manner:

No. —. Surveyed for A B, who claims in his own right, or in right of C D, (as the case may be,) three hundred and forty acres and twenty-eight hundredths of an acre, equal to four hundred arpents.

Beginning at a post from which a black walnut 14 inches in diameter bears south 27° west, 25 links, and an ash 10 inches in diameter bears south 41° east, 43 links distant; thence north at 9 chains 27 links a brook 15 links wide runs southeast 20 chains 18 links; a black oak 24 inches in diameter at 37 chains 22 links intersected the line between sections 15 and 22, township 46 north, range 4 west, where set a post corner of fractional sections 15 and 22, from which a white oak 18 inches in diameter bears north 26° west, 75 links, and a maple 12 inches in diameter bears south 33° east, 48 links; thence measured along the line between sections 15 and 22 west 19.40 links to the corner of sections 15, 16, 21, and 22. In this manner you will proceed until you complete the survey, establishing the corners of the survey by taking bearing trees or raising mounds, and noting the distance you have run at the intersection with each sectional line as well as the length of each line of your survey, and also the distance from the points of intersection of the nearest sectional corner. You will also, at the end of each line of a survey, describe the land, timber, &c., over which it runs.

In surveying sectional lines that intersect the lines of surveys of individuals that have been made, you will, in all cases, at each intersection, establish corners for the fractional sections, and ascertain and note in your field book the distance from such intersection to the nearest corner of such survey, when it shall be necessary so to do, in order to ascertain the quantity of land contained in each fractional section.

Form of agreement between William Rector, surveyor general, and a deputy surveyor for surveying townships of land containing private land claims, and also for surveying such claims.

Articles of agreement had, made, and concluded upon this seventh day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, between William Rector, surveyor of the lands of the United States in the Territories of Illinois and Missouri, acting for and in behalf of the United States of the one part, and Nicholas Rightor of the other part, witnesseth: That the said Nicholas Rightor, for and in consideration of the terms, provisions, and covenants hereinafter expressed, and according to the true intent and meaning thereof, doth hereby covenant and agree with the said William Rector, in his capacity aforesaid, that he, the said Nicholas Rightor, will do and perform the following surveying agreeably to the laws of the United States and such instruction as may be given to him by the said William Rector, viz: he will lay off and survey the exterior boundary lines, and subdivide into sections, and establish corners for quarter sections, eight townships of land, or townships and fractional townships, equal in quantity to eight complete townships, between the St. Francis and Arkansas rivers, in the Missouri Territory, and south of the east and west line, passing between townships Nos. 3 and 4 north of the base line, which townships and fractional townships shall consist of those which have not heretofore been surveyed, and in which there are confirmed claims of individuals, (if there be that number of townships and fractional townships wherein there are such claims,) and which contain the largest proportion of good and saleable lands. And the said Rightor also covenants and agrees that he will lay out and survey, agreeably to law and instructions as aforesaid, all the lands that have been or may hereafter be confirmed by law to individuals, and which lands may be within said townships or fractional townships, to be subdivided into sections, &c., as aforesaid. And the said Rightor further covenants and agrees that if, in the course of performing the surveys aforesaid, any corner shall fall (whether of a township, section, quarter section, or survey of any individual) within any prairie where bearing trees within a reasonable distance from such corner cannot be found, then and in that case, and in all such cases, he will erect mounds of earth or sod to perpetuate such corners; the mounds to be at least two feet six inches high and two feet six inches diameter at the base. And the said Rightor further covenants and agrees that he will make out three neat and accurate plats and descriptions of each of the aforesaid townships and fractional townships which he shall survey as aforesaid, with all the lines thereof, according to their true length and position, and connect the lines and corners of the surveys of individuals with the sectional lines and corners in such manner as, from the field notes made thereof, it may be known with certainty the precise situation of each of the surveys of individuals on the plats of townships, and means thereby shall be furnished by which the contents of each and all the fractional sections can be calculated and ascertained, and that he will make the calculations of the content of each fractional section and set it down on the plats of the townships and fractional townships. And that he will make out three separate plats and field notes of each survey of individuals. And that he will complete the surveys, plats, and descriptions and calculations as aforesaid, and make return thereof, together with the field notes, to the office of the surveyor of the lands of the United States for the Territories of Illinois and Missouri, within twelve months from the date hereof, on penalty of forfeiture and paying to the United States the sum of two thousand dollars if default be made in any of the foregoing conditions.

And the said William Rector covenants and agrees, in his capacity aforesaid, that, on the completion of the work in manner aforesaid, there shall be paid to the said Nicholas Rightor, on account of the United States, as a full compensation for the whole expense of surveying, making the plats, descriptions, and calculations aforesaid, three dollars per mile for every mile and part of a mile of the sectional lines and the boundary lines of such of the surveys of individuals as the laws of the United States provides shall be surveyed at the expense of the United States that shall actually be surveyed and marked, (random lines and offsets not included,) provided no member of Congress have any part in this contract. It is expressly understood by the parties to this agreement that the said Rightor is to lay off and survey, in manner aforesaid, those claims of individuals that the laws of the United States provides shall be surveyed at the expense of the claimants, and that the said Rightor agrees to look to and collect his surveying fees from the claimants of such lands.

In testimony whereof, the parties to this agreement have interchangeably set their hands and seals the day and year aforesaid.

Form of instructions from Wm. Rector, surveyor general, to a deputy surveyor for surveying the public lands to connect with other surveys, and with authority to appoint other surveyors in the event of inability by sickness of such deputy.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, St. Louis, May 7, 1819.

Sir: On the 7th day of January last Nicholas Rightor contracted to select, lay off, and subdivide into sections, &c., eight townships of land between the St. Francis and Arkansas rivers, and south of the line between townships Nos. 3 and 4 north of the base line. This line, between townships Nos. 3 and 4 north of the base line, is the south boundary of the district which you by your contract of this day have engaged to lay off and survey. It is probable that before you get on the ground Mr. Rightor will have surveyed the line between townships Nos. 3 and 4 north, and established corners therein, which will serve as points of beginning your surveys. But in case Mr. Rightor does not survey that line in time for you to start your surveys from, you will survey it yourself; in order to do which it will be necessary to commence in the base line at the corner of townships Nos. 1 and 1 north and 1 and 1 south, of ranges Nos. 8 and 9 west; run from thence north, establishing as you proceed quarter section, section, and township corners, until you arrive at and establish the corner of townships Nos. 3 and 3, 4 and 4 north, ranges Nos. 8 and 9 west, from which corner you can run random lines both east and west for the township corners already established, and correct the lines back, and establish quarter section and sectional corners agreeably to the instructions for laying off townships. From the corner of townships Nos. 3 and 3, 4 and 4 north, ranges Nos. 6 and 7 west, you will run duly east, establishing as you proceed quarter section, sectional and township corners until you intersect White river. You will then proceed to lay off the townships agreeably to the instructions for laying off townships which you are in possession of. The surveying of the west boundary lines of your district properly belongs to the deputy surveyors, who will work west of you. But in case they do not run those lines in time for you to close on, you will survey them yourself. It is very important that you complete your contract as soon as possible. Should anything happen to put it out of your power to continue to survey—I mean inability by sickness—you will endeavor to get the balance of your work done by some of the other deputy surveyors, or you can employ some other person who understands the business of surveying public lands, and are men of good and respectable moral character, (no others, however well qualified, will be permitted to survey public lands.) But should this be the case, your assistants, before they attempt to survey, must take and subscribe an oath faithfully and impartially to execute the surveys they may be employed to make agreeably to my instructions to deputy surveyors, (which you will furnish them with,) and a true report make in their field notes.

I am, with much respect, sir, your obedient servant,

WM. RECTOR.

CHARLES MCPHERSON, Esq., Deputy Surveyor.

P. S.—In closing your surveys on the Cherokee boundary line you will establish and mark the corners of fractional sections, and will measure to the nearest mile post established in that line, so as to show an accurate connexion between the surveys of the public lands and that line.

WM. RECTOR.

Form of agreement between William Rector, surveyor general, and a deputy surveyor for surveying the public lands.

Articles of agreement had, made, and concluded upon this seventh day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and nineteen, between William Rector, surveyor of the lands of the United States in the State of Illinois and Missouri Territory, acting for and in behalf of the United States of the one part, and Charles McPherson of the other part, witnesseth: That the said McPherson, for and in consideration of the terms, provisions, and covenants hereinafter expressed, and according to the true intent and meaning thereof, doth hereby covenant and agree with the said William Rector, in his capacity aforesaid, that he, the said Charles McPherson, will do and perform the following surveying agreeably to the laws of the United States and such instruction as may be given to him by the said William Rector, viz: He will lay off and survey the exterior boundary lines, and establish quarter section and section corners thereon, of all the townships and fractional townships included within the following bounds and limits, viz: beginning at the corner of townships Nos. 3 and 3, 4 and 4 north of the base line, of ranges Nos. 7 and 8 west of the fifth principal meridian line; thence north to the corner of townships Nos. 7 and 8 north, ranges Nos. 7 and 8 west; thence west to the corner of townships Nos. 7 and 8 north, ranges Nos. 8 and 9 west; thence north to the Cherokee Indian boundary line; thence with said Indian boundary line north 53 degrees east to White river; thence down White river to the range line between ranges Nos. 5 and 6 west; thence south to the corner of townships Nos. 8 and 8, 9 and 9 north, ranges Nos. 5 and 6 west; thence east to White river; thence down that river to the line between ranges Nos. 4 and 5 west; thence south with that line to the corner of townships Nos. 3 and 3, 4 and 4 north, ranges Nos. 4 and 5 west; thence west to the place of beginning. And the said Charles McPherson further covenants and agrees, that after he shall have completed the surveys of the exterior boundary lines of townships above mentioned, that he will select out of the aforesaid townships and fractional townships not less than sixteen townships, nor more than twenty townships, or townships and fractional townships, equal in quantity of land to twenty complete townships, which townships, or townships and fractional townships, to be so selected, shall consist of those which contain the largest proportion of lands that is fit for cultivation, which said townships so selected he will survey and subdivide into sections, and will establish quarter sections and section corners, &c. And the said Charles McPherson further covenants and agrees, that if, in the course of performing the surveys aforesaid, any corner shall fall (whether of a township, section, or quarter section) within any prairie where bearing trees within a reasonable distance from such corner cannot be found, then, and in that case, and in all such cases, he will erect mounds of earth or sod to perpetuate such corners; the mounds to be at least two feet six inches high, and two feet six inches diameter at the base. And the said McPherson further covenants and agrees, that he will make out three neat and accurate plats and descriptions of each of the aforesaid townships and fractional townships which he shall survey as aforesaid, with all the lines thereof, according to their true length and position. And that he will make the calculations of the content of each fractional section, and set it down on the plats of the townships and fractional townships. And that he will complete the surveys, plats, and descriptions and calculations as aforesaid, and make return thereof, together with the field notes, to the office of the surveyor of the lands of the United States for the State of Illinois and Territory of Missouri, within seven months from the date hereof, on penalty of forfeiture and paying to the United States the sum of three thousand dollars if default be made in any of the foregoing conditions.

And the said William Rector covenants and agrees, in his capacity aforesaid, that, on the completion of the work in the manner aforesaid, there shall be paid to the said Charles McPherson, on account of the United States, as a full compensation for the whole expense of surveying, making the plats, descriptions, and calculations aforesaid, three dollars per mile for every mile and part of a-mile that shall actually be surveyed and marked, (random lines and offsets not included,) provided no member of Congress have any part in this contract.

In testimony whereof, the parties to this agreement have interchangeably set their hands and seals the day and year aforesaid.

Letter of instructions authorizing the deputy surveyors, to whom it was addressed, to survey other lands than those contained in their contracts, and to draw for funds, &c. Addressed to David Nolan and Stephen Rector, David Deshler and Stephen Rector, and to Charles McPherson.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, St. Louis, August 12, 1819.

GENTLEMEN: You are hereby authorized to survey and subdivide into sections, and establish corners for quarter sections, all the townships and fractional townships the exterior boundary lines of which you, by your contract with me of May 8, 1819, undertook to lay off and survey. For that part of this surveying not included in your said contract you will be entitled to receive from the United States the same fees per mile as you are to get for the surveying mentioned in your contract; provided, the surveys shall be correctly executed agreeable to the instructions with which you have been furnished by this office, and you do make the necessary and usual returns thereof to this office on or before December 8, 1819. Should you require more funds to enable you to complete the above-mentioned surveys, you are hereby authorized to draw on me for any sum not exceeding two hundred dollars, payable ten days after sight.

Form of agreement between William Rector, surveyor general, and a deputy surveyor for surveying the public lands.

Articles of agreement had, made, and concluded upon this sixth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-two, between William Rector, surveyor of the lands of the United States in the States of Illinois, Missouri, and Territory of Arkansas, acting for and in behalf of the United States of the one part, and Henry W. Conway and James S. Conway of the other part, witnesseth: That the said Henry W. Conway and James S. Conway, for and in consideration of the terms, provisions, and covenants hereinafter expressed, and according to the true intent and meaning thereof, doth hereby covenant and agree with the said William Rector, in his capacity aforesaid, that they, the said Henry W. Conway and James S. Conway, will do and perform the following surveying, agreeably to the laws of the United States and such instructions as may be given to them by the said William Rector, viz: They will lay off and survey the exterior boundary lines, and survey and subdivide into sections, and establish corners for quarter sections, forty townships and fractional townships, equal to forty complete townships of land, in the Territory of Arkansas; to consist in part of townships Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 south of the base line, ranges Nos. 17 and 18 west of the 5th principal meridian. The remaining thirty townships to be selected and surveyed in the following described townships and fractional townships, viz: Townships

Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17 south (or to the Louisiana boundary) of the base line, ranges Nos. 19 and 20 west; townships Nos. 16 and 17 south, ranges Nos. 21, 22, and 23 west; townships Nos. 15 and 15 south, ranges Nos. 22 and 23 west; townships Nos. 14, 15, and 16 south, ranges Nos. 24 and 25 west of the 5th principal meridian, all north of Big Red river; townships Nos. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17 south (or to the north boundary of the State of Louisiana) of the base line, ranges Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 west of the 5th principal meridian; townships Nos. 4, 5, 6, and 7 south, ranges Nos. 1, 2, and 3 east of the 5th principal meridian, except such lines or parts as may heretofore have been surveyed. The thirty townships so selected must be those townships and fractional townships which contain the greatest proportion of good land and timber, and are best calculated for compact settlements.

And the said Henry W Conway and James S. Conway further covenant and agree, that if, in the course of performing the surveys aforesaid, any corner shall fall (whether of a township, section, or quarter section) within any prairie where bearing trees within a reasonable distance from such corner cannot be found, then, and in that case, and in all such cases, they will erect mounds of earth or sod to perpetuate such corners; the mounds to be at least two feet six inches high, and two feet six inches diameter at the base. And the said Henry W. Conway and James S. Conway further covenant and agree, that they will make out three neat and accurate plats and descriptions of each of the aforesaid townships and fractional townships which they shall survey as aforesaid, with all the lines thereof, according to their true length and position. And means shall be furnished by which the content of each and all the fractional sections can be calculated and ascertained, and that they will make the calculations of the content of each fractional section, and set it down on the plats of the townships and fractional townships. And that they will complete the surveys, plats, and descriptions and calculations as aforesaid, and make return thereof, together with the field notes, to the office of the surveyor of lands of the United States for the States of Illinois, Missouri, and Territory of Arkansas, within twelve months from the date hereof, on penalty of forfeiture and paying to the United States the sum of seventeen thousand dollars if default be made in any of the foregoing conditions.

And the said William Rector covenants and agrees, in his capacity aforesaid, that, on the completion of the work in the manner aforesaid, there shall be paid to the said Henry W. Conway and James S. Conway, on account of the United States, as a full compensation for the whole expense of surveying, making the plats, descriptions, and calculations aforesaid, three dollars per mile for every mile and part of a mile that shall actually be surveyed and marked, (random lines and offsets not included,) provided no member of Congress have any part in this contract.

In testimony whereof, the parties to this agreement have interchangeably set their hands and seals the day and year aforesaid.

EXEMPTION OF PUBLIC LANDS FROM TAXATION AFTER SALE IN INDIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MARCH 8, 1824.

Mr. BARTON, from the Committee on Public Lands, having had under consideration a joint resolution of the general assembly of the State of Indiana, asking the consent of Congress to the revocation of that part of the compact between the United States and the State of Indiana, by which all public lands sold in that State after December 1, 1816, were exempted from taxation by the State for the term of five years after the sale thereof, made the following report:

By the general regulations for the sale of the United States lands, passed May 10, 1800, the United States reserved a reversionary interest, for the term of five years, in all lands by them sold. At the expiration of that term, if the lands sold were not fully paid for, they might, in the manner described in those regulations, revert absolutely to the United States, although during that term the purchaser had an estate in the lands purchased, (subject to the reversion,) which might have been taxed by the State in which they lie if no compact to the contrary had been made.

To guard this reversionary interest from the embarrassments that might have been created by the States exercising the right of taxation, and to prevent the debtors of the United States from being rendered less able to pay for their lands, the United States required, as one of the conditions to the propositions made to the several States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama, in the respective acts authorizing them to form their constitutions, that they should provide by ordinances irrevocable, without the consent of Congress, that all lands sold by the United States, within the limits of those several States, after the times limited in said acts respectively, should be exempt from any taxation under the authority of those particular States during the term of five years. With this condition each of the States complied.

Afterwards, by an act passed April 24, 1820, Congress, among other things, abolished the system of credit in the sales of public lands made after the first of July of that year.

Upon this event, the committee is of the opinion that every reason which induced that condition ceased; that the lands sold by the United States after July 1, 1820, being absolutely private property, became taxable of right by the States in which they lie; and that a proper case had then occurred in which to give the consent of Congress to the revocation of so much of those compacts as provide for the exemption in question, as seems, indeed, to have been anticipated and provided for by the several acts authorizing the formation of those States, and the ordinances passed by their conventions.

That the enhancement of the value of public lands was not the object of Congress in requiring those exemptions from taxation, is manifest from the fact that no such exemption has ever been attached to the sale of lands in the several Territories of the United States, neither before nor since the adotion of the enumerated States into the Union. Yet, as the compacts in that respect were not revoked in point of fact, but remained in force to the present time; and as the exemption from taxation may have entered into the inducement to the purchase of lands heretofore sold under it, the committee deem it inexpedient to propose any change in those compacts that may affect lands heretofore sold by the United States.

But, believing that every reason for such exemptions has ceased with regard to the United States, and that great inequality and injustice are produced in those individual States by the unequal burdens imposed on that class of their citizens who purchased before the formation of their respective constitutions, and that class who purchased since; and also by a great diminution of the revenues of those States after it has ceased to be necessary, or even useful to the United States, the committee submit a bill declaring the consent of Congress to the revocation of so much of the said ordinances as establishes the exemptions complained of by the State of Indiana on her part, so far as they may affect lands hereafter to be sold by the United States.

18TH CONGRESS.]No. 425.[1ST SESSION.]

LAND FOR THE USE OF SCHOOLS IN OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE MARCH 23, 1824.

Resolved by the general assembly of the State of Ohio, That our senators and representatives in Congress be requested to use their exertions to procure the passage of an act to authorize the legislature of this State to select and locate so much of the public lands for the use of schools in that part of the State called the "Connecticut Reserve" as shall, together with such lands as have heretofore been set apart as an equitable proportion for that section of said reserve lying east of the Cuyahoga river, be equal in quantity to one thirty-sixth part of all the lands in said reserve; and also so much of the public lands for the use of schools within the tract called the Virginia Military Reservation as will be equal to one thirty-sixth part, agreeably to the original compact between this State and the United States.

Resolved, further, That the governor be requested to transmit a copy of these resolutions to each of our senators and representatives in Congress.

SURVEY AND DISPOSITION OF THE PUBLIC LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES MARCH 24, 1824.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, March 23, 1824.

SIR: I enclose two tables or statements, marked Nos. 1 and 2. No. 1 contains a statement, in columns, of the quantity of land which has been surveyed, the estimated quantity which has been surveyed and remaining unsold, and the estimated quantity to be surveyed in each district; also the amount of money due from individuals to the government December 31, 1820, and September 30, 1821 and 1822, respectively.

Table No. 2 contains a statement of the land sold, and amount of purchase money under the credit and cash systems, respectively; the total amount of both in each land district and State separately; and also the quantity of land relinquished under the act of 1821, with the amount for which it sold.

These statements have been made as accurately as the materials at present in this office will admit.

The relative quantities of the lands surveyed, those surveyed and unsold, and those estimated to be unsurveyed in each land district, vary daily with the progress of the surveys and the sales of the public lands.

The amount of lands "unsurveyed" is founded upon actual returns to this office, and excludes school lands and those private confirmed claims which have been surveyed and returned. The lands "surveyed and unsold" and the lands "unsurveyed" are estimated quantities, as we know that large quantities of lands are surveyed, the township plats of which have not yet been returned to this office, particularly in the land districts containing private confirmed claims; those claims not being in many cases surveyed, and, if surveyed, not being connected with the public surveys in such a manner as to enable the surveyor general to make out the township plats accurately.

I regret exceedingly the delay which has occurred in furnishing you with these statements, but it has been unavoidable.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEO. GRAHAM.

Hon. RUFUS KING.

No. 1.—Statement exhibiting the quantity of land surveyed, the quantity remaining to be sold, and the probable quantity remaining to be surveyed; also the balances due from individuals December 30, 1820, and September 30, 1821-'22.

Land district.	Quantity of land actually surveyed, subject to sale originally, after deducting reservations for schools, private claims, &c., up to the latest returns.		Quantity of land estimated to remain unsold in each district on June 30, 1822.		Estimated quantity of land remaining to be surveyed.		Balances due from individuals at the end of the quarter immediately preceding that in which the law of 1821 took effect, December 31, 1820.	Balances due from individuals on September 30, 1822, after the relief by relinquishment, under the act of March 2, 1821.	Balances due from individuals on September 30, 1822, after the operation of the acts of March 2, 1821, and April 29, 1822.

The quantity of land exhibited as surveyed and remaining unsold in the southeastern district of Louisiana is the amount of the lots surveyed (agreeably to the ancient Spanish and French custom) on the rivers, bayous, and water-courses, between the Bayou Lafourche and the river Atchafalaya, which lands have been since proclaimed for sale. The quantity exhibited as sold in that district, in statement No. 2, (viz., $9,437 64 acres,) is the amount of the back concessions and pre-emption rights, of which no returns of survey have yet been made; their total quantity cannot even be estimated. Hence their amount is not included in the column of surveys.

For the two districts of Michigan it will be perceived that the quantity of land remaining unsold is stated in the aggregate. The reason of this is, that the southern district was partly formed out of the Detroit district; and the quantity sold at the land office at Detroit, in those townships now attached to the southern district, cannot readily be discriminated.

The quantity of land remaining unsold in the district of Jackson Court-House, in Mississippi, and the district of St. Stephen's, in Alabama, is also stated in the aggregate, for the reason that the former named district was formed, in part, by attaching to it all the lands in the old district of St. Stephen's which lie in the State of Mississippi. The quantity of land exhibited as surveyed in the district of Jackson Court-House is only that portion of the former district of St. Stephen's attached thereto. No surveys have been received south of the 31st degree of latitude in either of those districts.

18TH CONGRESS.]No. 428.[2D SESSION.]

SURVEYS NORTH AND SOUTH OF RED RIVER.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES DECEMBER 27, 1824.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, December 24, 1824.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 14th instant, requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to inform "the House of the causes which have retarded the surveying of the public lands north and south of Red river; whether the said surveys are progressing; at what time the said public lands will be ready for sale; and whether any further legislative measures are necessary," I have the honor to submit a report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with four papers, marked A, B, C, D, which contain all the information required by the resolution.

I have the honor to be your most obedient servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. H. CLAY, Speaker House of Representatives.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, Washington, December 17, 1824.

SIR: In compliance with a resolution of the House of Representatives, dated the 14th of this month, in the following words: "Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to inform this House of the causes which have delayed the surveys of the public lands and private land claims in the district south and north of the Red river, in Louisiana; whether the said surveys are progressing, and if not, what are the reasons; at what time the said public lands will be in a state of readiness for sale; and if any further legislation be deemed necessary for the bringing of said public lands into market," and which has been referred to this office, I have to state that the great body of the lands lying in the districts north and south of Red river, in the State of Louisiana, consist of piney barrens and extensive prairies; that the valuable lands are confined principally to the margins of water-courses emptying into the Mississippi swamp and the swamp itself. This latter description of lands, except where the water-courses approach the prairies, are alluvial lands, covered with cane and other growths, which make them very difficult to survey. Of the piney barrens and prairie lands, large quantities have been surveyed, and so small a portion of them has been sold that it has been deemed proper to suspend, for the present, the surveying of this description of lands.

The lands adjacent to the water-courses being valuable, the private claims are confined almost exclusively to and occupy a very great portion of them; the only salable lands, therefore, belonging to the government in these land districts, with very slight exceptions, and which it is at present desirable to bring into market, is that portion of this description of lands which is interspersed among and free from private claims.

The surveys of these lands cannot be completed, nor can any sale of them take place until all the private claims are located and surveyed.

The causes which have retarded and arrested the surveying of the private claims are various. The following are, however, some of the most prominent:

The renewal and extension of the several acts for the final adjustment of land claims in these districts, and the revival of the fifth section of the act of 1811 relative to what is termed back or double concessions by the acts of 1820 and 1823. From the year 1804 until the present time, with a short interval, the several acts for the final adjustment of land claims have made it impracticable to close the township plats within which there were private claims in the district south of the Red river, in Louisiana; and these causes only ceased to operate in the district north of the Red river in 1823. The period for entering back concessions expired only in August last. These causes, in themselves, satisfactorily account for the delay, and show the legal impediment to the completion of the township plats, in which there were private claims, and the consequent impracticability of bringing into market the public lands lying within such townships. (See paper marked A.)

Although these causes satisfactorily account for the impracticability of bringing into market the public lands interspersed among the private claims, yet that progress which the public had a right to expect in surveying the private and public lands thus situated has not been made, and which, even under existing difficulties, ought to have been made. This, among other causes, may be attributable to the death of the surveyor, Colonel Freeman, in 1823, and the dismissal of his successor last spring; and, up to the present time, the progress of these surveys are arrested by attempts to locate fraudulent claims and to make impracticable locations of claims that may, perhaps, have been properly recommended for confirmation.

It is believed that the reports of the land officers at New Orleans, dated November 20, 1816, and January 6, 1821, and that of the register of the land office north of Red river, dated January 1, 1821, include and recommend for confirmation many fraudulent claims, and claims not entitled to confirmation, and which claims were confirmed on their reports. Some of the claims contained in the report of the register at New Orleans have, I understand, been admitted to be fraudulent, and I refer to the enclosed papers (marked B) for the information in relation to some of the other cases alluded to. From information received at this office, there is reason to believe that many similar and equally unfounded claims have been filed with the register at Opelousas, whose report, as required by the act of 1820, has not yet been returned.

The experience, talents, and indefatigable industry of the present surveyor, Mr. Davis, afford good reason to believe that the surveying of the public and private claims in the districts south and north of Red river, in Louisiana, will progress with as much expedition as the difficulties inherent to this portion of his difficulties will permit; and it is believed that a large portion of the lands lying on the Mississippi and Red river, in the district north of that river, will be prepared for sale in the course of the ensuing year. Surveys for part of these lands have lately been returned to this office and may be proclaimed for sale at any time that may be deemed expedient.

Although it would seem that the causes which delayed the surveys of the public lands and private claims in the districts south and north of Red river may be attributable, to a certain extent, to prolonged legislation, yet further legislative provisions may be deemed necessary.

By an act passed May 11, 1820, entitled "An act supplementary to the several acts for the adjustment of the land claims in the State of Louisiana," the register of the land office at Opelousas was required to report to the Secretary of the Treasury all the claims filed with him in pursuance of that act, with his opinion thereon, by January 1, 1821. Many claims under that act were filed with the register, but he omitted to make any report in relation to them while in office, and his successor could not legally make such report. A letter, however, a copy of which (marked C) is transmitted, was addressed to the present register from this office requesting him to make the report, with a view to submit it to Congress. Should this report not be received in time to be acted upon this session, it will be necessary to make some legislative provision for the case.

The act of April 31, 1806, provides for the appointment of two principal deputy surveyors with a salary of $500 each, and certain fees of office, in the Territory of Orleans; and the act of March 3, 1819, provides for an additional principal duty.

This organization of the surveying department in Louisiana was suggested with a view of accommodating the private claimants and facilitating the surveying and patenting of their lands. If, however, we are to judge from results, it seems not to have been a happy one. A similar organization of the surveying department exists now in no other State; and in every other State or Territory where there have been private claims, (and they extend to all,) there has been no such delay and difficulties incident to the surveying and patenting of the private claims as have occurred in Louisiana.

Previous to my coming into office no patent had been issued on any private confirmed claim in that State; and since I came into this office, notwithstanding my attention was early drawn to the subject, but two patents have been issued, and one of them was on a claim improperly recommended for confirmation, and improperly patented, it appearing, subsequent to the issuing of the patent, that it covered reserved public lands occupied for public uses. This organization of the department has a tendency to divide responsibility and to lessen that of the surveyor for the district, to whom alone this office can look for the due execution of all the surveying within his district. It is suggested, therefore, for the consideration of Congress, whether these offices ought not to be abolished. So far as they are depositories of the surveys and field notes, they may occasionally afford accommodation to individuals. The paper marked D contains an extract of a letter from me to the surveyor (Mr. Davis) on this subject, with his answer.

All which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE GRAHAM.

The SECRETARY of the Treasury.

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office to Levin Wailes, esq., surveyor south of the State of Tennessee, dated

"GENERAL LAND OFFICE, September 12, 1823.

"The general object of my instructions to you has been to expedite, as far as practicable, the surveying of all that part of your district which is in any way connected with the surveying of private confirmed claims, and not to authorize, at present, the surveying of any townships unconnected with such claims other than those which you had been instructed to survey previous to my communications. You are authorized, however, to contract for the surveying of any of the lands which you may deem it expedient to survey, under my former instructions, on bayous, lakes, &c., and in conformity to the second section of the act of March 3, 1811."

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office to George Davis, esq., surveyor general Washington, Mississippi, dated June 30, 1824.

"In relation to the views of this office as it respects the surveying of public lands, private claims, and back concessions, in your surveying district, I must refer you to and request your perusal of the letters addressed by me to Mr. Wailes, of the following dates: 1823, July 18, 27; August 19, 28; September 8, (circular,) September 12; November 12, 17; December 19 and 31; 1824, January 10, 12, 30; March 4; April 1. To no one of these letters has a direct answer been given, so far as I recollect, by Mr. Wailes.

"The principal object of these communications, and it is one to which I must call your particular attention, was to hasten the completion of the surveys of the private claims and back concessions in Louisiana, and to connect those heretofore made with the township lines, where such have been or are intended to be run, in order that the necessary returns may be made to this office, on which patents could be issued. In accomplishing this, all the residuary public lands adjacent to and interspersed among the private claims would be ascertained and prepared for sale. These surveys will include nearly all the good lands in every land district in the State of Louisiana which is at present desirable to bring into market, with the exception of the lands lying immediately on the Mississippi above Natchez and extending to the northern boundary of the State, the surveying of which, it is presumed, is nearly if not quite completed; only two township plats, however, of these lands have been returned to this office. Until these objects are accomplished, the surveying of any other lands in the State of Louisiana should be suspended.

"The several acts of Congress allowing further time for the adjudication of private claims in the district of St. Helena and Opelousas will occasion some legal impediment to the immediate final completion of the township plats in those districts. Nevertheless, much progress may be made in surveying and connecting with the township lines the private claims which have been heretofore confirmed and the back concessions in Opelousas.

"To the completion of the several series of surveys in the southeastern district and of the plats of those townships containing private claims in the district north of Red river there exists no legal impediment; and every effort should be made by you to have the surveys in those districts completed and the plats returned to this office with as little delay as possible."

"You will take every possible precaution to guard against the unnecessary resurvey of the public lands or private claims which have heretofore been surveyed and paid for either by individuals or the public."

Copy of a letter from George Graham, esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office, to Samuel H. Harper, esq., register of the land office at New Orleans, Louisiana, dated

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, September 19, 1823.

SIR: On reference to the reports made by yourself and the receiver, bearing date November 20, 1816, I find that the claims of Joseph Gabon and James Felice on the Bayou Boeuf, for about one league front and forty arpents deep on each side of the bayou, and the claims of Joseph Talbo and John Toledo on the Bayou Caillou, for similar quantities, must be considered as confirmed by the act of 1820. As these lands were not settled and probably not surveyed when the lands which we have lately advertised for sale on those bayous were run out, it is possible that there may be some interferences. This fact should be ascertained by the principal deputy surveyor previous to the sale; and if there is an interference, those lots covered by the private claims should be withheld from sale, provided the private claims have been surveyed on the lands designated in the original order of survey; and upon this point the principal deputy surveyor should be perfectly satisfied.

If the whole or any part of the claims above mentioned have not been surveyed, and if the designation in the original order of survey of the places of location on the respective bayous is so vague as to produce any doubt in the mind of the principal deputy surveyor as to the proper point of location, he will in that case take care so to survey them as not to interfere with the lands surveyed and advertised for sale by the United States, and he will make a special report of the facts in the case to this office.

The private claims on the Bayou Darbonne having been granted on account of settlement principally, I presume that there is no danger as to interference with them. It is possible, though I think not probable, that there may be some old grants on the Bayou Grostete which may interfere with the lands proclaimed for sale; this should be inquired into previous to the sale.

Can you give me any information on the subject of the claim of the Chotamache tribe of Indians on the Bayous Plaquemine and Jaques? Do the Indians now occupy the land, or is it occupied by others? If so, under what title? The Indians, I presume, had no right either to lease or to sell the lands.

You will please furnish the principal deputy surveyor with a copy of this letter for his information and guidance on the points mentioned.

I am, with great respect, &c.,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner to S. H. Harper, esq., register, &c., New Orleans, dated

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, October 12, 1823.

"Having had occasion to refer to the claims of the Marquis de Lafayette, I find that you have, by your report dated November 20, 1816, recommended the confirmation of a claim filed by Cooley for two thousand acres of land, which interferes materially with the lands patented to the marquis on the Mississippi, and adjacent to the bayou.

"In your report of the case of Charles Grass, on which that of Cooley depends, you observe that the commissioners rejected this claim, and others of a similar nature, principally on the ground of abandonment, alleging 'that the Spanish government would, upon application, have granted the same land to others,' and in which opinion you concur.

"I presume, therefore, that you had no knowledge of the grant to the marquis at the time you reported in favor of the claim of E. Cooley; for if the Spanish government would have granted these lands on the application of an individual, it would seem the United States had the right to grant the land, particularly after the solemn decision of the commissioners, and that on the ex parte testimony of the claimant. I will thank you to furnish me with certified copies of all the papers filed in your office relative to the claim of E. Cooley.

"GEORGE GRAHAM."

Extract of a letter from J. Wilson, esq., principal deputy surveyor, to George Graham, esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated

NEW ORLEANS, March 13, 1824.

"In a letter directed to the register under date of September 19, 1823, (a copy of which was furnished me,) in relation to the claims of James Gabon and Joseph Felice on the Bayou Boeuf, and J. Talbot and John Toledo on the Bayou Caillou, I am directed to survey them in such manner as not to interfere with the lands surveyed and ordered for sale, provided the designation of the places of location is not pointed out in the original order of survey. As there are a great many claims similarly situated with those, (no place of location being designated,) I would beg leave to ask whether the same rule shall apply to them all, the claimants having in many instances selected the best lands among the lots already surveyed, and located themselves upon them. Should this be allowed, it will create much confusion, and leave fractional lots to be sold, besides a very great loss to the government if left in the power of the claimants to select lands wherever they please. I would beg the favor of a reply, addressed to me at Donaldsonville.

"With great respect, I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

"J. WILSON, Principal Deputy Surveyor."

Extract of a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office to John Wilson, esq., principal deputy surveyor, Donaldsonville, Louisiana, dated April 15, 1824.

"The recommendations of the register and receiver in favor of the claims of Gabon, Felice, Talbot, and Toledo are evidently founded on the principles established by the 1st section of the act of April 12, 1814.

"That act requires that the warrant or order of survey either should have been located or that it should contain in itself a special location. The rule, therefore, for you to follow, in relation to these as well as other cases similarly situated, is to refuse to survey unless satisfactory evidence is produced to show that the land required to be surveyed is the particular land designated in the warrant or order of survey. And the rule should be particularly attended to in cases where the land has been surveyed by this government, as the Spanish government never would have permitted a floating warrant to have been located on lands subsequent to the surveying of them by the government for any purpose whatsoever.

"Yours, very respectfully,

"GEORGE GRAHAM."

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, Washington, Miss., October 16, 1824.

SIR: In a letter from me to the Commissioner of the General Land Office dated 16th August last, speaking of the surveys of private claims north of Red river, I took occasion to remark that "these surveys are progressing slowly at present, under orders from Mr. Wailes, before I believed him; that they should be executed at the expense of the claimants, on the ground, as I understand, that these claims being in fact donations, the evidence upon which they were confirmed having been false and fraudulent, the donation itself was sufficient loss to the government without the expense of surveying being superadded."

The Commissioner, in reply to this part of my letter, observes: "I do not understand the distinction taken by Mr. Wailes in relation to the claims north of Red river. If the evidence on which any claim has been confirmed is 'false and fraudulent,' it affects the validity of the claim and not its classification; and in all cases where testimony is furnished to this office to show that a claim has been confirmed on 'false and fraudulent evidence' patents will be withheld. I will thank you to call upon Mr. Wailes and ascertain the grounds he has for believing that there are any claims which have been confirmed on such testimony."

Whether the information that gave rise to the remark in my letter to the Commissioner was derived directly from yourself, or from Mr. Bramhall, chief clerk in this office, or from both, I do not now recollect; nor is it very important that I should, since, had the question of who should pay the surveying expenses been a doubtful one, which it does not now seem to be, the motive imputed to you as having influenced your decision does you, in my opinion, great honor.

The conversations I have heard in relation to the manner in which the confirmation of many or most of those claims have been obtained, as well as in relation to the testimony offered to influence, in some instances, their location, are both shocking and astonishing.

I have chosen this mode of soliciting of you any information you can communicate on this subject likely to be useful, in however small a degree, towards protecting the interests of the government against a lawless combination of individuals.

I am, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

G. DAVIS.

LEVIN WAILES, Esq.

WASHINGTON, Miss., October 16, 1824.

SIR: Most of the information I have had on the subject of the claims referred to in your letter of this date, just received by Mr. Winston, was derived from Kenneth McCrummen, esq., to whom, as he is now here, I beg leave to refer you, and recommend your reducing to writing such information as Mr. McCrummen will afford you. I shall answer your letter more fully in a few days. I write this in a hurry that you may call on Mr. McCrummen before his departure for Louisiana.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

LEVIN WAILES.

GEORGE DAVIS, Esq., Surveyor General.

WASHINGTON, Sunday Morning, October 17, 1824.

DEAR SIR: In a letter I yesterday wrote to Levin Wailes, esq., I made inquiry of him, at the desire of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, respecting certain supposed fraudulent practices in a particular district of Louisiana, by means of which public lands have been converted, or are converting, into private property, without any valuable consideration being given in exchange for them.

Mr. Wailes, in a hasty reply, promises to answer me more fully hereafter, and, in the meanwhile, refers me to you as one from whom much useful information may be obtained.

As you are presumed to be intimate with Mr. Wailes, he will, no doubt, give you the perusal of my letter to him, as well as of his answer, by which means you will be better informed of the nature of my inquiries; and I solicit, and have the greatest confidence of obtaining, from you all the useful information you shall be able to furnish. I must beg of you to reduce it to writing, and leave nothing untold which you may suppose likely to be useful on the subject.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

G. DAVIS.

KENNETH McCRUMMEN, Esq., Deputy Surveyor—present.

WASHINGTON, October 18, 1824.

SIR: The private claims to which you refer and of which, by your letter dated yesterday, you desire me to afford you any information in my power, I understand to be those filed with and reported by the register of the land office north of Red river, in the State of Louisiana. The task you have imposed on me is an unpleasant one. Nevertheless, as an officer acting under the authority of the government of the United States, I consider it my duty to withhold no information from you which can tend to detect any fraud practiced or intended to be practiced on the government.

It will be proper that I should particularize some of the claims which are said to be derived from settlements which have been established by oral testimony. I begin with the claim of Richard Green, of one league square. I believe it will be found, by a recurrence to former statutes under which the American government provided for the adjustment of land claims in Louisiana, that a mere occupancy right could in no case exceed the quantity of two thousand acres; and this required an occupancy, as well as I can recollect, of ten years before the cession of Louisiana to the United States. If the occupancy commenced from a later date, a settlement right could not exceed one mile square, or 640 acres; no person could hold more than one such right, nor could he hold that if he held land under any other title from the Spanish government. It is within my knowledge that this same Mr. Green, at an early date, filed his claim to a tract of land in the parish of Catahoula, and was confirmed to the extent of 640 acres by the commissioners for adjusting such claims at Opelousas. This ought to have barred his claim to the tract he now claims; but if this had been a valid claim, is it not strange and inexplicable that he did not enter it when he entered the first? I shall, however, show the whole ground of this claim to the tract of a league square as I have it from Green's own witness. Philip O'Neal, whose testimony was taken before the late Reuben T. Sacket, then a justice of the peace, has, I understand, been made to testify that he, the said O'Neal, did, for some years before the change of government, say twenty-two or twenty-three years, occupy, inhabit, and cultivate the said land for the claimant, Richard Green. I do not pretend to state the testimony word for word; I only give what I understood to be the substance of it. Philip O'Neal assures me that his testimony has not been minuted by this justice of the peace as he gave it in; he has repeatedly said, to myself and others, that, when a boy, about twenty years ago, perhaps about the time of the change of government, or a year or two before, he, said O'Neal, accompanied his father on a hunting excursion up the Rigolet, the water-course on which Mr. Green claims this land, at that time an unsettled wilderness, and for the purpose of getting cypress bark to cover cabins at the place where his father then resided; that the getting this cypress bark was the only improvement which he or his father made on the place; that three or four years ago Dr. Green came to him, O'Neal, and offered him $50 for the improvement so made; that he informed Dr. Green that he did not pretend to have any claim to the land, but Green insisting on giving him the $50, he agreed to let him have the claim, such as it was, and such as he has stated it to be; that a few months afterwards he was cited before R. T. Sacket to give testimony in the claim of Richard Green; and that when on oath he made the statement corresponding with the foregoing information, and no other.

Louis L. Huffman is another person who has obtained the confirmation of his claim, under the report of the register north of the Red river, for a tract of 640 acres of land. He had originally claimed a tract with ten arpents of front, with forty arpents in depth, (say 400 arpents, equal to 338 acres,) to which extent his claim was confirmed by the register and receiver at Opelousas. To obtain an enlargement of this tract he has found it convenient to claim (on the same ground, in part) 640 acres, for which he has obtained confirmation. A reference to former acts of Congress will show that he ought to have been confined to his first claim if, indeed, he was legally entitled to that.

The heirs of Benjamin Miller claim under the settlement of their father. One claim, lying in the parish of Catahoula, has already been confirmed to Benjamin Miller for 640 acres. This, by former acts of Congress, ought to bar the claim filed with the register at Ouachita for the benefit of his heirs.

Adam Huffman has also a claim favorably reported on by the register north of Red river. The father of the claimant, whose name was Adam also, with some of his neighbors, erected cow-pens on this land, probably for the purpose of gentling their wild cattle; the son has found it convenient to call it a stock farm; and he has produced, as I suppose, such testimony as satisfied the register north of Red river that his claim was a valid one. On this ground there appears a small improvement, which I know to have been made only five years past by some wood-cutters, who remained three or four months on the land, cutting and carrying away the public timber.

August. O'Neal's claim is of so little value that the inhabitants neither care nor say much about it, thinking the loss will not be great to the government if they should be swindled out of it. There is no improvement on it, however, that appears to have been made longer ago than eight or ten years, perhaps long enough since to entitle him to the right of preference to purchase from the United States.

I have no better opinion of the claims said to have been founded on concessions from the Spanish government, and filed with the register north of Red river at Ouachita. It is possible, and barely possible, that there may be some few valid and honest claims among them; but it is my opinion, and that of the most respectable inhabitants of the parishes of Natchitoches and Rapides, that the far greater part of these documents are base counterfeits. It is true I have seen none of those papers myself, but I have heard respectable persons and good judges, who have seen many of them, speak publicly of them, not only as counterfeits, but very bungling counterfeits. Besides, I have inquired of the most ancient and respectable inhabitants of both these parishes, who assure me that they never before have so much as heard the names of any of the persons to whom those large and valuable tracts of land are said to have been granted by the Spanish government.

I have myself been very generally acquainted in the parishes of Rapides and Natchitoches and Catahoula for about sixteen years. I have never heard the names of any of these grantees before, nor do I believe the names of any of them are to be found on any records of either of those parishes. In short, the whole thing is ridiculed and contemned by every honest man in the northern district as a base attempt to defraud the government. It is a curious fact that all those grants are, although purporting to have been made some thirty and more years ago, (or past,) for the most part, for the most valuable lands in the State, in situations which were totally unknown to any civilized man until long since the cession of Louisiana to the United States, and not until, by the running and marking the public lines, facilities were given by which the country could be examined.

If the act of Congress confirming the claims under consideration has not placed them on a footing beyond the control of the government, I do not hesitate to say that it is my belief that the government would save a million of dollars at least by ordering all the documents of title which were filed with either of the registers in that part of Louisiana called the Territory of Orleans, under the last acts granting indulgence to land claimants, to be transmitted to the seat of government, and there scrutinized and investigated by gentlemen well acquainted with such documents, and competent to judge of their authenticity.

I am, with great respect, sir, your very obedient servant,

KENNETH McCRUMMEN.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, Washington, Miss., October 23, 1824.

SIR : The correspondence between myself and Messrs. Wailes and McCrummen, of which a transcript is herewith enclosed, in relation to the land claims confirmed by the second section of the act of Congress of February 28, 1823, has resulted from the request made in the closing part of your letter to me of the 11th ultimo, to which I have but a single additional remark to offer : that if all that I daily hear upon the subject be not mere idle stories, it will require but a little further indulgence by Congress to the persons for filing notices of claims to wrest from the government all the lands in that interesting district of Louisiana worth being surveyed.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

C. DAVIS.

GEORGE GRAHAM, Esq., Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington City.

P. S.—No other letter has been received from Mr. Wailes.

Extract from a letter from George Davis, esq., surveyor, &c., dated

WASHINGTON, Miss., October 29, 1824.

SIR : I have been so beset, for two or three days past, by a land claimant, under the second section of the act of February 28, 1823, of the name of Bowie, that I have been able to think of scarcely anything else. A deputy surveyor, Mr. Milo Johnson, had been surveying claims of this kind, and chiefly for this individual, slowly, for about a year previously to my arrival here, under orders from Mr. Wailes, and I found a considerable bundle of his papers in the office when I took possession of it ; they had laid dormant ever since, until within a few days past.

The claimant is extremely anxious to obtain my approval of Johnson's locations, in order to facilitate the sale of the lands to squatters. When any of those squatters are found on good tracts of land, these locations are laid on them ; and after the parties come to an understanding on the subject, the squatters are found ready to assist in the most iniquitous means of defrauding the government, or so says report.

In one instance, and it was the first presented to my notice, the location is laid on a bayou called in all the maps that I have seen, as well as by the present inhabitants of the vicinity, Bayou Tensas ; whereas his claim calls for Bayou Mason, (in French, Maçon,) situated a considerable distance further from the Mississippi than the former, and both running nearly parallel to it.

B.

Extracts of a letter from George Davis, esq., surveyor south of the State of Tennessee, dated SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, Washington, Miss., November 1, 1824.

SIR : In your letter of general instructions of the 30th of June last you seem to suppose that all the good lands on the Mississippi between Natchez and the north boundary of Louisiana, in that State, had been already surveyed. Whatever public land may still remain to be surveyed, the maps transmitted with my letter to the General Land Office of the 22d ultimo, in addition to the two some time previously forwarded by Mr. Wailes, comprehend the whole that has yet been surveyed in that part of the north of Red river district.

Being about to enter into a contract with Mr. E. S. Ludlow to complete the survey of these lands between the part heretofore surveyed by him and the north boundary of the State of Louisiana, I transmit herewith a copy of a draught of that part of the work the exterior lines of which have been heretofore surveyed and paid for by Mr. Wailes.

This draught is forwarded for the double purpose of presenting a portion of the work upon which the accounts of Mr. Wailes have been founded, and of exhibiting a location recently attempted to be made on Lake Providence and Bayou Tensas of two private claims, the confirmations of which, by the second section of the act of February 28, 1823, called for Bayou Maçon, situated a considerable distance further from the Mississippi river than the former.

You will find these claims on the list in the name of Juan Gonzales and Francisco Andante;* the real claimant is, however, named Bowie. I have declined approving the surveys on account chiefly of their mislocation, or of their being laid in a part of the country not warranted by the grant. I transmit the affidavits of two individuals said to have been squatters on those lands; they were obtained by the claimant in order to induce the surveyor to make the location. It is acknowledged, I believe, on all hands, that the bayou is still called Tensas. In relation to these locations I shall only further remark, that it is pretty confidently believed by some that the real Bayou Maçon derived its name originally from a noted river pirate named Mason, who had his haunts on it in the year 1804-'5, and who was killed by one of his men in order to secure the reward offered for his capture by the proclamation of Mr. Jefferson, while President of the United States. Happening to be in this village myself when the fellow came here to demand his reward, I can have no doubt of the time; and were the fact established that the etymology of the name of the bayou has been correctly ascertained, it would destroy the validity of the claim altogether, as the claims themselves look as far back for their origin as 1788 and 1789, respectively.

C.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, September 7, 1824.

SIR: Your predecessor, Mr. Wailes, made no report to this office relative to the claims filed with him agreeably to the provision of the second section of the act supplementary to the several "acts for the adjustment of land claims in the State of Louisiana," passed May 11, 1820. As the surveying of the private claims which have heretofore been confirmed in your district cannot be so closed as to give to the claims their respective sectional numbers until all the claims in each township shall have been finally acted upon, and as much time will be lost and the claimants generally, as well as the public, subjected to great inconvenience by delaying the returns until a special act of Congress can be procured which shall authorize you to make the report that was required by law of Mr. Wailes, I take the liberty of suggesting the propriety of your investigating and reporting on the claims which have been filed with Mr. Wailes, when register, within the period prescribed by the act above mentioned. Your report would be submitted to Congress, and I have no doubt would be acted upon by them in the same manner that any report would be which would be made under any act that might be passed at the next session authorizing you to report on these claims.

In making your report you will confine yourself to the provisions of the act which limits your jurisdiction to claims founded on Spanish grants, concessions, or orders of survey, and which shall have been filed with your predecessor previous to December 31, 1820. These restrictions are equally applicable to the claims provided for by the second and fourth sections of the act.

As to the form of your report and the classification and numbering of the claims, I would refer you to the report made by Mr. Wailes and Gerard, dated December 30, 1815, which affords the simplest form in which the substance of the evidence in each case may be embodied.

It is possible that Mr. Wailes may have neglected to file some of the claims which may have been presented to him previous to December 31, 1820, or the evidence of their having been filed may have been lost. In such cases you will make a special report, accompanied by the evidence, that the claim was filed within the period limited by law.

In addition to the fees for recording specified in the act, a part of which I presume Mr. Wailes has received, a further sum of $600 is allowed to the register for making this report, which Mr. Wailes has not received, and which would be paid to you whenever Congress should act upon the report.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

VALENTINE KING, Esq., Register of the Land Office, Opelousas, Louisiana.

Extract from a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office to George Davis, esq., dated August 27, 1824.

"Should you find, on due investigation, that your principal deputy surveyors are not qualified or are inattentive to their duties, you should remove them. I have great doubts whether that part of the organization of the surveying department has in any manner facilitated the surveying the private claims. Measures should be taken by you to give more efficiency to this branch of the department, or it ought to be abolished."

Extract from a letter from George Davis, esq., surveyor of public lands south of Tennessee, to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated October 25, 1824.

"Having nothing to conceal, I must beg permission to state that the law does not, in effect, put the office of the principal deputies under the due control of this office, simply because the salary and legal fees and perquisites of them will not command the services of any man under fifty years of age who possesses the necessary talents and industry to perform the duties of them if their pecuniary circumstances be above those of absolute pauperism. This, sir, is an unpleasant, perhaps a dangerous truth, but my situation imposes upon me no duty more imperative than that of telling it. In doing it, I have no private views to subserve, no friend with whom I wish to fill a vacancy. On the contrary, I know of no proper person acquainted with the really arduous duties that would be required of him who would be willing to accept of one of those appointments with an intention at the same time of performing them. This the present incumbents know; and hence it results that if any substantial services are required of them as an equivalent for their salaries they are ready to resign."

18TH CONGRESS.]

No. 429.

[2D SESSION.]

NEW LOCATIONS IN LIEU OF LOTS IN NEW MADRID AND LITTLE PRAIRIE VILLAGES, IN MISSOURI, INJURED BY EARTHQUAKES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE DECEMBER 30, 1824.

IN SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES, December 12, 1823.

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands inquire into the expediency of making further provision by law for the final decision of incomplete titles to lands held under the authority of France or Spain, in the State of Missouri and Territory of Arkansas; and also into the expediency of making further provision by law to perfect the title to lands located by virtue of warrants issued under the act of Congress of February 17, 1815, entitled "An act for the relief of the inhabitants of the late county of New Madrid, in the Missouri Territory, who suffered by earthquakes."

Attest:

CHARLES CUTTS, Secretary.

IN SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES, December 20, 1824.

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands inquire into the expediency of making further provision by law to perfect the titles to lands located by virtue of warrants issued under the act of Congress of February 17, 1815, entitled "An act for the relief of the inhabitants of the late county of New Madrid, in the Missouri Territory, who suffered by earthquakes."

Attest:

CHARLES CUTTS, Secretary.

DECEMBER 30, 1824.

Mr. BARTON, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported "A bill supplementary to 'An act to perfect certain locations and sales of the public lands in Missouri,'" passed April 26, 1822, and submitted the following documents:

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 22, 1824.

SIR: In reply to your letter of the 19th instant, requesting information relative to the instructions under which the recorder of land titles in Missouri acted in issuing certificates of new location in lieu of town lots, out lots, &c., in the villages of New Madrid and Little Prairie, under the act of February 17, 1815, I have the honor to transmit the papers marked from No. 1 to No. 17. These papers contain the instructions and correspondence, as well as my own views in relation to the subject, and show the grounds upon which patents have been withheld.

It appears from the returns of the recorder of land titles in Missouri that he has issued 182 certificates for 160 acres of land each, in lieu of town lots and other tracts of land of less quantity than 160 acres which have been relinquished. Patents have been issued on twenty-eight of these certificates; of the residue there are eighty-five on which patents will be withheld under the construction given to the act of February 17, 1815, unless there shall be some further legislative provisions on the subject.

The paper marked No. 17 is a copy of a letter from Mr. Sloo, a gentleman appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury to examine the land offices in Missouri and Arkansas, and who was requested by me to communicate such information as he might be able to procure in passing through that district of country injured by the earthquakes relative to the New Madrid claims and the lands which had been relinquished. Any further communication that may be received from him on the subject shall be submitted to you.

I am, with very great respect, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

HON. DAVID BARTON, Chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, Senate.

No. 1.

Copy of a letter to Frederick Bates, esq., recorder, St. Louis, dated March 1, 1815.

SIR: Enclosed you have a copy of an act of Congress, passed 17th ultimo, entitled "An act for the relief of the inhabitants of the late county of Madrid, in the Missouri Territory, who suffered by earthquakes."

The first section declares that "the title of the person or persons to the land injured as aforesaid shall revert to and become absolutely vested in the United States."

You will therefore take from the parties who may apply for the benefit of this act transfers of their titles (for the lands injured) in favor of the United States, and make those acts matter of record in your office.

The third section requires you to transmit to this office "a report of the claims allowed and locations made." You will be pleased, also, to report the lands transferred to the United States by the claimants under this act

I am, &c.,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

No. 2.

Extract of a letter to F. Bates, esq., St. Louis, dated September 18, 1815

I approve of your refusal to issue certificates to any other than the original claimants who are contemplated in the act of February 17, 1815. Should you be the bearer of your work to this city it will give me pleasure to have an opportunity of conversing with you.

I am, &c.,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

No. 3.

Copy of a letter to Frederick Bates, esq., recorder of land titles at St. Louis, dated October 6, 1815.

SIR: An inquiry has been made at this office whether claimants of land under the act of 17th February last, for the relief of the inhabitants of the late county of New Madrid, &c., may locate a claim in different places.

The act describes two classes of claimants:

- 1st. Those who claim less than 160 acres, and who may locate 160 acres.
- 2d. Those who claim more, but who may not locate more than 640 acres.

There is not anything in the act that authorizes the idea that any certificate you may issue can (legally) be located in different places; but as that idea appears to be entertained, it will be necessary that the certificates expressly state that the location of each individual claimant be made in one tract. You will not issue any patent certificates for locations which may have been made contrary to this regulation, because patents will not be granted upon such certificates.

I am, &c.,

JOSIAH MEIGS.

No. 4.

Copy of a letter to Frederick Bates, esq., recorder at St. Louis, dated March 11, 1817.

SIR: I have received from the speaker of the house of representatives of the Territory of Missouri a resolution of the general assembly relative to the commons of the village of Carondelet. Congress have not acted during the late session on that subject, but in my opinion the New Madrid claimants ought not to be permitted to locate on those commons.

I am, very respectfully, &c.,

J. MEIGS.

No. 5.

Copy of a letter to Frederick Bates, esq., recorder at St. Louis, dated February 24, 1819.

SIR: A document, of which the following is a copy, has been sent by the Secretary of the Treasury to this office, endorsed "Referred to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, who is requested to ask the recorder for the facts and reasons upon which he made the within decision. W. H. C." I will thank you to give the said information by the return of the mail.

DOCUMENT.

St. Louis, December 31, 1818.

Joseph Story, attorney in fact for the persons whose names are hereafter mentioned, of the county of New Madrid and Territory of Missouri, applies to the recorder of land titles for the aforesaid Territory for certificates of new location to issue on and for the following lots of ground, at a town called the Little Prairie, in said Territory, (to be held in lieu thereof,) in conformity to the act of Congress of February 17, 1815, in the case made and provided, viz:

Original claimants.	Lots.	Arp.	Original claimants.	Lots.	Arp.
Nich. Tirard.....	2	2	David G. Horsley.....	2	2

Noel Gamlan	2	2	Jenkin Harris	2	2
John Goodbeseare.....	2	2	Charles Gilbeult, jr.....	2	2
Nichs. Revelee.....	2	2

Which said above lots of ground have been heretofore proven in your office to have been materially injured by earthquakes. Signed by their agent and attorney in fact.

JOSH STORY.

FRED'K BATES, Esq., Recorder of Land Titles, Missouri Territory.

OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF LAND TITLES, St. Louis, December 31, 1818.

On the presentation of this demand I have not thought myself justified in issuing certificates of new location, and have declined to do so.

FRED'K. BATES.

Which shows that the Little Prairie claims have been laid before the recorder.

No. 6.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, January 17, 1822.

SIR: The act of February 17, 1815, for the relief of the sufferers by earthquakes in the county of New Madrid, authorizes them to locate the like quantity of land on any of the public lands in the (then)

Territory of Missouri, the sale of which is authorized by law: "Provided, That no person shall be permitted to locate a greater quantity of land under this act than the quantity confirmed to him, except the owners of lots of ground or tracts of land of less quantity than one hundred and sixty acres, who are hereby authorized to locate and obtain any quantity of land not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres; nor shall any person be entitled to locate more than six hundred and forty acres."

The point to which I beg leave to call your attention is this: on the list of certificates of the right of new location under that act I find that the same individual has been permitted, in numerous instances, to locate to the amount of one hundred and sixty acres for each lot of one arpent, and certificates of location in such cases have been granted by the recorder of land titles.

To exemplify my meaning, I would merely mention two instances: Francis Lesseur has received four certificates of one hundred and sixty acres each, for four lots of one arpent each. Joseph Genereux has received four certificates of the same kind, and for the same number of lots of one arpent.

Conceiving that the law never intended to grant to any one owner of town lots the privilege of locating more than one hundred and sixty acres, except, indeed, in cases where the quantity of the lots owned by them, exceeding the quantity of one hundred and sixty acres, would thereby entitle them to the privilege of locating a like greater quantity, whatever such might be. I beg leave to ask advice whether patents can legally be demanded, and am, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

JOSIAH MEIGS, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Hon. SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

No. 7.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES, January 22, 1822.

SIR: I entirely concur in the opinion expressed by the Commissioner of the Land Office, that it is not the intention of the act of Congress of February 17, 1815, to permit the owners of town lots in the county of New Madrid to locate a tract of one hundred and sixty acres for each town lot they may own; but one tract for the whole of their town lots, however many, unless the aggregate shall exceed the quantity of one hundred and sixty acres, when they will fall within the general enactment of being authorized to locate the quantity they have lost.

I have the honor to remain, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WM. WIRT.

Hon. WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD, Treasury Department.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, April 1, 1822.

SIR: Enclosed you have a copy of my letter to the honorable the Secretary of the Treasury, dated the 17th of January last, relative to certain locations made under the act of February 17, 1815, for the relief of the inhabitants of the late county of New Madrid, in the Missouri Territory, and a copy of the opinion of the Attorney General of the United States, dated the 22d of January last, declaring the issuing of certificates for one hundred and sixty acres in favor of persons holding lots of a less quantity (so as to allow any person holding four lots of one arpent each to receive four certificates for one hundred and sixty acres) to be contrary to the act referred to. In consequence of which opinion no patents will be issued by this office on the certificates, which are thereby declared void; and I have to request that you will issue no certificates for such claims.

I am, &c.,

J. MEIGS.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, August 13, 1822.

SIR: I will thank you for a list of those persons claiming lands under the act of February 17, 1815, in whose favor location certificates have been issued for a greater quantity of land than the amount they have surrendered to the United States, mentioning in each case the amount surrendered and the amount for which certificates have been issued, and their numbers.

No. 11.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, August 8, 1823.

SIR: Mr. Wash, of Missouri, lately presented several patent certificates issued by you under the provisions of the act of February 17, 1815, for the relief of the inhabitants of New Madrid. These certificates appear to have been issued under the first proviso of the first section of that act, which declares "that no person shall be permitted to locate a greater quantity of land under this act than the quantity confirmed to him, except the owners of lots of ground, or tracts of land of less quantity than 160 acres, who are hereby authorized to locate and obtain any quantity of land not exceeding 160 acres; nor shall any person be entitled to locate more than 640 acres." I am of opinion that, under this provision of the law, no more than 160 acres of land can be patented to any original confirmees of a lot or tract of land of less quantity than 160 acres; and as the certificates presented by Mr. Wash embraced cases where more than that quantity had been located patents were of course refused.

I understood from Mr. Wash that the ground on which these certificates had been issued by you was, that although the certificate was granted in the name of the original confirmees, (which appears also from your report,) yet he had assigned his interest to a part of the lots previous to the injury sustained from the earthquake, and therefore as many certificates were issued as there were assignees. I also understand from him that although the confirmees of a larger tract of land than 160 acres might have divided it into tracts of less than that quantity, and assigned them as before stated, yet such a practical construction was given to the law as to prevent the confirmees and his assigns from obtaining more in the whole than 640 acres, or the quantity originally confirmed. This was a correct interpretation of the law, and there seems to be no reason why a different one should be given as to town lots.

Some few patents have been issued on the certificates granted by you, on what is now considered an erroneous interpretation of the law, a list of which is forwarded; and, as I can readily conceive that in many cases the assignees might be more entitled to the relief intended to be given than the original confirmees, I have to request that you will report to this office the evidence of transfer in all cases where there has issued either location or patent certificates in the name of the confirmees of town lots for more than 160 acres of land. I ask this information with a view of having the cases submitted to Congress, should that course be deemed necessary.

I also wish to know what construction you have given to the 3d section of the act before mentioned; it appears to me that the evident intention of that section was to limit the time of location to twelve months from the date of the location certificate, and that the ambiguity in this section arises principally from the omission of the word "location," between the words "which" and "certificate," in that section.

As it is intended to bring into the market, as soon as practicable, all the relinquished and reserved lands, you will be so obliging as to inform me what course was pursued in relation to the New Madrid lands which were relinquished, and particularly as to the following points:

First. Was there any particular form in the relinquishment?

Second. Was there any evidence required of the confirmees that no transfer had been made of the whole or any part of the land confirmed to him?

Third. If any transfer had been made, was a relinquishment required from the transferee?

Fourth. In cases of transfer, what evidence was required to show that the transfer had been made previous to the injury sustained from the earthquake?

Fifth. Was the surveyor general notified of the relinquishment in such a manner as to enable him to lay down the lands relinquished upon his maps?

Sixth. Have you any plats of the towns of New Madrid and Little Prairie, on which the lots relinquished in these towns, respectively, are laid down and designated as relinquished lands?

I am, with great respect,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

FREDERICK BATES, Esq., Recorder of Land Titles, St. Louis, Missouri.

Lists referred to.

Joseph Dorion, certificate 41, for 200 arpents, patented; certificate 256, for a lot, patented; certificate 255, for a lot, not patented.

Joseph Payne, certificate 45, for 1 arpent patented; certificate 243, for 120 arpents, patented; certificate 46, for 1 arpent, not patented.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, August 8, 1823.

SIR: I enclose you a copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Bates, the recorder, relative to the New Madrid claims, and the relinquishment of lands on which those claims were founded, with a request that you will furnish this office with such information as may be in your power relative to the fifth and sixth inquiries, as stated therein.

We have a map in the office on which is laid down a number of private claims immediately adjoining the town of New Madrid; but the township plats not having been as yet returned, the names of the persons to whom these claims were originally granted do not appear.

Can you furnish me with a connected plat of that part of the county of New Madrid, within which any private claim had been surveyed previous to February 17, 1815, having reference to the extent which the said county had on November 10, 1812, and designating the surveys by the names of the persons to whom they had been originally confirmed?

I will thank you for information on the following points:

First. Were the private claims or any part of them surveyed and connected with the township lines previous to February 17, 1815?

Second. Have the whole or any part of the lands relinquished under the act for the relief of the inhabitants of New Madrid been designated on your township maps as private claims, or have they in all instances been sectioned off as other public lands?

Third. If any part of the relinquished lands are designated agreeably to surveys made prior to sectioning the adjacent lands, you will describe these surveys in such special manner as will enable us to proclaim them for sale.

From an examination of Mr. Bates' returns, under the act for the relief of the inhabitants of New Madrid, I find that there has been relinquished, in acres, 112,460; in arpents, 53,859; in lots, 71, in New Madrid; in lots, 49, in Little Prairie; in lots, 2, place not designated.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

SURVEYOR'S OFFICE, St. Louis, September 5, 1823.

SIR: I received by the last mail your letter of the 8th ultimo, enclosing one of the same date to the recorder of land titles, relative to New Madrid claims, &c. In answer to the fifth and sixth inquiries, as stated therein, I have to inform you that I was not notified of the relinquishments in such manner as to enable me to lay down or designate on the maps in this office the lands so relinquished. I have not in my possession plats of the towns of New Madrid and Little Prairie, on which the lots relinquished in those towns, respectively, are laid down and designated as relinquished lands. None of the private claims were surveyed and connected with the township lines previous to February 17, 1815. None of the lands relinquished under the act for the relief of the inhabitants of New Madrid county have been designated on the township plats as private claims. They have, in all cases, (where the country has been surveyed,) been laid off in sections, &c., as other public lands. Plats and descriptions of all the townships embracing and near to New Madrid will be forwarded to the General Land Office in a short time. These papers would before now have been transmitted, but that two of my clerks have been sick, and we have been much engaged in preparing the necessary papers for the different land offices in time to have been received, and shall be particularly attended to as soon as practicable.

I am, with much respect, your obedient servant,

WM. RECTOR.

Hon. GEORGE GRAHAM, Commissioner General Land Office, Washington City.

No. 14.

Extract from a letter of the recorder of land titles, dated

OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF LAND TITLES, St. Louis, September 25, 1823.

SIR: I have been honored this day with your letter of the 8th ultimo, and I rejoice that I have been at this time called upon for an explanation of my conduct in the transaction of a business which has given rise to such a variety of unfounded conjecture. The statement shall be made with all the candor, brevity, and explicitness of which I am capable.

We have plats of the villages of New Madrid and Little Prairie, made by Spanish authority previously to the change of flag, on which plats are designated the several lots; in issuing certificates for which no one of these lots has ever suffered a subdivision. Mr. Wash was mistaken in supposing it. The same principle has been observed with respect to them which governed me in relation to tracts in the country exceeding 160 acres. There were as many original entire lots as there are certificates of location. If in any case these lots have been divided, either before or since the earthquakes, the transferrees have been considered as joint or common "legal representatives," and entitled only to one relief, not exceeding 160 acres for each original lot. I cannot sufficiently express my surprise at the misconception which has arisen on this subject.

You require me to report to you the evidence of transfer in all the cases of excess beyond 160 acres in the name of the same confirmees, for the liberal purpose, as you are pleased to say, of having them submitted to Congress if it should be deemed necessary. I pray you to indulge me until next mail; for, although I have been engaged in making up the reports required by your former letters, I have not yet been able to complete them; and these latter are in no respect different in class, principle, and character, from those contained in the general statement, which had been commenced before the receipt of your last communication.

You wish to know what construction I have placed on the 3d section. It was, I think, obviously my duty to transmit a report of the claims allowed, and of locations made, and to deliver to the "party" a certificate of "circumstances," with the addition that he was entitled to a patent, &c. In discharge of the first two requisitions, I hope and trust that the lists of location certificates and of patent certificates reported to the General Land Office will be, and have been, found satisfactory. In supposed fulfilment of the third duty which this section imposes, I have given to the "party" the certificate itself from which the abstract in the patent list had been taken. I never could comprehend why this certificate should be again returned to the recorder's office. It was heretofore believed that the General Land Office had acquiesced in, although it may not have expressly sanctioned, this practical construction. The details of the law seem to me to be clouded with ambiguities, yet, as its general intendment is, perhaps, sufficiently apparent, I attempted a substantial attainment of ultimate objects, to the neglect, perhaps, of intermediate process, which appeared to me to be useless and even without a purpose. I confess, however, that I ought to have observed all the forms.

It remains for me to answer your inquiries as to the course which has been pursued in relation to the lands relinquished.

1st. There was no particular form of relinquishment. A guarantee could not be expected, for in a legal construction the titles, however prospectively good, were yet in the government. I mean that patents had not yet issued, though every claim the subject of relief had been previously confirmed. A quit-claim has been accepted without the observance of any set form of words. Indeed, had I not been positively instructed, I never should have deemed a written relinquishment necessary, as, under the last proviso of the 1st section of the act, the damaged lands became vested in the United States on the acceptance of the relief.

2d. No evidence was required of the confirmee that he had not transferred either in whole or in part. If the office has committed an error, I regret it exceedingly; but that course did seem to me impracticable.

3d. When a transfer was known to have been made, a relinquishment was required from the transferee.

4th. It never did occur to me that it was material whether the original interest was transferred before or after the earthquakes, and no inquiry was ever thought of as to that fact. Where the deeds themselves were presented their dates will show; but the transferees, for the most part, chose rather to file the county recorder's certificate.

5th. A statement of the relinquishments was supplied to the surveying department (perhaps not handed to General Rector himself) while the deputies were engaged in a survey of the New Madrid lands. Other relinquishments have since been made, which, indeed, I have not yet reported, as I did not know that any present use could be made of them.

6th. We have, as I observed in a former part of this letter, plats of the towns of New Madrid and Little Prairie, but I have not designated thereon the several lots which became vested in the United States, as the very foundations of the latter were broken up by the earthquakes and have passed down the Mississippi. The greater part of the town of New Madrid has suffered a similar fate. I, therefore, could not but consider these lots as forever lost to the government, though the interior of the country is, I understand, regaining, from year to year, its former appearance and productiveness.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,

FREDERICK BATES.

Hon. GEO. GRAHAM, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

OFFICE OF THE RECORDER OF LAND TITLES, St. Louis, October 1, 1823.

SIR: I now forward the relinquishments made to the United States by the persons who obtained certificates of location under the act of February 17, 1815, for the relief of the inhabitants of New Madrid, who suffered by earthquakes, accompanied by a detailed abstract. As this office was not competent to decide finally as to derivative title, the names of those to whom the lands were confirmed have been retained through the whole business, with the addition of the words of the law "or legal representatives." On the application of a purchaser the original deeds or certificates of their record in the county office of New Madrid were always required. It might have been premised that, as matter of course and of obvious necessity, the proof of material injury had, on the first application of the party for relief, been recorded in the minutes. As the reports now transmitted includes all the certificates of location either for damaged lands in the country or for lots in the towns, I have thought that you would not expect the particular evidence on issues for lots beyond one hundred and sixty acres, more especially as the certificates of title, as well as the relinquishments for these, are so blended with the others as not to be susceptible of separation.

With great respect, I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

FREDERICK BATES.

Hon. GEORGE GRAHAM.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, November 12, 1823.

SIR: Your letters of the 25th of September and 1st of October, with the papers referred to therein, have been received, and I am much indebted to you for the information communicated relative to the New Madrid claims. The letters shall be submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury immediately on his arrival. The daily expectation, for some time past, of his return has prevented an earlier acknowledgment of them.

I have had the relinquishments compared with the reports of the confirmed claims which are in this office, and find them to correspond.

I confess that I have been much surprised to find that so large a quantity of land had been confirmed to settlers in the county of New Madrid, and that one hundred and fifty or one hundred and sixty thousand acres of this land should have been materially injured by the earthquake. So far, however, as the government may sustain injury from the loose manner in which the law may have been drawn up, we can afford no remedy, but it is our duty to take care that the government incur no loss, nor sustain embarrassment from the manner in which the law shall be executed. The construction given by you, that the confirmee to several lots of land of less quantity than one hundred and sixty acres was entitled to a certificate for one hundred and sixty acres for each of such lots is not considered here as a correct interpretation of the law, and patents will be withheld in all cases where more than one certificate issued to such confirmee. There is, perhaps, another class of cases where great embarrassment to the government may arise, and ultimately great loss to innocent individuals. I allude to that description of cases where the relinquishment may not be valid, either from fraud or from defective assignment. As I shall issue no patents except in the name of the original confirmee and his legal representatives, the government will sustain no loss in those cases; for if the relinquishment is invalid from either of the causes mentioned, the patent founded on such relinquishment is necessarily null and void, but the interests of innocent individuals may be materially affected, and we should take every possible precaution to guard against the issuing of patents in these cases. Whether any such cases exist I have no means of ascertaining at present; and if they do, I shall not know the extent of them until the township plats designating the private claims are received at this office, and the land shall have been proclaimed for sale. With a view, however, to a more critical investigation, at this office, of the authority and powers on which the several relinquishments were made, I have to request that you will forward all the original papers in your possession on which relinquishments have been made, designating those cases, if any, where you have any suspicion, from any cause whatever, of irregularity in the relinquishment, together with any other information which you may have it in your power to communicate. To guard against loss by accident, or otherwise, it would be advisable to forward those papers by some private conveyance in which you can place entire confidence.

I have requested Mr. Sloo to collect such information as it may be in his power relative to the persons claiming the relinquished lands on his route through that district of country, and to examine the land office in Arkansas.

With sentiments of great respect, &c.,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

FREDERICK BATES, Esq., Recorder of Land Titles, St. Louis, Missouri.

No. 17.

ST. LOUIS, November 22, 1823.

SIR: In the examination of the land offices in Missouri and Arkansas I have noticed that a uniformity is not observed in marking the maps and township plats. Some adhere to the old mode, A P; some designate a sale by the letter E; and others by the letter S. I think it would be better to adopt the latter mode, with the addition of the number of the application on the township plat. The general map might be marked with the letter S only. I have also noticed a want of uniformity in the charge of commissions by the receivers. Some charge commission on the amount of moneys received at the end of every quarter; others charge commission on moneys paid over. The former I should think the best mode, as the entries are not so numerous, consequently the probability of error lessened, and the accounts of the register and receiver would then be a check upon each other; and whether it is permitted or not, I am confident that the amount is universally applied at the end of every quarter. I have also observed that there appears to be a general complaint on account of the delay in issuing patents. Such a length of time has elapsed since many persons have paid for their land that they begin to think that there is some mistake in the matter, and feel a great deal of anxiety on the subject. From information obtained in passing through Missouri and Arkansas I feel it my duty to observe to you that I think it would be advisable to have a tribunal established for the immediate and final adjustment of New Madrid claims. I will venture to say that the New Madrid law, as it is termed, has given rise to more fraud and more downright villany than any law ever passed by the Congress of the United States, and, if the claims are not immediately decided upon, will involve the citizens of Missouri in endless litigation and trouble in addition to the numerous frauds practised upon the government. In many instances, I am informed, fraudulent relinquishments have been made, and certificate obtained, by persons who had not the shadow of a claim to the land surrendered, and the tract thus surrendered has sometimes been covered by another Madrid certificate, while the real owner continued in quiet possession of his property, without the least idea of relinquishing it. Many persons have received certificates for large quantities of land, when I believe it was never contemplated by the law that any claimant should receive more than six hundred and forty acres. And to close the scene, a great many of the persons who really did relinquish have claimed and intend to claim the right of pre-emption on the tracts relinquished. This information I have from the register and receiver at Jackson, Missouri. I would beg leave to suggest to you the propriety of having an early decision on the old Spanish claims in Missouri and Arkansas. They cover a considerable extent of valuable country which must be withheld from market until government shall determine their fate. I think it important to the United States and to the State of Missouri and Territory of Arkansas, as well as to the claimants themselves, that a speedy decision should be had. In their present situation they hold out an inducement for fraud and speculation, and give rise to a false hope, which it is wrong to encourage, and I am persuaded that it would be better for all parties to have an immediate decision, be that what it may, than to be kept longer in suspense.

With great respect, I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

THOMAS SLOO, JR.

Hon. GEORGE GRAHAM, Commissioner of the General Land Office, Washington City.

LANDS FOR SCHOOLS IN OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 7, 1825.

RESOLUTION AND MEMORIAL to Congress on the subject of school lands.

Resolved, That the following memorial be submitted to the Congress of the United States during the present session or so soon as may be practicable:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the State of Ohio, in general assembly, respectfully represents: That, by the act of the Congress of the United States, passed the 30th day of April, in the year 1802, the following, among other propositions, were offered to the convention to be assembled for the formation of a State government for the people of the eastern division of the territory northwest of the Ohio, including the State of Ohio—that is to say, that the section number sixteen in every township, and where such section had been sold other lands equivalent thereto should be granted to the inhabitants of such township for the use of schools.

Secondly. That the six miles reservation, including the salt springs, commonly called the Scioto Salt Springs, the salt spring near the Muskingham river, and in the military tract, with the section of land which include the same, should be granted to the said State for the use of the people thereof: Provided, the said legislature should never sell nor lease the same for a longer period than ten years.

That the foregoing propositions when acted upon and considered in convention of Ohio, and by an ordinance passed the 29th day of November, in the year 1802, the aforesaid propositions were accepted: Provided, That the following modifications should be made thereto—that is to say, that, in addition to the first propositions, securing the section number sixteen in every township, within certain tracts, to the inhabitants thereof for the use of schools, a like donation, equal to the one thirty-sixth part of the amount of the lands in the United States military tract, should be made for the support of schools within that tract; and also that the like provision should be made for the support of schools in the Virginia reservation, so far as the unlocated land in that tract would supply the proportion after the warrants issued from said State should have been satisfied; and also that a donation of the same kind, or such provision as Congress should deem expedient, should be made to the inhabitants of the Connecticut reserve, and that, out of all the lands which might hereafter be purchased of the Indian tribes by the United States, and lying within the State of Ohio, the one thirty-sixth part should be given as aforesaid for the support of public schools, and that all lands, before mentioned, to be appropriated for the use of schools should be vested in the legislature of said State of Ohio in trust for said purpose.

That a certain proportion of the lands lying within the State of Ohio had already been disposed of by the United States; and by patent, dated on the 13th day of September, in the year 1794, certain lands therein described were granted unto John Cleves Symmes, reserving to the United States, out of each township within the same, lot numbered sixteen for the use of schools, being one thirty-sixth part of the whole tract granted as aforesaid.

That a certain tract had also been granted unto Manassah Cutler and others, under the name of the Ohio Company, in which lot number sixteen, being one thirty-sixth part, was also reserved for the use of schools, in addition to which are the appropriations for the Ohio and Miami Universities, but to which last appropriations to the Ohio and Miami University your memorialists have only adverted as not being intended to be embraced in the prayer of the memorial herewith submitted.

That the ordinances of the convention of Ohio, of November, 1802, gave rise to the act of the Congress of the United States of the 3d day of March, in the year 1803, by which it was enacted more specifically—

First. That certain quarter townships in the tract commonly called the United States military tract, and in said act particularly described, amounting to the one thirty-sixth part of the estimated whole amount of lands within that tract.

Second. That certain other quarter townships in the same United States military tract, and in said act particularly described, for the use of the tract of country commonly called the Connecticut reserve, were also, by said act, granted or reserved.

Third. So much of that tract within this State, commonly called the Virginia military reservation, as would amount to one thirty-sixth part of the whole tract, was also granted, to be selected by the legislature of the State of Ohio out of the unlocated land in that tract, after the warrants issued from the State of Virginia should have been satisfied.

Fourth. There was also granted and secured by the same act one thirty-sixth part of all the lands of the United States lying in the State of Ohio, to which the Indian title had not been extinguished, which might thereafter be purchased of the Indian tribes by the United States, which thirty-sixth part should consist of the sections number sixteen in every township; the specified and declared object of the aforesaid grants and reservations were for the use of common schools within the several districts of country therein specified, and were, as your memorialists conceive, granted upon full consideration arising from the increased value of the remaining lands belonging to the United States, and also from the relinquishment, on the part of the State of Ohio, of the right to tax the lands of the United States within the State of Ohio, until five years after the sale thereof, and that it was, by the aforesaid act, expressly declared that the several appropriations for schools, made therein, were in conformity with and in consideration of the conditions agreed on by the State of Ohio, by the ordinance of the convention of said State, bearing date the twenty-ninth day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and two, and herein before particularly referred to.

That your memorialists conceive that it was the intention of the parties to the compact aforesaid that one thirty-sixth part of all the lands within the State of Ohio should be granted to the people thereof for the use of common schools, and should be placed under the control of the legislature thereof; and that this construction is warranted by the spirit and even by the letter of the different acts of Congress of the United States, when considered in relation to the ordinance of the State of Ohio above referred to, and to which a direct reference is had by the aforesaid last recited act of the Congress of the United States.

That when it was afterwards ascertained that the grant aforesaid, in relation to the tract of country commonly called the Virginia military reservation, would be rendered wholly inoperative in consequence, the limitation and condition thereunto annexed, by reason of the great and uncertain amount of warrants which had been issued by the State of Virginia, together with the extended period for locating the same, the Congress of the United States, in pursuance of the stipulations of the compact aforesaid, by the act passed the second day of March, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seven, appropriated eighteen quarter townships and three sections, as are in said act described, for the use of schools in that tract of land in the State of Ohio commonly called Virginia military reservation, which were by the said act also vested in the legislature, in trust for the use aforesaid.

That at the period when the act aforesaid, making an appropriation for the tract commonly called the Connecticut reserve, was passed, the Indian title had been extinguished to that part only which lies east of the Cuyahoga river, and the appropriation was made only in relation to that part to which the Indian title had been extinguished, and consisted of a tract equal to one thirty-sixth part of the reserve to which the Indian title had been so extinguished; since which time the Indian title to that part of the reserve lying west of the Cuyahoga river has been extinguished by the United States for and on account of the State of Connecticut, who made the necessary appropriations for that purpose.

That, as your memorialists conceive, it was in conformity with the spirit and intention of the compact aforesaid, and formed a material item of the consideration which induced the State of Ohio to make the concession they did make under that compact, that they should receive, in return, lands equal to one thirty-sixth part of all the lands within the State of Ohio to be appropriated for the use of common schools within said State.

The legislature of the State of Ohio, construing the terms and spirit of the compact in the manner above set forth, do not hesitate to represent to the United States that when the Indian title was extinguished to the tract of country lying in the Connecticut reserve west of the Cuyahoga, the terms aforesaid required of the United States that a law should be passed appropriating from their unlocated lands within the State of Ohio a tract equal to one thirty-sixth part of the Connecticut reserve lying west of the Cuyahoga river; and that they, relying on the justice and good faith of the government of the United States, confidently anticipated the passage of such an act in aid of the exertions of the State of Ohio in establishing a system of common free schools throughout the State.

That in relation to the lands already appropriated, as above described, the legislature of the State of Ohio, in pursuance of the trust aforesaid, and in aid of the great and important object contemplated, have resorted to various methods of rendering them productive, and in particular that of leasing them to such individuals as have applied therefor; that experience, however, has fully demonstrated that this fund will be wholly unavailing in their hands in its present shape. That in order that the beneficial and laudable objects contemplated by the grants aforesaid may be secured to the people of the State of Ohio, it will, as your memorialists conceive, be necessary that the legislature should possess the unlimited control over the lands aforesaid, with the power of disposing of them in fee.

The objections which are urged against the present mode of administering that fund are, in the first place, that, by reason of the facilities which the State of Ohio affords of acquiring a property in real estate, a necessity exists of leasing the lands in question to persons almost wholly destitute of pecuniary means, whereby the avails of those lands are rendered at least uncertain. In consequence, also, that as these lands are detached over the whole State of Ohio, the expense which must necessarily be incurred by creating a superintendence over them renders them much less productive than your memorialists conceive they might be rendered if the lands were sold and the proceeds concentrated in one fund.

The fact, also, before adverted to, that these lands must necessarily be intrusted to the possession of those of the lowest class of the community, and who possess no permanent interest in the soil, has produced a waste upon these lands of their timber and otherwise equal, perhaps, to the whole revenue which may have been derived from them. The fact also, that, by holding them under the present tenure, your memorialists are compelled to offer upon lease so great a proportion of their soil as will invite and retain a population within her boundaries of a character not to be desired, and in amount so great as to create an evil which can only be conceived of in a country where every individual possessing a very moderate portion of industry and economy may, within a single year, appropriate to himself, in fee, a quantity of land sufficient to furnish means of support for an ordinary family, is also a circumstance which your memorialists conceive is not undeserving of consideration.

While the State of Ohio, in common with her sister States, shall have her ordinary proportion of idle and unprofitable members, this great proportion of land which must be held by lease must, of necessity, produce a corresponding feature in her population, although many industrious and valuable citizens may be found among the lessees of school lands; yet it must be admitted that the great body of those who constitute the strength and basis of every government, and who are to be considered as the friends of good order and public improvement, are among those who are the owners as well as occupiers of the soil. These evils, as your memorialists conceive, arise wholly from the system of granting these lands upon leases, and are such as cannot be remedied by any course of legislation whatever, if, as some have supposed, the State has not the power under the term of the original grant of disposing of these lands in fee. Notwithstanding your memorialists may be of the opinion that they already possess this right, yet so long as the question shall admit of any doubt it must of necessity have the effect to restrain its exercise. It is true, that if the forms of proceedings established by States as the rules of action for its members shall or can be brought to operate upon the States themselves, this question might perhaps be rendered still more uncertain; but your memorialists conceive that the grants aforesaid, being made to the people of the State of Ohio through the medium of the legislature for the use of the people, that no limitations can have any operation further than as it shall furnish an argument against diverting this fund from its original and legitimate object. The legislature of the State of Ohio being in all respects sovereign within the constitution, their capacity to do any and every act in relation to property which its citizens hold in common, is, as they conceive, necessarily implied; nor can they acknowledge that any rule, other than the constitution, can operate with any obligatory effect upon the power which has created the rule itself, except upon considerations of justice and policy towards those who may be affected by their acts. It may, it is true, be said that these grants partake of the nature of a compact between the United States and the State of Ohio, and that therefore they are to be limited to their particular terms in relation to the State of Ohio. It is admitted that the grant exists in consequence of a compact; but inasmuch as the United States have received a full and valuable consideration which formed the inducement of the grant, and inasmuch as they have not reserved to themselves any beneficial interest in the land aforesaid or possibility of reversion, or any title whatever, it cannot be supposed that they can possess any controlling power; it may be urged also that, inasmuch as there has been no method pointed out in respect of the manner in which this trust should be executed, the legislature of the State of Ohio have an unlimited discretion in this respect, and may avail themselves of every possible method of producing the greatest advantage to those whom they represent. This argument, they conceive, is powerfully supported by the fact that the same act grants to the State, as well the school lands in question as the six miles reservation, including the Scioto salt springs; in respect of which latter the legislature are expressly restrained from selling the same or leasing them for a longer period than ten years, and that the inference from this circumstance is direct, that it was the intention of the parties to that compact that no such restraint should exist in relation to the other lands which did not come within this provision. While your memorialists have been thus particular in endeavoring to give the proper definition of the powers they possess, in order that no conclusions may hereafter be drawn unfavorable to their claim from having made this application, and have thereby perhaps shown that in a particular point of view this application is wholly unnecessary, they are of opinion that an act of Congress of the United States declaratory of the extent of the grants aforesaid will be productive of much benefit, in case the legislature of the State should hereafter determine to dispose of the same; that it will have the full effect of removing every doubt in the minds of the purchasers, and thereby enhance the price which will be obtained for the same.

Therefore, your memorialists represent that it would be of advantage, and conduce to the future prosperity of the State of Ohio, that a law of the United States be passed declaring the authority of the State of Ohio to dispose of the said lands granted for the use of schools within said State in fee, and that the proceeds thereof be invested in some permanent fund, the proceeds of which shall be applied, under the directions of the legislature, for the use of common schools within the townships or districts to which they were originally granted in said State, and for no other use or purpose whatever: provided that the sections numbered sixteen, granted as aforesaid for the use of schools, shall not be sold without the consent of the inhabitants of such original surveyed township, and that they may be authorized and empowered to sell and dispose of the aforesaid six miles reservation, including the Scioto salt springs, the salt springs near Muskingum river and in the military tract, with the sections of land which include the same, and apply the proceeds thereof to such literary purposes as the legislature of the State of Ohio may hereafter direct.

Resolved, further, That the governor be requested to forward the foregoing memorial to the government of the United States, and take such order and disposition of the funds as shall seem to him proper.

[2D SESSION.]

CLAIM OF THE BARON DE MAISON ROUGE TO LANDS IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 7, 1825.

Mr. BRENT, from the select committee to whom was referred the consideration of the report of the Secretary of the Treasury relative to the claim of the representatives of the Marquis de Maison Rouge to a large tract of land situated in the parishes of Ouachita and Catahoula, in Louisiana, by a resolution of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States of December 23, 1824, reported:

That, on March 17, 1795, the governor of Louisiana entered into a contract with the Marquis de Maison Rouge, of which the following is a copy:

We, Francis Lewis Hector, Baron de Carondelet, knight of Malta, brigadier general of the royal armies of his Catholic Majesty, military and civil governor of the provinces of Louisiana and West Florida; Don Francis Rendon, intendant of the army and deputy superintendent of the royal domains in the said provinces; Don Joseph de Orne, knight of the royal and distinguished order of Charles the Third, principal accountant for the royal chests of the army, exercising the functions of fiscal of the royal domains, declare, that we agree and contract with the Señor Marquis de Maison Rouge, an emigrant French knight, who has arrived in this capital from the United States, to propose to us to bring into these provinces thirty families who also are emigrants, and who are to descend the Ohio for the purpose of forming an establishment with them on the lands bordering upon the Washita, designed principally for the culture of wheat, and the erection of mills for manufacturing flour, under the following conditions:

1st. We offer, in the name of his Catholic Majesty, whom God preserve, to pay out of the royal treasury two hundred dollars to every family composed of two white persons fit for agriculture or for the arts useful and necessary to this establishment, as house or ship carpenters, blacksmiths, and locksmiths; and four hundred to those having four laborers; and, in the same way, one hundred to those having no more than one useful laborer or artificer, as before described, with his family.

2d. At the same time we promise, under the auspices of our sovereign monarch, to assist them forward from New Madrid to Washita with a skilful guide, and the provisions necessary for them, till their arrival at the place of destination.

3d. The expenses of transportation of their baggage and implements of labor, which shall come by sea to this capital, shall be paid on account of the royal domains, and they shall be taken on the same account from this place to the Washita, provided that the weight shall not exceed three thousand pounds for each family.

4th. There shall be granted to every family containing two white persons fit for agriculture ten arpents of land extending back forty arpents, and increasing in the same proportion to those which shall contain a greater number of white cultivators.

5th. Lastly, it shall be permitted to the families to bring, or to cause to come with them, European servants, who shall bind themselves to their service for six or more years, under the express condition that, if they have families, they shall have a right, after their term of service is expired, to receive a grant of land proportioned, in the same manner, to their numbers. Thus we promise, as we have here stated; and that it may come to the knowledge of those families which propose to transport themselves thither, we sign the present contract with the aforesaid Señor Marquis de Maison Rouge, to whom, that it may be made plain, a certified copy shall be furnished.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

FRANCIS RENDON.

JOSEPH DE ORNE.

THE MARQUIS DE MAISON ROUGE.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17, 1795.

On the 14th July, in the same year, this contract was approved by the King of Spain.

Having laid before the King what you have made known in your letter of the 25th of April last, No. 44, relative to the contract entered into with the Marquis de Maison Rouge for the establishment, on the Washita, of the thirty families of farmers destined to cultivate wheat for the supply of these provinces, his Majesty, considering the advantages which it promises compared with the preceding, has been pleased to approve it in all its parts. By his royal direction I communicate it to you for your information. God preserve you many years.

GARDOQUI.

MADRID, July 14, 1795.

To the Intendant of Louisiana:

On June 14, 1797, Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, certifies to have measured thirty superficial leagues for the said Marquis de Maison Rouge, as ordered by the governor general.

No 1.

[Translation.]

Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, &c., certifies to have measured, in favor of Marquis de Maison Rouge, the several tracts of land represented in those parts of the plat shaded with vermilion, which may contain thirty superficial leagues, to wit: The tract No. 1, on the right bank of the Washita river, to be taken five arpents below the mouth of the Bayou de la Cheniere au Toudre, and thence descending to the Bayou Calumet, with a corresponding depth, to complete one hundred and forty thousand superficial arpents; the tract marked No. 2, on the left bank of the same river, commencing two leagues below Fort Miro and at the point called L'aime, and extending one league below the Prairie de Lee, with a corresponding depth, to complete seventy thousand superficial arpents; the tract marked No. 3, to be taken in front of the Bayou Loutre, and thence on a line S. 75° E. to the Bayou de Liar, which line to the Bayou de Liar, the Bayou Bartholemey, and the river Washita, are to include the tract No. 3; tract No. 4, on the right bank of Washita river, to be taken in front of the entry of Bayou Bartholemey, thence descending the river to Bayou la Loutre, with such depth as that the tracts Nos. 3 and 4 shall include the quantity of eight thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents, which, added to the first two tracts, makes a total superfice of two hundred and eight thousand three hundred and forty-four superficial arpents, equal to the above said thirty leagues, at the rate of two thousand five hundred toises for the side of a league, the land measure in this province. Being well understood that the land which may be included in the above, either by title in form or first degrees of concession, are not to be counted in computing the preceding thirty leagues; on the contrary, the Marquis de Maison Rouge promises to be of no detriment to the settlers occupying previously any part of the land, but will maintain and support them in their rights, in consideration that, if the said thirty leagues shall suffer any diminution on account of previous occupants, the Marquis de Maison Rouge has the right, and there will be no objection to his supplying the deficiency in any other part where the land is vacant. And, that it may so appear, I give this by order of the governor general, Baron de Carondelet. All which I certify.

CARLOS TRUDEAU, &c.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14, 1797.

LAND OFFICE, Opelousas, August 15, 1812.

The foregoing is the substance of the proces verbal (certificate) of the surveyor general subjoined to the plat, (of which that on the other side is a copy,) filed in the claim of Louis Bouigny, holding under Maison Rouge.

L. CHACHIRE, Translator to the Board of Commissioners.

Attest: L. POSEY, Clerk of the Board.

I certify that the above and the preceding page is a true copy from the report of the land commissioners of the western district of Orleans, dated December 14, 1812; and that the plat attached hereto is a copy of the plat attached to the said report. The original papers, copied in pages 67, 68, and 69, of the book entitled Land Laws, are not in this office.

JOSIAH MEIGS.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 12, 1820.

On June 20, 1797, six days after the survey is stated to have been made, the governor general made the following order:

NEW ORLEANS, June 12, 1797.

The Baron de Carondelet, knight of the order of St. John, marshal de camp of the royal armies, governor general, vice patron of the provinces of Louisiana and West Florida, inspector of troops, &c.:

Forasmuch as the Marquis de Maison Rouge is near completing the establishment of the Washita, which he was authorized to make for thirty families by the royal order of July 14, 1795, and desirous to remove, for the future, all doubts respecting other families or new colonists who may come to establish themselves, we destine and appropriate, conclusively, for the establishment of the aforesaid Marquis de Maison Rouge, by virtue of the powers granted to us by the King, the thirty superficial leagues marked in the plan annexed to the head of this instrument, with the limits and boundaries designated, with our approbation, by the surveyor general, Don Charles Laveau Trudeau, under the terms and conditions stipulated and contracted for by the said Marquis de Maison Rouge; and, that it may at all times stand good, we give the present, signed with our hand, sealed with our seal at arms, and countersigned by the underwritten honorary commissary of war and secretary of his Majesty for this commandancy general.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

ANDRES LOPEZ ARMSTRO.

On August 5, 1803, Don Gilbert Leonard and Don Manuel Gonzales Armirez, Spanish officers, certified that the condition of the contract had been complied with.

No. 2.

Don Gilbert Leonard, treasurer of the army, exercising the functions of the royal accountant, and Don Manuel Gonzales Armirez, exercising those of the treasurer, par interim, of the royal chests of this province of Louisiana:

We certify that the two foregoing copies are conformable to the originals which remain in the archives of the ministry of the royal domains under our charge, and that the contractor, the Marquis de Maison Rouge, complied punctually with the terms which he proposed in the said contract; and that this may be made manifest, conformably to the order above inserted of this intendance general, we give the present, in New Orleans, August 5, 1803.

GILBERT LEONARD.
MANUEL ARMIREZ.

Upon this evidence the land commissioners, acting under the act of Congress of March 3, 1807, by their report, placed this claim amongst a class of cases recommended for confirmation.

16	11	Louis Bouigny	Marquis de M. Rouge...	30 square leagues.....	Spanish grant, June 20, 1797.....	B.

No. 16.

The undersigned commissioners have compared the documents, title filed in this claim, with the translation of them in pages 67, 68, and 69, of the appendix to the book entitled "Land Laws," &c., and find the said translation to be correct, so far as it goes. The certificate, or proces verbal, which the surveyor general has annexed to his plat, not appearing in said book, a translation of that document, together with a copy of the plat, is transmitted for the further elucidation of the claim. No oral or other testimony has been adduced before the board to establish the occupancy of any part of these lands, or that there has been a compliance upon the part of the grantee with the conditions stipulated in the contract, except the certificate under date of August 5, 1803, signed by Gilbert Leonard and Manuel Armirez, to the translation of which, in page 69 of the appendix of said book, the commissioners beg leave to refer.

The undersigned have observed a remark, in the 25th page of the introductory part of the book entitled "Land Laws," that no patent has issued on the claim under consideration. With great deference for that authority, the undersigned commissioners cannot but be of opinion that the instrument under date of June 20, 1797, is a patent (or what was usually in Louisiana denominated a title in form) transferring to the Marquis de Maison Rouge the title in as full and ample a manner as lands were usually granted by the Spanish government, subject, however, to the conditions stipulated in his contract with the government. The plat of survey above referred to will be found subjoined to this report.

All claims which did not exceed a league square were confirmed by act of Congress of April 29, 1816; and this, being for a greater number of acres than are contained in a league square, was excluded from confirmation by said act, and is now presented for confirmation or rejection by Congress.

The confirmation of this claim is resisted by the government of the United States upon several grounds, amongst which are the following:

First. That the documents relied upon to establish the claim of the representatives of the Marquis de Maison Rouge to the thirty superficial leagues claimed show that no contract or grant has ever been made to the Marquis de Maison Rouge in his own individual right, and that it was only a contract with him, as agent of the persons he was to bring with him, by which the Spanish government bound itself to grant to each person, according to the conditions of the contract, a certain number of acres of land; and that De Maison Rouge did not acquire, by said contract, a right to dispose of said land by sale, deed, or last will and testament, or in any other way.

Secondly. That the conditions of said contract were never fulfilled by the said Marquis de Maison Rouge.

Thirdly. That the said land never was surveyed, as certified, under the Spanish government; and if it were, that it was not done with a view to vest the Marquis de Maison Rouge with any right individually, but for the sole purpose of designating a certain number of acres of land upon which the new settlers might establish themselves as they came in, and out of which the promised grants of 400 arpents each was to be made to each family containing two white persons, according to the fourth condition in said contract; and that said families not having settled the land as agreed, it remains as public land.

Fourthly. That the said land never was intended, nor never was located, as pretended by the representatives of De Maison Rouge, but was at a different place.

In support of these objections, and of others, to the confirmation of this claim, a reference has been made to the documents aforesaid, and to the depositions of sundry old inhabitants of Louisiana, and of Spanish officers, which were taken by proper authority, after due notice given, and which testimony is marked W, and accompanies this report; also, to the certificate of Carlos Trudeau, translated by L. Derbigny on April 17, 1804.

[Translation.]

I, Don Carlos Trudeau, surveyor royal and particular of the province of Louisiana, &c., do certify that the present draught contains 144 superficial leagues, each league forming a square, the sides of which are in length 2,500 toises, (a toise is six French feet long,) measure of the city of Paris, according to the custom and practice of this colony, the said land being situated in the post of Ouachita, about 80 leagues above the mouth of that river, falling into Red river, adjoining on the part of the S. W. to the eastern shore of the river and Bayou Ouachita, Bartholemy, and Sicard, conformable to the red line which borders the said river and bayous; bounded on the south part by a line drawn from the south 75° east, about three leagues and one mile long: beginning from the shore C, of the Bayou Sicard, and continuing as far as the height of the junction A of the said Bayou Sicard with the Bayou Bartholemy, the said point A being as a basis on the line of measurement A B of 12 leagues in length, parallel with the plane of Bayou Bartholemy, from the point A to the end of the said 12 leagues which terminates at point B, where is the mouth of the rivulet named Bayou Turniro; the lines D E and F G are parallel lines directed north 52° east, without minding the variation of the compass which varies 8° to the northeast. In testimony, I deliver the present certificate, with the draught hereto affixed, for the use of the Baron de Bastrop, on the 14th day of June, 1797; I, the surveyor, having signed the same, and recorded in the book A, No. 1, folio 38, department No. 922 of the surveys. I do certify the present copies to be conformable to the original which are lodged in the office under my care, to which I refer, and, at the request of a party, I deliver the present, same date as above.

I certify the above to be a true and faithful translation of the original certificate of survey, written in the Spanish language, and to which is prefixed the plat of the land therein mentioned.

NEW ORLEANS, April 17, 1804.

From a careful examination of the foregoing documents and testimony, the committee are of the opinion that the decision in the present claim depends entirely upon a question of law as to the title, and upon the examination of witnesses as to several important points to be ascertained; and that an investigation of the claim by Congress would not only be attended with great delay, but with so many difficulties that justice, as well to the parties interested as to the government of the United States, requires a reference of the decision of this claim to the United States court for the western district of Louisiana, with an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States; and for that purpose report a bill.

[2D SESSION.

CLAIM OF THE BARON DE BASTROP TO LAND IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 11, 1825.

Mr. BRENT, from the select committee to whom was referred, December 16, 1824, the petitions of the inhabitants of Ouachita, in the State of Louisiana, and the owners of the land called "Bastrop's grant," in said county of Ouachita, having had the same under consideration, together with the accompanying documents, reported:

That, from the documents furnished, and from the title papers as published in the land laws of the United States, (of the authenticity of which they are unable to form any opinion,) it appears a petition was addressed to the governor general of Louisiana by De Bastrop June 20, 1795, of which the following is a copy:

NEW ORLEANS, June 20, 1795.

The Baron de Bastrop, desirous of encouraging the population and cultivation of the Ouachita and its neighborhood, of passing into the United States to complete the plan of emigration which he has projected, and from thence to return with his family, makes known to your lordship that it is absolutely indispensable on the part of the government that a district be designated of about twelve leagues square, including the Bayou Liar and its vicinity, in which your petitioner may, without the least obstacle or delay, place the families he is about to bring in, on the express condition that concessions of land are to be made gratis; and under no title or pretext to exceed, at most, four hundred arpents square, with a view to prevent the introduction of negroes, and the making of indigo, which, in that district, will be entirely contrary and prejudicial to the cultivation of wheat, and will cause your petitioner irrecoverably to lose the expenses of his establishment. Your petitioner prays, also, that you will be pleased to grant him permission to export for the Havana the flour which may be manufactured at the mills on the Ouachita, without confining him to sell it absolutely in New Orleans and other posts in this province, unless it should be necessary for their subsistence, in which case they ought always to have the preference. It is also indispensable that the government should charge itself with the conducting and support of the families which the petitioner may introduce from the post of New Madrid to Ouachita, by furnishing them with some provisions for the subsistence of the first months, and assisting them to commence the sowing of their seeds, granting to those inhabitants who are not Catholics the same liberty of conscience as is enjoyed by those of Baton Rouge, Natchez, and other districts of the province, and without fixing on the part of the government, conclusively, the number of families which your petitioner is to introduce. The zeal which I feel for the prosperity and encouragement of the province, joined to a desire of securing tranquillity and quietude to that establishment by removing at once whatever obstacles might be opposed to those interesting objects, have induced me to represent to you what I have done, hoping that you will recognize in these dispositions the best service of the King and advancement of the province confided to your authority.

DE BASTROP.

The GOVERNOR GENERAL.

Upon June 21, 1795, an order was given upon said petition, of which the following is a copy:

NEW ORLEANS, June 21, 1795.

Seeing the advantages which will result from the establishment projected by Baron Bastrop, the commandant of Ouachita, Don John Filhiol, will designate twelve leagues square, half on the side of the Bayou of Liar, and half on the side opposite the Ouachita, for the purpose of placing there the families which the said baron may direct, it being understood that no greater concession of land is to be given to any one than four hundred square arpents at most, gratis and free from all dues. With regard to the object of this establishment, it is to be for the cultivation of wheat alone. The exportation of the product of this province being free, the petitioner need not doubt that it will be allowed to him, for the flour which he may manufacture at the mills of the Ouachita, to the Havana, and other places open to the free commerce of this province. The government will charge itself with the conducting of the families from New Madrid to Ouachita, and will give them such provisions as may appear sufficient for their support during six months, and proportionably for their seeds. They shall not be molested in matters of religion, but the apostolical Roman Catholic worship shall alone be publicly permitted. The petitioner shall be allowed to bring in as many as five hundred families: Provided, That, after the lapse of three years, if the major part of the establishment shall not have been made good, the twelve leagues square destined for those whom the petitioner may place there shall be occupied by the families which may first present themselves for that purpose.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

Registered: ANDRES LOPEZ ARMISTO.

Upon June 20, 1796, a decree was given by the same governor general, as follows:

The Baron de Carondelet, chevalier of the religion of St. John, marshal de camp of the royal armies, governor general, vice patron of the provinces of Louisiana, West Florida, and inspector of the troops, &c.:

Whereas Baron Bastrop, in pursuance of his petition dated the 20th of June of the year last past, and the decree of the 21st of the same month, has commenced the establishment of the Ouachita; that, for the fulfilment of the stipulation on the part of the government for avoiding, progressively, all obstacles, difficulties, and delays, and that the said baron might proceed with every facility in fixing the families which, to the number of five hundred, he was held to place, or cause to be placed there, we have proceeded to designate the twelve leagues intended for the said establishment, in the terms, with the limits, metes, and bounds, and in place marked, fixed, and defined, by the figured plan and description affixed to the head of this instrument, verified by the surveyor general, Don Charles Laveau Trudeau; it having now appeared to us to be also most expedient for avoiding all contest and dispute, and approving, as we do approve them, by virtue of the authority which the King has granted to us, we do destine and appropriate, in his royal name, the aforesaid twelve leagues, in order that the said Baron Bastrop may establish them in the manner and under the conditions expressed in said petition and decree. We give the present, signed with our hand, sealed with the seal of our arms, and countersigned by the underwritten honorary commissary of war and secretary of his Majesty for this commandancy general.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

ANDRES LOPEZ ARMISTO.

Upon June 12, 1797, De Bastrop presented another petition to the governor general in the following words:

NEW ORLEANS, June 12, 1797.

Baron de Bastrop has the honor to make known to you that, it being his intention to establish in the Ouachita, it is expedient that you should grant to him a corresponding permission to erect there one or more mills, as the population may require; as also to shut up the Bayou de Liar, where he proposes to establish the said mills, with a dike in the place most convenient for his work; and, as it appears necessary to prevent disputes in the progress of the affair, he begs, also, the grant, along the Bayou Bartholemey from its source to its mouth, of six toises on each bank, to construct upon them the mills and works which he may find necessary, and prohibiting every person from making upon said bayou any bridge, in order that its navigation may never be interrupted, as it ought, at all times, to remain free and unobstructed. This request, sir, will not appear exorbitant when you are pleased to observe that your petitioner, who will expend in these works twenty thousand dollars or more, will be exposed, without these grants, to lose all the fruits of his labor by the caprice or jealousy of any individual who, being established on this bayou, may cut off the water or obstruct the navigation; not to mention the loss which the province will sustain of the immense advantages to result from the useful project proposed for the encouragement of the agriculture and population of those parts.

DE BASTROP.

The GOVERNOR GENERAL.

And upon the same day the governor general gave the grant, a copy of which follows:

NEW ORLEANS, June 12, 1797

Considering the advantages to the population on the Ouachita, and the province in general, to result from the encouragement of the cultivation of wheat and the construction of flour mills, which the petitioner proposes to make at his own expense, I grant him, in the name of his Majesty, and by virtue of the authorities which he has conferred upon me, liberty to shut the Bayou de Liar, on which he is about to establish his mills, with a dike at the place most proper for the carrying on of his works. I also grant him the exclusive enjoyment of six toises of ground on each side of the Bayou Bartholemey, from its source to its mouth, to enable him to construct the works and dams necessary for his mills; it being understood that by this grant it is not intended to prohibit the free navigation of the said bayou to the rest of the inhabitants, who shall be free to use the same without, however, being permitted to throw across it any bridge, or to obstruct the navigation, which shall, at all times, remain free and open. Under the conditions here expressed, such mills as he may think proper to erect may be disposed of by the petitioner, together with the lands adjoining, as estates belonging entirely to him in virtue of this decree, in relation to which the surveys are to be continued, and the commandant, Don John Filhiol, will verify and remit them to me, so that the person interested may obtain a corresponding title in form; it being a formal and express condition of this grant that at least one mill shall be constructed within two years; otherwise it is to remain null.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

Registered: ANDRES LOPEZ ARMISTO.

It also appears that a petition was made and decree granted the same as the last mentioned, except that the petition asks for six toises of ground on each side of the Bayou de Liar, from its source to its mouth.

It also appears that, upon June 16, 1797, De Bastrop made a contract with the Spanish government, as follows:

The Baron de Bastrop contracts with his Majesty to furnish, for the term of six months, rations to the families which he has latterly introduced at the post of the Ouachita, which are to be composed of twenty-four ounces of fresh bread, or an equivalent in flour; twelve ounces of fresh beef, or six of bacon; two ounces of fine menestra, or three of ordinary, and one thousandth part of a celemín (about a peck) of salt, for which there is to be paid to him, by the royal chests, at the rate of a real and a half for each ration; for which purpose there shall be made out monthly a particular account, the truth and regularity of which shall be attested at foot by the commandant of that post. Under which conditions I oblige myself with my person and estate to the fulfilment of the present contract, subjecting myself in all things to the jurisdiction of this general intendancy.

In testimony of which, I sign it at New Orleans, June 16, 1797.

BARON DE BASTROP.

And upon the same day the last contract was approved, as follows:

NEW ORLEANS, (date as above.)

I approve this contract in the name of his Majesty, with the intervention of Signor Gilbert Leonard, principal contador of the army in these provinces, for its validity. Two certified copies are to be directed to the secretary, Juan Ventura Morales. With my intervention.

GILBERT LEONARD.

Copy of the original which remains in my keeping, and which I certify, and is taken out to be passed to the secretary of this general intendancy.

GILBERT LEONARD.

NEW ORLEANS, ut supra.

Upon June 18, 1797, the governor general directed the following order and decree to "De Bastrop."

NEW ORLEANS, June 18, 1797.

Whereas the intendant, from the want of funds, has solicited the suspension of the last remittance of families until the decision of his Majesty, there ought to be no prejudice occasioned to you by the last paragraph of my decree, which expresses that, if within three years the major part of the establishment shall not have been made good, such families as may first present themselves shall be located within the twelve leagues destined for the settlement which you have commenced; and this shall only have effect two years after the course of the contract shall have again commenced to be executed, and the determination of his Majesty shall have been made known to you. You will always remain persuaded that, on my part, I will observe religiously the engagements I have contracted—a principle which has constantly distinguished the Spanish nation. God preserve you many years.

THE BARON DE CARONDELET.

BARON DE BASTROP.

The above statement contains all the title papers which have been presented, and which were before the land commissioners for the western district of the late Territory of Orleans, who reported against the legal representative of De Bastrop, or the right of De Bastrop to any part of the intended grant of twelve leagues square, as will be seen by their several reports, as made and numbered in their report upon land claims in said western district, made to the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States December 14, 1812.

The land commissioners of the United States having refused the confirmation of this claim as aforesaid, the owners now present themselves and ask that Congress will confirm to them the aforesaid twelve leagues square, which they claim as deriving a legal title from De Bastrop.

From the evidence and documents which have been before the committee, it is proven that many persons were introduced under the contract of De Bastrop, but not to the number contracted for; and, without touching the question as to the individual right of De Bastrop to the land, or of any person claiming under him by purchase or otherwise, except those who came to Ouachita under the contract, the committee think that in equity the government of the United States ought to confirm to every person, or those claiming under them, who went to Ouachita under the contract with De Bastrop, the number of acres of land which the governor general of Louisiana agreed to give to each family or person, according to said contract.

The government of the United States resists the confirmation of this claim to De Bastrop, or those claiming under him by purchase or otherwise, for the following reasons, amongst others, viz:

1. That the contract and grant, if any there was, were for the 500 families De Bastrop was to settle upon the lands, and not to De Bastrop in his individual right, so that he could sell or dispose of the same.
2. That the conditions never were fulfilled.
3. That the contract was revoked by the Spanish government.
4. That the contract was never approved by the King of Spain.
5. That the governor general had not the power of making such contract without the authority of the Spanish government.
6. That if De Bastrop was entitled to any part of said land, it could only be for the surplus after the 500 families had taken, each family 400 arpents, according to said contract.

In support of these objections, and others, to the confirmation of this claim, or any part of it, to those who hold under De Bastrop in his individual right, a reference has been made to the documents aforesaid.

From a careful examination of the foregoing documents and evidence, the committee are of the opinion that the decision in the present claim (as to the right of De Bastrop or those who claim under him in his individual right) depends entirely upon a question of law, and upon the examination of many witnesses as to several important points, and that an examination of it by Congress would be attended with great delay and many difficulties, and that justice to the interested, as well as to the government, requires a reference of this particular point to the United States courts. The committee are also of the opinion that, in case it should ultimately be decided that the said land belongs to the United States, it would be but fair and just to extend to all those who were settled upon the said land at the time the United States took possession of that part of the country the same provisions and privileges and donations as were granted to the actual settlers under the act of Congress of March 2, 1805, and the amendments thereto, as well as all other privileges extended to the inhabitants of Louisiana, settled upon other public lands by any subsequent act of Congress, so as to place the settlers upon the said land upon an equality with the settlers upon other public lands.

To prevent further delay, and with a view of finally adjusting the claim upon what the committee consider to be fair and equitable principles, they report a bill.

LAND FORFEITED FOR NON-COMPLIANCE WITH TERMS OF SALE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 11, 1825.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of Cornelius Vermilion, reported:

The petitioner states that in the year 1816 he entered two quarter sections of land in the Vincennes district, and paid therefor one hundred and sixty dollars in hand; that being illiterate and in indigent circumstances, he failed to make any other payments, in consequence of which a forfeiture ensued; and that not knowing that Congress had subsequently passed any act which would have embraced his case, he now prays that he may be permitted to enter land elsewhere, and that the money he has paid may be applied to the payment thereof.

It appears from the register's certificates that the purchase was made as set forth in the petition.

The committee will remark that a compliance with the prayer of the petitioner would be establishing a principle fraught with much public inconvenience. The precedent might be urged by hundreds whose lands, on account of delinquency, have been forfeited. They, too, could plead indigence and the want of information. If relief were extended to the petitioner at all, it ought to be by a bill general in its provisions; this, however, the committee feel no disposition to recommend. Wherefore, the following resolution is offered:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioner be not granted.

INCOMPLETE TITLE TO LAND WEST OF PEARL RIVER.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 11, 1825.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of Jane Percy, widow of Robert Percy, deceased, who petitions for herself and others, reported:

The petitioner represents that in the year 1806 seven thousand acres of land, situated on the river Bog Chitto, (now in the Parish of Washington, Louisiana,) were granted to her late husband; that these lands were surveyed by Ira C. Kneeland, deputy surveyor, and plats thereof remitted to the office of the surveyor general at Pensacola; that, owing to sundry causes over which her said husband had no control, the intendant of Florida did not issue patents for the same, as had been anticipated; that the preparatory steps taken to secure the said lands gave origin to much expense; that the evidences of claim to these lands were submitted to the board of commissioners appointed to adjust land titles in the district of country west of Pearl river, and were adjudged insufficient to authorize confirmation; that the said lands have been surveyed and sold as public property; whereupon, permission to locate other lands is solicited.

To support this claim, the petitioner has exhibited five certificates of survey, dated November 20, 1806, signed by Ira C. Kneeland, defining sundry tracts of land, in all amounting to 7,000 arpents. She also appends to the petition her affidavit of the truth of the facts therein stated according to her belief.

The committee will observe it has not been the policy of this government to recognize such a title as is in this case asked to be confirmed—a title manifestly imperfect, having its origin some years after the cession of Louisiana, and unaccompanied by proof of habitation and cultivation. It is believed the powers with which the board of commissioners were clothed were as extensive as a just regard to the provisions of the treaty for that country could require. As there is no additional proof exhibited, the committee thinks there would be an impropriety in disturbing the decision rendered by the board of commissioners; therefore, the following resolution is recommended:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioner be not granted.

COMPENSATION OF REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS OF LAND OFFICES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 11, 1825.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, January 6, 1824.

SIR: In compliance with your request, I enclose a statement showing the amount which each register and receiver would receive as a compensation for extra services rendered under the act of March 2, 1821, estimating that compensation at one-half of one per cent. on the amount of the purchase money of the lands relinquished under the act of March 2, 1821. Although I do not consider that the registers and receivers have any rightful claim to a percentage on the amount of the purchase money of the lands relinquished, yet it may be assumed as a basis for equalizing the compensation to which these officers are justly entitled for the extra services rendered under the act referred to, provided the amount is limited to a sum not exceeding three thousand dollars to any officer, that sum being the maximum allowed by law for the annual salaries of the registers and receivers.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

REDUCTION OF THE NUMBER OF LAND OFFICES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 12, 1825.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 10, 1825.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives, dated March 13, 1824, requiring the Secretary of the Treasury, at the next session of Congress, to inform the House "whether the number of land offices in the United States may not be diminished by consolidating the land districts, or otherwise, without any injury to the public interest, or material inconvenience to individuals; and that he report such a plan for the location of the land offices and reorganization of the land districts as will better promote the public interest than the present location and organization of the same, with such information as to the receipts and expenditures of the offices, severally, as may enable Congress to decide on the propriety of discontinuing any office," I have the honor to enclose a report from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, together with two statements marked A, B, and a map of the United States, on which the boundaries of the several land districts are delineated; which report, statements, and map exhibit the views of the department and the information in their possession on the subjects embraced in the resolution.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, November 12, 1824.

SIR: The resolution passed by the House of Representatives on the 13th of March last, relative to the consolidation of the land offices, and referred by you to this office, is returned, together with a map showing the situation and boundaries of the several land districts, amounting to forty, and the location of the land offices respectively, as denoted by the red stars. Of these offices the following are not located within their respective land districts, to wit: Delaware, Piqua, Brookville, and Little Rock. I also enclose two statements marked A and B. That marked A exhibits the periods at which the land districts were established by law; the number in each State; the quantity of land surveyed, and the quantity estimated to "remain unsold" in each land district June 30, 1823; and also the balances due from individuals September 30, 1822, for lands purchased at the respective land offices.

The paper marked B exhibits the amount of money received in 1823, and the first two quarters of 1824, together with the amount paid on account of incidental expenses during the same period.

On reference to the paper marked B it will appear that the expenses incident to the collection of that part of the revenue derived from the sale of lands for the year 1823 is equal to 7.19 1-6th per cent. on the gross amount of receipts, and for the first two quarters of the present year to 7.20 9-10ths per cent. on such receipts, exclusive of the expenses incident to this office and to the surveying of the lands.

Nearly two-thirds of the amount of the expenses incident to the collection of this branch of the revenue may be considered as permanent, and not affected by the increase or diminution of the revenue. These permanent expenses can only be reduced by a reduction of the number of land districts; and it is believed, with a view merely to economy, that eleven of these land districts may at present be abolished, and the residue so organized as to afford nearly equal facilities to the purchasers of the public lands generally as those now afforded by the present organization of the land districts. This reduction may be made by limiting the maximum number of land districts in any one State to four, and by consolidating some of the districts in those States where there is not at present more than that number.

To effect this, it is proposed to consolidate the districts of Steubenville, Wooster, Marietta, and Zanesville, and to form one district from those of Piqua and Delaware. The land offices may be so located in the districts thus formed as to give to the great mass of the population nearly equal facilities of communicating with them as those afforded under the present organization of the land districts. The eight land districts in Ohio would, by this arrangement, be reduced to four.

In the State of Indiana it is proposed to reduce the districts to four, by uniting those of Brookville and Fort Wayne, and removing the land office to a central position. On reference to the map it will appear that the land offices are now located at the extreme north and south points of the district which would be thus formed.

It is proposed in Illinois to add all that part of the districts of Vandalia and Palestine which may lie south of a line extending to the northern boundary of the Edwardsville district to the line of the State of Indiana to the Edwardsville district, and to add that part of the districts which may lie north of such a line, and within which but few tracts of land have as yet been sold, to the Springfield district. The land office for the southern district thus formed could be located at the seat of government, and that for the northern district removed to such position as the future progress of the population might make eligible.

In Missouri the districts might be reduced to four, by forming that part of the State north of the Missouri and Osage rivers into two districts, and that part of the State south of those rivers into two other districts.

In Alabama the number of districts may be reduced to four, by forming two districts from those of Cahaba, St. Stephen's, and Sparta, or Conecuh, by extending the northern boundary of the Conecuh district to the Mississippi line; and the land offices in the districts thus formed may be so located as to give equal if not greater accommodation to the whole population than is now afforded.

In Louisiana, where there are now four districts, it is proposed to reduce them to three by uniting the districts of St. Helena and New Orleans. Although the district thus formed will contain very large quantities of land, yet there is a very great portion of it which will not be sold for ages at the present minimum price of the public lands.

In Mississippi it is proposed to unite the district of Jackson Court-House and that west of Pearl river. In the latter of these districts all the lands have been offered at public sale, and those which remain unsold are generally either poor or otherwise unfit for cultivation, so that the annual sales will be very limited; and although there is a large extent of country embraced in the Jackson Court-House district, yet it is believed that, after the private claims are satisfied, the annual proceeds of the sales of the residue will not much exceed the expenses of surveying and the contingent expenses of the land office.

It may be proper to remark, that the consolidation of two or more land districts will not occasion much additional labor at this office, or at the offices so united. It is only where a land district, in which the sales have been extensive, is divided and attached to two other districts that the labor at the offices will be materially increased.

After the lands in any State shall have been all surveyed and offered at public sale, and when the debt due for lands heretofore purchased in such State shall have been liquidated, a further and more extensive reduction of the land districts may be made by limiting them in such State to a single district, and locating the land office at the seat of government of the State.

In any arrangement that may be made for the reduction of the number of land districts, the fact that a large debt is due on account of lands the payments for which are to be made, at the option of the debtors, either at the treasury of the United States or at the office where the lands were purchased, is entitled to much attention in respect both to the rights and accommodation of the purchasers; and when it is also taken into consideration that the disbursements of the public money are very limited in nearly all that section of country where the public lands lie, and that from the force of circumstances these disbursements will not probably be materially increased, it is submitted how far other considerations than those arising from the reduction of the expenses of collecting this branch of the revenue might make it inexpedient to reduce the land districts to the number proposed in this report, until those circumstances shall have occurred which would justify the reduction of them to a single district in each State. With these views of the subject, I would take the liberty of suggesting the expediency of passing an act declaring that, after March 31, 1829, the period at which the whole debt due on account of land ought to be paid, the land districts in each State be consolidated into one district, and the land offices be located at the seat of government of the States, respectively; and that until such a consolidation of the land districts shall have taken place, the President of the United States be authorized to attach any land district within which no lands have been sold on a credit to any one or more adjacent districts in the same State, in such manner and at such time as he may deem most conducive to the public interest.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Hon. WM. H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of the Treasury.

The quantity of land exhibited as surveyed and remaining unsold in the southeastern district of Louisiana is the amount of the lots surveyed (agreeably to the ancient Spanish and French custom) on the rivers, bayous, and water-courses between the Bayou Lafourche and the river Atchafalaya, which lands have been since proclaimed for sale. The quantity exhibited as sold in that district, in statement No. 2, (viz: 80,437.64 acres,) is the amount of the back concessions and pre-emption rights, of which no returns of survey have yet been made; their total quantity cannot even be estimated. Hence their amount is not included in the column of surveys.

For the two districts of Michigan it will be perceived that the quantity of land remaining unsold is stated in the aggregate. The reason of this is, that the southern district was partly formed out of the Detroit district, and the quantity sold at the land office at Detroit in those townships now attached to the southern district cannot readily be discriminated.

The quantity of land remaining unsold in the district of Jackson Court-House, in Mississippi, and the district of St. Stephen's, in Alabama, is also stated in the aggregate, for the reason that the former-named district was formed, in part, by attaching to it all the lands in the old district of St. Stephen's which lie in the State of Mississippi. The quantity of land exhibited as surveyed in the district of Jackson Court-House is only that portion of the former district of St. Stephen's attached thereto.

No surveys have been received south of the 31st degree of latitude in either of those districts.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, December 14, 1824.

GEORGE GRAHAM.

CLAIMS TO LAND IN WEST FLORIDA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 14, 1825.

COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE, Pensacola, December 10, 1824.

SIR: We have the honor to transmit an abstract of claims to land in West Florida, (marked I,) founded on habitation and cultivation, between February 22, 1819, and July 17, 1821, reported to Congress in obedience to an act entitled "An act granting donations to certain actual settlers in the Territory of Florida."

It has been deemed expedient to make this report at an early period, as the act may require amendments, and this class of claims is subject to future legislation.

We have the honor to be, with high considerations of respect, your most obedient servants,

SAMUEL R. OVERTON.

JOSEPH M. WHITE.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives United States.

I.

A report of claims to land in West Florida, founded on habitation and cultivation, between February 22, 1819, and July 17, 1821, reported in obedience to an act of Congress approved May 26, 1824.

CLAIM FOR MILITARY BOUNTY LAND.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 18, 1825.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of Thomas Arms, reported:

The petitioner represents that, at the commencement of the late war, and for some time before, he resided in Canada; that soon after hostilities began he was draughted into the service of Great Britain; that, being unwilling to fight against the country of his birth, he deserted, and came to the United States; that in 1813, in the month of June, he volunteered as a substitute for his brother, John Arms, who was a private in a detachment commanded by Captain Godfrey, of Major Adams' regiment of New York militia; that soon after he, with a number of others, was taken prisoner by the enemy at Black Rock; that he was taken thence to Montreal, Quebec, and Halifax, where, in February, 1814, he was exchanged, and ordered to —, in Massachusetts, at which place he received three months' pay; that thence he was ordered to Pittsfield, where he received from Captain Charles Fuller four months' pay and six months' clothing; and that about the 1st of May, 1814, he was discharged from service; that he has made application at the War Department for the benefit of the acts allowing bounty land to the Canadian volunteers, and was answered that the provisions of those acts having been construed to extend only to those soldiers who performed duty in the regular service, his request could not be granted; wherefore, he prays for such bounty as was allowed to the "Canadian volunteers."

The committee think it unnecessary to recite the testimony exhibited by the petitioner. From the petition it is evident he was a substitute for a soldier, who, it is not doubted, was brought into the service by draught. His employer's military character was imparted to him. The substitution favored him with no privileges or bounties which could not have been claimed by the other privates of the same corps, or by his brother, had he continued in the army. His entrance into the service did not add one to the number of soldiers. It was to increase the military force of the country that bounties were promised. However, in the case of the Canadian volunteers, it may be said the extension of bounties was intended in some degree to indemnify for their losses.

With these views the committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioner be not granted.

COPPER MINE LANDS ON LAKE SUPERIOR.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 21, 1825.

Letter from Governor Cass, of Michigan, on the advantage of purchasing the country upon Lake Superior where copper has been found, addressed to the Hon. Thomas H. Benton, of the Senate.

DETROIT, November 21, 1824.

DEAR SIR: In conformity with your request I shall proceed to state the advantages which would attend the purchase, by the United States, of the country upon Lake Superior where copper has been found.

Since I had last the honor to address you upon this subject further researches have been made, under the direction of Mr. Schoolcraft, which have resulted in a conviction that that district of country is richer in mineral productions than has been heretofore supposed. Mr. Schoolcraft has promised to communicate to you such information respecting this subject as is in his possession; and as he will probably visit Washington during the winter, he will be able to satisfy any inquiries you may be disposed to make.

The Indian population is very thinly scattered upon the southern shore of Lake Superior. Along the whole line of coast from the Sault St. Marie to the Fond du Lac, no article of food is raised by them; they depend for their support principally upon the fish, and partially upon the scanty supply of game which is furnished by that inhospitable country.

The metalliferous region is upon and about the lake shore, and the extinction of the Indian title to such a portion of it as may be deemed advantageous would not diminish their means of subsistence. But I still think, as I thought originally, that it would be most proper to negotiate with them for the right to explore the country, and to carry on mining operations wherever appearances may promise the most productive result. But little would be gained by an attempt to push permanent settlements into those regions. And this is all we could promise ourselves from an absolute extinction of title. All the advantages we could expect to derive from the mineral riches of the country would be gained by the right to procure and take away any portion of them. The injury to be anticipated from a cession to the United States is, that the laws regulating trade and intercourse with the Indians would cease to operate, and embarrassments might be produced by the establishment of traders not subject to the present wholesome restraints of the laws.

No calculation can be made of the extent and pecuniary value of these copper mines. No doubt is entertained but that the metal may be procured with as much ease as in any part of the world; in fact, it is well known that large masses of pure malleable copper have been discovered in different parts of the country, and there is every reason to believe that when those regions are fully explored these masses will be found to be still more abundant.

The return transportation from the Sault St. Marie to Buffalo is, and must continue to be, low. The freight is principally up the lakes, and there are few articles which that portion of the country produces for exportation; vessels, therefore, generally return wholly or partially empty.

The cost of making the purchase I have described may be kept within the sum of $10,000 and full justice be done to the Indians interested. It might, I doubt not, be made for a much less sum were it consonant to the principles or policy of the government to procure cessions from the Indians at the lowest possible rate; but it is due to the character of our country, and to the feelings of our citizens, that, in our negotiations with these wretched people, we should remember our own strength and wealth, and their weakness and poverty; that we should look back upon what they have lost and we have gained, and never forget the great moral debt we owe them.

Apart from any views connected with the cession I have mentioned, there are other considerations which render it proper that a negotiation should be opened with the Lake Superior Indians. That you may understand fully the situation and feelings of these Indians I enclose the copy of a letter addressed by me to the War Department; as the transmission of it is not strictly in conformity with official etiquette, I must commit it to your discretion.

It is probable that the convocation of the Chippewa chiefs of the Lake Superior country to a council, at some proper point upon the lake shore, would supersede the employment of other and harsher measures. Such explanations and representations might be made as would satisfy them of the necessity of surrendering the perpetrators of the late outrages, and of restraining their people from the commission of similar acts in future. We must either persuade or compel them to do us justice, and much is gained for the great cause of humanity by the adoption of the former rather than the latter course.

Very respectfully, I am, sir, your obedient servant,

LEWIS CASS.

Hon. THOMAS H. BENTON, Senator in Congress, Washington.

18TH CONGRESS.]

No. 441.

[2D SESSION.

CLAIMS TO LAND BETWEEN THE LINES OF LUDLOW AND ROBERTS, OHIO.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 21, 1825.

MR. RANKIN, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the President's message, with certain documents relating to the valuation of certain lands in the State of Ohio, situated between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, directed to be made by the act of May 26, 1824, entitled "An act to authorize the President of the United States to enter into certain negotiations relative to lands located under Virginia military land warrants, lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, in the State of Ohio," with the remonstrances of sundry citizens of Ohio and Virginia in relation to said lines, reported:

That your committee deem a detailed report of the facts of the case at this time unnecessary, as a full report was made on the same subject to this House, by a select committee, May 4, 1824, and which your committee pray may be considered a part of this report.—(See No. 410, vol. 3, page 721.) The documents accompanying the President's message contain a very full and detailed statement of all the facts not embraced by the former report.

Your committee are unanimously of the opinion that purchasers from the United States, who purchased under the faith of the government, and who are understood to have made large improvements on the lands, ought not to be disturbed in their possessions and deprived of the fruits of their industry, provided the adverse claims can be quieted without a very unreasonable sacrifice on the part of the government. To a numerous class of valuable citizens, deprived of their homes after years of tedious and expensive litigation, the purchase money and interest would be a very inadequate and unsatisfactory remuneration, while the government, without having regard to the claim which would be made for the valuable improvements of which the citizens would be deprived, would be compelled to pay a much larger sum than that proposed for a compromise with the claimants under Virginia military land warrants. Your committee, therefore, report a bill authorizing the President to purchase from the owners of the Virginia military land warrants located prior to June 26, 1812, between Ludlow's and Roberts' line, releases of all their claims.

To the House of Representatives:

In compliance with an act of Congress, which originated in the House of Representatives, passed May 26, 1824, "to authorize the President of the United States to enter into certain negotiations relative to lands located under Virginia military land warrants, lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, in the State of Ohio," I herewith transmit a report, with accompanying documents, from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, showing the measures which have been taken under the provisions of the aforesaid act.

JAMES MONROE.

WASHINGTON, December 13, 1824.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 13, 1824.

SIR: In pursuance of an act of Congress passed on the 26th of May last, Jonah Baldwin, David Huston, and William Ward, esquires, of Ohio, were appointed commissioners to ascertain the value of the lands, exclusive of improvements, lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, in the State of Ohio, and which are claimed under Virginia military warrants. The papers marked A and B contain the instructions to and the report of the commissioners as to the value of these lands. The paper marked C (not now to be found) is a plat exhibiting the interferences of these lands with the public surveys; and that marked D shows the quantity of land claimed under Virginia military warrants which has been sold by the United States; the price at which it has been sold; the quantity thus claimed which remains unsold; and the valuation of these lands, as reported by the commissioners. The paper marked E is a copy of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Doddridge's Lessee against Thompson & Wright.—(See No. 410, page 620.) To decide how far the claims included in the report of the commissioners come within the principles of the decision of the Supreme Court, it will be necessary to take a view of the facts in relation to these claims as connected with the several acts of Congress and the decision of the court.

Previous to the year 1804 a line was run, under the authority of the surveyor general of the United States, by Mr. Ludlow, from the head of the Little Miami towards the head of the Scioto river as far as the Indian boundary line. The public surveys were made up to and in conformity to that line; and, by the act of June 26, 1812, this line was recognized as the boundary line of the military reservation. In the year 1812 a line was run under the authority of commissioners of the United States, appointed under the act of 1812, to establish, in conjunction with commissioners on the part of the State of Virginia, the boundary of lands between the Miami and Scioto rivers, as reserved by the State of Virginia to satisfy the warrants issued by that State to the officers and soldiers on her continental establishment. This line is called Roberts' line; it lies west of Ludlow's line, and has been declared by the decision of the Supreme Court to be the true boundary of the lands as originally reserved between the Scioto and Miami by the State of Virginia for the purpose above mentioned, and that part of it which lies north of the old Indian boundary line was established as the proper boundary of the reservation by the act of April 11, 1818. The lands lying between these two lines and the old Indian boundary amount to 51,916 acres, the whole of which has been surveyed, and nearly all of it sold by the United States at different periods from the year 1804 to the year 1819; the first public sale of this land took place in the year 1804.

In the year 1804 an act passed declaring that Ludlow's line should be considered as the boundary line of the lands reserved by the State of Virginia, provided that State within two years passed an act to recognize such line as the boundary of the reservation. The second section of this act limits the right of entering Virginia military warrants to a period not exceeding three years from the date of that act. The principle of limitation established by this act is recognized by the decision of the Supreme Court to be a correct one. An act passed March 2, 1807, extending the period for locating and surveying Virginia military warrants, with a provision "that no locations, as aforesaid, within the above-mentioned tract shall, after the passing of this act, be made on tracts of land for which patents have been previously issued, or which had been previously surveyed." Subsequent acts, containing the same proviso, have extended the period for making locations up to this time. Subsequent to the passage of this act of March 2, 1807, and previous to the passage of that of June 26, 1812, nearly all the lands lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines were covered by entries made under Virginia military warrants; all these entries were, however, afterwards withdrawn, with the exception of those covering the lands valued by the commissioners, and included in their report referred to.

It has been declared by the decision of the Supreme Court above referred to, that the proviso to the act of 1807 does not comprehend the lands surveyed by the surveyor general and patented by the United States. It was, however, believed, previous to that decision, that whatever might have been the intention of the author of that proviso the terms used could not be satisfied unless they did comprehend the lands surveyed and patented by the United States. The whole course of decisions under the Virginia land laws go to show that a location made on lands previously regularly patented, where the warrant under which the location is made and the patent emanate from the same authority, is void; if the patent has been fraudulently obtained it is of no effect. Without the proviso, therefore, is made to extend to the lands surveyed by the United States, that part of it which relates to patented lands would seem to be inoperative. When the act of 1804 was passed, it is manifest that it had not been accurately ascertained whether the line of the public surveys run by Ludlow was east or west of a true line run from the head of the Miami to the head of the Scioto. It was believed to approximate so near to such a line, however, that Congress was willing to establish it as the boundary line. It is reasonable, therefore, to suppose that, in 1807, when they had acquired the right, that they would have protected their own surveys. And when, in the proviso to the act of 1807, words were used which in their strict and technical meaning were not applicable to any other general description of lands but the public lands patented by the United States, the executive officers were justified in believing that they had protected these lands by that proviso, and particularly so when it was known that previous to the passage of that act no entry on Virginia military warrants had been made west of Ludlow's line. This inference, too, would seem to be sanctioned by the act of April 11, 1818; this act is not referred to in the decision of the Supreme Court; it is retrospective in its provisions, and declares "that no patent shall be granted on any location and survey that has or may be made west of the aforesaid respective lines." Notwithstanding the repetition in this and subsequent acts of the proviso contained in the act of 1807, it is difficult to conceive how such an act could have been passed but from a knowledge of the fact that no locations of Virginia military warrants had been made west of Ludlow's line previous to the passage of the act of 1807, and from an impression that the proviso to that act comprehended the lands surveyed and patented under the authority of the United States. Under any other view of the subject the provisions of the act of 1818 are manifest violations of private rights. If, however, the decision of the Supreme Court, that the proviso to the act of 1807 does not comprehend the lands surveyed under the authority of the surveyor general, is correct, then are all the locations made on Virginia military warrants between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines previous to June 26, 1812, and which have not been withdrawn, valid, and the claimants have an equitable title to the lands covered by such locations, whether they have or have not been surveyed and patented.

The report of the commissioners includes all the lands thus claimed, and the documents communicated show that of these lands one tract was patented previous to the establishment of this office, and four others immediately after the establishment of it. There is, however, good reason to believe that they were patented without a knowledge of the fact that the lands lay west of Ludlow's line. The residue of the lands appear all to have been surveyed previous to June 26, 1812, with the exception of one location, in the name of Samuel Johnston and John Moore, for two hundred and fifty acres, made November 12, 1812.

The paper marked F contains the correspondence with the claimants, and shows the terms on which they propose to relinquish their claims to the lands valued by the commissioners.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE GRAHAM.

The PRESIDENT of the United States.

A.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, June 19, 1824.

GENTLEMEN: In pursuance of an act of Congress passed May 26, 1824, a copy of which is enclosed, the President of the United States has appointed you to appraise and ascertain the value of the lands, exclusive of any improvements thereon, lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, in the State of Ohio, which have been sold by the United States, and which are claimed by persons under Virginia military land warrants. It is expected that you will go upon each tract claimed under the Virginia military warrants, carefully examine it, and ascertain its present cash value if it were not improved.

From the enclosed statement it appears that there are 14,075 acres of land between Roberts' and Ludlow's lines which are claimed under Virginia military warrants; that, of the land thus claimed, 11,346.37 acres have been sold by the United States at $2 per acre; 2,122.76 at $4; and that 605.87 remain unsold.

The accompanying plats exhibit the interferences of the military surveys with those made by the United States, and will enable you readily to ascertain the position of the land, as they are believed to be very accurately laid down, with the exception of the two surveys in the name of Bowman, and these are believed to be nearly if not entirely correct.

I have to request, however, that you will ascertain precisely the southwest corner of the survey No. 6928, in the name of A. Bowman; and if it should fall within section thirty-six, township five, range thirteen, you will then ascertain the quantity of land in Bowman's survey which may be within that section. You will also ascertain the distance from the southeast corner of section thirty-six, township five, range thirteen, to the intersection of the north boundary line of survey No. 6923, with the east line of sections thirty-five or thirty-six, in township five, range thirteen, as the point of intersection may be north or south of that corner. As General McArthur is interested in the military surveys, and made most of them himself, it is desirable that you should advise him of the time and place of your meeting, as he will be able to give you such information in relation to the corners and lines of the military surveys as will greatly facilitate the duties required of you.

Your compensation will be three dollars a day for every day each of you may be engaged in the performance of the duties required, exclusive of any expenses that may be necessarily incurred for surveyors, chain-carriers, or guides. Congress having, however, made no appropriation for this object, you will forward your account to this office, and the amount will be paid as soon as an appropriation can be obtained.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

JONAH BALDWIN, DAVID HUSTON, and WILLIAM WARD, Commissioners.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, August 31, 1824.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose a copy of an entry, No. 7619, in the name of Samuel Johnson and John Moore, for two hundred and fifty acres of land, which lies between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts, and which has not been withdrawn. I have, therefore, to request that you will ascertain the value of the lands covered by this entry, in pursuance of the instructions which you have received for carrying into effect the act of May 26, 1824. You have laid down on the plats forwarded the survey No. 6920, which this entry adjoins, and I presume that General McArthur can furnish you with such a connected plat of survey No. 6501, and the other entries which it depends upon, as will enable you to ascertain its position and interference with the lands surveyed by the United States. As no survey has been made in this case, I wish you to make a separate report in relation to it.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

JONAH BALDWIN, DAVID HUSTON, and WM. WARD, Esquires, Ohio.

B.

OCTOBER 20, 1824.

We, the undersigned, appointed by the President of the United States, pursuant to an act of Congress passed May 26, 1824, to appraise and ascertain the value of the lands, exclusive of the improvements thereon, lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, in the State of Ohio, which have been sold by the United States, and which are claimed by persons under Virginia military warrants, have attended to the duties assigned us by said act and your instructions bearing date June 18, 1824, and they now submit for the consideration of the President the following report:

We, the undersigned, met on the business of our appointment in the town of Springfield, Clark county, Ohio, on the 24th of August last past, and thence proceeded to make an actual examination of the land above referred to—that is to say: The land contained in survey No. 6912, entered in the name of Duncan McArthur, we estimated at $4 50 per acre. The land contained in survey No. 6913, entered in the name of John and Matthew Hobson, we estimated at $2 25 per acre. In survey No. 6914, entered in the name of John and Matthew Hobson, we estimated at $4 per acre. In survey No. 6915, entered in the name of John and Matthew Hobson, we estimated at $2 50 per acre. In survey No. 6919, entered in the name of Duncan McArthur, we estimated at $4 50 per acre. In survey No. 6927, entered in the name of Abraham Bowman, we estimated at $5 per acre. In survey No. 6922, entered in the name of John and Matthew Hobson, we estimated at $6 per acre. In survey Nos. 6923 and 6926, entered in the name of John and Matthew Hobson, we estimated at $2 per acre. In survey No. 6928, entered in the name of Abraham Bowman, we estimated at $2 25 per acre. In survey No. 6929, entered in the name of Abraham Bowman, we estimated at $3 50 per acre.

And also, upon examination and actual survey, we find that survey No. 6928 does not interfere with section thirty-six, township five, and range thirteen; and we further ascertained that the southeast corner of section thirty-six, township five, range thirteen, lies thirty poles north of the north boundary of survey No. 6923.

We further state that Aaron L. Hunt, whose account is herewith enclosed, was by us employed to perform the necessary surveying required in examining the aforesaid lands; which is respectfully submitted.

JONAH BALDWIN,
DAVID HUSTON,
WILLIAM WARD,
Commissioners.

Pursuant to instructions from the General Land Office, bearing date August 31, 1824, we beg leave to submit the following report:

That upon actual view and examination of the lands covered by entry No. 7619, mentioned in said instructions, we estimate the value of the same at $3 per acre; which is respectfully submitted.

JONAH BALDWIN,
DAVID HUSTON,
WILLIAM WARD,
Commissioners.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE, December 3, 1824.

SIR: I enclose you a copy of the report made by the commissioners appointed in pursuance of an act of the last session of Congress to value those lands lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines, which were claimed under titles derived from Virginia military warrants, and which had been sold by the United States.

I also enclosed a statement showing the valuation of the lands contained in each military survey, as reported by the commissioners, and the prices at which these lands, respectively, have been sold, so far as the quantities could be calculated from the plats in this office. From this statement it will appear that, of the 14,075 acres of land, valued by the commissioners to be worth $62,515 35 at present, 1,864.68 acres sold at $4 per acre, 11,614.32 sold at $2 per acre, and 598 acres remain unsold. The unsold lands have been valued by the commissioners to be worth $1,666 91, and the purchase money of the lands sold amounts to $30,679 36, of which sum it is estimated that $28,676 have been paid. These lands were sold in small quantities at different periods from the year 1804 to 1817, and no satisfactory calculation can be made of the interest which would accrue on the different payments without an accurate resurvey showing the precise interference of the public surveys with each of the military surveys.

From a general view of the subject, I should presume that the gross amount of interest which would be demandable by the individual purchasers in the event of the loss of their lands might be estimated to be equal to twelve years' interest on the amount of the purchase money. Assuming this data, the following results will be exhibited:

Amount of purchase money.....	$30,679 36
Twelve years' interest on that amount.....	22,089 14
598 acres unsold, valued at.....	1,666 91
Total.....	54,435 41
14,075 acres, valued by the commissioners at.....	62,515 25
Difference	8,079 84

To enable the President to make to Congress the report required by the act of the last session, I have to request that you will, as soon as practicable, inform me what portion of the lands valued by the commissioners you claim, and upon what terms you will relinquish to the United States such claim.

I am, &c.,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Hon. DUNCAN MCARTHUR, House of Representatives.

P. S.—Mr. Doddrige has proposed to relinquish his claim for the original purchase money, with interest.

WELLSBURG, Brooke Court-House, Virginia, November 15, 1824.

DEAR SIR: Although the persons appointed by the President to report the value of the lands recovered by me in the suit of Doddridge's Lessee vs. Thompson & Wright, and other lands similarly situated, have, as I suppose, long since discharged that duty, I am ignorant how they have reported. The President is also directed to report on what terms we will release our claims. I am only interested in the 700 acres I recovered, which I am led to believe contains a considerable surplus quantity of acres. The officers of the United States entered on these lands many years since, and surveyed and sold them as public lands. I believe mine was all sold, part at four dollars and part at two dollars per acre. I know not the respective quantities sold at the above prices. I am not desirous to take benefit by the labor of others, and propose to relinquish my claim upon receiving from the government what the purchasers paid to it, with interest from the payment to the government until I am paid. This will place the purchasers in security, and will leave the government where it would have been in relation to this business if its officers had not fallen into the error they did fall into. The act of the government's officers in surveying these lands and selling them as public property, together with the refusal of the former commissioner to grant the other patents on a regular application made by General McArthur, threw such doubts on the title as to place these lands completely out of the market at a time when the minimum price of public lands, good and bad, was two dollars. The subsequent reduction ought not to affect us, because it was not our fault but the act of government which prevented a sale when the price of good land in that country was at least threefold what it now is.

If it be not improper, or too much trouble, would you inform me what my land has been valued at? Be good enough to lay this before the President.

P. DODDRIDGE.

The COMMISSIONER of the General Land Office.

WASHINGTON CITY, December 6, 1824.

SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 3d instant, with the copy of the report of the commissioners appointed in pursuance of an act of the last session of Congress to value the lands lying between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts, claimed by virtue of locations made upon Virginia military land warrants, and sold by the United States, and your statement showing the valuation of each military survey as reported by the said commissioners.

In answer to that part of your letter which asks information as to the portion of these lands which I claim, and upon what terms I will relinquish them to the United States, I can state that I claim the whole of the lands embraced in the first report of the commissioners aforesaid, with the exception of survey No. 6927, of 700 acres, sold and conveyed by me to Philip Doddridge, which is 13,375 acres, valued at $60,940 25. My title papers will be exhibited at the General Land Office whenever required.

I am willing to transfer or relinquish these lands to the United States for the amount at which they were valued by the commissioners.

DUNCAN McARTHUR.

GEORGE GRAHAM, Esq.

WASHINGTON CITY, December 8, 1824.

SIR: With regard to my military land claim between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts, I am, upon reflection, induced to add other propositions to that contained in my letter to you of the 16th instant, to wit: for all those claims, except survey No. 6922, of 6,220 acres, I am willing to take land warrants for an equal quantity of land, to be located upon any lands of the United States. And for the said survey, No. 6922, I propose either to accept the amount of money at which it was valued by the commissioners, or to keep it and prosecute my claim for the recovery thereof against the tenants in possession.

Thus my propositions now stand: 1st, to accept from the government for the whole of my land claims between the said lines the amount at which they were valued by the commissioners; 2d, to receive from the government 7,155 acres of land warrants in exchange for surveys numbered 6912, 6913, 6914, 6915, 6919, 6927, 6923, 6926, and 6929, which together contain the quantity of 7,155 acres; and for survey No. 6922, of 6,220 acres, the value in money assessed by the commissioners; or 3d, to retain the last mentioned survey, No. 6922, of 6,220 acres, and to receive 7,155 acres of land warrants in exchange for the other surveys, which in all contain the like quantity of acres.

I have been induced to make the first proposition with a view to the final settlement of my land claims between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts without further litigation, although I would prefer holding these lands, were they clear of incumbrance, to receiving the amount at which they have been valued.

In the second place, I have proposed to receive land warrants in exchange for a part of these lands, preferring lands to money, so far as I have not immediate demand for money.

Although it would to me be most painful to be compelled to prosecute my claims at law against those who hold these lands under purchases from the United States, from the advice of the most able counsel I feel confident that it may be done with success, as much so where patents have been refused by the Commissioner of the General Land Office as if they had been granted.

Should those who have the management of the business on the part of the United States prefer it, I am ready to go into a legal investigation of the unpatented claims and to abide the final decision of the court.

I am, &c.,
Hon. G. GRAHAM, Commissioner of the General Land Office.

DUNCAN McARTHUR.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists respectfully represent that they are holders of Virginia military continental land warrants; that the good land between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers, in the State of Ohio, is completely exhausted; that the agents of the United States did survey and mark the western boundary line of the said tract of country from one of the sources of the Little Miami north 20° west towards that of the Scioto river in such a manner as to cut off from the Virginia military district very nearly 40,000 acres of land on the south side of the Greenville treaty line, the greater part of which may be termed arable, and of tolerable fertility; that the land so cut off was surveyed by the United States, and sold by them to many individuals who settled and improved the same; that your memorialists did respect the said line as the western boundary of the said Virginia military district, and made no entries to interfere with the lands surveyed or sold by the government west of it. And they respectfully request the Congress of the United States to permit them, as well as all other holders of such warrants, to locate them on any of the unsold lands of the United States in the State of Ohio to an amount equal in quantity as well as quality to the land so cut off from the Virginia military district as aforesaid.

But, as General Duncan McArthur claims about 13,000 acres of land west of Ludlow's line, the value of which he asks from the government, which, if paid, may be deemed a sufficient compensation for the whole, or at least as full payment for the quantity claimed by him, your memorialists beg leave to make the following observations in relation to this claim, and to endeavor to show how little of the true merits of the whole matter was decided in the suit in ejectment of "Doddridge's Lessee vs. Thompson & Wright" at the last term of the Supreme Court, upon which so much has been asked and so much expected:

That suit was determined at common law upon certain agreed facts made and submitted to the court by the plaintiff, Doddridge, and Mr. Wright, the district attorney of the United States at the time. An agreed case, in which the following points, among others, were agreed to: 1st, that, "in particular," the line run by Roberts is the true line between the sources of the aforesaid two rivers; and 2d, that before the entry was made, under which the lessor of the plaintiff claims, "the premises in question were, among other lands, surveyed and offered for sale by the public officers of the United States, acting under the authority of the laws of the United States, but were not sold." Upon these two points, and the legal meaning of the different acts of Congress regulating the manner of making military entries and surveys, the judgment of the court was principally founded. But, although the judgment of the court be conclusive as to these agreed facts, admitting them, for the present, to be actually true, which the first is not, as a rule of law by which all the other claims of General McArthur are to be determined, is entirely groundless.

General McArthur made all his entries on November 19, 1810. Before that day 4,756 acres of the land covered by his entries stood on the register's books as land sold, no part of which was afterwards forfeited by the purchasers. Besides this, a pretty large quantity stood then on the said books as land sold, which was afterwards forfeited, but how much it amounted to cannot be very easily ascertained; for at the time of forfeiture the names of the forfeit purchasers were erased from the plats in the office, and the very great number of purchasers' names on the register's books renders it extremely difficult for private individuals to obtain this information. In addition, we might mention a tract of 168 acres of this land which was given by the United States to the State of Ohio for the support of schools. Of the land thus sold, some of it was patented before and some of it after the date of General McArthur's entries. And your memorialists beg leave to state here that the best, not the worst, land is uniformly the first that is sold where there is but one price and a free choice. So far, then, as these facts go, a very different case is presented to your consideration from the one determined by the Supreme Court in the agreed case of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright.

The right to make locations by virtue of Virginia military continental land warrants on the lands between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers is clearly dependent on the will of the national legislature, as settled by the opinion of the Supreme Court in the aforesaid cause. But the government acted in the exercise of this right with great moderation and fairness; for, before Ludlow's line was run and marked, the then surveyor general, by virtue of instructions from the Secretary of the Treasury, requested information from General McArthur and Mr. Lucas Sullivant, the two military surveyors who had the best knowledge of the northerly part of the Virginia military district, to enable him to have a true line run and marked between the sources of these two rivers, that of the Scioto being in the country of the Indian tribes. Upon their information the line was run by Israel Ludlow from the source of the eastern-most fork of the Little Miami river north 20° west to the Greenville treaty line and there ended, as it was not thought to be good policy to excite the jealousy of the Indian tribes by extending it through their country to the Scioto river. It must, however, be confessed that Mr. Ludlow, in obeying his instructions, manifested a disposition to curtail the military lands by selecting the right hand fork of the Little Miami river as the main stream instead of the left hand fork, which is both the largest and the longest of the two, by which means about 30,000 acres of land were cut off from the Virginia district lying between these two forks.

From these premises it may be naturally and fairly inferred that, so far as sales were made by the agents of the government before November 19, 1810, the day of the date of General McArthur's entries, whether forfeited afterwards or not, were as completely prohibitory of the right to make military entries as an act of Congress prescribing general boundaries for the location of Virginia military warrants; the first being a special act, which restrains the right as to any particular spot, the other such a general rule as limits it to a more extensive tract of country. Now, as 4,756 acres, which were never afterwards forfeited, besides a pretty large quantity which was afterwards forfeited, stood on the register's books on, before, and after the said November 19, 1810, as land sold, as well as 168 acres appropriated for schools, the entries made by General McArthur, if this doctrine be sound in law, so far at least as they cover such lands, were illegal and void at the time they were made; and, being illegal and void then, they could not become good and valid afterwards by any accidental circumstances, for it is a maxim of law that whatever is not legal at its origin can never, of itself, become so afterwards.

For the land sold by the United States before the date of General McArthur's entries, patents were granted by the President to the respective purchasers, some of them dated before and some of them after the date of his entries; and it is believed that all the grants so issued are older than those to General McArthur on his military claims. He cannot therefore recover, in one of these cases, in a court of law; and that the title to land which was patented before the date of his entries cannot be disturbed by his claims is incontrovertible, as was determined by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Anderson vs. Huffnagle and others. Now, if the grant of the President be conclusive in these cases, does it not follow that the act of the President, by the register, as the agent of the government, in selling any part of this land to an individual before the date of General McArthur's entries, is equally conclusive? It appears to follow as a matter of course. These points were not, however, touched in the case of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright, and for an obvious reason—they did not belong to it.

It appears, also, that the different acts of Congress giving further time to purchasers of the public lands to make payment, so far as these lands are embraced, are such recognitions and confirmations of the acts of the register of the Cincinnati land office in selling them as would be equal to an actual prohibition to locate military warrants there.

Besides all this, the government ought not to be disturbed in the sale of the public lands by the intrusion of individuals; nor can it be presumed that, by the acts of Congress of 1807 and 1810, granting further time for making entries and returning surveys on Virginia military warrants, the government really intended that the holders of such warrants should have the right to appropriate land which was surveyed, sold, or offered for sale by its agents, and thereby overturn the validity of its own acts. The presumption must be the very opposite of this; for it is impossible to believe that Congress would willingly arm an enemy for its own injury. The intention of government is, therefore, decidedly against the claim set up by General McArthur. But why, it may be asked, were these points not made at the trial of the cause of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright? This action was determined at common law; and as these are equitable considerations, it is believed that they could only be urged in a court of equity. And, even admitting that the whole of the agreed facts are true, your memorialists firmly believe that the whole claim set up by General McArthur, including even the land which stood at the dates of his entries on the register's books as unsold, fairly and fully examined by a court of equity, would be adjudged to be invalid, as contrary to the obvious intention of Congress.

Your memorialists beg further to draw the attention of the national legislature to the consequences arising from the payment of a very large sum of money to an individual not only on claims that are entirely groundless, but even on doubtful ones. How greatly, as a precedent, the heedless grant of money tends to degrade the government, increase its expense, and sink the national character! It is certainly, too, very doubtful, even in a case certain, whether the United States, being more able, ought to pay more than an individual under similar circumstances, even on agreed cases. After the fullest investigation, the unsuccessful litigant in such a case could only be required to refund the purchase money with interest; and the tenant in possession would recover from the successful litigant the value of his improvements. And it does appear to us, and we respectfully state it, that if the United States are inclined to be chivalrously generous, the payment of money had much better be made to the purchasers from the government than to the intruder; for the valuation of these lands, as estimated by the United States commissioners, and the value of their improvements from the successful litigant, would be a most acceptable consideration to nine-tenths of the occupants of the land—the best sale they could make in these hard times; therefore think of them we pray you. Another consideration for thinking of them is, that all the money paid to them would be reinvested in the purchase and improvement of new and uncultivated portions of the public lands. A contrary mode of payment will operate as a bounty to intrusion—encourage and justify every attempt to extract money from the public coffers.

But that part of the agreed case which is entitled to your first as well as your last consideration is that part of it where it is agreed that, "in particular," the line run by Charles Roberts is the true line between the sources of the Little Miami and Scioto rivers. There is such a thing as giving away causes by agreement, however innocently it may be done; an instance of which your memorialists could easily refer to in Wheaton's reports. The aforesaid agreed case is another; for that Roberts' line is a true line between the sources of these two rivers is utterly without foundation. This assertion is founded on the following facts, to wit:

The line run by Israel Ludlow at $3\frac{3}{4}$ miles from the source of the right hand fork of the Little Miami is intersected by the left hand fork of this river about 430 poles west from its source, the latter fork being the largest as well as the longest of the two. And neither of them having obtained the name of the Little Miami, to the exclusion of the other, at any time anterior to the period when Ludlow's line was run, it must follow, agreeably to the rule laid down by the Supreme Court in the said agreed case, that the largest as well as the longest fork must be considered the true river. This fork, therefore, has its source among the military surveys about 430 poles east from its intersection with Ludlow's line. The highest point to which the Scioto can be traced is a large wet prairie or swamp, which is during the wet season an extensive sheet of water, discharging itself into both the Scioto and the great Miami rivers. At the heads of streams in flat countries this is not uncommon. Where the Scioto leaves the prairie it has a very small, flat channel, and is, excepting in the spring months, entirely dry. The place upon which Charles Roberts fixed as the source of this river is 667 poles south 75° west from this point, at a small pond on the edge of the prairie; between which two points there is neither channel nor the least appearance of current at any season of the year. The time when Mr. Roberts, with the commissioners of the United States and Virginia, examined this flat country was a very unfavorable one to make the proper examinations. It was in the fall of 1812, when no water could be seen there, excepting in a number of small ponds in the prairie, and when danger was apprehended from roaming parties of hostile Indians. At this time, however, the Virginia commissioners insisted upon it that the left hand fork of the Little Miami river was the main branch.

By running, therefore, a true line from the source of the largest fork of the Little Miami to the point of the wet prairie or swamp where the branch of the Scioto river leaves it, it would pass through the military surveys till it reached about the twentieth mile tree on Ludlow's line into the lands sold by the United States, dividing them in such a way as to leave about two-fifths on the military and three-fifths on the United States sides of Ludlow's line. But your memorialists respectfully suggest the propriety of having competent men, not residents of the State of Ohio, appointed to make the proper examination of the country, that their report may settle the controversy; and as we enjoy profound peace with the Indian tribes, the proper time and season for its complete examination may be devoted to it.

And, as in duty bound, your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

LOWER BLUE LICKS, Kentucky, August 2, 1824.

DEAR SIR: By a letter just received from home I understand it to be your wish to know how General McArthur has succeeded west of Ludlow's line. In the action of ejectment against Wright and Thompson, carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, he has recovered, or rather obtained a judgment for the seven hundred acres of land in contest. This is believed to be all the land patented to the general, and it is doubted whether he could recover any other part of his claim. But from some proceedings that the general and his friends have got up in Congress it seems that the case decided is taken for granted as a decision in his favor for the whole, and the attempt is making to compromise the matter by a sale to the United States of all his claims. Persons have been appointed to examine and value the lands and report to the next session of Congress, when it is presumed the whole subject will be brought up.

The land-jobbing fraternity at Chillicothe have very much oppressed the general by petitioning Congress for an appropriation of land equal in area to that taken off the Virginia military district by Ludlow's line, and for presuming to doubt the validity of his claims in question; and it is more than probable that a further attempt will be made to prevent the realizing of all his views.

The decision in question was upon a case agreed. It is believed that there was a wrong statement of facts, and that a rehearing of the case might be had on a writ of error if any person interested in the decision thought proper to make the application.

Your friend, &c., very respectfully,

CADWALLADER WALLACE.

BEN. W. LADD, Esq., Jefferson county, Ohio.

RICHMOND, July 4, 1810.

By orders from the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States the surveyor general had a line run from the source of the Little Miami north 20° west till it intersected the Indian boundary line; which line, it was intended, was to be the western boundary of the surveys of the Virginia military reserve when the same was continued till it touched the Scioto river. Congress (on March 23, 1804, in pages 87 and 88 of vol. 7) passed a law declaring that that line should be, when continued to the Scioto river, the western boundary of the surveys of the Virginia military reserve, provided that the State of Virginia, within two years from the passing of the law, should approve of it as the western boundary line of the said survey. The State of Virginia has done nothing in the business since that time, as far as I am acquainted.

From the actual survey another surveyor and myself have found that the source of the Scioto river lies further west than it was thought to lie when the above line was run; and, consequently, that a considerable body of land lies west of that line that ought to be included within the Virginia reserve agreeably to the act of cession. Now, sir, I request your opinion on the following question? Will entries and surveys now made by virtue of Virginia military continental land warrants on the land lying between the line now run, as aforesaid, and a true line run from the source of the Little Miami so as to strike the source of Scioto river, hold the land which such entries and surveys may call for against the claim of the United States? Will it not be considered by the courts of the United States, from the above-mentioned facts, that the United States had no right to any land included within the Scioto and Little Miami rivers, and a straight line from the source of the one to the source of the other; and, consequently, that entries and surveys made within those boundaries by virtue of Virginia military continental land warrants must hold the land?

For want of a more intimate acquaintance than I possess of the course of location in Ohio, and the transactions between the State of Virginia and the general government relative to the subject of those lands, I am not prepared to give a decided opinion upon the questions propounded by the foregoing case. Considered abstractedly, however, I doubt whether the location would be good; for although the State has never formally accepted the line established by the act of Congress in 1804, yet that line having been generally conformed to ever since, and the legislature of Virginia having in January, 1807, instructed their senators to obtain longer time for locations without dissenting to the line, I am much inclined to think that these circumstances, taken in connexion with the general complexion of the act of Congress in March, 1807, will be considered as fixing the boundary line, and therefore that locations made beyond it will be void.

DAN. CALL.

WASHINGTON, December 29, 1824.

GENTLEMEN: My object in addressing this hasty note to you is to correct, as far as in my power, the misrepresentations of those who are remonstrating against the settlement of my land claims between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts.

In the first place, it is not a fact that the "memorialists did respect the line run by Ludlow as the western boundary of the Virginia military district, and made no entries to interfere with the lands surveyed or sold by the government west of it." On the contrary, they did make many entries west of Ludlow's line, as will appear by reference to the copies of those entries in the General Land Office. A reference to upwards of 9,000 acres of those entries I some days since put into the hand of a member of the committee. As to the correct western boundary of the Virginia military lands, I trust that more reliance will be placed, both by the committee and by Congress, upon the report of the commissioners upon the part of the United States who caused Roberts' line to be run and marked than there will be upon the irresponsible and vague statements of the memorialists. To prove to you the incorrectness of their statements relative to the forks of the Little Miami, permit me to refer you to the maps and surveys of the United States lands at the source of said river on file in the General Land Office, and to General Vance who represents that district, and is well acquainted with the different upper branches of that river.

It may be unfortunate for the memorialists that the Supreme Court of the United States do not view the operation of the acts of Congress as they do. It is said, however, that "circumstances alter cases," and this difference of opinion may, I presume, be traced to that cause. The memorialists tell you that they are apprehensive that, if government should pay me the value of my lands west of Ludlow's line, "it may be deemed a sufficient compensation for the whole," and, in that event, deprive them of being permitted to locate their land warrants (which may now be purchased at from fifteen to twenty dollars per hundred acres) upon any unsold lands of the United States. But I apprehend that they have other motives which they have not stated for opposing my claims between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts. I think that it will be found that they have withdrawn many entries or locations made there by themselves and me, which they were authorized to withdraw without making themselves liable for any damages which the owners of such entries might sustain by such withdrawals; and that they are now actually bound to remunerate some of those persons whose entries they have withdrawn, in case my claim should prove valid.

In the case of B. W. Ladd, who has had Mr. Wallace's letter to him referred to your committee, I can state that I hold his obligation for one-fifth part of about 15,000 acres of land which I located for him and company between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts, and for which I must be paid in case my other claims there prove valid. These claims the said Ladd and Company were to prosecute to final judgment, but instead of doing so they sold them to Messrs. Dun, Wallace and Galloway, who withdrew them without my approbation, in violation of Ladd's agreement with me. I have never been able to see the agreement between Ladd and Company and Messrs. Dun, Wallace and Galloway, under which the entries which I had made for Ladd and Company were withdrawn; but I have good reason to believe that Mr. Ladd sold these entries subject to my claim, and that the purchasers are bound to indemnify him against my claim; which, at the rate that the other lands have been valued, would amount to something like twelve or fourteen thousand dollars, which must be paid unless my claims shall be defeated.

Whether the memorial of my brother locators is based upon their liability for entries withdrawn from between the lines of Ludlow and Roberts, together with a little envy and jealousy, or a patriotic zeal to guard the public treasury, I shall not attempt to determine, but leave the subject with the committee.

Yours, respectfully,

DUNCAN McARTHUR.

The COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC LANDS.

P. S.—Patents issued to me for five of the surveys west of Ludlow's line. Should the committee desire it, I will exhibit to them my title papers at any time they may think proper.

DECEMBER 27, 1824.

[The following papers were communicated to the Senate, by the Committee on Public Lands, February 22, 1825:]

To the Committee of the Senate of the United States on Public Lands:

GENTLEMEN: I have just read the report of the land committee of the House of Representatives of the United States in the case of the Hon. General McArthur, and I beg leave to make a few observations on some parts of some of the documents accompanying it. The first is the letter of Mr. Graham, the Commissioner of the General Land Office, to the President, and I will take the liberty of correcting an error into which he has fallen, of very material consequence. In that letter he says that the Supreme Court of the United States has decided that Roberts' line is the true boundary of the Virginia military district north of the source of the Little Miami river. The only cause there determined, in which this line is even mentioned, is the agreed one of Doddridge vs. Thompson; and Mr. Graham, by a closer examination of that case, would have seen that no such point was submitted. It was agreed by the counsel, and the determination of the court was founded on the supposition of its truth; but the court did not decide that which was not controverted. So far as this fact is not true, the judgment of the court is groundless.

There is nothing said in any of the documents accompanying the report about any of the lands sold by the government having been patented before the date of the honorable gentleman's entries. It had been suggested by the memorialists to Congress, in relation to this matter, as a matter worthy of examination; for, so far as patents had issued before that period, the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Anderson and Huffnagle would void his entries.

Accompanying the report there is a letter from the Hon. General McArthur, dated 29th December last, abounding with insinuations, assertions, and slang more becoming the impudence of a court-yard than the dignity of the Senate. He offers his friend, General Vance, to prove that the memorialists have misrepresented the facts in relation to the true source of the Little Miami river. He is careful, however, not to commit himself on paper by saying that the facts as stated by them are not true. He knew that they were true, not from mere conjecture, but from having been actually present when the two forks of this river were measured by Charles Roberts in the fall of 1812, under the directions of the commissioners of the United States and Virginia; and I will add that he was the first person who told me that the left hand fork was actually the longest by about two miles, a great distance in a small stream; was fully as large as the other at the forks, and maintained its size much longer; and that, in reality, it was the main branch. The Virginia commissioners afterwards mentioned to me the same facts; and it was upon this point that the two sets of commissioners disagreed—those of Virginia insisting that as, from actual measurement, the left hand fork was the longest, and, from inspection, the largest, it was the main river. How far the Hon. General Vance will vouch for the Hon. General McArthur I know not; but I will most freely risk my character as to the truth of the statements in the memorial in relation to it; and whether Congress grant the prayer of the memorialists or not, that matter shall be established by the most undoubted testimony by the next session of Congress, and published to the world.

In the same letter the honorable gentleman has insinuated that the memorialists may have lateat motives for opposing his claim, and says "that it will be found that they have withdrawn many entries made there by themselves and me which they were not authorized to withdraw without making themselves liable for any damages that the owners of such entries might sustain by such withdrawals, and that they are now actually bound to remunerate some of these persons whose entries they have withdrawn in case my claim should prove valid." He has also subjoined a list of entries made by "Walter Dun & Co.," who are remonstrating against his claim. Now, gentlemen, every one of these entries were made by myself by virtue of my own warrants, and were afterwards withdrawn by myself; and all this the honorable gentleman well knew. That the warrants were my own, and were afterwards appropriated on lands which were patented to myself, I beg the favor of you to examine the copies of these entries in the General Land Office for the numbers of the warrants by which they were made; and Mr. Graham, the Commissioner, will show to you the evidences of my claim to them. I will add that I never withdrew a single entry lying west of Ludlow's line that was not my own property, free and unencumbered from the claims of all persons known to me; and that, excepting myself, none of the memorialists made a single entry in that quarter; and only two of them (Messrs. Galloway and Wallace) ever withdrew warrants in entries there, and they were, as I have understood, their own property; the evidences of which are all in the land office. Now, gentlemen, I declare these statements of the honorable gentleman to be utterly false and malicious, and I defy him for the proof so far as I am concerned.

The honorable gentleman has spoken of latent motives of the memorialists. And may not I presume to say something of his? In the suit of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright, was it his intention to have a full, open, and manly trial, or was it only with a view of getting a legal apology for getting into the treasury? Who was Thompson, the defendant? He was a person who, about that time, was working about a small country mill at the extreme southwesterly point of the survey, barely within its lines, who did not own a foot of the soil, had no lease for any part of it, who had not an acre in possession, and who never appeared in court as a defendant. He was, in reality, what it was intended he should be, if I am not mistaken, a true John Doe; while, at the very same time, there were in possession of parts of the said survey at least two bona fide purchasers from the government. The latter were the only true defenders of their rights, not Mr. Thompson, the particular friend of the honorable gentleman, without any natural interest whatever to defend an inch of the land. The Hon. General Vance is acquainted with Mr. Thompson.

I disclaim any share of envy or jealousy towards the honorable gentleman; on the contrary, I wish him, in every honorable course, as much success and as great a share of peace of mind as the wisest and the best of men can reasonably expect, and that the land he has won in law, including that from agreed cases in the Supreme Court and in other places, may never be the cause, however remotely, of any ranking in his mind for a single moment.

But, in my own behalf and in that of Mr. James Galloway, whom I represent, I want no land from the United States, unless it is found, after a fair and impartial survey of the country, that we are fairly entitled to it. We all want property; but we want God's blessing with it. We have therefore asked you, in our memorial, to direct the necessary examinations to ascertain the real state of the case, and act accordingly. A true line, however, will blast the honorable gentleman's prospects.

With the greatest respect, I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

WALTER DUN.

CHILICOTHE, February 9, 1825.

CHILICOTHE, January 9, 1825.

Cadwallader Wallace, a citizen of the State of Ohio, resident in the town of Chillicothe, one of the signers of a memorial addressed to the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States on December 13, 1824, in relation to the western boundary line of the Virginia military reservation, replying to the documents accompanying the report of the Committee on the Public Lands, to whom was referred the President's message of the 14th ultimo, (December,) upon the subject of certain lands in the State of Ohio, situated between Roberts' and Ludlow's lines, saith, that the line called "Roberts," ran in the year 1812, was not concurred in by the commissioners on the part of Virginia; that they claimed the north fork to be the main fork of the Little Miami river, and that so far as this want of concurrence and their dissent to this line goes it is in direct opposition to its correctness. Consonant with and fully supporting the reasoning of the commissioners on the part of Virginia for ascertaining the head of the Little Miami river, or of any other river, is the reasoning of the Supreme Court of the United States, ("if no fork of either of them has acquired the name in exclusion of another, the main branch to its source must be considered as the true river,") in the case of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright; and, taking this reasoning, and not the case agreed, as the rule by which the Little Miami and its source is to be ascertained, he avers that if the prayer of the memorialists is granted, the north fork will be found to be the main branch, the surveys of the United States lands on file in the General Land Office or any other negative or ex parte testimony to the contrary notwithstanding.

That the letter written by him on August 2, 1824, addressed to Benjamin W. Ladd, esq., was a private one, and of course not intended for publication; but being published, he here takes occasion to say that the printed copy of it is wrong, insomuch as it makes him say that the land-jobbing fraternity at Chillicothe have very much "opposed the general," instead of "offended the general." Opposition to General McArthur is not the object, but a consequence; and it is presumed that none of the memorialists are or would willingly be thought to be mere opponents of the general—mere "receptacles of envy and jealousy;" nor has a mistaken or affected zeal induced them to volunteer in the hazardous, nay the all-impossible office of guarding the public treasury; aware that had they it to guard, if perchance they might not lay violent hands on it themselves, they would not of themselves be able to guard it against the violence of others.

But yet, as good citizens, they would but discharge their duty in sounding the alarm if they saw the treasury of the nation in danger of being entered by violence or by a trick of legerdemain, leaving the treasury to the defence of those to whom its defence is committed.

And that the moral of the fable of the farmer and lawyer, referred to by General McArthur, does not apply—that it is pointless. He (the said Wallace) has had no ox gored, nor (after the fashion of the fable) has the general's bull been killed; if he insists that he has, let him show the carcass. The general has, indeed, well said that he has "never been able to see the agreement between Ladd & Co. and Messrs. Dun, Wallace, and Galloway;" and he might have gone on and said, with equal truth, that no other person ever saw it. And who but the general ever said or intimated that such an agreement ever existed?

He (the said Wallace) admits that he purchased of Benjamin W. Ladd, in his own right, as executor of Joseph Ladd, and as the attorney of the executrix and executor of Thomas Norvell, several thousand acres of warrants (not land) that had been located west of Ludlow's line, and several thousand acres located elsewhere; but that the purchase was made without any liability, written or verbal, to Ladd, to Ladd's estate, to Norvell's estate, to McArthur, or to any other person. Had it been necessary to enter into any agreement, would it not have been most reasonable to suppose that if McArthur's claim was the subject of it, the vendees, not the vendors, would have been the persons to be protected against his claim—this "$12,000 or $14,000" of which he vaunts? In any case where the general was not interested this would have been the natural course. For his cases precedents are wanting.

In conclusion, the said Wallace, conscious of the rectitude of his conduct in the premises, claims for himself to be held responsible to the nation and to General McArthur for the allegations contained in the memorial referred to, "irresponsible and vague" as the general would gladly have them considered; and, casting back the foul and defamatory insinuations of the general, invites him—dares him—to the proof. Desperate, indeed, is the cause that, to stand, has to be propped by detraction and calumny!

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

Your memorialists respectfully represent that they are holders of Virginia military continental land warrants; that the good land between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers, in the State of Ohio, is completely exhausted; that the agents of the United States did survey and mark the western boundary line of the said tract of country, from one of the sources of the Little Miami, north 20° west towards that of the Scioto river, in such a manner as to cut off from the Virginia military district very nearly 40,000 acres of land on the south side of the Greenville treaty line, the greater part of which may be termed arable and of tolerable fertility; that the land so cut off was surveyed by the United States, and sold by them to many individuals, who settled and improved the same; that your memorialists did respect the said line as the western boundary of the said Virginia military district, and made no entries to interfere with the lands surveyed or sold by the government west of it; and they respectfully request the Congress of the United States to permit them, as well as all holders of such warrants, to locate them on any of the unsold lands of the United States in the State of Ohio, to an amount equal in quantity, as well as quality, to the land so cut off from the Virginia military district as aforesaid.

But, as General Duncan McArthur claims about 13,000 acres of land west of Ludlow's line, the value of which he asks from the government, which, if paid, may be deemed a sufficient compensation for the whole, or, at the least, as full payment for the quantity claimed by him, your memorialists beg leave to make the following observations in relation to this claim, and to endeavor to show how little of the true merits of the whole matter was decided in the suit in ejectment of "Doddridge's Lessee vs. Thompson & Wright," at the last term of the Supreme Court, upon which so much has been asked and so much expected.

That suit was determined at common law upon certain agreed facts made and submitted to the court by the plaintiff, Doddridge, and Mr. Wright, the district attorney of the United States, at the time. An agreed case, in which the following points, amongst others, were agreed to: 1st, that, "in particular," the line run by Roberts is the true line between the sources of the aforesaid two rivers; and 2d, that, before the entry was made under which the lessor of the plaintiff claims, "the premises in question were, among other lands, surveyed and offered for sale by the public officers of the United States acting under the authority of the laws of the United States, but were not sold." Upon these two points, and the legal meaning of the different acts of Congress regulating the manner of making military entries and surveys, the judgment of the court was principally founded; but, although the judgment of the court be conclusive as to these agreed facts, admitting them, for the present, to be actually true, which the first is not, as a rule of law by which all the other claims of General McArthur are to be determined, is entirely groundless.

General McArthur made all his entries on November 19, 1810. Before that day 4,756 acres of the land covered by his entries stood on the register's books as land sold, no part of which was afterwards forfeited by the purchasers; besides this, a pretty large quantity stood then on the said books as land sold, which was afterwards forfeited, but how much it amounted to cannot be very easily ascertained; for, at the time of forfeiture, the names of the forfeit purchasers were erased from the plats in the office, and the very great number of purchasers' names on the register's books renders it extremely difficult for private individuals to obtain this information. In addition we might mention a tract of 168 acres of this land which was given by the United States to the State of Ohio for the support of schools. Of the land thus sold, some of it was patented before and some of it after the date of General McArthur's entries; and your memorialists beg leave to state here that the best, not the worst, land is uniformly the first that is sold, where there is but one price and a free choice. So far, then, as these facts go, a very different case is presented to your consideration from the one determined by the Supreme Court in the agreed case of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright.

The right to make locations, by virtue of Virginia military continental land warrants, on the lands between the Little Miami and Scioto rivers is clearly dependent on the will of the national legislature, as settled by the opinion of the Supreme Court in the aforesaid cause. But the government acted, in the exercise of this right, with great moderation and fairness; for, before Ludlow's line was run and marked, the then surveyor general, by virtue of instructions from the Secretary of the Treasury, requested information from General McArthur and Mr. Lucas Sullivant, the two military surveyors, who had the best knowledge of the northerly part of the Virginia military district, to enable him to have a true line run and marked between the sources of these two rivers, that of the Scioto being in the country of the Indian tribes. Upon their information the line was run by Israel Ludlow from the source of the easternmost fork of the Little Miami river, north 20° west, to the Greenville treaty line, and there ended, as it was not thought to be good policy to excite the jealousy of the Indian tribes by extending it through their country to the Scioto river. It must, however, be confessed that Mr. Ludlow, in obeying his instructions, manifested a disposition to curtail the military lands by selecting the right hand fork of the Little Miami river as the main stream instead of the left hand fork, which is both the largest and the longest of the two, by which means about 30,000 acres of land were cut off from the Virginia district lying between these two forks.

From these premises it may be naturally and fairly inferred that so far as sales were made by the agents of the government before November 19, 1810, the day of the date of General McArthur's entries, whether forfeited afterwards or not, were as completely prohibitory of the right to make military entries as an act of Congress prescribing general boundaries for the location of Virginia military warrants; the first being a special act which restrains the right as to any particular spot; the other such a general rule as limits it to a more extensive tract of country. Now, as 4,756 acres, which were never afterwards forfeited, besides a pretty large quantity which was afterwards forfeited, stood on the register's books on, before, and after the said November 19, 1810, as land sold, as well as 168 acres appropriated for schools, the entries made by General McArthur, if this doctrine be sound in law, so far at least as they cover such lands, were illegal and void at the time they were made; and, being illegal and void then, they could not become good and valid afterwards by any accidental circumstances; for it is a maxim of law that whatever is not legal at its origin can never, of itself, become so afterwards.

For the land sold by the United States before the date of General McArthur's entries patents were granted by the President to the respective purchasers, some of them dated before and some of them after the date of his entries; and it is believed that all the grants so issued are older than those to General McArthur on his military claims. He cannot, therefore, recover, in one of these cases, in a court of law; and that the title to the land which was patented before the date of his entries cannot be disturbed by his claims is incontrovertible, as was determined by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Anderson vs. Huffnagle and others. Now, if the grant of the President be conclusive in these cases, does it not follow that the act of the President by the register, as the agent of the government, in selling any part of this land to an individual before the date of General McArthur's entries, is equally conclusive? It appears to follow as a matter of course. These points were not, however, touched in the case of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright, and for an obvious reason—they did not belong to it.

It appears, also, that the different acts of Congress giving further time to purchasers of the public lands to make payment, so far as these lands are embraced, are such recognitions and confirmations of the acts of the register of the Cincinnati land office in selling them as would be equal to an actual prohibition to locate military warrants there.

Besides all this, the government ought not to be disturbed in the sale of the public lands by the intrusion of individuals; nor can it be presumed that, by the acts of Congress of 1807 and 1810, granting further time for making entries and returning surveys on Virginia military warrants, the government really intended that the holders of such warrants should have the right to appropriate land which was surveyed, sold, or offered for sale by its agents, and thereby overturn the validity of its own acts. The presumption must be the very opposite of this; for it is impossible to believe that Congress would willingly arm an enemy for its own injury. The intention of the government is, therefore, decidedly against the claim set up by General McArthur. But why, it may be asked, were these points not made at the trial of the cause of Doddridge vs. Thompson & Wright? This action was determined at common law; and, as these are equitable considerations, it is believed that they could only be urged in a court of equity. And, even admitting that the whole of the agreed facts are true, your memorialists firmly believe that the whole claim set up by General McArthur, including even the land which stood at the date of his entries on the register's books as unsold, fairly and fully examined by a court of equity, would be adjudged to be invalid, as contrary to the obvious intention of Congress.

Your memorialists beg further to draw the attention of the national legislature to the consequences arising from the payment of a very large sum of money to an individual, not only on claims that are entirely groundless, but even on doubtful ones. How greatly, as a precedent, the heedless grant of money tends to degrade the government, increase its expense, and sink the national character! It is certainly, too, very doubtful, even in a case certain, whether the United States, being more able, ought to pay more than an individual under similar circumstances, even on agreed cases. After the fullest investigation, the unsuccessful litigant in such a case could only be required to refund the purchase money, with interest; and the tenant in possession would recover from the successful litigant the value of his improvements. And it does appear to us, and we respectfully state it, that if the United States are inclined to be chivalrously generous, the payment of money had much better be made to the purchaser from the government than to the intruder; for the valuation of these lands, as estimated by the United States commissioners, and the value of their improvements, from the successful litigant, would be a most acceptable consideration to nine-tenths of the occupants of the land—the best sale they could make in these hard times; therefore think of them we pray you. Another consideration for thinking of them is, that all the money paid to them would be reinvested in the purchase and improvement of new and uncultivated portions of the public lands. A contrary mode of payment would operate as a bounty to intrusion—encourage and justify every attempt to extract money from the public coffers.

But that part of the agreed case which is entitled to your first as well as your last consideration is that part of it where it is agreed that, "in particular," the line run by Charles Roberts is a true line between the sources of the Little Miami and Scioto rivers. There is such a thing as giving away causes by agreement, however innocently it may be done, an instance of which your memorialists could easily refer to in Wheaton's reports. The aforesaid agreed case is another; for that Roberts' line is a true line between the sources of these two rivers is utterly without foundation. This assertion is founded on the following facts, to wit:

The line run by Israel Ludlow, at $3\frac{3}{4}$ miles from the source of the right hand fork of the Little Miami is intersected by the left hand fork of this river about 430 poles west from its source, the latter fork being the largest as well as the longest of the two. And neither of them having obtained the name of the Little Miami river, to the exclusion of the other, at any time anterior to the period when Ludlow's line was run, it must follow, agreeably to the rule laid down by the Supreme Court in the said agreed case, that the largest as well as the longest fork must be considered as the true river. This fork, therefore, has its source among the military surveys, about 430 poles east from its intersection with Ludlow's line. The highest point to which the Scioto can be traced is a large wet prairie or swamp, which is, during the wet season, an extensive sheet of water, discharging itself into both the Scioto and Great Miami rivers. At the heads of streams in flat countries this is not uncommon. Where the Scioto leaves the prairie it has a very small, flat channel, and is, excepting in the spring months, entirely dry. This place, upon which Charles Roberts fixed as the source of this river, is 667 poles S. 75° W. from this point, at a small pond on the edge of the prairie, between which two points there is neither channel nor the least appearance of current at any season of the year. The time when Mr. Roberts, with the commissioners of the United States and Virginia, examined this flat country was a very unfavorable one to make the proper examinations. It was in the fall of 1812, when no water could be seen there, excepting in a number of small ponds in the prairie, and when danger was apprehended from roaming parties of hostile Indians. At this time, however, the Virginia commissioners insisted upon it that the left hand fork of the Little Miami river was the main branch.

By running, therefore, a true line from the source of the largest and longest fork of the Little Miami to the point of the wet prairie or swamp where the branch of the Scioto river leaves it, it would pass through the military surveys till it reached about the twentieth mile tree on Ludlow's line, into the lands sold by the United States, dividing them in such a way as to leave about two-fifths on the military and three-fifths on the United States sides of Ludlow's line. But your memorialists respectfully suggest the propriety of having competent men, not residents of the State of Ohio, appointed to make the proper examination of the country, that their report may settle the controversy; and as we enjoy profound peace with the Indian tribes, the proper time and season for its complete examination may be devoted to it; and, as in duty bound, your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

As one of the commissioners on the part of Virginia to ascertain the western boundary of the Virginia military lands in the State of Ohio, I am requested by some of the signers to the above memorial to certify as to the truth of the statements made by the memorialists, (on a comparison of the east and west forks of the Little Miami,) that "the left hand or west fork is the largest as well as the longest of the two;" I therefore do certify that in the month of October, 1812, three commissioners on the part of the United States, and two on the part of Virginia, (the third not attending,) met at the town of Xenia, and proceeded to the headwaters of the Little Miami river for the purpose of fixing on the point of departure of a line to be run to the head or source of the Scioto. On examining the east and west forks of the Little Miami at their junction, the commissioners found some difficulty in ascertaining which afforded the most water. On making experiments, however, with such means as we had, I was of the opinion that the west fork contained the most water, and I believed my colleague and at least one of the United States commissioners were of the same opinion. The commissioners then explored the two forks, as they are called, to their source, when a question arose, which was the longest? This was determined by actual measurement, which decided the question in favor of the west or north fork; to illustrate which, and the different lines, &c., I have laid down the annexed sketch of a draught made from actual measurement.

From the source of the west fork there was found a regular channel to its mouth. At what is called the source of the east fork there are two or three small ponds near each other, no water running from either, one of which was selected as the beginning of Roberts' line. Passing on from the said ponds to where the forks in question unite, according to my recollection, there intervenes a dry glade or prairie, of at least three-quarters of a mile, without the likeness of a channel or water-course; and although the term river appears to be equivocal, I cannot consent to call a plain glade river; therefore, could I have been induced to consider the source of either fork a proper point of departure, according to a true interpretation of the Virginia military reservation, I must have selected the west fork.

Where these forks unite they are far below being rivers; they are small brooks which, together, would not, at the time alluded to, have been sufficient to turn a water grist-mill; and, from the information of every person in the neighborhood, the forks were considered, where they united, as forming the Little Miami river. The commissioners next proceeded to explore the source of the Scioto, and, having so done, it became necessary to decide the points on which the boundary line should run. The prairie at the head of the Scioto is truly described in the memorial, at the lower end of which three small rivulets dripping from the prairie unite, and from thence form a regular channel. This I selected as the head of the Scioto, and the point where the east and west forks unite as the head of the Little Miami, as per line laid down in the draught.

One of the commissioners of the United States agreed, under solemn declarations, that these were the two points he felt bound to establish. The other two commissioners on the part of the United States fixed on the points by which Roberts' line is bounded; and at that time, to my astonishment, my colleague joined them, and the line was directed to be run accordingly. On further reflection, however, my colleague changed his opinion—would not unite in reporting Roberts' as the line which ought to be established, but took broad ground, drawing a line from the mouth of the Little Miami, on the west side, to the head of the Scioto, which he undertook to demonstrate, mathematically, lay between the rivers Scioto and the Little Miami, "according to the true intent and meaning of the compact between the United States and Virginia," &c.

The line which I advocated, and which I contend is in accordance with a fair construction of the military reservation in question, would have made an addition to the military lands of perhaps at least 120,000 acres. I have been thus particular in stating the facts with a view to giving the most accurate information within my recollection on the subject.

RO. PORTERFIELD.

FEBRUARY 8, 1825.

The Committee of the Senate on the Public Lands:

GENTLEMEN: Having been favored with the perusal of two communications lately made to you, the one from Mr. Dun, and the other commencing with the name of Cadwallader Wallace, upon the subject of a bill pending before you in which I am interested, permit me to submit to you a few remarks upon the subject.

The principal object of these communications is to induce a belief that the line run by Roberts from the source of the Little Miami to the source of the Scioto, under the directions of commissioners appointed on the part of the United States to establish the western boundary of the Virginia military district, is not the correct boundary of the district, and to induce Congress to reject the present bill, and to direct the appointment of other commissioners with a view to establish said line more correctly, as they allege.

In a former communication to the committee of the House I took occasion to refer them to the surveys of the public lands at the sources of the said rivers, to correct the misrepresentations made by those who were remonstrating against my claims and the correctness of Roberts' line. You are now, however, furnished with unquestionable evidence by the memorialists themselves as to the correctness of Roberts' line, and the incorrectness of their statements, to wit, a diagram and observations made out and forwarded by General Robert Porterfield at the instance of the memorialists, but which, had they seen, I am confident they would have suppressed. General Porterfield, who was one of the commissioners on the part of Virginia, says: "I have laid down the annexed sketch of a draught made from actual measurement." By this draught you will see that the west or north fork of the Little Miami does not head east of Ludlow's line, as represented by the memorialists, and that a line from the head of said fork to the head of the Scioto would not exclude an acre of the lands claimed by me, as will be seen by reference to the map of these lands furnished by the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

The line run by Roberts has ever since been acknowledged to be the true western boundary of the Virginia military district. It is in fact notoriously so—has often been referred to and recognized by acts of Congress, and the correctness thereof never questioned by any, not even the memorialists themselves, until after they saw the opinion of the court in the case of Doddridge's Lessee vs. Thompson & Wright. They well knew the agreement in that case at the time it was made, and for many years before the decision thereof in the United States court. But until then I presume they never saw any advantage which they might derive from another interference on the part of Congress for the purpose of establishing the western boundary of the Virginia military district. The court say, in their opinion, (report of committee of the House, page 15,) "the appointment of commissioners to meet others to be appointed by Virginia, who were to agree upon and mark the true line, &c., proves uncontestedly that Congress did not suppose the line to be established." I presume that the committee will at once discover that if Congress should at any time interfere, and direct the appointment of commissioners to again examine and establish the western boundary of the Virginia military district, that the same reasons given by the court in the above recited case would, with equal force, apply to all entries which might be made east of the proper boundary prior to such interference on the part of Congress. This will, I trust, sufficiently explain the principal cause why Congress has been pressed by the patriotic memorials of the "land-jobbing fraternity at Chillicothe."

Here permit me to direct your attention to the letter of Mr. Wallace to Benjamin W. Ladd, esq., pages 25, 26, of the report of the House. It exhibits something of the feelings of that "land-jobbing fraternity."

It appears that Mr. Dun has sent on certain letters and papers to prove that he purchased the land warrants some years afterwards; that he had located in 1812 west of Ludlow's line. I never felt disposed to question the fact that he had purchased many of the land warrants which he had located west of Ludlow's line; I only mention the fact, which he himself now proves, that he had located land warrants west of Ludlow's line, whilst, in his memorial, he alleges that he had not, but did respect that line as the western boundary of the Virginia military district.

It is proper that I should observe, that whilst Mr. Dun is thus contending with the shadows of his own imagination, he wholly omits to deny or notice the suggestion contained in my before-mentioned letter, that in all probability he was moved to act in this business to avoid a contingent responsibility which he might be under to B. W. Ladd. I have now reason to be still more confirmed in that opinion.

It is alleged by Mr. Dun that I do not deny the statement of the memorialists as to the sources of these rivers before mentioned. I wish it to be expressly understood that I do deny that the memorial is true in that, or, indeed, in any material allegation; and I am sustained in my denial by the evidence furnished by the memorialists themselves, to wit, that of General Porterfield, as to the source of the Little Miami, and his own letter and statement as to his having made locations west of Ludlow's line, thereby not respecting the line of Ludlow as the western boundary of the said Virginia military district, as stated in the memorial.

With reference to the statement which commences with the name of Mr. Wallace, I have to remark that it is not signed by any person, and, from my knowledge of Mr. Wallace's handwriting, he did not write it. The remarks which I have made on Mr. Dun's statement may serve as to this also, so far as there is any tangible point in it. It is mostly made up of defamation, of which Mr. Dun's letter also greatly participates. The writer admits that Mr. Wallace purchased a part of the land warrants which were located in the name of Ladd west of Ludlow's line, and for a part of which I held a previous obligation or equitable title from Mr. Ladd, but denies that he is at all liable to me or any other person for my interest in said warrants.

I will now return to the forks of the Little Miami, and, as Mr. Dun appears to wish it, I will add my testimony to that of General Porterfield. He states that, "on examining the east and west forks of the Little Miami at their junction, the commissioners found some difficulty in ascertaining which afforded the most water." This was true: it was in the month of October, when the waters were low and the channels of many of the creeks were entirely dry, whilst some small springs afforded streams of water. This was the case at the forks of the Miami; the channel of the east fork was much the largest, whilst the north fork, though at common water much the least, was supplied by springs, and afforded as much water at that time as did the east fork. The length of these two branches was measured, and the north branch found to be a little the longest upon a straight line; not "much the longest, or anything like two miles," or even one mile, but the east fork was found to be the longest as it meandered. It was also found to have much the largest channel and the most numerous branches, and that in fact it was truly the main branch, and was so adjudged to be after due examination by four out of the five commissioners who attended, and were sworn to do impartial justice. This is also well known to be the fact to all who are acquainted with these branches of the Little Miami. To Messrs. Dun and Galloway it is well known, but I do not believe that any of the others who signed the memorial know anything about it.

I fear that I have already intruded too much on the time and patience of the committee, by so long a communication at so late a period of the session; I trust, however, that they will find some apology for it in the documents to which it refers.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

DUNCAN McARTHUR.

18TH CONGRESS.]

No. 442.

[2D SESSION.]

CLAIM TO LAND UNDER A SPANISH GRANT IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 21, 1825.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of Celeste Soileau, and the other heirs of Noel Soileau, deceased, reported:

The petitioners state that some time prior to May 24, 1814, they, as the heirs of Noel Soileau, deceased, filed with the register of the land office at Opelousas their claim for a tract of land of twenty arpents front, by forty in depth, near the Bayou Crocodile, in the county of Opelousas, Louisiana; that they produced evidence clearly showing that the Spanish government had granted said land to their ancestor, and that the title papers had been lost; and, also, that the same had been settled and cultivated more than seventeen years prior to the exhibition of their proofs; that the register and receiver of said land office, on December 30, 1815, reported the claim of the petitioners as one that ought not to be recommended for confirmation; that a part or the whole of said tract has been sold, which is likely to involve them in difficulties; wherefore they pray that the report of the commissioners may be reversed, and that they may be quieted in their claim.

It appears from an exhibit authenticated by V. King, esq., register of the land office at Opelousas, that the commissioners divided the cases submitted to them for decision into eight classes, the last of which embraces the claim of the petitioners. This class, they say, comprises claims which were accompanied by no document of title of date anterior to December 20, 1803, nor proof of occupancy and cultivation prior to April 12, 1814, and ought not, in their opinion, to be confirmed.

Several witnesses were examined by the board, all proving that the tract of land claimed by the petitioners had been "inhabited and cultivated" before December 20, 1803, the date of the surrender of Louisiana under the treaty with France. Pierre Vedrine is reported to have sworn, on May 26, 1814, that his brother, E. Vedrine, having bought the said land about seventeen years before from Mr. Soileau, immediately after settled on it, and inhabited and cultivated it six years, when he sold it back to the said Soileau, who sold it to Hilliare Bordelou, the occupant at the date of the deposition, and that the said Bordelou had occupied the same land for eleven years; also, that Mr. Soileau had obtained from the Spanish government the necessary title papers, which he had heard were lost.

The petitioners allege that either class 5 or 6 ought to have embraced their claim. Class 6, the register and receiver say, will comprise claims for lands on which settlements have been made prior to October 1, 1800, and inhabited and cultivated for three consecutive years from that date by persons over the age of twenty-one years, or the heads of families, and not claiming or holding in their own right any grants or concessions for other lands from the French or Spanish government, ought to be confirmed pursuant to the first section of the act of April 21, 1806, for the quantity claimed, or within the acknowledged or ascertained limits of the same, not exceeding six hundred and forty acres.

The testimony of Pierre Vedrine supports the fact that his brother, Etienne, purchased this land of Noel Soileau in the year 1797; that he resided on it until 1802, when he sold it back to him; that Soileau immediately sold it to H. Bordelou, who occupied it up till 1814, at the time the claim was exhibited for adjustment.

Under the impression that the claim of the petitioners ought to have been reported in class No. 6, a bill confirming them in their title to six hundred and forty acres is herewith reported.

18TH CONGRESS.]No. 443.[2D SESSION.

PRE-EMPTION RIGHTS IN ARKANSAS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 25, 1828.

Mr. WHIPPLE, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of the general assembly of the Territory of Arkansas, reported:

That the petitioners, on account and in consideration of the said Territory being a frontier, and settled (as they say) under circumstances of peculiar hardship, and for the purpose of inducing emigration into said Territory, pray that those persons within the Territory who have settled on the lands of the United States may have granted to them the right to retain those lands by paying for them the minimum or pre-emption price. The committee are unable to perceive, in the reasoning of the legislature of Arkansas, sufficient ground upon which their claim can be properly founded. Nothing has rendered it probable to the committee that the history of the settlement of the Arkansas Territory will furnish a greater number of cases of hardship and suffering than may be found in the history of every frontier settlement bordered by savages which has been made in other portions of the public domain.

That Arkansas is a frontier Territory does not appear a sufficient reason to the committee for granting the prayer of the petition. By the policy heretofore pursued by the government towards the Indian tribes bordering upon and contained within the United States, it is to be presumed that the intention is not ultimately to exterminate that unfortunate race, nor to deprive them of their last hold upon the lands now occupied by them. It is apparent, however, that if the contiguous white population is encouraged by the government to expect that the mere act of settling upon public lands without right or permission will entitle the settlers to the favorable consideration of the government, neither the rights of the United States nor those of the Indians will be respected. The government has already been compelled, by the unauthorized extension of settlements in this Territory, not only to extend the western boundary line of it, but also to treat with the Indians residing within its limits, at a very considerable expense, for the extinguishment of their title to lands therein. It is presumed that, if the frontier settlers respect the rights, and abstain from encroaching on the property of their Indian neighbors, that they will seldom be molested by them. The situation of the United States would seem to negative the proposition of the legislature of Arkansas relative to emigrations. The committee are of opinion that it is not the duty of the general government to adopt special measures calculated to induce the population of the older settlements to emigrate to Arkansas or any other of its Territories. All that the government can be expected to do in this respect is to adopt wise and just regulations respecting its lands, which will be of general application, and afford reasonable facilities to those who may wish to emigrate for the purpose of bettering their condition and the condition of their families. The rest must be left to individual discretion and enterprise. But in addition to the above, it will be found by recurrence to the acts already passed on the subject of pre-emption rights that Arkansas has, in common with other new States and Territories, been liberally provided for. By the act of April 12, 1814, persons who had actually inhabited and cultivated lands in Arkansas, and who had not removed from the Territory, had pre-emption rights secured to them up to that date; and by the act of the last session, May 26, 1824, those persons who had lands within the tract of country ceded by the United States to the Cherokee nation of Indians, to which the right of pre-emption would have attached had the ceded Territory remained in the possession of the government of the United States, are authorized to avail themselves of rights of pre-emption within the district of Lawrence, in said Territory. Thus it will be seen that those persons in the Territory in question, who, for a period of ten or eleven years, have been locating themselves upon the lands of the United States without any right or authority, have been quieted by the government, notwithstanding they have doubtless seized upon many of the best tracts of land in said Territory. The committee are of opinion that the indulgence has been sufficiently extended. They therefore submit the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioner ought not to be granted.

18TH CONGRESS.]No. 444.[2D SESSION.

INDIAN GRANT TO CAPTAIN CARVER.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 28, 1825.

Mr. CAMPBELL, of Ohio, from the Committee on Private Land Claims, to whom were referred the petition and documents of Dr. Samuel Peters, reported:

That the petitioner represents that he has acquired the title to a large tract of country, usually called "Carver's grant," situated on the east side of the Mississippi river, beginning at the Falls of St. Anthony, and running down the margin nearly southeast to the mouth of the Chippewa river; thence eastwardly one hundred miles; thence north one hundred and twenty miles; and thence on a straight line to the beginning. That this grant was made to Captain Jonathan Carver on May 1, 1767, by two chiefs of the tribe of Naudowissies, in consideration of distinguished services rendered by him while in their country; that Captain Carver went to England in the year 1770, and solicited the King to ratify his said grant; that his Majesty and the lords of his council, in the year 1775, granted his petition, and ordered him to return to America and take possession of his land thus conveyed to him; that before the necessary preparations for his departure could be made, the information of the battle of Bunker Hill was received, which entirely frustrated his intended enterprise; that Carver lived overwhelmed with sorrow until January 31, 1780, when he died, leaving a widow and seven children; that in the month of November, in the year 1806, he purchased of the heirs of Carver all their right to the said tract of country, and obtained a deed therefor; that after being baffled in various attempts to obtain from the Indians a recognition of his title, as he had been advised to do by a committee of Congress, he set out from New York in June, 1817, to visit Red Wing and Lefoy, two chiefs residing near the Falls of St. Anthony; that in the autumn of the same year he met with Lefoy, the son of one of the grantors at Prairie du Chien, who declared in the presence of several persons that his father and uncle signed with their marks the conveyance to Carver at the Great Cave, on May 1, 1767; and also that when he could see Red Wing they would make their marks on paper, and thus satisfy Congress; that after Lefoy was gone, Red Wing came to Prairie du Chien, and made a similar declaration; that he afterwards saw three squaws, each about eighty years of age, who asserted they knew Captain Carver, and were at the Great Cave when the sachems made him the grant, and that it is called "Carver's land;" wherefore, the petitioner prays that his title may be confirmed.

The petitioner exhibits in support of his claim a copy of the alleged deed to Captain Carver, unaccompanied, however, by the ordinary proofs of verity. It is substantially as follows: that two chiefs of the Naudowissies, one by the sign of the Snake, and the other by that of the Tortoise, on May 1, 1767, conveyed to Captain Jonathan Carver the tract of country as described in the petition, in return for presents and services, reserving to themselves and their heirs the liberty of hunting and fishing on the lands not improved by the grantee and his heirs. The petitioner also adduces the copy of an instrument purporting to have been executed at Lac Travers, on February 17, 1821, by four Indians, who called themselves chiefs and warriors of the Naudowissie tribe. By this writing they declare a grant was made by their fathers to Captain Carver for a tract of land situated at the Falls of St. Anthony, and that they have a traditional record thereof. These chiefs acknowledged their willingness that the claimants under Carver should be confirmed in their title.

Dr. Peters himself has made oath that he was in London in the year 1774, and was present when Carver solicited of the King a ratification of his title; that after much inquiry and deliberation, the King gave him as a gratuity £1,373 6s. 8d., and ordered him to prepare to proceed to New Orleans in the ensuing June, with 150 men, to take possession of his grant; that when things were in a state of preparation, the news of the battle of Bunker Hill was received, which entirely prohibited the projected voyage. These facts, with many others not supposed by the committee necessary to be detailed, were sworn to by Dr. Peters in the year 1806, at which time the heirs of Carver petitioned Congress, and also again on September 25, 1824.

It is stated to the committee that the original deed which had been left with Dr. Lettsom, of London, was supposed to have been stolen, and is lost, and that the copy which appeared in the first editions of Carver's Journal is correct.

Dr. Peters submits sundry letters which he has at different times received from gentlemen in the Upper Mississippi country. One appears to have been written from the Falls of Black river, on November 10, 1819, by Constant A. Andrews, who states that a few days before he had put in operation a saw-mill 30 or 40 miles from Lake Pepin, in an eastwardly direction; that seven chiefs of the Sioux nation gave him permission to settle and remain there for five years, which term the chief Lefoy extended forever. He informs Dr. Peters that it is certain the chiefs Lefoy, Petit Corbeau, and Red Wing, admit the validity of the grant to Carver. Another correspondent, of the name of Keyes, writes to Dr. Peters from Prairie du Chien, on June 7, 1818, that he had seen Red Wing, who had a distinct recollection of Carver; that this chief informed him the Snake and Tortoise who signed Carver's deed were his uncles, and that he was willing to sanction their acts, although he could not do so without consulting Lefoy and the Little Raven (Petit Corbeau) who outranked him.

Dr. Peters himself makes oath that he had seen Lefoy and Red Wing, the heirs and successors of the two chiefs who gave Carver the deed; that they declared, through an interpreter, that it was good and valid, and the land covered by it the property of Carver, his heirs, and assigns, who were at liberty to take possession thereof in peace and quietness. The foregoing statements are the strongest proof with which the committee has been favored by Dr. Peters; he had not exhibited the deed of conveyance to himself, though it is believed he has one.

This case presents two questions for consideration: 1st. Did the Indians, represented to be chiefs of the Naudowissie tribe, execute the deed under which the petitioner claims? 2d. Assuming the fact that they did, is the government of the United States bound to ratify the claim?

It appears to the committee the proof submitted is of too weak and dubious a character to justify an affirmative answer to the first question. To the conveyance there were no subscribing witness, nor is it known that Carver himself ever made oath to its genuineness. Although he may have petitioned the King for relief in the recognition of his title, there is no evidence that his application was successful; had it been, it is presumable the exhibition of testimony to that effect would not be difficult—the records of England would not be silent.

Dr. Peters states that the committee appointed on the part of the Senate, in 1806, to investigate this case, informed him that if the successors of the Snake and Tortoise chiefs would recognize the claim of Carver, there would be nothing further needed to sustain the petition, and that, in consequence of this information, he spared no pains to obviate the difficulty. As that committee consisted of gentlemen highly respectable for talents, it is difficult to comprehend the reason why such advice was given. Surely, at that period of our government, a mode of acquiring Indian lands different from that now pursued could not have been conceived; it is much more probable Dr. Peters labored under a misapprehension; it seems, however, he visited the Upper Mississippi country for the purpose of obtaining the Indian recognition, and also had agents in his employ. Here, it may be remarked, the testimony he obtained is not accompanied by those solemnities which are deemed indispensable. The statements, with the exception of his own, are not made on oath, and his ought to be excluded from consideration on the ground of interest. The facility with which interested persons or interpreters might practice frauds on the Indians demands the strictest scrutiny; no testimony should be received which does not come in an unquestionable shape. If the four Indians did sign the instrument at Lac Travers, as has been represented, they may possibly have been deceived as to the contents, or been influenced by some improper motive. It is scarcely supposable that they felt themselves bound by a contract made half a century ago. In that region of country the aborigines know too well the value of their territories to dispose of them without a suitable compensation.

Captain Carver's Journal, which was published first in the year 1773, is, as the committee believe, entirely silent in relation to the grant. He records with some degree of minuteness many events which took place about the time the instrument bears date. He describes the country between the Lake Pepin and the Falls of St. Anthony as possessing many natural advantages. Indeed, on the very day it appears to have been given, a council was held at the Big Cave by several tribes of Indians; many chiefs attended, and he delivered a speech which he has communicated to the world. Is it not a little extraordinary that he should have forbore to journalize a fact so interesting to himself, the Indians, and his country? Not knowing precisely when the grant first made its appearance, the committee are in nowise disposed to say they are suspicious of an antedate.

To counteract the facts stated by Dr. Peters and his friends, the committee will refer to a letter addressed by Colonel Leavenworth, July 28, 1821, to the late Commissioner of the General Land Office. The writer informs him that "the Indians do not recognize or acknowledge the grant (Carver's) to be valid. They say they have no knowledge of any such chiefs as those who have signed the grant; that if he did obtain a deed or grant, it was signed by some foolish young men, who were not chiefs, and who were not authorized to make the grant."

Major Long and his party ascended the Mississippi river in the summer of 1823, and had frequent interviews with the Indians and their chiefs. They were at the village of Red Wing, (Aile Rouge,) and whom they generally call Shakea; he lives on the west bank of the river, a short distance above Lake Pepin. The Petit Corbeau (Little Raven) resides ten miles below the mouth of the St. Peter's, and both are distinguished chiefs of the Dacotas. Renville, Major Long's interpreter, whose mother was a squaw, was well acquainted with the Indians on the Mississippi and the rivers tributary, near the Falls of St. Anthony and Lake Pepin. His statements and those of the Indians induced Major Long and the gentlemen associated with him to give the following information: "It is, we believe, clearly proved at present that the land which he (Carver) claimed by virtue of a grant from the Indians was never conveyed to him by them. Attempts were made, in 1817, by two of his grandsons to have the claim recognized by some of the Indians now living; they ascended the river when Major Long did, but were not successful. An instrument purporting to be the original treaty was afterwards sent to Canada, and placed in Renville's hands by those who had an interest in the claim. He was requested to show it and explain its nature to the Indians, and to endeavor to obtain a confirmation of it from them; but, as he informed us, he could find no individual among them who had the least recollection or tradition of this conveyance, or of the names which are purported to have been affixed to the deed. The Indians say there were no chiefs among them of the name." Major Long even doubts whether Carver resided among the Naudowissies five months, and assigns his reasons for the opinion.—(See p. 325, of his journal of 1823.)

Although a negative answer to the first question may seem to render a further discussion unnecessary, the committee have thought proper to offer a few considerations on the second branch of the inquiry. In the case of Johnson against McIntosh, reported in 8 Wheaton, the question is settled beyond controversy. This was an action of ejectment brought for the recovery of lands in the State of Illinois, claimed by the plaintiff under a purchase and conveyance from the Piankeshaw Indians, and held by the defendant under a grant from the United States. Chief Justice Marshal, who delivered the opinion of the court, says, "while the different nations of Europe respected the rights of natives as occupants, they asserted the ultimate dominion to be in themselves, and exercised the power to grant the soil while in the possession of the natives. These grants have been understood by all to convey the title subject to the Indian right of occupancy. This government has always acted on the same principle. While it recognized the Indian right of occupancy, it claimed the fee; and the treaties by which we have acquired the possession of such extensive regions of country involve this principle. The consideration paid appears to be intended merely as an equivalent for the peaceable surrender of the possession."

By the treaty of 1783, which terminated in the revolutionary war, Great Britain ceded to the United States a vast extent of territory in the northwest, to which the Indian title had not been extinguished. The legality of the cession has never been doubted, nor, indeed, can it be. As the "Carver grant" is situated within our limits, as defined by the treaty, we are in the same situation in relation to it in which was the British government. The petitioner shows that Carver solicited a ratification of his claim: this is conclusive evidence that he himself believed it defective. Whether success would have attended his application to the extent of his wishes had hostilities not taken place is mere matter of conjecture. Certainly it is a claim, the acknowledgment of which by this government is not founded in right. The policy which dictated the proclamation of 1763 is unexceptionable. By that measure all private persons were interdicted the liberty of purchasing lands from the Indians. The indulgence of such a privilege, it had been ascertained, conducted to serious difficulties. The most reprehensible frauds had been practiced on the natives. Their avarice and propensity for ardent spirits had been but too successfully addressed. At the time Captain Carver explored the country about the Falls of St. Anthony, this proclamation was recent, and in all probability known to him. With this knowledge of the prudence and caution of his country, he was among the first to offend.

Fully impressed that it would be highly improper to confirm the claim of the petitioner, or that of any other person who may attempt to profit by the grant to Carver, the committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the prayer of the petitioner be not granted.

A copy of a certificate of Dr. J. C. Lettsom, dated LONDON, January 31, 1840.

I certify that the printed copy of a grant of land in America, by two Indian chiefs, to Captain Jonathan Carver, deceased, prefixed to his travels published in London in the year 1782, was literally and accurately copied from a manuscript paper in the possession of his widow, Mary Carver, who declared to me that it was an original grant, conveyed to her husband by the said Indians named in the printed copy, with the fac simile or mark of each Indian.

SAMUEL HARRISON.

A copy of an affidavit of the Reverend S. Peters, LL. D., sent to me from London in 1805.

The Reverend Samuel Peters, LL. D., testifies and says that he was intimately acquainted with Captain Jonathan Carver, in London, from January, 1775, until January 31, 1780, when said Carver died, and was buried in the parish of Shoreditch. That said Carver often showed to the deponent his papers; among them was a deed of a large tract of land lying on the east side of the Mississippi, and adjoining to the Falls of St. Anthony, granted to said Carver by two Indian chiefs, and signed with their signets, one marked in shape of a mud turtle and the other a snake, with Indian ink.

Said Carver told this deponent that said deed was genuine, and was verily signed by the two sachems whose names were annexed to their signets; and that said deed had been laid before his Majesty, Lord Sandwich, and Lord North, &c., &c., who doubted not the authenticity, though without witnesses, because the signets were marked with such ink as was not known to them, and could not be imitated, as they believed, by any person in Christendom. That government promised him the royal ratification of said deed, and had omitted doing so only because of the troubles then existing in America. And this deponent further says, that Dr. Lettsom and this deponent attended said Carver in his last sickness; and this deponent heard said Carver express his hopes that his Majesty would ratify the deed for the good of his children and for the good of the nation; as a settlement in that quarter by the English would secure the friendship and commerce of the Indian tribes to the Western ocean, and tend greatly to civilize an innumerable multitude of innocent and ignorant people. And further the deponent saith not.

Questions proposed to the Reverend Dr. Samuel Peters before the honorable committee from the Senate, to whom was referred the petition of Samuel Harrison, praying the legislature to recognize an Indian deed granting to Captain Jonathan Carver a tract of land near St. Anthony's Falls, in the Mississippi.

Question. How long is it since you knew Captain Jonathan Carver?

Answer. I knew Captain Jonathan Carver in 1755, in the colony of Connecticut.

Question. How long did you know him in England?

Answer. Ever since my second arrival in London, 1774, until January 31, 1780, when he died.

Question. Did you ever see an Indian deed of some land near St. Anthony's Falls given by two sachems to Captain Carver?

Answer. Captain Carver showed to me at London a deed of a tract of land lying eastwardly of St. Anthony's Falls, in A. D. 1775, signed with the signets of two chiefs of the Naudowissie nation, dated at the Great Cave, May 1, A. D. 1767. The signets were a tortoise and a snake.

Question. By whom was it written?

Answer. The names of the two Indian chiefs and the deed were in the handwriting of Captain Carver, without any witnesses to the deed.

Question. Did you ever hear Captain Carver tell the reason why no witnesses were annexed to the deed?

Answer. Yes; I asked him why he had no witnesses to his deed? He replied: I had with me only one Canadian Frenchman and one Indian guide, neither of whom could read or write; and if they had made their marks I must have written their names; therefore I thought the signets of the Indian chiefs would be better proof to the Naudowissie tribe than all other proofs.

Question. Do you not think there is reason to believe the deed was a forgery by Captain Carver; if not, what are your reasons?

Answer. No; because Captain Carver always supported a moral and religious character both in New and Old England; and he told me the signets were verily made by the two sachems. Besides, Captain Carver was a man of great abilities and good sense, which would teach him that he could have no interest or advantage by a forged deed had it been ratified by the British government on his petition in 1770; for the Indians would not have suffered him to take possession of a territory of theirs under a false deed, which Carver well knew; and yet he petitioned the British government to ratify the said Indian deed to him, that he might go and take possession of said land in a legal manner to recompense him for all his dangers, travels, and expense. Further, had Carver known the deed to be a forgery he would have asked for a pecuniary reward for his discoveries instead of asking for a ratification of a false deed, which he knew could never be of any use or benefit to himself or heirs. Carver petitioned for a ratification of his deed that he might go and settle under the crown on the territory, according to his agreement with the Indians in 1767, and did not petition for a pecuniary reward, which he might have received.

Question. Did you ever see any other writing of Captain Carver besides that deed from the Indians to Carver?

Answer. Yes; many.

Question. Does this writing look like Captain Carver's writing?^{*}

Answer. Yes; and I know it to be his handwriting as well as I know my own writing.

Question. Did you know that Captain Carver petitioned the British government for a ratification of an Indian deed to Carver of some land near St. Anthony's Falls?

Answer. In the year 1775 Captain Carver showed me a copy of a petition of his to the British government, praying for a confirmation of a deed from two sachems of the tribes of the Naudowissies of a large tract of land on the east side of the Mississippi river, near St. Anthony's Falls, which was founded on the Indian deed dated May 1, 1767. He begged my influence with Lord North, Lord Dartmouth, and Lord Sandwich, to have it ratified as soon as possible.

Question. Did you advocate Carver's petition with those lords?

^{*} Here was presented a part of a letter to his wife, dated London, September 19, 1770.

Answer. Yes; and but for the Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of America in 1776 his petition would have been granted; and Captain Carver, with myself and others, should have sailed to New Orleans to explore the Mississippi and Missouri rivers to their sources, according to our appointment under the British government.

Question. Did you ever hear that any doubt was entertained by the above-named lords, or any other person in England, respecting the authenticity of the Indian deed to Captain Carver?

Answer. I never did.

Question. Who attended Captain Carver when he died; and what did Carver then say?

Answer. Dr. Lettsom and myself, and Carver committed his papers to Dr. Lettsom, and wished that Lettsom and I might pursue the petition, and secure the ratification of the Indian deed for the benefit of his children and country.

Question. What took place after Captain Carver's death touching the territory?

Answer. Dr. Lettsom hired an engraver to take off the signets of the two Indian chiefs, and had them printed, with the Indian deed to Carver, in the third edition of Carver's Travels; and, in 1783, the merchants of London petitioned Lord Shelburne not to form a peace without saving to the British merchants the right of navigating the Mississippi and its waters for the sake of the peltry and fur trade; and the merchants' petition was granted.

Question. After the peace of 1783 what followed respecting the Mississippi and Carver's claim?

Answer. The merchants of England met and agreed to send a number of persons up the Missouri and the Mississippi to St. Anthony's Falls, (among whom I was one;) and failed only because of the armament against Spain and then against Russia.

Question. Dr. Lettsom says, in his third edition of Carver's Travels, that the original deed was in his possession in 1782; do you know why that original deed has been missing?

Answer. In consequence of a letter from S. Harrison, esq., I applied to Dr. Lettsom, in 1804, for the original deed, in order to send it to Rufus Carver, of Vermont State; and Dr. Lettsom said it had been taken out of his possession by some person not in his power to discover; yet he had reason to believe one of his servants had been hired to steal it, because all other papers belonging to Carver were still with him.

Question. What use could any one make of said Indian deed after stealing it?

Answer. Mr. C. & Co., as I was told by Dr. Lettsom and others, believed the land in question belonged to Martha Carver, who was deemed the only child surviving Captain Carver. On that ground Mr. C. & Co. induced Martha to leave the house of lady Pearson, her benefactrix and foster-mother, who had adopted Martha as her own child, and clandestinely to marry a young sailor, and then prevailed on her and her husband to take letters of administration at Doctor's Commons on Captain Carver's estate. The next day C. & Co. prevailed on Martha and her husband, as administrators, to constitute Mr. C. & Co. their agent, and by the same instrument sold and conveyed all the territory mentioned in the Indian deed to Captain Carver, reserving only one-tenth to Martha and her husband.

Question. After the sale of the land to C. & Co. what was done?

Answer. Mr. C. & Co. sent Mr. Clark with goods and money, nearly the value of £2,000 sterling, to New York; and from thence he was ordered to visit the Naudowissies and procure a new deed of the land to Mr. C. & Co. Clark, on his route towards Niagara, was murdered and robbed, and the murderer was discovered and hanged at Albany.

Question. What effect had the death of Mr. Clark with the claim and deed given to Carver by the two Indian chiefs?

Answer. That sad catastrophe of Mr. Clark proved fatal to Mr. C. & Co., as was believed by Sir Richard Pearson, Dr. Lettsom, Dr. Pearson, and others; for it was their opinion that Mr. Clark had the original deed with him when he was murdered and robbed, and therefore C. & Co. ceased to pursue Carver's claim any further.

Question. Do you know Mr. C. & Co.?

Answer. I know Mr. C. only.

Question. Did you ask Mr. C. for the original deed?

Answer. I asked him for the original deed, and he declined giving me an answer, but said he had laid out above £3,000 sterling for his share in that business of Captain Carver.

CITY OF WASHINGTON, District of Columbia.

Personally appeared the Reverend Dr. Peters, who signed the above answers in my presence, and made oath, on the Holy Evangel of Almighty God, that the answers given to the preceding questions contain, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Sworn March 29, 1806, before

WILLIAM THORNTON, Justice of the Peace.

The affidavit contained on these sheets, and signed Samuel Peters, was, in substance, testified by him before the committee of the Senate appointed on the petition of Samuel Harrison, agent for the heirs of Captain Jona. Carver, and it was sworn to before Mr. Justice Thornton, because the committee conceived they had not authority to administer an oath.

ISRAEL SMITH, Chairman.

WASHINGTON, April 25, 1806.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, February 1, 1819.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Mann arrived here last summer and is still waiting. He found the Indians were willing to give up the lands. He immediately sent to his brother-in-law to get permission to hold a council with them; has not got any return as yet. You have probably got the certificates of D. Campbell, of Lefoy, and Red Wing. I can say but little more. Red Wing, when here, always called on me every day. Says to every one that the land belongs to us, and we must have it. I have made him and his family what little presents I could. Red Wing, when here, soon after you left here, insisted to go to Mr. Balvoine's and tell him the situation of it. He went. Mr. Balvoin asked him, in presence of Captains Hickman and Armstrong, if he knew anything respecting the sale to Carver, or deed being given. He said, he being young, did not recollect anything of any papers, but knew that his two uncles gave Carver the lands. Mr. Balvoin then stopped. Red Wing wished to explain the whole transaction. Mr. Balvoin said he had nothing to do in the business—did not like to have any more said; but observed, you go to give away all your lands—the Americans will be so thick there you cannot live. Red Wing was not well satisfied. It is now as public and as well understood as your newspapers. It is no harm to talk to them now. Times have changed very much since you left here. Mr. Keyes has gone up to —— after timber, in company with G. McNeir; asked Mr. Balvoin's permission. Mr. Balvoin said there was no need of any, as any one could go. When you were here no one could speak; but now we can say as much as we please. Mr. Johnson and I have differed very much since you left here; but we have all given it up, and I now say what I please respecting it.

Mr. Batelle has returned. First day of January was ordered off again; has built him a house on a small island about a mile from Manor, and I am now building a saw-mill in company with him on Yellow river, under a permission I obtained from the commanding officer, which I hope will be a running as soon as you get here, which we are anxiously waiting. For my own part I apprehend no difficulty, if you obtain permission from the Secretary of War, and can make them some presents. The young Indians have asked Lefoy and the other chiefs to try to get two boat loads of goods if possible. I have wrote to Mr Tuthill.

I am, as ever, yours,

CONSTANT A. ANDREWS.

Rev. S. PETERS.

N. B.—Mr. Johnson, in one of our spats, said, if you obtained permission from the Secretary there would be no difficulty.

FALLS, Black River, November 10, 1819.

DEAR SIR: On the second day of November I set a saw-mill a running, not much inferior to any in the United States. This river takes its rise near the northeast corner of your tract. The mill is about thirty or forty miles east from Lake Pepin.

The Sioux very willingly gave us permission to come here. There were seven chiefs in council; Lefoy was not there. The seven gave us five years. Lefoy came soon after, and gave it forever. I am very much pleased with my situation. I was obliged, on account of iron, to go to the prairie once, but was overjoyed on my arrival back, and now regret to leave sight of the mill. There is a fort built at the mouth of St. Peter's river. Perseverance is all that is necessary to get possession now. The commanding officer lets any one go that wishes. Mr. Faribault has gone with his family up a little above Lake Pepin. All mountains have become plains, and all our paths are peace. Your return would be more pleasant than before. We have been expecting you this last summer very much.

You will have no better time than the present to settle your lands. The Indians are now willing. They give up the idea of living here, except the old ones.

If you see Julius, or can send to him, I wish you would urge him to come here, as I cannot do all the business myself.

If the company intend me to take part of the tract, I shall be ready to meet their wishes. If I could get Julius here, I would take time to explore the whole tract.

One thing is certain, that if Lefoy, Curbo, and Red Wing acknowledge the grant to Carver, for my own part I don't see who can get it from us. I am willing to risk a suit on my part for the title, if the United States wish.

I am, as ever, yours,

CONSTANT A. ANDREWS.

Rev. S. PETERS.

N. B.—I shall expect you in the spring. Do bring Julius P. Andrews with you. Here I am happy to live; here I am willing to die.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, June 7, 1818.

REVEREND AND DEAR SIR: Agreeably to your request, I improve the first opportunity of conveying a letter to you by the way of Mackinaw, and with greater pleasure, as I can speak with confidence on the prospect of a speedy acknowledgment of "Carver's purchase" by the chiefs of the Sioux nation. About the first of June, Red Wing (the chief who resides at Lake Pepin) arrived here, and encamped on the island opposite the town. We have had several private interviews with him, and the substance of our intelligence, as interpreted by Mr. Campbell, is as follows:

That the land from St. Anthony's Falls to Lake Pepin (saying Carver's claim) is the property of him and the Little Crow. The chiefs who signed Carver's deed (the Tortoise and Snake) were his uncles. He well remembers Carver and the sale of the land; says he is willing to confirm the deed of his ancestors, but says he must first consult Lefoy and Curbo, who rank before him. He has proceeded up the river, and promised to return with Lefoy the latter end of this month.

He appears to be between 60 and 70 years of age; is reputed by those who know him to be an honest man, and that his word may be depended on.

I regret your absence at this time, as your age corresponding with theirs, and being the immediate representative and acquaintance of Carver, I think would inspire them with greater confidence. However, we will manage as well as we can; and I think you will only have to wait the permission of our government to take possession of your right.

Since you left this place there have been seven arrivals at different times from St. Louis, among whom were Mr. Balvoin, (who is now Indian agent and a civil magistrate,) Colonel McNeir, Major Fowler, Mr.

Shaw, and Lieutenant (now Captain) Hickman and lady. In two hours after his arrival, Colonel Chambers started for St. Louis; whether he will return I do not know. Hickman now commands this post.

On the 25th ultimo I commenced a school in this village; have about thirty scholars, mostly bright and active, at two dollars per month. I board with your old landlord, Mr. Faribault, but have to regret the loss of your company.

I have engaged for three months, and before the expiration of that time I trust your business will be amicably settled with the Indians.

Dear sir, accept my best wishes for your welfare; hope you had a pleasanter passage returning than you had coming out; that you met with a welcome reception among your friends I have no doubt. May God preserve your life for the benefit of mankind; and when the measure of your useful days is filled, the possession of a self-approving conscience will blunt the sting of death, and waft your welcome spirit to realms of endless happiness and peace.

My respects to your son and his amiable family, with whom I had the pleasure of a short acquaintance; likewise to all your friends who feel solicitous of your welfare.

I conclude, by respectfully subscribing myself ever yours to serve,

WILLARD KEYES.

Rev. Dr. S. PETERS.

P. S.—I would just mention to you that Mr. Tuthill's character has been roughly handled, especially since Major Fowler's arrival; they say he has nearly ruined him. I have made no inquiries on the subject, but expect he will have to bear all the blame, whether guilty or not. I hope you will not mention this to his discredit, but, if you please, tear it off.

June 10. Mr. Crooks arrived yesterday, ten days from Mackinaw; said he met you in good health. He proceeds from here to St. Louis. I have nothing new to write, but shall close my letter this morning and forward it by Mr. Palen. Hope you will be kind enough to write when convenient. May the blessings of God attend you.

Yours,

W. KEYES.

JANUARY 3, 1820.

REVEREND AND DEAR SIR: I took your letter from St. Louis post office but a few days since, dated January 22, 1819. The negligence of postmasters in detaining or delaying letters thus almost a year cannot be too severely reprobated. However, at this late period I would congratulate you on your safe arrival among your friends and family. I am highly gratified to discover in your style of writing that persevering principle which has ever marked your conduct, and will, in the end, I hope and trust, ultimately succeed.

During the summer of 1818 I wrote two letters to you, in which I stated what I then had reason to believe, from the information of Mr. Campbell, that your business might be brought to a favorable issue, provided you had the sanction of the general government in writing; otherwise, we could go no further. I remained at Prairie du Chien till May, 1819, when, despairing of hearing from you, and believing it to be of no use to remain longer in this expensive place, I came down the river, and am now in Madison county, State of Illinois. I have been sick several months, but am now gaining health and strength.

Mr. Andrews still perseveres in the Indian country. He has been employed the summer past in building a saw-mill on Black river, the mouth of which is 100 miles above Prairie du Chien. I shall forward the letter I received from you to him by the first opportunity.

I must now conclude by wishing you health and happiness for years to come. Yours, respectfully,

WILLARD KEYES.

Rev. SAMUEL PETERS, LL. D.

The deponent, Samuel Peters, clerk in holy orders, under solemn oath testifies and says: He was in London, A. D. 1774, and saw Captain Jonathan Carver, a native of Canterbury, in the colony of Connecticut, in New England, and knew he had laid a petition before his Majesty George III, praying his Majesty to approve of and ratify a certain deed of a tract of land to himself, heirs, and assigns forever, given by two Indian chiefs of the Naudowissie tribes, dated at the Great Cave on May 1, 1767, lying on the east side of Mississippi river, near the Falls of St. Anthony and Lake Pepin, which could not be approved of or ratified by any governor in any of his Majesty's colonies in North America, because the land laid not within any British colony; and all governors were forbid by a proclamation of King Charles II, dated October 7, 1663.

The deponent saith further, that the King and lords of his council held a court in the month of February, A. D. 1775, on the petition of said Carver, and ordered said Carver, Mr. Iron, Carver's counsellor, learned in the law, and this deponent, to attend, and they obeyed. The court asked said Carver: Is this your petition? Carver answered, yes. The court asked Carver: Is this deed from the two sachems to you genuine, bona fide, upon your honor? Carver answered, yes; genuine, bona fide, upon my honor. After many other questions to Carver, the court asked Mr. Iron: As you have drawn Carver's petition and seen all his papers, have you discovered any reason why the prayer of Carver's petition ought not to be granted? Mr. Iron answered, I have not.

The court then asked this deponent: How long have you known the petitioner and his character? The deponent answered, from A. D. 1754; he was born in Canterbury, in the colony of Connecticut, near where I was born; he is great grandson of John Carver, the first English governor that settled Plymouth, in New England, A. D. 1620. He served as captain under General Lyman, in Connecticut troops against Canada in the war of 1755, and supported a brave character during that war, and ever after a moral character. He served also under General Wolfe in taking Quebec, and under General Amherst in taking Montreal and all Canada. He also greatly suffered at Fort William Henry. After the peace made in 1763, he travelled in the northwestern part of North America with two servants, one a Frenchman, the other a Mohawk, to visit the distant Indians, and discovered a country where no white man had ever been seen before.

Question by the court. Do you believe the Indians would give so much land to Carver for his services and presents? The deponent answered, yes; for the Indians are generous and grateful to their friends and benefactors, and Captain Carver was their friend and benefactor, and made peace between them and other powerful tribes, which was worth to them more than the territory given in their deed; and, besides, the Indians had lands and wilderness enough, and they loved Carver and wanted him to settle and abide with them as a sachem and protector, which he promised to do.

Question by the court. Of what religion is Captain Carver? The deponent answered: He is by profession an Anabaptist, and deemed to be a good and honest man, and worthy of full credit in his native country.

Then was read Lord Amherst's certificate, viz: "I knew Captain Jonathan Carver in America, of the troops from Connecticut, under my command, to be a brave and faithful officer and soldier."

Then Carver, Iron, and this deponent were ordered to retire into another room; after some time, were again called before the court, and the minister said to Captain Carver: His Majesty has graciously granted your petition, and has ordered a gratuity of £1,373 6s. 8d. to be paid to you, and that you prepare to sail for New Orleans next June, and take possession of your territory, with one hundred and fifty men, of whom you will be commander; and his Majesty will provide ships, men, and necessaries to convey you there. Captain Carver received the money; and all things were making ready when news arrived of the battle of Bunker Hill, which put a stop to Carver's return.

After leaving the court, Mr. Iron said to Captain Carver, "I give you joy; this is ratification sufficient of your deed from the two Indian chiefs."

This affidavit is a copy of the affidavit this deponent made before Israel Smith, Abraham Baldwin, and John Smith, all senators in Congress, appointed by the honorable Senate in January, A. D. 1806, a committee to examine and report on the claim and petition of the heirs of Captain Jonathan Carver, in right of their father, who died in London on January 31, 1780, and the committee left it with Samuel Otis, esq., Secretary of the Senate, which was missing (or lost) in February, A. D. 1824, as this deponent has been informed; and so caused the unfavorable report on his petition of November 29, 1823.

SAMUEL PETERS.

Personally appeared before me, John Willing, justice of the peace in and for the county of Bergen, in the State of New Jersey, the Reverend Samuel Peters, LL.D., and made solemn oath that the foregoing deposition is true. Sworn before me, at Jersey City, this 25th day of September, 1824.

JOHN WILLING, Justice of the Peace.

18TH CONGRESS.]

No. 445.

[2D SESSION.

CLAIMS TO LAND BETWEEN THE RIO HONDO AND SABINE RIVERS, IN LOUISIANA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 31, 1825.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, January 28, 1825.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit a copy of the report of the register and receiver of the land district south of Red river, prepared in obedience to an act of March 3, 1823, and an act of May 28, 1824, supplementary thereto.

I have the honor to be your most obedient servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. the PRESIDENT of the Senate.

SOUTHWESTERN LAND DISTRICT, State of Louisiana, Opelousas, November 1, 1824.

The register and receiver of the southwestern land district, in obedience to the act of Congress entitled "An act providing for the execution of the titles to land in that part of the State of Louisiana, situated between the Rio Hondo and the Sabine river," approved March 3, 1823, and to the act supplementary thereto, approved May 26, 1824, respectfully report:

That pursuant to the above recited acts, and for the purpose of carrying the same into effect, they did, after having given suitable notice to claimants of the time and place of their meeting, and the object thereof, repair to the town of Natchitoches, and held their session therein so long as was thought necessary for the performance of the duties in said acts prescribed.

The first object of the board was to ascertain, from the best sources within their reach, the laws and customs of the Spanish province of Texas as regards the granting of lands, &c., the extent of the late neutral territory, together with other information necessary to a satisfactory discharge of the duties imposed upon us; for which purpose, in default of every kind of authentic or public data, we were compelled to have recourse to the knowledge of individuals of respectability, who, from their situation or pursuits, were deemed best capable of throwing lights upon those points of inquiry. Samuel Davenport, José María Mora, José Flores, Gregorio Mora, José Bernardo Guitriez, and Juan Cortes, all of the parish of Natchitoches, to the following interrogatories, under oath, before the board declared as follows. To the first, viz:

"Were you acquainted with the organization of the government of the province of Texas, the powers and jurisdiction of its officers, and its laws, regulations, and customs, previous to December 20, 1803, relative to grants of land, or the alienation of the public domain?"

Answer of Samuel Davenport. "I resided at Nacogdoches, in the province of Texas, early in 1798, where I lived until 1813; enjoyed all the rights and privileges of citizenship; became early acquainted with the internal organization of that government, and the powers of its officers, regulations, and laws, relative to the granting of lands belonging to the royal domain."

Answer of José M. Mora. "I was born and have resided within the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, province of Texas."

Answer of José Flores. "I was, at divers times, procurador of the comun of Nacogdoches, &c., and have put several claimants in possession under the decrees of the lieutenant governors and commandants."

Answer of Gregorio Mora. "That he was employed as procurador in Nacogdoches, and knows the powers of the commandants and lieutenant governors for the granting of lands within that jurisdiction; is an inhabitant of the Adais, and was born in Nacogdoches."

Answer of José Bernardo Guitierrez. "I am a Creole of the province of New St. Andre, one of the internal provinces of Mexico, and resided in the city of Revilla until the year 1811; that I am well acquainted with the laws and regulations that are in force in that province for the granting and disposing of vacant lands; and that they are the same as recognized in the province of Texas, from the titles and grants I have seen."

Answer of John Cortes. "I have no knowledge of the proceedings of the government of Texas relative to grants of land previous to December 20, 1803."

To the second interrogatory, viz:

"Did the lieutenant governors and commandants of Nacogdoches each possess the power of granting lands within their jurisdiction; if so, was there no limitation in the exercise of that right?"

Answer of S. Davenport. "The lieutenant governors and commandants possess the power to grant lands in their jurisdiction; were not limited by superior authority to specific quantities in the exercise of that right; and were only instructed to proportion their grants to the property, force, stock, and merit of the individual asking grants. The procurador del comun was the officer appointed to make inquiry; put the petitioner in possession of the land prayed for, and executed the lieutenant governor's and commandant's orders relative to the premises. It was not uncommon to grant large and extensive tracts of land for vacharies and stock ranges, not only in the province of Texas, but in all the "Las Provincias Internas;" the raising of stock of every description being almost the only pursuit of the inhabitants of that country."

Answer of José M. Mora. "It is to my knowledge that the commandants and lieutenant governors, commanding within the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, had the power to grant lands as far back as the year 1792, at which time a commissioner, having special orders, came with instructions and rules for the granting of lands, which rules and instructions were deposited among the public records, and governed the commandants and lieutenant governors in their grants since that time. Before the year 1792 the commandant of Nacogdoches gave only permits to settle for the purpose of cultivation, or for raising stock, without any other title to the property, which he was not authorized to give. The commandants and lieutenant governors of Nacogdoches were not, to my knowledge, limited, in the granting of lands, to any specific quantity, but it was their duty to proportion the extent of the grants to the circumstances of the individual claiming them, and to that effect the procurador of the comun, named to put the party in possession, inquired into the merits and circumstances of the applicant; and if the grant was for stock farmers, it was customary to extend the concession to two, three, and four leagues square, according to the wants and merits of the claimant."

Answer of José Flores. "That having seen the answer of José María Mora, swears to the same facts; that he has been procurador of the comun of Nacogdoches at divers times, and has put several claimants in possession under the decrees of the lieutenant governors and commandants of Nacogdoches, according to the regulations of the country, and that they are the same which appear in the titles of Pedro Dolet, Jacinta Mora, and others that he has seen."

Answer of Gregorio Mora. "That having seen the answers of José María Mora, swears to the same facts; that he has been employed as procurador in Nacogdoches, and that he knows the powers of the commandants and lieutenant governors for the granting of lands within that jurisdiction."

Answer of Don Juan Cortes. "In the year 1805, and since, I was informed, and knew by experience, that the lieutenant governors and commandants of Nacogdoches were in no respect limited as to the extent of lands they might concede; the quantity was always in proportion to the means of the applicant, and to the nature of the establishment he wished to make. If it was for cultivation and raising animals of all kinds, and the means of the petitioner were known, they would grant to him a concession of from one to four leagues square, on which the claimant was put in possession by the syndic named for that purpose by the commandant, who afterwards approving in writing, 'la prise de posesion,' was considered as amounting to a concession in form."

To the third interrogatory, viz:

"Were grants signed by the commandant or lieutenant governor considered as vesting a perfect title in the claimant, or were they deemed merely inchoate rights to be perfected by a grant or patent under the signature of the governor of the province?"

Answer of Samuel Davenport. "All grants signed and confirmed by the lieutenant governor or commandant, executed in due form, were considered as vesting a complete title in the claimant, without any further process, and were recognized as such by the governor of the province, particularly by Governor Salcedo, in eighteen hundred and ten, when at Nacogdoches, making his provincial visit."

Answer of José M. Mora, confirmed by the testimony of José Flores and Gregorio Mora. "The grants given and signed by the commandants and lieutenant governors of Nacogdoches, made according to the instructions which existed since 1792, were always considered as perfect titles, without any other formality."

Answer of Juan Cortes. "Concessions signed by the lieutenant governor or commandant were always considered as perfect titles."

To the fourth interrogatory, viz:

"What were the limits of the late neutral territory as considered by the ancient authorities of Texas and Louisiana?"

Answer of Samuel Davenport. "The neutral territory comprehended all the tract of country lying east of the Sabine and west of the river Culeashue, Bayou Kisachey, the branch of Red river, called Old river, from the Kisachey up to the mouth of Bayou Don Manuel, southwest of Bayou Don Manuel, Lake Terre Noir, and Aroyo Hondo, and south of Red river, to the northwestern boundary of the State of Louisiana."

Answer of José M. Mora. "I have no other knowledge of the neutral ground, as to its boundaries, but from the Rio Hondo to the Sabine river."

Answer of Gregorio Mora. "In the years of 1794 and 1795 I collected the tithes of all the inhabitants who lived or who had stocks west of the river Culeashue, of the Bayou Kisachey, of the Bayou Don Manuel and Rio Hondo, and south of Red river, which were at that time within the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches and on the line of the province of Louisiana."

Did the Spanish authorities at Nacogdoches exercise jurisdiction over said scope of country?

Answer of Samuel Davenport. "The inhabitants of the neutral territory were recognized as belonging to the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, and the Spanish authorities considered their right of civil jurisdiction not taken away by the arrangement entered into between General Wilkinson and Governor Herrara in the year eighteen hundred and six; yet it was seldom exercised or enforced."

It appears to be a historical fact that the strip of country called the neutral territory was early disputed by the ancient governments of Texas and Louisiana, both alternately assuming and repelling jurisdiction over it; and even after both provinces were united under the dominion of Spain the dispute did not subside, but was kept alive and perpetuated by the jealousies of the local commandants. In this situation the United States acquired Louisiana, and the subject of controversy was not agitated until the convention between General Wilkinson and the Spanish commander, in 1806. A copy of this instrument could not be procured, but we were informed by Mr. John Cortes, a respectable merchant in Natchitoches, who acted as interpreter on that occasion, that nothing was therein decided as to limits; that both parties should withdraw their forces from the neutral ground; and that the question of sovereignty should remain subject to the amicable adjustment of the two superior governments.

To the fifth interrogatory, viz:

"What is the nature of the soil within the late neutral territory; rich and productive, or poor and barren?"

Answer of S. Davenport. "The whole tract of country or land within the neutral territory is pine woods; of course a poor arid soil, with a few exceptions of small quantities to be found adjoining to and on creeks and bayous, and fit for nothing but raising of stock."

Answer of José María Mora. "The soil of the neutral ground is mostly pine hills, and consequently very poor, and fit for nothing but the raising of stock, except some spots on the margin of water-courses, which can be cultivated."

Answer of José Flores and Gregorio Mora. Their answer is the same as that of José María Mora.

Answer of John Cortes. "The quality of the lands in the neutral territory is generally 'pero fertil.'"

To the sixth interrogatory, viz:

"Are the public archives or records of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches yet in that place? If not, what became of them, or how were they disposed of?"

Answer of S. Davenport. "The public archives and records of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches are not at that place at present. They were removed and carried off by Don José Montero in 1812, then commanding at Nacogdoches, when he abandoned that place with his troops at the approach of Guthries and McGee, who were attempting to revolutionize the country; since which time I had never known where those records were deposited, and believe, from circumstances and facts in my knowledge, that the most part of them were destroyed at San Antonio, where said Montero carried them to."

Answer of José M. Mora. "The public records of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches do not exist in that place, and it is to my knowledge that in 1812, when the commandant, Don José Montero, left Nacogdoches with his troops, he took away with him all the records and documents belonging to or concerning the inhabitants of the jurisdiction, and I have never known since what had been done with them."

Answer of John Cortes. "The archives of Nacogdoches were carried off by the royalist authorities at the time of the invasion of 1812. I know that they were never brought back to Nacogdoches, but I am ignorant as to where they now are."

1. Henry Quirk, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, on the Bayou of the Three Prairies, being the upper settlement on said bayou, bounded below by the land of Thomas Wilson, and containing 640 acres, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation on and previous to February 22, 1819. In support thereof the following testimony was taken before the board: "Louis Latham and José María Mora, being sworn separately, say they know the land claimed in the notice; that it is situated as therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, cotton, and tobacco thereon, on and previous to the year 1814; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the tract claimed may include between twenty-five and thirty acres." On this proof the claim, in our opinion, ought to be confirmed. Accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found under the third class.

2. Louis Latham, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed a notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou of the Three Prairies, bounded above by Thomas Wilson and below by William Davidson, and containing 640 acres, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation on and previous to February 22, 1819. In support thereof the following testimony was taken before the board: "Henry Quirk and José María Mora, being sworn, say they know the land claimed; that the same is situated as therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, cotton, tobacco, and wheat thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on said tract may embrace forty acres." Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, it will, in the abstract, be found under the head of "third class."

3. Antonio Le Rue, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed a notice claiming a lot of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the west by John Galmond, and on the east by Francisco Galmond, and containing about one acre, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation on and previous to February 22, 1819. In support of this claim the following testimony was taken before the board: "José María Prosel and José Strother, being sworn, severally say that they know the lot of land claimed in the foregoing notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that said lot was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and those under whom he claims, by living and cultivating vegetables thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; and that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and those under whom he holds, since that period to this time." We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, have classed it with the third class of claims.

4. Francisco Grammon, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, on and previous to February 22, 1819, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the west by the claim of Antonio Le

Rue, on the north and east by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board: "José Maria Prosel and José Strother, being sworn, say they know the land claimed in the foregoing notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the improvements on the land may embrace about six acres." On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, have classed it under the head of "third class of claims."

5. Henry Stoker, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, on and previous to February 22, 1819, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the waters of the Pedro, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board: "Louis Latham and John Lum, being each sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Henry Stoker in his foregoing notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn and cotton thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on said tract embrace between 20 and 25 acres." On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found under the head of "third class of claims."

6. Latney Parrot, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, on and previous to February 22, 1819, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Bayou Buena Vista, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board: "Louis Latham and John Lum, being each sworn, say that they knew the land claimed by Latney Parrot in his above notice; that the same is situated as is therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing cotton and corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabiting, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements thereon embrace between 10 and 15 acres." We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found under the head of "third class of claims."

7. John Lum, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Pedro and Bayou Buena Vista, bounded on the north by Bodia Flores, west by Laplace, south by vacant land, on the eastern boundary partly by Andrew Chamard, and containing 640 acres. In support thereof the following testimony was taken before the board: "Latney Parrot and Louis Latham, being each sworn, say that they know the land claimed by John Lum in his above notice; that the same is situated as is therein described; that the said tract was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing cotton and corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the tract claimed includes between 8 and 10 acres." We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed it with the third class of claims.

8. John Waddill, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east side of the river Sabine, bounded by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support thereof the following testimony was taken before the board, and filed: "Absalon I. Winfree and Jacob Winfree, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by John Waddill in his above notice; that the same is situated as is therein described; that the said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant and Henry Stoker, to whom said land was conveyed, since that period to the present time; and that the improvements on the tract embrace about 20 acres.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class of claims."

9. Joel Leakey, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Négreite, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board: "Jacob Winfree and Jesse Yocom, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Joel Leakey in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that the said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of the opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed it with the third class of claims.

10. Samuel Norriss, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded on the west by François Porrio, south by a lake, east by Leonard Dyson, and containing 489 acres. In support of this claim the following testimony was taken before the board: "Leonard Dyson and Peter Murphy, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Samuel Norriss in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn and tobacco thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the tract claimed include about fifteen acres."

We are of the opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed it under the head of third class of claims.

11. Hugh McNeley, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides of a branch of the Bayou Toro, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. He also offered the following testimony, taken before the board, in support thereof: "Joel Leakey and Jacob Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Hugh McNeley in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the improvements on the tract claimed may embrace about ten acres."

On this proof we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found classed with the third class of claims.

12. Christopher Anthony, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Négreite, below the Lewis fork of said bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board: "Jesse Yocom and Jacob Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Christopher Anthony in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he claims, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that the said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and by those under whom he claims, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements thereon at this time embrace about thirty-five acres."

On this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found classed with the "third class of claims."

13. Samuel Norriss, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Peter Murphy, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded on the east by Baptiste Porrio and children, south by vacant land, west by James Pheras, and containing 296.66 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Leonard Dyson and Peter Murphy, being sworn, say that they know the tract of land claimed by Samuel Norriss, as assignee of Peter Murphy, in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that the said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or those under whom he claims, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, or those under whom he claims, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the tract claimed at this time embraces about five acres."

On this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found among the "third class of claims."

14. Leonard Dyson, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Edward McLaughlin, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of Red river, on the southeast side of a cut-off which forms Norriss' island, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Norriss and Peter Murphy, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Leonard Dyson, as assignee of Edward McLaughlin, and described in his above notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and those under whom he holds, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the tract claimed at this time includes about five acres."

On this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and have, consequently, in the abstract, classed it with the "third class of claims."

15. Nathaniel Norriss, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on what is called the Peachtree bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Norriss and Jean Baptiste Poirét, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Nathaniel Norriss in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; and said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and those under whom he claims, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that the said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, or by those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed may include about six acres."

On this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed it with the "third class of claims."

16. Nathaniel Norriss and brothers, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Peachtree bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Norriss and Jean Baptiste Poirét, being severally sworn, say that they know the tract of land claimed by Nathaniel Norriss and brothers in their above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that the said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimants, by their living and cultivating corn, tobacco, and cotton thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimants since that period to the present time; and that the claimants' improvements on the land claimed at this time embrace about fifteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, consequently it will be found with the "third class of claims."

17. Thomas Hicks, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in the Hickory Woods, within a mile of the Sabine river, about three miles below the mouth of the Négreite bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Joel Leakey and Jesse Yocom, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Thomas Hicks in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he holds, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and consequently, in the abstract, have classed it with the "third class of claims."

18. Leonard Dyson, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded north by Henry Stockman, northwest by Samuel Norriss, south by vacant land, and east by land claimed by Baptiste Porro, sr., containing 575 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Norriss and John McLaughlin, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Leonard Dyson in his notice No. 18; that the same is situated as is therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about five acres."

We are of opinion, from the proof adduced, that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will be found among the "third class."

19. Baptiste Poiré, jr., brothers and sisters, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded northwest by Samuel Norriss, and on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres; in support of which the following testimony taken before the board was filed:

"Leonard Dyson and John McLaughlin, being sworn, say that they know the tract of land claimed by Baptiste Poiré, jr., his brothers and sisters, in his above notice No. 19; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimants, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimants since that period to the present time; and that the claimants' improvements on the land claimed embrace about seven acres."

We are of opinion, from the proof adduced, that this claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will appear among the "third class."

20. Baptiste Poiré, sr., of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on one of the lakes of Red river, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 351.80 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor, dated October 30, 1823, filed with his notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Peter Murphy and John McLaughlin, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Baptiste Poiré, sr., in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and cultivating tobacco and fruit trees thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about two acres."

We are of opinion, from the proof adduced, that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will appear under the head of "third class."

21. Moses Robison, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, on an island, and bounded as described in a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated October 27, 1823, filed with the notice, and containing 435½ acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Pharis and Peter Murphy, being sworn, say that they know the tract of land claimed by Moses Robison in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, cultivated, and inhabited by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

We are of opinion, from the proof adduced, that the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class of claims."

22. Peter Stockman, of the county of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded on all sides by vacant land, except on the west by land claimed by Baptiste Poiré, sen., and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Norriss and John McLaughlin, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Peter Stockman in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about six acres."

We are of opinion, from the proof adduced, that this claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will be found with the "third class of claims."

23. Jacob Winfree, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in the Hickory Woods, on a branch of the Négrete bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"George Stewart and John Waddill, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Jacob Winfree in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

It is admitted the tract here claimed was not "inhabited" by the claimant on or prior to February 22, 1819; and the question now arises, is this circumstance essential to the validity of his right? It is shown that the land was actually cultivated on that day, and prior thereto, by the claimant himself; and we think that, notwithstanding the fact of his living with his family at a neighbor's, perhaps for temporary protection or convenience, he would have been entitled, under the government at that time exercising the sovereign power over that tract of country, to a title. We are of opinion, therefore, this claim ought to be confirmed, and have, in the abstract, classed it with the "third class."

24. James Pharis, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded on the northwest by Moses Robison, on the south by vacant land, on the southeast by Samuel Norriss, and containing 640 acres. Supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Moses Robison and Peter Murphy, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Pharis in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said tract of land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time, and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and, in consequence, have reported it in the abstract with the "third class."

25. José Rues, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Santa Barbara, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Louis Lathan and A. Delaserda, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about seven acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; therefore, in the abstract, it will appear under the head of "third class."

26. Atonasio Delaserda, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the north by José Ignacio Estrother, and containing 640 acres. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Peter Patterson and José Ignacio Estrother, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Atonasio Delaserda in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; therefore, in the abstract, it will appear under the head of "third class."

27. José Estrader, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the south by Atonasio Delaserda, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Peter Patterson and Atonasio Delaserda, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by José Estrader in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by the person from whom he claims, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and by the person from whom he claims, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; therefore, in the abstract, it will appear under the head of "third class."

28. Peter Patterson, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the northeast by the improvement of John Maximillien, and on all other sides by vacant land, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Lewis Latham and John Maximillien, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Peter Patterson in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and consequently it will appear, in the abstract, under the head of "third class."

29. Daniel Waltman, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the east by the line of S. Davenport, on all other sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Lewis Latham and John Maximillien, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Daniel Waltman in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he holds, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said cultivation, occupation, and habitation has been continued by the claimant, and others holding under him, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about seventeen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and consequently it will appear, in the abstract, under the head of "third class."

30. John Maximilien, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the west by Peter Patterson, on all other sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Lewis Latham and Peter Patterson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Maximilien in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living, and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and consequently it will appear, in the abstract, under the head of "third class."

31. Henry Stockman, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded south by Leonard Dyson, and Bte. Poiré, sr., and containing 500 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, deputy surveyor of the United States, dated October 20, 1823, and filed with the notice. In support of this claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"John McLaughlin and Peter Murphy, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Henry Stockman in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; it will consequently be classed, in the abstract, with the "third class" of claims.

32. John Gordon, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east side of the river Sabine, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Norriss and Nathaniel Norriss, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Gordon in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land embraces about seven acres."

Believing the testimony sufficient, we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and, accordingly, it will be reported, in the abstract, with the "third class of claims."

33. John Armstrong, assignee of Charles Curtis, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Cass lake, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Leonard Dyson and John McDaniel, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Armstrong, assignee, in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by him, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time by the claimant, and those under whom he holds; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and accordingly, in the abstract, it will appear with the "third class of claims."

34. Cézare Wallace, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a small branch emptying into a lake known as Cass lake, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Leonard Dyson and John Armstrong, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Cézare Wallace in his notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time by the claimant; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and it will, in the abstract, appear under the head of "third class."

35. James Kirkham, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Potrero, bounded northeast and south by vacant land, on the west by name unknown, and containing 640 acres. The following testimony was taken before the board:

"John Laplace and Robert Sharp, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Kirkham in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

From this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and, in the abstract, it will appear under the head of "third class."

36. John Laplace, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the south side of the road leading from Natchitoches to Gaines' Ferry, about three miles beyond the Adais from Natchitoches, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Kirkham and Robert Sharp, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Laplace in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to this time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

On this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will appear under the head of "third class."

37. James Kirkham, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Thomas Cartwright, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Chacon bayou, bounded on the northwest by Henry Sheridan, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board, in addition to a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, under date September 26, 1823, which is filed with the notice:

"Henry Stoker and Robert Sharp, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Kirkham, assignee, in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant's assignor, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about fifteen acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will appear with the "third class of claims."

38. Benjamin Winfree, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a branch of the Bayou Négreite, bounded on the northwest by Jacob Winfree, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The following testimony was taken before the board in support thereof:

"John Waddill and George Stewart, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Benjamin Winfree in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about four acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will appear with the claims of the "third class."

39. Marian Sanchez, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Pedro; bounded on all sides by vacant land, about one mile below the crossing of the main road, containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"James Kirkham and Henry Stoker, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Marian Sanchez in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the said land embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion, from the testimony, that this claim ought to be confirmed, and have, in the abstract, reported it in the "third class."

40. Benjamin Morris, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by purchase, founded on occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the headwaters of the Toro, in the Hickory Woods, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board and filed:

"Jacob Winfree and George Stewart, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Benjamin Morris in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he claims, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and have, in the abstract, reported it in the "third class."

41. Absalom J. Winfree, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the headwaters of the Toro, in the Hickory Woods, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Jesse Yocom and Jacob Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Absalom J. Winfree in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those from whom he claims, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time by the claimant; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about four acres. N. B.—Yocom knows nothing of the subsequent improvement."

We are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will be found with claims of the "third class."

42. Henry Stoker, assignee of Alexander Calhoun, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the dividing ridge between Red river and the Sabine, bounded on the west by Mr.

Davenport, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"James Kirkham and Marian Sanchez, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Henry Stoker, assignee of Alexander Calhoun, in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant's assignor, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and by those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about forty acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have classed it, in the abstract, with the "third class."

43. Badio Flores, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the town of the Adaïs; bounded on the south by John Lum, northeast by Andrew Chamard, north by Augustin T. San Miguel, and containing sixty-three acres, agreeable to a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., United States deputy surveyor, dated September 30, 1823, and filed with the notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Marian Sanchez and James Kirkham, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Badio Flores in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have classed it, in the abstract, with claims of the "third class."

44. Thomas Arthur, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Négreite bayou, called the Long Prairie bayou, near the Hickory Woods, bounded on the south by Jacob F. Winfree, on all other sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Waddill and Absalom Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Thomas Arthur in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied and cultivated by the claimant, by his growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time by the claimant; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres; that the claimant has lived on the land claimed since the winter of 1819 and 1820."

Though it is not proved that the land claimed was actually inhabited on February 22, 1819, yet we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and have therefore classed it with the "third class" in the abstract.—(See No. 23.)

45. Andrés Galindo, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of Bayou See, bounded south by Simon Montalgo, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Peter Patterson and Guillaume Bébé, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Andrés Galindo in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about five acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have, in the abstract, classed it with the "third class."

46. François Poirét and Moses Robison, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded east by Samuel Norris, south by the lakes, west by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John McLaughlin and Leonard Dyson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by François Poirét and Moses Robison in their above notice; that the said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimants, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimants since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about three acres." The notice is signed by F. Poirét.

Moses Robison, one of the claimants here, heretofore (No. 21) in his own right before this board, claimed a tract of land, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, which was recommended for confirmation; and we believe it was repugnant to the policy and contrary to the practice of the former Spanish government to concede an additional tract for purposes of cultivation without the applicant's augmentation of force or increase of means, or other favorable circumstances, were urged and shown. This has not been attempted here, and cannot be inferred. We are therefore of opinion that this claim, to the extent of Robison's interest or moiety, ought to be rejected, and that François Poirét's claim for the other moiety, or 320 acres, ought to be confirmed to him; and consequently, in the abstract, the claim to that extent, in favor of François Poirét, will appear under the head of "third class."

47. Michael Early, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou San Miguel, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Peter Patterson and John Maximillian, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Michael Early in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he holds, by their living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about forty acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will appear under the head of "third class."

48. John Armstrong, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of James Anderson, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the west side of Red river, on Anderson's island, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John McLaughlin and Lemuel Dyson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Armstrong, assignee, &c., in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he claims, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract it will appear under the head of "third class."

49. David Case, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Euny, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, now in the possession of John Euny, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Maximillien and Guillaume Bébé, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by David Case, assignee, &c., in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by those under whom he holds, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twelve acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and have, in the abstract, reported it under the head of "third class."

50. Henry Berger, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Cane bayou, about six miles west of Natchitoches, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"John Smith and James Kirkham, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Henry Berger in his notice No. 50; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embraces about fifty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have, in the abstract, reported it under the head of "third class."

51. Henry Berger, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Adaize, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"John Smith and James Kirkham, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Henry Berger in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, through his agent, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that it was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated since that period by the claimant, through his agent, up to the year 1821, but whether since, deponents knows not; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed may include about seven acres."

We have already recommended the confirmation of a claim, No. 50, in favor of the present applicant, founded on occupation, habitation, and cultivation; and in conformity to the principles recognized in the claim of Moses Robison, No. 46, we are bound to say, in our opinion, that this claim ought not to be confirmed, and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed it under the head of "fourth class."

52. Rebecca McLaughlin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest branch of Red river, bounded on the east by Bte. Poirét, junior, brothers and sisters, south and west by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"John McLaughlin, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Rebecca McLaughlin in her above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by her father, to whom she succeeds as heir, on and previous to February 22, 1819, and knows not whether the claimant has since occupied, cultivated, or inhabited the land."

The testimony is too vague and unsatisfactory to justify a favorable report. With regard to the cultivation, the witness' recollection is clear up to February, 1819, but knows not whether the father, from whom the claimant derives title, was yet dead. On the whole, we cannot but give it as our opinion that this claim ought not to be confirmed, and have, in the abstract, reported it under the head of "fourth class."

53. André Valentine of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Marian Sanchez, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Sacatchie near the road leading from Natchitoches to Anondaco, bounded by vacant lands, and containing 649 acres; claimed by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation made by said Marian Sanchez on and previous to September 22, 1819, and since that period by the claimant, to whom Sanchez conveyed his right. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"André Adley and Baptiste Prudhomme, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by André Valentine in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Marian Sanchez, under whom the claimant holds, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said land has been inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant since up to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about fifteen acres."

Marian Sanchez, assignor of the land here claimed, has, before this board, filed his notice (No. 39) claiming, in his own right, another tract, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, on and prior to February 22, 1819, which facts being proven, we recommended a confirmation of his claim. Without attempting to reconcile testimony so contradictory as that case and this presents, we will even admit that Sanchez occupied both tracts at the date of the treaty between the United States and Spain; yet, according to the regulations of the Spanish government, which we are bound to recognize, its authorities in Texas would only have confirmed to him one of them, except on a showing that his means, pursuits, or force, required a deviation from the established practice, which is—not pretended. The only difficulty then is, which claim ought to be preferred—that or this? The one he has retained and now occupies and cultivates, or the one he has conveyed to the present claimant? We think where legal rights are exactly balanced, motives of public policy must decide; and according to its dictates, we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

54. Firmin Poissot, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Lapoint, in the district of Bayou Pierre, bounded by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"André Valentine and André Adley, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Firmin Poissot in his above notice; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, (through his agent,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, habitation, and cultivation, has been continued by the claimant (through his agent) since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

55. André Adley, Baptiste Prudhomme, and José Lochobeach, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and inhabitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Bayou de Cie, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres, agreeably to a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated September 18, 1823, and filed with the notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"André Valentine and Antoine Adley, being sworn, severally say, they know the land claimed in the above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimants, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimants since that period to the present time; and that the claimants' improvements embrace about fifteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "the third class of claims."

56. Cézare Wallace, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, under a purchase at the sale of the estate of Pierre Wallace, deceased, who held, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on a small bayou which empties into Lake Terre Noir, bounded on the east by Thomas Wallace, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"John McLaughlin and Leonard Dyson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Cézare Wallace in his above notice; that said land is lying and situated as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Pierre Wallace, under whom the claimant holds, by said Pierre living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the said Pierre Wallace and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about five acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

57. André Valentine, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the waters of Bayou de Cei, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"André Adley and Baptiste Prudhomme, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by André Valentine in his above notice; that said land is lying and situated as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twelve acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

58. James Shackleford, of the parish of Natchitoches, as assignee of Henry Stockman, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on Spring bayou, about two miles from Laurel Spring, about eight miles west of the town of Natchitoches, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Henry Stockman and Peter Stockman, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by James Shackleford in his notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant's assignor, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, or by him under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about four acres."

Henry Stockman, from whom the claimant derives his right, has claimed another tract, (No. 31,) by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, which claim has been recommended for confirmation.

Our remarks in the claim of André Valentine are strictly applicable to this; and for the reasons therein given, we are bound to say that this claim ought not to be confirmed; and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed this claim with the "fourth class."—(See No. 53.)

59. Edmund Quirk, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou La Nan, about eight miles from the Sabine river, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres, supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Peter Patterson and Jesse Yocom, being sworn, each says he knows the tract of land claimed by Edmund Quirk in his above notice; that said tract of land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

60. Wm. Quirk, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the road leading from Natchitoches to Gaines' Ferry, on the Sabine, about seven miles from the Sabine river, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jesse Yocom and John Sheridan, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by William Quirk in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about nine acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

61. Manuel Chérino, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on Bayou Pedro, bounded by vacant land on all sides, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken:

"Marian Sanchez and John Moran, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Manuel Chérino in his above notice; that said land is lying and situated as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by his father, from whom he derives title, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

62. Guillaume Bébé, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou See, in the settlement called the Cavasas, bounded on the east by land occupied by Leno Padea, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Peter Patterson and Marian Sanchez, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Guillaume Bébé in his notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

63. Widow La Leno Padea, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou See, between Guillaume Bébé below and David Waltman above, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Guillaume Bébé and Peter Patterson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by La Leno Padea in her above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time, and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

64. John Freeman, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of Bayou St. John, bounded on the east by Yarberry Spring branch, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Henry Stockman and Peter Stockman, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by John Freeman in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class."

65. Rosimo Gagnié, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Bayou Labonne Chasse, bounded north by Thomas Wallace, east and west by vacant land, south by Pierre Roblot, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Baptiste Prudhomme and André Adley, being severally sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Rosimo Gagnié in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class" of claims.

66. James Shackleford, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Stein, who purchased of Hopkins Sibley, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called the Laurel Springs, about nine miles from the town of Natchitoches, and on the road from that place to Gaines' Ferry, on the Sabine, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Smith and Jeremiah Morrell, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by James Shackleford in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Hopkins Sibley, from whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

67. Eli Smith, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Bayou Kisatchie, bounded by Portevent Bloodworth on one side and Joseph Grubbs on the other, and containing 640 acres. Before the board the following testimony was taken in support thereof:

"Jeremiah Wrinkles and David Morrell, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Eli Smith in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

68. David Wrinkles, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of Bayou Kisatchie, adjoining to land claimed by Portevent Bloodworth on one side and by Placide Bossier on the other, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jeremiah Morrell and Eli Smith, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by David Wrinkles in his above notice; that said land is lying and situated as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

69. John Montgomery, jr., of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Bayou Kisatchie, near its mouth, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Jeremiah Morrell and Eli Smith, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Montgomery, jr., in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

70. Eli Smith, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Archibald Thompson, who purchased of Gethro Butler, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the east side of Bayou Centerburb, and near its junction with Middle creek; bounded, as is supposed, on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Jeremiah Morrell and James M. Gibson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Eli Smith in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by those under whom he claims, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, or by those under whom he claims, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

71. John Sheridan, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Pedro Guiardo, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in a Spanish village about sixteen miles southwest of the town of Natchitoches, bounded southeast by Henry Sheridan, northeast by John Sibley's, north by a concession in favor of De Lion, west by J. Tate, and containing 256.40 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated August 29, 1823, and filed with the notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Lum and Henry Earles, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Sheridan in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, or by the person under whom he holds, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and by those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

72. James Tate, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of one Cubaza, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in a Spanish village about sixteen miles southwest of the town of Natchitoches, bounded southeast by Bodio Flores, west by vacant land, northwest by land of the claimant, and north by a road leading from Natchitoches to the Sabine, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"John Lum and Henry Earles, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Tate in his above notice ; that the said land is situated and lying as is therein described ; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by one Cubaza, from whom the claimant purchased, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819 ; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Cubaza and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

73. James Tate, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Maria Moara, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in a Spanish village about sixteen miles southwest from the town of Natchitoches, bounded on the southeast by the claimant, southwest by vacant land, northwest unknown, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"John Lum and Henry Earles, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Tate in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Maria Moara, from whom claimant purchased, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819 ; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Moara and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land embraces about two acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

74. James Tate, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Pablo Libras, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in a Spanish village about sixteen miles from the town of Natchitoches, bounded southeast by other lands of the claimant, southwest by a small bayou, northwest by the claimant, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"John Lum and Henry Earles, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Tate in his above notice ; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described ; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the family of Antonio Castro, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819 ; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time by said family, Pablo Libras, and the claimant ; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about two acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

75. Maria Conception de Lion, assignee of Mariano Rodriguez, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in a Spanish village, bounded northwest by Antonio Rodriguez, northeast by the main road leading from Natchitoches to the Sabine, about one quarter of a mile from the Bayou Adais, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"John Sheridan and Seledon Langoria, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Maria Conception de Lion in her above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Mariano Rodriguez, from whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and before February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

76. Antonia Rodriguez, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in a Spanish village about sixteen miles from the town of Natchitoches; bounded on the northeast by the road from that place to Gaines' Ferry, on the Sabine, on the southeast by Maria Conception de Lion, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing sixty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Lum and John Sheridan, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Antonia Rodriguez in her above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

77. Asa Beekum, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Maria San Miguel, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated about sixteen miles from the town of Natchitoches, near a Spanish village; bounded on the southeast by an old road, all other sides unknown, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Lum and John Sheridan, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Asa Beekum in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Maria San Miguel, from whom the claimant holds, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Maria and the claimant, with the exception of one year, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about four acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the claims of the third class.

78. James M. Gibson, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of J. Montgomery, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the main road from Natchitoches to Opelousas, on the waters of McKimm's creek, bounded on all sides by public land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Eli Smith and Dred Smith, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by J. M. Gibson in his above notice; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by the persons under whom he claims, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, or by the persons under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have in the abstract classed it with claims of the third class.

79. Charles Noyrit, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated in the Isle à Beaulieu, fronting on Red river, bounded below by Beaulieu, above by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Pierre Laffitt and Valentine Andre, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Charles Noyrit in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about two acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have in the abstract classed it with claims of the third class.

80. François Prudhomme, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou of the Prairie Winsy, bounded above by land of Pierre Dolet, and below by François Rambert, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

Andrew Valentine and Pierre Laffitt, being sworn, severally say "that they know the land claimed by François Prudhomme in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twelve acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and have in the abstract classed it with claims of the third class.

81. Alexander Germieul, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at "Isle Beaulieu, bounded on one side by Charles Noyrit, on the other by vacant land, and containing 640 acres." The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

Andre Valentine and Pierre Laffitt, being sworn, say "that they know the land claimed by Alexander Germieul in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement embraces about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

82. Pierre Laffitt, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of a grant signed by the lieutenant governor of Nacogdoches, bearing date June 12, 1784, in favor of Pierre and Baptiste Laffitt, and by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation for more than thirty years, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated between the Bayou Nadier to that named Nabancha, (the first now called Bayou Pierre and the last Nanticole,) containing 11,393.89 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, deputy surveyor of the United States, dated September 6, 1823. The claim is supported by the original grant filed with the notice, of which the following is a translation:

"Don Antonio Gil y Barvo, captain of militia and lieutenant governor, military and political, of the town of Nacogdoches and its jurisdiction, in consequence of the prayer of Pierre and Baptiste Laffitt, inhabitants of this jurisdiction of Texas, with the approbation of their father, Paul Bouett Laffitt, inhabitant of said province, and residing for many years in the place called the Bayou Pierre, the route which strangers pass through with merchandise for the Indian trade, and to furnish nations at war with this province, that they may be granted lands in said place, with the necessary extension for the pasturing and breeding of cattle and horses of every description, obliging themselves, with the commission of the superior authority, to guard, watch, and impede strangers from passing without a legal passport from the territorial magistrate of said province: in virtue of which and in consideration of the above, and being well informed of the good conduct of the petitioners, I have agreed on giving them possession of the said place and the lands they solicit, charging them to proceed in a legal manner as regards their undertaking. Signed at Nacogdoches, June 12, 1784. Signed Antonio Gil y Barvo. Let it be well understood that said concession of land is granted from the bayou that is named Nadier to that named Nabancha, for the pasturing of their stock, which grant I hope will meet the approbation of the governor of this province. In testimony, &c. Gil y Barvo."

The following testimony taken before the board was also filed:

Andre Valentine and François Prudhomme, being severally sworn, say "that they know the land claimed by Pierre Laffit in his above notice; that the said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated more than thirty years since by Pierre Laffit, the grantee, who then had his cattle and family thereon; and that said land has been constantly and uninterruptedly inhabited, cultivated, and occupied by the claimant since to the present day."

The extent of land here claimed is less than a moiety of the whole conceded.

The document relied upon was merely a permission to settle, requiring the approbation of the governor to make the alienation complete. By what act or form this approval was expressed we know not; it may have been by a general confirmatory act, embracing permission for preceding years, and made at each visit to the jurisdiction under his government; it may have been usual to express it by his paraph in the margin of the original record, or it is possible the superior sanction may have been implied from his total silence on the subject. In either case, considering the length of time the claimant has been in possession, joined to the fact proven by certain answers preceding this report, that the records of Nacogdoches had been forcibly carried off and were no longer to be found, we think that proof of the fact of approval ought not now to be required of the claimant. We think this claim would have been considered valid under the government from which it emanated, and are therefore of opinion it ought to be confirmed; and have accordingly, in the abstract, classed it with claims of the "second class."

83. Hugh McGuffin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of Bayou Pedro, bounded on the southwest by James Kirkham, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Lum and Jared Cable, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Hugh McGuffin in his notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by the person from whom he holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued since that period to the present time by the claimant; and that his improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

84. Harriet W. M. Cable, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of J. Cable, who purchased of James Dill, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on a bayou known by the name of Young's bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Lum and Hugh McGuffin, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Harriet W. M. Cable in her above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, or by the person from whom she holds, by their living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and by the person from whom she holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

85. Athanasse Poissot, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, on Bayou Cantamaman, bounded on all sides by vacant land, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Andre Valentine and Pierre Laffitt, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Athanasse Poissot in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time, and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

86. Mary E. Case, wife of William M. Rivers, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated about a quarter of a mile from the Aroya Honda, on the road leading from the town of Natchitoches to Gaines' Ferry, on the Sabine, bounded on the east by the Aroya Honda, on all other sides by vacant land, containing 640 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated August 24, 1823, and filed with the notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Bonner, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Mary E. Case in her notice; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about six acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

87. Joseph Valentine, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of a Spanish grant in his favor, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Pierre branch of Red river, in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, having, on the south side of said river, Bayou Macdown for its northern boundary, its eastern boundary being Red river, being one mile and a half square, and on the other side of said river beginning at a certain bayou, and running down the river ten acres, with the ordinary depth, if it can be had. The following is a translation of the grant on which the claim is founded: "Don Antonio Gil y Barvo, captain of militia, lieutenant governor, and judge delegate of smuggling and forfeitures, and chief justice of the town of Na. Sa. del Pibar of Nacogdoches and its jurisdiction. Whereas Jph. V. [torn] has appeared by petition, bearing date August 5, in the present year, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-one, praying with due submission that the tract of land called Adaes, because the tribe of the Adaes occupy it, may be granted him, I do grant it to him for the object in his petition mentioned—the raising of horses, herds of cattle, flocks of sheep, and the cultivation of grains of husbandry—with the condition of remaining subject, as ought to be, and are all those domiciled in this province, and under my jurisdiction, to the royal laws, mandates, and dispositions, and orders of his superiors. In virtue whereof, I have given this grant, and signed it with witnesses of my assistance, for want of a notary, there being none, August 13, 1791. Signed Antonio Gil y Barvo; paraphed Christoval de Cordoba, Jacinto de Ignono." In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Pierre Laffitt, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Joseph Valentine in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as therein described; that the grantee, Joseph Valentine, twenty-one years ago established and lived on the land claimed with his family; that he kept his horses, cattle, &c., and planted corn and other grains thereon at that time, and that he has continued to live on, cultivate, and occupy said land, to raise horses, cattle, &c., and to plant and raise corn and other grains thereon, from the time of its first establishment until the present time."

The extent of ground conceded is not stated in the grant, but the limits and extent claimed embrace a smaller area of ground than was usually granted for stock farms. We think the title relied upon was considered by the former government as a complete grant, and are of opinion it ought to be confirmed; accordingly, in the abstract, have classed it with claims of the "first class."

88. John Baptiste Trezzeni, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of François Serpentine, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situate in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, bounded on the west by Michel Rambert, on all other sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Andre Valentine and Pierre Laffitt, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by John Baptiste Trezzeni in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the person under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the person under whom the claimant holds since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about six acres."

We are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

89. José Maria Procella, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called Trésellanos, on the road leading from Natchitoches to the crossing on the Sabine, called Las Ormejas, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony before the board:

"Samuel Davenport and Manuel Gonzales, being sworn, severally say they know the land claimed by José Maria Procella in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the month of May, 1814; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

90. James Wilson, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a creek emptying into the Sabine river, called the Spring branch, bounded on the south by claim of Philip Winfree, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Philip Winfree and A. Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Wilson in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

91. Philip Winfree, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated near the Sabine river, bounded on the north by land claimed of James Wilson, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jacob Waddle and James Wilson, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Philip Winfree in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

92. Abraham Winfree, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated near the Sabine river, bounded on the north by Philip Winfree, and containing 640 acres. This claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Wilson and Jacob Waddle, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Abraham Winfree in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

93. John Waddle, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Sabine river, about three miles south of Philip Winfree's, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Philip Winfree and Abraham Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Waddle in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation was continued by claimant two years after said time; that the improvements on the land claimed, at this time, embrace about six acres."

John Waddle, the present applicant, claimed another tract (No. 8) by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, on and prior to February 22, 1819, in his own right; which fact being proven, we favorably reported his claim. This, in conformity with our decisions in Nos. 46, 51, and 53, cannot be recognized; therefore we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the fourth class.

94. James Walker, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Asa Dallohide, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a branch of the Bayou Toro, bounded on the northeast by land claimed by James Small, on all other sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. This claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Philip Winfree and Abraham Winfree, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James Walker (under a purchase from Asa Dallohide) in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is in said notice described; that the said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by James Quinalty, under whom said Dallohide holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Quinalty, and those persons claiming by and through him, from that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

95. Joseph Grubb, of the parish of Natchitoches, holding through a chain of conveyances from Gibson Johnson, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of Bayou Kisatchie, bounded, as is supposed, on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. This claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Ethelred Smith and Major Smith, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Joseph Grubb in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated, on and prior to February 22, 1819, by Gibson Johnson, (from whom the claimant holds,) who lived and cultivated corn, &c., thereon; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Johnson and others, claiming by and through him, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

96. Joseph Grubb, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Thomas Nash, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Bayou Kisatchie, bounded, as is supposed, on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Ethelred Smith and Major Smith, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Joseph Grubb, assignee of Thomas Nash, in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by said Thomas Nash, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Nash and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

97. Manuel Gonzales, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the road leading from Natchitoches to the Ormegas, about one mile west of a Spanish village, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"José Maria Procella and José Sankues, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Manuel Gonzales in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated, by the claimant's living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation have been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

98. Azor Mathis, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on Mill creek; bounded on the north by land claimed by Brown, and containing six hundred and forty acres. In support thereof the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Ethelred Smith and Major Smith, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Azor Mathis in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about fifteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

99. Henry Sheridan, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated near a Spanish village, about sixteen miles southwest of Natchitoches, bounded as is represented in a plat of survey filed with this notice, made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, and dated August 28, 1823, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Matthew Richards and John Smith, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Henry Sheridan in his notice No. 99; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

100. James McKimm, elder, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, cultivation, and habitation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the north fork of the Bayou Provencal, bounded on the lower side by land claimed by James McKimm, younger, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Asa Hickman and John Self, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by James McKimm, elder, in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation was continued by the claimant since that period up to the close of the year 1821, and that his improvement on the land embraces about ten acres. That, after the close of the year 1821, the claimant moved off the land claimed, but continued to reside until the present day within the neutral territory. They believe that the claimant holds or claims no other land but the tract now solicited."

Believing that the claimant, on February 22, 1819, was entitled to a title under the government then exercising the sovereign power over the neutral territory, and that his right has not become forfeited under the government of the United States by his subsequent abandonment, we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

101. Asa Hickman, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Theophilus Hickman, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on Bayou Santaburb, bounded on the southeast by lands of the claimant, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Self, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Asa Hickman in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Theophilus Hickman, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c. thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation was continued by said Theophilus and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirteen acres. And William Cummings, being also sworn, says that all the foregoing facts are within his knowledge, but is not certain whether the land claimed was actually settled on February 22, 1819, or not; but he positively knows that Theophilus Hickman raised a crop thereon in the year 1819."

We are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

102. James McKimm, jr., of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Provencal, bounded on the upper side by land claimed by James McKimm, elder, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Self and Asa Hickman, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by James McKimm, jr., in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant, and a person holding under him, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

103. Abraham Wrinkles, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east side of Bayou Kisatchie, bounded on the lower side by land claimed by Placide Bossier, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is fully supported by the testimony; but, being satisfied that lands lying on the east side of the Bayou Kisatchie were never considered as being within the neutral territory, we are compelled to say that the claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the fourth class.

104. Ethelred Smith, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides of the Bayou Santaburb, bounded on the upper side by land claimed by Josiah S. Johnston, and on the lower side by John Curtis, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Asa Mathis and Major Smith, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by Ethelred Smith in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about 8 acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

105. James Hickman, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situate on the waters of the Santaburb, bounded on all sides, as is supposed, by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Self and William Cummins, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by James Hickman in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about 12 acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

106. William Cummings, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the waters of the Bayou Santaburb, bounded above by land claimed by William Hickman, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Self and Asa Hickman, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by William Cummings in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about 12 acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

107. William Hickman, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Santaburb, bounded on the lower side by land claimed by William Cummings, and containing 460 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Self, being sworn, says he knows the land claimed by William Hickman in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about 15 acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

108. George Schamp, and Pelagie Schamp, his wife, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of a concession in favor of John Adle, dated May 14, 1796, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place known by the name of the Aroya de la Deesa, in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, having half a league on each of the four cardinal courses from the above-mentioned place, and containing 5,760 acres. The claim is supported by an authentic copy of the following original documents, to wit:

To the Lieutenant Governor Mr. BERNADO FERNANDEZ:

"John Adle, a citizen, settled at the bayou called De las Piedras, of the jurisdiction of the settlement of Nacogdoches, on the place known by the name of the Margin of the Aroya de la Deesa, with the greatest respect and submission saith that, agreeably to the decree published at the guard-house of this place, requiring of those who had not the titles to their lands in due form, to apply so as to have them legalized, I come forward to beg of your honor to have the goodness to grant me the possession of a tract of land which has been given to me by Mr. Pablo Borel Laffitt, at the Aroya de la Deesa, half a league on each of the four cardinal courses, to build my house, cultivate a field, and to bring thither my family, for me to use the same, and afterwards to my children, my heirs, and successors. Your petitioner begs of your honor to admit this petition on common paper, as there is none of the stamped, and your petitioner, &c.

"JOHN ADLE."

"NACOGDOCHES, December 27, 1795.

"The surveyor says there are signs on the said land: without injury to a third person, put him in possession in due form, and return me this document immediately after the taking possession.

"FERN."

"On the twenty-ninth day of the month of December, year seventeen hundred and ninety-five, in compliance with the foregoing decree, I, Joseph Cayetano de Zepeda, land commissioner of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, being accompanied by the witnesses of my assistance, Mr. Joseph de la Vega and Vicente del Rio, went to the place called El Aroya de la Deesa, John Adle being present, to give him the possession I was ordered to give him; accordingly, it being on the same place of the Aroya de la Deesa, after inquiring if there were neighbors on the limits or boundaries of the said land, in order to have them called, to be convinced that the said tract of land does not belong to Pablo Borel Laffitt, said Pablo gives it as a donation to said Adle, permitting him to apply for and obtain the grant of the Aroya de la Deesa, who asks half a league on each of four courses, as stated in his petition. I have visited the said land with the said witnesses of my assistance, and took the said Adle, and examined the surface of the said land from the north to the south, and from east to west, planted posts, cut down several trees as a sign of possession granted him in the name of his Majesty to the said Adle, as legitimate owner of the same land, measuring two square leagues, as is expressed in his foregoing solicitation, and gave the name to the same of Senor San Juan del Aroya de la Deesa, and forever to be called by that name; and the above-mentioned Adle is actually in complete possession, agreeably to the rights of all the already mentioned lands; and in consequence I have signed this grant, with the witnesses of my assistance, at the place of San Juan del Aroja de la Deesa, in the same day, month, and year above mentioned.

"JOSE CAYETANO DE ZEPEDA.

"VICENTE DEL RIO.

"JOSEPH LUC DE LA VEGA.

"PABLO BABIT LAFFITT."

"Considering the foregoing act of possession given to John Adle, without any contradiction of parties, place the original document in the records, and give a copy of the same to the party as a title of property; I, Don Bernado Fernandez, lieutenant of cavalry, and actual commandant of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, have signed it, with the witnesses of my assistance, on the 14th day of the month of May, 1796.

"BERNADO DE FERNANDEZ.

"Witnesses of assistance: JOSE MA. GUADIANA.

"MIGUEL SANCHEZ."

"Compared with the original that remains in the records under my charge, to which I refer myself; and that at the drawing of this copy were present the following witnesses, who have signed with me, at Nacogdoches, 30th day of the month of May, 1796.

"BERNADO FERNANDEZ.

"JOSEPH MARIA GUADIANA.

"MIGUEL SANCHEZ."

By an authentic copy of an act of sale, dated January 21, 1821, passed before Charles Slocum, judge of the parish of Natchitoches, filed with the notice of this claim, John Adle and Jeanavieve Dubois, his wife, for the consideration of $1,000, sold to the claimants the land conceded in the foregoing grant.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "first class."

109. Santiago Ruiz, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated about one mile west of a Spanish village, near the road leading from Natchitoches to Las Ormejas, bounded on the north by land claimed by Manuel Gonzales, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Davenport and Aug. San Miguel, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Santiago Ruiz in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embraced about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

110. Emanuel Prudhomme, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at the Adaise, and around the village of Adaise, containing one league square, claimed by virtue of a concession signed by the lieutenant governor and commandant of Nacogdoches, which concession the claimant alleges he cannot procure, because the same was carried off with the archives of that post in the year 1812; claimed also by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation for upwards of thirty years. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"José Maria Mora, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Emanuel Prudhomme in his above notice; that the same is situated as is therein described; that it was a matter of public notoriety at Nacogdoches that a title had been accorded to the claimant for the land claimed by the then commandant of Nacogdoches, Don Antonio Gil y Barvo; that he knows that his uncle, now deceased, Yacente Mora, as tithe collector, collected the tithes assessed upon said land of the claimant; that thirty-four years ago the land was inhabited by the claimant, who kept a man there, a large stock of cattle, had a house, pens erected thereon necessary for a vacharie; that the settlement then had the appearance of being an old one."

"Samuel Davenport, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Emanuel Prudhomme in his above notice; that the same is situate as is therein described; that it was understood as a matter of public notoriety at Nacogdoches that the claimant had a title from the commandant of Nacogdoches, Don Antonio Gil y Barvo, similar to those issued by him to other claimants; that he knows that the then commandant at Nacogdoches required all the titles or grants issued previous to 1792, at which time Gil y Barvo was suspended, to be brought in, that new titles might issue, agreeably to instructions from his superior; that in the year 1812 all the records and archives of a public nature at Nacogdoches were carried off by the then commandant, and have never been returned, so that copies of titles or papers therein could be obtained; deponent knows that in 1795 the claimant kept his vacharie on the land claimed, had white men, negroes, horses, &c., and had houses, pens, &c., thereon."

"José Bernardo Gutierrez, being sworn, says that he knows that all the public archives and records of the post and jurisdiction of Nacogdoches were carried off from that place by Lieutenant Governor Montaro and Padro Sombranos the day before the army commanded by the deponent entered Nacogdoches in 1812; knows not where said records and archives are now, but he knows they were never returned."

"John Cortes, being sworn, says that in the year 1813 he was on the land claimed, with the claimant, at the time of the emigration of a number of Spaniards from Texas; that the land appeared to be under considerable state of cultivation; that while there a number of said Spaniards demanded of the claimant permission to reside on the land claimed, which was granted on condition that, when they quit, their improvements and houses should belong to the claimant; and that under said permission said Spaniards settled, and have lived on, and cultivated said land ever since to the present time."

We have no doubt, from the testimony, that the grant once existed; and we think that the fortuitous event that places that instrument beyond the control of the claimant is sufficiently shown. [See further on this head answers to the sixth interrogatory, at the commencement of this report.] Therefore we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the first class.

111. Augustin T. San Miguel, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in a Spanish village about sixteen miles southwest of Natchitoches, and containing eleven acres and eighty-seven-hundredths of an acre, agreeably to a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated August 28, 1823, and filed with the notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Davenport and José M. Mora, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Augustin T. San Miguel in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

112. John Cortes, (merchant,) of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Trenck Tarvin, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the right bank of Bayou Terre Blanche, and left of Bayou Dupont, bounded north by land claimed by George McTier, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Augustin San Miguel and José M. Mora, being sworn, each say they know the land claimed by John Cortes in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

113. The legal representatives of Pierre Dolet, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou of the Adaise, in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, containing one league around the compass, taking for centre the house in which they live, so that the whole tract may form a square of two leagues on each front; claiming, by virtue of a grant signed and approved by the lieutenant governor of Nacogdoches, dated January 14, 1796, as also by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, for thirty-five years. The claim is supported by an official copy of documents, of which the following is a translation:

"SEÑOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: Pedro Dolet, of Bayou Pierre, with due respect, represents that he has made a settlement on one of the margins of the Bayou of the Adaise, built a house, expended labor, and raised herds of horses and cattle: wherefore, he prays that you would grant him, at the place aforesaid, a league around the compass, taking for centre his aforesaid house, so that all the land he prays for may form a square of two leagues on each front, for himself, his children, and representatives. He prays you would grant him the aforesaid land on the terms by him stated; a favor which he hopes to deserve, &c. Bayou Pierre, December 7, 1795.

"Nacogdoches, December 27, 1795. Whereas, Pedro Dolet has made a settlement on the margin of the Bayou of the Adaise, with his house and herds, let this be referred to the procurador de esta comun, and let him put the petitioner formally in possession of the land prayed for, without prejudice to third persons.

"DON ERNANDEZ."

"On this 29th day of December, 1795, in compliance with the foregoing decree, I, José Cayetano de Zepeda, sindico procurador del comun Pueblo de Nuestra Senora del Pilar de Nacogdoches, went with the witnesses of my assistance, Don José de la Vega and Vicente del Rio, to the place called Bayou of the Adaise, where the petitioner claims, and has built his house, in order to give to the said D. Pedro Dolet, who is now living on the premises, possession according to the decree; wherefore, being at the designated place on the Bayou of the Adaise, and having inquired whether any of the neighbors would be injured by this grant, and having well ascertained that there was no impediment whatever, and that none of the boundaries of the adjacent proprietors intersected or touched those designated by Pedro Dolet in his foregoing petition, for which reason no injury can result to the nearest neighbors by giving Pedro Dolet possession of the land he claims in his petition, with all the extent and the boundaries therein mentioned; I have visited those boundaries, and the land they surround, with the aforesaid witnesses of my assistance, and the said Pedro Dolet, and, taking the latter by the right hand, I went with him a certain number of paces from north to south, and afterwards from east to west; and then, having let his hand go, he went as he pleased on the said land of the Bayou of the Adaise, pulled up grass, made holes in the ground, planted stakes, cut bushes, threw dust into the air and on to the ground, and performed several other things and capers, as evidence of the possession which I had given him in the name of his Majesty, whom God preserve, of the said land, with the extent and boundaries which he has demanded, and in proof of the property which he now holds in it as sole master by virtue of this act of possession, and, also, as a symbol of the right of property which he forever holds on said land, of one league on each course of the compass, in the manner, place, and with the boundaries expressed in his foregoing petition, with all uses and privileges thereunto belonging; and, afterwards, I have designated the aforesaid tract of land by the name of San Pedro de las Adaise, so that it may forever go by that name; and, in order that said Pedro Dolet may be forever quieted in the peaceable enjoyment of his said land agreeably to law, and that the evidence of his right may appear, I have signed these presents, with the witnesses of my assistance, at San Pedro de las Adaise, the day, month, and year aforesaid.

"JOSE CAYETANO DE ZEPEDA.

"JOSÉ LUIS DE LA VEGA.
"VICENTE DEL RIO."

"Having seen the foregoing proces verbal of possession given to Pedro Dolet, and without opposition, let this original document be recorded, and let the party have such evidence of it as will enable him to prove his right of property. I, Bernardo Fernandez, lieutenant of cavalry, and commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, in the presence of the witnesses of my assistance, did receive and record the said deed in place of a notary, there being none; and I did not seal it, having no seal of office. In testimony whereof, I have signed these presents the 14th day of January, 1796.

"BERNADO FERNANDEZ.

"Assisting witnesses: JOSE MA. GUADIANA.
"MIG. SANCHEZ."

"A correct copy from the original, deposited with the public records in my possession. Taken, corrected, and compared, for and at the request of Don Pedro Dolet, in presence of the witnesses of my assistance, who with me signed these presents, at Nacogdoches, the 30th day of May, 1796.

"BERNADO FERNANDEZ.

"Attest: MIGUEL SANCHEZ.
"JOSE MARIA GUADIANA."

In further support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Bertrand Plaisance, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by the legal representatives of Pierre Dolet in their notice No. 113; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described. Deponent knows that Pierre Dolet had his vacharie, consisting of a large stock, on the land claimed at least thirty-five years ago; that he lived on, occupied, and cultivated the land claimed at that time, and that the said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since the first establishment until the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about three hundred acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the first class."

114. John Litton, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou San Miguel, bounded on the west by land claimed by Samuel Davenport, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Gray and Asa Beckum, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by John Litton in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about fifty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the third class."

115. Asa Beckum, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou San Miguel, bounded on the west by claim of Samuel Davenport, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Gray and John Litton, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by said Asa Beckum in his abcve notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time, and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twelve acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the third class."

116. Hannah McKimm, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming a tract of land, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest fork of Bayou Provincial, bounded on the north by James McKimm, and containing six hundred and forty acres. In support of this claim no admissible proof was offered. Therefore,

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the fourth class."

117. Nancy R. Hays, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on both sides of the Bayou Provincial, bounded on the lower side by land claimed by James McKimm, senior, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Sibley, being sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Nancy R. Hays in her above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the third class."

118. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, lying and being on the Bayou Wallace, bounded below by the heirs of James Quinility, on the north by the heirs of Francois Prudhomme, and containing the contents of a league square, claimed by virtue of a Spanish grant to Jacob Wallace, dated ——; transferred by the heirs of the grantee to the claimant and William C. Alexander, May 20, 1809, and by the latter to the claimant on May 18, 1820.

No document of title or testimony of any kind was filed with this notice, but we were referred generally to a notice of the same claimant filed with the late register, under the act of May 11, 1820, where the grant, the foundation of his claim in both cases, is found. No benefit can result to the applicant from an examination of his title here, and we think it more regular that the titles should remain as at first filed, to be reported by the register under the above mentioned act. Therefore,

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the fourth class."

119. The heirs of Michael Quinn, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the headwaters of the Bayou Bain, bounded on the northwest by land claimed by John Sibley, on all other sides by land supposed to be vacant, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Sibley, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by the heirs of Michael Quinn in their above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the ancestor of the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant uninterruptedly since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "claims of the third class."

120. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of a Spanish concession, issued by the commandant of Nacogdoches, dated October 16, 1779, in favor of Francis Morvan, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides, and in the forks of Bayou Durasmus or Bayou Morvan, bounded below by land claimed by the heirs of Bernard Pantalion, and containing 1,600 acres. No document of title, or testimony of any kind, was filed with this notice; and our remarks in the claim No. 118 are strictly applicable to this. Therefore, for the reasons there given,

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the fourth class."

121. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice, as assignee of Ounette Boudin, claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides of Bayou St. John, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Gaspard Bodin and François Robin, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by John Sibley in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated, by Ounette Bodin, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, more than twenty-five years past; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was uninterruptedly continued by said Ounette for four or five years, and until his sale to the claimant; that the improvements on the land claimed embrace about seven acres." It is not shown, neither can it be inferred from the testimony, that the land claimed was either occupied, inhabited, or cultivated, on February 22, 1819; though occupied twenty-five years ago, the claimant's assignor subsequently abandoned his possession, and the land thereby reverted to the domain. We think, according to the usage and laws of the Spanish government of Texas, that the claimant's right, at the date of the treaty, would not have been recognized as valid.

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with "claims of the fourth class."

122 John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Littlepage Robinson, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Bain, and containing one league square, claimed by virtue of a concession granted by the commandant of Nacogdoches, dated _____, in favor of said Littlepage Robinson, and which concession the claimant alleges is lost or mislaid. The claimant produced the following testimony to establish the existence of the grant and its subsequent loss:

"William Ettridge, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by John Sibley in his above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Littlepage Robinson, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, more than twenty-five years ago; that the land then laid unoccupied for about twelve years, when it was occupied by one Petit. Witness says that several years—say ten or twelve—after Robinson left the land, he, Robinson, told this deponent he had a Spanish requeute for the tract claimed, and that he did not intend to relinquish the same. Witness never saw the requeute, but believes that one did exist in favor of Robinson for the land claimed."

"Gaspard Bodin, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by John Sibley in his above notice; deponent well recollects that, about thirty-five years ago, the deceased, Mr. Rouquette, brought from New Orleans a requeute or concession for the land claimed in favor of Littlepage Robinson. He recollects the circumstances with more certainty, because the same Mr. Rouquette brought, at the same time, a requeute in favor of his father-in-law. The concession was read in presence of deponent by Mr. Rouquette."

The testimony to establish the first fact, viz: the present existence of the grant, is weak indeed. This first witness was told by the grantee, Robinson, that he had a requeute for the land; and in consequence, no doubt, witness really believed that one did exist. The declaration of the second witness must be entirely disregarded, for he speaks of the concession being brought from New Orleans, when the claimant himself in his notice declares "it was granted by the commandant of Nacogdoches." Nothing then supports the claimant's pretensions but the declaration of his vendor, or at most a vague belief created, we may suppose, by him.

We cannot hesitate in declaring our opinion that this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the fourth class.

123. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John L. Petit, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory and situated as follows: bounded and having a front of sixteen acres on the road from Natchitoches to the Sabine, crossing the Bayou Bain, and running up the Bayous Adaise and Chacta for quantity, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Ettridge, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by John Sibley in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John L. Petit, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the years 1809 and 1810, as well as witness recollects; afterwards the inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was continued by Samuel Duvasset for the claimant, who lived thereon until expelled by the American and Spanish troops in 1812, by whom the house and buildings were burned; after which the land remained unemployed, though the fences were kept up until about 1814, when Henry Quirk and Michael Quin, as tenants of the claimant, moved on the land, who inhabited, occupied, and cultivated the same for one or two years. When witness last saw the land claimed there were about twelve acres improved. Witness does not know that Quin lived on the land as tenant of the claimant, but knows that Quirk did." The land claimed was voluntarily abandoned previous to the date of the treaty between the United States and Spain, and consequently every right resulting from occupation and cultivation was thereby relinquished. (See No. 121.)

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the fourth class.

124. John Sibley, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides of the Bayou Adaise, bounded on the south by the lands of the claimant, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"William Ettridge, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by John Sibley in his above notice; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John Evans, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon as a tenant of the claimant in the year 1813; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued since that period by the claimant, through said Evans, Henry Quirk, John Sheridan, Andrew Leaper, and Robert McDonald, his tenants, to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

125. John Baptiste Pérot, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called Triesyllanos, on the road leading from Natchitoches to the Ormegas, on the Sabine, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Davenport and José M. Mora, being severally sworn, say that they know the land claimed by John Baptiste Pérot in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that time to this day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about fifteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

126. Green Cook, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Henry Shabino, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the river Sabine, about one mile above the Bayou Négreite, bounded, as is supposed, on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"Joshua Rawlings, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Green Cook in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Henry Shabino, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and planting peach trees, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that he, deponent, saw the claimant on the land, cultivating, living on, and improving the same, in 1823; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about fifteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

127. George Slaughter, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Lewis Warren, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the south side of the Saline bayou, about two miles from the Sabine river, about one mile from the site of Camp Ripley, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"Joel Lakie and Johnson Rawlins, being sworn, severally say that they know the land claimed by George Slaughter in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Louis Warren, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by said Warren and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twelve acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

128. Remy Christie, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the left bank of Bayou See, bounded on the west by Guillaume Bébé, east and south by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jacques Herrier and Sezar Christy, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Remy Christie in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

129. William P. Davidson, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Humphreys, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou of the Three Prairies, bounded on the west by Lewis Latham, and on the east by José Ma. Mora, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Lewis Latham and Thomas Wilson, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by William P. Davidson in his above notice; that said land is lying and situated as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by John Humphreys, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by said Humphreys and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the improvements on the land embrace about eighteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

130. Thomas Wilson, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou of the Three Prairies, bounded by Lewis Latham on the east, and by Henry Quirk on the west, and containing 640 acres. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Lewis Latham and Antonio Dios, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Thomas Wilson in his above notice; that said land is situated and lying as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about seven acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

131. Thomas Wilson, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Poudlo Morales, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Bayou of the Three Prairies, bounded on the east by other lands of the claimant, and on the west by Henry Quirk, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Louis Latham and Martino Dios, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Thomas Wilson in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by Poudlo Morales, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

132. Thomas Gray, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of James Bridges, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Négreite bayou, bounded on the north by claim of Samuel Davenport, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Joel Leaky and Thomas Leaky, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Thomas Gray in his above notice; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by James Bridges, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by said Bridges and by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

133. Thomas Gray, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Mackey, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of the Négreite bayou, bounded, as is supposed, by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Joel Leaky, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Thomas Gray, assignee of John Mackey, in his above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated on and previous to February 22, 1819, by John Mackey, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and cutting cane, &c., thereon."

"Nicholas Jacks, being sworn, says he knows the land above claimed; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated in the years 1820, 1821, and 1822, and has reason to believe that the same has been uninterruptedly continued from February 22, 1819, until this time."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

134. Polly Lemmons, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Cow bayou north of Bayou Pedro, bounded on the south by a claim of H. McGuffin, and on the other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated September 29, 1823, and filed with the notice. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Thomas Wilson and Louis Latham, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Polly Lemmons in her above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated on and previous to February 22, 1819, by the claimant's living and growing corn, &c., thereon; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

135. Macedonia Grammon, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the north by land claimed by Andre Galindo, on the west by John Maximillien, east by a street of a Spanish village, south by Francisco Grammon, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Francisco Rosalis and Florien Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Macedonia Grammon in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about four acres."

136. John Cortes, of Bayou See, parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the east by Francisco Rosalis, on the west by John Burdan, on the south by a street of a Spanish village, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"F. Rosalis and F. Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by John Cortes in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

137. Lettricus Alrio, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the north by John Grammon, on the east by John Maximillien, east by a street of a Spanish village, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"F. Rosalis and Feliciano Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Lettricus Alrio in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about two acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

138. Simon Montalbo, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the north by Andrés Gallin, west by Maximillien, east by a street of a Spanish village, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Francisco Rosalis and Feliciana Gonzales, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Simon Montalbo in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about two acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have, in the abstract, classed it with claims of the "third class."

139. Widow Ganasién Parrira, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the north by John Maximillien, on the east by Francisco Grammon, on the west by Estevan Bascus, and containing 640 acres. In support of which the following testimony was taken before the board:

"F. Rosalis and F. Gonzales, being duly sworn, both declare that they know the land claimed by Ganasién Parrira (widow) in her above notice; that the same is situated and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on land claimed embrace about two acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have in the abstract classed it with claims of the "third class."

140. John Grammon, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the northwest by Andreas Galino, south by Antonio Le Rous, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"F. Rosalis and F. Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Juan Grammon in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

141. Widow Intereste Toval, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the west by Cutenies, north and east by José Antonio, south by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"F. Rosalis and F. Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Intereste Toval in her above notice; that the same is lying and being as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about one acre."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

142. Estevan Bascus, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, bounded on the east by John Maximillien, on the west by Peter Patterson, on the north by a street of a Spanish village, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Francisco Rosalis and Feliciano Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Estevan Bascus in his above notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about two acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

143. The heirs and legal representatives of Edward Murphy, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of a Spanish grant dated October 18, 1791, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Hondo, and containing 2,222.84 acres, agreeably to a plat of survey drawn by Samuel Cook, then deputy surveyor of the United States, dated December 7, 1806, and filed with the notice. An original document, of which the following is a translation, is filed with the notice:

"SEN. LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: Edward Murphy, of the post of Natchitoches, part of the province of Louisiana, presents himself before you, and says, that on the margin of a creek named Aroya Hondo, which separates the two provinces on the side of the province of Texas, and on the margin between the royal road and another which passes by the Bayou St. John, there is a cove which I find so advantageous for collecting my cattle, I beg your honor would please to grant me possession of those lands, from which I shall reap great advantage, having no place to collect my cattle; and moreover, to grant me on this paper, there being none stamped; humbly ask of your honor that it may please you to give me possession of said land.

"NACOGDOCHES, October 17, 1791.

"MORFIT."

"NACOGDOCHES, October 18, 1791.

"In consequence of the petition, and that the land solicited is in the province of Texas, and vacant, I do grant it in due and best form, and, that it may so appear, I sign this at Nacogdoches, October 18, 1791.

"ANTONIO GIL Y BARVO."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the first class."

Sylvestre Poissot, of the parish of Natchitoches, legal representative of Athanasie Poissot, deceased, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a communication of lakes on the south side of Red river, bounded as is described in a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated October 5, 1823, and filed with the notice, containing 203.74 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Cesar Laffitt and Firman Poissot, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Sylvestre Poissot in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Athanasse Poissot, from whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Athanasse and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

174. Firmin Poissot, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a coulée known by the name of Bayou La Vacharie, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Sezare Laffitt and Sylvestre Poissot, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Firman Poissot in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued uninterruptedly since that time by the claimant to the present day; and that his improvements on the land claimed embrace about four acres."

Firmin Poissot was the claimant in his own right in notice No. 54; and on proofs similar to the foregoing being produced, we recommended a confirmation of his title; and, in conformity with our preceding decisions, this must be rejected.—(See Nos. 46, 51, 53.)

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

175. Cesar Laffitt, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on Bayou Le point, bounded on the lower side by Firmin Poissot, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Firmin Poissot and S. Poissot, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Cesar Laffitt in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant uninterruptedly since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace seven acres."

The claimant, together with Louis Laffitt, have, before this board, filed their notice, No. 200, claiming, by virtue of a grant or concession, a large tract at Las Ormegas, which claim we have recommended for confirmation; and believing that an individual holding in his own right, under a grant, was precluded under the former government from claiming another tract by virtue of occupancy, we are bound to say, in our opinion, this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

176. Denise Dios, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of Lake Goun de Mora, bounded on the west by Madam Chubbidar, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"F. Gonzales and Martin Dios, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Denise Dios in her above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued uninterruptedly since that time by the claimant until the present day; and that her improvements on the land claimed embrace about four acres."

We are of the opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

177. José Durohas, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Ignatio Santos, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the settlement of the Adaise, on the Bayou of the Three Prairies, bounded west by Manuel Santos, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Martin Dios and F. Gonzales, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by José Durohas in his above notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Ignatio Santos, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Santos and the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about six acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

178. Domingo Santa Cruz, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the Adaise, bounded on the north by Trinidad Candido, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Martin Dios and F. Gonzales, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Domingo Santa Cruz in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about two acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

179. José Maria Soto, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Baptiste Cherino, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the settlement of the Adaise, bounded on the east by Manuel Santos, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Louis Latham and Martin Dios, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by José Maria Soto in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Baptiste Cherino, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued by said Cherino and the claimant uninterruptedly from that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about four acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

180. Samuel Davenport, the heirs and representatives of Edward Murphy, deceased, all of the parish of Natchitoches; the heirs and representatives of Luther Smith, of the State of New York; and the heirs and representatives of William Barr, deceased, of the State of Pennsylvania, filed their notice claiming a tract of land, being within the late neutral territory, lying east of the Sabine river, on the public road from Natchitoches to Gaines' Ferry, on said river, at a place called "La Nana," having for its centre the prairie which joins the bayou of said "La Nana," to extend two leagues towards each cardinal point, so as to form a perfect square of four leagues on each front line, the centre to be said prairie. Claimed by virtue of a grant approved and signed by Don José Maria Guadiana, commandant of the post of Nacogdoches, August 4, 1798, in favor of said Edward Murphy, who, November 3, 1798, conveyed the same to the commercial partnership then existing between himself, (said Murphy,) Davenport, Smith, and Barr. The claim is supported by authenticated documents, of which the following are translations:

"Mr. LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: Don Edward Murphy, of the vicinity of Nacogdoches, appears before you by petition, and saith that, from three to four years last past, I have had, in the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, now under your command, with the knowledge of your predecessors, the former commandants, at the place known by the name of Juan de Mora Lake, kept cattle and other animals, for which, until this date, I have paid the dues of tenths; and finding said place scarce of cane range for the preservation and increase of said animals, I have recourse to you, praying for a grant for a tract of land at the place called 'La Nana,' situated on the east side of the river Sabine, about seven leagues from its margin, and on the road leading from this town to the post of Natchitoches; said tract of land, from its centre, which is the prairie joining the bayou of the aforesaid 'La Nana' and immediately on said road, to extend two leagues towards each cardinal point, so as to form a perfect square of four leagues in length each front line, the centre to be said prairie, so that in this space of land I may have a sufficient range for my present and future stock.

"E. MURPHY.

"NACOGDOCHES, February 22, 1798."

"Pass this petition to the procurador, that he may leave in possession of the land the interested person as described.

"GUADIANA.

"JULY 1, 1798."

"AUGUST 1, 1798.—In compliance with the foregoing decree, I, Don José Cayetano de Zepeda, syndic and procurador of this jurisdiction of our Lady of the Pillar of Nacogdoches, accompanied by my assisting witnesses, Juan José Medina and José Domingues, went to the place called 'La Nana,' in order to establish in said place of La Nana Don Edward Murphy, who is present, and give him possession, in pursuance of the preceding order; and being at said place, after having inquired if there were adjacent neighbors, and being well assured the nearest was Mr. Charboneaux, distant about eight leagues from said place of La Nana, and finding no impediment, put Don Edward Murphy in possession of the vacant land prayed for in his aforesaid petition, with the extent and boundaries therein expressed; visited the limits and territory with the before named witnesses and said Edward Murphy; the two leagues by the said road of St. Antonio de Bexar westward, reaching to the Chupaderas, and other two leagues of land towards the east, which reaches by the said road to the Bayou Tassan, with two leagues to the north, and other two leagues to the south; and taking him, the said Edward Murphy, by the hand, walked with him a number of paces from north to south, and the same from east to west, and letting go his hand, he walked about at pleasure on the said territory of La Nana, pulling up weeds, made holes in the ground, planted posts, cut down bushes, took up clods of earth and threw them on the ground, and did many other things in token of the possession in which I had put him, in the name of his Majesty, of said land, with the boundaries and extension as prayed for; and, in demonstration of the right which he already holds in said land as the only proprietor by virtue of this act of possession, and for further evidence of the right of sovereignty which he has forever acquired over said land of eight leagues, two towards each of the cardinal points, in the manner, place and boundaries expressed in his aforesaid petition, with the servitudes, uses, customs, and privileges, which he, the said Murphy, has, I gave the whole mentioned territory of 'La Nana,' which includes a square of eight leagues, the name of 'San Pedro of the Bayou of La Nana,' and the said Edward Murphy being and remaining in entire and peaceable possession, in conformity to law and right, of all the aforesaid land, as a proof and evidence of which I have signed this act of possession with the aforesaid witnesses, at the place of St. Peter of the Bayou of 'La Nana,' the same day, month, and year.

"JOSÉ CAYETANO DE ZEPEDA.

"JUAN JOSÉ MEDINA, } Assisting witnesses.
"JOSÉ DOMINGUES,

"At the post of Nacogdoches, the 4th day of the month of August, 1798, I, Don José Maria Guadiana, second cornet of the company of Montclova, and military and civil commandant of said post, have ordered that, in virtue of the possession of land given to Don Edward Murphy as aforesaid, without any opposition, the original document be placed in the protocol of said post, to serve as evidence of the same, and that there be given to the interested person a certified copy as a title for the property. In testimony of which,

I have authorized this act, which I have signed with two assisting witnesses, with whom I have acted for want of a public notary, and on this common paper, for want of stamped. To all of which I give faith.
"JOSÉ MARIA GUADIANA.

"JOSÉ LOUIS DE LA BEGAR,

This claim was entered and filed with the former board of commissioners, where it was supported by testimony that does not appear here. The whole, however, was reported by that board, with claims to land in the county of Natchitoches, under No. 46, and to that report we beg to refer.

Being of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, we have classed it with claims of the "first class."

181. Samuel Davenport; the heirs and representatives of Edward Murphy, deceased, of the parish of Natchitoches; the heirs and representatives of Luther Smith, of the State of New York; and the heirs and representatives of William Barr, of the State of Pennsylvania, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east margin of the Sabine river, at a place called "Las Ormegas," having such marks and boundaries as are represented in a plat of survey made by William M. Lester, deputy surveyor of the United States lands, and containing six square leagues, equal to 207,360 acres; claimed by virtue of a concession signed by Bernado Fernandez, lieutenant governor of the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, dated December 15, 1795, in favor of Jacinto Mora, which land said Mora, by act of sale dated July 22, 1805, transferred to William Barr & Company, a firm composed of said William Barr, now deceased, Samuel Davenport, Edward Murphy, now deceased, and Luther Smith, now deceased. The claim is supported by an authentic copy of the original acts, of which the following are translations:

"NACOGDOCHES, November 14, 1795.

"Mr. LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: Jacinto Mora, inhabitant of this village of our Lady of Pillar of Nacogdoches, with due respect appears by petition before you, and says that, on the east side of the river Sabine, at the place called 'Las Ormegas,' distant from the aforesaid village about twenty-five leagues, I have my stock of horses, and where it is my intention to establish a stock farm for the raising of mules, horses, horned cattle, sheep, and hogs, and likewise cultivate the soil; in virtue of which, I pray you will be pleased to grant me, for that purpose, a title of property for myself, my heirs, &c., six leagues square of land at the above-mentioned place of 'Las Ormegas,' the principal front or western boundary to extend north and south six leagues, so that the centre of the said line will be opposite the Indian crossing place on said river Sabine; the north line to begin at the northern extremity of the said front line on the east bank of said river, and extending six leagues east, forming with the front line a rectangle; the south line to commence at the southern extremity of the aforesaid front line, and extend six leagues east, forming, also, with the other, a rectangle; the line on the east side to commence at the extremity of the north line, and running parallel with the said river until it joins the extremity of the south line, so that the prairies and plains of the above Ormegas will be included in the square of the four fronts of six leagues in length each, formed by the expressed four lines. In consequence, I pray you will have the goodness to grant me the aforesaid six leagues square of land at said Ormegas, and in the manner prayed, for it being vacant, and no inhabitants near that such a grant can prejudice. And your petitioner, &c.

"JACINTO MORA."

"NACOGDOCHES, November 14, 1795.

"The syndic procuror of this jurisdiction, Don José Cayetano de Zepeda, will establish the petitioner in the aforesaid place, and in the manner asked for, if vacant, and not prejudicial to any inhabitant, proprietor of land, observing all the usual formalities of style, and extend the proceedings had in continuation for the more effectual confirmation of the title of property.

"BERNADO FERNANDEZ."

"On December 2, 1795, I, Don José Cayetano de Zepeda, syndic procuror of this district of our Lady of the Pillar of Nacogdoches, in conformity to the foregoing decree, accompanied by the assisting witnesses, Don José de la Bega and Juliano Grande, went to the place called 'Las Ormegas,' situated about twenty-five leagues from said town of Nacogdoches, and on the east side of the Sabine river, in order to establish the said Jacinto Mora, then present, and give him possession, in conformity to the foregoing order. In compliance with which, being on said premises, after having inquired if there were any inhabitants near in order to cite them to be present, and being assured that the nearest lived at least ten or twelve leagues off Las Ormegas, and that their possessions did not reach within three or four leagues of the boundaries pointed out by Jacinto Mora in his aforesaid petition, for which reason no injury could be sustained by the nearest neighbor from putting the said Jacinto Mora in possession of the vacant land he solicits, with all the extent and limits, I visited the boundaries and territory they embraced, with the assisting witnesses, and the said Jacinto Mora; and taking him by the right hand, walked with him a number of paces from the north to south, and same from east to west, and letting go his hand, he walked at pleasure on the said territory of 'Las Ormegas,' pulled up weeds, made holes in the ground, planted posts, cut bushes, took up clods of earth and threw them on the ground, and did many other acts and things in proof of the possession I had given him, in the name of his Majesty, of the said land, with its boundaries and extension, as prayed for by him; and in further demonstration of the rights and sovereignty he holds in it as the only proprietor by virtue of this act of possession, and for the more abundant proof of the property which he has acquired in said land of six leagues square, in the manner, place, and boundaries as expressed in his petition, with all the uses, privileges, and appurtenances thereunto belonging, and which he holds in said territory of 'Las Ormegas,' forming a square of six leagues each front in length, I have named it Santa Maria Adelaida, that said tract of land may, in perpetuity, be called Santa Maria Adelaida de las Ormegas. And the said Jacinto Mora being and remaining in entire and peaceable possession of all the aforesaid land according to law and right, I have, in testimony of which, signed this act of possession, with the aforesaid assisting witnesses, at this place of Santa Maria Adelaida, the day, month, and year before mentioned.

"JOSÉ CAYETANO DE ZEPEDA.

"JOSÉ LOUIS DE LA VEGA.
"JULIANO GRANDE."

"Don Bernardo Fernandez, lieutenant of cavalry and lieutenant governor of the village of our Lady of the Pillar of Nacogdoches and its jurisdiction, confirms this title in form and possession, in the name of his Majesty, (whom may God preserve,) to Jacinto Mora, for himself, his children, his heirs, and others representing his rights, in perpetuity, it appearing that from the foregoing act of possession given by the syndic of this jurisdiction that said tract of land was vacant and cannot prejudice his neighbors.

"Given in the aforesaid village December 15, 1795.

"BERNADO FERNANDEZ."

"This copy is in conformity to and with the original record in the archives under my care, to which I refer, and from which I, Dn Dionisio Vallé, lieutenant of cavalry and military and civil commandant of this village and jurisdiction of Nacogdoches, had it copied, corrected, and compared. It is true and genuine; and at which act were present William Barr, Louis Roliquet, and Vicente del Rio. In testimony of which I, the aforesaid lieutenant of cavalry, have signed it, with two assisting witnesses, and with whom I proceeded for want of a public notary, June 27, 1805; to all of which I give faith.

"DIONISIO VALLÉ.

"José PINEDA,
"MANUEL BUSTAMENTE, } Assisting witnesses."

Next follows a sale from Jacinto Mora to William Barr & Co. of the land above conceded to him, dated July 22, 1805, and passed in due form before the said lieutenant and commandant.

This claim is reported by the late board of commissioners, being No. 49 of the Natchitoches claims. By reference to that report a great body of further testimony will be found sustaining the claimant's pretensions. We have no hesitation in saying we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "first class" of claims.

182. The widow and heirs of Isaac Crow, deceased, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east bank of the river Sabine, at a place where the present road from Natchitoches to Nacogdoches crosses the said river, one half of the said tract being above or north of the said road, and the other half south of it, containing 27,755 superficial arpents, to wit: four square leagues, claimed by virtue of a grant or concession from the commandant of Nacogdoches in favor of Vincente Michelli, dated June 17, 1797, for four leagues square on each side of the river, a part of which tract, to wit: that part lying on the east side of the river was, by authentic act, dated Nacogdoches, the _____, sold and transferred by the grantee to José Miguel Crow, (meaning the husband and father of the claimants.)

The grant on which the validity of this claim depends accompanied the notice of the same claimant, Isaac Crow, filed with the late register under the act of May 11, 1820; the land claimed in both cases is the same, and we think it more regular that the title should remain as at first filed, to be reported by the register under the provisions of the above-mentioned act. Therefore, we are of opinion this claim ought not be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

183. Sarah Sheridan, now wife of William Carrell, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Le Bain, as is described in a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor, dated September 1, 1823, filed with the notice, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Latney Parrot, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Sarah Sheridan in her above notice; that the same is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about forty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class" of claims.

184. Thomas Wallace, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of David Minsey, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the west branch of Red river, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 400 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Remy Totam and John Armstrong, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Thomas Wallace in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by David Minsey (under whom the claimant holds) by his, said David, living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said David and the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

185. Thomas Wallace, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a small creek called Terre Noir, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Athanasie Poissot and P. Laffitt, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Thomas Wallace in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1805; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

186. The heirs and representatives of Bazil Gagnie, deceased, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called "La Royo Nabonchas," in the district of Bayou Pierre, bounded by the Bayou Nabonchas on one side, and on the other by Silvestre Poissot and Bouett Laffit, and containing one league square. Claimed by virtue of a grant in favor of said Bazil Gagnie, dated _____.

The claimant having suggested to the board that the title on which he relies had been put into the hands of a third person for security, we have kept this claim open until now for the purpose of giving him time to produce it; but nothing being exhibited, we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

187. Michael Chamard, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Lake Fordache, which runs into the river Piscadare, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"André Adlé and Antoine Adlé, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Michael Chamard in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated, by the claimant's living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to the year 1812; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been interruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about thirteen acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have in the abstract classed it with claims of the "third class."

188. Pavie and Noyrit, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignees of José Antonio Sepulveda, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Peidera, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Louis Procella and Jaques Hériér, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Pavie and Noyrit in their above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated in the year 1813 by José Antonio Sepulveda, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon; and that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly and uninterruptedly continued by said Sepulveda and the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about three acres."

Being of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, we have in the abstract classed it with claims of the "third class."

189. Benjamin Bullitt, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Jamieson, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the Bayou St. John, bounded above by the claim of John Freeman, and below, as is supposed, by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Freeman and Jeremiah Morrell, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Benjamin Bullitt in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the lessee of John Jamieson, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was continued to the year 1820, in the fall of which year the house and buildings were burned; and that the improvements on the land claimed embrace about twelve acres."

Believing that the claimant, on February 22, 1819, would have been, according to the usages and customs of the Spanish government of Texas, entitled to a recognition of his title, and that his right, under the United States, has not become forfeited by his subsequent abondonment, we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; and, accordingly, in the abstract it will be found with the third class of claims.—(See No. 100 of this report.)

190. Jas. Madden, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Enos Withers, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides of Bayou Kisatchie, bounded below by Joseph Grubb and above by vacant land, containing 640 acres. Which claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Ethelred Smith and Edmund Smith, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by James Madden in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Enos Withers, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Withers and the claimant after that period, and during the years 1820 and 1821; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about seven acres."

The facts in this claim and the one reported under No. 189 are the same; and, accordingly, we are of opinion that such part of the tract claimed as may be found lying on the north or west of the Kisatchie be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed this claim with those of the "third class," to that extent only; and considering the residue as lying without the limits of the late neutral territory, we are of opinion the same ought not to be confirmed.

191. André Valentine, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the Bayou Adaise, in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, bounded above by Pierre Dolet, deceased, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Pierre Laffitt and André Adlé, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by André Valentine in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1814; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly and uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about eighteen acres."

We have already recommended the confirmation of a claim in favor of the present applicant in his own right, founded on occupancy, (see No. 57,) and in conformity with the principles enforced in Nos. 46, 51, and 53, we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

192. François Rambin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the north side of a large bayou, bounded on the east by Christian Hesser, and on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Christian Hesser and S. Poissot, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by François Rambin in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1813; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly and uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eighteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

193. André Rambin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a branch of Red river, bounded on the upper side by François Prudhomme, and on the lower side by Antoine Hesser, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Christian Hesser and Sylvester Poissot, being sworn, say that they know the land claimed by André Rambin in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1810; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

194. Christopher Hesser, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the north side of a large bayou, bounded on the west by François Rambin, on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"François Rambin and Sylvester Poissot, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Christian Hesser in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, cotton, &c., thereon, in the year 1813; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly and uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class" of claims.

195. Antoine Hesser, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a branch of Red river, bounded on the lower side by John Sibley, and André Rambin on the upper side, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"François Rambin and Sylvester Poissot, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Antoine Hesser in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1817; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that his improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

196. Charles Myers and Joseph Robinson, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignees of John McLaughlin and one Baptiste, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the southwest bank of Red river, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 376.31 acres. John McLaughlin, being sworn before the board in support of his claim, deposited as follows:

"That he knows the land claimed by Charles Myers and Joseph Robinson in their above notice; that said land is situate and lying as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by one Baptiste, (from whom the claimants hold through the witness,) by said Baptiste living on the land, and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1816; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued since that year by Baptiste, the witness, and the claimants to the present day; and that the improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

The only witness here appears to be the immediate vendor of the claimants, and has such an interest in the claim as ought to have rendered him incompetent to testify. There being, then, no proof before us, we are bound to say, in our opinion, this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class"

197. Benjamin Biles, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Tertise Henson, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on Bayou Harpoon, about two miles south of Fort Jesup, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Raymond Daley and Henry Stoker, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Benjamin Biles, assignee of Tertise Henson, in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Tertise Henson, under whom the claimant holds, by her living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Henson and the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the improvements on the land claimed embrace about fifteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

198. Raymond Daley, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Harpoon, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Henry Stoker and William Morgan, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Raymond Daley in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

199. William Stafford, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice, as assignee of Louis Warren, claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the east side of the river Sabine, at a place called the Saline Prairie, bounded, as is supposed, on the upper side by the heirs of Isaac Crow, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Raymond Daley and William Morgan, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by William Stafford in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was occupied, habited, and cultivated by William Dewitt, under whom the claimant holds, by said Dewitt's living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued since that time to the present day, by said Dewitt, by Louis Warren, to whom Dewitt sold, and by claimant, to whom Warren sold; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

200. Sezare Laffitt and Louis Laffitt, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place known by the name of "Las Ormegas," on the east side of the Sabine river, containing 52,390 acres, agreeably to, and having such marks and boundaries as are represented in, a plat of survey drawn by John Dinsmore, jun., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated September 12, 1823, and filed with the notice. Claimed by virtue of a concession in favor of the claimants, given and signed by Don Joachim Ougardus, commandant of Nacogdoches, dated, as is believed, twenty-four years past; which act of concession was deposited in the archives of that post, and carried off, as is alleged, by Governor Salcedo, so that the same cannot be found to file with this claim. Claimed also by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"André Valentine and Sylvestre Poissot, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Sezare and Louis Laffitt in their above notice; that possession of said land was taken by the claimants more than twenty-four years ago, when the claimants moved on the land claimed with their families, their cattle, horses, and slaves; that the claimants kept possession, lived on, and cultivated the land, and occupied the same from the said period of more than twenty-four years ago constantly until the present day. And the declarant, Sylvestre Poissot, says that he remembers having seen a concession signed by M. Ougardus, commandant of Nacogdoches; does not recollect the date, but thinks it was dated more than twenty-three years past; that said concession was in favor of the claimants, and was for all the land between the river Sabine and the Bayou San Patrice; and both the declarants say that it was the general belief and understanding among the inhabitants of the neighborhood that the claimants had a perfect grant, without any conditions, for the land claimed; that one of the claimants told these deponents, before and after the archives and papers at Nacogdoches were carried off by Governor Salcedo, that said grant was deposited therewith, and such was the belief and understanding of these deponents and of their neighbors, that all the papers and documents in the office of the commandant at Nacogdoches were carried off forcibly by Governor Salcedo in the year 1812; and that, since that time, said papers or documents have never been found or recovered by any individual interested therein." The claimants also filed two original letters, of which the following is a translation:

"NACOGDOCHES, September 8, 1806.

"Let it be known to you that, heretofore, Cesar Laffitt brought with him, and presented to me at this post, the grant which he has as a stock at the place called 'Las Ormegas,' and you will let me know what has come to your knowledge respecting it. God preserve you. Signed by the commandant.

"DIONISIO VALLE.

"Señor Sindico Don MARCELLO Soto."

"I received the official letter which you sent me under date 8th instant, in which you tell me that I should send you Cesar Laffitt with the grant of the 'Rancho de las Ormegas.' You will know that Mr. Samuel has lost it three times, and it appears to me he cannot rely on a claim which he has lost so often. God, &c.

"MARCELLO DE SOTO."

The land claimed lies between the Sabine and Bayou San Patrice. We have abundant proof that the public documents of Nacogdoches were carried off during the revolutionary struggle in 1812; and we believe that it was seldom the practice of the inhabitants to take out copies of their grants; these considerations justify, in our opinion, a resort to parole proof to show that a grant once existed. The testimony relative to that fact is strong; and when the long and uninterrupted possession of the claimants is considered, joined to the expressions used in the letter of the commandant, we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "first class."

201. The heirs of James Denny, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignees of José y Barvo, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the south side of the Bayou of the Three Prairies, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Raymond Daley and Marian Sanchez, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by the heirs of James Denny in their above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by José y Barvo, (under whom the claimants hold,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued uninterruptedly by said José and the claimant's ancestor since that time to the present year; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

202. André Chamard, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Miguel Delgado, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in a Spanish village known by the name of the Adaise, as is described in a plat of survey made by John Dinsmore, jr., deputy surveyor of the United States, dated September 23, 1823, and containing 57.68 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Pierre Royet, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by André Chamard in his notice No. 202; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by Miguel Delgado, (who sold to the claimant,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1812; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Delgado and the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about fourteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

203. George McTier, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the left bank of Bayou Depont, containing 671.58 arpents, bounded on all sides by vacant land, as appears by a plat of survey dated December 11, 1819. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Laurent Mier and Jacques Herrier, being duly sworn, each say they know the land claimed by George McTier in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

204. The heirs of Gaspard Fiolle and of Therese Lama Bathey, his wife, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called "Bayou La Gloria," nine or ten leagues to the westward of the town of Nacogdoches, containing two leagues square, claimed in virtue of a concession given by Antonio Gil y Barvo, commandant of Nacogdoches, dated in 1790, in favor of the ancestor of the claimants for the land claimed; which title or concession the claimants represent as lost, the same having been filed in the archives of Nacogdoches, and forcibly carried off from thence by Governor Salcedo, in 1812, so that the same nor a copy thereof cannot now be had; claimed also by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation for more than thirty years. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Marian Sanchez and Dorothee Jarnac, being sworn, say they know the land claimed; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the said land has been habited, occupied, and cultivated by Gaspard Fiolle and his descendants for upwards of twenty consecutive years; they both heard, some time in the year 1790 or 1791, a paper read by the father of Dorothee Jarnac, one of the deponents, purporting to be a grant of land signed by Antonio Gil y Barvo, commandant of Natchitoches, in favor of Gaspard Fiolle, for two leagues square of land, situated at a place called Bayou La Gloria; and Marian Sanchez further says, that it was the general belief among his neighbors that Mr. Fiolle had a perfect right from the Spanish government for the land claimed; and further, that he received a paper from the commandant of Nacogdoches to deliver to Madame Gaspard, which he did deliver to her; he did not know what the paper contained, but from what the commandant said at the time, and a remark of Mrs. Gaspard on the delivery, he understood it was the grant in question. Declarant knows that Governor Salcedo issued orders for all the holders of lands within the jurisdiction of Nacogdoches to produce their titles before him to be examined and verified; this was in the year 1809, as well as he recollects; that most of the holders complied with the order; that afterwards, a number of persons demanded of the officers of Nacogdoches their titles, which demand was always evaded until the year 1812, when they were all carried off with the archives and public papers of every description by Governor Salcedo, at the commencement, or during the revolution in that country."

We feel considerable difficulty in forming an opinion on this claim. The testimony is not entirely satisfactory, particularly the latter part, which we feel disposed to reject, knowing, as we do, that the original act of concession, together with the petition and other proceedings, forming the only record, were filed and kept in the office of the commandant, and copies thereof given to the persons interested; yet these copies, the only evidence of title in possession of the claimants, must have been loosely kept, considering they were given on application, and with no other expense than a trifling gratuity to the officers.

On the whole, we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the claims of the "first class."

205. Mary Eliza Case, wife of William M. Rivers, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of William Stockman, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated as follows: bounded by the Spanish lake, and above by land claimed by George McTier, and known as Stockman's place, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Laurent Maylieux and George McTier, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Mary E. Case in her above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by William Stockman, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the said Stockman, and others claiming under him, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land embrace about 23 acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

206. George McTier, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a Spanish lake, bounded below by land claimed by Mary E. Case, and above by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Laurent Mayreux and Jacques Heriet, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by George McTier in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, twelve years ago; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land embrace about seven acres."

We have already recommended the confirmation of a claim (No. 203) in favor of the present applicant, founded on habitation, occupation, and cultivation in his own right. Therefore, in our opinion, this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."—(See Nos. 46, 51, 174.)

207. Davis Case, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of Red river, about six or seven leagues above the town of Natchitoches, bounded below by land formerly of José Jeanis, and at present owned by William Murray, and above by the improvement of Moses Watts—the claimant holding under a sale from John Armon. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"George McTier and Laurent Mailreux, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by David Case in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John Armon, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, about twelve years since; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation were uninterruptedly continued by said Armon from that time until about three years since, when he left the place, but the fences, &c., have been kept up until the present time; that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres; that Armon never had an intention of abandoning the land, but quit it solely on the ground of his children's health, and always had an intention of returning thereto until his sale to the claimant."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."—(See No. 100.)

208. The heirs and representatives of John Dawson, of the parish of Rapide, filed their notice, claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on both sides of Bayou Piedra, and on the road leading from Natchitoches to Gaines' Ferry, on the Sabine, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Samuel Davenport and James McCracken, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by the heirs and representatives of John Dawson in their above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John Dawson, the claimant's ancestor, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1811; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was uninterruptedly continued by said Dawson until his death in 1816; that the occupation, cultivation, and inhabitation were uninterruptedly continued from that time for the claimants, by and through Marian Sanchez, James McCracken, and Henry Stoker, to the present day; and James McCracken further says that Sanchez, himself, and Stoker occupied the land in virtue of the permission of the claimants."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

209. The heirs and legal representatives of Gaspard Fiolle, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Goutiere, about six leagues from the town of Natchitoches, and on the road to Opelousas, and containing two leagues all around said Bayou Goutiere, claimed by virtue of a grant signed by Estevan Miro, governor of the province of Louisiana, dated October 3, 1787, in favor of the said Fiolle; claimed also by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation. The claimants filed the original documents, of which the following are translations in substance:

"The petition of Gaspard Fiolle, addressed to Pedro Rousseau, commandant of Natchitoches, praying for a piece of land situated at the Bayou Goutiere, on the road to Opelousas, and about six leagues from this post, it being the same land formerly established by Mr. Louis Cesare Borne, and by him abandoned for about twelve years. The petitioner prays to be permitted to establish himself on the land, and that there be conceded him two leagues round the Bayou Goutiere, to yield pastureage and support to the different kinds of stock and animals which he hopes soon to put upon it. Dated April 14, 1786. On September 20, 1787, the commandant says, considering, among other things, "that said land is not fit for cultivation, being pine woods, and only proper for a vacharie, it is permitted to the petitioner to establish his vacharie thereon until it shall please the government to accord a title in form,

"PIERRE ROUSSEAU."

"NEW ORLEANS, October 3, 1787.—The surveyor general of this province will give possession of the two leagues of land, with the short depth, 'corta profundidad,' expressed, and in the place solicited, the same being vacant, and prejudicial to no one, with this indispensable condition, of making the road, clearing and cutting the timber within the precise time of one year; and if not done in three years, and in case the land shall not then be settled, this grant to be null and void; and with the further restriction of not selling it under the same term of three years; and under these conditions he shall survey the land, and shall extend the evidence of his possession, which shall be remitted to me, that I may provide the interested party with his complete title.

"ESTEVAN MIRO."

No proof was adduced before us that the road was made and cleared within the year, or that the same was ever done, or that the land claimed was ever settled; consequently we must say that the essential conditions of the grant were never performed, and declare, in the language of the instrument itself, the same to be null and void. Therefore we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

210. Joseph T. Montgomery, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Abm. Dinton, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate in the forks of the Négreite bayou, adjoining the claim of Thomas Gray, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Gray and James Bridges, being sworn, say they know the land claimed by Joseph T. Montgomery in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by Abraham Dinton, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was continued by said Dinton until his sale to Thomas Gray, and by him and others claiming through him and the claimant, since the said February 22, 1819, until the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

211. Baptiste Adlé, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate at a place called "Sacanarie," on the Bayou Cypre, bounded, as is supposed, on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Antoine Adlé and André Adlé, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Baptiste Adlé in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that time to this day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about five acres."

212. Thomas Gray, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Domingo Gonzales, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the Bayou Négreite, bounded on the north by the claim of Davenport, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Bridges, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Thomas Gray in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by Domingo Gonzales, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Gonzales and the claimant since that time until this day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

Domingo Gonzales, from whom the claimant derives his right, has, before this board, filed his notice, claiming in his own right, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, on and prior to February 22, 1819, another tract, (see No. 147,) which claim we recommended for confirmation. This claim is precisely similar to the one reported under No. 53; and applying to this case the same reasons which we recognized in that, we give it as our opinion that this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

213. Jacques Lapiné, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou See, at the prairie called La Cabache; bounded, as is supposed, on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jacques Herriet and Jean Leoné, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Jacques Lapiné in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1812; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that year to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about six acres.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

214. Absalom J. Winfree, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Waddill, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Sabine river, bounded on all sides, as is supposed, by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Nicholas Jacks, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Abraham J. Winfree in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by John Waddill, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was continued during the years 1819 and 1820; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about two acres."

We have before recommended the confirmation of a claim (see No. 8) in favor of the claimant's assignor, John Waddill, in virtue, and in his own right of occupation, &c.; and according to our decisions in claims Nos. 46, 51, 53, we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

215. Nicholas Jacks, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Nedum Alford, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on a branch of the Toreaux, and between lands claimed by Hugh McNeely and Benjamin Morris, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Thomas Gray and Abraham J. Winfree, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Nicholas Jacks in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was habited, occupied, and cultivated by Nedum Alford, (through and by his hired man, one Miller,) under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly continued since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

216. Manuel Flores, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the right bank of the Bayou Terre Blanche in ascending, bounded below by Madame Louis Chamara, above by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"George McTier and L. Meileux, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Manuel Flores in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his growing corn, &c., and living thereon, on and prior to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

217. The heirs of Andrew Franks, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Peidra, about twenty-one miles from Natchitoches, on the road to Nacogdoches, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Eltredge, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Andrew Franks' heirs in their above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant's ancestor in the year 1810; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was continued until the year 1812. Believes, and has reason to believe, that the ancestor of the claimants was expelled from his possession, or ordered off by the commander of the United States troops and Spanish forces in the year 1812; knows not whether the claimant or any other in his name, or by his authority, ever resumed the occupation."

. We have decided (see Nos. 121 and 123,) that when it was shown that possession of the land claimed was abandoned prior to February 22, 1819, we could not recommend a confirmation of the title; but those cases and this are not similar; there the abandonment was voluntary; here it was coerced. We are to presume that the claimant would have continued his possession, and thus have brought himself within the letter of the law under which we are acting, had he not been prevented by the exercise of superior authority; and can the government oppose to the claim its own act, and one to which the claimant gave no assent? We think not. It is known that in the year 1812 the United States troops did expel and force off a number of settlers on the neutral ground, burning their houses, destroying their property, &c. We think that justice and equity sanctions the opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

218. John Yocom, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Thomas Thompson, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the lower end of the Ewany Prairie about three miles from the Sabine, bounded on the south by land claimed by James Wilson, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Wilson and George Stewart, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by John Yocom in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was occupied and cultivated by John Yocom, the claimant, in the year 1817, by his growing corn, &c., thereon; that the same has been uninterruptedly occupied and cultivated by the claimant since that time to the present day; and that during the whole of the time above specified the claimant lived with his father about four hundred yards off from the land claimed.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."—(See Nos. 23, 44.)

219. Thomas D. Yocom, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated near the Ewany Prairie, bounded on the south by land claimed by John Yocom, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"George Stewart and James Wilson, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Thomas D. Yocom in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

220. John Yocom, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Jesse Yocom, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in and near the Prairie Ewany, bounded on the south by land claimed by Thomas D. Yocom, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"George Stewart and James Wilson, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by John Yocom, assignee, &c., in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Jesse Yocom, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1817; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the said Jesse Yocom, and the claimant holding under him, since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about twelve acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

221. Mathias Yocom, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Louis Chabineaud, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in the Prairie Ewany, bounded on the south and west by John Yocom, assignee of Jesse Yocom, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"George Stewart and James Wilson, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Mathias Yocom in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was occupied and cultivated by the claimant, by his growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1817; that said occupation and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that time until the present; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

222. Samuel S. Carnes, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Richard Simms, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a branch of the Bayou Toreaux, in the upper settlement of the Hickory Woods, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jesse Yocom and Thomas D. Yocom, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Samuel S. Carnes in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Richard Simms, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the years 1814 and 1815; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was uninterruptedly continued by said Simms during four or five years thereafter; that the claimant, under his purchase from said Simms, has occupied, inhabited, and cultivated the land for about one or two years; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about nine acres."

The testimony brings the occupation and cultivation, at least, up to February 22, 1819. The establishment of this fact we have heretofore thought entitled the claimant to recover.—(See Nos. 100, 189.)

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

223. John Palvadore, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou "La Bonne Chassé," bounded by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Bte. Plaisance, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by John Palvadore in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land embrace about seven acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

224. The heirs of Edward Murphy, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated near the Lake Juan de Mora, having two leagues front to each cardinal point, or four square leagues, claimed by virtue of a concession given and signed by the commandant of Nacogdoches, and dated —, for said tract of land, in favor of John Quinility, who, afterwards, as the notice alleges, on or about June 15, 1799, sold to the claimants' ancestor; which concession, as is further alleged, is lost, and cannot, or a copy thereof, be found to file herewith, the same having been returned to the commandant of Nacogdoches agreeably to orders, and from thence carried off forcibly by Governor Salcedo in 1812, with all the papers and archives of that post; claimed also by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation for more than thirty years. The claim is supported only by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Sibley, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by the heirs of Edward Murphy in their above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described. Deponent knew the sons of the grantee, John Quinility, about six years past, at which time one of them, James, told this deponent that his father had a concession for the land claimed. Deponent has known the land claimed for twenty years, and that it was always called Quinility's place."

"Bertrand Plaisance, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by the heirs of Edward Murphy in their above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was habited, occupied, and cultivated by John Quinility, under whom the claimants hold, by his living and growing corn, &c., keeping his vacharies, horses, &c., thereon, more than thirty-five years past; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was uninterruptedly continued for more than ten years, and until his sale to the claimants' ancestor; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation was continued by the claimants' ancestor until the year 1806, when the buildings and houses were burned by Captain Turner, of the United States army. Deponent has always understood and believed, and it was the understanding and belief among his neighbors and the inhabitants generally, that the said John Quinility had a written grant for the land claimed, emitted by the Spanish government, though he never saw the grant, nor knows the quantity conceded."

"Theodore Grilliet, being duly sworn, says that he has heard read the preceding declaration of Bertrand Plaisance, and that the facts therein stated are true, with the exception that this deponent does not know that the land claimed was settled previous to thirty years past."

This testimony does not clearly prove the pre-existence of the grant; but, if stronger was required, would not this description of claimants, in every case, be precluded from establishing their rights? Facts similar to the one here attempted to be shown among an illiterate people, with few exceptions knowing not how to read or write, can only be substantiated by a sort of traditional belief—a general understanding among themselves. We think the early settlement of the land, and the fact that grants were seldom denied by the Spanish authorities, are considerations that may correctly be brought forward in aid of the testimony. See further answers to the general interrogatories preceding this report.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "first class."

225. Bernard Pantalion's representatives, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of a concession signed by the commandant of Nacogdoches, dated April 20, 1798, in favor of the claimants' ancestor, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, bounded east by the Spanish lake, south by the Bayou Terre Blanche, north by the Bayou Durasmus, extending from said lake two leagues west.

No document of title or testimony of any kind accompanies this notice; but we were referred generally to a notice of the same claimants, filed November 11, 1820, with the late register, under the act of May 11, 1820, and with which the concession here relied on is to be found. No particular benefit can result to the claimants from an examination of their pretensions by the board, and we think it more regular that the title should remain as at first filed, to be reported by the present register under the above-mentioned act; consequently this claim must be rejected, and in the abstract we have classed it under claims of the "fourth class."—(See Nos. 118, 120.)

226. François Robin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, and situated on the west bank of Old river, bounded above by land of James Bloodworth and below by the heirs of Orizème Buard, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Gaspard Boudin, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by François Robin in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period up to last spring, when his houses, &c., were burned; that the inhabitation has not been abandoned, and that the claimant is now preparing buildings, &c. for the purpose of renewing his cultivation.

227. Remy Totan, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, habitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Tapalcat, bounded, as is supposed, all round by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Laurient Maylieux, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Remy Totan in his above notice; that said land is lying and situated as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, fifteen years since; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period until the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about forty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

228. Mary Routh Booker, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on a branch running into the Bayou Provençal, about half a mile below the Ewany trace, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Peter Sydick and John Baptiste Sydick, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Mary Routh Booker in her above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John Self, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said Self raised one crop on the land, and sold the same to Thomas Villars, who continued said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation one year, and then sold the land to the claimant, who has uninterruptedly continued said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation from that time to this day; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

229. Ambroise Lecomte, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate in the Prairie Lianacucu, fronting on the Bayou Lianacucu, bounded by lands of John Baptiste Lecomte, containing twenty arpents front by forty in depth, being equal to 677 American acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Gaspard Boudin, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Ambroise Lecomte in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by and through his agents and others holding under him, living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1808; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that time to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about forty-five acres."

We are of opinion, on this testimony, the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

230. John Baptiste Lecompte, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called Lianacucu, and containing, agreeably to a plat of survey filed in the claim, drawn by Joseph Irwin, then a deputy surveyor of the United States, dated in 1813, two leagues square, or 28,507 acres, claimed by virtue of a request or concession signed by the commandant of Nacogdoches, and dated July 31, 1797, in favor of Juan Baptiste D'Artigueau for the land claimed; transferred by the said D'Artigueau to Marie Louise Lecomte Dame Porter, by act of exchange, dated —, and by said Dame Porter transferred to the claimant by act of sale, dated June 19, 1813; claimed also in virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation for more than thirty-three years.

"Dr. Juan Baptiste D'Artigueau communicates to you, with due respect, that he desires to establish a stock farm in the place called the Anacucu, of this jurisdiction, in consequence of which he prays you to grant him two leagues of land square in said place, in such a manner that it shall contain the whole of the plains of Lianacucu, todo el nano de Lianacucu, as well for himself as for his heirs and descendants. Should you grant this request, &c. Nacogdoches, July 31, 1797. Signed Baptiste D'Artigueau." "Nacogdoches, July 31, 1797. Let this request pass to the procurador of this jurisdiction, provided no prejudice shall accrue to third persons. Guadiana."

The claim is further supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Gaspard Boudin, being sworn, says that he is a creole of this country, and fifty-eight years of age; that he knows the land claimed by Jean Baptiste Lecomte in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land has been constantly and uninterruptedly inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by those under whom the claimant holds, by the claimant, and for his use by others, for more than thirty-three years preceding this date."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of "second class."

231. Emanuel Trichel, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of habitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate in the Prairie Chatidana, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Alexander Germieul, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Emanuel Trichel in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about six acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the "third class of claims."

232. James Bludworth, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Bennett, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Lac Pitite Embarras at its junction with Old river, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Alfred Bludworth, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John Bennett, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1812; that Bennett continued said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, until his death, in 1815; that a few months afterwards the land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Bradburn and Jacobson, who lived thereon about two years, under a permission from the claimant, after which the land was not inhabited nor occupied until August 1, 1823, when the claimant recommenced the inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, and has uninterruptedly continued the same until the present time. Claimant has at all times had his hogs on the land, and has cut timber and wood thereon."

We have already said that rights or claims to land resulting from possession and occupancy became, under the usages and customs of the Spanish government, lost by subsequent relinquishment or voluntary abandonment of such possession and occupancy. If we are correct, it results that, at the date of the treaty between the United States and Spain, the land now claimed was fully reannexed to the domain.—(See Nos. 121 and 123.)

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

233. Asa Hickman, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of John Mayhaw, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Santaburb, bounded above by other land claimed by the claimant, on other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Wm. Hickman and Theo. Hickman, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Asa Hickman in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by John Mayhaw, (who sold to the claimant,) by his living and growing corn and peas, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the said Mayhaw and by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

234. The heirs of François Rouquier, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of an order of survey, signed by Estevan Miro, governor of the province of Louisiana, in favor of Dominique Prudhomme, and dated October 5, 1786, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of that branch of Red river, called Old river, at the place called "La Petit Ecor," and adjoining below by land claimed by Jean Marie François Roquier, containing forty arpents front by forty arpents in depth.

The claimant filed in support of his claim the original requette of Dominique Prudhomme, dated July 18, 1786, praying for the land claimed; on which the governor, in the usual form, under date of October 5, 1786, orders the surveyor general to put the party in possession. An authentic sale from the grantee, Dominique Prudhomme, dated December 20, 1786, is also filed. These documents are so mutilated by the ravages of time and insects that we can only give their substance.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "second class."

235. Jean Marie François Rouquier, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of an order of survey, signed by Estevan Miro, then governor of the province of Louisiana, in favor of the claimant, dated October 4, 1786, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of that branch of Red river, called Old river, immediately below the place called "Petit Ecor," to adjoin the next preceding tract, and containing forty arpents front by forty arpents in depth.

The claimant filed in support of his claim his original petition, dated July 18, 1786, praying for the land claimed, on which the governor, in the usual form, October 4, 1786, orders the surveyor general to put the party in possession. This document is so torn by the ravages of time and insects that we can only give its substance.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "second class."

236. James Kirkham, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of Juan Segine, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate on the Bayou Piedra, or Pedro, bounded on the upper side by other land of the claimant, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Robert Sharp and John Sheridan, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by James Kirkham in his notice No. 236; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Juan Segine, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Segine, under whom the claimant holds, since that period to the present time, with the exception of last summer, of which the declarants do not know, not having seen the land during that year; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

237. Michel Rambin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Pierre settlement, bounded on the northeast by land of Pierre Laffitt, southwest by Madame Prudhomme, southeast by Mrs. Rucky, and other sides by vacant land, containing two hundred and eighty-one acres and seventy-one-hundredths of an acre. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Louis Procella and Remy De Soto, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Michel Rambin in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1812; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that year to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about three acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

238. Marcel De Soto, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east side of Bayou Pierre, bounded north by vacant land, by Michel Rambin and Madame Baptiste Bastine partly on the east, and containing one thousand thirteen acres and twenty-six-hundredths of an acre. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Christian Hesser, (before the board,) being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Marcel De Soto in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, for more than twenty-three years last past; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres. And Louis Vacou, being sworn, says the above facts are all within his own knowledge, except that he does not know that the land claimed has been cultivated and inhabited more than ten years past."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed to the extent of six hundred and forty acres, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

239. Louis Procella, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east side of Bayou Pierre, bounded below by Marcel De Soto, and on all other sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Christian Hesser and Remy De Soto, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Louis Procella in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1814; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued since that year by the claimant, and by his father and mother under him, to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about four acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

240. Pavie and Noyrit, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at a place called "Las res Llanos," being the tract on which Louis Latham lately resided, and containing one league square, claimed by virtue of a Spanish concession in favor of José Sanchez, who sold and transferred the same by act dated June 2, 1818, to José Antonio Sepulveda, and by him sold and transferred to the claimant on November 18, 1820.

No document of title, or testimony of any kind, was filed with this notice, but we were referred generally to the proof accompanying the notice for the land here prayed for, filed with the late register, No. 64, under the act of May 11, 1820. No particular benefit can result to the claimants from an examination of their claim here, and we think it more regular that the testimony should remain as at first filed, to be examined and reported by the register under the above-mentioned act.—(See Nos. 118, 120.) Therefore, we are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

241. Vincent Jackson, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of William Ash, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the east bank of the Sabine river, about two miles below the Cashata village, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Morris McLaughlin, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Vincent Jackson in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by William Ash, by his living and growing potatoes, peach trees, &c., thereon, some time about the year 1810; that at that time said Ash had about seven acres cleared. Witness has never seen the place since."

The rights of the claimant were lost by non-continuation of occupancy.—(See Nos. 121, 123, and 232.)

We are of opinion this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."

242. Pierre Roblot, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Na Bon Chassé, bounded above by land claimed by Philip Flores, below by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jacob Nord and Remy Totan, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Pierre Roblot in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1810; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that year to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

243. Philip Flores, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the waters of Bayou "Na Bon Chassé," bounded on the lower side by Pierre Roblot, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jacob Nord and Remy Totan, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Philip Flores in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

244. Claude Antoine Choppin, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at "L'Isle a Bolieu," in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, bounded, as is supposed, by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Pierre Bolieu and Edward Bolieu, fils, being duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by Claude Antoine Choppin in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Baptiste Soline, the hireling of the claimant, and for his benefit, by his living, and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; and that the claimants' improvements on the land claimed embrace about four acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

245. Pierre Bolieu, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate at the "Isle a Bolieu," in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, bounded below by vacant land, and above by Charles Noyrit, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Laurent Meillieu, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Pierre Bolieu in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1810; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that year to the present day; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty-four acres. And C. A. Choppin, being also sworn, says that the land claimed was in a high state of cultivation by the claimant in 1819."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

246. Laurent Meillieu, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in "L'Isle a Bolieu," bounded above by Michel Rambin, and below by Pierre Caillieu, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Pierre Bolieu and Edward Bolieu, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Laurent Meillieu in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Pierre Caillieu, on account and for the benefit of the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about five acres."

On this testimony we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

247. Edward Bolieu, fils, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated at "L'Isle a Bolieu," in the settlement of Bayou Pierre, bounded by Pierre Bolieu above and Francois Serpentine below, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board :

"Laurent Meillieu, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Edward Bolieu, fils, in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1810; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that year to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

On this proof we are of opinion the claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with the claims of the "third class."

248. The heirs of Louis Souligne, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated in "L'Isle a Bolieu," bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Laurent Meillieu and E. Bolieu, fils, being duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by the heirs of Louis Souligne in their above notice; and that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimants' ancestor, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1813; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by him and the claimants since that year to the present time; and that the claimants' improvements on the land embrace ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

249. Pierre Roblot, of the parish of Natchitoches, assignee of José Antonio Skiewell, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Bayou Na Bon Chassé, bounded on the lower side by Rosimo Gannie, on other sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Jacob Nord, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Pierre Roblot in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by José Antonio Skiewell, (from whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and before February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by said Skiewell from that period until about eight months since; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

250. Jacques Grappe, of the parish of Natchitoches, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabituation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the Sicicaacha bayou, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Francisco Rouas and Pierre Moran, being severally sworn, say they know the land claimed by Jacques Grappe in his above notice; that the same is situated as is therein described; that said tract was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation has been continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the improvement on the tract claimed embraces about fifty acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

251. Martha Andrus, of the parish of St. Landry, filed her notice claiming, by virtue of settlement and occupation, a tract of land in the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the river Quelqueshue, bounded above by John Henderson, and below by Mitchel Neal, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Thomas Stewart, being duly sworn, depoeth and says that the land claimed was, to his knowledge, settled and cleared to the extent of two acres by John Clark, (who sold to Sally Andrus, the deceased daughter of the claimant, and from whom she heirs,) about the year 1814. Deponent does not know that the settlement continued till about three years, when one Arsene Le Blue, for the claimant, entered on the land, and has cultivated it ever since."

We are of opinion that this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

252. Dempsey Isles, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land, situated on the west bank of the river Quelqueshue, north of the Bayou Dan, bounded by H. Coward above, and below by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"In the claim of Dempsey Isles, William Smith, being sworn, says that he knows the land since the year 1818 to the present time; that from that time to the present it has been cultivated to the extent of sixteen acres, in corn and potatoes—first by James Ashworth, (who sold his right to the claimant, as appears by a sale on file,) and then by the present claimant ever since; that it is situated on the ancient bed of the Quelqueshue river, and that James Ashworth is about fifty years of age."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

253. Elias Blunt, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of Archibald Smith, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land, situated on the west bank of the Quelqueshue river, at a place called Blunt's Ferry, bounded below by William and George Smith, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being sworn, says that he has known the land since the year 1818; that from that time to the present it has been settled and cultivated to the extent of about thirty acres—first by Archibald Smith, from whom the claimant holds, until the year 1821; that the land is situated on the right bank of the Quelqueshue river, at a place called Blunt's Ferry."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

254. Hardy Coward, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of Aaron Cherry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land, situated on the west bank of the river Quelqueshue, bounded on one side by McKee's bayou, and on the other by the claim of George Smith, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith, being sworn, says that he has known the land since the year 1818 to the present time, and that from that time to the present it has been constantly inhabited and cultivated to the extent of about ten acres, in corn, pumpkins, &c.—first by Aaron Cherry, (from whom the claimant holds,) till the last year; it is situated on the right bank of the Quelqueshue river, bounded on one side by McKee's bayou; and that the said Cherry is about forty years of age, and the head of a family."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

255. Archibald Thompson, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land, situated in the late neutral territory, on the east prong of Bayou Dinde, (which is a west branch of the Quelqueshue river,) fronting on the west side of said prong, bounded on all sides by vacant land, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith, being sworn, says that he knows the land since the year 1818 to the present time, and that during this space it has been constantly inhabited and cultivated by the claimant to the extent of four acres, in corn, potatoes, &c.; that it is situated as mentioned in the foregoing notice, and that the claimant is about thirty years of age, and the head of a family."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

256. George Fogleman, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of settlement and occupancy prior to February 22, 1819, a tract of land, lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Quelqueshue river, on the Spanish trace, about two miles above Charles' lake, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Hooser and David Hooser, being sworn, say that they know the land in question, and have known it since the year 1817; that in the spring of that year the claimant cleared and cultivated about five acres of the land in corn, &c.; and that the land in question is situated as mentioned in the preceding notice."

From the notice and testimony it appears that the land was voluntarily abandoned on February 22, 1819; therefore, we must say, in our opinion, this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class." (See No. 232, and the Nos. there referred to.)

257. James Going, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of settlement and occupancy, a tract of land in the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Quelqueshue river, on the east bank of the Bayou Show Pique, opposite the claim of James Ashworth, and containing three hundred and twenty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Ashworth, being sworn, says that he has known the land since the month of January, 1819; that from that time to the present the claimant had settled, resided on, and cultivated it to the extent of about six acres, in corn, potatoes, &c.; that it is situated as mentioned in the foregoing notice."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

258. James Ashworth, jr., of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of settlement and occupancy, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Quelqueshue river, and on the west side of the Show Pique bayou, about fifteen miles above the entrance of said bayou into the Quelqueshue river, at a crossing of said bayou, which is about two miles south of the Spanish trace, and containing three hundred and twenty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Going, being sworn, says that he has known the land claimed since the month of January, 1819; that at that time it was settled and cultivated by the claimant to the extent of about five acres, in corn, potatoes, &c.; that the claimant has continued to reside on said land, and to cultivate it from that time to the present; and that it is situated as mentioned in the foregoing notice of the claimant."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

259. James Barnett, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of George Orr and Abel Terrell, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land situated on the river Sabine, at the old Spanish crossing, having a cabin on each side of the road, containing 640 acres. In support of the claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks states on oath that the land was settled and cultivated by George Orr and Abel Terrell, from whom the claimant holds, in the year 1818, and for three years since; since that time deponent has not seen the land." "William Smith, on oath, in the same claim, confirms the testimony of Franks, and adds, that he saw the place about eighteen months since, and it was then inhabited and under good fence, as the property of said Orr and Terrell."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

260. Jacob E. Self, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of Rezin Bowie, sen., who was assignee of William Andrus, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Quelqueshue river, about six miles above Lake Charles, bounded above by lands of Isaac Foster, and containing 640 acres. In support of this claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"James Simmons, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that he is well acquainted with the land of the claimant; that it is situated about six miles above Lake Charles, on the west side of the Quelqueshue river, at or near the junction of the west fork with the main river; that the land in question has been inhabited and cultivated for about ten years, in regular succession, to the extent of about ten acres, in corn, potatoes, and the like—first by William Andrus, and afterwards by others under him, including the claimant, who has occupied it for several years, and has made continual improvements thereon."

261. Rees Perkins, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of Gibson Johnson, (who purchased of Devers, who purchased of Burrell Franks,) filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the north side of the west branch of the Quelqueshue river, about four miles above the improvement made by John Gilchris, and containing 640 acres. In support of this claim the following testimony was taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being sworn, deposeth that he knows the land since the year 1818; that about that time, and before February, 1819, Charles Savoyard made a settlement and improvement of about two acres, planted in corn, &c.; that said Savoyard made a verbal transfer of said settlement to this deponent, who sold to Devers, who sold to Gibson Johnson, who sold to the claimant; that the said land is situated on the north side of the west branch of the Quelqueshue river, and about four miles above the improvement made by John Gilchris, at the first fork of the west branch."

It is not shown that the land claimed was either occupied or cultivated February 22, 1819, by the claimant, or those under whom he holds. We are, therefore, of opinion that this claim ought not to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "fourth class."—(See No. 256.)

262. Rees Perkins, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of David Choat, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the right bank of the Quelqueshue river, about a mile above Blunt's Ferry, and the same distance below Devers' Ferry, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being duly sworn, says he has known the land since the year 1818, and that since that time to the present it has been constantly inhabited and cultivated by David Choat; that about twenty-five acres were under fence and cultivation in corn, potatoes, &c., during the greater part of the time, and previous to February, 1819; that the land is situated as described in claimant's notice."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed; and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

263. Rees Perkins, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of John Gilchris, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of occupation, inhabitation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the right bank of the west branch of the Quelqueshue river, at a pine bluff about three miles from the mouth of said branch, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The following testimony was taken before the board in support of this claim:

"Burrell Franks, being sworn, says he has known the land since the year 1818, and from that time to the present it has been constantly inhabited and cultivated by John Gilchris, (till about a year past,) and by others under him ever since; that about thirteen acres have been cleared on said land, and cultivated in corn, potatoes, &c., before and since the year 1818, and up to this time; is situated on a west branch of the Quelqueshue river, and on the right bank, about three miles from the mouth of the branch by water, and at a pine bluff."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

264 Drury Bunch, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the river Quelqueshue, about ten miles above John Henderson's, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"John Stewart, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Drury Bunch in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by said Drury Bunch, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

265. James Barnett, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of Joshua Johnson, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Quelqueshue river, adjoining below to the claim of David Choat, and on which Mrs. Coleman now lives, containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith and Burrell Franks, being both duly sworn, say they know the land claimed by James Barnett in his foregoing notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Joshua Johnson, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant and those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

266. Hardy Coward, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of William Isles, who purchased of Moses Ashworth, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the river Quelqueshue, on the south bank of McKee's bayou, and the same on which the claimant now lives, bounded below by the claim of Dempsey Isles, and containing six hundred and forty acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Hardy Coward in his foregoing notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Moses Ashworth, (who sold to William Isles,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1816; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, has been uninterruptedly continued since that time, by said Ashworth, and by William Isles, and the claimant holding under him, to the present day; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about thirty-five acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

267. Michel Neil, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Bayou Quelqueshue, bounded above by Arsen le Blue, below by Jos. Clark, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Michel Neil in his above notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about twelve acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

268. John Henderson, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the river Quelqueshue, about one and a half mile below the claim of Martin Carmersac on the east side, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by John Henderson in his above notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that said tract was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that the said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that his improvements on the land embrace about 45 acres.

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

269. Burrell Franks, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of Quelqueshue lake, at a place called Hackberry island, it being a small island surrounded by sea marsh, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William V. Smith, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Burrell Franks in his above notice; that the same is lying and situated as is therein described; that the same was occupied and cultivated by the claimant, by his growing vegetables thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said occupation and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that his improvements on the land embrace about one quarter of an acre."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

270. Jacob Ryan, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Bayou Quelqueshue, about six miles above the Little lake, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Henry Moss, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Jacob Ryan in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, cotton, and potatoes, thereon, in the year 1817, though he commenced the improvement in 1816; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly continued by the claimant since that period to the present time; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces sixteen acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

271. Hiram Ours, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land (through a chain of transfers from Jourdan Perkins) lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of Bayou Quelqueshue, being on the north side of Bayou d'Inde, about one mile and a half from its mouth, and at the first bluff, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony:

"Henry Moss and Isaac Ryan, being both duly sworn, say that they know the land claimed by Hiram Ours in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Jourdan Perkins, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1818, or the year preceding; that the same has been constantly inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, and by those under whom he holds, since that period to the present time, with the exception of the year 1820, when the place laid idle; and that the claimant's improvement on the land claimed embraces about eight acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

272. Henry Moss, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situate west of the Bayou Quelqueshue, on the waters of the Bayou d'Inde, about two miles below and south of the old Spanish trace to the Sabine, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Isaac Ryan, being sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Henry Moss in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was occupied and cultivated by the claimant, by his growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1818; that said cultivation and occupation has been uninterruptedly continued since that period to the present time; that the claimant, in consequence of the unsettled state of the country, did not actually live on the land until the year 1821, since which he has constantly inhabited the land claimed; and that his improvements may embrace about fifteen acres."

The facts in this claim are similar to those in claim No. 23, and for the reasons therein given we are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

273. Jacob Ryan, of the parish of Natchitoches, (meaning St. Landry,) assignee of Joseph Cornow, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Bayou Quelqueshue, bounded above by the claimant, at a bluff about five miles above the Little lake, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Henry Moss, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Jacob Ryan in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Joseph Cornow, (under whom the claimant holds,) by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, in the year 1818; that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation was continued constantly by said Cornow for about two or three years, or until he sold to the claimant; that afterwards one Nathaniel Clifton occupied, inhabited, and cultivated the land; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about six acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

274. George King and John B. Hamilton, of the parish of St. Landry, filed their notice claiming, by virtue of settlement and occupancy, a tract of land situated on the east branch of the Quelqueshue river, called Bayou Darbon, and on the west side thereof, located on a creek called Mill creek, bounded on all sides by vacant land, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"James Simmons, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that he is well acquainted with the land of the aforesaid claimant; that it is situated on the west side of the eastern branch of the Quelqueshue river, called the Darbon, and on a small water-course called Mill creek, about a mile from the Darbon; that it was settled and cultivated by the claimants, and by them occupied from the fall of the year 1818 to the present time, in regular succession, to the extent of about twenty or twenty-five acres, in corn, potatoes, and the like."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

275. Joseph Clark, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of Bayou Quelqueshue, bounded above by Michel Neil, and below by Isaac Foster, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Joseph Clark in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, through William Isles, his agent or lessee, by his living and cultivating corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819. Deponent does not know that said inhabitation, occupation, and cultivation, has been continued since that period, but knows that some of the fences are yet standing, together with peach trees; he supposes there are about twelve acres improved on the land claimed."

This claim is similar to others before recommended, (see Nos. 100, 189,) therefore,

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

276. Rees Perkins, of the parish of St. Landry, assignee of Philip P. Devers, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Bayou Quelqueshue, at a place called Devers' Ferry, about a mile above David Choat's settlement, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by Rees Perkins in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by Philip P. Devers, under whom the claimant holds, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been constantly continued since that period by said Devers, and others by his permission, to the present time; and that the improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

277. Isaac Foster, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Quelqueshue river, bounded below by Jacob E. Self, and above by Ogden, being the same on which the claimant now resides, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"William Smith, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by Isaac Foster in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was occupied, inhabited, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that his improvement on the land claimed embraces about twenty-five acres."

278. William Smith, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Bayou Quelqueshue, bounded above by Elias Blunt, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by William Smith in his above notice; that said land is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued by the claimant since that period to the present day; and that his improvement on the land claimed embraces about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

279. George Smith, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west side of the Bayou Quelqueshue, bounded by land of William Smith, and containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being duly sworn, says he knows the land claimed by George Smith in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that the same was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been uninterruptedly continued since that period to the present day; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about ten acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the "third class."

280. George Orr, of the parish of St. Landry, filed his notice claiming, by virtue of inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation, a tract of land lying within the late neutral territory, situated on the west bank of the Bayou Quelqueshue, bounded above by the claim of Jacob E. Self, and below by vacant land, containing 640 acres. The claim is supported by the following testimony taken before the board:

"Burrell Franks, being duly sworn, says that he knows the land claimed by George Orr in his above notice; that the same is lying and situate as is therein described; that said land was inhabited, occupied, and cultivated by the claimant, by his living and growing corn, &c., thereon, on and previous to February 22, 1819; that said inhabituation, occupation, and cultivation has been continued since that period until a few months since; and that the claimant's improvements on the land claimed embrace about four acres."

We are of opinion this claim ought to be confirmed, and in the abstract have classed it with claims of the third class.

In closing this report we are under the necessity of remarking that it has been represented to us that the tract of land claimed by Henry Stoker, assignee of Alexander Calhoun, by virtue of occupancy, and recommended for confirmation under No. 42, embraces the same ground on which the United States military works and buildings at Cantonment Jesup now stand, and there may be other claims similarly situated. In order to guard, therefore, against conflicting interests, we would recommend, should Congress affirm our decisions, the insertion of a restrictive clause in the act.

All which is respectfully submitted by your most obedient servants,

VALENTINE KING, Register.
DAVID L. TODD, Receiver.

[2D SESSION.

VALIDITY OF CLAIMS TO LAND IN ARKANSAS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES JANUARY 31, 1825.

Mr. GURLEY, from the Committee on Public Lands, who were instructed by a resolution of this House of the 15th December last to inquire into the expediency of authorizing claimants to lands in the Territory of Arkansas, of a larger amount than one league square, to institute proceedings in the United States district court at Nashville, in the State of Tennessee, to try the validity of their claims, reported:

That Congress, at the last session, passed an act authorizing claimants to lands within the limits of the State of Missouri and Territory of Arkansas to institute proceedings to try the validity of their claims; the former in the district court of the United States for the district of Missouri, and the latter in the superior court of the Territory of Arkansas, but limiting its operations to claims to land in said Territory not exceeding in extent one league square. The object of the resolution is to do away the restrictive provision of said act, and to authorize suits to be instituted against the United States without regard to the extent of the claim, and to substitute for the superior court of the Territory of Arkansas the district court of the United States for the district of Tennessee.

Your committee would here remark, that the law of the last session, before referred to, is a departure from the ordinary and long-established legislation of the government in similar cases, and ought to be viewed rather as an experiment of a doubtful policy, in reference to a class of cases of great magnitude and difficulty, than received as evidencing, on the part of Congress, full confidence in its wisdom or practical utility.

The time for instituting suits under the provisions of this act is limited to two years from its passage, within which period its practical operations will be known, and will furnish a safe guide for future legislation on the subject. Your committee are therefore of opinion that it is inexpedient at this time to enlarge or extend the provisions of said act by granting the authorization contemplated in the resolution aforesaid. In recommending this course they are unable to perceive any peculiar hardship that can result to those claimants. The courts of the United States are now open to them. If the lands are unoccupied, they may enter thereon, possess, enjoy, and dispose of them, and, in case of adverse possession, they have the means of obtaining a judicial decision of title in the ordinary mode, without the aid of further legislation. Wherefore, your committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands be discharged from the further consideration of the subject of said resolution.

[2D SESSION.

TO POSTPONE SALE OF RELINQUISHED LANDS IN ALABAMA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE JANUARY 31, 1825.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the general assembly of the State of Alabama most respectfully represents: That the people of this State entertain a just and grateful sense of the munificence and liberality of the general government, and especially for the passage of laws extending relief when they were in circumstances in which, if relief had been withheld, consequences the most disastrous to their interests would have taken place. Among these, not the least beneficial has been the act of Congress of the last session, entitled "An act to provide for the extinguishment of the public debt." Many had not availed themselves of the benefit of former acts, who were in hopes that more prosperous times and a vigorous prosecution of business would have put it in their power to retain a greater quantity of land. These are enabled still to provide against eventual loss, and, at the same time, close their account with the government for the purchase of land. Your memorialists beg leave to represent that, should the relinquished land, except such relinquished lands as are now advertised for sale, be kept back from sale for one year, or until the proceeds of a crop be realized, it will prove highly beneficial to those who may have relinquished, and, at the same time, promote the interest of the general government. By such delay the people of this State will be better prepared to purchase again, and a more general competition and a more extensive sale take place. The land market will not be so exclusively occupied by a few capitalists, who will purchase land with the view of making a speedy sale, at an advanced price, to the cultivators of the soil. This advance will, in general, show the loss which the government will sustain by ordering a sale at a time when the great body of agriculturists will not be in funds to buy. Relinquishment of lands will be induced by various causes; the inability of some to retain as much as they designed at the time of the purchase; the high price which was given for it; and the fear that should a scarcity of money continue, there would be a final loss by its forfeiture. But, from whatever cause it may be relinquished, those who relinquish will be anxious to purchase again; and it cannot, as we suppose, be otherwise than to the interest of the United States to give them an opportunity of being in the market when the land is offered for sale. Your memorialists make these suggestions, impressed with the belief that, by extending a benefit to the people of this State in the present instance, the lands of the United States will become more productive. The premises are submitted to the wisdom and consideration of your honorable body. And your memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Resolved by the senate and house of representatives of the State of Alabama in general assembly convened, That his excellency the governor cause to be transmitted to our senators and representatives in Congress certified copies of the foregoing memorial, to be by them submitted to the Congress of the United States.

SAMUEL WALKER, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Approved December 25, 1824.

I do certify that this is a true copy of an act filed in my office In testimony of which I put my name and affix the seal of the State this 30th of December, 1824.

[2D SESSION.]

APPLICATION OF ILLINOIS FOR A REDUCTION IN THE PRICE OF CERTAIN LANDS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE FEBRUARY 3, 1825.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the people of the State of Illinois, represented in the general assembly, respectfully shows: That your memorialists, believing that the existing laws relating to public lands are unequal in their operation, and injurious in their tendency both to the national interest and to the welfare of large portions of the western country, beg leave to submit the following observations: The present price of public lands, so far as it relates to those districts of country which have been recently offered for sale, affords no grounds of complaint, but your memorialists believe that a distinction ought to be made between land thus situated and such as has been longer in market. In the latter case the most choice selections having been made by the bidders at public sale, by non-residents who have purchased on speculation, or by early settlers, the land remaining is either of inferior quality, or subject to some local disadvantages, and it would seem reasonable that its price should be reduced in proportion to its actual value. The value of such land will naturally be ascertained by comparing its quality with that of adjacent tracts, and the purchaser would reluctantly pay for it the same price which has been given for superior soil and better situations. The natural consequence of such a state of things is, that the emigrant is driven to new and distant settlements where few have preceded him, and where the inconvenience of which we complain does not operate upon his choice. The tide of population is thus diverted into a thousand channels, and suffered to roll over immense regions, creating feeble and thinly scattered settlements, and leaving extensive tracts of wilderness behind. Under a government like ours, cemented only by the mutual affection of the people, it is to be doubted whether a policy should be pursued which, by diffusing the population, weakens the political strength of the national and State confederacies, and loosens the ties which should bind the people together. In a scattered population public institutions are seldom established; systems of education cannot be matured; moral restraints are tardily enforced; laws are feebly executed; and revenue raised with difficulty.

To concentrate the daily accumulating population of the western States would not only add to the character of the American people, by promoting the progress of civilization in a large section of the Union, but would give strength and stability to the newly created States. To the State governments in the west the contemplated change is particularly desirable on account of the important addition which it would afford to their revenues. Possessing a country of great extent and fertility, we want only the means of improvement to bring its great natural resources into useful operation. The increase of physical strength which would be derived by alluring the emigrant to the settlements already made, and thus filling up the country and producing a denser population than now exists, would be one step towards this important object, and the consequent improvement of revenue which is anticipated would be another. Should these hopes be realized, it is believed that the great work of internal improvement, which now appears to engage the attention of a large portion of the American people, might be commenced among us, new sources of wealth would be opened, and that friendly intercourse which should subsist among the members of the great political family would be facilitated to the benefit and convenience of all. We might also look forward to the day when the liberal and useful arts might be cherished by the fostering hand of governments, and when the new States might prove as fertile in mental as they are now in natural productions. The pecuniary embarrassments under which the western people have long labored, and which still press them with a heavy hand, are too well known, and have been too often urged upon the consideration of Congress, to need further illustrations. This cause alone, if no other existed, would be sufficient to retard the sale of public lands; but its operation is greater in respect to the lands in question in proportion to the allurements held out to purchasers in the newly formed districts. How far this fact will be considered as affording us additional claims upon the justice and liberality of Congress is not for us to determine. For all these reasons your memorialists respectfully pray that the present laws relating to the sale of public lands be so modified as to authorize the sale of all such lands as have been offered for sale five years or more at fifty cents per acre. And your memorialists, as in duty bound, will ever pray,

THOMAS MATHER, Speaker of the House of Representatives.
ADOLPHUS F. HUBBARD, Speaker of the Senate.

18TH CONGRESS.]No. 449.[2D SESSION.

APPLICATION FOR THE REMISSION OF A FORFEITURE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 15, 1825.

Mr. VINTON, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the petition of David Chambers, of Jefferson county, in the State of Ohio, reported:

The petitioner states that he, on February 25, 1806, purchased of the United States a quarter section of land, situate in the Steubenville district, in the State of Ohio, at the rate of $8 per acre, on account of which he paid the sum of $320, being the amount of the first instalment; that owing to certain losses, the nature of which are not set forth by the petitioner, he was unable to complete the payment of the purchase money, and, in consequence of his failure to pay, the land reverted to the United States in the year 1812. The petitioner prays that he may be permitted to enter other lands, and that the sum of money paid by him in the year 1806 may be applied to his credit towards the payment of the same.

The committee have been able to perceive nothing in the case of the petitioner that distinguishes it from other cases of purchasers whose lands have been forfeited for non-payment of the purchase money; and they are of opinion that any principle upon which the relief prayed for in this instance could be granted would be equally applicable, and ought to be extended to all such purchasers. The case of the petitioner, then, resolves itself into an inquiry into the propriety of granting relief to this class of purchasers. Under the credit system, forfeiture of the land for non-payment of the purchase money was one of the conditions of the sale, and essentially necessary to give efficiency to that mode of disposing of the public lands. The purchaser entered into the contract with a full knowledge of its character and consequences, and cannot therefore ask for relief, or, in other words, to be exonerated from his contract, as a claim of strict right or justice. In respect to the policy of granting to this class of purchasers the relief prayed for in the present case, the committee are of opinion that to grant it would be injudicious in itself, and mischievous in its tendency. That aside from the difficulties it might throw upon the officers of the land department, it would have the effect of giving countenance to the idea that contracts entered into with the government were less sacred than those made between individuals, and hence operate to lessen the anxiety and exertion to comply with them according to the terms of the engagement. And when it is recollect that the debt now due to the government for lands amounts to about $10,000,000, and that the present debtors might ask for the same relief, after having permitted their lands to become forfeited, it is but too obvious that such a measure would furnish to many a powerful motive to make no further exertion to meet their engagements to the government. Nor do the committee perceive any circumstance of equity or peculiar hardship in the case of the petitioner to exempt it from the influence of the foregoing general considerations, and, if there were any to be found, the committee would still pause before they set an example that would necessarily lead them into an endless investigation of the misfortunes, miscalculations, and pecuniary ability of a numerous class of public debtors whose contracts have terminated by the operation of law. Your committee therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That it is inexpedient to grant the prayer of the petitioner.

ENCOURAGEMENT OF THE CULTIVATION OF THE VINE AND OLIVE WITH THE ALLOTMENT OF LAND FOR THE PURPOSE.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 16, 1825.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 15, 1825.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives, I have the honor to enclose a list of the names of the persons who entered into contract with this department for the cultivation of the vine and olive, and of the tracts of land allotted to each.

This department is not in possession of any evidence that any one of the persons on the enclosed list have complied with the terms of the contract, nor has it received any definite or authentic evidence of the non-compliance of any of those persons.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. HENRY CLAY, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

VIRGINIA MILITARY LAND WARRANTS.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 17, 1825.

Mr. VINTON, from the Committee on Public lands, to whom was referred the resolution of the 13th of December, instructing them to inquire into the expediency of prolonging the time for locating lands within the Virginia military district, and for obtaining patents, which resolution was accompanied by the petition of sundry persons praying for the same objects, reported:

That the first act of Congress permitting locations to be made in the Virginia military district passed in the year 1790; that in the year 1803 the further time of three years was given for making locations; and various acts of Congress have since been passed prolonging the time for making locations until January 4, 1825, [and for obtaining patents until January 4, 1827,] making in the whole a period of between thirty-four and thirty-five years, during which locations might be made, and the further period of near two years, yet to come, in which to return surveys and obtain patents. The claimants to land in that district were numerous, and the committee are aware that many casualties would be likely to occur to protract the final and complete location of all their claims; but, at the same time, they can hardly conceive a case of a claim still unlocated, after so great a lapse of time, where due diligence has been used. The committee feel no disposition to withhold from any just claimants, if any such there be, the means of making their locations and obtaining patents for their lands; but, after the ample opportunity already afforded for locating, no further time ought, in their opinion, to be given, unless the claimants can furnish satisfactory reasons for not having availed themselves of some of the many laws heretofore passed, extending to them the same indulgence now prayed for. The petition accompanying the resolution does not show that those, if any, who may still be entitled, have been in any way prevented from making their locations, or have used due diligence to make them. The committee are further of opinion that the existing law, prolonging the time for obtaining patents until January 4, 1827, at present requires no further extension. The foregoing facts and considerations are conclusive in the mind of the committee. But another consideration, having relation to the rights of third persons, other than the Virginia military claimants, has also its weight in deciding upon this question.

Although the committee have been able to obtain no certain information, they nevertheless think themselves justified in the suspicion that, if further time was granted for making locations, warrants would be laid upon lands now belonging to or heretofore sold by the United States in that tract of country lying between Ludlow's and Roberts' lines under pretence of its being within the Virginia military district. Much of the lands situate between these lines have been sold by the United States and valuable improvements made by the purchasers. The committee are fully satisfied that such locations, if made, would not be valid; yet, in their opinion, bona fide purchasers under the United States ought not to be disturbed in their lawful possession by any pretences whatsoever, from which, however fallacious, they would probably be subjected to much quietude and inconvenience. Much less ought the government, by its legislation, to expose them to the cunning and cupidity of speculation, which never fails to alarm its object by exciting fear, even where no real danger is to be apprehended. The committee are therefore of opinion it is not, at this time, expedient to prolong the time for making locations and granting patents, as proposed by the resolution, and recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That it is inexpedient, at this time, further to extend the time for making locations and obtaining patents in the Virginia military district, as proposed by the aforesaid resolution.

EMOLUMENTS OF REGISTERS AND RECEIVERS OF LAND OFFICES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 18, 1825.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 17, 1825.

SIR: In obedience to a resolution of the House of Representatives of the 31st of January last, I have the honor to submit a report and statement from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, showing the emoluments of the registers and receivers of the several land offices for a year ending on the 30th of September last. By these it appears that not only has the compensation of those officers fallen far short of the maximum allowed by law, but that at only one office has it amounted to $2,000, and that, including the allowance for attending public sales, it has averaged but about $850. Hence the House will perceive that those officers are not sufficiently compensated. I would, therefore, respectfully recommend that the commission to which the registers and receivers are now entitled be increased one-half per cent. upon the amount of public money received at the several land offices. This would make the commission the same as was allowed from the establishment of land offices to the year 1818, when, in consideration of the great amount of sales, it was reduced.

I would also recommend that authority be given to make a reasonable allowance to the receivers for the transportation of the public money to the places of deposit, in those cases where the banks in which they are directed to make their deposits are at a distance from the land office. This expense is now defrayed by the receivers. The allowance might be regulated by the Secretary of the Treasury, and should in no case exceed one-half per cent. upon the amount deposited.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, General Land Office, February 5, 1825.

SIR: Agreeably to your instructions in the endorsement which accompanied the enclosed resolution of the House of Representatives of the 31st ultimo, I have the honor to transmit herewith a statement exhibiting the emoluments of the registers of the several land offices during the year ending September 30, 1824. The emoluments of the receivers will be precisely the same as that of the registers when they shall have accounted for the moneys received by them during the period referred to.

With great respect,

GEORGE GRAHAM.

Hon. Wm. H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of the Treasury.

18TH CONGRESS.]No. 453.[2D SESSION.

GRANTS OF LAND TO PEOPLE OF NEW MADRID COUNTY, MISSOURI, WHO SUFFERED BY EARTHQUAKES.

COMMUNICATED TO THE SENATE FEBRUARY 21, 1825.

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled:

The memorial of the general assembly of the State of Missouri respectfully sheweth: That by an act of Congress for the relief of the inhabitants of the late county of New Madrid, in the Missouri Territory, who suffered by earthquakes, approved February 17, 1815, it is, among other things, provided, that any person who owned land in that county, and which had been materially injured by earthquakes, was authorized to locate the like quantity on any of the public land of that Territory the sale of which was authorized by law, with certain exceptions provided in that act, provided that no person should be permitted under said act to locate a greater quantity than that confirmed to him, except the owners of lots of ground and tracts of land of less quantity than one hundred and sixty acres, who were authorized to obtain a quantity not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres; nor should any person be entitled to locate more than six hundred and forty acres.

Your memorialists respectfully represent that the recorder of land titles of said Territory had certain powers granted to him by said act of Congress, the exercise of which was enjoined upon him as a duty; that in pursuance of said powers he did issue certificates as provided for by said act, upon evidence existing in his office and that which was adduced before him, for various tracts of land of six hundred and forty acres and under, and town lots, or lots of ground and tracts of land of less quantity than one hundred and sixty acres; upon which latter class he granted certificates for the quantity of one hundred and sixty acres each; but in no case, it is believed, did he grant certificates to any one person for a greater quantity than six hundred and forty acres, being in his opinion the maximum quantity any one person was entitled to receive under the law.

Whether the construction of the act of Congress, as given and acted upon by the recorder of land titles was correct or not, your memorialists forbear to give an opinion; but so it is, that, by means of the confidence placed in his opinion, both as a man and as an officer of the United States government by the people of this State, those certificates have been sold and transferred for a valuable consideration from one person to another, until they have passed through the hands of many individuals of the most worthy and respectable class of our citizens, from the time of their first being issued until they were all located; and since that period the lands located in virtue of said certificates have been in like manner transferred, even up to the present time, in the full expectation and confidence that, after the certificates were located and the land surveyed, patents would be issued therefor as a matter of right, according to the provisions of the third section of said act of Congress.

Your memorialists further beg leave to represent that most of these certificates were granted prior to the sale of public lands within this State; that they were purchased with great eagerness (and when lands were high) by the new settlers coming to this State at a great price, who have located them on lands which they have chosen for permanent places of residence; that they have built houses, made large improvements, and opened extensive plantations upon the tracts thus located; and should the patents for the land be withheld, and they deprived of their titles, it will be the means of breaking up many families, and cause the ruin of many of our most worthy and respectable citizens. It is with regret and surprise that your memorialists are informed that the Commissioner of the General Land Office, under an opinion of the Attorney General of the United States, refuses to issue patents upon many of these land claims, as is required of him to do by the third section of the above recited act.

Your memorialists, therefore, pray that your honorable body will be pleased to take the case of the claimants under consideration, and grant unto them such relief as justice, expediency, and good policy may dictate; and, as in duty bound, your memorialists cannot cease to pray, &c.

Resolved, That the executive of this State be required to forward one copy of the foregoing memorial to the Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, with a request that he lay the same before Congress, and one to each of our senators and representative in Congress.

H. S. GEYER, Speaker of the House of Representatives.
B. H. REEVES, President of the Senate.

Approved December 22, 1824.

CLAIMS TO LANDS IN EAST AND WEST FLORIDA.

COMMUNICATED TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FEBRUARY 22, 1825.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, February 21, 1825.

SIR: I have the honor to transmit a copy of a report from the commissioners of land claims in East Florida, dated January 1, 1824*. It shows the progress made by that board in performing the duties assigned to them by law, and contains other information which may be useful to Congress when legislating on the subject of the Florida lands.

I have the honor also to transmit copies of two reports from the commissioners of land claims in West Florida, dated the 12th November and 20th January last.

The papers which accompanied these several reports are voluminous. Copies of them are now in preparation, and shall be transmitted to Congress as soon as they are completed.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, sir, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. the SPEAKER of the House of Representatives.

COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE, Pensacola, November 12, 1824.

SIR: In obedience to the several laws organizing the board of commissioners "for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the district of West Florida," and regulating their duties, the undersigned have deemed it expedient to report, at this time, all claims of every description east of Pensacola, with a number of others in this vicinity, about which there is no difficulty or conflicting interest. The reasons for the adoption of this course are more fully explained in a letter to the honorable Speaker of the House of Representatives, upon their application for an extension of the term. We have the honor herewith to transmit—

First. A general report upon Spanish claims.

Second. A general report upon large claims.

Third. A special report on claims undefined in quantity, and those exceeding three thousand five hundred acres, with the opinions of the commissioners, numbered from 1 to 9.

Fourth. Abstracts from A to H, containing the list of claims confirmed and rejected, with the reasons "for their admission and rejection," together with the reports upon each class, respectively lettered, and made in conformity with laws above mentioned. All which is respectfully submitted.

We have the honor to be, respectfully, your obedient servants,

SAMUEL R. OVERTON.
JOSEPH M. WHITE.
CRAVEN P. LUCKETT.

Hon. Wm. H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of the Treasury.

GENERAL REPORT UPON SPANISH CLAIMS.

The general regulations of Morales, dated July 17, 1799, agreeably to which lands were almost entirely granted in West Florida, only provide for three descriptions of claims, viz: 1. GRATUITIES, which were conditional grants, or concessions made to "each newly arrived family possessed of the necessary qualifications to be admitted among the number of the cultivators of these provinces;" 2. LANDS SOLD, "as demanded, to those who wish to purchase, for the price they shall be taxed;" and 3. CASES OF COMPROMISE, where individuals had occupied lands for more than ten years, and were, it is understood, permitted to obtain titles for the same upon their making such claim known within six months from the publication of Morales' regulations at the different posts, and paying a just and moderate retribution into the public treasury. As the latter necessarily partakes of the character of either a sale or gratuity, we have proposed to make a general report upon these two classes, in order that Congress may the more readily understand the whole subject, not only as it relates to the titles we have confirmed, but those also which are submitted to them for their consideration.

I. GRATUITOUS CONCESSIONS.

These grants were made for pasture, or upon condition that the grantee should clear and cultivate a portion of land within three years from the time at which it was dated. The tract could not be alienated during the above period, nor afterwards, until all the conditions attached to the grant were fulfilled.

The first step in obtaining a gratuitous concession was the presentation of a petition to the sub-delegate or authority vested with the power of disposing of lands. This petition was referred to the surveyor, who was required to report whether the tract solicited was vacant and royal domain. The subject was next submitted to the fiscal or King's attorney, whose province it was to state whether or not there were any objections to a compliance with the petition. When those reports were found to be favorable, the sub-delegate, &c., made the concession, fixed the terms, and passed the decretal order of survey. After all which had been fulfilled and executed, it was forwarded to the office of intendance for confirmation. Where any doubts existed as to the land being vacant and royal domain, the order of survey preceded the concession. There are, also, some cases where the sub-delegate made grants without a reference to the surveyor and fiscal, but it was understood to have been done upon his own responsibility.

In conformity with the provisions of a decree of royal treasury, dated November 22, 1806, adopted in pursuance of an ordinance of his Catholic Majesty of 30th March of same year, making gratuitous concessions, was reserved to the intendant, and were confined exclusively to the meritorious subjects of Spain. It was evidently the object of this decree, so far as we can collect its meaning from the title papers, to restrain such grants within narrow limits, and to sell as much land as possible for the purpose of replenishing the exhausted coffers of the crown. Strangers and foreigners, until naturalized by long residence, &c., were entirely excluded, as may be seen by an examination of Morales' regulations and the oath imposed upon the petitioner. He was required to swear that no stranger was interested in the petition, and that he or she would not convey the land to any such persons at a subsequent period; that he or she would fulfil the conditions contained in the regulations of Morales of July 17, 1799; and that they had received no anterior grant.

The quantity of land granted to each petitioner was regulated by the number of his beasts to be pastured, as well as of his family capable of cultivation; understanding that the concession was never to exceed 800 arpents in superficies. This is the limit to a single gratuitous grant; but it is not to be inferred from this, or from the oath imposed by the decree of November 22, 1806, that an individual could obtain only one concession of this description. An additional concession of 800 arpents may be made to the same person if he can prove, as required by 13th Morales, "that he had possessed the first during three years and fulfilled all the conditions prescribed." If more were solicited it was to be purchased.

Exceptions to the above limit were, however, made in favor of Opelousas and Attakapas, where lands were mostly suited to the purposes of pasture alone. Even in these cases the quantity to be obtained in a grant was governed by the same rule and determined by the number of grantee's "family and flocks." Here it was established as a general rule, that, to obtain half a league in front by the same measure in depth, the petitioner must be owner of "one hundred head of cattle, some horses and sheep, and two slaves," and in the same proportion for a larger tract, without the power of exceeding a league square. Although the article providing for the disposal of lands in these two sections of Louisiana are not extended to West Florida, yet it is clearly apparent that there are many cases here presented which are entirely within the reason of it, as in these parishes most of the country contiguous to Pensacola is only fitted to the purposes of pasture and rearing of cattle, &c. Under these circumstances, it is nothing but reasonable that an equal latitude should have been allowed as to the number of arpents granted, and such has been the practice on several occasions. Whenever the applicant was recommended by a large family and numerous stock, the sub-delegates felt themselves authorized to depart from the general rules prescribed in 1st and 13th Morales, and adopt that which was provided for Opelousas and Attakapas. In consequence of the wealth and resources of the new settler, it is understood that the Spanish authorities have sometimes conceded to the same individual several thousand arpents.

By requiring that the number of arpents to be granted should be proportioned to the petitioner's "family and flocks," it is apparent that the object of the Spanish government was to patronize the rearing of cattle and the cultivation of the earth. Their policy was to strengthen the country by allowing new settlers and increasing their number and resources. A consequence resulting from the adoption of this rule, and which the Spanish government seems always to have had in view, was never to dispose of their domain in large tracts, so as to enable individuals or the subordinate officers to sell them again upon speculation. So much only was to be granted as was necessary for the purposes above mentioned, and no more. A departure from the general rule, and an adoption of that in Opelousas and Attakapas, has not been frequent in West Florida; and, in these cases, it has occurred where the land was poor and but a small portion fit for cultivation. This power of modifying the regulations of Morales, or extending the articles framed for one section of country to another, it is understood, has been exercised by the intendant, as also by his sub-delegates, when reasons sufficiently potent existed to prove that the case formed an exception to the general rule. By what authority the sub-delegates were empowered to act on such occasions we are not satisfactorily advised; but such has been the practice, and the grants made have been recognized as valid.

II. SALES.

It is provided in the regulations of Morales that the vacant lands belonging to the royal domain were ordered to be sold by auction by the law 15th, book 4th, of the collection of the laws of the Indies. The sale was to have been made as the land was demanded, with the intervention of the fiscal or King's attorney for the board of finances, for the price they shall be taxed to those who wish to purchase.

By the decree of royal treasury, dated November 22, 1806, adopted in pursuance of an ordinance of his Catholic Majesty of 30th March of the same year, the public domain was directed to be sold at auction for the purpose of replenishing the exhausted coffers of the Spanish treasury. The price taxed was sometimes ascertained by appraisers with the intervention of the King's attorney, which proceedings are believed to have been within the purview of the above decree as well as the 24th article of Morales' regulations. These grants were also to be reported to the intendant, from whom complete titles were to be obtained. We also take occasion to remark, in this place, that grants of land sold and those made gratuitously were required to be recorded in the office of finances.

With regard to the quantity which could be sold to a single individual, the same general rules seem to have been adopted as prevailed in gratuities. The policy of Spain was in both cases the same. It was the intention of the government to concede lands for pasture and cultivation, and not as an object of speculation, as is expressly announced in the instructions of Gayoso. To prevent this amongst individuals as well as the subordinate authorities, and allure settlers to the country, by which it would be populated and strengthened, constituted the great aim of the Spanish regulations upon the subject of lands. This was the only restriction, it is believed, upon sales; and, consequently, where the grantee owned many slaves, a large family capable of cultivation, and a numerous stock to be pastured, several thousand arpents were sometimes disposed of to a single purchaser.

Ramon de Lopez y Angula, who appears to have officiated as secretary of intendance at New Orleans in the year 1800, refused to sell one hundred thousand arpents of crown lands, as solicited in a letter of Henry Peroux, commandant at New Madrid, and as set forth in the petition of the inhabitants accompanying it, upon the ground that the purchase was intended as a "speculation hurtful to poor people." "It never was," he says, "the intention of the King to dispose of the lands in such large quantities, and under such circumstances." It is admitted by Angula that the new regulations (Morales') provided for the sale of lands in the manner referred to in Peroux's letter, but it was only under the previous formalities there specified, and with a reference to the ability and forces of the person desirous of purchasing. The reason given for this rule, and the refusal to grant lands in such large quantities, is certainly sound and incontrovertible, and is in accordance with the spirit of the whole system of Spanish jurisprudence upon the subject of lands. The reason as stated was, "because it would not be just that, for a small consideration, one or more speculators should make themselves masters of a great extent of lands to the prejudice of others coming to settle, and who, consequently, find themselves driven to purchase those lands which they might otherwise have obtained free from expense." This is a striking illustration of the rule, and may be considered as entirely conclusive.

REMARKS.

From the above exposition of Spanish claims, it would appear that sales and gratuities are the only kinds contemplated by the regulations of Morales. There are, however, a few cases of grants, both to lands and lots, made expressly as a remuneration for public services. These are easily distinguished from those of every other description. In relation to sales and gratuities, we shall subjoin a few additional observations with a view to a more correct understanding of these classes of claims.

1. A SALE embraces all cases where the land has been disposed of at auction or by appraisement, and none others. Where the petitioner states that he has sustained losses, been in the public service, and that the government is in arrears to him, to constitute the grant a sale it appears to us that it ought to be shown by the evidence of title that an account had been authenticated, preferred against the government, and acknowledged to be just; that the land had been conceded by valuation or otherwise, as an indemnity or liquidation of the debt, and that the claim of the party had been thereby entirely extinguished. It is not only necessary that this should be set forth, but it should be apparent that the losses, public services, or arrears due, constituted the consideration and not the inducement to make the grant. In some cases where public services have been rendered, it seems to have been the practice to extend the grant under the fiction of a sale, so as to include a larger number of arpents, but the usual conditions of a gratuity are exacted from the claimant.

In most cases where there are petitions and grants in which public services are stated and acknowledged to have been rendered, losses sustained, and arrears due from the government; yet they appear to have been set forth for the purpose of bringing them within the decree of November 22, 1806, as they almost invariably refer to the conditions contained in the ordinance of Morales, dated July 17, 1799, and are subjected to all the formalities and restrictions of gratuitous concessions.

2. A GRATUITY includes all grants made upon conditions of pasturage, and clearing, and cultivation. When there is neither a sale at auction nor a price taxed and fixed by appraisers, there is every reason for believing it a claim of this description. If a reference is expressly made to the conditions contained in the ordinance or regulations of Morales, of July 17, 1799, its character as a gratuity is established beyond the reach of question. Either or both these features identify the claim as belonging to this class. Possessing either of these characteristics, if losses, public services, and arrears due from the government are recited in the petition or grant, it is done as already observed, barely to prove that the petitioner is a meritorious subject and entitled to the land as contemplated by the decree of November 22, 1806. The public services, &c., are mentioned as the inducement and not as the consideration of the grant or concession.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

GENERAL REPORT UPON LARGE GRANTS.

We have already shown that it was never the intention of the King of Spain to dispose of his royal domain in large quantities, agreeably to the rules prescribed to his subordinate agents in his transmarine provinces. The object was to populate and improve the country, so as to enable it to defend and protect itself in case of invasion; and the rule observed in relation to the quantity granted, both in sales and gratuities, was the number of the grantees beasts to be pastured, and of his slaves and family capable of cultivating the land. This, as we have formerly remarked, was intended to prevent speculation amongst individuals and the subordinate authorities. There are grants for public services, military and civil, such as exploring and discovery of mines. Although gratuities have sometimes been extended under the fiction of a sale, yet Intendant Morales, in the case of Santiago Coleman, declares that all grants of this description appertain to his Catholic Majesty. Both the intendant and sub-delegates have, in some cases, made grants of this description, but they were probably subject to the confirmation of the King, &c.

But there appears to have been another species of gratuitous grant, differing in some particulars from those we have already considered. They consisted of concessions of many thousand acres, and were made to individuals upon the condition that a large number of families were to be settled thereon within a given period, for the purpose of promoting the population and cultivation of the country. Such were the claims of Baron Bastrop and Maison Rouge, in Louisiana, and probably Arredondo's, in East Florida. None have been presented to this board, and they do not appear to come within the purview of any of Morales' regulations. They seem to have been in the nature of special contracts which were made with the intendant, and in which it was absolutely necessary that the assent of the King himself should be obtained to give them validity. In the case of Baron Bastrop, the execution of the contract was suspended until the decision of his Catholic Majesty could be obtained; and that made with Maison Rouge was laid before the King by Mr. Gardoqui, who procured his approval of all its parts with an order for its completion. There are other large claims the grants of which are made immediately by the King, such as those of the Duke of Alegon, De Vargas, and Count Punon Rostro.

The extent of the powers of the intendant general, and governors, and commandants of posts, the last of whom were denominated sub-delegates, are not perfectly understood. The ordinance of Ferdinand the Sixth, dated in 1754, forms the basis of all regulations upon the subject of lands, but we have been unable to procure it. We regret the scarcity of our materials, arising from the fact that there are very few who will frankly aid one's inquiries into the municipal and political jurisprudence of Spain, and that the records have been removed from the country in violation of the solemn stipulation of the treaty. That their powers were limited is proved by the reference made to the King in the cases of Bastrop, Maison Rouge, and many others. In consequence of our being at a loss for a guide in determining the exact limitation of power by which large grants were made, where they are not embraced by the instructions of Gayoso or the regulations of Morales, such claims should be ratified with great caution.

It is in grants of the greatest magnitude, and whose titles are made out with unusual exactness, that apprehensions of fraud are to be most seriously entertained. The poor and limited claimant is very rarely found guilty of this crime.

The amount in controversy is not a sufficient inducement, and the conditions which he is required to perform, and which must be established by proof, is in most cases an effectual preventive of imposition. We would, therefore, respectfully suggest that large claimants should be required to produce the law or ordinance which authorized such a grant to be made. They are bound to make out a legal or equitable title, and such a one as would have been recognized as valid by the Spanish government. Where the power for making the grant is not to be found in the instructions of Gayoso or the regulations of Morales, and the claimant is unable to produce it, it is believed then to become a matter of discretion with Congress whether they will reject such claims, or to what extent they shall be confirmed. Even in cases where the grant purports to be a complete one, and to have received the ratification of the intendant, the law or ordinance authorizing it to be made ought to be produced.

Under the Spanish government the intendant himself could not have made a grant contrary to law which would have been regarded; for it is a principle of the civil law that all "patents, orders, &c., contrary to right and law, shall not be executed, and the judges are directed to disregard them." Had the intendant issued such a grant, it would have been acting without the pale of his powers, and the error would have been corrected. He was denominated "a sub-delegate of the King;" had, no doubt, special and limited powers conferred on him when acting in that subordinate capacity, and was responsible to him for the fidelity of his official conduct. This principle of responsibility in subordinate tribunals is observed and enforced in all governments.

At the expiration of his term of service it is understood that the intendant was bound to give what was called a residencia, or an account of his administration. This was received by a law officer appointed by the crown, and was finally determined by the council of the Indies. On these occasions all abuses of authority were corrected and grievances redressed. If the intendant, governor, &c., had disregarded the laws and ordinances, the appropriate remedy, it is believed, was administered.

The agents of Spain being under the control of the law, with limited and restricted powers, any act done by them in violation of laws and ordinances must, upon every principle of reasoning, be void for want of power and jurisdiction. If the local authorities have mistaken the laws and ordinances, or, regardless of responsibility, in consequence of their great distance from the parent State, have transcended their powers, such acts are null and void, and they could not be legally executed, for the same reason that a sheriff could not be justified for carrying into effect an illegal mandate. This position is sustained upon the ground that there is a want of authority on the part of those agents, and demonstrates that such acts are void as to Spain, no matter with what good faith they may have been executed. The United States have now a right to say upon this subject whatever Spain could have said, not what she would say by possibility. They are entitled to all the rights which could have been exercised by the King of Spain. Unless the grant has been made or ratified by the intendant, if the claimant cannot show the law under which it was made, and it is evidently contrary to the laws and ordinances to which we have access, it is a fair inference that the grantor exceeded his authority, and that it was such a case as would not have been approved by the higher and superintending tribunals. As the United States have only stipulated to ratify all grants of a particular date, made by "his Catholic Majesty or his lawful authorities" in the Floridas, Congress, it is conceived, can reject those which are not of that character, as would have been done, no doubt, by the government of Spain.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 1.

A report of a claim of John Forbes & Co., in their own right, and as surviving partners and successors of Panton, Leslie & Co., to a tract of land east of Apalachicola river, in the district of West Florida; filed by Octavius Mitchell, in behalf of the present proprietors, commonly called "Forbes & Co.'s purchase," by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

A copy of a letter dated New Orleans, February 21, 1799, from Governor Gayoso de Lemos to John Forbes, (of the house of Panton, Leslie & Co.,) sympathizing with them on account of the large sums of money due the house from the Talapuche Indians, and the little hope there remains of recovering the same, unless by extraordinary means, the most probable of which would be the purchase of certain lands from said Indians within the limits of the United States; desires Mr. F. to gather on this important subject some information about the ultimate views of that government; from his residence of ten years in Louisiana, and his knowledge of public transactions, is witness to the honorable conduct of said house, and the repeated sacrifices they have made and are ever ready to make to the interests of his Catholic Majesty; that his predecessors had in consequence obtained for it several valuable mercantile privileges, which would have been of much advantage to the house, but that the vicissitudes of the times called for new indulgences from his Majesty; that matters being in this state, and confident that that house would never engage in anything prejudicial to the interest of his royal master, he would not oppose any purchase the said house might make in the Talapuche nation north of the boundary line between his Catholic Majesty and the United States, thinking it the only way to be repaid for their outstanding debts, which would otherwise be lost in the nation, and would augment their difficulties; and that the said house had no other views than to sell the lands so purchased in the usual way for the purpose of being so repaid. Also, a copy of a certificate of the foregoing original letter, by Andres Fernandez, public interpreter, dated Pensacola, November 20, 1806. Also, a copy of a letter from the Marquis of Caso Calvo, dated New Orleans, February 4, 1801, to Mr. John Forbes, acknowledging the reception of his of 19th January, which mentions that the Seminole Indians had offered the house lands upon the river Apalachicola, as those they had formerly offered were not judged acceptable. The letter concludes thus: "I do not know to what to attribute the failure of the order of the intendancy for the payment of the $17,000, relative to which I have transmitted an official letter, showing the irreparable injury which must accrue, as well to the royal treasury as to your house, if this affair be not settled with due brevity." Also, a copy of a petition from James Innearity, agent of the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., begging that, in consequence of offers made by several chiefs of the Seminole Indians, at a meeting held by them on the 4th of June last, to John Forbes, principal partner and director of the house, to cede to it a portion of lands occupied by said Indians in the district of Apalachy and Apalachicola, in payment of the debts contracted and robberies committed by them in the store of said house, established in the neighborhood of St. Mark's, he intends to send an agent to said tribe to endeavor to procure a cession of a portion of said lands equivalent to the said losses. The petitioner shows the benefit that would result from the said cession, not only to the said house, but also to the province in general, by having the said lands occupied by industrious people who will be interested in cultivating them, and in a great measure superseding the necessity of having recourse to the United States, as at present happens, for the supply of his Catholic Majesty's troops, and even of the inhabitants of Pensacola and Mobile—almost all the good lands belonging to the Indians. The petitioner, therefore, requests permission to establish a talk on this business with the Indians, and, upon a cession being made, that the same may be confirmed and secured to the said house, for it to dispose of them to its advantage; dated Pensacola, January 5, 1804. Also, a copy of Governor Folch's permission, granted on condition that the lands so ceded be not disposed of without the knowledge and consent of the government; Pensacola, January 7, 1804. Also, a copy of a certificate of Governor Folch, stating that the chiefs of the Seminole nation who had signed the above appeared before him on the 20th of June last, and they having taken him by the hand in sign of friendship, among other things, said, that one of their motives for their journeying hither was to declare to him that they had ceded to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., in consequence of the great debts they had contracted in that house's store, lately opened in Apalachy, and the robberies they had committed therein, a tract of land, the limits of which are designated in the preceding act of cession and sale; that they had done so with the entire knowledge of the nation, in whose name they signed it. This certificate, signed and sealed by Folch June 24, 1804, and countersigned by his secretary, Francisco Morejou. Also, a copy of a certificate of Governor Folch, stating that in a full assembly of the principal chiefs of the Tallapoosa and Seminole Indian nations, held in this place on the 3d of December instant, King Mauso, or Hopoithle Micco, being chief orator, he declared that, with the general consent of their nations, they had confirmed the cession of land made in May last to Panton, Leslie & Co.; that they had done so in payment of the debts and robberies aforementioned, and had put Mr. James Innerarity in possession of the land, as agent of the said house, to which they had ceded forever all right they formerly held in said lands, agreeably to the tenor of the preceding act, which they had signed at Achackweithle August 22, 1804. This certificate, signed and sealed by Folch December 5, 1804, and countersigned by his secretary, Francisco Morejou; also, a copy of the act of cession referred to above. The preamble states the heavy debts they (the subscribing chiefs of the Seminole nation met in junta) owe to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co. for goods supplied them and their people from the store in Apalachy, and the robberies and depredations they committed on two occasions on the store of said house in Apalachy, headed by William Augustus Bowles—the first robbery committed in January, 1792, and the second in May, 1800; and they having no means whatever of paying said losses, except by ceding to said house a portion of the lands they occupy, they have determined to give, sell, and cede to said house of Panton, Leslie & Co., by way of compensation, &c., a district of land of which they are at present owners and proprietors, and contained within the following limits: leaving the Apalachicola river five miles above Estefamulgee, the line runs through the hammock of said river and the adjacent pine barren, in a direction E. and E.S.E. more than three miles, till it meets with the principal path from Estefamulgee to the nation; then follow said path N. and N.N.E. eleven miles and a half or twelve miles to the spot where the path from Micasuky to Estafamulgee separates from the other; thence the line runs along the same path of Micasuky E. three miles and a half to a ravine; thence along the same path E. and NE. by E. two miles and a half to another ravine; thence still along the same path NE. and E. above a mile, till the junction with the path of Ocheesee, alias that of John Mealby, to Apalachy; thence running the same in a direction SE. about three-quarters of a mile to the river Tologie; thence still along the same E. four miles and three-quarters, till the spot where the path of John Mealby to Apalachy separates; thence the line follows the path of Micasuky (which might more properly be called the path of Ocheesee to Anacheeler) E. by N. one mile and a quarter to the extremity of a hammock; thence along the same path NE. and E.N.E. one mile and a half to four pine trees marked with crosses; here leaving the path the line runs through the hammock, and crosses two ravines NE. by E. one mile and thirty-six chains, till it meets with a path from Anacheela to the south; crossing said path for fifty-eight chains, it follows the same direction through the hammock, and crosses another ravine till it meets with another path leading from Anacheela to Micasuky, at a distance of one measured mile from Anacheela; thence following said path, whose directions vary between SE. and NE., three miles, till a spot where a path separates leading to the south; leaving this last path, and still following the former along which we came, the line runs through it in a direction E. and E.N.E. a mile and a half to a ravine; thence running in the same path NE. by N. one mile, till its junction with Thompson's path, which comes from the NW.; thence following the same path, here called Thompson's path, SE. by S. one mile and a quarter, till Little river; thence following the same path NE. by E., E.N.E., and E. one mile, till the spot where the path of Micasuky separates; thence it follows always the same path of Thompson's path SE. by E. one-third of a mile to a ravine; thence always in the same path in various directions between SE. and NE. two miles and a half to another ravine; crossing which, it goes in a direction S. still along the same path one mile and a half to the river Ocklockney; thence along the same path in various directions between S. and E. eighteen miles to the extremity of the hammock on the river Wakhulla, where two pine trees are marked with crosses at one mile distance from the house of John Keimaire; thence crossing the hammock and a ravine, it runs S. by E. sixty-four chains; thence S.S.E. to a pine marked with a cross, sixteen chains; thence E.S.E. sixty-four chains, and thence E.N.E. ninety-six chains, to the road which leads from the house of Keimaire to Fort St. Mark's; thence it runs crossing the road forty-six chains N.N.E. to the river Wakhulla, the channel of which forms the boundary as far as the sea to the east in the same manner as the great channel of the river Apalachicola, from its mouth to five miles above Estefamulgee, forms, with a part of the above line, the limits to the west, and the high seas beyond all the islands on the coast, from the limits to the south throughout all its course by land, except a spot one-third of a mile adjacent to the hammock of the river Apalachicola, which, being a thick swamp and full of water and mud, was impenetrable; the line is very visible, the trees being all marked. "And by these presents we cede, concede, give, sell, and transfer to the said house of Panton, Leslie & Co., their heirs, executors, assigns, and administrators, in our name and in that of all our people, the aforesaid district of land contained within the limits aforescribed, to be by them, their heirs, executors, assigns, and administrators, held and possessed in full right and entire property; and we, the undersigned chiefs, in our name, and in that of our heirs and descendants, in our name, and in that of our people of the before-mentioned Seminole nation, renounce and abandon all and every right which we have till now held or possessed in the said district of lands to the said Panton, Leslie & Co., their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns; and we will maintain and defend the said Panton, Leslie & Co., their heirs, &c., in the ful land complete dominion and possession of the aforesaid district of land, contained within the aforescribed limits at this time by us ceded, given, bestowed, sold, and transferred, against all and whatsoever person or persons from henceforth and forever. In witness whereof, we hereby sign this instrument in the town of Cheeskatalofa, May 25, 1804.—(Here follows the marks of twenty-two chiefs, and the signature of William Hambly, "interpreter.") Also, a copy of the act of confirmation. It states, that whereas the chiefs and principal men of the Seminole Indians met at Cheeskatalofa,

May 25, 1804, and agreed unanimously to cede to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., in compensation for sundry robberies, (as aforementioned,) a tract of land, bounded, &c., &c.; and whereas an instrument of concession, sale, and cession of the same was, on the 25th of May aforesaid, signed by the following chiefs of the said nation.—(Here follows the names of twenty-two chiefs who signed.) And whereas, on the 20th of June following, the same was ratified and declared by the said chiefs before Don Vincente Folch, governor, &c., to be their unanimous and spontaneous act, in virtue of which they, in their own name and that of the Seminole nation, whom they represented, and their descendants, renounced entirely in favor of Panton, Leslie & Co., on account of the aforementioned motives, all their right and pretensions to the said land, &c. And whereas Mr. James Innerarity, one of the partners of said house, has come, in virtue of said cession, personally to this place in the name of and representing said house, to take possession of said lands; and in order to do so with more notoriety and solemnity, and that said concession may be more amply confirmed and finally relieved from all altercation and dispute, he has convoked a meeting of the chiefs of the Lower Creeks and Seminole nations to meet him at this place for the aforementioned object. Be it therefore known, to all to whom it may or doth concern, that we, the undersigned chiefs and principal men of the Lower Creek and Seminole nations, having in consequence met in full assembly at this place, have unanimously agreed, and by this instrument of writing solemnly confirm in every sense and manner, and in all its parts, the aforesaid donation and cession of the said lands, &c.; and that the same may remain and be maintained valid to Panton, Leslie & Co. from henceforth and forever, we have this day solemnly ceded and granted possession of them to their partner, Mr. James Innerarity, deputed to that effect; and we bind and oblige ourselves and our descendants to maintain and defend him and them in full and pacific possession of the said lands against all persons whatsoever, from henceforth and forever. In witness whereof, we set our marks. Done at Achackweithle, on the river Apalachicola, this 22d day of August, 1804, in presence of William Hambly and Thomas Miller, interpreters.—(Here follows the marks of thirty-three chiefs.) Also, a copy of a statement of losses sustained by the robbers of the Indians in Apalachy, January 16, 1792, viz:

We certify that the preceding account is a true statement of the loss sustained by Panton, Leslie & Company from the robber Bowles and his followers. Apalachy, June 24, 1792.

ROBERT LESLIE.
EDWARD FOSTER.
JOHN INNERARITY.

Pensacola, West Florida, June 2, 1799. Before me, Don Vincente Folch y Juan, governor, &c., appeared William Panton, partner of the house of Panton, Leslie & Company, who, having been duly sworn, declared that the preceding is a true and just statement of the loss sustained by him and his partners, (at that time,) John Leslie and Thomas Forbes, by a party of freebooting Indians, at whose head was the notorious William Augustus Bowles, and a number of the chiefs of the villages of Cowetas, Broken Arrow, Hitchetas, Ufales, Chichas, and inhabitants of the point named Ousutches; which robbery was committed on or about January 16, 1792. And the deponent further declared—

April 27, 1792. For 14 head of cattle more than was included in the statement seen and counted this day by R. Leslie, 64s. per cent.....	£44 16
For 12 horses, ditto, at 90s.....	54 00
For 12 head of cattle seen at Micasuky, 64s.....	12 16
For 2 head of cattle seen at Burgess' house, of which we have received one.....	6 08
For a mare and a saddle recovered of H. Smith.....	5 00
	123 00
Loss actually sustained this day in pounds sterling.....	2,681 01
	2,804 01

That the foregoing statement was made by the clerks residing on the spot at the time the robbery was committed, and that it was certified by them on June 24, 1792, as above. And he further declares that the said sum of £2,681 01s. was really lost by him and his said partners on account of the said robberies, and that no part thereof has since then been recovered.

WILLIAM PANTON.
VINCENTE FOLCH.

Witnesses: MATIAS CERVERA.
FELIPE PRIETO.

Also, a copy of a statement of the loss sustained by the robbery committed on the store in Apalachy in May, 1800, by the Indians under the conduct of Bowles:

Value of goods, houses, negroes, cattle, &c., existing in our possession at the time of the robbery, including the brig Sheerwater, which transported them from Pensacola.....	\$16,549 06 $\frac{3}{4}$
Expenses in repairing the Sheerwater for the damage done to her while in possession of Bowles and his Indians.....	$672 07
Detention of said brig from May 18 until November 11, 1800, during which time it was either in Bowles' possession or detained at Pensacola for repairing its damages, five months and twenty-four days, at $500 per month.....	2,900 00
A mulatto and a negro boy belonging to said brig, carried off by Bowles....	800.00
	4,372 07
To deduct the value of goods and negroes recovered at the retaking of Fort St. Mark's.....	20,922 05 $\frac{3}{4}$
Loss.....	4,868 02 $\frac{3}{4}$
	16,054 03

Pensacola, West Florida, August 25, 1802. Before me, Don Vincente Folch y Juan, governor, &c., and two assisting witnesses, appeared John Forbes, a partner of the house of Panton Leslie & Co., and James Innerarity, a clerk in the same house, who, having been duly sworn, declared that the foregoing is a true and just statement of the loss sustained by the house of Panton, Leslie & Co. in a robbery committed on their stores in the months of April and May, 1800, by a party of freebooting Indians, at whose head was the notorious William Augustus Bowles, and a number of the chiefs of the Oakfuskies, Otassis, Cowetas, Casitas, Chickas, Talassess, Eankeechees, and Micasukies, and that no part of said loss has been since recovered.

JOHN FORBES.
JAMES INNERARITY.
VINCENTE FOLCH.

Witnesses: FRANCISCO MOREJOU.
ESTEVAN FOLCH.

Translation of the above documents by Andres Fernandez, public interpreter. Also, a copy of a detailed statement of sums due by various Indian dealers and factors of the Seminoles to the house of Panton, Leslie & Company, in Apalachy, until the end of the year 1800, exclusive of interest, which sums never were paid: $19,157 01.

Errors and omissions excepted.

PANTON, LESLIE & CO.

Also, a copy of a detailed statement of the expenses incurred by the house of Panton, Leslie & Co. during and on account of the proceedings held with the Indians (Seminoles) in Pensacola, as well as in Apalachicola, for the cession and sale of a tract of land in payment of the robberies committed on their store by said Indians, and other matters therein contained, amount to \$2,136 04 $\frac{3}{4}$.

Errors and omissions excepted.

PANTON, LESLIE & CO.

PANTON, LESLIE & CO.

Also, a copy of the act of ascertaining the boundary line, which states that, whereas at a meeting of the chiefs and warriors of the Seminole nations, held at Chickatalofa, May 25, 1804, it was unanimously agreed by the same to cede a certain portion of land belonging to said nation to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., in compensation for the losses, &c., the limits of which land are described in the instrument of writing signed and delivered by the kings and chiefs assembled in junto at Achackweithle, on the river Apalachicola, August 22, 1804, to the said house of Panton, Leslie & Co.; the said cession of land was resolved, decreed, and confirmed, and possession given of them, in the name of the said nations, to James Innerarity, partner of said house, with a few variations and restrictions in the limits to the north and east only added, and which are detailed according to the best information about said lands which was at that time to be had in the instrument of writing which on that occasion they signed and delivered to James Innerarity.

And whereas, in a full junto of said nations, held at Pensacola December 3, 1804, the said cession was before the governor, Don Vincente Folch, solemnly confirmed by a large concourse of kings, chiefs, and warriors then present; and whereas it was then resolved to send a certain number of chiefs to accompany Mr. James Innerarity, when they should think proper, for the better ascertaining and marking the boundary line of said cession, so as to be seen and distinguished by all: be it therefore known, that we, the undersigned, kings, chiefs, and warriors named by the aforesaid nations, and our own towns, have, at the citation of Mr. James Innerarity, accompanied him along said line, which we have distinctly ascertained, according to the order of said junto of Achackweithle and Pensacola, and have marked the same in such a visible manner that it may be easily seen by all, and is as follows: (See limits copied in first and second sheet.) And this line, so marked and thus described, we declare, in the name of our nations, to be the true boundary line of the land ceded in the aforementioned junto to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., and consequently the limits between our nations and the white people in these parts. As such, we order that it may be by all our people held and respected henceforth and forever. Given at St. Mark's, Apalachy, in the presence of the commandant of said post, Don Ignacio Balderas, and the subscribing witnesses, August 2, 1806. (Marks of eleven chiefs.) Certified by Don Ignacio Balderas. Interpreters: Thomas Miller, Juan Antonio Sandobal. Witnesses: Felipe Prieto, Diego de Barrios, Lorenzo Vitrian. We, the undersigned, declare that, although we were not present at the running of this boundary, we acknowledge and agree to its exactness and accuracy, and therefore sign the present before the commandant of this fort and three assistant witnesses. (Four marks of chiefs.) Certified by Ignacio Balderas; witness, Diego de Barrios.

Also, a copy of a petition of John Forbes to Governor Folch, dated November 28, 1806, stating that, in consequence of all the formalities of the cession, and ascertaining the boundaries of the land having been gone through, if his excellency finds the documents conformable to law, he begs that he will interpose his authority in due form, in order to ratify the said cession, and, making use of the authority which the King has conferred on him, put the petitioner in possession of said land in his royal name, on the conditions expressed in the decree of January 7, 1804, depositing the original documents in the archives of the general government of this province, and giving him a summary extract of the pieces composing the same, to serve him at all times as a title in form. Also, a decree of Governor Folch, dated at Mobile, November 28, 1806, granting the prayer of the petitioner; all which foregoing documents are certified by Don Francisco Maximiliano de San Maxent, political and military governor, ad interim, of West Florida, to be true copies of the original proceedings, followed up by Don James Innerarity and John Forbes, agents of the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., in order to obtain the confirmation of the cession of lands made to them by the Creek and Seminole nations of Indians in compensation for debts they had contracted with said house. In witness whereof, the present is signed by me, sealed with my arms, and countersigned (and countersigned) by the secretary of this government, at Pensacola, December 20, 1811. Francisco Maximo de San Maxent, Pablo de Larin. Also, an original confirmation, or title in form, given by Governor Folch, countersigned by the secretary of the government, and dated December 3, 1806, at Mobile, which reads in the words following, to wit: "Whereas Mr. James Innerarity, agent of the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., established in the province, with royal approbation, for the purpose of trading with the Indians since the year 1785, represented to me by a petition dated January 5, 1804, that, in order to follow up the offers made at a general congress of the Indians held in the nation in the month of June, 1803, by several chiefs of the Seminole tribe, and to John Forbes, principal partner and director in the said house of Panton, Leslie & Co., that they would cede in its favor a portion of their lands between the district of Apalachy and Apalachicola, in payment of the debt they had contracted, and the robberies committed by them on the stores of said house established in the neighborhood of Fort St. Mark's, declaring to me at the same time his intention of taking the necessary steps for bringing about the said cession, and to cultivate, and to cause to be cultivated, by industrious persons, the land so obtained, concluding by beseeching me to grant him a permission to establish a talk, or set a negotiation on foot with the Indians on this business; and, that his object being obtained, I should secure to the house the possession of the lands ceded, in order to dispose of them as might be found most convenient; and considering that the petition is not contrary to our laws, nor infringes in any manner the right and sovereignty of our Catholic monarch, (whom God preserve;) and that it being also one of the terms and conditions in the establishment of said house that the government should facilitate, as much as possibly it could, the recovery of the debts pending between the Indians and the said house, (which is also proved by the original letters presented to me by the said James Innerarity, written by the Brigadier Don Manuel Gayoso de Lemos and the Marquis de Caso Calvo, governors general, that were of the ceded province of Louisiana,) in which it is to be gathered that their excellencies were willing and gave their consent to any purchase of lands that the said house might make of the Indians, with the intent of recovering its outstanding debts and the losses occasioned by the robberies committed by the adventurer William A. Bowles; I therefore decreed, January 7, as follows: "Granted the petitioner's request, it being understood that the land he may obtain from the Indians cannot be disposed of without the knowledge or consent of this government." And it resulting from the instrument of cession that the chiefs and principal men of the Talapoosa and Seminole nations assembled in junto at the town of Chickatalofa, May 25, 1804, who affixed their marks and signed: Yohalla Emathla, William Perryman, Talahaya Mico, Tustanagy, Chupco, Hapayoli Mico, Cosa Micco, Thomas Perryman, Taskanagy, Hopoy Hacho, Panas Mico, John Meally, Cacho Tustanagy, Oheles Enyha, Pawas Hacho, Juchu Mico, Musquito Jack, James Perryman, Yfa Tustunagy, Talaysa Emathla, Tastanagy Mico, Yohulla Mico, Ufule Tustanagy Mico, Efau Ten Kinca, Hulleechee, ratified the first writing in my presence, the 20th June following, as appears by my certificate of the 22d; and the second writing in a full assembly of the same chiefs and others present at it, at Achackweithle, the 22d August of the same year; confirmed in Pensacola, before me, the 3d December following, as appears by my certificate of the 5th of same month, with the marks and signatures which follow, of the same chiefs: Hopoy Hacho de Totolosee Talofa, great orator of the Seminoles, Hothepecio, Tustanagy de Totolosee Talofa, Hopoy Mico de Ockmulgeechee, Tustanagy Mico de idem, Kecknecha Thlucco de Cheeyalia, Emathla Thlucco de idem, Mico Nupumice de Cussita, Yahulla Emathle de Chickatalofa, Tankaya Mico de Osootchie, Ochu Tustanagy de Ochu, Yahulla Mico de Usulles, Alabama Tustanagy de Usallis, Tasikaya Hudjo de Ocheesee, Niha Mico de Achumlga, Tustanagy Hudjo de Tochtiothiehle, Ninnywaguchee de Tocktowheithle, Tustanagy de Palachucklie, Yohulla Emathla, alias John Meally de Ocheesee, Hopoy Hudjo, for Copixts Mico de Micasuky, Tustanagy Hopoy for, alias, Little Prince of Cowetas, Coweta Tustanagy de Cowetas, Nicha Hodgee de Cowetas, Ocheesee Mico de Yawallee, Hopayok Hudjo de Yawallee, Mico Tecocksy, alias Hatas Mico, Hopayok Mico de Tawassee, Folka Tustanagy de Wifalatha, Efau Tustanagy de Micasuky for Hopoy Hadjo, Pawas Mico de Ocleyokony, Tustanagy Chupco de Ennesee, Tasikaya Mico de idem, Tustanagy Chupco de Tamathle, Halleneechu, king of Tamathle, Tuskinia, lieutenant of Chafoackcheefalee, sent by King Manso in his stead, and by the two interpreters, Thomas Miller and William Hambly; at which ratification, in Pensacola, was orator King Manso, alias Hopoithle Mico, who, taking up the discourse, declared to me that, with the general consent of his nations, they had confirmed the cession of lands made in May last to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., the limits of which they had designated with more precision in the last writing; that they had made said cession in payment of the robberies they had committed and the debts they had contracted on and in the store of St. Mark's, of Apalachy; and that they had given possession to Mr. James Innerarity in the name of the said house of Panton, Leslie & Co., to whom they had ceded forever all right which they formerly held in the said lands, in token of which they had signed and put their marks to both writings; and as it appears by the accounts, statements, and recapitulations general, which are found in the same documents, that the robberies, losses, and expenses incurred by the said house till the 31st October last, amounts to $66,533 5 reals, and that on the part of those interested fresh steps were taken to designate the limits, and that the said chiefs, principal men, and warriors of the Seminole nations appointed deputies to be present at said designation; and that those met in junto at Fort St. Mark's, of Apalachy, the 2d of August of this year, presided by Don Ignacio Balderas, commandant of said fort, with three assistant witnesses, Don Felipe Prieto, Don Diego Barrios, and Don Lorenzo Vitrian, and interpreters Thomas Miller and Juan Sandoval; and said junto, agreeable to the former stipulation that a certain number of chiefs should accompany said James Innerarity or his agent when it should be found convenient, for the better ascertaining and marking the boundary line of the said cession of lands, so as to be visible and known to all, the said chiefs, principal men, and warriors deputed acknowledged that the same had been done to their entire satisfaction, and declared before the said Don Ignacio Balderas, in the names of their nations and as deputies appointed by them, that they had accompanied James Innerarity in the line and designations of boundary in the following manner.—(See limits and boundaries copied in first and second sheet.) And this line thus marked and described we declare, in the name of our nations, to be the true boundary of the land ceded in the aforesaid juntos to the house of Panton, Leslie & Company, and consequently the limits between our nations and the whites of these parts; and the said declaration being confirmed and signed with the marks of the said chiefs, which was delivered certified by the said commandant, with the addition of four chiefs of the Micasuky village, among whom Capisty was Mico, vulgarly called Kimache, and who, though not present at the said designation of boundary, declared, nevertheless, that they adhered to the accuracy of the limits, and were agreed in what the commissioned chiefs had done, putting in the same manner their marks; and Mr. John Forbes, as partner and director of said house, having preferred a new petition to me, begging that if I found good and conformable to law the documents which compose these proceedings, and of which I have in a summary given an extract, that I should interpose my authority in due form to ratify the cession of land as aforementioned, and which is pointed out by the plat annexed: Therefore, making use of the powers which the King our lord (whom God preserve) has conferred upon me in his royal name, I confirm and ratify to the house of Panton, Leslie & Company the cession of lands made by the Seminole nation of Indians, in the form and terms above explained and seen by the plat annexed, which, with the original proceedings and copy of this title will remain recorded in the office of the secretary of the government of this province; and consequently I declare and impart full and direct dominion to the said house of Panton, Leslie & Company of the aforesaid land, so that the said house may, as its property, enjoy, possess, sell, and alienate, agreeable to the terms expressed in my decree of January 7, 1804, antecedently inserted; and I empower it to take possession, and will defend and maintain it without prejudice to a third party. In witness whereof, I order the present to be delivered, signed by my hand, sealed with my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten secretary of this government. Given in Mobile December 3, 1806. (Signed) Vincente Folch, Francisco Morejou. Also, an original certificate of Pablo de Larin, secretary of the government, dated Pensacola, December 20, 1811, stating that the original proceedings relative to the cession, with the foregoing title confirmed, exist in the office of the secretary of this government under his charge, with an authentic copy of said title, and of the whole was delivered a copy to the surveyor general of this province, Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, in order to deposit in his archives, and another copy was at the same time given to John Innerarity, as representative of the interested parties.

In support of the claim to another tract of land lying east of the river Apalachicola, and undefined in quantity, ceded to the house of John Forbes & Co. by the Lower Creek and Seminole nations of Indians in the year 1811, the following title papers and parol proof were exhibited, to wit:

A copy of a list of debts due by the Lower Creek nation to the house of John Forbes & Co., of Pensacola, adjusted to January 22, 1811; total amount, $19,387 4½. Pensacola, January 22, 1811. By power of attorney from John Forbes & Co. to John Innerarity, also a copy of a certificate of Governor Folch, countersigned by Pablo de Larin, secretary of the government, and dated January 22, 1811, stating that in a full assembly of chiefs of the Lower Creek and Seminole nations, held in the government house this day, the undersigned chiefs declared by the medium of their interpreters, James Durrosseau, resident in the nation, Thomas Miller on the part of the chiefs, and Manual Gonzales of this place, that they had ceded, in the name and with the consent of their nations, to the house of John Forbes & Co., in payment of the debts due to said house by the Indian dealers of the several towns of the aforesaid Lower Creeks on the river Chattahoochie, the piece of land of which the limits are specified in the act of cession which proceeds; which acts and limits were read and translated in my presence by the said interpreters, and they agreeing to the propriety of the same, signed of their accord the foregoing instrument.

In witness whereof, I give the present, signed by my hand, sealed with my arms, and countersigned by the underwritten secretary of this government.

VINCENTE FOLCH.

By order of his excellency:

PABLO DE LARIN.

Also, a copy of the act of cession in the words following, to wit: In a congress of the chiefs of the Lower Creek nations, held in the village of Cuskatalofa, on the river Chattahoochie, in April, 1818, composed of the following persons: (here the names of 18 chiefs.)

Whereas William Hambly, agent of the house of John Forbes & Co., merchants in Pensacola, has shown us a list of debts owing by the Indians and dealers of the Lower Creek nations on the rivers Chattahoochie and Flint, and amounting to the sum of $19,387 4½ reals of silver money; and it being manifest that we have not the means of liquidating said debts otherwise than by a cession of part of our lands, it has therefore been unanimously resolved, and by these presents we resolve to cede, give, grant, sell, and transfer to said John Forbes & Co., in payment of our aforesaid debts, a piece of land at present occupied by us and bounded as follows: (here the limits detailed.)

And whereas we, the following chiefs, Hopoi Mico, Efa Mico, Yoholla Emathla, and Cuskanucky, are duly authorized (according to the customs and statutes of Indians) by the aforesaid absent chiefs, and having this day met in the government house of Pensacola in presence of his excellency Vincente Folch, governor, &c., with the intent of confirming the said cession of land, having met in junto, according to agreement, to validate more fully said cession made to the house of John Forbes & Co., with Cuskanucky, Hopoi Cuskania, Mico Neippa, Cuskanucky, Chuchuckany, and Coweta Mico, we have, in conjunction with them, resolved unanimously and by this instrument, in our names and in that of the tribe of Lower Creeks, we cede, give, grant, sell, and transfer to the said John Forbes & Co., their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, the aforesaid piece of land, bounded as aforementioned, and situated in the said province of West Florida, so that they and their assigns may hold and possess it in full dominion and property. And we, the undersigned chiefs, in our own name, as well as in that of our people of the lower villages, and of our descendants and of theirs, renounce positively and make abandonment of all and whatever rights which heretofore we held in the said piece of land, in favor of the aforementioned John Forbes & Co. and their assigns, in full and entire possession of said piece of land, bounded as aforesaid, now by us ceded, given, granted, sold, and transferred, and we will defend them against all and whatsoever persons from henceforth and forevermore; therefore, the said chiefs, in their names, and in that of all the nation of said Lower Creeks, by these presents, name and constitute Hopoi Mico, Yoholla Emathla, Efa Mico, and Toothia Cuskanucky, chiefs of said nation of Lower Creeks, to accompany the surveyor of the said John Forbes & Co., and designate the boundaries of the said piece of land agreeable to intent and meaning of the limits aforementioned, to mark the trees and fix landmarks when it may be thought necessary, in order to make the boundary line visible and permanent forever. And, therefore, when the said boundary line shall be particularly ascertained, the said chiefs, Hopoi Mico, Yohulla Emathla, Efa Mico, and Toothia Tuskanucky, are by these presents authorized by us, the said chiefs assembled in congress, to proceed to Fort St. Mark's and communicate the same to the commandant, presenting him a plat of it in due form.

And, finally, to give and grant whatever other instrument of writing in our names, and in that of all our people of the said Lower Creek nation, which may be deemed necessary by the said John Forbes & Co., in presence of the said commandant, in order that the said piece of land remain entirely secure to the said John Forbes & Co., their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns forever, in virtue of said writings. Given under our hands and seals, in the government house of Pensacola, January 22, 1811. (Here the marks of 11 chiefs.) Interpreted, signed, sealed, and delivered in the presence of, and by James Durosseau, interpreter of his Catholic Majesty, Thomas Miller, interpreter of the chiefs, Manuel Gonzales, interpreter of government at Pensacola. Also, a copy of a certificate of translation of the foregoing from the English by Vincente Sebastian Pintado, at the instance of John Innerarity, agent of the house of John Forbes & Co., dated Pensacola, June 21, 1811. Also, a copy of a certificate of Don Marcos de Villiers, commandant of Fort St. Mark's, stating that there appeared before him and the two subscribing witnesses seven chiefs of the Seminole nation, (names mentioned,) and after having given their hands in sign of friendship, declared that the foregoing signatures, made by them and other chiefs of their nation, they acknowledged to be legitimate and true; and that the cession and sale contained in the present instrument was just and valid, having been made with full consent of all the nation, and that in its name they had granted and signed the same. Fort St. Mark's, May 25, 1811. Marcos de Villiers, José Urcullo, Lorenzo Vetrican. Also, a copy of an act of confirmation. The preamble states, that whereas in a congress of chiefs of the Lower Creeks, held at Pensacola, January 22, 1811, it was agreed unanimously to cede to the house of John Forbes & Co., in payment of certain debts due to it by said nations, a piece of land bounded as follows, (here a detail of the limits.) And whereas a deed of grant, sale, and concession of the same to said house for the consideration aforesaid, dated January 22, 1811, was signed by the following chiefs of said nation, then and there held, to wit, (here the names of the chiefs;) and that the said deed was confirmed and acknowledged by the said chiefs before Don Vincente Folch, governor, &c., to be their unanimous act and deed, &c., &c.: therefore, be it known to all whom it may concern, that we, the undersigned, chiefs and principal men of the Lower Creek nation, in consequence of the powers conferred upon us by the aforesaid chiefs and principal men, and being met in congress in this place, have unanimously agreed, and by these presents do confirm, in all its parts, intent, and meaning, the said grant and cession of a piece of land as aforesaid, agreeable to the annexed plat, the limits of which were designated, marked, blazed, and measured in our presence, and in that of the chiefs and principal men of the aforesaid Lower Creek nation, who were present with us for that purpose, viz: (here the names of thirteen chiefs.) And in order that the said grant and cession made by us to the said John Forbes & Co. may remain and be valid henceforth and forever, we have this day given solemn possession of the same to William Hamby, agent of said John Forbes & Co., who was deputed by them for that purpose; and by these presents we bind and oblige ourselves and our posterity to maintain and defend them in the quiet and peaceable possession of the same, against all persons whatsoever, henceforth and forever. In witness whereof, we have put our marks to the present with our own hands. Given at Prospect Bluff, Apalachicola, April 22, 1811. (Here the names of the chiefs.) Signed and delivered in presence of Daniel Blue, William Hamby, Edmund Doyle. Also, a copy of a certificate of translation of the above into Spanish by Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, at the instance of John Innerarity, to whom a copy was given. Pensacola, June 22, 1811. Also, a copy of the act ascertaining the boundary line. Whereas, at a congress of chiefs of the Lower Creek nations and Seminoles, held at Pensacola, January 22, 1811, the governor of West Florida being present, it was unanimously agreed and resolved by said chiefs, in the names of their respective towns and nations, to cede a certain portion of the lands belonging to and possessed by the said nations to the house of John Forbes & Co., of Pensacola, in payment of debts owing by the dealers and Indians of the said nations of Lower Creeks, on the river Chattahoochie, to the said house of John Forbes & Co., and their predecessors, Panton, Leslie & Co., at their store at Pensacola; the limits of which, according to the instrument of writing, which on that occasion was signed and granted by them to said house, were as follows: (here a first designation of limits.) And whereas, on the same occasion, it was resolved and ordained by the said chiefs to order a deputation from their body to accompany the agents or attorneys of the said house, in order to run and mark the boundary line of the said land, and so to trace and ascertain it exactly, that in all future times there can be no doubt or dispute thereon. And whereas we, the undersigned, chiefs of the said nations, were then named and deputed for said purpose: now, therefore, be it known to all that, having been summoned by the agents of said house, we have verified and marked the said boundary line throughout all its extents and directions, as follows: (here a minute detail of the limits;) and this line so marked and here described, we declare, in the name of our nations and constituents, to be the true limits of the land ceded in the aforementioned congress to the house of John Forbes & Co., and consequently the boundary between our nations and the whites of these parts. As such we order it to be, by all our people, held and respected henceforth and forever. Given at St. Mark's, Apalachy, in presence of the commandant of said post, Don Marcos de Villiers, and the undersigned assisting witnesses, May 25, 1811. (Marks of six chiefs.)

We, the undersigned, declare that, though we were not present at the designation of the boundary line, we acknowledge and agree to the exactness of the same. In witness whereof, we hereby put our marks, in presence of the commandant of this fort, the interpreters, and assisting witnesses, dated as above. (Marks of five chiefs.) Don Marcos de Villiers, captain and commandant, and sub-delegate of royal finances at this fort.

I certify that, at a congress held this day, the chiefs and warriors there met signed the preceding act, together with Felipe Prieto and William Hamby, who explained to the said chiefs the contents thereof, and the undersigned attesting witnesses. Apalachy, May 25, 1811. Marcos de Villiers, Felipe Prieto, William Hamby, José Urcello, Lorenzo Vetrician. Also, a copy of a detailed account of the expenses incurred by the house of John Forbes & Co. during the proceedings with the Seminole chiefs and Indians, as well at Pensacola as at Apalachicola, Apalachy fort, and other Indian towns, for the cession of two tracts of land in payment of a sum of money which the latter owed, and of which a list is annexed. Total amount, \$3,492 06 $\frac{1}{2}$, E. E., by power of attorney from John Forbes & Co. to John Innerarity. Also, a copy of a petition from John Innerarity to Governor Folch, dated Pensacola, June 7, 1811, begging him, in consequence of every previous formality having been observed for obtaining a cession of two pieces of land from the Lower Creek Indians in payment of certain debts the latter owed the house of John Forbes & Co., to interpose his authority for the ratification of said cession. Also, a copy of a decree of Governor Folch, as follows:

Pensacola, June 8, 1811. The petitioner's request granted on conditions the said John Forbes & Co. do not dispose of or alienate the land in question without the express consent of this government, and that the same be understood to be on the same footing with the cession for which a title was granted on December 3, 1806.
FOLCH.

Also, an original certificate of Francisco Maximiliano de San Maxent, political and military governor of West Florida, (ad interim), countersigned by Pablo de Larin, secretary of the government, and dated December 20, 1811, stating that the foregoing pieces are faithfully copied from the original proceedings which exist in the office of the secretary of this government, of which an original title has been given to John Innerarity, as agent of the house of John Forbes & Co. Also, an original title of confirmation by Governor Folch, as follows:

Whereas John Innerarity, agent of the house of John Forbes & Co., (established in this province, with royal approbation, for trading with the Indians since 1785,) presented me, on the 7th of this month, a petition importing that, in consequence of a congress of chiefs, &c., of the Lower Creek nations, of the rivers Flint and Chattahoochie, held in this place on the 22d of January last, presided by me, in order to agree upon the manner of satisfying said house for the sum of nineteen thousand three hundred and eighty-seven dollars four and a half rials, owing to it by the dealers and Indians of said villages, as appears by an account presented by the said house, and which is ordered to be annexed by the proceedings; at which congress were present the following chiefs, viz: Tuskmiecky Hopoi, Coweta Mico, Coweta Tuskania, Hothepoi Mico, Yahu Hadjoo, Mico Napa, Tuskanucky Chachuany, Ufala Mico, Hapoi Mico, Yohulla Emathla, Efa Mico, Toothia Tuskanucky, with James Durousseau, interpreter of said Indians, and Manuel Gonzales, interpreter of this government; and referring to the resolutions passed in the month of April of the preceding year, 1810, in the village of Tuskatoloofa, they consented and agreed, as a compensation and payment of the aforementioned debt, to the cession and transfer of two pieces of land contiguous and adjacent to that which, in 1806, for a like reason, was ceded by the said chiefs to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., which present act of cession was drawn out in the English language, because many of said chiefs understood that language, and signed by them and by the interpreters, after having fully and circumstantially informed the said chiefs of the contents of the same, and then annexed to the proceedings with its translations into Spanish, under Nos. 2 and 3; and the said chiefs having assembled together in April last at Prospect Bluff, on the Apalachicola river, for the ratifying said cession or transfer, they appointed deputies to assist at the running out and marking of the boundary line of the said land, which they executed, signing another deed, which appears with its translation under Nos. 4 and 5, in which are to be found the names of the following chiefs, viz: Hopoi Mico, Tohalla Emathla, Capichy Mico, Hopoi Cuichei, Micasuky Tuskania, Coweta Emathla, Yohallo Hadjoe, Niony Homughta, Tuskanuky Chackchucky, Tuskusy Hadjoe, John Meally, and those of Daniel Blue, deputy surveyors, William Hambly, interpreter, and Edmund Doyle, agent of the said John Forbes, & Co., and the said deed legalized by the certificate of the commandant of Fort St. Mark's, of Apalachy, Don Marcos de Villiers, before two assisting witnesses, the 25th May last, I ordered it, with its translation, to be also annexed to said proceedings, together with the act passed before the said commandant at Fort St. Mark's, under No. 6, in which the deputation of chiefs, composed of Capitza Mico Kinache, Catha Tuskanuky, Asa Mico, Cosahotche, Yaholla Emathla, Tulsihatcho, and Ninihuamatee Tustunuky, declare fully to have assisted the surveyor, Daniel Blue, the interpreter, William Hambly, and Edmund Doyle, agent of said house, in running and marking the boundary line of said land, in order to avoid all doubts or difficulties; and that in no future time there may be any whatever, they state, having begun at the mouth of the river Apalachicola, and following the line on the west margin, it ascends the Lake Weinico three miles from its entrance, which spot is known by two cypresses marked with crosses; and thence through the hammock, the distance of one chain south to a cypress marked; here it was found impracticable to trace the line further, on account of the bad way, but it should run south 72° west, a supposed distance of 1,280 chains, where a pine is marked; thence south 30° west, 100 chains, to a pine marked with a cross, on the margin of a reedy marsh; thence the line runs by water one mile and a quarter south 14° west, to the extreme western point of St. Vincent's or Deer island, including the whole of the island; thence ascending the river Apalachicola, and beginning the line at the boundary of the lands formerly ceded to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., and running the same up the said river to the mouth of the creek Cosaph Chuchee, or Sweetwater; thence following up said creek to its source, where a hickory is marked with a cross; thence crossing the path by land north 79° east, the line runs the distance of 27 chains 85 links, to a pine marked with a cross; thence north 58° east, 11 chains 47 links, to a pine crossed; thence north 65° east, 18 chains 58 links, to another pine marked; thence north 42° east, 26 chains and 36 links, to another pine marked; thence north 75° east, 16 chains and 9 links, to another pine marked; thence north 40° east, 22 chains 50 links, to another pine marked with a cross; thence north 60 chains 36 links, to another pine marked; thence north 25° east, 5 chains, to another pine marked; thence north 35° east, 24 chains, to another pine marked; thence north 82° east, 241 chains, to another pine marked with a cross; here is the boundary line of the lands ceded to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., the line following which runs till it crosses the river Ocklockny, and again runs the distance of $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles to a pine marked; thence south 80° east, 32 chains, to another with a cross; thence south 78° east, 1,251 chains 51 links, to an oak marked with a cross; on the west margin of the river St. Mark's, a little distance above the spot where the same runs under ground; thence the line runs through the thicket in the neighborhood to where the said river appears again; and thence to its junction with the sea. And the chiefs Nocosa Hopoy, Corva Emathla, Tustanuky Hacho, Mico Hatcho, and Nocosa Hatcho, having ascertained the boundary line, approved of and consented to it, although they were not assisting at running it out and marking it, and signed it in presence of the commandant of the Fort St. Mark's, witnesses and interpreters, as appears at the end of document No. 6. And the accounts having been presented of the expenses attending the proceedings instituted, which amounts to \$3,492 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ rials, I have ordered it to be annexed to the proceedings under No. 7, and I made a decree, in consequence of the above-mentioned petition, to the following effect: "Granted, as the petitioners' request, on conditions that the said John Forbes & Co. may not dispose of nor alienate the land in question without the express consent of this government, and that its concession is to be understood to be on the same footing with that for which a title was given on December 3, 1806." In consequence, the said John Innerarity, as agent and attorney for the house of John Forbes & Co., concludes his said petition, begging me to interpose my authority in due form for the ratification of the said cession of two pieces, of which is designated by the surveyor general of this province, Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, in the figured plat made out by him, and annexed to the original proceedings. Wherefore, making use of the faculties conferred on me by our lord the King, and in his royal name, I confirm and ratify to the said John Forbes & Co. the cession of two pieces of land above designated, made by the nation of Seminole Indians, or Lower Creeks, represented by its principal chiefs, leaders, and considerable men, amply empowered; and I give them power to enter into possession of the said lands according to the directions, dimensions, and distances contained in the figured plat, and certificate of survey, the original documents of which, with a copy of said plat, shall remain in the office of the secretary of this government, the said surveyor registering not only this title, but also that delivered in the year 1806, from the same motives, and that of the island conceded to John Forbes individually, in order that his archives may contain every thing concerning these concessions, and the motives from whence they originated; and I declare and impart to the said house of John Forbes & Co. entire and direct property, that as such, they may the said lands enjoy, possess, cultivate, sell, or alienate, on the conditions expressed in my decree inserted in this title. In witness whereof, I have ordered the present to be expedited, signed by my hand, sealed with my arms, and countersigned by the secretary of this government. Given in Pensacola, June 5, 1811. Vincente Folch. By order of the governor. Pablo de Larin. Also, an original certificate of Pablo de Larin, secretary of the government, dated December 21, 1811, stating that the original document is in the office of the secretary of this government under his charge. Relative to the cession of lands which the preceding title confirms, and of the whole proceedings was made out a copy, with an authentic copy of said title, and the same delivered to the surveyor general of this province, Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, to be deposited in his archives; and another was also delivered to John Innerarity, as attorney of the interested parties. Also, a copy of a petition of John Forbes to the captain general of the Island of Cuba, and the two Floridas, dated Havana, October 9, 1817, in the words following, to wit: "May it please your excellency, John Forbes, a resident in this place, partner and director in the house of Forbes & Co.

established in the two Floridas by royal permission, respectfully represent to your excellency that the said house possessed in full property the lands which were occupied and belonged to the Seminole Indians, situated in the district of Apalachy and Apalachicola, and which were ceded and sold by the chiefs and principal men of that tribe in just payment of the debts which these had contracted, and the robberies they had committed on the stores belonging to his house, situated in the neighborhood of St. Mark's; for which acquisition or transfer of property it obtained the competent permission of Don Vincente Folch y Juan, who was the political and military governor of West Florida, as is proved by the decree issued at Pensacola January 7, 1804, and the title of confirmation delivered at Mobile December 3, 1806, without other restrictions than that of not being able to sell or dispose of said lands without the knowledge and consent of government, as your excellency will more fully see in the documents annexed; particularly the Indians, Lower Creeks, and Seminoles, in consideration of the important services and particular attention with which the house of your petitioner treated them from the year 1785; at which period it begun its establishment under the firm of Panton, Leslie & Co., transmitted to it by similar deeds, requisites, and formalities to the proceedings, an island belonging to them, about seven miles in length, and one or more in breadth, situated on the river Apalachicola, opposite the store or factory which then and there existed. Also, two pieces of land adjoining to the above mentioned, bounded on one side by the river Apalachicola, and then by the lands already ceded, including the islands as far as the creek called Sweetwater creek, agreeable to the plats which, in order to give the said house full, ample, and royal possession of all the said lands, was drawn out by the surveyor general of his Majesty for said province. And being determined to alienate the greater part of the same in favor of Don Colin Mitchell, citizen and merchant of this city, it not being in the power of the petitioner to cultivate them himself, and, by so doing, obviating the necessity of there existing waste lands of no account to the royal treasury or the public benefit, he solicits your excellency, as captain general of the two Floridas, and intrusted with the high powers of your station, to permit him to alienate the said land upon the terms he has agreed upon with the said Colin Mitchell, and that he may agree upon hereafter with other person or persons. Havana, October 9, 1817. Also, a copy of a decree of the captain general, as follows: "Havana, October 9, 1817. This petition to be shown to the assessor general, that he may advise me. Cienfuegos."

Also, a copy of the opinion of the assessor general, as follows: May it please your excellency: The lands which were occupied by Indians of the Seminole tribe, lying in the district of Apalachy and Apalachicola, and the island belonging to the Lower Creeks and Seminoles, about seven miles long, and more than a mile in breadth, together with two pieces of neighboring lands, having been transmitted, as they actually and lawfully are, in full property, a titulo uno roso, to the house of John Forbes & Co., established in the Floridas by royal permission, for which acquisition a competent permission was given to Don Vincente Folch y Juan, who was their political and military governor of West Florida, and who delivered, subsequently, titles of confirmation in favor of the purchasers. There is no obstacle to your excellency's making use of the powers intrusted to you, and permitting the alienation proposed, among which is designated Don Colin Mitchell, a merchant of this city, a person uniting all the qualifications necessary for obtaining them; in the instrument of transfer for appropriation of property having to be inserted copies of said titles of confirmation and the present opinion, if your excellency should be in the same sentiments. Havana, October 13, 1817. Donardo del Monte.

Also, a copy of the decree of the captain general, in the following words: "Havana, October 13, 1817. Agreeably to the preceding opinion of the assessor general, I permit the alienation of the lands solicited by Don John Forbes, in which Don Colin Mitchell is designated as having the greater part, drawing out the writing and insertions mentioned in the said opinion. Cienfuegos."

All which documents are certified to be true copies by Miguel Mendez, first escribano of the government and council, on March 26, 1819, whose signature is accredited by José de Galinor, Juan Martinez, and Cayetano Pontero, notaries public of the royal college of Havana. Also, an original passport granted to James Innerarity, one of the firm of Panton, Leslie & Co., by Governor Folch, countersigned by Francisco Morejou, and dated July 12, 1804, authorizing him to proceed to Apalachicola, with five negroes and a clerk, and take possession of and establish a store on said tract of land.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Octavius Mitchell proves, by parol testimony, all the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title papers. Peter Alba, junior, being sworn, saith that he was a clerk to the house of John Forbes & Co. in the year 1804; that James Innerarity, then a member of the firm, proceeded to Apalachicola, with a clerk and five negroes, and took possession of the said tract of land by virtue of a passport from Governor Folch, and established a store; that the said house of Forbes & Co., and those claiming under it, have been in possession of the said land ever since, except during a short interval occasioned by Indian disturbances, but that the possession was resumed by them shortly after the disturbance ceased; that in the fall of 1804 the chiefs of the nation, accompanied by a large number of warriors, met at Pensacola, and then ratified, in a public and formal manner, in presence of Governor Folch, the cession made by them to the firm of Panton, Leslie & Co., acknowledged the debt due by them to the said firm, and expressed their desire to extinguish them by a cession of a part of their lands; and further saith not. Pelippe Prieto, being sworn, saith that he was the King's storekeeper at the post of St. Mark's in the year 1804; officiated as the private secretary of the commandant of the post, and occasionally acted as interpreter; that he officiated as one of the interpreters at the original cession made to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., by the chiefs of the Seminole nation, and saw the said chiefs sign the act of cession in the presence of the commandant of the post; that the chiefs then acknowledged the debts by their nations due and owing to the said house; and that the negotiations were commenced by permission of Governor Folch, with a view of obtaining a cession of lands in satisfaction of the debts. And further says, that he was present at the cession made to the house of John Forbes & Co. in the year 1811; that it was executed in the same formal manner and for the same purposes, prior to its ratification at Pensacola. He also confirms the foregoing statement of Peter Alba, junior; and further saith not.

Opinion of the commissioners.

The above two grants to Panton, Leslie & Co., and to John Forbes & Co., on the east side of the Apalachicola river, seem to have been made with the same formalities, and under the same restriction or condition of not alienating the same without the consent of the Spanish government. They are both made as a remuneration for similar losses sustained by that house at different periods, and the same questions are involved as to the validity of the titles.

In forming an opinion upon the claims, two leading questions are presented to the minds of the undersigned commissioners: 1st. Were the Indians, from whom the purchase was made in the first instance, competent to make a conveyance to lands, to be held and possessed "in full right and entire property?" and 2d. Was Governor Folch vested with the power to make a grant, or confirm one of this description?

Upon the first question presented, the undersigned commissioners have no hesitation in giving it as their opinion that the Indians could make no conveyance vesting a fee simple. Were the contrary admitted, the confirmation of Governor Folch would have been superfluous. The treaty of 1784, made between Spain and the Seminole and Tallapoosa Indians, incorporates the latter as subjects of his Catholic Majesty, coequal with the whites, but reserving the sovereign disposal of the soil of East and West Florida in the hands of the Spanish authorities. This construction of the treaty is clearly sustained in different reports made by surveyors and fiscals in West Florida, in which they state that the Indians are only entitled to the lands occupied by their farms and villages. Being an erratic people, this right, as a tribe or nation, is believed to have been in most cases a usufructuary one, and whenever they removed the land which they abandoned was subject to be granted to other settlers. As a further illustration of the opinion that the Indians collectively have no fee simple right to lands within the Floridas, Governor Masot, in the case of Mary Weaver, decreed that the Indians had no possessions in this province in conformity with the report of the fiscal upon the claim of Jayme Barcelo. No line of demarcation has ever existed between Indian and Spanish lands; indeed, no such distinction has ever been recognized. As a tribe or nation, the Indians, as before remarked, seem to have enjoyed only a usufructuary right, in which they were protected as long as they continued in possession of the land. As individuals, they are believed to have held their lands in some cases upon the same terms as other Spanish subjects, &c. To secure them in the enjoyment of these privileges, the regulations of Morales contain a special provision in their favor, declaring that, where they possess lands within the limits of the government, they shall not in any manner be disturbed, but protected and supported. The possession here mentioned must have been of the description already noticed in a preceding part of this report. Although the lands here granted are stated to have been occupied by the Indians, it could only have been as a hunting ground, and not as farms and villages, and to which, as a nation, they could give no title in fee simple. Gayoso, governor general of Louisiana, was no doubt in possession of this information, and it probably constituted the motive which induced him to recommend in his private letter that the purchase should be made in the United States.

As to the power of Governor Folch to make such a grant, we are not apprised of any law or ordinance by which it is warranted. The governor himself asserts that he is vested with the power by the King, and the assessor general of Cuba states the same fact. The permission of the captain general to dispose of the land to Mr. Mitchell is also evidence in favor of the legality of its exercise. But another difficulty is here presented and remains unexplained. Florida, under the Spanish government, was divided into East and West by the Apalachicola river, having a governor in each, with separate and independent jurisdictions. If Governor Folch could have given the confirmation in West, we do not understand how he could do so in relation to lands in East Florida, as was the fact in the case now before us. This is not a grant for public services, although it is acknowledged that the house of Panton, Leslie & Co. made sacrifices and were useful to the Spanish government; but they, at the same time, appear to have enjoyed singular and exclusive privileges. The consideration of settling cultivators upon the land may have been an inducement in making the grant, but the great object evidently was to obtain a sale which would remunerate the houses of Panton, Leslie & Co. and John Forbes & Co. for debts due from, and robberies committed by, the Indians. The representative of these houses appears to consider the Spanish authorities as responsible for these losses, but upon what principle we are unable to learn. There is no such acknowledgment on the part of her officers amongst the papers filed in the cases before us. Gayoso, in recommending the purchase, thinks it the only way to be repaid for their outstanding debts, which would otherwise be lost in the nation; "and Governor Folch states it as one of the conditions upon which said house was established, that the government should facilitate, as much as possibly it could, the recovery of the debts pending between the Indians and the said house." Here appears to be no obligation to pay for debts, &c., but only to facilitate their recovery. With these facts before them, and by a reference to our general report upon large claims, Congress will be enabled to decide upon the validity of these titles.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 2.

A report of a claim of John Forbes & Co. to a tract of land west of the Apalachicola river, in the district of West Florida, by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provisions of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of John Forbes & Co. to a tract of land, undefined in quantity, lying west of the river Apalachicola, is founded on the following title papers and testimony exhibited in support thereof.

A copy of a letter from John Forbes, partner and principal of the house of John Forbes & Co., to the captain general of Cuba and the two Floridas, praying, in the words and figures following, to wit: "Excellent sir: John Forbes, partner and principal in the house of John Forbes & Co., established in Pensacola by royal license, for the purpose of transacting mercantile business, more especially with the Indians of that province, respectfully sheweth to your excellency, that, during the late warfare between the American Indians and the subjects of Great Britain, our interest suffered much, as well in stock as in stores, effects, &c.; indeed, more than can be exaggerated. Many slaves belonging to the company were carried off and concealed by the Indians during the residence of Colonel Nichols; and though the government of Pensacola, upon being made acquainted with the fact, claimed back their servants so violently seized upon, it was all in vain; they were never returned. In order to facilitate their restitution without the royal treasury, although it alone was and is responsible, my house fitted out, at sundry times, and with our own pecuniary means, vessels for the sole purpose of demanding them. In the first which sailed for the aforesaid object was Captain Don Benigno Calderon, and other officers, with a commission from government. Posterior to this, on two other occasions, other persons were commissioned, in order to avoid the withdrawing of public officers from their duties. But all these missions failed in their object of procuring a restitution of the things that were robbed. The same house deputed Edmund Doyle and William Hamby for the same end, giving them considerable gratifications for their trouble, and indemnifying the last named for the loss which he suffered of all he possessed. Besides all this, Woodbine induced the Indians, of whom he also got to be named a chief, to carry off negroes, and we had to prosecute him criminally in New Providence, which occasioned us much expense, without being successful; for he had the art or means of escape from the hands of justice. Thus all the efforts and sacrifices made by the house to save the government from these losses have only served to augment them. At that time of disorder and confusion the said Indians carried off about a thousand head of cattle belonging to the house, which also suffered a loss in another quarter of thirty-eight horses and two mules; and, lastly, a band of the same set fire to the stores belonging to the house, on the Apalachicola, seizing at the same time upon eleven of our slaves, and all the cattle, horses, utensils, and articles there found, without leaving anything whatever behind, and also took as prisoners Doyle and Hamby, who justly and reasonably claim of the house the injury and personal prejudice they sustained by such extraordinary and unheard of proceedings. So many losses, including the labor of the negroes, capital and interest of money, which do not amount to less, on a moderate calculation, than one hundred thousand dollars, should be indemnified by the superior government, to which that of Pensacola is subordinate, either in money or by a compensation to my house of some other equivalent. The losses are clear and positive, and an inspection of the correspondence between the governor of the province and the captain general's office will suffice to confirm the truth of my exposition; and also on this subject ample proofs can be given by the surveyor general, Captain Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, Don Francisco de Arroyo, of the office of the secretary of the intendancy, and other equally distinguished individuals, who were in Pensacola in his Majesty's service. Therefore, considering, on the one hand, how difficult it is to pay me in ready money, as ought to be the case, the hundred thousand dollars to which my house is so contestably entitled, on account of the great scarcity of cash in the public coffers; and, on the other hand, that, besides the many services our house has rendered at all times to his Majesty, with whose means and resources it may be said the troops of the garrison have been sustained, and having still pending and to receive more than eight thousand dollars, we could augment considerably the population of the province without compensation of the aforesaid sum, if an adjudication were made in full property to the said house of Forbes & Co., which I represent, a tract or round of land which is vacant, and which commences from the creek known as Sweetwater creek, on the river Apalachicola, and runs directly west as far as the river Choctawhatchee, following the course of said river to its mouth, on the bay of St. Rosa, then eastwardly, winding along the shores of said bay and the sea, to the boundary of the lands on the east of the Apalachicola, formerly ceded to our house by the Indians, and running along the western boundary of said land up the said river to the point of departure. I am aware that this land, which, for the greater part, is not capable of being cultivated, will not compensate for the fourth part of the sum which we claim, because the amount of our losses exceeds, as I have said, one hundred thousand dollars; but however it may be, this will be an additional incentive to the loyalty and obedience which we profess to our sovereign, and we do not wish that his Majesty should feel the detriment of such a large reimbursement, contenting ourselves with the hope that time and our industry may be productive of benefit to the said province, and augmentation to the royal patrimony.

Wherefore, I pray your excellency that, in virtue of the recommendations contained in the correspondence between the commandancy of Pensacola and this government concerning the above-mentioned losses, and the information which I will shortly furnish in proof of them, you will be pleased to adjudicate in full property to the house of Forbes & Co., of which I am principal, and which I represent, the tract of land above designated, according to the points and boundaries explained, delivering the necessary titles of possession, with which we shall rest satisfied, content, and compensated for the claims of losses and indemnities demanded, &c., &c. (Signed) Don Pedro de Antonia de Ayala, John Forbes. Also, a copy of the decree of the captain general, dated Havana, January 5, 1818, as follows: "To be shown to the assessor general, that he may advise that which corresponds. (Signed) Cienfuegos, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of notification to John Forbes. (Signed) Mendez. Also, a copy of decree of the captain general, dated Havana, January 5, 1818, as follows: "Having been inspected, let the petitioner of the house of John Forbes & Co., above mentioned, be received at the notary's office, who is charged therewith, and let the testimony prayed for be taken, clothed with the usual forms; which done, let them be returned along with the foregoing. (Signed) Cienfuegos, Del Monte, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of notification of the same to John Forbes, on the same day, by Miguel Mendez. Also, a copy of a decree of Ramirez, the intendant general, dated Havana, January 7, 1818, as follows: "Let it be done without prejudice to this jurisdiction. (Signed) Ramirez, Campuro, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of a deposition in the following words, to wit: "I went to the house of Francisco Gutierrez de Arroyo, former secretary of the intendancy of West Florida, and now belonging to the intendancy general sub-delegate, who, having taken the oath usually prescribed to tell the truth, and being examined as to the tenor of the petition of John Forbes, after having carefully perused it, declared that, having resided in Pensacola from February, 1806, in the discharge of his office, he could testify, as an ocular witness, that the acts alleged, for which an indemnity is demanded, are so certain and positive that no impartial person in that province can refuse to acknowledge. That the losses were enormous, not only in Pensacola, but also in the stores which the demandant held on the rivers Apalachicola and Perdido; that the Indians carried off the slaves on their establishments, concealing them during the residence of Colonel Nichols in that quarter, notwithstanding the remonstances of the government, on the commissions given afterwards to Don Benigno Calderon, captain of the Louisiana regiment, and other officers, as well as to various individuals; so that, in the opinion of the deponent, there is no exaggeration in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars asked for as an indemnity for the aforesaid losses, comprehending more than one thousand head of cattle, yokes of oxen, draught horses, and all the utensils and other articles which were taken off from the stores of Forbes by the aforesaid Indians, for which not the smallest compensation has been received by the said house; it having also been the only one in Pensacola which has rendered important services to the sovereign. The respondent likewise declared that the above deposition is the whole truth in virtue of the oath; that he is fifty years of age; that the dispositions of the law do not affect him, &c., &c. (Signed) Francisco Gutierrez de Arroyo. Before me, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of another deposition, as follows: "In the city of Savannah, same day, month, and year, I went to the house of Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, his Majesty's surveyor general, who, having made to me the customary oath to say the truth, and being examined in the same manner as the preceding deponent, declared that, during his residence at Pensacola, it has come to his particular notice that, in the various conflicts between the American Indians and the subjects of Great Britain, the house of Forbes & Co., established there by royal license for trading with the Indian tribes, suffered the most serious losses, as well in Pensacola as at the Perdido and Apalachicola rivers, by the aforesaid events and causes; and, although the deponent cannot state the amount of these losses and injuries, he thinks they must be very considerable. That the said house has rendered most important services at all times to troops of that station as well as to our lord the King, (ample proofs of which are to be found in the office of the secretary of this government.) The respondent affirms all this to be truth, in virtue of his oath, &c., &c. (Signed) Vincente Sebastian Pintado. Before me, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of another deposition, as follows, to wit: "In the city of Havana, on the same day, I went to the domicile of Don Francisco Guerrero, captain in the Louisiana regiment, who, having made the usual oath, and examined as above, declared 'that, during his long residence in Pensacola, knew very positively that, in consequence of the warfare between the American Indians and his Britannic Majesty's subjects, serious losses were suffered by the house of Forbes & Co.; that at the time Colonel Nichols was in that quarter the same Indians carried off and concealed a number of their negroes; that the same happened when Woodbine made himself their chief, and compelled them to steal away negroes and commit other acts of atrocity; that they carried off the quantity of cattle, oxen, and horses specified, after destroying the stores which belonged to the said house on the rivers Apalachicola and Perdido. That, though sundry steps were taken by the government in order to procure the restitution of the immense property of Forbes & Co. so pillaged, nothing was returned, so that the house was necessitated to claim the same of the sovereign, who was responsible for them. That there is no doubt the losses sustained do amount to the sum of $100,000, as well by an approximate calculation as for the important services which that house has ever rendered to the troops of that station and to our lord the King;' (proof of which may be found in the secretary's office of this government.) He also attests to the truth of the above, &c., &c. Francisco Guerrero. Before me, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of another deposition, as follows: "In the city of Havana, same day, I went to the house of Don Francisco Morales, captain of the Louisiana regiment, who, having taken the usual oath, &c., declared that, having long resided in Pensacola, and chiefly during the warfare between the American Indians and the subjects of Great Britain, he well knows that the house of Forbes & Co. suffered the losses expressed in the first of the preceding documents, &c., &c. (The rest of the deposition the same as the preceding.) (Signed) Francisco de Pablo Morales. Before me, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of the grant or title in form, as follows: "Havana, January 10, 1818. Having inspected the above, together with the preceding documents, which were ordered to be sent to the assessor by decree of the 6th instant—taking into consideration the merits of the case, in which it appears that the house of Forbes & Co., established by royal permission in Pensacola for the purpose of trading with the Indian tribes, claims an indemnity of $100,000 for losses of various kinds sustained during the warfare between the American Indians and the subjects of Great Britain, and during the residence of Colonel Nichols in that province, and, also, when Woodbine, making himself their chief, instigated them to commit all kinds of robbery; upon all which the necessary representations were at that time made, without effecting a restitution to the said house of Forbes & Co. of any of the negroes, animals, or other property of which they were unjustly spoiled. And, on the other hand, considering that the tract of land which they ask for an adjudication of in payment and compensation of the aforesaid sum can never equal that amount, in a province of such small population, where the lands remain without cultivation, and no one turns his attention to improve them, according to the information which his Majesty's surveyor general, Don V. S. Pintado, has received; but that, entering into the possession of John Forbes, principal partner of said house, he will have the means of turning said tract to use by introducing colonists thereon, and making it beneficial to the State, that which is at present waste and abandoned; which considerations moved his Majesty, in a royal ordinance of August 10, 1815, to offer lands to those who were willing to establish themselves in the island of Puerto Rico, as the most advantageous mode that could be employed for increasing population: Therefore, his excellency, making use of the faculties vested in him, has granted, and by these presents does grant the said tract of land to John Forbes & Co., under the points and limits designated in the first of the preceding documents, the said house remaining without any right of claim upon the royal treasury for the losses and injuries it has sustained, and with the value of said tract, whatever it may be, remaining compensated for everything, and the demands of said house for indemnity cancelled, and the governor of Pensacola, in virtue of this resolution, shall put it in quiet and peaceable possession of said tract. His excellency ordains the necessary documents to be delivered to the said house, and the original to remain in the archives. (Signed) Cienfuegos, Del Monte, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of a petition of Don Colin Mitchell, agent of the house of Forbes & Co., as follows: "Excellent sir: The house of Forbes & Co., of Pensacola, through their attorney in this city, respectfully represents that, in the midst of the confusion in the public archives of that place, occasioned by the entry of the American army, they have preserved the act or original decree expedited by Don José Masot, political and military governor of the province of West Florida, in consequence of that issued by his supreme government relative to indemnity for losses claimed by their petitioners, and they having occasion for two copies of the latter, one of which to be annexed to the document existing in Pensacola, and the other for their own use, supplicate your excellency to order the same to be delivered, &c. (Signed) Colin Mitchell." Also, a copy of a decree thereon, as follows: "Havana, December 18, 1818. Having seen by the foregoing document what it expresses, let the testimony prayed for by the house of Forbes & Co. be given to them. (Signed) Cienfuegos. (Countersigned) Del Monte, Miguel Mendez." Also, a copy of the act of possession given by Governor Masot, as follows: Don José Masot, &c., &c. Whereas, in obedience to the above superior decree of his excellency the captain general of this province of the 10th instant, by which, as an indemnity, is conceded to the house of Forbes & Co. a tract of land situated between the river Apalachicola to the east, and Choctawhatchee to the west, the ocean to the south, and on the north by a line beginning opposite to the creek known by the name of Sweetwater creek, situated on the eastern side of Apalachicola, about three and a half miles north of the bluff known by the name of Alum bluff, and running west to the Choctawhatchee; thence following the sinuosities of said river to its mouth on the bay of St. Rosa; thence winding along the eastern shore of the same to the sea, the high waters of which form the limits to the south, and till the line joins the limits of the land formerly acquired by the said house on the west of the Apalachicola, in front of the island of St Vincent; thence running along the limits of said lands to the river Apalachicola; thence the course of said river to the point of departure of the line serving as the northern boundary line, opposite the aforesaid creek, called Sweetwater creek: therefore, and in obedience to the said decree of his excellency of the 10th instant, I put the said house of Forbes & Co. in possession of the tract of land above described, and, in consequence, declare and impart to them full and direct property in the said land, so that they may the same enjoy, possess, sell, or transfer, as they may judge proper, &c. Pensacola, January 23, 1818. (Signed) José Masot. (Countersigned) Carlos Reggio. All which foregoing documents are certified to be true copies by Miguel Mendez, second escribano of the government and cabildo, December 19, 1818, whose signature as such is accredited on the same day by Ramon Alvarez, José de Galinor, and Lorenzo Hodro, notaries public of the city of Havana. Also, an original order of ejectment given by Governor Callava, in the following words, to wit: Don José Masot, civil and military governor, &c., &c. In consequence of the renewed application of John Innerarity, esq., I order and command all and singular person or persons who may have occupied or established themselves on the lands or territory belonging to Messrs. John Forbes & Co., situated and bounded by and between the rivers Choctawhatchee and Apalachicola, unless by special permission of or agreement with the said Messrs. John Forbes & Co., that they shall definitively remove from the same within the peremptory term of ten days after the notification of this order; and in case of non-compliance within the time specified, they will be proceeded against according to law. The notification and execution of this order is intrusted to Mr. Jonathan Bunker, and, for the better confirmation thereof, it is to be translated into English by Don José Ignacio Cruzat; which translation he is to extend and sign in continuation of this my order. Given in Pensacola, signed with my hand, sealed with the shield of my arms, and countersigned by the undersigned secretary of this government, this 8th day of October, 1819. (Signed) José Callava. (Countersigned) Carlos Reggio.

The signatures to the transcript from Havana, and to the foregoing order of ejectment, proven by Joseph E. Caro by comparison of handwriting.—(See the letters of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos and Marquis de Casa Calvo, governors general of Louisiana and West Florida, copied in report No. 1.)

Carlos Evans, being sworn, saith that, on the return of the grant for said tract of land made to the house of John Forbes & Co. by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and both the Floridas, there was a decree of Governor Masot putting the grantees in possession thereof, which possession they have held ever since; that a number of improvements have been made on different parts of the said tract by persons claiming under the grantees; that, in the year 1819, at the request of John Innerarity, Governor Callava issued an order ejecting a number of intruders, some of whom were imprisoned for disobedience of the order; and further saith not.

Desiderio Quina, being sworn, saith that he is acquainted with all the foregoing facts stated by Mr. Charles Evans; and further saith that the said house, and those claiming under it, have held actual possession of the said tract of land ever since the year 1818, by virtue of a grant from the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, and a decree of possession given by Governor Masot; and further saith not.

Opinion of the commissioners.

This grant for land on the west side of the river Apalachicola to the house of John Forbes & Co. appears to have been made upon the same considerations with those on the east side, with this difference, that there is an acknowledgment of the intendant that the royal treasury was responsible to the said house for the losses sustained. The land lies in West Florida, and a title is made to the grantees conveying a full and direct property. In this case, as in the first mentioned, there is no negotiation with the Indians for a conveyance, although they are represented as having been guilty of the robberies by which serious losses were sustained. The reasons of this difference are not understood by the undersigned commissioners.

The only question to be decided in this case is, whether so large a grant for such purposes could be made without a reference to the King, as was done in relation to the claim of Bastrop and others. Upon this point we beg leave to refer to our general report upon large claims for an explanation of our views. They are general in their character, as the materials out of which they were formed are limited and imperfect. As classes of a similar description have frequently been reported to Congress for their examination, they are believed better prepared to decide them than the undersigned commissioners. They therefore respectfully submit the case to their determination.

No. 3.

A report of a claim of Fernando Yerra to a tract of land containing twenty-five thousand six hundred arpents, (25,600,) lying north and south, east and west, on Conecuh river, in the district of West Florida, by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Fernando Yerra to a tract of land containing 25,600 arpents, lying north and south, east and west, on Conecuh river, is founded on the following title papers:

An original decree made by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor general of Louisiana, dated New Orleans, February 10, 1799, commanding Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, to put Fernando Yerra in possession of the land mentioned in the petition signed and dated as above.

Also, an original plat and certificate of survey executed by Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, dated April 5, 1799, reciting that he executed the survey for the claimant in obedience to a decree of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor general of Louisiana, dated February 10, 1799.

Also, an original decree of concession made to the claimant by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor general, countersigned by Andres Lopez Armesto, secretary, dated New Orleans, May 18, 1799.

John de la Rua, being duly sworn, saith that he never heard of any such man in Florida named Fernando Yerra, or of any such claim as the one now presented; and further saith that he is well acquainted with the signatures of the governor general of Louisiana, Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, the secretary Andres Lopez Armesto, and Governor Vincente Folch, and that he does not believe either of the signatures to be genuine; that he is also acquainted with the signature of Carlos Trudeau, and does not believe the signature attached to the certificate of survey to be his handwriting; and further, that he never heard of his being in this province.

William McVoy, being duly sworn, saith that he has lived in this place forty-two years, and never knew any such man named Fernando Yerra; that he knows Carlos Trudeau, the surveyor general, never lived in this province; and that the signature to the grant purporting to be that of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos does not appear to be his handwriting; and further saith not.

John Malagosa, being duly sworn, saith that Carlos Trudeau, the surveyor general, was not in this province until the year 1803; and proved the other facts stated by William McVoy.

Opinion of the commissioners.

It will be perceived by the foregoing abstract of the title papers, and the testimony summoned in behalf of the United States, that the claim of Fernando Yerra to the above-mentioned tract of land will require but a brief opinion from the undersigned commissioners. They can have no hesitation in believing that the title papers exhibited in support of this claim are forged; and that Carlos Trudeau, who is made to certify the survey of the tract of land, was not the surveyor general of West Florida at the time the grant purports to have been made.

They consider the claim invalid and fraudulent, and advise a rejection of it by the Congress of the United States. All of which is respectfully submitted.

No. 4.

A report of a claim of Millan de la Carrera to ten thousand arpents of land on the Escambia river, about sixteen miles north of Pensacola, in the district of West Florida, by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Millan de la Carrera to ten thousand arpents of land on the Escambia river, about sixteen miles from the city of Pensacola, is founded on the following title papers:

An original petition, signed by Millan de la Carrera, dated May 4, 1804, addressed to Don Vincente Folch, governor general and sub-delegate of the intendancy, stating that, since the past year, 1798, he has had a saw-mill built to work by water, situated about five leagues from this town, and in the same place in which the English formerly had one constructed during the time they occupied this Florida, with respect to which the owners did not present themselves within the term stipulated in the capitulation, at the conquest of the province by the Spanish arms, nor within the prolongation of the said term afterwards accorded. The place therefore remains vacant and at the disposal of government. In virtue of all which he, the said Don Millan de la Carrera, supplicates your lordship that, in consideration of the great expense which has been occasioned him by the aforesaid establishment, so useful to the service of the King, advantageous to the inhabitants, and encouraging to the settlement, your lordship will be pleased to grant him in full property ten thousand arpents of superficies within the following bounds, to wit: five thousand seven hundred and fifty arpents on the west side of the river Escambia, extending from Stony branch to a little above the aforesaid saw-mill, to be regulated by the figurative plan herewith annexed, which your petitioner has had taken for the sake of greater clearness; the said quantity of land not to interfere with an allotment of land of 300 arpents, or such number as your lordship may deem proper, for the inhabitants employed there to work since the commencement of the undertaking; and the remaining four thousand two hundred and fifty arpents on the east side of the said river Escambia, in the form following: from the northern and the southern extremes of the space figured in the plan, that is to say, from the mouth of Stony branch, and from the mouth of the branch on which stands the saw-mill, draw lines running northeast the distance which may be necessary to include the said number of arpents, so that sufficient timber may be had for the supply of the mill and pasture for the stock, and that this useful establishment may at no time hereafter be prejudiced. This grant, however, to be with the absolute exclusion of the islands, great and small, situated in the said river, within the extent petitioned for, which islands will be understood to remain vacant and at the disposal of government. The grace of all which he hopes to obtain of your lordship.

Also, an original decree made by Governor Folch, dated as before written, stating that, in consideration of the well-known sums which the petitioner has invested in the construction of the mill he has established in the same place in which the English formerly had one, and of the benefit which results from it to the service of the King, and the encouragement of the settlement, the grant is hereby made to him of the ten thousand arpents of land that he requires, for the purpose he has stated, and which are described in the annexed figurative plan to be returned to him, together with his petition, and this decree upon it; all which documents to serve him as a formal title. (Signed) Vincente Folch.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Millan de la Carrera proved, by parol testimony, the signature of Governor Folch, annexed to the grant, and that a mill was erected, and large improvements made on the said tract of land above mentioned, about the year 1800, and was a fact of public notoriety.

Opinion of the commissioners.

This is an anomalous claim, and is the only one of the kind presented to this board. It was made in consideration of the great expense to which the grantee had been exposed in building a saw-mill, which was acknowledged to be useful to the service of the King, advantageous to the inhabitants, and encouraging to the settlement, and such a quantity has been granted as was deemed by the sub-delegate sufficient to enable the grantee to supply the mill with timber and to pasture his stock. No conditions are attached to it, as the mill had been already erected.

For such a grant as this we can find nothing in the regulations of Morales by which it is authorized. These regulations provide only for sales and for gratuities for the purposes of pasturage and cultivation. We are, notwithstanding, apprised that the sub-delegates have been in the practice elsewhere of making grants of this description. The presumption is, independent of this circumstance, that the subordinate authorities of Spain acted within the pale of their powers. We are inclined to believe the claim a valid one, but of the correctness of this opinion Congress will be the best judge, as grants like the present have often been submitted to their consideration. If any doubts are entertained as to the power of Governor Folch, who made it, they may require the claimant to produce the law or ordinance under which he acted, or exercise a discretion to what extent they will give the grant confirmation.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 5.

A report of a claim of Margarita Goquet, mother of Joseph Poll, to ten thousand arpents of land at the Big Spring of Chipola, in the district of West Florida, the title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Margarita Goquet is founded on an original plat and certificate of survey executed by Don Pedro Reggio, deputy surveyor general of West Florida, on the — day of —, of ten thousand arpents of land at the Big Spring of Chipola. Also, an original decree of concession made by Don José Masot, governor, &c., countersigned by the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sousa and José Cevallos, bearing date October 16, 1817, made to Joseph Poll; also, an original grant by Governor Masot, countersigned by the same assistants, and bearing date November 18, 1817.

Joseph E. Caro proved the signatures of Reggio, Masot, Sousa, and Cevallos.

Joseph Moura, being sworn, saith that, in the year 1817, he assisted in transporting hands and provisions to the tract of ten thousand arpents of land at the Big Spring, on Chipola, granted originally to Joseph Poll, in order to commence improvements and cultivation thereon; that five or six months afterwards he visited the same place, at which time they had built a house and cleared and enclosed a large piece of ground; that Joseph Poll was the son of Margarita Goquet, who inherited the said tract of land at his death; and further saith not.

Manuel Moura, being sworn, saith that he attended Joseph Moura when he visited the said tract of land at the aforementioned periods, and is acquainted with the facts stated by him; and further saith that the negroes employed by said Poll in the improvements and cultivation aforesaid absconded, and of which was never recovered; and further saith not.

Joseph E. Caro, sworn, proved that the grant made to Joseph Poll, and presented by Margarita Goquet, is the handwriting of Francisco Gomez.

Francisco Moreno, sworn, saith that Juan Miguel de Losada left this place in the month of November, 1817, and that he acted as fiscal until that date, and that afterwards Manuel Armirez succeeded him; that he thinks the title papers in the above case are the handwriting of Francisco Gomez.

Opinion of the commissioners upon the claim of Margarita Goquet to ten thousand arpents of land at the Big Spring of Chipola.

The land claimed by the petitioner is situated about fourteen miles west of the Apalachicola river, around the Big Spring of Chipola, and purports to have been granted to José Poll by the governor and sub-delegate of West Florida for agricultural purposes. The title itself is an anomaly, being the only one, with a single exception, in West Florida in which the governor has attempted to make a grant of that magnitude to an individual claimant for cultivation. The undersigned commissioners can have no hesitation in believing that this grant would not have been confirmed by the superior authorities of the Spanish government, according to their laws and ordinances referred to in their general report on Spanish claims and the report on large claims, to which a particular reference is suggested for their views of the powers of the provincial officers of his Catholic Majesty, and the policy of the government in the concession of the domain. We cannot, however, dismiss this claim, with justice to the government of the United States, without a few additional remarks. It is believed that the Chipola country, the finest part of West Florida, in which this claim is located, was unexplored by and inaccessible to the Spaniards until some time after January 24, 1818, the period subsequent to which no claim is valid by the eighth article of the treaty.

The grant bears date in October, 1817. The King's attorney or fiscal, to whom the petition was referred, appears, from the title papers, to be Manuel Armirez, who is ascertained not to have been appointed to that office until November, 1817. All the genuine grants of October are made with the concurrence and intervention of Juan Miguel de Losada, who is now living in Havana. It is apparent, from the foregoing, that the grant is either antedated or forged. In addition to this, it is in the handwriting of a young man who is proved, by the most uncontested evidence on our records, never to have been employed in the government office as an assistant, witness, or clerk, and who is also proved to have been only learning to write in that year, and to have been unable at that time to have written the hand in which the title papers appear, and who is also proved to have written a number of grants which are ascertained to have been fabricated in 1820 and 1821. With such a combination of facts and circumstances, added to the anomalous nature of the claim and the want of power in the granting authority, the undersigned are of opinion that the claim is invalid, and ought to be rejected, which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of a claim to a tract of land containing 7,500 arpents, at a place called Belle Fontaine, in the district of West Florida, by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of an act of Congress, approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of Vincente Crespo to 7,500 arpents of land, at a place called Belle Fontaine, in West Florida, about ten miles from the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

The petition of the heirs of Vincente Crespo, "respectfully representing that soon after the occupation of this province by the Spanish authorities, in the year 1781, the father of your petitioner obtained from Arturo O'Neil, then governor and sub-delegate of West Florida, a grant for 7,500 arpents of land, situated at a place called Belle Fontaine, about ten miles from the city of Pensacola. That the said Crespo, the father of your petitioner, immediately after obtaining the grant aforesaid, made extensive improvements on the said land, which he continued to improve and cultivate for many years previous to his death. That, owing to the confusion and irregularity which prevailed in the office of record in this province for many years previous to its occupation by American authorities, all the official documents on which the claim of your petitioners depend have been lost or destroyed. And from the unfortunate and unprotected situation of your petitioners since the death of their father, the said Vincente Crespo, they have been unable to obtain any documentary evidence in support of their claim to the said land. But your petitioners are prepared to show to your honors the former existence of the grant aforesaid, and that the right of the said Vincente Crespo, and of his heirs, to the said 7,500 arpents of land was recognized and respected for more than twenty years by the Spanish government; wherefore your petitioners pray that they may be confirmed in their right."

Joseph E. Caro, being duly sworn, saith that he has been intimate with the public archives since the month of August, 1819, and that he has never seen amongst them any document or evidence of title to the tract of 7,500 arpents of land claimed by the heirs of Vincente Crespo; and further saith not.

Antoine Colein, being duly sworn, saith that in 1807 he first visited the tract of 7,500 arpents claimed by the heirs of Vincente Crespo; that there were some horses, a large field cleared, enclosed, and under cultivation, and some fruit trees growing. That the improvements were made at the instance of said Crespo, and, he thinks, from their appearance, have been made a number of years. That the said Crespo lived there four or five years subsequent to the year 1807, and that the said land has been in the possession of said Crespo, his heirs and agents, ever since that period. The said Crespo has been considered a man of wealth ever since he knew him, possessing some negroes, a large stock of cattle, hogs, and some horses. That when he came to this country in 1801 he sold to said Crespo one hundred and eighty head of cattle, and that he owned other cattle and five negroes at the same time, together with some horses; and in 1807 he was considered a man of wealth; and further saith not.

Charles Lavalle says that in 1803 or 1804 he was upon the said tract of land, and saw some horses, and a large tract of land cleared, enclosed, and under cultivation. That when he saw the houses they did not appear to have been built many years. That about the year 1803 or 1804 the said Crespo was in the habit of branding from 200 to 280 calves annually; and that he accompanied him to Fish river, when he purchased 200 head of cattle; and that some time afterwards the said Crespo purchased a cowpen of Panton, Leslie & Co., for which he paid $20,000; and further saith not.

Eugenio Lavalle says that about twenty-four years ago he visited the tract of land of 7,500 arpents, at the place called Belle Fontaine, claimed by the heirs of Crespo, and saw a number of houses and other improvements suitable for a cowpen; that Crespo had two negroes there, and supposes, from the number of pens and calves, that there were between two or three hundred head of cattle, together with some horses; that the improvements appeared to have been made some time; and further saith not.

Joseph Maura says that he was upon the said tract of land more than twenty-three years ago, and has been there several times since, and saw, when first there, a large stock of cattle, seven or eight horses, and two negroes, belonging to Crespo; that Crespo was established and made improvements previous to the year 1800; and further saith not.

John de la Rua says that he first saw the tract of land in the year 1813 or 1814; that the improvements then appeared to be very old, and consisted of some houses, and a large field cleared and enclosed, which seemed to have been under cultivation for some time, and has always understood the said land and improvements were the property of Vincente Crespo; that Colonel King now occupies the land by permission of Madame Crespo; and further saith not.

Opinion of the commissioners upon the claim of the heirs of Vincente Crespo to seven thousand five hundred arpents of land.

The petition of the claimants in the foregoing claim alleges the existence of a grant made by Arturo O'Neil to their ancestor for the above-mentioned tract of land which, by accident or casualty, has been mislaid or lost.

The rule of law in relation to lost instruments is too familiar to require anything more than a reference to it.

The claimants in the above case do not prove that there was a grant for any quantity of land; the witnesses summoned by them testify to improvements only which might have been made on the lands of the royal domain.

There being no evidence of any title given by his Catholic Majesty or his lawful authorities, the undersigned commissioners are of opinion that the claim is invalid, and advise a rejection of it by the Congress of the United States. All of which is respectfully submitted.

A report of a claim of Francisco Zurima to a tract of land containing 5,760 arpents, (five thousand seven hundred and sixty,) lying on the northern side of Escambia river, in the district of West Florida, by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Francisco Zurima to a tract of land containing 5,760 arpents, lying on the northern side of Escambia river, is founded on the following title papers:

An original decree made by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor general of Louisiana, dated New Orleans, July 15, 1799, commanding the surveyor general or his deputy to survey and put the petitioner in possession of one square league of land, as he solicits, at the place mentioned in said petition, being vacant, and without interfering with a third person, drawing a figured plat of the same, and so done, to be remitted to him, in order to grant the petitioner the title in form; signed and dated as above.

Also, an original plat and certificate of survey executed by Carlos Trudeau, surveyor general, dated September 4, 1799, reciting that he executed the survey for the claimant in obedience to a decree of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor general of Louisiana, dated New Orleans, July 15, 1799.

Also, an original decree of concession made to the claimant by Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, governor general, countersigned by Andres Lopez Armesto, secretary, dated New Orleans, October 10, 1799.

John de la Rua, being duly sworn, saith that he never heard of any such man in Florida named Francisco Zurima, or of any such claim as the one now presented; and further saith that he is well acquainted with the signature of the governor general of Louisiana, Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, and the secretary, Andres Lopez Armesto, and that he does not believe either of the signatures attached to the grant to be genuine. That he is also acquainted with the signature attached to the certificate of survey, signed Carlos Trudeau, and does not believe the signature to be his handwriting; and further, that he never heard of his being in this province; and further saith not.

William McVoy, being duly sworn, saith that he has lived in this place forty-two years, and never knew any such man named Francisco Zurima; that he knows Carlos Trudeau, the surveyor general, never lived in this province; and that the signature affixed to the grant, purporting to be that of Manuel Gayoso de Lemos, does not appear to be his handwriting; and further saith not.

John Malagosa, being duly sworn, proved the above facts, and further saith that Carlos Trudeau, the surveyor general, was not in the place until the year 1803; and further saith not.

Opinion of the commissioners.

It will be perceived by the foregoing abstract of the title papers, and the testimony summoned in behalf of the United States, that the claim of Francisco Zurima to the above-mentioned tract of land will require but a brief opinion from the undersigned commissioners. They can have no hesitation in believing that the title papers exhibited in support of this claim are forged; and that Carlos Trudeau, who is made to certify the survey of the tract of land, was not the surveyor general of West Florida at the time the grant purports to have been made.

They consider the claim invalid and fraudulent, and advise a rejection of it by the Congress of the United States.

All which is respectfully submitted.

A report of a claim to a tract of land of five thousand arpents, known vulgarly by the name of Garzon's Point, situated about six and a half miles E.N.E. from the city of Pensacola, in the district of West Florida, by title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provisions of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Joseph Bonifay to a tract of five thousand arpents of land is founded on the following title papers:

A copy of a plat and certificate of survey, executed by Vincente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general, dated Havana, May 7, 1818, stating that Maria Garzon, Indian of the Tallapoosa or Creek nation, and widow of Antonio Garzon, interpreter to the Indians at Pensacola, having petitioned the governor of West Florida, February 20, 1817, and fully proved her right to the land known vulgarly by the name of Garzon's Point, which Count de Galvez had permitted her deceased husband to occupy and possess in consideration of his good services, and which they occupied and possessed quietly for more than thirty years without interruption. He applied to the intendant, Don Alexander Ramirez for a formal title, and his excellency having seen the contents of a second petition of 21st November last, the opinions of the ministers of November 24, and that of the fiscal of January 23 of this year, he ordered a survey to be made of the said land, which is situated six and a half miles E.N.E. from Pensacola in its nearest part, and 280 perches S. $\frac{1}{4}$ SE. from the mouth of Trout creek, forming a peninsula or tongue of land, bounded on the north by Manuel Hernandez's tract, other vacant lands, and those submitted for by Jose Bonifay, on the south and east by the bay of St. Mary of Galvez at its entrance, and on the west by the bay of Pensacola, as more fully appears by the annexed plat. And according to the extension which, without prejudice to a third, could be given to said land, and which was probably the very same assigned to the said Garzon, it contains of good, middling, and bad quality, about 5,000 acres, the locality not permitting the measurement with geometrical precision of all its sinuosities without incurring to the party expenses which she could not support, especially as exactness is not absolutely necessary, the limits on the borders of the said neighbors being well defined. The whole, with exclusion of a strip of land which is to be free for a public road on the border of the two bays, and which, if necessary, must be seventy feet wide.

Also, an original grant or title in form made to Maria Garzon, widow of Antonio Garzon, deceased, by the intendant, Alexander Ramirez, countersigned by Pedro Carambot, secretary of war, dated Havana, May 16, 1818, reciting that the said Maria Garzon presented a petition on the 25th October last, addressed to the intendant of Havana, with the annexed authenticated copy of the proceedings instituted before Governor Masot in the year 1817, in which the said Maria Garzon proved that the said Antonio Garzon was in possession of the said tract of land better than thirty years, which tract of land the said Garzon obtained by a decree of Brigadier Arturo O'Neil, governor general of the province of West Florida, ratified and confirmed by his excellency Count de Galvez, in consideration of his good services rendered as interpreter to the Indians of Pensacola.

Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from Maria Garzon to the claimant, passed before Governor Masot, countersigned by Domingo Sausa and José Cevallos, assistant witnesses, dated September 22, 1817, certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Joseph Bonifay proved by parol testimony the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said Antonio Garzon cultivated and possessed the above tract of land for thirty-eight years; that he had cattle on the same; and that the produce was brought to this place for sale by him; and that the grant was made to Garzon by Arturo O'Neil, governor general, for services rendered by him as interpreter.

Opinion of the commissioners.

The certified copy of a plat and certificate of the former surveyor general of West Florida, as well as the grant of the intendant upon which this claim depends, are dated subsequent to January 24, 1818. Those officers, in regard to Florida, no longer existed; Pintado and Ramirez were irresponsible persons; and the former presents us with a copy, when we are entitled to the original, under the solemn stipulations of the treaty between Spain and the United States. How far such documents are admissible must be decided by Congress.

In the certified copy of Mr. Pintado he avers that the survey was made in obedience to an order of the intendant, but does not give the date of the order or of its execution. The grant recites proceedings had before Governor Masot in 1817, which establishes the long possession of Garzon, and that he obtained the land by a decree from Governor O'Neil for his good services. Whether the grant was a gratuity upon the ordinary conditions, or for public services, we are unable to ascertain. From the adduction of proof to show Garzon's long possession and cultivation of the land, we are induced to think it was a claim of the former description; and his services as interpreter was the inducement and not the consideration of the grant. Agreeably to the treaty of 1784, by which the Indians were incorporated as Spanish subjects, the grant could be made to the widow Garzon by the intendant; but we submit it to Congress to decide whether Governor O'Neil was competent to make such a grant as a gratuity or as a remuneration for public services as an Indian interpreter. Garzon's family and flocks are not proved to have warranted the first, and we are not advised how far his good services authorized the second. Feeling ourselves somewhat at a loss for an opinion in this case, we have submitted its determination to the superior information of Congress.

All which is respectfully submitted.

No. 9.

A report of a claim of Pedro de Alba to 18,900 arpents of land upon the peninsula between Pensacola bay and St. Rosa's sound, by a title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provisions of an act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land in the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

MOST ILLUSTRIOUS SIRS: Don Pedro de Alba, with due respect, exposes to your honors, that having a quantity of cattle, and there being a scarcity of convenient pasture ground to secure their preservation and breeding, he has not as yet been able to obtain this object; on the contrary, he is daily losing his cattle on account of the past and present critical circumstances, as your honors well know, from the notoriety of the injury done to all other inhabitants in this part of their wealth. He is therefore under the necessity of looking out for a more secure spot for his cattle; and considering that the other side of the bay from Deer Point, as far eastward as he may want, would be very convenient for him, he supplicates your honors to grant him the necessary license for passing over his cattle and forming a coupen; which favor he trusts will be accorded him on account of his usefulness to this place. Pensacola, March 28, 1814. Peter Alba.

I certify that, at cabildo held this day, amongst other things, the following was agreed upon: "And finally was read another petition from Don Pedro de Alba, begging permission to form a coupen on the opposite side of the bay from Deer Point eastward, to where he may have occasion for, upon which the members determined to grant him the permission he solicits on condition that he shall not prevent the inhabitants of this place from cutting any kind of wood on that spot." In witness whereof, I hereby give this, which I sign in Pensacola on the 28th day of March, 1814. Joseph Maria de la Pena, secretary.

To his excellency the governor: Don Pedro de Alba respectfully submits to your excellency that he has in possession a quantity of cattle, and there being a want of convenient pasture ground for securing to him their preservation and breed, he has not been able to find what he has occasion for; on the contrary, he is sustaining a daily loss by reason of the late and present critical circumstances, your excellency well knows, from the notoriety of the general injury done to the other inhabitants in this branch of their wealth; and considering the fitness of the opposite side of the bay, from Fan or Deer Point, eastward to the spot where he had put up a fence, which cost him $200, to shut his cattle and horses, which he passed over in the year 1814, and which the English and Indians, as it is well known, destroyed; and, in order to proceed in transporting his cattle, he supplicates your excellency most graciously to grant him the said spot in the same manner as those granted to other inhabitants, &c., &c. Pensacola, October 24, 1817. Pedro de Alba.

Pensacola, October 24, 1817. To be passed to the assessor general and auditor of war. Masot.

Pensacola, October 24, 1817. Let Don Pedro Reggio, as surveyor pro tempore, advise whether the land which the petitioner asks for be vacant, or of the domain; and if it is so, let this be shown to the fiscal of the royal finances, that he may thereon make what observations he may think proper. Hernandez.

To his excellency the governor and sub-delegate of royal finances: The petitioner solicits a grant of a tract of land which lies between Deer Point, or the west cape of the small point formed by the bay of Pensacola and the straits of St. Rosa, and a fence which he says was made by him in the year 1814, and which the Indians and English destroyed. I am ignorant of the spot where the fence was erected, but from the demand of the petitioner I conclude it was eastward of the point called Careening Point, which is opposite to this place, on the other side of the bay. By decree of the 25th of September last your excellency was pleased to grant to Don Eugenio Lavallet, an inhabitant of this place, 800 acres in the same spot and peninsula. By decree of the 24th of October last your excellency also granted to Jayme Barcelo, of this place, 800 acres on the spot called Shell Hill, which piece of land is to the east of the preceding, bounded on the south by the aforesaid strait; consequently these two tracts form a part, if not the whole, of that which Don Pedro de Alba solicits, unless the fence which he mentions be one which existed and began near the mouth of the river Jordan, or Yellow Water, and terminated at the straits of St. Rosa. In this case, the tract of land which the said Don Pedro de Alba asks for would consist of nearly 18,000 square acres; abating the 1,600 granted to Lavallet and Barcelo, there would remain 16,400 acres, which I consider Indian territory, as I have already informed your excellency in the petitions proffered by Lavallet and Barcelo. Your excellency will resolve what you may think more proper, &c., &c. Pensacola, November 3, 1817. Pedro Reggio.

Be it communicated to Don Pedro de Alba. [Two flourishes.]

To his excellency the governor and sub-delegate of the royal finances: Don Pedro de Alba respectfully represents, that, in consequence of the notification given to him of the petition which he presented on the 24th of October last, in which he solicits the land lying between Careen and Deer Points, and from thence to the spot where he erected a fence, part of which was destroyed by the Indians, and in consequence of what Don Pedro Reggio has informed your excellency, he declares that on March 28, 1814, there was granted to him a piece of land of which he now solicits the title, by the cabildo which then governed in this place, agreeably to the annexed documents; in consequence of which, he ordered a fence to be erected, and passed over, as is well known, thirty-eight breeding cows, two bulls, seven horses, and four negroes, all of which were on the other side at the time that the English and Indians retired from this place for Apalachicola, carrying with them the cattle, horses, and two negroes, after having killed the remaining two for not allowing them to rob the provisions they had for their own use; for which reason he considers himself entitled to the said land, having possessed it for four years, taking into the account the loss which he equally sustained of all the lumber which he had prepared for a house of forty feet front, and ready to be transported to the neighborhood of Deer Point, and burnt by the Indians; and notwithstanding the 800 acres granted to E. Lavallet and as many to J. Barcelo, which was the choice of the whole tract; in consideration of all which, and of what he has declared, requests your excellency to grant him the land which he solicited in his first petition for said purposes. Pensacola, December 3, 1817. Pedro de Alba.

Pensacola, December 20, 1817. In consequence of what the minister pro tempore of the royal finances gave as his opinion on the 19th December instant, at the instance of Mary Weaver, stating that the Indian nation had no claim to the lands which the petitioner asked, nor even to others more distant, as was also decreed by the minister principal, Don Juan Miguel de Losada, in the similar case of Jayme Barcelo: Therefore, let there be granted to the petitioner the acres of land which he solicits; for which end these proceedings are to be passed to the surveyor appointed, that he may put him in possession of them, after notice being given to the neighboring claimants, and without prejudice to a third party, drawing out a plot which shall be presented to this office in order to obtain the necessary title; let the costs be paid by the petitioner, and a copy of these proceedings to be left at the office to give information to the superior authority for his approbation. Masot. Sausa. Cevallos.

This is a true copy of its original, which remains in public archives, which I certify; and at the request of the party I grant this in six folios of common paper, the sealed not being in practice. Pensacola, August 2, 1819.

JOSÉ CALLAVA.

JOSÉ CEVALLOS.
DOMINGO SAUSA.

Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, captain of infantry, surveyor general of West Florida for his Majesty, now in this city, by the deposition of Don Alejandro Ramirez, intendant, &c., &c.:

The ayuntamiento (town council) of Pensacola, having, at their meeting of March 28, 1814, acceded to the petition of Pedro de Alba, senior, praying leave to establish a cowpen on that side of the bay opposite to the town, from the point called the Carenero (Careening place,) continuing eastward as far as occasion may require, it became necessary that the extent should be determined in order that it might be ascertained what portion of that tongue of land appertained to the royal domain, and I effected that object by limiting him to the spot where he had begun an enclosure, fifteen English miles distant from the most westerly point of the Careening ground, by a line drawn from said spot due south until it meets St. Rosa's sound; the space enclosed by the same containing twenty thousand five hundred superficial arpents, more or less, according to the notes in my note book No. 3. And inasmuch as said land was granted to said Don Pedro de Alba by the sub-delegation of the royal finances of that province, in a decree of the 20th of December last, but, with respect to the extent and configuration of the same, some doubts have occurred to the deputy in said province, in consequence of his not knowing what its eastern boundary was to be, and of two precedent grants having been made by the same sub-delegation of eight hundred arpents each—the one to Eugenio Lavallet, and the other to Jayme Barcelo, the plots of which have not yet come to my hands, and of the situation of the first of which only I am informed; having, moreover, been notified of all these circumstances by a copy of the decree of said tribunal, and by a letter of Alba himself, dated the 22d of December, it becomes necessary to clear up this difficulty, and to settle the affair on terms on which none of the parties can suffer any injury, and whereby each may know what belongs to him by reason of said grant, and may peaceably undertake his labors, and reap the fruit of his industry, it being the particular province of the surveyor general to settle differences and disputes of this nature. *

The following remarks must be attended to, for whose better understanding and observance the accompanying figurative plan will be of service:

1. That at no time, and for no reason whatsoever, (except in the case which will be mentioned further on,) can Don Pedro de Alba pretend to or claim more land towards the east than is designated in the foregoing plat, signed by me this day, and having for its boundary the north and south line drawn at fifteen English miles distant from the most westerly point of the Careening ground, agreeably to the limitation made on January 2, 1815.

2. That the twenty thousand five hundred arpents superficies contained in the tract represented in the plat are reduced to eighteen thousand nine hundred, by reason of the grants to Lavallet and Barcelo, mentioned by the deputy in his report of the 3d of November last year, which are not represented, because the surveys of them have not arrived, but of which positive information has been obtained, that the first is situated at the point A on the plat, and the other will be laid on the spot which its tenor may require, without the possibility of any opposition on the part of Don Pedro de Alba.

3. That Don Vincente Ramo having solicited two thousand five hundred arpents superficies on the western part of said tongue of land, and space marked on the plot with the letters B, C, D, E, by a petition of September 28, 1817, addressed to the superintendent, and pursuant to his decree of October 2 following, reported by me on the seventh of the same month, and the concession or refusal not having yet come to my knowledge, the said Pedro de Alba should be notified that, in case the grant has been made, he must not resist or oppose possession being taken of said land, but his eighteen thousand five hundred arpents are to remain complete, leaving out the space F, which is still a part of the royal domain, and is destined for the above-mentioned purpose.

For a perpetual testimony of the same, and in order that no difficulties may arise hereafter between the parties, I give the present on file, in the city of Havana, this fifteenth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighteen.

VINCENTE SEBASTIAN PINTADO.

I, Don Joseph Callava, knight of the military order of St. Hermenegildo, decorated with the cross of distinction of the battle of Almocid, colonel in the royal armies, and military and political governor of the province of West Florida, &c.—

Do certify that, in the month of August last, Don Pedro de Alba presented to me a grant of land made to his father by the sub-delegation December 20, 1817, situated on the opposite side of the bay, requesting that he might have a copy and that the original might remain, as is customary, in evidence of the same in this public archive. But owing to the confusion of the papers in the months of December, January, and February last, when an invasion was apprehended from the American troops, at which time the archives of the province were carried with great precipitation to Fort St. Carlos de Barrancas, it is presumable that the said original documents may have been mislaid or mixed with other papers; and although the assistant witnesses have searched for them by my order, they have not come to light amongst the archives.

In testimony whereof, I give the present certificate at his request, in order that it may serve at all times, and before any tribunal whatever, as an evidence of the unlucky accident which befel said original decree. Pensacola, March 21, 1820.

JOSEPH CALLAVA.

Ambrose Crane, being affirmed, saith that, in the month of July or August, 1819, he settled upon a piece of land in Santa Rosa's sound, and that in a conversation shortly afterwards with Peter Alba he acknowledged that his claim only extended to the Spanish Old Fields, and that if he, Mr. Crane, was beyond them he was not on his land; and further saith not.

Eugenio Lavalle, sworn, saith that Pedro Alba, senior, made a plantation on the above tract of land previous to the year 1814; that he had some cattle and horses on the land and hands at work; that he was obliged to abandon it in consequence of hostilities of the Indians in the year 1814, returned to it in 1817, and has been in possession ever since, and that he was on the land in the year 1814; and further saith not.

Joseph Noriega, sworn, confirms the above facts stated by Eugenio Lavalle.

Opinion of the commissioners.

From an examination of the foregoing title papers, it will be seen that this claim originated under the constitutional government of Spain, in the year 1814, upon an application to the ayuntamiento, or cabildo, of West Florida, for permission to graze cattle on the other side of the bay from "Deer Point as far eastward as the petitioner might want." This permission was granted to him upon a condition prescribed by the cabildo that clearly indicated an intention not to give any title of property; and, admitting them to be competent to do so, which is very questionable, it would have been done subject to the approval or rejection of the provisional junta of Havana, according to a decree of the Cortes, then of binding authority, as a law of the Spanish government. We have every reason to believe that such a grant would never have been confirmed to any extent greater than the quantity allowed for cowpens by the regulations of the governor general of Louisiana, and the intendant and superintendant general of that province and West Florida, which is a quantity far less than that claimed by the petitioner. The act of the cabildo could, at best, only be considered as a permit of settlement, which, if occupied for a number of years, according to the usages and laws of the province, would have entitled Mr. Alba to a concession of eight hundred arpents of land. The claim in its further progress is entirely an anomaly. The claimant, aware that he had no right derived from the license of the cabildo, petitioned the governor for a grant of the land to the place where he had built a fence some time before, which is a vague designation of the limit of the land petitioned for, and is since ascertained by the testimony to be a point that would only include in the area about 3,000 instead of 18,900 arpents now claimed by Mr. Alba, and to cover which he has, according to the evidence of Mr. Crane, selected a point of considerable distance up the sound for the location of his fence, not thought of by him so late as the year 1819. It will be seen by the report, purporting to be that of the surveyor, that he does not comprehend the extent of the application, and does not give any satisfactory information upon which a grant for a specific quantity might be given; and the governor, contrary to established usage and the laws and ordinances of the Spanish government, has made a decree of concession without any knowledge of the quantity, and without reference to, or the intervention of, the fiscal, or King's attorney, whose opinion was always required in regular grants, as will be seen by reference to our general report on Spanish claims, and the formation of the tribunal of the intendant or sub-delegate, according to the laws of the Indies. The certificate of the surveyor general in relation to the land is an extra official act made subsequent to January 24, 1818, and therefore would be entirely disregarded if it did not bear internal evidence of the time and object for which it was written. It is confidently believed that no survey was ever made of the land; and his intention, in his office at Havana, was to give figure and dimension to that which had none before, and to fabricate himself a title for the claimant that he himself did not think of until 1819, when the province was surrendered to the United States. The certificate of Governor Callava is worthy of particular remark. He certifies that in August, 1819, Don Pedro de Alba presented to him a grant, requesting that the original might remain in the office, and a copy be delivered to the claimant. By the organization of the Spanish tribunal, the original grants, at the time they were made out, are required to be placed in the office, and entitled diligencias, (proceedings,) a copy of which is delivered to the party interested. This decree of concession purports to have been made in 1817, and how Mr. Alba should have had the original in August, 1819, is a matter entirely unexplained. If it was a genuine original, why did not the claimant keep it in his possession, as he had done from the year 1817? But, in consequence of the confusion of the papers, says Governor Callava, the original was lost! It is somewhat extraordinary that this paper, which was deposited for safe keeping in a public office, in which by law it ought to have remained, should have been the only one of which we have any account in our extensive examinations which is alleged to have been lost in the confusion of that expected invasion. If this grant was fabricated, the claimant could, with greater prospect of success, impose upon the government of the United States by a certified copy than the original, with all the signatures and rubrications, and that will more reasonably explain the loss of the one deposited in 1819. It will also be observed that, as an inducement to this grant, Mr. Alba alleges the loss of his cattle, horses, and materials for a house, and, in consideration of what is set forth in his petition, the concession is made; and, notwithstanding the grant, he has presented a claim against the United States for the same losses, and made affidavit that he had never received any compensation. From a view of the claim and evidence, the undersigned commissioners are of opinion that the governor and sub-delegate of the province was not invested with power to make such a grant, and that it never would have been confirmed by the superior authorities of the Spanish government, allowing it to be genuine; but, from its irregularity and questionable shape, they cannot advise a confirmation of it.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

SAMUEL R. OVERTON.
JOSEPH M. WHITE.

GENERAL REMARKS.

No. 1. In many of these claims the cultivation was proved to have been continued to the present time. It was considered unnecessary to inquire into or record these facts further than the performance of the conditions required. No. 8. This claim is an island granted for 800 arpents, more or less.

Nos. 10, 11, 12. In these claims the concession is given with a decretal order of survey in 1817, and the titles in form given in 1818. In such cases the titles are confirmed upon the concession or order of survey.

No. 21. Plat and certificate incorrectly returned. No. 41. This grant was made to the vicar for the uses of the Catholic church.

No. 75. Confirmed, subject to the restrictions and conditions contained in the grant relative to the defence of Pensacola, and garden lots laid out by the English authorities, upon the original plan of the city.

No. 76. Title papers lost. Confirmed, subject to any restrictions or conditions which the laws and usages of Spain impose, if any, upon grants of land contiguous to forts, &c.

No. 77. Much of this island subject to inundation. No. 78. This grant was made principally for the purpose of cutting wood.

No. 79. This grant was made to enable the grantee to supply timber for the royal works and fortifications at Barrancas and St. Rosas.

No. 80. Original title papers lost. Proved to have been cleared and cultivated many years before the concession.

All which is respectfully submitted.

The examination of most of these claims was made under the acts of Congress passed on May 8, 1822, and February 27, 1823. Although it would appear from the abstracts, which are framed agreeably to the regulations of Morales, that the lands were designed for cultivation alone, yet it is a fact that the greater number of cases were intended both for pasturage and agricultural purposes, and some for the former alone.

These grants, concessions, and orders of survey were proved to have emanated from his Catholic Majesty, or his lawful authorities in the Floridas, prior to January 4, 1818. The claimants adduced satisfactory evidence of their having substantially fulfilled the conditions imposed upon them, either before the date of the treaty between Spain and the United States, or; having been prevented by the recent circumstances of the Spanish nation and the revolutions in Europe, completed them within the time limited in the same, respectively, subsequent to that period. It was also in proof that the orders of survey have been actually executed anterior to January 24, 1818, agreeably to the requisitions of the act of Congress passed May 8, 1822.

In our examinations under the act of Congress passed February 27, 1823, we have ascertained the facts of actual settlements prior to the cession of the Floridas to the United States, and particularly as indispensable to authorize us to decide claims over 1,000 and under 3,500 acres. Where our inquiries have been directed by the act passed on February 28, 1824, upon the presentation of the originals, we have only required the deraignment to be made out by office abstracts for the last ten years preceding the surrender of Florida to the United States, with a deed or devise to the claimant, and a compliance with the conditions attached to the claim.

A concession is merely a grant of the land petitioned for before the making out of a formal title. The first is generally made when the order of survey is decreed, and the last after the plat and certificate are returned, and conditions, if any, are performed. Where the concession and titles in form are both filed, we have given the date, &c., of the first, and noted the other in the column of general remarks.

The sub-delegates and intendants of Havana have, in some instances, proceeded to complete the claim subsequent to January 24, 1818. In such cases we have considered the claim barred by the treaty, unless there was a grant, concession, or order of survey actually executed prior to that time. The commissioners did not consider themselves authorized to recognize any act of the Spanish authorities as legal after that period. They have thus investigated such claims, noting the subsequent steps in the column of general remarks.

The original grant upon which some of these claims are founded has not been filed, but only recited in the mesne conveyances, by which the deraignment is satisfactorily completed. In a few instances the year only is mentioned in which the grant was made by the Spanish government; and in others the name of the sub-delegate from whom it was obtained. We have in these cases given the date of the oldest mesne conveyance.

We have also included in this class claims where the original grant has been filed; but there is one or more links in the chain of title found to be absent between the grantee and present claimant.

It was the practice where a grant was made to deposit the original in the office of finances to be recorded, and the claimant was given a certified copy. These records were not permitted to remain in this province, but were all removed to the Havana several years since. Others were destroyed by the pirates, as is in proof before us, on their passage to that place. Some obtained possession of the originals, but others did not; and the above causes combined are alleged by the claimants as a reason to account for the absence of original title papers. Where the office of alcalde has contained any important document connected with the claims, we have had it submitted to our inspection, or obtained certified extracts therefrom; but, except as to the mesne conveyances, we regret to say that we have been enabled to procure very little information from that quarter, as it was not the office in which originals were recorded.

By the regulations of Morales mesne conveyances were made before the commandants of posts, who were directed to see that the seller presented to the buyer the title which he has obtained; and in addition, being careful to insert in the deed the metes and bounds, and other descriptions which result from the title, and the proces verbal of the survey which ought to accompany it. In West Florida this duty was not only executed by the governor, but by the escribanos or notaries of government; and under the constitution by alcaldes. On such occasions these officers were vested with judicial powers, and instructed to see that the claim, as to its derivation, was regular and complete. These mesne conveyances sometimes recite the date, &c., of several of the preceding deeds, and thus set forth the chain of title to the present claimant. The circumstance of the transfer having been made before these officers, is making out a title, the validity of which has been thus virtually recognized by the Spanish authorities. It is understood to have been both the law and practice in West Florida to consider these recitations of prior conveyances as conclusive evidences of title. Whenever it was made out in this shape no further testimony was required to establish it in any of the Spanish tribunals. The consequence was, that little or no care was taken of the copies of the preceding conveyances, but were often either permitted to remain in those offices where the transfers were made, or thrown aside as waste and useless paper.

From an examination of our abstracts, it will appear that the usual conditions were occasionally fulfilled before the grant or concession was made, or the order of survey was decreed or executed. This arose from the practice of the Spanish authorities. Individuals who were in poor and indigent circumstances were sometimes permitted by the sub-delegate, in writing, to settle and improve a portion of the public domain. Where they complied with the terms prescribed in the permit, or such as were attached to gratuities, they were considered as entitled to a grant whenever they were enabled to apply for it and pay the incidental expenses. These inchoate titles were frequently transferred to others, who obtained the concession or grant in their own names.

In some of the cases embraced in this class, the grant or concession was made for a particular tract of land, or one which might be situated upon the same water-course, or contiguous to the first; but upon executing the survey an incorrect plat and certificate were returned. It will therefore be necessary that Congress should authorize, by law, those whose grants or concessions were made in the alternative, the surveys of which were incorrectly returned, to locate them agreeably to the petition or concession.

For a further understanding of these conditional and gratuitous grants, concessions, and orders of survey, we would respectfully refer to our general report upon that description of claims.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

GENERAL REMARKS.—No. 10.—As this claim is now in suit between Cali and Innerarity, both holding under Limbaugh, we have considered it most advisable to confirm the claim of Limbaugh as valid against the United States, leaving the private controversy to be decided by the judicial tribunal before which it is now pending.

WRITTEN PERMITS OF SETTLEMENT.

These claims are founded upon written permits obtained from the governors of Florida, which secure to the petitioner the undisturbed occupation of the land for the purposes of grazing and cultivation. It was an indulgence extended by the Spanish government to indigent persons who were unable to bear the expenses incident to a concession or complete title, and to foreigners who avowed an intention to become resident subjects. By the decree of November 22, 1806, strangers and foreigners could only obtain a grant after long residence in the country, which was in entire conformity with the policy of Spain in all her American provinces. During this state of protection they occupied the land; and, after being put into possession, it is understood that they never were deprived of it where they performed the usual conditions. The permits in both of these cases were followed by a concession whenever the means and conveniences of the parties authorized them to make the application. Their right to it was considered by the Spanish authorities as incontestable. In the eye of the Spanish law these inchoate titles were viewed as property; they descended by inheritance, and were transferred from one to another by private contract.

This species of claim is distinguished from a concession in this: that in the latter it was uniformly the practice to order the surveyor to run out the land, either before or after the grant, and put the party in possession. In the case of written permits of settlement no such formality was used; the petitioner was, in the first instance, simply authorized to occupy, cultivate, and pasture a particular tract of land without molestation.

The commissioners are of opinion that these claims are valid where the conditions usually attached to gratuitous grants have been performed by the claimants prior to January 24, 1818, or since that time, if entitled to the indulgence contained in the eighth article of the treaty. It is believed that they constitute the most equitable titles in Florida. No fraud can attach to them; they are in conformity with the policy of the Spanish government in the settlement and cultivation of her domain, and have always been recognized by her authorities as entitled to complete grants. The board of commissioners west of Pearl river reported in favor of claims of this description; and in the second section of the act passed March 2, 1805, for ascertaining and adjusting the titles and claims to lands within the Territory of Orleans and district of Louisiana, and the second section of an act confirming claims to lots in the town of Mobile, &c., passed May 7, 1822, provision was made for their confirmation.

The first article of Morales' regulations provides that the quantity to be granted, where a gratuitous concession is made, shall amount to a number of arpents as large as the petitioner shall be judged capable to cultivate, according to the number of his family, and the number of beasts to be pastured. In some cases before us the quantity thus appropriated is stated in the permit, in others no such provision is to be found. It has, however, been usual to grant such claimants 800 arpents, which is a limit fixed by the regulations of Morales, and not to be exceeded in gratuitous concessions, unless the number of the petitioner's family, his beasts to be pastured, and his ability for cultivation, recommend a departure from the common rule. In the case before us there is no proof to bring them within the reason of the exception, and they cannot, consequently, be entitled to more than 800 arpents, laid off in the usual form.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

This class of claims is founded on sales made by the governors of Florida, in conformity with the regulations of Morales, at the "price of estimation," and by the constitutional ayuntamiento, by virtue of a provision of the constitution of Spain, and a decree of the Cortes promulgated in the year 1812. The last mentioned claims, like gratuítas, were subject to the revision of the superior authorities, and demonstrates a regular chain of responsibility in every change of the Spanish government, from the subordinate tribunals to the sovereign. All the acts of the cabildo were to be submitted to the provisional junta of Havana. As these claims are for small quantities of land, and the purchasers having paid a valuable consideration for the same, combined with the uninterrupted possession for many years, the undersigned commissioners are of opinion that they are valid, and would have been completed under the Spanish government upon the application of the vendees. They have therefore given them confirmation.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

GENERAL REMARKS.

No. 1. In a small number of these claims the witnesses do not speak with precision as to the date of the performance of conditions, which is believed to be unimportant, since the passage of the act of February 28, 1824, as most of the lots have been conveyed and reconveyed by permission of the Spanish authorities more than ten years prior to the surrender of Florida to the United States.

Nos. 13 and 14. A decree of the Intendant Morales, in 1809, directing the parties to remain in possession of the lots last decreed in 1810,

No. 32. A. decree of the Intendant Morales, in 1809, ratifying the concession of Folch made to the grantee. Nos. 127 and 128. These two lots were exchanged by the Spanish government for two others owned by the claimants, and have no condition of improvements annexed to their grant.

Nos. 129, 130, and 131. In these and many other lots the improvements are proved to have been made prior to 1781, under the British government, and occupied ever since.

In the claim to lots Nos. 13, 15, and 16 there is a corresponding garden lot granted and confirmed.

All which is respectfully submitted.

This class of claims, like the preceding ones, has been examined agreeably to three separate acts of Congress upon the subject, the provisions of which have been carefully observed. The Spanish grants purport to have been made upon the condition that the claimants "enclose the same, and build a common house thereon in one year," and subject to payment therefor, should his Catholic Majesty require it, as also to conform to police regulations. Sometimes a house of a particular description was to be erected on a lot, and in the event of a failure to comply with the condition the grant or concession might be declared null and void. Some are founded upon British grants for lots, afterwards sold to Spanish subjects, within the time prescribed in the capitulation of 1781, the treaty of 1783 between England and Spain, and as extended in a subsequent royal order. These British grants were made upon conditions precedent, similar to those which emanated from the Spanish authorities. In some instances the original British proprietors never removed from West Florida, but continued in the occupation and enjoyment of their property as Spanish subjects for many years, and ultimately either sold it or transferred it to their descendants.

The commissioners were not, in the first instance, entirely satisfied as to the legality of these grants, as the 34th article of Morales' regulations provides that "all lots or seats belonging to the domain shall be sold for ready money." There has been no authority exhibited to us showing the right or power vested in the sub-delegates to make gratuitous concessions of lots, as in the case of lands in the country. The claimants, however, made out a right to them by satisfactory evidence; they proved that such grants corresponded with the uniform practice of the Spanish authorities, and were by them recognized to be valid.

These grants emanated from his Catholic Majesty, or his lawful authorities in West Florida, prior to January 24, 1818. The claimants proved a substantial compliance with the conditions within the period limited in their grants, or where further indulgence was given by the sub-delegate within the time specified, or that they had made an actual settlement upon the lot before the cession of Florida to the United States, and fulfilled the conditions of their grants.

In some cases the original grantees presented the claim. Where it had fallen into the hands of third persons the deraignment was set forth in original and mesne conveyances, and their recitations and extracts from the protocols of the alcalde for ten years previous to the cession, under the last act of Congress, and in the two preceding ones, up to the original grantee, unless proof was adduced that it could not be obtained. Upon the exhibition of testimony showing that the originals had been lost or destroyed by time or accident, the mesne conveyances were considered the best evidence, and sufficient, united with the occupation of the property, to demonstrate that the Spanish authorities recognized the titles. This rule was observed even where the chain of title was defective. In such cases where the original is filed, or its date recited in the mesne conveyances, it is given in our abstract; but, in the absence of these, we have set down the date of the deed to the next oldest grantee. The absence of title papers in this class of claims is accounted for as in that marked E.

From our abstracts it will appear that, in some instances, the conditions were performed before the grant was made. This was the result of the party having obtained either a written or a verbal permit to occupy and improve the lot, which gave her or him a right to a grant whenever he or she was enabled to apply and pay for it. These inchoate rights were sometimes sold to others, who became the original grantees. All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

This class of claims is founded on acts of sale or mesne conveyances to the present claimants. They have been unable to make out the deraignment to the original grantee; but, in consequence of the transfer having been made before the Spanish tribunals, there is every reason to believe that there have been original grants for the same, which the parties concerned alleged were destroyed by time or accident.

The examination of the cases belonging to this class has been made under the several acts of Congress passed on May 8, 1822, February 27, 1823, and February 28, 1824, and there has been a uniform adherence to their several requisitions. The claimants adduced testimony which proved that they had built upon and enclosed their lots prior to the cession of the Floridas to the United States, and fulfilled the usual conditions, or, where they had been prevented by the causes enumerated in the treaty, it was in evidence that they completed them after the date of that instrument. Their individual right to the lots, and that it had been so recognized by the Spanish authorities, were considered as clearly established by the claimants. The seventh article of Morales' regulations provides that the commandants of posts shall not take any acknowledgment of the conveyance of land or lots, unless the seller present and deliver to the buyer the title which he has obtained, and, in addition, being careful to insert in the deed the metes and bounds, and other descriptions which result from the title, and the proces verbal of the survey which ought to accompany it. In West Florida, it appears from the title papers of the claimants that these transfers were made at different periods before the governors or sub-delegates, escribanos or notaries of government, and alcaldes. By the laws and usages of Spain all these officers exercised judicial powers on such occasions, and they were required to see that the origin and derivation of the claims were regular and legitimate. The circumstance of their having passed through these tribunals is to be considered as a notarial act, and is of itself a virtual recognition of the title by the authorities of Spain. It likewise created a presumption that the conditions had been fulfilled, as the regulations of Morales forbid a transfer under any other circumstances. Where the deraignment, then, is defective, we are bound to infer that all the necessary evidences of titles were presented to these offices, either in a written or verbal form, before the title was passed or the conveyance permitted to be placed upon record.

The mesne conveyances which conveyed the property from one person to another were recorded in the government office; the papers of which, after the cession, were transferred to that of the alcalde. In some cases title papers of this description are absent, and which has been alleged to have been the result of time and accident. These mesne conveyances recites some of the preceding ones, and thus set forth partially the deraignment to the original grantee. It is understood to have been both the law and the practice in West Florida to consider these recitations as conclusive, and the claimants threw away the preceding conveyance after the transfer before the proper officer, and the deed was spread upon the record. Where the originals were accidentally lost or destroyed, these were the best evidences of which the case was susceptible. As far as the chain of title was completed in this shape, the same was believed consummated; it was exempt from controversy or interruption, and no further evidence was ever required to establish its validity in the Spanish tribunals.

From these considerations, the commissioners are constrained to entertain the opinion that these claims are valid agreeably to the laws and ordinances of Spain, and have therefore given them confirmation. All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

The sales, it is understood, were made in conformity with the provisions of the 34th article of Morales' regulations, which requires all lots or seats belonging to the royal domain to be sold for ready money, with the formalities prescribed for the sale of lands. Such dispositions of public property were always made in obedience to a decree of the board of royal treasury, which was composed of the sub-delegate or intendant, the fiscal or King's attorney, and the auditor of war, with an escribano or notary, by whom these proceedings were countersigned and recorded.

In most cases the derignment is completed by the papers filed, and certified extracts from the archives now remaining in this Territory. Where the chain of title is incomplete, the claimants adduced proof to show that their written evidences of title, constituting the absent links, could not be obtained in consequence of their being lost or destroyed by time or accidents, as explained in our preceding reports. This, with the possession of the property, and the recognition of the titles by the Spanish authorities, was believed to be the best evidence, and, in the opinion of the commissioners, authorized their confirmation.

Where the original title was filed, or its date recited in the mesne conveyance, we have inserted it in our abstracts; otherwise, we have given the date of the deed to the next oldest grantee. All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

REMARKS UPON THE PRECEDING GRANTS ACCORDING TO THEIR NUMBERS.

- No. 1. Kelkel, who made the improvements, denies having done so as the agent of Souchet, and claims the land under the donation act.
 No. 3. Pringle, who made the improvements, proves that he did not settle on Baron's tract, nor was he his tenant, and claims the land he improved under the donation act.
 No. 4. Evidence of improvement contradicted by Antonio Colein.
 No. 5. Alba purchased of Garriga August 4, 1820, long after the improvements are proved to have been made.
 No. 6. In this claim a letter was exhibited and proved, in which the claimant himself acknowledges that he had no title to this tract in 1820.

All which is respectfully submitted.

- No. 7. John Gayler, who made the improvements, proves that he did so by permission of the Spanish authorities, and not as the tenant of Alba, and claims the land under the donation act.
 Nos. 8, 9, and 10. No evidence of cultivation in these cases. In the latter case Mr. Vincente S. Pintado, surveyor general of West Florida, gives a copy of the plat and certificate of survey, dated Havana, December 29, 1818, reciting that he executed the survey, April 29, 1818, in obedience to the order of the intendant of Cuba, Alexander Ramirez.
 No. 11. On March 10, 1818, Vincente S. Pintado, surveyor general of West Florida, gave at Havana a plat and description of the land to be granted, but it does not appear to have ever been surveyed.
 No. 12. No evidence produced in this case.

SAMUEL R. OVERTON.
JOSEPH M. WHITE.
CRAVEN P. LUCKETT.

These claims have been rejected by the undersigned commissioners for various considerations. Some were believed to be antedated and fraudulent, and others contrary to the laws and ordinances of Spain. The claimants, in some instances, failed to fulfil, substantially, the conditions of their grant within the period required by the regulations of Morales, and were unable to show that they were entitled to the additional indulgence contained in the 8th article of the treaty between Spain and the United States. Where the party was proven to be entitled to this indulgence, there was no evidence adduced to prove that he or she had availed themselves of it. In other cases it appeared that the claims had not emanated from his Catholic Majesty, or his lawful authorities in West Florida, prior to January 24, 1718, or that the order of survey had not been actually executed anterior to that period. The claimants did not make out such a title as would have been valid under the treaty and acts of Congress or the laws and ordinances of Spain.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

SIR: In compliance with the requisitions of the several acts of Congress organizing the board of commissioners in the district of West Florida and regulating their duties, the undersigned have the honor to transmit herewith the following abstracts and reports, in addition to those already forwarded to your department:

First. A special report upon claims exceeding 3,500 acres, with the opinions of the commissioners, numbered from 10 to 11.

Second. Special reports on conflicting claims emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence, numbered from 1 to 30.

Third. An abstract and report upon claims to lots in the village of St. Carlos de Barrancas, marked I.

Fourth. An abstract and report upon sales at auction which have been rejected by the undersigned commissioners, marked K.

Fifth. An abstract and report upon claims to lots laid out on the public square by the cabildo of Pensacola in 1813-'14, marked L, with a plan of said alteration.

Sixth. An abstract and report upon British claims, marked M.

Seventh. A general abstract and report upon claims, some of which fall within the preceding classes, and others of an anomalous character, marked N.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

SAMUEL R. OVERTON.
JOSEPH M. WHITE.

Hon. Wm. H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of the Treasury, Washington.

First. A special report upon claims exceeding 3,500 acres, with the opinions of the commissioners, numbered from 10 to 11.

No. 10.

A report of a claim of Vicente Sebastian Pintado to six lots in the city of Pensacola, Nos. 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 18, situated between the squares of Ferdinand and Seville, and also the space of ground situated between Seville square and the bay, bounded by high water in calm weather, besides 10,000 arpents of land and water situated in the district of West Florida, in the different places designated by the figurative plats presented, and the description of each set forth and mentioned in the following certificates from A to F, by titles emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provisions of an act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land in the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Vicente Sebastian Pintado to the above seven lots and 10,000 arpents of land, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on an original grant, or title in form, made by Don Alexandro Ramirez, intendant and superintendent general of the Island of Cuba and city of Havana, &c., &c., stating that whereas Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general, presented a petition to this intendancy the 19th of November last, stating the considerable expenses he had incurred by his removal to this city by my order, in agreement with that of the captain general, for affairs interesting to his Majesty's service, and also the removal of his family, sacrificing his property, and praying that, as an indemnity, there may be conceded to him, in full property, six lots in the town of Pensacola, among those which were put up to sale in 1813 by a resolution of the town council then existing, situated between the squares which, in the general plan made out in 1808, were named, the one Ferdinand VII, and the other Seville, designated in the same plan by the Nos. 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 18; also, the space of ground situated between the said Seville square and the bay, bounded by high water in calm weather, the corners of the lots of Beltran Souchet, Thomas Villaseca, and that reserved for a hospital, and besides 10,000 arpents of land in West Florida, in the situations to be designated. And having transmitted the said petition to the fiscal of royal finance by decree of 20th of November last, he having taken into consideration the truth of what was advanced by the said surveyor, his well known merits, the engagements he had contracted in removing himself and family to the city, and the impossibility which he states of subsisting on his scanty emoluments, consented that his petition should be granted; I therefore decreed, on the 7th instant, as follows: "In conformity with the fiscal, and considering the merit and services of Captain Don Vicente Sebastian Pintado, I concede to him the six lots and 10,000 arpents belonging to the domain which he asks for in West Florida, without prejudice to a third; and on condition of building on the one and cultivating or improving the others in the most beneficial manner, according to the regulations on that matter for the peopling of that province, given to me in charge by his Majesty, let a little be given to him for the lots according to the plan presented, and that for the lands as soon as the description is presented under his responsibility in this respect as surveyor general of that province, to whose sub-delegate and minister of the royal treasury shall be given the necessary orders." Wherefore, making use of the powers invested in me by the King and in his royal name, I concede gratuitously to the said surveyor, Don Vicente Sebastian Pintado, the six lots designated in the plan under the Nos. 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 18, and the piece of ground indicated in the same plan as having 204 English feet and 4 inches between the corners of the lots belonging to Beltran Souchet, Thomas Villaseca, and that reserved for a military hospital, with a prolongation of its lateral lines to and on the bay, as far as the pebbly ground, or where the bank of sand terminates, in order that, as his property, he may, without prejudicing a third, the same to enjoy, possess, sell, or alienate, at will. In faith whereof, I have ordered this title to be made out. (Signed) Alexandro Ramirez, intendant general. Countersigned by Pedro Carambot, Secretary of War. Dated Havana, December 17, 1817.

Also, an original certificate, marked letter A, for 1,181 arpents, situated on the west end of St. Rose's island, from the point called Siguenza, at the entrance of the port of Pensacola, extending four English miles to the east, and terminating at a line drawn from sea to sea, north and south, with all that is included in this arid and barren space, and bounded on the east, north, and south by the sea, conformably to the annexed plat.

Also, certificate B, nineteen arpents situated on the lands at the western extremity of Pensacola, fronting the bay of the same name, which bounds it on the south; through this land passes the creek of the Aguada, from its mouth in the bay to the lands conceded or sold to Don Pedro Reggio, with which, and others of Forbes & Co., it is bounded on the north, on the west by lands of Don Francisco Maximiliano de San Maxent, and part of the second creek of the Aguada, which makes a natural limit from its mouth a small way upward, and on the east by Pensacola, leaving between the necessary streets and roads.

Also, certificate C, an extension of the waters of the bay of Pensacola, whose superficies is equal to an area of 718½ arpents from the east point of the mouth of Bayou Chico to the west point of the mouth of Bayou Texar, and a line drawn southwest by the compass 95 Parisian perches into the bay from the said first point, and another line of 100 perches in length from the second point into the bay, in the same direction southwest which includes all the front between the mouths of the Bayous Chico and Texar, between which lies the town of Pensacola, all according to the plat annexed, which represents the figure of said extension in the water, and the limits in the bay of Pensacola; those on the side of the land and beach between the said two points of the said creeks being a curve produced by the highest tides in calm weather, and with its depth from the surface of the water till ten feet lower than the present bottom, or towards the centre of the earth, throughout all the space embraced by the plat; considering it as a solid, since it contains the three dimensions of length, breadth, and depth; but excluding that part which was conceded to me by the same title with the other lots, and which is also designated in the plat annexed, as likewise the wharf of Forbes & Co., also therein designated, and which they have been for many years in possession of; the whole in full property, and for the object of building wharves and bathing-houses, saving and excepting not only his Majesty's rights but also those of the public, whenever it may be found convenient to build wharves with municipal or other public funds, this concession being solely to the exclusion of individuals.

Also, certificate D, a piece of ground of 2,281½ arpents situated on the east side of the river Escambia, or rather its eastern branch, which forms the island called Antonio, lately granted to Don Francisco Bonal, at about sixteen miles from its mouth, in the bay of Escambia, and twenty-two miles N.N.W. from Pensacola, bounded on the north and east by public lands, on the south by lands lately ceded to Don Thomas Villaseca, and on the west by said branch of Escambia.

Also, certificate E, another tract of land of 5,000 arpents situated on the west bank of the Escambia river, between it and Pine Barren creek, about thirty-one miles NW. quarter N. from Pensacola, bounded on one side by the said river, 1,300 Parisian perches in front thereof, according to its course upwards, reckoned from its confluence with said Pine Barren creek, which bounds on the other side, and by public lands on the remaining side.

Also, certificate F, another tract of 800 arpents, to complete the 10,000 arpents conceded to me, situated on the east side of the Escambia, at about thirty-six or thirty-eight miles N.N.W. of Pensacola, in front of those selected by Juan Malegosa, to petition for on Turbin's Bluff, signed Vicente S. Pintado. Dated Havana, December 12, 1817.

Also, an original grant or title in form, similar to the preceding one, for lots made to the surveyor general, Vicente S. Pintado, by Don Alejandro Ramirez, intendant general, countersigned by Pedro Carambot, secretary of war, for the 10,000 arpents of land as described in the foregoing certificates. Dated Havana, December 17, 1817.

Pablo Palmes, being duly sworn, saith that he was for some time a clerk in the office of intendancy at Havana; has often seen Ramirez, the intendant, and Pedro Carambot, the secretary, sign their names; and believes, from his familiar acquaintance with their signatures, that those affixed to the grant of 10,000 arpents of land to Vicente S. Pintado are genuine; and also believes the signatures of the same subscribed to the grant of the six lots in Pensacola to be likewise genuine; and further saith not.

Opinion of the commissioners.

As the whole amount of lands and lots embraced in these claims was included in one concession before the titles in form were given, we have considered it our duty to report the case to Congress. The lots Nos. 11, 13, 14, 15, 16, 18, and the space of ground situated between Seville square and the bay, bounded by high water in calm weather, and as described in the above title papers, are reported in our abstract of sales by the cabildo, and gratuitous concessions on the public square of Pensacola. For an opinion in relation to these lots see our report upon that class, marked L. We have further to remark, that no evidence has been adduced to prove that Mr. Pintado ever built upon those lots in compliance with the condition imposed by the grant of the intendant.

The grant of 1,181 arpents on the west end of St. Rosa's island, as described in certificate A, is worthy of some attention. It will be seen that this tract extends from a point called Siguenza, at the entrance of the port of Pensacola, and at the lower extremity of St. Rosa's island. It embraces the point on which Fort Arruinado stood, on the western side of the island, opposite to Fort Carlos de Barrancas, and upon which it is believed the Spanish government always had batteries erected for the defence of the entrance into the bay of Pensacola. This position seems to have been an indispensable auxiliary to that of Barrancas, and could not be appropriated to any other purposes but those of defence. It is an "arid and barren space," as described in the certificate, and entirely unfit for cultivation; under such circumstances, it is difficult to believe that the Spanish authorities would make such a grant as long as they expected to retain possession of the country.

The only remark we have to make relative to the 19 arpents described in certificate B is, that it embraces almost the whole of the space reserved, upon the English plan of Pensacola, for a navy yard and a watering place for the shipping, as well as several lots on the east side of the Aguada, laid out agreeably to the aforesaid plan of said city, which may be seen in the General Land Office at Washington city. It is a little singular that this reservation should have been continued until the year 1817, and then granted to Mr. Pintado, including a block-house which had been erected by the Spanish authorities for the defence of the city.

The space described in certificate C includes almost the whole of the shoal water, &c., in the bay immediately contiguous to the city of Pensacola, and extending about two miles from the mouth of Bayou Chico to that of Bayou Texar. It was granted for building wharves and bathing houses, and saves and excepts not only the rights of his Catholic Majesty, "but also those of the public, whenever it may be found convenient to build wharves with municipal or other public funds, this concession being solely to the exclusion of individuals." We believe this grant contrary to the laws of nations, as well as the municipal laws of Spain, and ought not to be confirmed.

A river or bay consists of three things—the water, the bed, and the bank. The last includes shoals and sand bars, covered with water at ordinary stages of the sea or river, as well as the band of land lying between high and low water mark. The bank shore, or beach, consists of batture above and below the water. The first is formed of the land beyond the reach of the highest floods; and the second, that which lies under the water and the land lying between high and low water mark.

This batture belongs to the adjacent proprietors. It is a natural right, and applies to urban as well as rural possessions.

Whilst a river, or the bed, is covered with water, the public have a right to the use or servitude in them as common property, as in the case of roads and highways. As soon as they are deserted, or alluvions are formed free from inundation, or reclaimed by levees, &c., they become private property.

The property of the banks belongs to those whose fields or lots are contiguous to the sea, bay, or river. Although they may be a given number of feet deep, yet, if their dimensions bound and butt them upon the beach, they are considered as extending to the water's edge, and the contiguous proprietors are entitled to alluvion. These banks are not sold or measured, but are understood to pass as an accessory to the field or lot sold. This is even the case where a public road intervenes which is not permitted to break the continuity of the claim. If the road is laid out on the bank of the sea or river, the public cannot own the ground on which it runs, unless it is so expressly stipulated, and can only have a servitude in it, as it passed with its principal the adjoining land. These positions are not only true in relation to limited fields which go to the sea or river, but are equally applicable to those without limits.

"The water fountains, the places where fairs and markets are held, where the city councils meet, the sandy places on the banks of rivers, belong separately to the commons of cities and towns, because they have been appropriated and granted for the common use of each city, town, castle, or other place."—(Partidas, tit. 28, l. 9.)

The same work, upon the subject of sale and purchase, tit. 5, l. 15, declares "that public squares, roads, threshy grounds, rivers, and other waters, which belong to the King, or the commons of any city, cannot be sold or alienated." This authority would seem to be conclusive in proving that the land covered by water and granted to Mr. Pintado belonged to the commons of Pensacola, and could not be alienated.

The lots in Pensacola do not belong to the King, but to individuals, and their dimensions carry them to the water's edge at high tide. There is shoal water, or batture under the water, for some distance towards the channel. Although there is a use or servitude in a public road on the beach, yet it was not stipulated that the public owned the ground, and it does not, as we have already remarked, break the continuity and present any impediment to the right of alluvion. The grants of Santiago Coleman, Manuel Hernandez, and José Bonifay, fully explain everything relative to the road. These grants were made on the bay above Pensacola, and they provide that a portion of the shore shall be left to "form a free and public passage along the coast, without prejudice to the rights of alluvion and avulsion." The adjacent proprietors, then, were entitled to the batture as an accessory which passed with its principal. The line in front was one of admeasurement, and not entirely a line of boundary, and the lot was sold per aversionem, and not ad mensuram; that is, it was disposed of in the gross, and not by the measure, or so much per acre.

The King, in this case, had no right to the bank, or alluvion shoals, or sand bars, and could not alienate them. As long as the bed of the river is covered with water, the public have a right only to the use or servitude of that element for the purposes of navigation. As regards this use, it is common property, and is only an appendage of sovereignty. The sovereign is barely the trustee of this common right; he can only prescribe laws how it is to be enjoyed, but cannot dispose of it, or reduce it to severality. If the water advances upon the proprietors of the adjoining lands, they sustain the loss; if accretions are formed, or the water retires from the shore, they are entitled to the increase. This is naught but justice, and no doubt entered into the consideration paid for the lots when they were purchased. The Roman law, which was generally adopted in France and Spain, and the decisions of France and England, will, we believe, sustain the truth of these positions; we cannot avoid the belief, therefore, that this grant is illegal, even admitting that it emanated from his Catholic Majesty; and it is a provision of the common as well as civil law "that all patents, orders, &c., contrary to right and law, shall not be executed, and judges are directed to disregard them."

For an opinion in relation to the lands described in certificates D, E, and F, we beg leave respectfully to refer to our general report upon Spanish claims, as also that upon large claims. Although plats are filed in all these cases, they are dated December 12, 1817, without being accompanied by certificates of survey. We therefore presume that they never were surveyed; and no proof has been exhibited to show that Mr. Pintado even cultivated or improved these lands "in the most beneficial manner, according to the regulations on that matter," for the peopling of this province, in compliance with the conditions imposed by the grant.

These grants appear to be gratuitous, conveying a full property in the lands and lots, and intended as an indemnity for losses sustained. They are copies from the Havana, obtained subsequent to January 24, 1818, when we were entitled to the originals under the solemn stipulations of the treaty between Spain and the United States. This fact, combined with the character of the claim to part of the bay and St. Rosa's island, is calculated to create a presumption of fraud in relation to both of the grants.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 11.

A report of a claim of John Forbes to an island in the river Apalachicola, containing from six to eight thousand acres, more or less, by a title emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provisions of an act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land in the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of John Forbes to the above island is founded on the following title papers and testimony exhibited in support thereof, to wit:

May it please your excellency: John Innerarity, special attorney of Mr. John Forbes, begs leave respectfully to represent, that, as appears by the accompanying documents, No. 1, and its translation, No. 2, the principal chiefs, leaders, and headmen of the Lower Creek and Seminole towns, in consideration of the important services which the said Mr. John Forbes has rendered them, and the signal regard with which he has treated them since the year 1785, when the house and stores of Panton, Leslie & Co. were established in this province, unanimously resolved and determined, at a meeting held at the town of Tuscaloosa, on the river Chattahoochie, on the 10th day of April of the last year, 1810, to cede and convey, gratuitously, and of their own free will, to the said Mr. John Forbes an island of about seven miles in length and one or more in width, situated in the river Apalachicola, opposite to the store or factory which now exists there; to have and to hold the same in all its extent, or dispose of it in favor of his heirs and assigns. In virtue whereof, and as the said cession is shown to be ratified by the document No. 3, signed by the aforesaid chiefs before his honor the commandant of the fort of Apalachy, nothing else is wanting excepting the interposition of your excellency's authority to confirm the said cession and order the issuing of a title in form, in the same terms as that issued to the house of Panton, Leslie & Co., and the one about to be issued to Messrs. John Forbes & Co., which request he prays your excellency to grant. Pensacola, June 7, 1811. (Signed) John Innerarity.

Granted, with the understanding that Mr. John Forbes cannot dispose of the island in question, nor alienate it, without the express consent of this government, and that its acquisition is understood to be on the same footing as that for which a confirmatory title was issued December 3, 1806. (Signed) Folch.

I, Don Marcos de Villiers, captain of the regiment of infantry of Louisiana and civil and military commandant of this fort, certify that on this present day seven chiefs of the Seminole nation presented themselves before me, viz: Capitza Micco, Kinghachee of the Miccasucky town, with his principal warrior, Gatcha Tustunnuggie, and the two principal chiefs, Aza Micco and Cossa Facho, Yahulla Emathla, with his principal warrior, False Facho, of Chisquitalufa, and Ninni Humata Tustunnuggie, of Totohuitee; who, after having given me their hands in token of friendship, declared that they acknowledged the foregoing signatures, made by some of themselves and the chiefs of their nation, to be legitimate and true, and that the gratuitous and generous cession contained in the foregoing instrument of writing was just and valid, having been executed with the full consent of all the nation, in whose name it was published and signed. In testimony whereof, I sign the present, with two assistant witnesses, at St. Mark's, Apalachy, this twenty-fifth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. (Signed) Marcos de Villiers. (Signed) José Urcullo, Lorenzo Vitrian.

At a congress of the chiefs and headmen of the lower towns of the Creek nation of Indians, held in the village of Tuskalofa, on the river Chattahoochie, in the month of April, one thousand eight hundred and ten, composed of the following persons, viz: Payne, chief of the Seminole towns, Capitza Micco, Ufala Hadjoe, Hopoi Hadjoe, Tuska Micco, Hopoi Micco, Yahulla Emathla, Efa Micco, Tootlea Tustunnuggie, Anna Micco, Nunny Humata Tustunnuggie, Tuska Hadjoe, Juan Mosquito, Juan Meally, Checha Tustunnuggie, Toothea Hosee, Tuska Langhata, y Halaghta Tustunnuggie. Whereas we, the aforesaid chiefs and headmen of the Lower Creeks, for sundry good causes and considerations, have unanimously resolved and determined to cede and convey to John Forbes, esq., merchant, of Pensacola, in West Florida, a certain island in the river Apalachicola, at present belonging to us, and situated opposite to our actual trading store on the said river Apalachicola, which island we compute to be about seven miles in length and a mile in breadth, be it more or less, in order that the said John Forbes may hold and possess the same in all its extent, and for his sole use and benefit. And we, the aforesaid chiefs and headmen, in our own name, and in that of all the Lower Creek nation, whom we represent, do cede, and have ceded, all our right to the said island, conformable to the usage of Indians, in favor of the aforesaid John Forbes, esq., his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, now and for evermore. In testimony whereof, we have hereunto affixed our hands, with our signatures or marks. Done at Prospect Bluff, Apalachicola, this twenty-second day of April, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. Mark of Attaly, for Tustunnuggie Checha; mark of Hopoie Halaghta, by Chupalocky; mark of Hopoie Micco, mark of Yahulla Emathla, mark of Capitza Micco, mark of Tuska Micco, mark of Hopoie Cuchee, mark of Miccasuky Tuskinia, mark of Guessa Emathle, mark of Yahulla Hadjoe, mark of Nunny Humata Tustunnuggie, mark of Eupala Hadjoe, mark of Ufala Micco, mark of Tulahta Hadjo, mark of Wasseca Tustunnuggie, mark of Tustunnuggie Chackus-kany, mark of Tuska Hadjoe, mark of Juan Meally. Signed and delivered in our presence: Edmund Doyle, Daniel Blue, William Hambly.

I, Don Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general of this province, exercising the functions of public interpreter, which office is at present vacant, certify that I have made the preceding translation truly and faithfully, according to the best of my understanding and capacity, and according to the literal sense of the annexed paper in the English idiom, and at the instance of Mr. John Innerarity, attorney of Mr. John Forbes. Pensacola, June 22, 1811. (Signed) Vicente Sebastian Pintado. Costs, 22*s.*

Whereas, at a meeting of the chiefs of the lower towns of the nation of Creek Indians and Seminoles, held at Chisquitalufa on the twenty-sixth of April of the preceding year, one thousand eight hundred and ten, it was unanimously accorded and resolved by said chiefs, in the name of their towns and nations, to cede, gratuitously and generously, to Mr. John Forbes, an island which is situated on the western side of the river Apalachicola, fronting the place where the factory belonging to the house of Messrs. John Forbes & Co. is established, the limits of which, according to the instrument of writing in the English language, signed and executed by them in favor of the said John Forbes, esq., under date of the twenty-second day of April of the present year, in the said factory, at which we also assisted, accompanied by Mr. William Hambly, as agent and interpreter of the said John Forbes, esq., and Mr. Daniel Blue, a half-pay English officer, in the capacity of a surveyor, to trace the line, which runs thus: beginning its course from the place called the Three Mouths, running up the river Apalachicola, on the western side, for about nine miles, more or less; from its mouth it follows in different directions to the distance of about a mile and a half higher than the place where the said factory is situated, the directions, courses, and distances of which appear more particularly in the plan or map annexed to this deed, which island we have ceded to the said John Forbes, esq., to have and to hold the same, or to dispose of it at his option, and, as such, we order that it may be observed and respected by all, now, from henceforth, and forever. Given at St. Mark's, Apalachy, in presence of his honor the commandant of said post, Don Marcos de Villiers, and the subscribing witnesses, on the twenty-fifth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. Mark of Capitza Micco Kinchachee, mark of Cacha Tustunnuggie, mark of Aza Micco, mark of Coosa Facho, mark of Yahulla Emathla, mark of False Hacho, mark of Nunny Humata Tustunnuggie. We, the undersigned, declare that, although we were not present at the demarcation of the aforementioned boundary line, we know and are well satisfied with its accuracy and justness; and, in conformity, we sign the same on the day of the date, in presence of the commandant of this fort, interpreters, and assistant witnesses. Mark of Nocose Opay, mark of Cowa Emathla, mark of Tustunnuggie Facho, mark of Micco Hadjoe, mark of Nocose Hadjoe.

Don Marcos de Villiers, captain of the regiment of infantry of Louisiana, commandant and sub-delegate of the department of finance in this fort, certifies that, at a meeting held this day, the chiefs and warriors composing the same signed the foregoing paper in my presence, as also Don Felipe Prieto and Mr. William Hambly, by whom its contents were interpreted to them, with the intervention of the undersigned assistant witnesses. Apalachy, this twenty-fifth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. (Signed) Marcos de Villiers, Felipe Prieto, William Hambly, Lorenzo Vitrian. José Urcullo.

Don Francisco de St. Maxent, colonel of infantry, lieutenant colonel and commandant of the regiment of infantry of Louisiana, political and military governor, ad interim, of this province: I certify that the foregoing documents are conformable to the original record on file in the secretary's office of this government, and of the title delivered to the attorney of Mr. John Forbes; in evidence of which, I give the present under my hand, sealed with my armorial bearings, and countersigned by the undersigned secretary of this government. Pensacola, this twentieth of December, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. (Signed) Francisco Maximiliano de St. Maxent. (Signed) Pablo Larin. (Loc. Sig.)

Also, an original confirmation, or title in form, given by Governor Folch, countersigned by the secretary of the government, which reads in the words following, to wit:

Don Vincente Folch y Juan, brigadier general of the royal armies, military and political governor of the province of West Florida, inspector of the troops of the line and militia thereof, vice regius patronatus, judge, sub-delegate of the superintendency general, &c., &c.: Whereas Mr. John Innerarity, attorney of Mr. John Forbes, has represented to me in his memorial of the seventh day of the present month, that the principal chiefs, leaders, and headmen of the Lower Creek and Seminole Indians, at a meeting held at the town of Tuskatalofa, on the river Apalachicola, on the tenth day of April of the preceding year, one thousand eight hundred and ten, unanimously resolved and determined, gratuitously, and of their own free will, to cede and convey to the said Mr. John Forbes an island of about seven miles in length, and one or more in width, situated in the river Apalachicola, facing the store or factory established there, in consideration of the important services which he has rendered them, and the regard he has shown them since the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, when the house of Messrs. Panton, Leslie & Co. was established, for which purpose the different chiefs, leaders, and headmen assembled at Prospect Bluff, Apalachicola, on the twenty-second day of April last, together with Mr. Edmund Doyle, agent of Mr. John Forbes, Mr. Daniel Blue, surveyor, and Mr. William Hambly, agent and interpreter, and signed the deed of cession and conveyance of the said island, which they ratified on the twenty-fifth of May last, before the commandant of the fort of St. Mark's, Apalachy, Don Marcos de Villiers, and the official witnesses; the said chiefs and leaders being headed by the principal chief of the Mickasuky town, Capitza Micco Kehachee, with other chiefs of the tribe commissioned for the purpose, and the ratification being renewed by another deed of the same date, with the marks of the chiefs in question, and certified by the aforesaid commandant, Don Marcos de Villiers, with the official witnesses, Don José Urcullo and Don Lorenzo Vitrian, and signed also by the interpreters, Don Felipe Prieto and Don Guillermo Hambly, it appears that the said island begins at a place called the "Three Mouths," distant about nine miles from the mouth of the river Apalachicola, and ascending the said river from the said place, in different directions and courses on the western side of the same, to about one and a half mile above or opposite to the site where the factory is at present established; and whereas it was one of the conditions and stipulations for the establishment of the said house that the government should afford it every possible support and assistance within its control for the recovery of their Indian and trading debts and claims, in order to preserve that friendship and good harmony which is so requisite; and this concession not being contrary to our laws, and to the sovereignty of our Catholic monarch, I gave my decree to the aforesaid memorial on the eighth day of the present month, in the following words: "Granted, with the understanding that Mr. John Forbes cannot dispose of the island in question, nor alienate it, without the express consent of this government, and that its acquisition is understood to be on the same footing as that for which a confirmatory title was issued on the third of December, one thousand eight hundred and six;" and the cession of the said island having been solemnly confirmed by the aforementioned deed of the twenty-second of April last, signed by Attaly Tuskanaman, Katchela of Chupaluckee, Hopoie Holaghta, Hopoie Micco, Yahulla Emathla, Capitza Micco, Hopoie Micco, Hoopoie Cuckie, Mickasucky Tuskinia, Conesa Emathla, Tohalla Hadjoe, Neny Hoomaghta Tuskanagge, Ufala Micco, Ufala Hadjoe, Talaghta Hayde, Wasaesa Tuskanuckey, Tuskay Hadjoe, Juan Meally, in presence of Edmund Doyle, Daniel Blue, and William Hambly, which deed, with its translation annexed to the proceedings, is certified by the commandant of the fort of St. Mark's, Apalachy, in presence of the official witnesses, Don José Urcullo and Don Lorenzo Vitrian; and the boundaries having been designated by the chiefs deputed for that purpose, Capitza Micco, King Hagee, Asa Micco, False Hadjoe, Catcha Tustannuggie, Cosafacho, Yahulla Emathla, Nimo Sumasta Tustannuggie, who, having made their declaration before the above-mentioned commandant, the same having been duly executed in writing, and with every formality, which deed was also signed by Nocose Opay, Tustannuggie Hadjoe, Nocose Hadjoe, Eava Emathla, and Micco Hadjoe, the whole of them unanimously consented, for their respective towns and nations, to the said gratuitous and generous concession in favor of John Forbes and his heirs, which act was certified by the aforesaid commandant, before the official witnesses, Don José Urcullo and Don Lorenzo Vitrian, and the interpreters, Messrs. Felipe Prieto and William Hambly. In consequence of all what is afore related, Mr. John Innerarity, as attorney of the aforesaid Mr. John Forbes, prayed me in the conclusion of his aforementioned memorial to interpose my authority in due form for the ratification of the island specified in the map or plan of the same, made by the surveyor general, Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, which will be annexed to the present. Wherefore, exercising the powers which the King our sovereign (whom God preserve) has conferred upon me, I confirm and ratify, in his royal name, to the said John Forbes, the cession of the aforementioned island, made by the Seminole and Lower Creek nations of Indians, represented by their principal chiefs and headmen, with the dimensions, courses, and distances, as laid down in the aforesaid map or plan, which, together with all the original records of the same, are registered in the secretary's office of this government; and I declare the said John Forbes invested with the sole and absolute dominion thereof in fee simple, to have and to hold the same as his property, in order that he may possess, cultivate, sell, or alienate the same agreeable to the tenor of my decree inserted in the title hereof, and I grant him power to take possession, with which I hereby invest him in form. In faith whereof, I have ordered these presents to be despatched, signed with my own hand, sealed with my armorial bearings, and countersigned by the undersigned secretary of this government. Done in the town of Pensacola, the fifteenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. (Signed) Vincente Folch. By order of his excellency. (Signed) Pablo de Larin. [L. s.]

Also, an original certificate of Pablo de Larin, secretary of the government, stating that the original proceedings of the cession, of which the foregoing is the patent of confirmation, remain deposited in the archives of this government office, and an authenticated copy thereof, and of the whole of the aforesaid proceedings, have been delivered this day to the surveyor general of this province, Don Vincente Sebastian Pintado, for the purpose of being registered in his office, and a notarial copy of the whole has also been delivered to the representative of the party interested. Pensacola, this twentieth day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eleven. (Signed) Pablo de Larin.

Opinion of the commissioners.

This grant is made by a congress of the chiefs and headmen of the Lower towns of the Creek nation of Indians and the Seminoles. They have ceded all their right to the said island, conformable to the usage of Indians, to John Forbes, to have and to hold the same, and to dispose of it at his option. This they have done, they say, for sundry good causes and considerations, which are explained in the petition of Mr. Innerarity, and the confirmatory title of Governor Folch, to be the important services which John Forbes has rendered them, and the regard he has shown them since the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, when the house of Messrs. Panton, Leslie & Co. was established. The grounds upon which the confirmatory title of Governor Folch seems to have been given, were, that it was one of the conditions and stipulations upon which said house was established, that the government should afford it any possible support and assistance within its control for the recovery of their Indian and trading debts and claims, in order to preserve that friendship and harmony which is so requisite. The title was obtained with the same formalities, and under the same restriction or condition of not alienating the land without the consent of the government, as those observed in the two grants to Panton, Leslie & Co. and John Forbes & Co., on the east side of the Apalachicola river. In this claim the same questions are also presented to the minds of the undersigned commissioners, and, for an opinion in relation to it, they beg leave, respectfully, to refer to their opinion in those two cases already forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

Second. Special report on conflicting claims emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence, numbered from 1 to 30.

No. 1.

A report of claims to a tract of land containing seven thousand arpents, situate on the eastern side of Escambia river, sometimes called an island, about twenty-six miles from Pensacola, in the district of West Florida, claimed in part by titles emanating from the British government, and in toto by a claim emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provisions of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Theodore Gaillard, Cornelia, his wife, formerly Cornelia Marshall, and Jane Marshall, citizens of the United States, to two hundred acres of land derived from the British government, is founded on—

An original patent, under the great seal, granted to Joseph Lamb by Peter Chester, captain general and commander-in-chief of his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, dated March 2, 1779, on the usual conditions; signed, countersigned, and recorded in due form.

Also, an original deed of bargain and sale from the grantee to William Marshall, dated March 8, 1779; acknowledged and recorded in due form.

Also, a certified copy of a deed of trust of William Marshall, jr., son of the aforesaid William, to Theodore Gaillard, and for the benefit of Cornelia, his wife, and Jane Marshall, of all the lands, &c., to which the said William was entitled in the province of West Florida, upon trust and conditions therein enumerated and expressed, dated November 2, 1803, with a schedule of the lands and lots thereunto annexed; certified to be a true copy by Charles S. Tucker, register, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor and secretary of South Carolina, under the great seal, dated September 19, 1822.

Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, duly certified and authenticated, stating that William Marshall, sen., was a staff officer in the British ordnance department, and resided in Pensacola until the province was surrendered to Spain; that during this period he had various grants of lands made to him by the different British governors; that the deponent was well acquainted with William Marshall and his affairs, and about the year 1781 or 1782 he left Pensacola and went to South Carolina and settled himself in the city of Charleston, and soon after became a citizen of said State; that he, the said William, died several years afterwards, leaving a son named William, one of the judges of the State, who died some years ago, leaving two daughters, Cornelia, wife of Theodore Gaillard, and Jane Marshall; that William Marshall, sen., had a number of negroes in West Florida and cultivated two tracts of land, and that he was in actual possession of several lots in Pensacola, on one of which he resided. Signed and sworn to before William S. Smith, clerk of the court of common pleas, whose signature and seal is accredited by the certificates of the presiding judge and governor, under their respective hands and seals.

Also, a deposition of John Black, stating that he resided for some time in Pensacola until the capture of that place by the Spaniards, and that he was well acquainted with William Marshall, who resided in his own house situated about two lots distant from the corner of George street, leading to Fort George, and that the said Marshall owned many tracts of land in the vicinity of Pensacola and elsewhere in the province; and further saith that the said William Marshall came to Charleston, with his family, where he became a citizen and resided the remainder of his life; his family were his son William, now dead, and his daughters Cornelia and Jane. Sworn to, certified, and authenticated as above.

Also, the claim of Theodore Gaillard, Cornelia, his wife, formerly Cornelia Marshall, and Jane Marshall, citizens of the United States, to two tracts of land of five hundred acres each, founded on—

A plat and certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general, pursuant to a warrant from Peter Chester, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief over his Britannic Majesty's province, dated February 22, 1779; certified on the 26th of the same month. Situated twenty-six miles from Pensacola, and bounded on the north by the lands of Joseph Lamb.

Also, an original patent for the same, under the great seal, to Charles Ward, granted by the said Peter Chester, dated March 2, 1779; signed, countersigned, and recorded.

Also, an original deed of bargain and sale for two tracts of land of five hundred acres each, dated March 12, 1779, reciting that he had obtained by letters patent two tracts of land—one bounded on the north by the lands of Joseph Lamb, the other bounded on the south by the said Lamb. He conveys the same to William Marshall.

Also, a copy of the plat and a certificate from the land office of the district of Washington, stating that the patent to the last mentioned tract, bounded on the south by Lamb, had been recorded in that office.

Also, a certified copy of a deed of trust of William Marshall, jr., son of the aforesaid William, to Theodore Gaillard, and for the benefit of Cornelia, his wife, and Jane Marshall, of all the lands to which the said William was entitled in the province of West Florida, upon trust and conditions therein enumerated and expressed, dated November 2, 1803, with a schedule of the lands and lots thereunto annexed; certified to be a true copy by Charles S. Tucker, register, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor and secretary, under the great seal, dated September 19, 1822. Note.—See the foregoing depositions of Elihu Hall Bay and John Black in the claim of two hundred acres.

Also, the claim of Theodore Gaillard, Cornelia, his wife, formerly Cornelia Marshall, and Jane Marshall, citizens of the United States, to two hundred and sixty acres of land, founded on an original patent, under the great seal, granted to George Burden by Peter Chester, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, dated January 29, 1780; signed, countersigned, and recorded in due form.

Also, a deed, poll, and letter of attorney executed by George Burden, reciting that he was entitled to three thousand acres of land as a lieutenant in his Majesty's service, and transferring his right to the same to William Marshall, or so much thereof as he will locate, dated May 10, 1799; acknowledged and recorded.

Also, a certified copy of a deed of trust of William Marshall, jr., son of the aforesaid William, to Theodore Gaillard, and for the benefit of Cornelia, his wife, and Jane Marshall, of all the lands, &c., to which the said William was entitled in the province of West Florida, upon trust and conditions therein enumerated and expressed, dated November 2, 1803, with a schedule of the lands and lots thereunto annexed; certified to be a true copy by Charles S. Tucker, register, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor and secretary, under the great seal, dated September 19, 1822.

See the foregoing depositions of Elihu Hall Bay and John Black, copied in the claim of two hundred acres.

The claim of Francisco Bonal, derived from the Spanish government, to an island circumscribed by the river Escambia, fronting the bluff called Durand's bluff, containing seven thousand arpents, situated about fifteen miles from the mouth of the said river, is founded on the following title papers and testimony exhibited in support thereof, to wit:

An original grant, or title in form, made to Francisco Bonal by Don José Masot, governor and sub-delegate of the intendant and superintendent general, for 7,000 arpents of land, an island in the Escambia river, under the seal of office; signed by the said governor, countersigned by Domingo Sausa and Joseph Cevallos, assistant witnesses, dated October 1, 1817.

A copy of a plat and certificate of survey, signed by Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general, dated Havana May 25, 1818, in which it is recited that the annexed figured plat and measurement were executed by his deputy, Don Pedro Reggio, on the 3d and 4th of October last, 1817, in favor of Francisco Bonal, in obedience to a decree of the governor and sub-delegate of royal finance of the province of West Florida, Don José Masot, dated September 19, 1817.

Also, an original grant or title in form made to Francisco Bonal by Don Alejandro Ramirez, intendant general, countersigned by Pedro Carambot, Secretary of War, dated Havana, May 2, 1818, setting forth that Francisco Bonal, of Pensacola, presented a petition to the intendancy, accompanied by a copy of the proceedings instituted in the sub-delegation of that place for the obtaining a gratuitous concession of an island situated in the river Escambia, opposite the bluff called Durand's bluff, which island was conceded to him by the said Governor Masot, and a formal title delivered; and, in virtue of the powers conferred on him by his lord the King, and in his royal name, he confirmed and ratified to the said Bonal the 7,000 arpents of land containing the island aforementioned, and specified in the figured plat No. 1868, of which a copy is annexed to this title.

Pablo Palmes proved the signature of the intendant, escribano, and the subscribing witnesses attached to the grant.

F. H. Nisbet, being affirmed, says that he was upon the island claimed by Francisco Bonal in the month of August, 1821; that there was a family composed of two or three hands, who were engaged in cultivating the said land for Francisco Bonal; that there was a large clearing, and about seven or eight arpents planted with rice; that there were no houses on the land except a new unfinished barn. Does not recollect having seen anything else than rice growing; and further saith not.

Pablo Palmes, being duly sworn, saith that he was upon the land in the year 1819; saw two hands at work there in cultivating rice, corn, and potatoes; that there were two different clearings, the one planted in rice and the other in corn; thinks there were about seven or eight acres in rice, but does not know how many in corn and potatoes; that the hands had some time before erected a house on the island and adjacent to the river, and were forced to abandon it by high water; that the cultivation was continued from 1819 until about four months ago; and further saith not.

José Maura, being duly sworn, saith that he was upon the island in the year 1820, but knows that the improvements and cultivation were commenced in the year 1819; that the improvement consisted of a house and two clearings, one of which was planted in rice, and the other in corn, potatoes, and peas; thinks there were about seven or eight arpents in rice; and further saith not.

Joseph E. Caro, being duly sworn, saith that he knows that the grant made by the governor of this province, Don José Masot, to Francisco Bonal, was in the year 1817; and further, that the grant was sent to Havana for confirmation.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 2.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 150, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Theodore Gaillard, Cornelia, his wife, formerly Cornelia Marshall, and Jane Marshall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 150, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an original patent granted by Montford Browne, esq., lieutenant governor of the province of West Florida for his Britannic Majesty, under the great seal, signed and countersigned, dated January 12, 1768, to James Aria, of Pensacola, upon the usual condition. Also, an original deed of lease and release, executed by the grantee to Patrick Morgan on the 6th or 7th day of June, 1769, acknowledged and recorded in the proper office, and certified accordingly. Also, an original deed of bargain and sale from Patrick Morgan to William Marshall, dated September 8, 1778; acknowledged and recorded in due form.

Also, a certified copy of a deed of trust of William Marshall, jr., son of the aforesaid William, to Theodore Gaillard, and for the benefit of Cornelia, his wife, and Jane Marshall, of all the lands, &c., to which the said William was entitled in the province of West Florida, upon trust and conditions therein enumerated and expressed, dated November 2, 1803, with a schedule of the lands and lots thereunto annexed; certified to be a true copy by Charles S. Tucker, register, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor and secretary under the great seal, dated September 19, 1822. Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, duly certified and authenticated, stating that William Marshall, sen., was a staff officer in the British department, and resided in Pensacola until that province was surrendered to Spain; that during this period he had various grants of land made to him by the different British governors; that the deponent was well acquainted with William Marshall and his affairs, and about the year 1781 or 1782 he left Pensacola and went to South Carolina, and settled himself in the city of Charleston, and soon after became a citizen of said State; that the said William died several years afterwards, leaving a son named William, one of the judges of the State, who died some years ago, leaving two daughters, Cornelia, wife of Theodore Gaillard, and Jane Marshall; that William Marshall, sen., had a number of negroes in West Florida, and cultivated two tracts of lands, and that he was in actual possession of several lots in Pensacola, on one of which he resided. Signed and sworn to before William S. Smith, clerk of the court of common pleas, whose signature and seal is accredited by the certificate of the presiding judge and governor, under their respective hands and seals.

Also, a deposition of John Black, stating that he resided for some time in Pensacola, until the capture of that place by the Spaniards, and that he was well acquainted with William Marshall, who resided in his own house, situated about two lots distance from the corner of George street, leading to Fort George; and that the said Marshall owned many tracts of land in the vicinity of Pensacola and elsewhere in the province; and further saith that the said William Marshall came to Charleston, with his family, where he became a citizen, and resided the remainder of his life. His family were his son William, now dead, and his daughters Cornelia and Jane. Sworn to, certified, and authenticated as above.

The claim of Maria Josephine Firou to the above-mentioned lot No. 150, derived from Spanish title, is founded on a copy of a mesne conveyance from Diego Cazorla to the claimant, passed before Governor Folch, and the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and Anastacio Mentes de Oca, June 15, 1808; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, notary public, and charged with the archives, August 12, 1822. This deed recites that said Cazorla purchased the said lot July 15, 1804, held under a decree of the real hacienda, dated at New Orleans May 2, 1804.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 3.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 70, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs and legal representatives of James Sutton to a lot, No. 70, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on a copy of a patent granted by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over the province of West Florida, dated October 1, 1765; certified to be a true copy from the British records in the General Land Office, Washington city, by Josiah Meigs, commissioner thereof, under the seal of office.

The claim of Joseph Tapiola, derived from the Spanish government, to half the above lot No. 70, is founded on a copy of the grant made by the Intendant Morales, countersigned by Francisco F. G. Arroyo, secretary, dated March 7, 1810, to Louis Gonzales; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives. Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, showing that said Gonzales conveyed to Pedro Mendoza, by act of sale, dated December 30, 1815, and that the said Mendoza conveyed to Tapiola, by act of sale, dated February 17, 1816.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Joseph Tapiola proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said half lot above mentioned was enclosed and a house erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 203, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Elihu Hall Bay to lot No. 203, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original patent, made by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief of his Britannic Majesty over the province of West Florida, under the great seal, countersigned by Alexander

Mcclelan, deputy provost secretary, to Thomas Huckstall, upon the usual conditions, dated October 4, 1765. Also, an original deed of lease and release from the grantee to David Ross, dated September 14, 1770, recorded in due form and certified accordingly. Also, an original confirmation patent issued by Peter Chester, captain general, &c., reciting the grant to Huckstall, his sale to Ross, and a sale from Ross to Elihu Hall Bay, on October 10, 1778, and confirming the title to the said Elihu Hall Bay; signed, countersigned, and recorded. Also, an affidavit of Elihu Hall Bay, of the city of Charleston, South Carolina, made before William S. Smith, clerk of the court of common pleas, stating that he "never, at any time since the surrender of West Florida to Spain in the year 1781, either directly or indirectly, received any payment or consideration for any lands he ever owned or possessed in the said province of West Florida from the British government, or its officers or agents;" dated at Charleston, June 5, 1822; signed and sealed by William S. Smith, clerk as aforesaid.

The claim of John Donalson, derived from the Spanish government, to half the above lot No. 203, is founded on—

An original grant, or title in form, made to José and Antonio de Vegas, by Intendant Morales, countersigned by secretary Arroyo, and dated April 14, 1810. Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from the grantee to the claimant, passed before Governor Masot, and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Cevallos, on February 11, 1818.

Joseph E. Caro proved all the foregoing signatures.

Henry Michelet, being sworn, saith that, in the year 1810, José and Antonio de Vegas enclosed lot No. 203, and built a house thereon; and further saith not.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 227, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Elihu Hall Bay to lot No. 227, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original patent granted to the claimant by Peter Chester, captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, dated June 9, 1769; signed and countersigned under the seal. Also, an affidavit of Elihu Hall Bay, of the city of Charleston, South Carolina, made before William S. Smith, clerk of the court of common pleas, stating that he "never, at any time since the surrender of West Florida to Spain in the year 1781, either directly or indirectly, received any payment or consideration for any lands he ever owned or possessed in the said province of West Florida from the British government, or its officers or agents;" dated at Charleston, June 5, 1822; signed and sealed by William S. Smith, as aforesaid.

The claim of Eugenio Antonio Sierra to the above lot No. 227, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

An original grant made by Intendant Morales, countersigned by Francisco Gutierrez de Arroyo, secretary, to Santiago Dauphin, dated November 26, 1811. Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from said Dauphin to Eugenio Antonio Sierra, executed before Governor San Maxent, ad interim, with the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and Juan Villaverde, dated April 11, 1812; certified to be a true copy by said Maxent, with the same assistants, on June 8, 1812.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Eugenio Antonio Sierra proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed and two houses erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 6.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 231, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of David McCaleb, a citizen of the United States, for himself and the heirs and legal representatives of Alexander McCullaugh, deceased, to lot No. 231, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an extract from the indices of the British records of West Florida in the General Land Office of the United States, showing that lot No. 231 was granted to William Marshall on October 6, 1767; certified by John McLean, Commissioner of the General Land Office. Also, a certified copy of a bill of sale or deed of conveyance from Alexander McCullaugh, nephew and heir-at-law of Alexander, sen., to David McCaleb, of Mississippi, of one equal half part of all the lands and lots owned by Alexander, sen., in the former British province of West Florida; executed, acknowledged, and recorded in Mississippi Territory, dated February 5, 1813; certified and authenticated in due form from the records of Washington county, Mississippi.

Also, a deposition taken before a justice of the peace, in the city of New Orleans, of William McCullaugh, who saith that Alexander McCullaugh, the owner of various lands and lots in the former British province of West Florida, died at Pensacola, and that the father of deponent was his heir-at-law, and, after his death, Alexander, jr., being the eldest son, was his heir-at-law. Sworn and subscribed to before Simeon Knight, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor of Louisiana under the seal of the State.

Also, a deposition of Robert Fleming, formerly of Charleston, South Carolina, taken at Philadelphia on March 4, 1823, stating that Alexander McCullaugh, jr., frequently mentioned to him that he was the heir of his uncle, Alexander, sen., who died at Pensacola intestate, and that the deponent was informed by other relations of the family of the same facts; and that the said Alexander, jr., showed him divers documents, duly authenticated in Ireland, proving that his father died intestate, and that he was the heir-at-law, or eldest son, of his father, William, who died intestate; that all the documents were authenticated in Ireland with a view of his taking possession of his uncle's lands in West Florida; that the said Alexander, as deponent verily believes, became a citizen of the United States in South Carolina, as he could not carry on business on his own account as a merchant without; that some time thereafter he moved to Jacksonborough, where his house and all his papers were consumed by fire; and that, in 1803 or 1804, the said Alexander went out to Mississippi in search of his lands and lots, &c. Sworn to before Robert Wharton, mayor of the city of Philadelphia.

Also, the deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, taken in a suit in Mississippi, and certified from the records of that court, in which he states that Alexander McCullaugh, sen., died at Pensacola, without children, shortly after June, 1781, and that his brother, John Bay, was one of his administrators, and took possession of all his title papers, grants, &c., and carried them to South Carolina and deposited them with the deponent for safe keeping; and that some time thereafter a young man, calling himself Alexander McCullaugh, arrived from Ireland, in consequence of letters written to him by the administrators of his deceased uncle, and called on deponent, and informed him that his father, the brother of Alexander, sen., had died intestate, and that he was the heir and nephew of Alexander, sen., deceased; and at the same time produced certificates and testimonials, all authenticated in such a manner, by competent tribunals in Ireland, as left no doubt on deponent's mind that the said Alexander, jr., was heir-at-law of Alexander, sen., in consequence of which he gave him all his uncle's grants, deeds, &c., certified in due form.

The claim of John J. Simpson to lot No. 231, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on a copy of a mesne conveyance from Manuel Gonzales to the claimant, passed before Governor Callava and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Rioboo, on May 10, 1819, certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day. Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that Gonzales purchased the said lots, with the improvements thereon, from Vicente Ignacio Ramos, by act of sale passed before Governor Maxent and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Villaverde, on June 2, 1810, which recites that the said lot was granted to Ramos by Intendant Morales on January 29, 1810, and that the improvements were made by him.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said John J. Simpson proves the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 7.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 142, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the fourth section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of David McCaleb, a citizen of the United States, for himself and the heirs and legal representatives of Alexander McCullaugh, to lot No. 142, in the city Pensacola, is founded on—

First. Letters patent, signed and countersigned under the great seal of the province, granted by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, for lot No. 142, in the city of Pensacola, to Ralph Wardlaw, dated October 4, 1765; certified to have been recorded in due form, having the usual front and depth, according to the British plan of Pensacola. An original deed of conveyance from Ralph Wardlaw, the grantee, to William Marshall for the above lot No. 142, dated November 6, 1765; acknowledged, recorded, and certified. Also, an original lease and release from William Marshall to Alexander McCullaugh for said lot; signed, acknowledged, and recorded; dated the 18th and 19th of August, 1777.

Also, a certified copy of a bill of sale or deed of conveyance from Alexander McCullaugh, nephew and heir-at-law of Alexander, sen., to David McCaleb, of the State of Mississippi, of one equal half part of all the lands and lots owned by Alexander, sen., in the former British province of West Florida; executed, acknowledged, and recorded in Mississippi Territory, dated February 5, 1813; certified and authenticated in due form from the records of Washington county, Mississippi.

Also, a deposition, taken before a justice of the peace in the city of New Orleans, of William McCullaugh, who saith that Alexander McCullaugh, the owner of various lands and lots in the former British province of West Florida, died at Pensacola, and that the father of the deponent was his heir-at-law, and after his death, Alexander, jun., being the eldest son, was his heir-at-law. Sworn and subscribed before Simeon Knight, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor of Louisiana, under the seal of the State.

Also, a deposition of Robert Fleming, formerly of Charleston, South Carolina, taken at Philadelphia on March 4, 1823, stating that Alexander McCullaugh, jun., frequently mentioned to him that he was the heir of his uncle, Alexander, sen., who died at Pensacola intestate; and that the deponent was informed by other relations of the family of the same facts, and that the said Alexander, jun., showed him divers documents, duly authenticated in Ireland, proving that his father died intestate, and that he was the heir-at-law, or eldest son, of his father, William, who died intestate; that all the documents were authenticated in Ireland with a view of his taking possession of his uncle's lands in West Florida; and that the said

Alexander, as deponent verily believes, became a citizen of the United States in South Carolina, as he could not carry on business on his own account as a merchant without; that some time thereafter he moved to Jacksonborough, where his house and all his papers were consumed by fire; and that, in 1803 or 1804, the said Alexander went out to Mississippi in search of his lands and lots, &c. Sworn to before Robert Wharton, mayor of the city of Philadelphia.

Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, taken in a suit in Mississippi, and certified from the records of that court, in which he states that Alexander McCullaugh, sen., died at Pensacola, without children, shortly after June, 1781, and that his brother, John Bay, was one of his administrators, and took possession of all his title papers, grants, &c., and carried them to South Carolina and deposited them with the deponent for safe keeping; and that some time thereafter a young man, calling himself Alexander McCullaugh, arrived from Ireland, in consequence of letters written to him by the administrators of his deceased uncle, and called on deponent, and informed him that his father, the brother of Alexander, sen., had died intestate, and that he was the heir and nephew of Alexander, sen., deceased; and at the same time produced certificates and testimonials, all authenticated in such a manner, by competent tribunals in Ireland, as left no doubt on deponent's mind that the said Alexander, jun., was heir-at-law of Alexander, sen.; in consequence of which he gave him all his uncle's grants, deeds, &c., certified in due form.

The claim of Joseph Roche to part of lot No. 142, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of an act of sale at auction made to Marcos Riera by Francisco Paula Gelabert, governor, in obedience to a decree of the Baron de Carondelet, governor general of Louisiana, dated August 5, 1776, being for one lot No. 142 as the property of Zenon Balls, deceased; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, on December 10, 1822. Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from Marcos Riera to the claimant, passed before Governor Maxent and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Montes de Oca, on June 30, 1810; certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day.

In addition to the foregoing, the said Joseph Roche proves the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the title papers, and that the said lot before mentioned was enclosed and a house erected upon it for upwards of thirty-five years.

The claim of Neilson and Randolph to one-fifth part of the above lot No. 142, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of mesne conveyance from William King to the claimant, passed before Governor Callava and the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and Joseph E. Caro, on February 16, 1820; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, on December 30, 1822. Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that William King purchased of John de la Rua, attorney in fact of James Fontenals, on November 27, 1818; that James Fontenals purchased at a public sale of the estate of Marcos Riera, deceased, on August 12, 1812.

NOTE.—See documentary and parol testimony adduced in the above claim of Joseph Roche to a part of the said lot, which likewise applies to this claim.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 233, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the fourth section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of David McCaleb, a citizen of the United States, for himself and the heirs and legal representatives of Alexander McCullaugh, deceased, to lot No. 233, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an extract from the indices of the British records of West Florida now in the General Land Office, showing that the above-mentioned lot was granted to Laughlin McGuire January 10, 1767, certified by John McLean, Commissioner of the General Land Office. Also, an original lease and release, signed, acknowledged, and recorded, from the grantee to Alexander Moore, dated September 10 and 11, 1767. Also, a deed of bargain and sale from Alexander Moore and wife to Alexander McCullaugh, dated July 8, 1777, for the said lot.

Also, a certified copy of a bill of sale, or deed of conveyance, from Alexander McCullaugh, nephew and heir-at-law of Alexander, sr., to David McCaleb, of the State of Mississippi, of one equal half part of all the lands and lots owned by Alexander, sr., in the former British province of West Florida, executed, acknowledged, and recorded in Mississippi Territory, dated February 5, 1813, certified and authenticated in due form from the records of Washington county, Mississippi.

Also, a deposition, taken before a justice of the peace in the city of New Orleans, of William McCullaugh, who saith that Alexander McCullaugh, the owner of various lands and lots in the former British province of West Florida, died at Pensacola, and that the father of the deponent was his heir-at-law, and after his death, Alexander, jr., being the eldest son, was his heir-at-law. Sworn and subscribed before Simeon Knight, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor of Louisiana, under the seal of the State.

Also, a deposition of Robert Fleming, formerly of Charleston, South Carolina, taken at Philadelphia March 4, 1823, stating that Alexander McCullaugh, jr., frequently mentioned to him that he was the heir of his uncle, Alexander, sr., who died at Pensacola intestate, and that the deponent was informed by other relations of the family of the same facts; and that the said Alexander, jr., showed him divers documents, duly authenticated in Ireland, proving that his father died intestate, and that he was the heir-at-law, or eldest son, of his father, William, who died intestate; that all the documents were authenticated in Ireland with a view of his taking possession of his uncle's lands in West Florida; and that the said Alexander, as deponent verily believes, became a citizen of the United States in South Carolina, as he could not carry on business on his own account as a merchant without; that some time thereafter he moved to Jacksonborough, where his house and all his papers were consumed by fire; and that, in 1803 or 1804, the said Alexander went out to Mississippi in search of his lands and lots, &c. Sworn to before Robert Wharton, mayor of the city of Philadelphia.

Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, taken in a suit in Mississippi, and certified from the records of that court, in which he states that Alexander McCullaugh, sr., died at Pensacola, without children, shortly after June, 1781, and that his brother, John Bay, was one of his administrators, and took possession of all his title papers, grants, &c., and carried them to South Carolina, and deposited them with the deponent for safe keeping; and that some time thereafter a young man, calling himself Alexander McCullaugh, arrived from Ireland, in consequence of letters written to him by the administrators of his deceased uncle, and called on deponent, and informed him that his father, the brother of Alexander, sr., had died intestate, and that he was the heir and nephew of Alexander, sr., deceased; and at the same time produced certificates and testimonials, all authenticated in such a manner, by competent tribunals in Ireland, as left no doubt on deponent's mind that the said Alexander, jr., was heir-at-law of Alexander, sr.; in consequence of which he gave him all his uncle's grants, deeds, &c., certified in due form.

The claim of Mariana Bonifay to lot No. 233, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish title, is founded on an original grant to John B. Aleck made by the Intendant Morales, countersigned by F. G. Arroyo, secretary, and dated May 9, 1810. Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from the grantee to the present claimant, executed before William King, temporary governor, and James Scallan, secretary, June 17, 1818, certified to be a true copy by said King and Scallan.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Mariana Bonifay proves, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed and a house erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 157, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the fourth section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of David McCaleb, a citizen of the United States, for himself and the heirs and legal representatives of Alexander McCullaugh, deceased, to lot No. 157, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on a deed poll from Alexander McCullaugh, deputy provost marshal, to Thomas Underwood, dated March 31, 1774, reciting that the lot was granted to James Cavanaugh, and sold to satisfy a judgment against him. Also, an original deed of lease and release from Thomas Underwood to Alexander McCullaugh, dated January 16 and 17, 1775; acknowledged, recorded, and certified.

Also, a certified copy of a bill of sale, or deed of conveyance, from Alexander McCullaugh, nephew and heir-at-law of Alexander, sr., to David McCaleb, of the State of Mississippi, of one equal half part of all the lands and lots owned by Alexander, sr., in the former British province of West Florida, executed, acknowledged, and recorded in Mississippi Territory, dated February 5, 1813; certified and authenticated in due form from the records of Washington county, Mississippi.

Also, a deposition, taken before a justice of the peace in the city of New Orleans, of William McCullough, who saith that Alexander McCullaugh, the owner of various lands and lots in the former British province of West Florida, died at Pensacola, and that the father of this deponent was his heir-at-law, and after his death, Alexander, jr., being the eldest son, was his heir-at-law. Sworn and subscribed before Simeon Knight, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor of Louisiana, under the seal of the State.

Also, a deposition of Robert Fleming, formerly of Charleston, South Carolina, taken at Philadelphia March 4, 1823, stating that Alexander McCullaugh, jr., frequently mentioned to him that he was the heir of his uncle, Alexander, sr., who died at Pensacola intestate, and that the deponent was informed by other relations of the family of the same facts, and that the said Alexander, jr., showed him divers documents, duly authenticated in Ireland, proving that his father died intestate, and that he was the heir-at-law, or eldest son, of his father, William, who died intestate; that all the documents were authenticated in Ireland with a view of his taking possession of his uncle's lands in West Florida; and that the said Alexander, as deponent verily believes, became a citizen of the United States in South Carolina, as he could not carry on business on his own account as a merchant without; that some time thereafter he moved to Jacksonborough, where his house and all his papers were consumed by fire; and that, in 1803 or 1804, the said Alexander went out to Mississippi in search of his lands and lots, &c. Sworn to before Robert Wharton, mayor of the city of Philadelphia.

Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, taken in a suit in Mississippi, and certified from the records of that court, in which he states that Alexander McCullaugh, sr., died at Pensacola, without children, shortly after June, 1781, and that his brother, John Bay, was one of his administrators, and took possession of all his title papers, grants, &c., and carried them to South Carolina, and deposited them with the deponent for safe keeping; and that some time thereafter a young man, calling himself Alexander McCullaugh, arrived from Ireland, in consequence of letters written to him by the administrators of his deceased uncle, and called on deponent, and informed him that his father, the brother of Alexander, sr., had died intestate, and that he was the heir and nephew of Alexander, sr., deceased; and at the same time produced certificates and testimonials, all authenticated in such a manner, by competent tribunals in Ireland, as left no doubt on deponent's mind that the said Alexander, jr., was heir-at-law of Alexander, sr.; in consequence of which he gave him all his uncle's grants, deeds, &c., certified in due form.

The claim of H. H. B. Hays and John Duncan to the eastern half of lot No. 157, derived from Spanish title, is founded on a copy of mesne conveyance from José Maura, attorney in fact of Elena Gayarra, to the claimants, passed before Governor Callava, countersigned by Domingo Sausa and Joseph E. Caro, assistant witnesses, dated March 20, 1820. Also, an extract from the protocol, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, showing that Elena Gayarra purchased from Juan Galguera on June 1, 1810. Also, was produced by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, an original grant, or title in form, made to Galguera by the Intendant Morales, countersigned by Gutierrez de Arroyo, secretary, dated February 20, 1810.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said H. H. B. Hays and John Duncan proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed and a house erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 10.

A report of claims to four lots of ground in the city of Pensacola, (Nos. 96, 230, 265, and 266,) in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of David McCaleb, a citizen of the United States, for himself and the heirs and legal representatives of Alexander McCullaugh, deceased, to lots Nos. 96, 230, 265, and 266, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an extract from the indices of the British records of West Florida in the General Land Office of the United States, certified by John McLean, Commissioner thereof, showing that lots Nos. 96, 230, 265, and 266, were granted by letters patent from the British government to Montford Browne. Also, an original lease and release from the grantee to Alexander McCullaugh, dated November 2 and 3, 1775, for the said lots; acknowledged, recorded, and certified.

Also, a certified copy of a bill of sale, or deed of conveyance, from Alexander McCullaugh, nephew and heir-at-law of Alexander, sr., to David McCaleb, of the State of Mississippi, of one equal half part of all the lands and lots owned by Alexander, sr., in the former British province of West Florida, executed, acknowledged, and recorded in Mississippi Territory, dated February 5, 1813; certified and authenticated in due form from the records of Washington county, Mississippi.

Also, a deposition, taken before a justice of the peace in the city of New Orleans, of William McCullaugh, who saith that Alexander McCullaugh, the owner of various lands and lots in the former British province of West Florida, died at Pensacola, and that the father of the deponent was his heir-at-law, and after his death, Alexander, jr., being the eldest son, was his heir-at-law. Sworn and subscribed before Simeon Knight, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor of Louisiana, under the seal of the State.

Also, a deposition of Robert Fleming, formerly of Charleston, South Carolina, taken at Philadelphia on March 4, 1823, stating that Alexander McCullaugh, jr., frequently mentioned to him that he was the heir of his uncle, Alexander, sr., who died at Pensacola intestate, and that the deponent was informed by other relations of the family of the same facts, and that the said Alexander, jr., showed him divers documents, duly authenticated in Ireland, proving that his father died intestate, and that he was the heir-at-law, or eldest son, of his father, William, who died intestate; that all the documents were authenticated in Ireland with a view of his taking possession of his uncle's lands in West Florida, and that the said Alexander, as deponent verily believes, became a citizen of the United States in South Carolina, as he could not carry on business on his own account as a merchant without; that some time thereafter he removed to Jacksonborough, where his house and all his papers were consumed by fire; and that, in 1803 or 1804, the said Alexander went out to Mississippi in search of his lands and lots, &c. Sworn to before Robert Wharton, mayor of the city of Philadelphia.

Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, taken in a suit in Mississippi, and certified from the records of that court, in which he states that Alexander McCullaugh, sr., died at Pensacola, without children, shortly after June, 1781; and that his brother, John Bay, was one of his administrators, and took possession of all his title papers, grants, &c., and carried them to South Carolina, and deposited them with deponent for safe keeping; and that some time thereafter a young man, calling himself Alexander McCullaugh, arrived from Ireland, in consequence of letters written to him by the administrators of his deceased uncle, and called on deponent, and informed him that his father, the brother of Alexander, sr., had died intestate, and that he was the heir and nephew of Alexander, sr., deceased; and at the same time produced certificates and testimonials, all authenticated in such a manner, by competent tribunals in Ireland, as left no doubt on deponent's mind that the said Alexander, jr., was heir-at-law of Alexander, sr.; in consequence of which he gave him all his uncle's grants, deeds, &c., certified in due form.

The claim of Joseph Maria Mesa to the western half of lot No. 96, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on an original decree of concession made to the claimant by John Ventura Morales, intendant general, countersigned by John Morales and Vicente Ignacio Ramos, assistant witnesses, dated May 21, 1812.

Also, an original certificate of survey, executed and returned by Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general, dated July 7, 1812, reciting that, in obedience to the foregoing decree, he surveyed and measured for the claimant the western half of lot No. 96, situated on Cuna street, containing forty feet front on said street by 170 feet depth.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said claimant proved, by parol testimony, the authenticity of the title papers; that he enclosed the half of lot No. 96 soon after he obtained the grant, and that he built a frame house thereon about the end of the year 1812.

The claim of Antonio Montero to lot No. 230, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on an original grant from the Intendant Morales, countersigned by F. G. Arroyo, secretary, made to Antonio Montero, and bearing date February, 26, 1810.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Antonio Montero proves, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed and a house erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

The claim of Eugenio Antonio Sierra to lot No. 265, in the city of Pensacola, derived from a Spanish title, is founded on an original grant made by the Intendant Morales, countersigned by Secretary Arroyo, to Andres Cadet, dated March 24, 1812. Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from said Cadet to E. A. Sierra, passed before San Maxent, governor ad interim, and the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and Juan Villaverde, on April 12, 1812; certified, on the same day, to be a true copy by said Maxent and the same assistants.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Eugenio Antonio Sierra proves, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant; and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed and a house erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

The claim of Charles de Grandpre to lot No. 266, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish title, is founded on an original grant, or title in form, made to the claimant by the Intendant Morales, countersigned by F. G. Arroyo, secretary, and dated March 24, 1812.

In addition to the foregoing, the said Charles de Grandpre proves, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant; and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed within a year after it was granted to him, but never built on in consequence of its marshy situation.

All of which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 11.

A report of claims to a tract of land containing eight hundred arpents, situated forty-seven perches to the south of the suburb of the city of Pensacola, bounded with Galvez Spring, in the district of West Florida, claimed in part by titles emanating from the British government, and in toto by a claim emanating from the Spanish government, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the fourth section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Theodore Gaillard, Cornelia, his wife, formerly Cornelia Marshall, and Jane Marshall, citizens of the United States, to two hundred and fifty acres of land derived from the British government, is founded on—

A plat and certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from Montfort Browne, esquire, lieutenant governor of his Britannic Majesty's province aforesaid; certified August 28, 1768.

Also, an original patent, under the great seal, granted by the said Montfort Browne to William Marshall for the said land, on the usual conditions, dated December 15, 1768; signed, countersigned, and recorded.

Also, a certified copy of a deed of trust of William Marshall, sr., of all the lands, &c., son of the aforesaid William, to Theodore Gaillard, and for the benefit of Cornelia, his wife, and Jane Marshall, to which the said William was entitled in the province of West Florida, and upon trust and condition therein enumerated and expressed, dated November 2, 1803, with a schedule of the lands and lots thereunto annexed; certified to be a true copy by Charles S. Tucker, register, whose signature is authenticated by a certificate of the governor and secretary of South Carolina, under the great seal, dated September 19, 1822.

Also, a deposition of Elihu Hall Bay, duly certified and authenticated, stating that William Marshall, sr., was a staff officer in the British ordnance department, and resided in Pensacola until the province was surrendered to Spain; that, during this period, he had various grants of land made to him by the different British governors; that the deponent was well acquainted with William Marshall and his affairs, and, about the year 1781 or 1782, he left Pensacola, and went to South Carolina, and settled himself in the city of Charleston, and soon after became a citizen of said State; that the said William died several years afterwards, leaving a son named William, one of the judges of the State, who died some years ago, leaving two daughters, Cornelia, wife of Theodore Gaillard, and Jane Marshall; that William Marshall, sr., had a number of negroes in West Florida, and cultivated two tracts of land; and that he was in actual possession of several lots in Pensacola, on one of which he resided. Signed and sworn to before William S. Smith, clerk of the court of common pleas, whose signature and seal is accredited by the certificate of the presiding judge and governor of South Carolina, under their respective hands and seals.

Also, a deposition of John Black, stating that he resided some time in Pensacola, until the capture of that place by the Spaniards, and that he was well acquainted with William Marshall, who resided in his own house, situated about two lots distant from the corner of George street, leading to Fort George, and that the said Marshall owned many tracts of land in the vicinity of Pensacola and elsewhere in the province; and further saith, that the said William Marshall came to Charleston, with his family, where he became a citizen, and resided the remainder of his life. His family were, his son William, now dead, and his daughters Cornelia and Jane. Sworn to, certified, and authenticated as above.

The claim of William King, derived from the Spanish government, to eight hundred arpents of land, situated about forty-seven perches to the south of the suburb of the city of Pensacola, bounded with San Maxent's tract of land, and north with Galvez Spring, is founded on the following title papers and testimony exhibited in support thereof, to wit:

A copy of a plat and an original certificate, made by Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general, dated Havana, December 3, 1819, stating that the annexed plat is a true copy from the original attached to the original proceedings instituted by Thomas P. Rioboo, on October 8, 1819, and by a decree of the intendant and superintendent general of Havana, dated 26th of November last, an authenticated copy of the following proceedings were granted to said Rioboo. Signed and sealed as above.

Also, a copy of a certificate signed by Carlos Reggio, Pedro Reggio, José Noriega, Lewis Daunoy, and Santiago Dauphine, dated Pensacola, August 2, 1819, proving that Thomas P. Rioboo cultivated a tract of land at the place known by the name of Galvez Spring. Signed and dated as above.

Also, a copy of a petition signed by Rioboo, dated Havana, October 8, 1819, addressed to the intendant and superintendent general, setting forth that, on September 13, 1806, Don Juan Ventura Morales, intendant of the province of West Florida, ordered that a tract of land of eight hundred arpents, situated at Galvez Spring, should be surveyed and measured for Gregorio Artacho, having petitioned for the same, and afterwards conveyed to your petitioner, praying that, by the surveyor general, Vicente Sebastian Pintado, a certified copy of the said grant, or of the title in form, should be given to him.

Also, a copy of a decree of the intendant general, dated Havana, October 9, 1819, referring the proceedings to the fiscal.

Also, a copy of the fiscal's opinion, dated Havana, October 16, 1819, stating that the proceedings be referred to the surveyor general, Vicente Sebastian Pintado, to report according to the solicitude of the petitioner.

Also, a copy of a decree by the intendant general, dated Havana, October 16, 1819, stating that, in conformity with the fiscal's opinion, let the proceedings be referred to the surveyor general, Vicente Sebastian Pintado, for the report so required.

Also, a copy of a report made by Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general, dated Havana, October 29, 1819, in obedience to the foregoing decree, stating that, by decree of the intendant of the province of West Florida, dated September 13, 1806, there was granted and surveyed for Gregorio Artacho a tract of land situated in the contiguities of the town of Pensacola, containing twenty arpents front by forty in depth, at Galvez Spring, which original grant for the said land I have delivered at the secretary's office on the 29th of March last. Signed and dated as above.

Also, a copy of the fiscal's opinion, dated Havana, November 26, 1819, stating that, by reference to the report of the surveyor general, Vicente S. Pintado, and other documents hereunto annexed, it is proved that the concession of eight hundred arpents of land, made in the year 1806, by the intendant to Don Gregorio Artacho, (now the property of Thomas P. Rioboo,) is a lawful one, as made in the time qualified for, and by competent authority; in consequence of which he is of opinion that the said Rioboo can maintain the possession of the said land in virtue of the above statement and the loss of the original title papers, without interfering with a third person. (Signed) Figuero.

Also, a copy of a decree by the intendant general, dated Havana, November 26, 1819, ordering that an authenticated copy of the proceedings be granted to the petitioner; certified to be a true copy by José Noy, secretary of the royal hacienda, dated December 3, 1819. The signature of José Noy is accredited by Francisco Ayala, Manuel de la Torre, and Mauricio Parras Pita, notaries public of the city of Havana, dated December 3, 1819.

Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from Thomas P. Rioboo to the claimant, passed before William King, governor ad interim, countersigned by Miguel McKinsee, dated November 28, 1818, certified to be a true copy by Governor Callava, countersigned by Domingo Sausa and Thomas P. Rioboo, April 5, 1819.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said William King proved, by parol testimony, that Gregorio Artacho settled upon the above tract of land in the year 1806; that there were two small houses, and about six arpents cleared and enclosed; that he continued the cultivation about three or four years, and obtained the said tract of land by a grant of Morales.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 12.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 101, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the fourth section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to land within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 101, and the corresponding garden lot, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on a certificate of survey executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., governor and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, bearing date May 24, 1766, setting forth that he measured and laid out for Evan Jones, esq., lot No. 101, in the town of Pensacola, eighty feet front by three hundred and forty feet in depth, with the corresponding garden lot; certified November 10, 1766.

Also, an original patent granted to Evan Jones, esq., by Montfort Browne, esq., lieutenant governor in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, under the great seal; signed and certified by Alexander McLellan, deputy provost secretary, dated December 18, 1766, upon the usual conditions.

Also, a deposition of Thomas and David Urquhart, stating that they were acquainted with both Evan and James Jones, who formerly resided in West Florida while the same was a British province; that they were brothers; that James Jones died first, and that Evan became his heir. Deponents further say, that they know that Evan Jones is now also deceased; that said Evan Jones had two daughters, Maria and Lise; that the former was married to Bernard Marigny, of New Orleans, by whom she had two sons, Gustave and Prospere, and that she is now deceased, leaving said two sons; that the second daughter (Lise) of said Evan Jones is now the wife of Henry McCall, of the State of Louisiana. Sworn to and subscribed before L. M. Paney, justice of the peace, dated New Orleans, August 11, 1824, whose signature is accredited by Thomas Bolling Robertson, governor of the State of Louisiana, under seal of the State, dated August 12, 1824.

The claim of John Chabeaux to the above-mentioned lot No. 101, derived from Spanish title, is founded on an original grant, or title in form, made to Eufrosina Hinard by Governor Masot, countersigned by the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Cevallos, and dated December 6, 1817.

Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from Cirilo de Morant to the claimant, passed before Governor Masot and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Cevallos, March 10, 1818; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, April 7, 1823; which deed recites that Morant purchased of Eufrosina Hinard.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said John Chabeaux proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said lot above mentioned was enclosed and had a house erected upon it, in compliance with the conditions, within a year of the grant.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 13.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 43, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 43, and the corresponding garden lot, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on a certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general, pursuant to a warrant from his honor Montfort Browne, esq., lieutenant governor and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, bearing date December 23, 1767, stating that he surveyed for Alexander Carlisle a town lot No. 43, with the corresponding garden lot, having the usual front and depth; certified January 12, 1768.

Also, an original patent granted to Alexander Carlisle by Montfort Browne, esq., lieutenant governor and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, under the great seal; signed and certified by Daniel Clark, deputy provost secretary, dated January 26, 1768, upon the usual conditions.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to this claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of Manuel Joseph Penalbert to the above-mentioned lot No. 43, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of an act of sale from Augustin Ruiz to the claimant, executed before Governor San Maxent February 27, 1808; certified to be a true copy by Enrique de Grandpre, constitutional alcalde.

In addition to the foregoing title paper, the said Manuel Joseph Penalbert proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the title paper, and that in the year 1806 there was a small framed house and enclosure on said lot; that a large house was erected on it in 1807; that the said lot has been viewed as private property ever since, and was occupied by said Penalbert; and further saith not.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 14.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 85, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 85, and the corresponding garden lot, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

A certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, bearing date June 6, 1765, reciting that he surveyed and laid out for Richard Payne lot No. 85, in the town of Pensacola, with the corresponding garden lot, having the usual front and depth; certified August 19, 1765.

Also, an original patent granted to Richard Payne by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, under the great seal; signed and certified by Alexander McClellan, deputy provost secretary, dated September 26, 1765, upon the usual conditions.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to his claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of Joseph Noriega to the above-mentioned lot No. 85, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Louis Christian, attorney in fact for John Joyce, executor of Daniel Ward, to José Noriega, sen., executed before Governor White and the assistant witnesses, Benigno Garcia Calderon and Francisco Canedo, dated January 21, 1795; certified to be a true copy by Governor White, the same assistants, and on the same day.

Eugenio Lavalle, being sworn, saith that he has known lot No. 85 ever since the year 1781; that there was a framed house and other improvements then on it; that it has been considered private property ever since he knew it; and further saith not.

Henry Michelet, being sworn, saith that lot No. 85 has been respected as the property of Joseph Noriega ever since he first came to this place, seventeen years ago; that the family of Noriega has lived upon it since that period; that the improvements consist of a large framed dwelling-house, kitchen, &c.; and further saith not.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 15.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 198, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish Governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 198, in the city of Pensacola, and to corresponding garden lot, is founded on—

A certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., governor and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, bearing date January 21, 1766, setting forth that he surveyed and laid out for William Litch a town lot, No. 198, with the corresponding garden lot, having the usual depth and front; certified February 14, 1766.

Also, an original patent granted to William Litch by George Johnstone, esq., governor and commander-in-chief in and over his Majesty's province of West Florida, under the great seal; signed and certified by Alexander McLellan, deputy provost secretary, dated September 2, 1766, upon the usual conditions.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to this claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of John H. Howard to a part of the above lot, being fifty feet, fronting on Palafox street, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Charles Baron, attorney in fact of Alexander Baron, to William Devreux, agent of John H. Howard, passed before Governor Callava, and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Joseph E. Caro, November 2, 1819; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, October 16, 1823.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that Alexander Baron purchased of John de la Rua and Margarita Bonifay, July 15, 1818; that La Rua and Bonifay obtained the said lot by deed of gift from Mariana Bonifay, February 28, 1811; that Mariana Bonifay purchased of Manuel, January 21, 1811; that Manuel Bonifay purchased of Manuel Gonzales, February 15, 1806; that Gonzales purchased the whole of said lot of William Welber, August 28, 1802; that Welber purchased of Gerald Byrnes by an act of sale dated February 1, 1799. This deed recites that the said lot was granted to the said Byrnes, August 22, 1796.

The claim of John H. Howard to a part of the same lot, No. 198, being forty feet front on Palafox street, and eighty deep on Romana street, is founded on a copy of a mesne conveyance from John Brosnham to William Devreux, agent of John H. Howard, passed before Governor Callava and the assistant witnesses, Sausa and Joseph E. Caro, November 2, 1819; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, October 15, 1823.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that Brosnham purchased at public sale of the property of Augustine Lavack, September 16, 1819; that Lavack purchased of Mary Weaver, March 12, 1817; that Mary Weaver purchased of Manuel Gonzales, July 19, 1806; that Gonzales purchased of William Welber, August 28, 1802; that Welber purchased of Gerald Byrnes by an act of sale dated February 1, 1799, which recites that the said lot was granted to the said Byrnes, August 22, 1796.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said John H. Howard proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the title papers; and that there was a house and other improvements on lot No. 198 thirty-two years ago, which were occupied by an Englishman, who afterwards sold the same to Manuel Gonzales, who maintained possession of the said lot until he sold out to others.

The claim of Pedro Yniestra to a part of lot No. 198, being eighty-five feet front on Palafox street, is founded on a copy of a mesne conveyance from Manuel Gonzales to the claimant, passed before Richard I. Easter, acting alcalde, countersigned by Joseph E. Caro, and dated May 22, 1822; certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day. This deed recites that Manuel Gonzales purchased of William Welber, August 22, 1802.

NOTE.—See parol testimony adduced in support of the claim of John H. Howard, which likewise applies to this claim.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 89, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 89, and the corresponding garden lot, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an original deed of lease and release from Robert Collins to David Waugh for one-half of the town lot No. 89, and the half of the corresponding garden lot; signed, sealed, and delivered December 18, 1766.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from David Waugh to William Morrison for the same halves of the town and garden lots; signed, sealed, and delivered December 18, 1766.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from William Morrison to Evan and James Jones for the above-mentioned halves of the town and garden lots; signed, sealed, and recorded December 18, 1766.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from Peter Thompson to Robert Collins for the halves of the town and garden lots No. 89, dated November 26, 1766; signed, sealed, and delivered.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from Robert Collins to Evan and James Jones and Joseph Blackwell for the other halves, dated July 11 and 12, 1768; signed, sealed, and recorded in due form.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to this claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of Eugenio Antonio Sierra to the above-mentioned lot No. 89, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of a bill of sale executed by Governor Folch and the assistant witnesses, Matias Cervera and Francisco Xavier Navarro, dated July 9, 1804, in which he states that the above lot was sold on the 14th of June, same year, in obedience to a decree of the royal treasury, passed at New Orleans May 2, 1804, and was bidden off to Don Sierra for the sum of $330; certified to be a true copy by Governor Folch and the assistant witnesses July 9, 1804.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Eugenio Antonio Sierra proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 17.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 22, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 22, and the corresponding garden lot, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original deed of lease and release from William Aird to Evan and James Jones and Joseph Blackwell, dated August 12 and 13, 1768; signed, sealed, delivered, and recorded in due form.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to this claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of Eugenio Antonio Sierra to part of the above-mentioned lot No. 22, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Pedro Enrique to Eugenio Antonio Sierra, executed before Governor Folch and the assistant witnesses, Matias Cervera and Francisco Xavier Navarro, dated July 19, 1804, certified to be a true copy by Carlos Hernandez, Secretary of War, and acting as governor pro tem., February 12, 1807. This deed recites the original grant, dated July 14, 1804, and that the grantor purchased the said lot at auction on the same day, ordered by a decree of the royal treasury, passed at New Orleans, May 2, 1804.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Sierra proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said grant.

The claim of Turner Starke to a part of the above-mentioned lot No. 22, being twenty-six feet fronting on the bay, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Charles Deville to the claimant, acknowledged before William King, colonel of the 4th regiment of infantry, civil and military governor of West Florida; countersigned by James Scallan, secretary, July 3, 1818; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, December 30, 1822.

John de la Rue, being sworn, saith that he has seen the papers relative to the title of said piece of ground, amongst which was a grant to Charles Deville, made to him by Governor Folch; that Deville improved the same and occupied it in the year 1807, and from that time until 1811; and further saith that the grant included lot No. 21 and twenty-six feet of lot No. 22; and further saith not.

Eugenio Antonio Sierra, being sworn, saith that the said part of the lot was granted to Charles Deville by Governor Folch in the year 1805; and that the said Deville did not comply with the conditions of the grant; and further saith not.

The claim of Joseph Gagnet to part of the above-mentioned lot No. 22, in the city of Pensacola, fronting fifty-four feet on the bay by sixty-three feet in depth, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

An original mesne conveyance from Widow Gagnet to the claimant, acknowledged before John Miller, clerk of the county court for the county of Escambia, dated August 2, 1824.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, showing that Widow Gagnet purchased from Eugenio Lavalle, July 5, 1821; that Lavalle inherited the above lot from Pedro Bordenave, deceased, July 23, 1806; that Bordenave purchased from John Tourson, by act of sale passed before Governor Folch, countersigned by Matias Cervera and Francisco Xavier Navarro, assistant witnesses, February 13, 1806. This deed recites that the above lot was granted to Tourson by Governor Folch July 18, 1804.

Eugenio Lavalle, being duly sworn, saith that lot No. 22 was granted to John Tourson by Governor Folch in the year 1804, and that the said Tourson enclosed the said lot and built a frame house thereon within the year of the grant; and further saith not.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of claims to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 39, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to lot No. 39, in the city of Pensacola, and the corresponding garden lot, is founded on—

An original deed of release from the Hon. James Jones, esq., surviving executor of Anthony Forehand, deceased, Abraham Bates and Ann, his wife, late Anne Griffiths, executrix of the said Anthony Forehand, to the Hon. James Bruce, for the town and garden lots No. 39, dated November 9, 1773; signed, sealed, and acknowledged in due form, before Alexander McCullaugh, deputy secretary, November 20, 1773.

Also, an original reconveyance from James Bruce and Isabella, his wife, to James Jones, Abraham Bates and Anne, his wife, for the same town and garden lots, dated —, —, 1775; signed, sealed, and delivered.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to this claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of Solomon Siler to the abovementioned lot No. 39, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Cirilo Lessassier to the claimant, passed before William King, colonel 4th regiment United States infantry, civil and military governor of West Florida, and James Scallan, secretary, June 22, 1818; certified to be a true copy, by the same persons, June 23, 1818.

Also, was produced by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, an original grant, or title in form, made to Cirilo Lessassier by the intendant, Morales; countersigned by Arroyo, secretary, and dated March 20, 1811.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Solomon Siler proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the title papers, and that lot No. 39 was enclosed and had a framed house on it in the year 1812, which improvements were made by Cirilo Lessassier; and further saith not.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

The claim of Bernard Marigny, curator of his minor sons, Gustave and Prospere Marigny, Henry McCall, acting for and in behalf of his wife, Lise McCall, citizens of the United States, to quarter of lot No. 33, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original deed of lease and release from Bryce McCumming to James Stewart for the above quarter of lot, dated October 8 and 9, 1768; signed, sealed, and delivered.

NOTE.—See Thomas and David Urquhart's deposition, which likewise applies to this claim, in report No. 12.

The claim of William Pinchbeck to the whole of the above-mentioned lot No. 33, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

An original grant made to Orsino Bouligny by the intendant, Morales, countersigned by Francisco G. Arroyo, and dated May 2, 1811.

Also, an original private mesne conveyance from Enrique de Grandpre, attorney in fact of Carlos de Grandpre, to the claimant, dated July 17, 1819, attested by Francisco Moreno, Daniel Long, and Pedro de Alba.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that Carlos de Grandpre purchased of Vicente S. Pintado March 23, 1812; that Pintado purchased of Orsino Bouligny May 4, 1811.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said William Pinchbeck proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title papers, and that thirteen or fourteen years ago the said lot was enclosed and a framed house built thereon by order of Orsino Bouligny; and further saith not.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 199, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of James Scallan, a citizen of the United States, to lot No. 199, in the city of Pensacola, and the corresponding garden lot, is founded on an original deed of release from Charles Stuart, esq., to William Ogilvy and John Falconer, for said town and garden lots, dated August 11, 1778; signed, acknowledged, and recorded in due form; reciting that the same was granted to William Nackasson by his Majesty King George III, by letters patent, under the great seal of the province of West Florida, bearing date November 5, 1765; and further, that William Mathias, attorney in fact of the said William Nackasson, conveyed the said town and garden lots to Charles Stuart by certain indentures of lease and release bearing date March 22 and 23, 1768.

Also, an original private conveyance from Charles Roberts, attorney in fact of Alexander Livingston, heir and devisee of William Ogilvy, late of Pensacola, deceased, and surviving partner of the firm of Ogilvy & Falconer, to Abner L. Duncan, esq., of the city of New Orleans, attested by David B. Morgan and John Beaty, dated July 12, 1821.

Also, an original private conveyance from Abner L. Duncan to James Scallan, attested by David B. Morgan and John Beaty, dated July 13, 1821.

The claim of Daniel Duval to one-half of the town lot No. 199, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on an original decree of concession made to Martin de Madrid by Governor Folch for the whole lot, April 16, 1804.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, showing that Eugenio Antonio Sierra became the purchaser of one-half of the above lot at the sale of the estate of Martin de Madrid, September 1, 1815; that Sierra conveyed the same to William McVoy March 4, 1816; that McVoy conveyed to Carlton Cooper November 22, 1816.

Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from the said Cooper to Daniel Duval of said half lot, passed before Governor Masot and the assisting witnesses, Sausa and Cevallos, June 26, 1817; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, September 14, 1823.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Daniel Duval proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the grant, and that the said lot was enclosed and a frame house built thereon within a year of the grant by the original grantee.

The claim of William McVoy to the other half of the lot No. 199, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish title, is founded on an original decree of concession made to Martin de Madrid by Governor Folch April 16, 1804.

Also, the original testamentary proceedings of the estate of Martin de Madrid were produced from the public archives by Joseph E. Caro, keeper thereof, showing that the said half lot was sold as the property of the said Madrid, and purchased by William McVoy July 3, 1817.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 134, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 134, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an original certificate of survey executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province aforesaid; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original grant made to David Johnstone by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, upon the usual conditions, dated December 8, 1766; signed and countersigned under the great seal.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from David Johnstone to James Thompson, dated August 28 and 29, 1769; signed and delivered.

Also, an original deposition of Thomas Barclay, late his Britannic Majesty's consul general for the Eastern States of America, and at present his said Majesty's commissioner under the 5th article of the treaty of Ghent, stating that he was born in the city of New York, now a part of the United States of America, in the year 1753; that he was well acquainted with James Thompson, of the said city, merchant, and Catharine, his wife, from the year 1764 to the year 1775, and with the son and daughters of the said James Thompson and Catharine, his wife, to wit: with Jacob Thompson, the son; Mary Thompson, deceased, late the wife of Jacob Ricketts; Ann Thompson, who married Elbridge Gerry, late Vice President of the United States, deceased; and Catharine Thompson, who married Isaac Coles, all and each of whom were born in the said city of New York, and are native citizens of the United States. Sworn to and subscribed before John I. Irving, first judge of the court of common pleas for the city and county of New York, dated December 3, 1824.

Also, an original deposition of James Morris, stating that James Thompson, formerly a merchant of the city of New York, married a daughter of Jacob Walton, also merchant of the said city, and grandfather to this deponent; and that the said James Thompson, at the time of his decease, left several children, to wit: Ann, widow of the late Elbridge Gerry, who, at the time of his decease, was Vice President of the United States; and that the said Ann Gerry, formerly Ann Thompson, as this deponent is informed and believes, was born in the city of New York, and resides in Boston, in the State of Massachusetts; and this deponent further saith that the said James Thompson left another daughter, to wit, Catharine Coles, formerly Catharine Thompson, who, as this deponent is informed and believes, was born in the said city of New York, and who resides, as this deponent is informed, in the State of Virginia; and this deponent further saith that the said James Thompson left another daughter, to wit, Mary, who married Jacob Ricketts, and that the said Mary Ricketts, formerly Mary Thompson, is since dead; and this deponent further saith that he is informed and believes that the said Mary Ricketts, formerly Mary Thompson, at the time of her decease, left several children, to wit, William, George, Jacob, Elizabeth, Anna Maria, and Henrietta, and that they are, as this deponent is informed and believes, citizens of the United States; and this deponent further saith that Jacob Thompson is the only surviving son of the said James Thompson, and that the said Jacob Thompson, as this deponent is informed, resides at Bath, in the kingdom of Great Britain; and further this deponent saith not. Sworn to and subscribed before Smith Thompson, one of the judges of the supreme court of the United States of the State of New York, dated November 29, 1824.

Also, an original deposition of John Pintard, of the city of New York, stating that he is a resident of the said city, and has been such the greater part of his life; that he is aged sixty years and upwards; that he knew James Thompson, of the said city, merchant; that Mary Thompson, one of his daughters, was the wife of Jacob Ricketts, also of the said city of New York; that Jacob Ricketts, the husband of said Mary, had six children, to wit, William, George, Jacob, jr., Anna Maria, Elizabeth, and Henrietta; that the said Jacob Ricketts resided with his family a great part of his life in the said city, and that all of the said children above named are citizens of the United States, to the best of the knowledge, recollection, and belief of this deponent. Sworn to and subscribed before Samuel D. Craig, of the State of New York, a commissioner to take affidavits, and dated December 8, 1824.

The claim of Severino Palao to the above lot No. 134, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish title, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Eloisa Marcos, executrix of Adelaida Chapron, deceased, passed before Governor Zuniga, countersigned by Domingo Sausa and Joseph Cevallos, assistant witnesses, dated July 23, 1816; certified to be a true copy by Henrique de Grandpre, constitutional alcalde, countersigned by Luis Daunoy and Sebastian Caro, assistant witnesses, July 14, 1821.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, stating that Adelaida Chapron purchased the said lot and buildings thereon from John Forbes September 23, 1809.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Severino Palao proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title papers.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 24.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 205, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 205, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original certificate of survey executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general, &c., certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original patent made to James Thompson by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, under the great seal, countersigned by Alexander McLellan, deputy provost secretary, dated November 10, 1766, upon the usual conditions.

Note.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of Joseph Bonifay to the above lot No. 205, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Louis Gayarre to the claimant, passed before H. M. Brackenridge, alcalde and notary public, countersigned by Joseph E. Caro, dated October 1, 1821; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, notary public, and charged with the archives, dated August 22, 1822.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, stating that Joseph Bonifay purchased from Louis Gayarre January 15, 1819. This deed recites that Gayarre purchased from Francisca Albert, widow Rafael Ramos, by private act of sale, April 1, 1818.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Joseph Bonifay proved, by parol testimony, that lot No. 205 was granted to Rafael Ramos by Governor Folch in the year 1804 or 1805, and that the said lot was enclosed and a frame house built thereon by the said Ramos.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 25.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 56, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of Jacob Thompson, citizen of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 56, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an original certificate of survey executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province aforesaid; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original patent granted by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, to Jacob Thompson, dated December 8, 1766; signed and countersigned under the great seal.

Note.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of Santiago Colman to the northern half of the above lot No. 56, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on a copy of a mesne conveyance from Joaquin Barela to the claimant, passed before Governor Folch and the assistant witnesses, Mathias Cervera and Francisco Xavier Navarro, August 29, 1815; certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day. This deed recites that a house on the said lot is likewise conveyed.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which shows that Barela purchased of William McVoy, August 21, 1805; that McVoy purchased of John Innerarity, January 16, 1804; that Innerarity purchased of Francisco Duverges, by an act of sale passed before Governor Howard and the assistant witnesses, Cervera and Navarro, January 16, 1804. This deed recites that the whole of the said lot was granted to the said Duverges by Baron de Carondelet, governor general of Louisiana, February 24, 1796.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Santiago Colman proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers attached to the said title papers, and that the said lot No. 56 was enclosed anterior to the grant of the same to Francisco Duverges by William Panton.

The claim of Joseph Roche to the southern half of the above lot No. 56, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on a copy of a mesne conveyance from William McVoy to the claimant, passed before Governor Howard and the assistant witnesses, Mathias Cervera and Francisco Xavier Navarro, January 17, 1804; certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that William McVoy purchased of John Innerarity January 16, 1804, and that Innerarity purchased of Francisco Duverges January 16, 1804.

NOTE.—Vide the above testimony adduced in support of the claim of Santiago Colman, which likewise applies to this claim.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

No. 26.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 80, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 80, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on an original certificate of survey executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's said province; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original grant made to Hamilton Young by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, dated December 8, 1766; signed and countersigned under the great seal.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from Hamilton Young to James Thompson, dated August 29 and 30, 1769; acknowledged and recorded in due form.

NOTE.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of Josefina Granpera to the above lot No. 80, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Charles Lavalle to Josefina Granpera, executed before H. M. Brackenridge, alcalde, and Joseph E. Caro, July 16, 1822; certified to be a true copy by the said Brackenridge.

Also, an extract from the public archives, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper thereof, which states that said Lavalle purchased of Joseph Verignon November 29, 1821; that the said Verignon purchased at public auction, as the property of John McGonnegal, November 2, 1821; that McGonnegal purchased of Genevieve Dubuisson Baldiras, attorney in fact of Vincente Sebastian Pintado, August 14, 1819; that said Pintado purchased of James Wilson August 19, 1816; that said Wilson purchased of Charles Lavalle April 24, 1815; that said Lavalle purchased of Panton, Leslie & Co., by act of sale duly authenticated, dated April 1, 1803, in which it is recited that said lot was granted to said Panton, Leslie & Co. April 16, 1796, by the Baron de Carondelet, governor of Louisiana and West Florida.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Josefina Granpera proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the title papers, and that the said lot was enclosed and two small frame houses built thereon by William Panton in the year 1797 or 1798.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 79, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity with the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 79, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Majesty's province; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original grant made to Robert Ross Waddle by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, upon the usual conditions, dated December 8, 1766; signed and countersigned under the great seal.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from Robert Ross Waddle to James Thompson, dated September 14 and 15, 1767; acknowledged and recorded in due form.

NOTE.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of John Brosnham to the above lot No. 79, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Ana O'Connor, widow Gray, to the claimant, passed before William King, colonel of the 4th regiment of United States infantry, and temporary governor, and Michael McKinzie, secretary, January 14, 1819; certified to be a true copy on the 25th of the same month. This deed recites that the widow Gray purchased of John Innerarity, attorney in fact of John Forbes & Co., October 18, 1811.

Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from John Innerarity, executor of the widow Trouillet, to John Forbes & Co., passed before Governor Folch and the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and Antonio Montes de Oca, July 18, 1809; certified to be a true copy by the same persons August 4, 1809; conveying likewise a frame house thirty-four feet square on the said lot; said lot having been sold by the said executor at public auction.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said John Brosnham proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title papers.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 135, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lot No. 135, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original certificate of survey executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., governor and commander-in-chief in and over his Majesty's province aforesaid; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original patent made to Abraham Walton by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, upon the usual conditions, dated December 8, 1766; signed and countersigned by Alexander McLellan, deputy provost secretary, under the great seal.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from Abraham Walton to James Thompson, dated June 1, 1769; signed and acknowledged, and recorded in due form.

NOTE.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of Pedro Senac to one-half of the above lot No. 135, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Vicente Crespo, attorney in fact of John Domingues, to the claimant, passed before Governor Howard and the assistant witnesses, Barrios and Navarro, August 27, 1806; certified to be a true copy by Governor Maxent, Sausa and Montes de Oca, assistant witnesses, May 8, 1809.

In addition to the foregoing title paper, the said Pedro Senac proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title paper, and that about the year 1789 there was a building on the said lot, which was built by John Domingues, and that it has been occupied as private property ever since.

The claim of Maria Vellon to the other half of lot No. 135, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Estevan Adam to the claimant for the above half lot and buildings thereon, passed before Governor Collell, countersigned by Domingo Sausa and Juan Villaverde, dated January 5, 1811; certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day. This deed recites that Estevan Adam purchased the same from Maria Lafrang December 7, 1809.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said Maria Vellon proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title paper.

NOTE.—Vide documentary and parol proof adduced in support of the claim of Pedro Senac, which likewise applies to this claim.

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 254, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original certificate of survey, executed by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Majesty's province aforesaid; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original grant made to James Thompson by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and commander-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, under the usual conditions; signed and countersigned under the great seal, and dated November 10, 1766.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from James Thompson to David Johnstone, dated November 13 and 14, 1767; signed, acknowledged, and recorded in due form.

Also, an original deed of lease and release from David Johnstone to James Thompson for the said town and garden lots No. 254, dated August 28 and 29, 1769; signed, acknowledged, and recorded in due form.

NOTE.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of John de la Rua to the above lot No. 254, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

An original grant from the intendant, Morales, made to Joseph de la Pena, countersigned by Francisco G. Arroyo, secretary, dated March 24, 1812.

Also, a copy of a mesne conveyance from said Pena to John de la Rua, executed before Governor Masot and the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and José Cevallos, December 2, 1817; certified to be a true copy by Masot and the same assistants on the day of the execution thereof.

In addition to the foregoing title papers, the said John de la Rua proved, by parol testimony, the signatures of the Spanish officers annexed to the said title papers, and that between the years 1812 and 1814 the said lot was enclosed and a small framed house built upon it; ever since which period the said lot has been considered private property.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

A report of a claim to a lot of ground in the city of Pensacola, No. 81, and the corresponding garden lot, in the district of West Florida, by titles emanating from the British and Spanish governments, with an abstract of the evidence reported in conformity to the provision of the 4th section of the act of Congress approved May 8, 1822, entitled "An act for ascertaining the claims and titles to lands within the Territories of Florida," by the undersigned commissioners, to wit:

The claim of the heirs of James Thompson, citizens of the United States, to the above town and garden lots No. 81, in the city of Pensacola, is founded on—

An original certificate of survey made by Elias Durnford, surveyor general of the province of West Florida, pursuant to a warrant from his excellency George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Majesty's province of West Florida; certified June 23, 1766.

Also, an original grant made to Robert Thompson by George Johnstone, esq., captain general and governor-in-chief in and over his Britannic Majesty's province of West Florida, upon the usual conditions, dated December 8, 1766; signed and countersigned under the great seal.

NOTE.—Vide depositions of Thomas Barclay, James Morris, and John Pintard, copied in report No. 23.

The claim of Domingo Torri to one-fourth of the above lot No. 81, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Joseph Tello to the claimant, passed before Governor Collell, and the assistant witnesses, Domingo Sausa and Juan Villaverde, October 16, 1810; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, notary public, and charged with the public archives, August 23, 1822. This deed recites that the said Tello purchased of John Domingues March 22, 1810.

In addition to the foregoing title paper, the said Domingo Torri proved, by parol testimony, that John Domingues built a house on lot No. 81, and enclosed it more than twenty years ago, which house was afterwards consumed by fire; that the said Domingues held possession of the said lot three or four years; that there are buildings at present on the lot, and that it has been in the possession of those claiming under said Domingues ever since.

The claim of Ana Maestre to one-half of the above lot No. 81, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Louis Maestre to the claimant, passed before Enrique de Grandpre, constitutional alcalde, and the assistant witnesses, Louis Douney and Sebastian Caro, March 22, 1822; certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, January 2, 1823.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true copy by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that Maestre purchased the said half lot at a public sale of the estate of Domingo Salas, deceased, October 18, 1820; that Salas purchased of Francisco Bonal August 25, 1818; that Bonal purchased of Domingo Salas, executor of Dalmacio Salas, on the day last aforesaid; that Dalmacio Salas purchased of Vicente Crespo, attorney in fact of John Domingues, May 11, 1805.

NOTE.—See the foregoing claim for proof of the performance of conditions.

The claim of the legal representatives of John Keyser, deceased, to one-fourth of the above lot No. 81, in the city of Pensacola, derived from Spanish titles, is founded on—

A copy of a mesne conveyance from Francisco Garriga and Alfonso Salas, attorneys in fact of Joseph Gomez, to John Keyser, passed before Enrique de Grandpre, constitutional alcalde, and the assistant witnesses, Louis Dounoy and Sebastian Caro, May 1, 1821; certified to be a true copy by the same persons on the same day.

Also, an extract from the protocols, certified to be a true one by Joseph E. Caro, keeper of the public archives, which states that Joseph Gomez purchased of James Barcelo December 15, 1815; that Barcelo purchased of the estate of Manuel Camps December 15, 1815; that Camps purchased of Francisco Simon May 23, 1815; that Simon purchased of Vicente Crespo, attorney in fact of John Domingues, by an act of sale passed before Governor Folch August 8, 1804.

NOTE.—See the claim of Domingo Torri for proof of the performance of condition.

In the year 1795 or 1796 Governor Folch laid out a town between a quarter and a half mile from the fort of Barrancas, and on the same side of the entrance into the bay of Pensacola. It is in evidence before us that it was his intention to have removed the city of Pensacola to that place, but was probably prevented from doing so in consequence of a failure to obtain the ratification of the King. His sanction seems to have been indispensable, from an examination of the proceedings touching the alteration and sale of the public square by the cabildo. Representations are said to have been made to his Catholic Majesty, in opposition to the measure, by the citizens of Pensacola, but whether any reply was ever received we have been unable to learn.

All these claims are founded on mesne conveyances, the original permits being lost, as stated in our reports upon abstracts A and E. We have, however, had access to one of them. From an examination of it, and the parol testimony exhibited to this board, it appears that there never was anything more given by Governor Folch than permits to improve and occupy the lots, intending to give them grants whenever the plan should be approved by the King. In one of these mesne conveyances the grantor recites "that he conveys the improvements on said lot, and, should he obtain the grant, conveys thereby the lot also;" whilst in other cases the improvements and lots were transferred in the proper offices; thus, it would seem, recognizing a property in the lots.

These lots have been improved as other gratuities, and in all of them the deraignement is complete. The mesne conveyances recite the names of the original claimants, as well as the fact of improvements having been made, without giving the date, in some instances, at which they were made. We have, in such cases, dated the improvements from that of the mesne conveyances.

The lots embraced in this class are within musket shot of Fort Carlos de Barrancas; and if the claimants are considered as having a title to them, we presume it could be only upon the condition that they should be subject to all the restrictions imposed by the laws and usages of Spain relative to lands contiguous to forts and fortifications. As we have been unable to obtain access to the laws upon this subject, we have considered it most proper, both for the United States and the claimants, that we should report the cases for the final determination of Congress.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

These lots purport to have been sold by the constitutional ayuntamiento in 1813, and by Governor Masot in 1817. Most of the latter lie in the rear of Romana street, within the alteration of the suburbs of the city made by Intendant Morales in 1807 and 1808, by which the garden lots upon the British plan were converted into arpent and building lots.

From an examination of the original proceedings relative to these sales, we find a dictamen of Governor Masot, dated December 2, 1817, reciting that he had convoked the junta of royal hacienda, and that it was ordered that the King's houses and lots in the town of Pensacola, and in the suburb thereof, be exposed to sale at public auction. Also, a decree of said governor, dated February 4, 1818, stating that, a number of persons who had purchased at the public sale aforesaid not having paid the amount of their purchase money, advertisements be set up in the most public places notifying them that unless they came forward within three days and complied with the conditions of the sale, the said lots would be adjudged to others who petitioned for the same. Also, a decree of said Masot, dated February 7, 1818, setting forth that the prolongation allowed by the foregoing decree of the 4th instant had elapsed, declaring the sales made to those who had not complied with the conditions, nor availed themselves of the indulgence thereby extended, null and void, and that the said lots be adjudicated to others who might petition for them at the price at which they were originally sold.

In some cases deeds and certificates of sale were given to the parties as evidence of title; in others their claims are founded alone upon the original proceedings relative to the sales, which show that the lots were stricken off to the claimants at various prices, or were afterwards adjudicated to them in consequence of the original vendees failing to pay the purchase money in compliance with the conditions of the sales. The certificates were granted when the party applied for them and paid the price at which the lots were sold; and in them was uniformly an acknowledgment of the receipt of the money. The original proceedings, in some instances, show that the purchase money was paid where no certificates were issued, which we have supposed should be received as conclusive. Where no such proof is exhibited the presumption must be that the payment has never been made.

The claims embraced in this class have been rejected from various considerations. Some were believed to be antedated or fraudulent; in other cases the purchase or adjudication was made and the certificates of sale issued subsequent to January 24, 1818. Even where the purchase or adjudication was completed prior to, and the certificates were given after, the limitation, we did not consider ourselves authorized, under the acts of Congress, to give them confirmation.

In our abstract we have been particular in giving both the date of the certificates and that at which the purchase or adjudication was made. We have also stated in our column of general remarks the cases in which the payment of the purchase money appears not to have been acknowledged in any of the documents within our possession. The claims rejected from a belief that they are antedated or fraudulent are clearly identified in the same part of our abstract. Except the two last-mentioned claims, we have no doubt that the titles included in this abstract are bona fide, and ought to be confirmed. Under such circumstances the claimants have at least an equity to sustain their titles, and we cannot hesitate to recommend them to Congress for their confirmation.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

The above claims are in that part of the city of Pensacola commonly called the plaza, or public square, lying between Alcanis and Palafox streets on the east and west, and New street on the north, according to the Spanish plan of Pensacola, and between George and Charlotte streets in the British plan of the same.

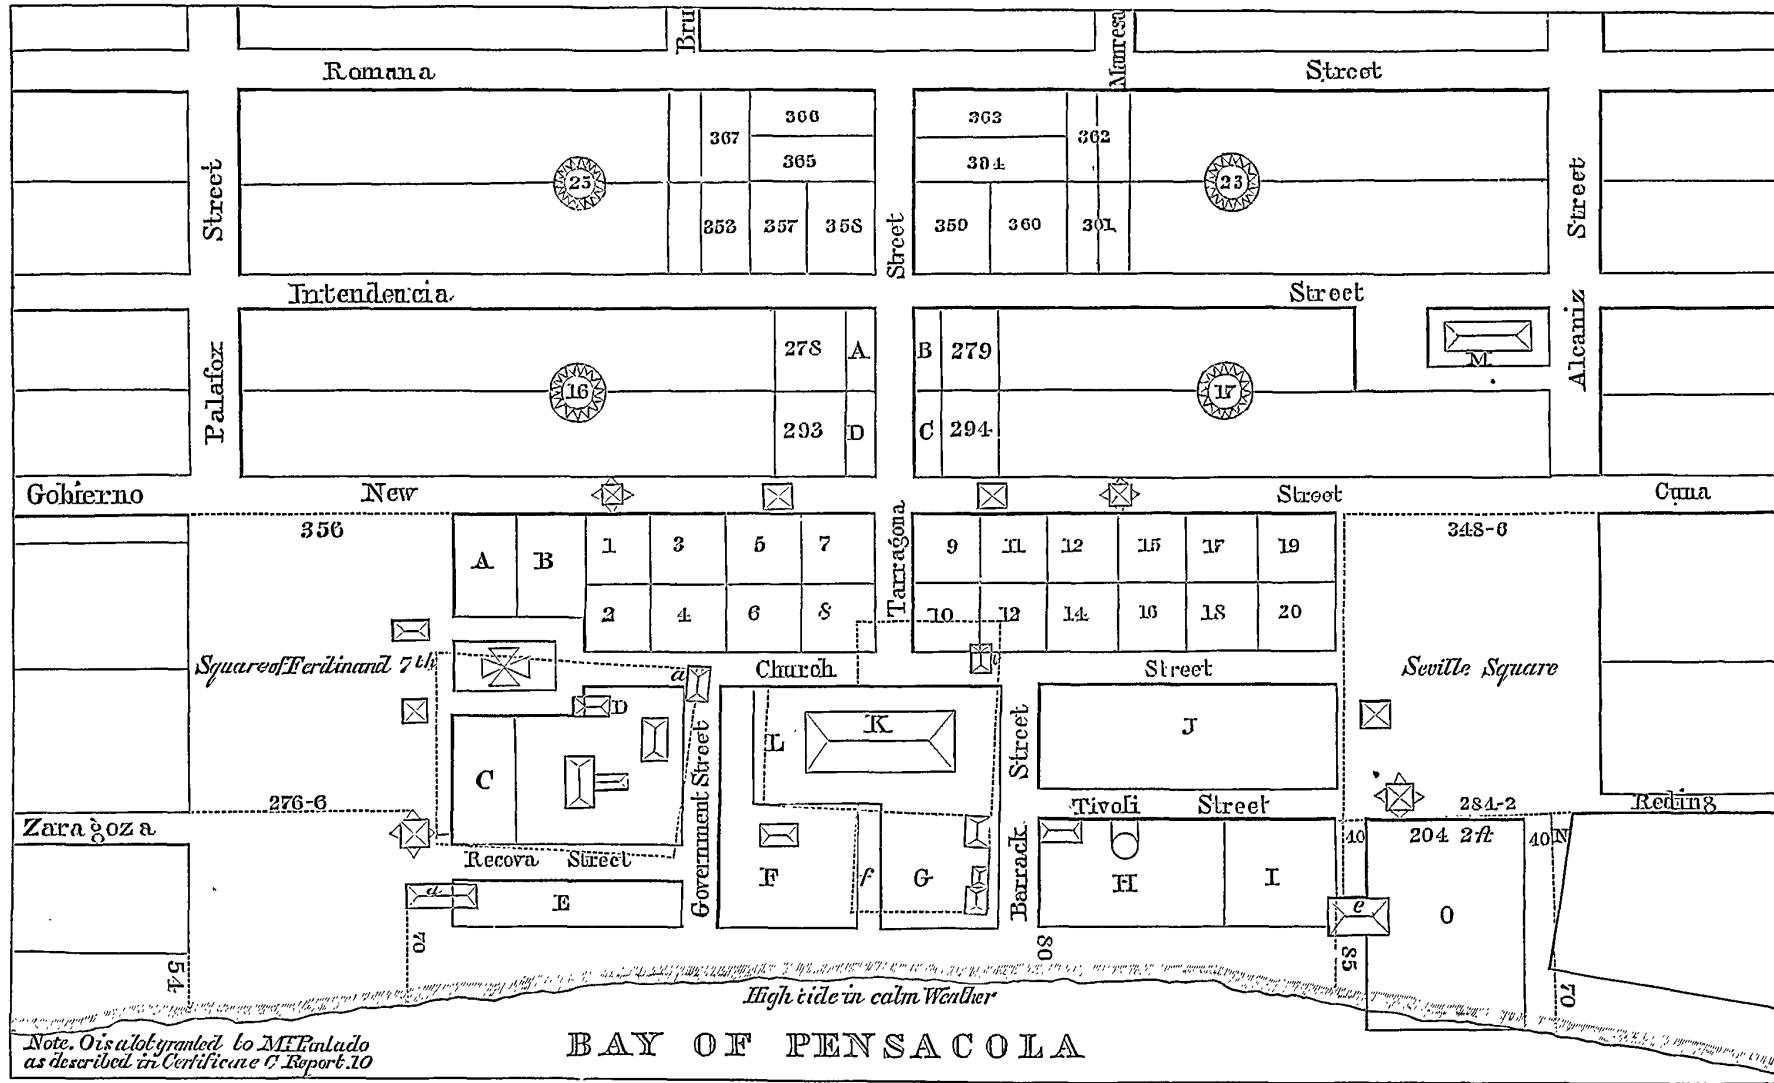

The undersigned commissioners, aware of the deep interest that is felt by the individual claimants, as well as the municipal authorities, in the decision which must be given upon the validity of these claims, have entered upon their examination with the reluctance and diffidence which their importance and difficulties have imposed, and with the deliberate consideration which the various questions of national, municipal, and local law involved in their decision require, so far as they had access to any information on the subject.

The town of Pensacola was founded by the Spaniards in the year 1696. When the Spanish and French governments were contending for colonial aggrandizement in America, it was taken by the French and retaken by the Spaniards; but whether it was only a military post or a regular town it is difficult to determine from any information within our reach. It is presumed, however, that during these changes and revolutions no regular plan of the town was formed until it came into the possession of the British government by the treaty of 1763; and whether there was an act of incorporation or not made under the directions of the Board of Trade and Plantations, or the local authorities, is a question of equal uncertainty. From the records in our possession it is evident that there was a regular plan made under the British government, with a large public square and other reserves, and all the town and garden lots granted to individuals according to that plan; and during the period that the British government exercised jurisdiction and sovereignty over these provinces there was no grant to any part of the public square, and no buildings erected thereon, except those for public and common purposes.

The most important question involved in the consideration of the subject is, in what light was the public square viewed by the British government, and what right did Spain acquire under the conquest in 1781, and the subsequent treaty of cession in 1783? It is evident from the British plan of Pensacola and the records that the above-mentioned portion of the town was yet a part of a common to the town, which could not be intruded upon or reduced to private property without manifest injury to the individual grantees and purchasers contiguous thereto. It is believed that under the common law of England a public square in a town and city could not be granted by the sovereign any more than a street or highway; and it has been settled by repeated adjudications, both in that country and in the United States, that any power or privilege contained in an act of incorporation cannot be repealed by a subsequent act of Parliament or legislature without the insertion of a special clause conferring that authority. That there was a charter or act of the local legislature for the establishment of the town there can be no doubt, and laid out by the surveyor general of the province in conformity thereto. That the British authorities considered that no part of the square thus laid off in the general plan could be granted is conclusively demonstrated by the circumstance that during the twenty years they occupied the place no portion of it was appropriated to individual uses. Whether there was an act of incorporation in addition to the one establishing the town would not materially affect the main question above stated, or lessen the force of the vested rights of the contiguous grantees and purchasers, as well as the community, in their privilege of ingress and egress upon that part of the town appropriated for the common benefit of the whole, and acquiesced in by an uninterrupted continuity of possession for twenty years.

Property, as defined by writers on general and national law, is either public, common, or private; and although the sovereign can appropriate private property for public uses by making a fair compensation to the individual owner, it arises from the principle recognized by all governments, that individual rights must bend to the pressing exigency of a whole community; but when a resort of that kind is made, it is not by arbitrary compulsion, but by giving an ample indemnity and equivalent for the property thus appropriated, and in such cases all that the sovereign does is to compel a relinquishment of his possessions for a fair price. It is said by Blackstone and De Lolme, on the British constitution, that none but the sovereign or legislature can exercise this power. The right which a community enjoy in a public highway or public square is as perfect as any right of private property secured by law. It follows, necessarily, that where a right of common is established it cannot be taken away without the consent of the owners, or without indemnification for the injuries they sustain. They can, at any time, voluntarily surrender their privileges and rights in favor of the sovereign, and their alienation would make it public property and subject to the disposition of the sovereign authorities wherever they may be lodged. That the inhabitants of the town and the contiguous grantees had a common interest and right in the public square of the town there can be but little doubt, and this right they cannot be deprived of without their free consent or a fair equivalent. Upon the principle above stated, an alteration of the square between a front proprietor and the bay would materially injure the price of his property, obstruct a free circulation of air, and destroy his prospect—privileges for which he may have paid much more than he would have done had he anticipated the alteration—and render his position less valuable for business. Any alteration of that kind without his consent would be a serious injury to his right of property without remuneration, and upon the principle above stated could not legally be done.

The next inquiry is, what change did the conquest of this province, in the year 1781, make in the existing rights of individuals? It is believed to be a well-established principle of the laws of nations that a sovereign can alienate any portion of his domain without a provision in favor of individual rights, by making compensation, which grows out of the paramount right, denominated the right of eminent domain. Of the propriety of this principle it is needless here to enter into any discussion. The conqueror would enforce the position at the point of the bayonet, and the conquered must submit. This place having been captured by the Count de Galvez, such conditions might have been imposed on the inhabitants; but in the articles of capitulation, and subsequently in the treaty of cession, a provisional reservation of the rights of British grantees was made. These were permitted to sell within a limited period. The purchasers from the conquered inhabitants, in whose favor such indulgence had been given by treaty, succeeded to all the rights and privileges which they enjoyed, and among others the right of common. The plan of the town remained unaltered for twenty years under the Spanish government, during which period her own subjects acquired rights, contiguous to the square, of the same character as those which existed in the British grantees, and no alteration was thought of until the mines of Mexico ceased to pour their floods of gold into the coffers of the provincial government, when the hungry rulers began to devise ways and means, at any sacrifice, to fill their exhausted and decayed treasury. They soon forgot the res communes, and the distinction de divisione rerum during this period. However, permits were granted in one or two instances to erect temporary improvements, by officers of the garrison, to those who wished to supply the garrison or town with marketing, &c., which is a common practice under the Spanish government in the vicinity of forts, where they are forbidden by law to grant titles of property. These permits are presumed to have been of that character, with special clauses to that effect, and conferring usufructuary rights only.

The first alteration of the square was projected by Governor Folch y Juan in 1802, and the most of the lots granted in the year 1804 and 1805. The alteration was of that part most remote from the bay and lying between the streets east and west before mentioned, and between Intendencia and New streets, a continuation of Government street on the north and south, and contained thirty-three lots. Folch, at the same time, contemplated a removal of the town of Barrancas. In 1806, when the intendant and superintendent general, Morales, arrived here, he disapproved of the project, and refused to confirm the titles given by Folch, as also to concede the ungranted lots, (vide title of Caso y Luengo,) but decreed that the grantees should remain in possession until the decision of his Majesty should be known. Whether it ever received the royal sanction we are unable to determine; but several years afterwards Morales granted some of those lots. The arguments above stated would equally apply to this alteration, but it was the duty of those interested, whose rights and privileges were invaded by this proceeding, to have prosecuted their rights under the Spanish government by petition or suit. Their failure to do so is an acquiescence and presumed consent of the community and municipal authorities, which, combined with the ratification of the intendant, as is evidenced by his granting the lots, the long possession of the claimants, their undisturbed possession for twenty years, place those claims in a different point of view from the sales of the cabildo. The commissioners will do what the authorities of Spain could legitimately perform; and as these lots have been improved and occupied for that length of time with the consent of the officers of the government, the local authorities, and the contiguous grantees, although there might have been an original defect of power, they will give confirmation to them. The laws of all well-regulated societies make a distinction between long-established and prescriptive rights and those undetermined and in fieri. Even usages which are sanctified by immemorial practice assume the character of law. The recent plan under the constitutional government, however, has none of those sanctions; it is res integra; the Spanish authorities have never approved it; and the United States are now required to do what Spain would have done had not the sovereignty been transferred. What Spain would have done can only be ascertained by her laws and ordinances; for we must presume that those only are the rules by which every government is regulated.

The water fountains, the places where fairs and markets are held, where the city councils meet, the sandy places on the banks of rivers, belong separately to the commons of cities and towns, because they have been appropriated and granted for the common use of each city, town, castle or other place.—(Partidas, tit. 28, l. 9.) The same work, tit. 5, l. 15, upon the subject of sale and purchase, declares that “public squares, roads, threshing grounds, rivers, and other waters which belong to the King, or the commons of any city, cannot be sold or alienated.” Title 32, law 23, provides that “no one ought to erect a house or other building or works on the public places, or threshing grounds or roads, which are common to cities, towns, or other places; for, as they are left open for the sake of regularity and the common good of all who come there, no one ought to take possession of them to labor there for his own particular benefit.” And if any one contravenes this law, that which he builds there ought to be pulled down and destroyed; and if the corporation of the place where the works are constructed choose to retain them for their own use, and not pull them down, they may do so; and they may make use of the revenue derived therefrom in the same manner as of any other revenue they possess.”

According to Vattel, b. 1, c. 20, s. 245–6, the eminent domain confers on the sovereign barely the power to regulate the manner in which common property is to be used. He cannot alienate or take away the right of those who have a share in that property, but the care he ought to take, as the trustee and guardian of the public repose, invests him with the power to prescribe laws regulating the manner in which common things are to be enjoyed. The exercise of a different power would place this species of property upon the ground occupied by that of a public nature, and destroy every feature which would indicate its being held and enjoyed in common. The idea inseparably connected with this description of property is, that it shall not be reduced to severality, unless with the consent of all interested. All have a right to a free use and servitude in it. The sovereign cannot alone alienate it, but is bound, as the protector of his subject's rights, to prevent any one, either by alienation or otherwise, from usurping more of the common use and servitude than that to which he is justly entitled; or disturbing any other in the use of it, or rendering it less fit for public purposes. He is obliged to see that this common use is in no way injured or impaired by excluding any one, or making a distinction to his disadvantage, by assigning some less, and others more, than they could rightfully claim.

This incontestably proves that the civil law of Spain was as explicit on the subject as that of the common law of England. The reference made to the work entitled “Recopilacion de las Leyes de las Indies,” in the proceedings instituted to obtain a ratification of the alteration of the square by the constitutional ayuntamiento, has been examined with great care, and by no means will bear the construction endeavored to be given it. This appears also to have been the opinion of the commandant of engineers. It does not confer any authority to alter a square already made, but directs the manner in which squares shall be laid off, referring, of course, to the future.

We have already remarked that the squares of cities, which are considered in the light of common property, can only be altered by the concurrence of all the parties concerned. The citizens or corporation must legally consent, as well as the sovereign, who stands in the attitude of a trustee. In the case now before us, the citizens present themselves in opposition to the measure, and we have no evidence that his Catholic Majesty ever acceded to it, which seems to have been indispensable from the proceedings instituted to effect its ratification. Anastacio de Arango, commander of engineers, reports that the case is “full of obstacles,” and should be submitted to the supreme government. He also intimates, if we understand him, that the powers of the cabildo, both under the constitution and decrees of the King, relate to the sale of lands only. On April 13, 1814, speaking of the new plan of the cabildo, he says: “I never believed it could be possible they could interfere with the royal buildings, as such decisions have no connexion with those which ought to belong to the constitutional ayuntamiento.” The surveyor general and minister of finance of West Florida approve of the alteration, to whom no difficulty was presented. However, the King's attorney at Havana, to whom no reference appears to have been regularly made by the intendant, reports inconveniences in the case, and suggests that it should be reported to his Majesty. Under the constitution, it should have been forwarded to the provincial deputation, to be approved by the Cortes; but whether this was ever done or not, or what was the result, we have been unable to learn.

Upon a careful examination of these proceedings, it seems that, in addition to the difficulty growing out of the square being common property, it was considered as a military square, with which the cabildo could not interfere, agreeable to the opinion of the commandant of engineers. The director of engineers, in his communication to Apodaca, captain general of Cuba, after protesting against varying the position of the military buildings by the new plan of the cabildo, says: "As little could they sell or dispose of either the whole or a part of the King's lots without his sovereign consent; so that I conceive the whole ought to revert to the same situation in which it was before any such innovation took place." In this opinion Apodaca concurs, unless it should be attended with prejudicial consequences, in which event he would represent the case to his Majesty. José de Soto, governor of West Florida, after an examination of the whole proceedings, had previously decreed that "there was no authority by which the plan of the town could be altered so as even to interfere with the military buildings," and prohibited all improvements upon the lots sold upon the new plan until the decision of his Majesty should be known.

From a view of the whole case, the undersigned commissioners cannot believe that the alteration of the public square by the cabildo, or the gratuitous concessions, were authorized by law, but with due deference submit the case to the decision of Congress. If we have been right in considering it as common property, and were to confirm the claims to the lots, it would amount to nothing more than giving the assent of the government to the new plan as the trustee of the citizens of Pensacola. The claim of the citizens would still be open to investigation before the judicial tribunals. Should it be viewed in the light of a military square, it is submitted how far it becomes public property, to the alteration of which the commandant of engineers, to whom it was properly referred, never consented; on the contrary, he reported against it as illegal, and a matter with which the ayuntamiento had no concern, being without the pale of the powers with which they were vested. This is admitted to be a hard case upon most of the claimants. The original vendees, it appears, paid a valuable consideration for the lots, and some of them have since passed into the hands of innocent purchasers. In equity and justice they are either entitled to the lots, or the money with which they were purchased; but how they are to obtain redress Congress must determine.

The alteration of division twenty-four, which was reserved in the original plan for public buildings, and to which the proceedings in part relate, appears to us to stand upon different grounds from that of the square of the city. The first was reserved for special purposes of a public nature; it was public property, and as such was subject to the disposal of the lawful authorities of West Florida. We have therefore given them confirmation.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

Pensacola, September 4, 1815. Signed on the part of all concerned, by Francisco Barrios, Carlos Lavalle.

PETITION FIRST.

To his honor the GOVERNOR and SUB-DELEGATE:

The undersigned, inhabitants of this place, with decorum and the respect due to your honor, present themselves and state that the ayuntamiento, heretofore of this place, did, at the request of the governor, Colonel Don Matthew Gonzales Manrique, and with the consent of the deputy minister intendant of finance, Don Antonio Cabanis, and of the commander of engineers, Don Anastacio de Arango, by their acts and council, ordain the sale, in a public judicial manner, of the additional lots occasioned by the regulation of the two squares of Ferdinand the Seventh and of Seville, in the intermediate space; and also the division destined for a church, situate between the house of Don Francisco Gonzales de Jente, King's storekeeper, and that of the widow Francisco Albert y Ramos. The object of said sale was to procure with the proceeds thereof the indispensable necessities of subsistence for the garrison and those attached to it, then under the most urgent circumstances of misery, in which they were placed by a failure of their supplies of provisions, and their want of means to procure relief. The exponents, in consequence thereof, purchased the lots numbered as in the adjoining statement for the prices detailed therein, four of which only are occupied by their owners, which are those of Don Eugenio Antonio Sierra, Don Francisco Gonzales de Jente, and Don Lorenzo Bru, in the church division, and Don Joseph Viola on lot No. 9, in the space between the two squares, where he has built a house of becoming appearance. But your honor having been informed that it was the intention of Don Carlos Lavalle likewise to enclose and build upon the lot which he bought near the government house, has put a stop to it because the approbation of his Majesty respecting the sale has not been received, notwithstanding those who make this representation paid the prices for which the lots were sold, and were put into the possession of them by the members of the council commissioned for the sale, and who executed the corresponding writings in the public archives. It becomes, therefore, a matter of doubt whether they are or are not legitimate owners, and whether they can or cannot dispose of what they believe they have acquired a just title to at public sale, with the sound of drum and voice of the crier, because, by any other mode, they ought to believe they have been defrauded by the authorities acting in the said sale. They therefore entreat your honor will have the goodness to determine, by decree, if they ought to consider themselves owners of the said lots, and if they really are not, so that the money which they have paid for them may be returned to them, that by this means may be prevented their incurring a greater injury which might probably occur to them; the which act will be to put your petitioners a favor and courtesy. Pensacola, September 4, 1815.

Furthermore, as this affair may require other judicial communications, such as your honor may choose to dictate, a particular notification of which to each individual interested would occasion embarrassment, your petitioners ask and entreat your honor will please to order it to be understood that such proceedings will be treated of with Don Carlos Lavalle and Don Francisco Barrios, on whom, from this time forward, we confer ample power to represent us, and to do for all of us whatever may be consistent with our rights. We ask as before written. (Signed) Juan Alleck, Carlos Lavalle, Joaquin Barela, Antonio Calcires, Manuel Gonzales, Widow Montero, Lorenzo Bru, Eugenio Antonio Sierra, Frk. Goumarin, Whitters Bruison, Francisco Barrios, for his mother, Luis Guyarre, Ignacio Presas, Carlos Sierra.

Decree.—Pensacola, September 5, 1815. Taking into consideration that there is no authority by which the plan of the town could be altered so as even to interfere with the military buildings, the declaratory decree which the parties solicit cannot be issued. It will be understood that no innovation is to be permitted until after the decision of his Majesty, to whom I am going to refer the affair by the first opportunity. (Signed) Soto Hernandez; (countersigned) Sousa, Cevallos.

Notification.—In the same day, month, and year, we made it known to Don Carlos Lavalle and Don Francisco Barrios. We certify the same. (Signed) Sousa, Cevallos.

Petition.—We, Don Carlos Lavalle and Don Francisco Barrios, inhabitants of this place, for ourselves, and in behalf of the individuals who purchased several public lots in the years 1813 and 1814, and who have authorized us to this effect before your honor, as may be most conformable to law, and with reservation of whatever plea may avail us, present ourselves and say that, in the month of September of last year, (1815,) we presented a petition in common to the intendant (commander) ad interim, predecessor of your honor, Colonel José de Soto, in which we explained all the circumstances which preceded and occasioned the sale and adjudication at auction of the twenty-two complete lots, and part of another, which we purchased for the sum of three thousand nine hundred and eighty dollars and four bits, as also the subsequent circumstances resulting from our having delivered the money to the person authorized to receive it; in virtue of all which we consider ourselves lawful possessors of said lots. We stated also what had occurred with Don Carlos Lavalle at the time he wished to build on the one he purchased near the government house, and we concluded our petition by requesting that the commander would please to declare if we might consider ourselves owners of the said lots, adding that, in case we were not so, the money we had disbursed ought to be repaid us, together with an allowance for the detriment occasioned us.

The result of this petition was that Don José de Soto decreed on the day following, with the advice of Don Carlos Hernandez Barrutia, auditor of government and assessor of this intendancy, that, "taking into consideration that there was no authority by which the plan of the town could be altered so as even to interfere with the military buildings, the declaratory decree which was solicited could not be issued, and that no innovation would be allowed until after the decision of his Majesty, to whom he was going to report the affair by the first opportunity."

Sufficient time has already elapsed, if Don José de Soto realized that part which he exposed in his decree, for the answer to have reached this place; and as we are interested in knowing what is the determination of his Majesty, or of whatever other subordinate authority the said gentleman might address himself, so that at sight of what it might be, if our rights should be infringed upon thereby, we may press our claims, so much the more just, as it is impossible to believe that we will be deprived of what was sold to us by the authorities of the country with the sound of a drum and of a crier.

We therefore entreat your honor will decree that a certified copy be put in continuation herewith, of the answer that may have been addressed to Don José de Soto, and, being done, that the same be delivered to us, so that we may proceed consistently with justice, which we ask. We swear we proceed not from malice, but necessity, &c. (Signed) Francisco Barrios, Carlos Lavalle. Pensacola, August 6, 1816.

Decree.—Put them an official certificate of the answer they solicit, and, being done, deliver it to them as they ask. (Signed) Zuniga; (countersigned) Domingo Sousa, José Cevallos.

Notification.—On the same day we communicated to Don Carlos Reggio, secretary of this government, and we also delivered him the judicial proceeding for the purpose above mentioned. (Signed) D. Sousa, José Cevallos.

Copy.—In an official note of the sixteenth of the preceding month the director of engineers of this place has written me as follows: “May it please your excellency: The late cabildo of Pensacola could not nor ought to vary the position of the military buildings of that place without the sovereign approbation, as provided in the conclusion of the article 9, title 1, regulation 3, of the ordinance of the royal corps of engineers, and much less without the direction of the said corps, to whom, by the first article of the same title and regulation, it exclusively appertains. As little could they sell or dispose of either the whole or part of the King’s lots without his sovereign consent; so that I conceive the whole ought to revert to the same situation in which it was before any such innovation took place, and for which it appears to me your excellency is invested with the power, according to the aforesaid article 9, or otherwise to give information thereof to his Majesty for his sovereign decision, continuing, in the meantime, the prohibition to use the said lots and vary the buildings. This in submission to the superior judgment of your excellency, to whom I return the documents. My own opinion being conformable, I transmit you a copy thereof, in answer to your official note relative to the affair No. 570, to the end that you may carry into effect what relates to the first point, unless the execution should be attended by injurious circumstances; in which case your honor will instruct me thereof, that I may state the same to his Majesty. God preserve your honor many years. Havana, January 20, 1816. (Signed) Apodaca.” (Addressed to his honor the commander of West Florida, ad interim.)

Certificate.—The foregoing is a copy of the original official document which exists among the papers of this office under my charge, to which I refer. Pensacola, August 6, 1816. (Signed) Carlos Reggio.

Petition.—We, Don Carlos Lavalle and Don Francisco Barrios, having filed petitions for the purpose of obtaining for ourselves, and for the inhabitants whom we represent, possession of the lots of the crown which were sold to us at public judicial sale under all the formalities which were prescribed by the rules of the time in which the sale was effected, or, in case possession could not be given us, that the sums we have paid might be reimbursed us, together with an indemnification for the detriment we have sustained from a deprivation of our money—we say that, in consequence of the request contained in our last writing, your honor was pleased to decree, on 6th instant, “that a certified copy should be put in continuation by your honor’s secretary of the answer of which we treated, and, being done, it should be delivered to us.” This has been done, and we have found that his excellency the captain general, to whom the commander, the predecessor of your honor, stated the case in an official note, No. 570, on the ground of a communication from the director of engineers of Havana, dated December 16th of the last year, advised the government of this province with date of January 20th of the present year, to let the affair remain as it was, unless attended by prejudicial circumstances, in which case this government ought to instruct him thereof, that he might report the same to his Majesty.

At sight of this decree we are obliged to conclude that Don José de Soto omitted in his official paper No. 570 what he ought to have stated, and that he expressed what he was not authorized to say.

In effect, if, in his report, he had stated that the sale of the said lots was determined upon by the cabildo of that time, incited to it by his honor the military governor of this province and president of the said cabildo; that the fundamental motive for this was the low state to which the royal coffers of this place were reduced and the necessity of some food for the garrison, then perishing for want; that the commander of engineers, Don Anastacio de Arango, not only made verbal insinuations to the governor, Don Matthew Manrique, that he ought to avail himself, as much as possible, of his discretionary powers to sell the lots and lands of the royal domain, but also, as we have heard, he executed the same in writing; that in the new form given to the plan of the town, and which was drawn by the surveyor general with strict adherence to the rules prescribed by the laws of these provinces, the position of the military buildings was in nowise varied; that the sale was published by large bills, and was effected according to the custom of the country, at the sound of the drum, for which reason the commander of engineers could not be ignorant of it, and if he could have had anything to object to or to reclaim he would not have kept silence; that the disbursement was made, on our part, of the real and effective sums for which the lots were respectively adjudged to us as the best bidders, the possession of which we were despoiled of by this same Don José de Soto; and, finally, that with the amount which we paid for the same the garrison was sustained—if all and each one of these circumstances, we again repeat, should have been explained in the official paper No. 570 with that exactness and impartiality which justice requires, how was it possible that the director of engineers of Havana could have censured the cabildo of this place, and less, have added what his answer to his excellency the captain general contains? Or, how his excellency (the position of the military buildings not having been varied in the least) would, in conformity therewith, have ordered that what related to the first point should be carried into effect, and manifested a doubt that the execution thereof might be attended with prejudicial circumstances.

When thus much is evident, it becomes necessary to believe that the report was not adjusted to the reality of the events, but that some circumstances were omitted which were in our favor, and, for some particular end, others were introduced to our prejudice. For these reasons, therefore, we consider ourselves authorized to protest one, two, and three times, and as many times oftener as by law may be necessary, against the author or authors of all the injuries and detriments which have resulted to us from having sold us the aforementioned lots, to obtain the amount for which they were adjudged to us; and, under the pretext of having altered the plan of the town so as even to interfere with the military buildings, have prohibited us from building, selling, or making any use of our property.

We will suppose, for an instant, that the thing might be such as it appears that it has been represented to be to his excellency the captain general in the official paper No. 570: would this be a reason that we should be the victims of any irregularities with which the cabildo, the military governor, Don Matthew Manrique, the commander of engineers, Don Anastacio de Arango, and the other authorities, might have proceeded, who were concerned in the affair and ordered the judicial sale? Could we, in so serious and solemn an act, doubt their authority to separate from the royal patrimony the lots which they put up at public auction? Would we not have exposed ourselves to just confusion and even to punishment if we would have attempted such an investigation? We believe there can be no man in his senses of this opinion. We also judge that there can exist neither reason nor justice, even if there is cause to invalidate sales made with so many formalities and so much solemnity, that there should be any to deprive us of the right to obtain the reimbursement of our money, together with an indemnification, justly graduated by the privation thereof from the time that we paid the prices for which the lots were adjudged to us until the moment when the restoration of the same may be effected. We know that, in the situation in which the affair is placed, your honor is not at liberty to act, and can resolve nothing. The decision ought to emanate from his excellency the captain general, if, as we suppose, in compliance with prompt justice, he drops the idea of reporting it to his Majesty; but that he may be able so to do with less scrupulousness and greater security, in that case it will be convenient that all which we have alleged in this writing should be fully proven. Therefore,

We entreat your honor to order that, by the secretary of this government, in whose charge it appears the books and papers of the late ayuntamiento are found, there may be annexed in continuation herewith certified copies of all the acts, official papers, and other documents and proceedings which preceded and regulated the aforesaid sale; as, likewise, certificates from the captain of infantry, Don V. S. Pintado, surveyor general of this province, of the proceedings, orders, and official papers, by which was brought to pass the alteration and regulation made of the old plan of the town; annexing a copy thereof, and of that which he formed anew, together with the explanations necessary for a better comprehension of the same. All which being done, your honor will please to transmit a copy of the judicial proceedings to his excellency the captain general, in compliance with his provision of the 20th of January of the present year, and which, according to our limited comprehension, ought to have been done without our solicitation by your honor's predecessor, within the terms required by justice, which we ask. We swear we proceed not from malice, but necessity. (Signed) Francisco Barrios, Carlos Lavalle.

Decree.—Let them have the certificates they request for the individuals mentioned in the petition. (Signed) Zuniga. (Countersigned) Domingo Sousa, José Cevallos.

Notification.—On the same day we made it known to Francisco Barrios and D. Carlos Lavalle, which we certify. (Signed) Sousa, Cevallos.

No. 1.—Act of the cabildo. In the town of Pensacola, April 10, 1813, in extraordinary sitting, summoned by his honor the governor ad interim of this province and president of this ayuntamiento, his honor began by observing that the object of this meeting was to state that having received intelligence that the Americans were forming an expedition at Pass Christian for the purpose of attacking and obtaining possession of Mobile in case those of that post should not be able to defend themselves, and that, in consequence, they would not cease to disquiet this town, for which reason he esteemed it his duty to recommend to the gentlemen present that they ought, on their part, to use every possible effort to insure a punctual compliance with respect to what he was about to propose: 1st. That they make interest with such persons as may have any provisions, and encourage them to make a delivery of them to supply the troops with rations, by insuring them pay for the same from the national treasury of Havana, and put up public bills to that effect. 2d. That because the treasury coffers of this place are found absolutely without funds, they endeavor to prevail with the owners of carts to perform the service of hauling a few timbers obtained from an individual for the purpose of completing the powder magazine and glacis of Fort St. Michael. 3d. To urge those who own stock, either of beef, cattle, horses, or hogs, to have them brought over on this side of the river Perdido for the greater security of the same. 4th. That, by means of public advertisements, this faithful and loyal vicinity (community) be entreated to contribute as much as possible towards clearing the ground contiguous to Fort St. Michael, so that the firing from the same may have the better effect in case of an attack. The which propositions of his honor the president having been heard with the greatest attention by the alcalde and other gentlemen of this cabildo, they all unanimously promised not to omit any step or effort in order to give effect to what had been recommended.

Afterwards, at the request of the syndic, was taken into consideration the (vacant) lots found in the town and its environs; that it would be well to put them up to sale in order that, with the proceeds thereof, purchases of provisions, &c., might be made for the royal magazine of this place, with respect to which it was resolved that his honor the president be charged with the passing of an official note to the intendant in order to obtain this object, which is rendered of so much importance by the necessity which is prevailing.

Lastly, I, the secretary, was ordered to pass to the dwelling of the lady, widow of the Adjutant Major D. José Noriega, and inform her that in the course of three days the writing of property would be required of the lot contiguous to the barracks, situate in the middle of the military square, which she says she owns, and speaks of again putting up its buildings, but which is said not to belong to her; with which this sitting was closed, and was signed by his honor the president and the other gentlemen of this ayuntamiento, which I certify. Mauricio de Zuniga, Vicente Ordosgoity, Martin de Madrid, Francisco Gómez, Antonio Montero, Lorenzo Vitrian, and Francisco Barrios, secretary.

No. 2.—Act of the cabildo of April 21, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, April 21, 1813, in extraordinary sitting, summoned by his honor the governor of this province and president of this ayuntamiento; the gentlemen who composed it having assembled, his honor the governor commenced by showing the official note he had passed to the minister of royal finance, as charged in cabildo on the 10th instant, together with the answer and what else had been done with respect to the affair and sale of the lots in this town, according to what appears from the copy thereof which exists in the archives under my charge, when, after reflecting thereon, and conferring together, it was unanimously agreed that the desires of his honor the governor were fulfilled, as recorded in the aforesaid sitting of the 10th instant; with which this sitting terminated, and was signed by his honor the governor and the other gentlemen, which I certify. Mauricio de Zuniga, Vicente Ordosgoity, Martin de Madrid, Millan de Carreras, Francisco Gomez, Francisco Barrios, secretary.

No. 4.—Act of the cabildo of May 17, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, May 17, 1813, the gentlemen of the constitutional ayuntamiento of this place having assembled in ordinary sitting, presided by his honor the commander of this province as civil chief of the same, three official notes were read, addressed by his honor, with date of the 10th instant; the first accompanying a printed paper which contains three royal decrees of the 4th, 9th, and 13th of February last, relative to the daily allowance to gentlemen deputed from courts of ultramarine provinces; the second, accompanying an exemplar from the gazette of the regency of Spain and its dependencies of the 26th of January last, containing the royal decree of the 4th of the same month, which treats of the reduction of public (common) grounds to particular property; and the third contains another royal decree of the 26th of September of last year, by which it is provided that such ecclesiastics as may be found living as citizens may hold an active voice and give their votes at the election of the constitutional ayuntamientos, but may not be elected to any office or council. Whereupon, it was resolved by all the gentlemen that due compliance shall be given in the respective particulars, and that for the purpose the said official notes be reserved in the archives, together with the reports by the gentleman alcalde commissioned by the ayuntamiento, &c.

No. 5.—Act of cabildo of August 31, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, on the 31st day of May, his honor the president and the other gentlemen of the ex-ayuntamiento having assembled, among other things they treated on the following:

Afterwards an official note was read, presented by the alcalde, being a copy of the one which he addressed to the minister of finance, requesting intelligence respecting the provisions relative to the alteration and enlargement of the old plan of this town, and the answer returned him by the said gentleman minister: "that meeting with it in a judicial proceeding which was formalized with that intent, and which is very voluminous, as he has no amanuensis, it would be expedient that the ayuntamiento should appoint a person to be employed for that purpose." Whereupon, it was resolved that the gentleman alcalde should again address another official note to him reiterating the request.

An official note was also read from the commander of engineers, Don Anastacio de Arango, which he delivered to his honor the president, to whom he addressed it, and proposes to his discretion the proceeding to sell, under certain conditions, lands of the royal domain; and it was resolved that the gentleman alcalde should answer his honor the president, and express due thanks to the commander of engineers for the zeal he has manifested in communicating his ideas, so conformable in every respect to those of the members of the ayuntamiento; but they observe that, owing to the absolute want of money, there will be no purchasers unless some foreigners, and that it will be more expedient to await other favorable circumstances, in order to fulfil, in part, the formalities prescribed in the sovereign decree of the 4th of January last, not neglecting, in the meantime, to attend to the Spanish citizens who may solicit it (I suppose the land) for purposes of public utility; and that, in returning the said official note to his honor the president, a certified copy thereof be requested for the archives of this ayuntamiento.

Another official paper was also read, presented by his honor the president, addressed to him by the minister of public finance, together with a petition from the regidor, Don Antonio Montero, who, as being interested therein, retired from the hall, when, on deliberating upon his petition, "that the amount for the ten lots of ground and one building lot, which were adjudged to him at public sale, should be placed to his credit, (for meat furnished by him,) which lots were appointed to be sold in order to purchase provisions for the troops and others attached to this garrison, owing to absolute want of money which prevails," it was resolved that, considering it to be one of the most necessary articles, and that, as expressed in his contract, he ought to be paid monthly in specie for the amount of meat furnished by him during the same, they acceded to his request, and authorized the alcalde, that in due [here an expression is wanting] and return the petition.

No. 6.—Act of the cabildo of August 9, 1813. At another sitting held in this town on the 9th of August of the same year by the said gentlemen, among other things they treated on the following: "Likewise, after having read an official paper presented by his honor the president, addressed to him by the engineer of this place, Don Anastacio de Arango, relative to the deficiency of means in this town for the subsistence of the garrison and those attached to it, and what else the said gentlemen alleges, it was resolved that his honor the president be authorized to communicate with the minister of the national finance for the purpose of obtaining from that officer a statement of the arpents lately disposed of at public sale and of those which remain to be sold, pointing out the purchasers who may not have paid the amount for which the lots were adjudged to them, and for what reason, so that this illustrious ayuntamiento, on understanding what the said minister may say, may determine as they may judge expedient and possible in relation to the official paper from the aforesaid engineer, Don Anastacio de Arango."

No. 7.—Act of the cabildo of August 27, 1813. At a sitting held in Pensacola on the 27th of August of the present year, the president and other gentlemen of the ayuntamiento being assembled, among other things they treated and resolved on the following:

"Afterwards his honor the president presented an official note from the minister of public finance, being an answer to what the said gentleman passed to him according to resolution of the 9th instant, accompanied with three copies: 1st, of the actual lots in this town belonging to the royal domain; 2d, another, of the lots sold and paid for to the treasury, from the 4th of June until the 21st of August; and the 3d, another, of the lots sold, with the names of those to whom they were sold, but the amounts of which have not yet been paid; all which having been read by me, the secretary, it was resolved that the minister of the treasury be authorized to recover the amounts of the lots sold and not paid for, agreeable to the statement No 3, without requiring more from the purchasers than the amount for which they were adjudged; without a discount of half annatees, remittance to Spain, or any other, because the sale was not preceded by any condition, and because this ayuntamiento becomes responsible for the result; all of which will be communicated for his requisite information; and that when he has effected a total recovery he may proceed to make out the deeds of sale and give the corresponding titles to the purchasers, as well as to give in to the ayuntamiento a statement of the amount of all the lots sold and paid for, in order that it may be reclaimed so soon as the public treasury may be found with funds sufficient to repay the same."

No. 8.—Act of the cabildo of September 6, 1813. At the town of Pensacola, in cabildo held by the ayuntamiento in ordinary sitting, on the 6th of September, in which his honor the governor presided, among other resolutions the following was adopted:

"In the same manner it is resolved that this ayuntamiento, by its secretary, should pass official notes to his honor the governor, and also to the minister of the national treasury, in order that the said officers, gentlemen, may please to inform the ayuntamiento if any objection occurs to them to their proceeding, by means of the surveyor general, to lay off the squares of this town and the lots which may be left vacant thereby, according to what the article 321 of the constitution provides, and whatever else may be deemed expedient."

No. 9.—Act of the cabildo of October 5, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, in ordinary cabildo of October 5, 1813, in which his honor the governor of this province presided, the other individuals who composed it being present, among other things the following were treated of:

"Likewise, and equally, it was represented by the syndic that no answer appears on the part of the minister of the treasury, up to the present date, to the official notes which, by order of the same ayuntamiento, were passed to him on dates of the 9th and 20th of September, relative to the delineation of the squares of this town and the vacant lots.

"That it becomes requisite to decide on this particular, owing to the detriment which this delay occasions, by resolving that an official note be passed to the surveyor general directing him to proceed to lay off the said squares agreeable to law and usage; as also the lots which, by the said regulation, may be left vacant, and what other vacant lots there may be in town; specifying how many lots are comprised in the division which was destined for the building of a church," &c. The rigidores and the constitutional alcalde were unanimously of the same opinion of the syndic, and resolved that the same be carried into effect."

No. 10.—Act of the cabildo of October 11, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, in ordinary cabildo of October 11, 1813, the gentlemen who composed the late ayuntamiento being assembled, and his honor the governor of the province presiding, among other things they treated and resolved on the following:

"Afterwards was read by me, the secretary, an official note, addressed by the surveyor general to me in reply to the one I addressed to him by order of the ayuntamiento, dated the 6th instant, upon which it was resolved to proceed to the election of one of the rigidores, (aldermen) to act in concert with the said surveyor, and proceed to the formation of the plan of this town, which, when done, ought to be presented to the ayuntamiento for their approbation, and that this officer proceed to the sale of the vacant lots consequent on the same; for which purpose D. Francisco Gomez was elected. In like manner it was resolved by all the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento that an official note should be passed to the minister of finance, desiring him not to oppose any obstacle to the exportation of flour on account of its having been so determined by the ayuntamientos during the time they were without means for its purchase, as injury would thereby result to the commerce of the place.

"The syndic proposed that he protested against the resolution to permit the exportation of flour, adhering to what he said in the sitting of the 7th instant on its prohibition; and that in a very few days, with despatch in the sale of the vacant lots for which the surveyor general had to make out the plan, there might be funds for the purchase of provisions; besides, it would be improper: the town might be left without flour, as intelligence had been received that a vessel bound from Orleans to this place had been detained by the Americans at Mobile Point, and her cargo of provisions taken out; and he concluded by requesting that copies might be given him of this act, and of that of the 7th instant; all which was granted."

No. 11.—Act of the cabildo of October 18, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, in ordinary cabildo, October 18, 1813, the gentlemen mentioned in the margin being present, and presided by his honor the governor of this province, the sitting was opened by reading an official note which was addressed to his honor the president by the minister of the treasury in reply to those that with dates of the 6th and 20th of September and 6th instant which I, the secretary, passed to him by order of the ayuntamiento, and who consents to the delineation of the squares and vacant lots, but is opposed to the delivery of the land archives; all according to his official note which remains in these archives. Whereupon, it was resolved by the gentlemen present that the resolution respecting the demarcation and sale of the vacant lots should be carried into effect, and the opposition of the minister to the delivery of the land archives, for the reasons he alleges, should be represented to the provincial deputation, who may thereupon determine as they may find expedient. The syndic stated the actual proceedings in virtue of the commission conferred on him by the ayuntamiento, namely, to proceed with a sufficient number of skilful men to the estimation of the lot situate between the house occupied by D. Francisco Gonzales de Fonte and that of Don E. A. Sierra, of 45 feet in front and 170 feet in depth, stating by the said proceeding that the said piece of ground has been estimated by the four appraisers named for that purpose, as appears, at one hundred and fifty dollars, for which sum D. Diego Palmas ought to pay the redemption tax, as he agreed to do when the estimation might be made. They then resolved that at the next cabildo D. Diego Palmas, as well as Don E. A. Sierra, be required to present the permit or permits they may have obtained to possess themselves of the ground occupied by their houses; D. Diego Palmas, likewise, to present that which he may hold of the ground that has been valued; so that, with a view of the whole, the ayuntamiento may be able to determine with the correctness they desire.

No. 12.—Act of the cabildo of October 21, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, in extraordinary cabildo of October 21, 1813, the gentlemen of the ex-ayuntamiento, and his honor the governor of the province being president among other things, the following were treated and resolved upon:

"Afterwards I, the secretary, presented an official note from the surveyor general addressed to me, and accompanied with a plan of the division which was destined for the construction of public buildings; and lots becoming vacant by said plan being comprehended by the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento, they resolved that it be approved as found regular, and that the surveyor general thereto proceed, with the advice of D. Francisco Gomez, to finish those which remained to be measured, including those which the syndic mentioned in his statement to the ayuntamiento—the same to be sold after those of the aforesaid division.

"In like manner it was resolved to remit the plan to the provincial deputation, that, being apprised of the determination of the ayuntamiento, they may please to give their due consent thereto, according to article 322 of the constitution, so that the sale may be proceeded in, observing that the object of the sale is not only to procure funds for the use of the ayuntamiento, at present without any, and to defray the indispensable expense of building a church and public jail, but also in part to remedy the scarcity generally experienced in the town for want of provisions, of which there is no stock for the support of the garrison and those attached to it; adverting, also, that the ayuntamiento has resolved, if the case should require it, (as may be expected unless speedily obtained,) to proceed to the sale for the said reasons of urgent necessity, persuaded that such a step will meet the approbation of your honors, even if the sale should take effect without your approbation, for the reasons stated.

"It was also resolved to pass an official paper to the minister of the public treasury, requiring the said gentlemen to order the delivery to the ayuntamiento, by the proper person, of the judicial proceeding formed relative to the town lots, with all which the sitting closed, which I certify; the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento and the assistant secretary signing with me. Matthew Gonzales Manrique, Vicente Ordosgoity, Martin de Madrid, Millan de Carreras, Antonio Montero, Juan de la Rua, Felix Talla."

No. 13.—Act of the cabildo of October 25, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, in ordinary cabildo held October 25, 1813, his honor the governor presiding, and the other gentlemen of the ex-ayuntamiento being present, the sitting commenced by reading a representation from the syndic, protesting against the resolution adopted in extraordinary cabildo on the 21st instant, as relates to not determining immediately on the sale of the lots in order to attend to the urgent necessities of the garrison, (as appears by his representation which remains in these archives,) to which gentlemen voters stated that they adhered to what had been determined in the aforesaid sitting; and as the syndic was not present, they ordered he should be informed of the same, showing him that the resolution was by a majority of votes, and was not deficient in the formalities of the law, as he represents.

No. 14.—Act of the cabildo of November 22, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, held November 22, 1813, in which his honor the governor was president, and the other gentlemen who composed the ex-ayuntamiento were present, among other things the following were determined:

"In like manner it was treated that his honor the president should correspond with the minister of national treasury, (finance;) that from this day forward no vessel be permitted to load with any kind of provisions, so long as the blockade may continue which the English vessels of war have established from the entrance of this port to the Belize, for which reason the intercourse by sea is found to be interrupted from this place to Mobile and New Orleans, the only places from whence, up to this period, we have provided ourselves with provisions. The sitting hereupon closed, which I certify. Matthew Gonzales Manrique, Vicente Ordosgoity, Martin de Madrid, Millan de Carrera, Francisco Gomez, Antonio Montero, Lorenzo Vitrian, Felix Talla."

Further act of the cabildo of December 2, 1813.—In the town of Pensacola, in extraordinary cabildo held in Pensacola, December 2, 1813, in which his honor the governor of the province was president, and the other gentlemen mentioned in the margin were present. His honor the president commenced by stating that the cause of his having summoned an extraordinary cabildo was, his having been informed that two vessels were about to leave this port with flour at the same time that we experience a rigorous blockade by the maritime forces of his Britannic Majesty, which suffers no vessel to pass that was from New Orleans, the only place from which we receive provisions; for which reason he desired that the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento, after having maturely reflected on the particulars, would determine what may be most expedient, in order to avoid feeling in this town a want of the articles of greatest necessity; with respect to which, the gentlemen voters resolved that, previous to preventing the departure of the said vessels, it was necessary to ascertain what quantities of provisions were in town; for which purpose it was resolved to appoint two members of this ayuntamiento, who should proceed to take a particular account of the provisions there may be in the place; and having elected for that purpose D. Martin de Madrid and the syndic by a majority of votes, they took charge of the said commissions, to execute it as soon as possible. Afterwards it was determined that, in order to effect the relief of the garrison from such pressing necessity, the sale of the lots formerly destined for a church should be effected, under the express conditions that the purchasers should pay the amount down in cash, or at least the one-half in cash and the other half in provisions, at the current price in this place, the regidores, D. Martin de Madrid and D. Francisco Gomez, being authorized for that purpose, according to the resolution passed in ordinary cabildo on the 29th of November; and that the secretary of the ayuntamiento shall give public notice of said resolution by large bills, specifying that the said sale will take place on the 9th instant; and the sitting herewith closed; all which I certify. Matheuw Gonzales Manrique, Vicente Ordosgoity, Martin de Madrid, Francisco Gomez, Antonio Montero, Lorenzo Vitrian, Felix Talla.

No. 15.—Act of the cabildo of December 3, 1813. In the town of Pensacola, in extraordinary cabildo held December 3, 1813, in which the governor of the province was president, and the other gentlemen who composed the late ayuntamiento, (were present,) they treated on the following: The meeting was commenced by D. Martin de Madrid and D. Lorenzo Vitrian showing the statement which they had been charged to make by the resolution of yesterday relative to the quantity of provisions in the town, the which, according to the said statement, consisted of one thousand three hundred and thirty-five barrels of flour; the gentlemen voters thereupon finding the place sufficiently provided with the above article, (renglones,) permitted the departure of the two brigs, which are already laden and have got out their papers; but in order that in future all exportations of provisions must be prevented until further arrivals, and his honor the president will pass an official note for that purpose to the minister general of finance, with which the session closed. I certify the same.

NOTE.—In the one thousand three hundred and thirty-five barrels of flour are included the two hundred and fifty-three found on board the schooner Montserrat. Matthew Gonzales Manrique, Vicente de Ordosgoity, Martin de Madrid, Francisco Gomez, Lorenzo Vitrian, Antonio Montero, Felix Talla.

No. 16.—Act of the cabildo of the 7th of December. In the town of Pensacola, in ordinary cabildo held December 7, 1813, his honor the governor of the province presiding, and the other gentlemen who composed the late cabildo being present, the sitting was commenced by reading an official note from the surveyor general, accompanied by a draught of the plan projected for the regulation and marking of the two squares of this town, designating the lots for public buildings, and also those for sale between the two squares, formed in virtue of the resolution of this ayuntamiento; and said plan being examined and approved of by the gentlemen voters, it was resolved that it be returned to the surveyor for the purposes expedient, &c.

No. 17.—Act of the cabildo of January 23, 1814. In the town of Pensacola, in extraordinary cabildo held January 23, 1814, the governor of the province being president, and the other gentlemen who composed the late ayuntamiento being present, the session was commenced by his honor the president representing that the deplorable and calamitous circumstances which prevail in this town for the supplies wherewith to furnish meat for some days to the garrison, which is on the point of perishing, puts him under the disagreeable necessity of asking of this ayuntamiento for an indispensable loan from among the neighboring inhabitants of two hundred head of cattle, in order to provide for such urgent necessity, requesting that a testimony of this act may be given him. After a long conference by the gentlemen of the council on the subject, knowing the critical situation in which the inhabitants are placed and the impossibility of obtaining the said loan, because for many years they have been supplying the officers of this garrison and the functionaries on their paper to great amounts, which they have no hopes to recover, and that besides they have contributed what they have been able towards the relief of the troops whenever occasion has occurred, it was therefore resolved unanimously, that to-morrow the regidor, D. Martin de Madrid, and the inhabitants, D. Francisco Gomez and D. Lorenzo Vitrian, charged with the sale of the lots, should proceed to the recovery of the amounts due for the same, with which the said gentlemen believe they will be able to purchase the two hundred head of cattle required. Ordered, that I, the secretary, give the testimony to the president, as he has requested.

Afterwards the council requested that his honor the president would please to pass another official note to the minister of the national finance, in order that he present to the public a statement of the funds which have entered into the coffers during the time of his administration, with the application of them; and also that all the credits pending in favor of the treasury be liquidated and recovered, with which this act was concluded. I certify the same. Matthew Gonzales Manrique, Jayme Fontenals, Millan de Carrera, Pedro Sans, for the regidor, D. José Tapiola, and myself, Joseph Maria de Pena.

No. 18.—Official note from the commander of engineers, of April 23, 1813. Having fully considered your official note of the 17th, in reply to that of the 2d instant, containing a copy for me of that which, with date of the 14th, was passed to your honor by the intendant ad interim, as also including a copy for me of the inventory of articles of utility in the stores; counting on those, and considering the scarcity of money to procure the appointments in tools, &c., which I have asked for and believed necessary, I will disclose to your honor, that supposing it impossible to complete the quantities and kinds demanded, and that the intendant intends to procure the mending and helving of such as are not fit for use, it is indispensable that, instead of the number of hand-barrows, dirt-boxes, buckets, &c., which I have conceived necessary, we afford what our necessities permit us, and await till he gives me the corresponding notice to pass, to inspect, and distribute in proportion to the number of the said articles of utility which may be got ready, adding one hundred rammers and fifty grass ropes, of the small bundles sold by the Indians. I particularly recommend the axes to be fixed at the post of Barrancas. Next in consideration, as to the want of means to relieve our urgent necessities and to attend the defence of this province, I ought to propose to your honor the discretionary powers within my province, which cannot be otherwise than great in a country of a small population, composed chiefly of military and functionaries, and, for the same reason, without industry sufficient to afford the requisite helps, nor could the powers I am going to point out be of any other description, convinced as I am of the prudence with which the intelligence of your honor has proceeded in the use of the means which this small and poor settlement is capable of affording. I said great, because it is that of proceeding to the sale of lands—a discretionary power that is sufficient to provide some assistance. I well recollect the many difficulties alleged as objections on another occasion to the same idea; the principal being the length of time which would be consumed in the measurement, valuation, publishing, and other formalities required. It was not then a suitable remedy for the necessity we were in for provisions, because there was then a judicial proceeding on the particular, which, being fully considered by his excellency the captain general, he, notwithstanding the desire evinced by him to encourage the inhabitants of this province in its improvements, had not dared to determine the matter, but passed back the said judicial proceeding, that it might be addressed from this place to the supreme government, without the decision of which there was no authority to proceed in an affair full of obstacles. Necessity was always the most ingenious tutor, and will overcome inconveniences. Our evils are grievous, and therefore we ought to employ uncommon remedies. There is no rule without exceptions, and I believe that our case is one of the most privileged ones. May we not then provide in time against necessities so urgent and supereminent, when we can count on no other means of assistance than the very precarious ones from Havana? The wise and supreme government cannot take amiss a proceeding impelled by imperious necessity, and directed to sustain its decorum, with the palpable results of privileged utility, if we succeed in preserving these sandy places to the nation by having remedied, as far as the proceeds of the proposed sale will go, the scarcity which threatens us, and given the indispensable motion to the industry of which the country is susceptible; for the not granting property in lands is the same as to banish agriculture, and with it all the means of subsistence. I conclude by stating to your honor, that if the idea proposed should not be expedient, it is at least dictated with the most sincere desire for the good of the country. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, April 23, 1813. Anastacio de Arango. To his honor Don Mauricio de Zuniga.

No. 19.—Official note from the engineer, D. Anastacio de Arango, of May 25, 1813. In an official note of 23d of April last I proposed to your honor's predecessor the discretionary power of proceeding to the sale of lands, in order to remedy the urgent necessities of this garrison, such as have not occurred in the course of thirty-two years, owing to an unfortunate concatenation, the consequences of which affect us at present by a want of the means requisite in a country without industry. I have been induced to repeat the same idea by a continuation of the want of means, not only to supply what is requisite in my branch, but also to remedy others more urgent, at a time when the inhabitants are very near losing all hopes of the arrival of funds to satisfy the pending credits. Convinced of the validity of the reasons I before stated, and convinced, on the other hand, of the slow progress that would undoubtedly attend the affair to its conclusion, I believed, as I yet believe, that greater injury would result to the nation from the delay than a hastening (if it may be so called) of the mentioned sale. I therefore proposed it, waiving even the consideration that above all things ought to be attended to, as its principal support, namely, the imperious necessity which impelled my proposition. But, happily, in this most important affair of public felicity, our wise and supreme Congress has given a convenient motion to the state of inaction in which we were placed with respect to the distribution of lands by the decree which his Majesty has held proper to despatch on the matter on the 4th of January of the present year. The 6th and 7th articles of the said benign decree, joined to the absolute want of means to attend to the defence of the country, appear to me very powerful motives to proceed to the sale pointed out, without that delay which our necessities do not admit of. This being the only resource left us, and that with which the lost credit of the national treasury may be in some measure restored; and as there is not a population in this province capable of employing even the third part of the lands there are to distribute, there will be a surplussage for the reserve provided for in the 6th article. The active credits in favor of sundry inhabitants against the national treasury for sundry provisions furnished to maintain the garrison will be discharged, as also the just claim which this and other functionaries have for the last thirty-seven months, during which they have not received their wages. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, May 25, 1813. Anastacio de Arango. To his honor D. M. Gonzales Manrique.

No. 20.—Official note from the commander of engineers, D. Anastacio de Arango, of August 3, 1813. The war declared by various tribes of Indians against the United States will most likely deprive this settlement of the auxiliary means of subsistence which they receive (particularly in winter) by the carts which descend from the American establishments of Tensaw and Alabama, because the crops will be much reduced by their being abandoned by the laborers, and partly destroyed by the Indians. For these reasons, together with the impossibility, from fear of the said Indians, of performing the long journeys which those carts have to make, the least of which is thirty-two leagues through a wilderness, the auxiliary means mentioned cannot be expected. To remedy this inconvenience, it becomes necessary to proceed immediately to collect a sufficient quantity of provisions for winter—the season of greatest scarcity likewise in New Orleans, the only point from whence we would be able to obtain any, and in which place they must likewise feel the effects of the aforesaid war; and your honor being without the means, and the national treasury having lost its credit, there remains to your honor no others resource than to call the attention of his excellency the captain general to the impossibility of providing in this place the necessary sustenance for the garrison, so that his excellency may have time to make the necessary arrangements to fulfil so necessary an object, while he ought to keep in view the very fatal consequences which must ensue from not employing the anticipated measures which the case requires, as, likewise, that the quantities of some articles of provisions cannot be fixed, owing to the uncertain consumption occasioned by the Indians, to whom it is necessary to give something that the evils of our situation may not be aggravated by a forfeiture of their good will towards us. One alternative only occurs to me—that is, that your honor apply to the constitutional ayuntamiento, that, as they have before done, they may assist with their advice and patriotism to secure the supply for the town and relief of the garrison. The gentlemen of that illustrious cabildo, in the scarcity experienced in February of the present year, entertained the benevolent and generous idea of mortgaging their own property to a certain amount, for which one of the council was to negotiate for provisions in New Orleans, insuring the amount of the same (which was to be paid on the several terms agreed upon) by the property mortgaged, and the losses which, from risks of the sea, enemies, or any other cause, might be therein sustained to be on account of said gentlemen. The said provisions to be given to the town and national treasury at the cost prices; and, though this generous resolution did not take effect, we ought to believe it was on account of the scarcity of provisions felt at that period in New Orleans, and perhaps they would be able at that time to realize it, adding for the greater security of the contract an estimate and express mortgage of the national lands and sales that may be made thereof, and which the luminous and well-tried patriotism of the cabildo render easy to effect, in order to succeed in the project dictated by the most commendable disinterestedness of the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, August 3, 1813. Anastacio de Arango. To his honor D. Matthew Gonzales Manrique.

No. 21.—Official note from the minister of finance, Don Antonio Cabanis, of October 11, 1813. The secretary of the constitutional ayuntamiento of this place, Don Juan de la Rua, passed an official note to me, dated 6th of September last, giving me notice of the determination of the cabildo, in a resolution of the same day, to proceed, as provided by our civil constitution, by the surveyor general of the province, to lay off the squares Constitution and of Ferdinand VII, as also the vacant lots, communicated to me in order that I should state if any objection occurred to me to its being carried into effect. And it appearing to me to be an affair requiring consideration, I deferred the answer in order to acquire the necessary information, and be fully competent thereto. In another official note of the 6th instant the said secretary requires of me, by a resolution of the same ayuntamiento, the answers to two other official notes, which he says he passed to me on the 9th and 20th of the said month of September, in which it appears there was some mistake, as is sufficiently clear from the tenor of the answers which I gave him on the same day, (6th,) because the official note of the 9th is that which I have first mentioned, and that of the 20th did not come to hand until after the demand, when he delivered me the duplicate in which the same subject is included, adding that the ayuntamiento desires that I proceed to the delivery of the land archives, the adjudication of which has been heretofore in charge of the intendancy, because it is said that this business appertains to that body.

As to what relates to the first point respecting the regulation of the two squares and vacant lots treated of in the first official paper, no difficulty whatever presents itself to me, and I have so stated to the surveyor general, Don V. S. Pintado, in answer to his official note of the 7th instant, in which he inserts another, which was passed to him by the aforesaid secretary, on the same subject.

Grounding my decision on the law of the 10th of January last, which your lordship was pleased to send me with that of the 8th of May following, your honor and the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento will be informed, by the copy I annex, of my good intentions to contribute to the object of their deliberations, which I conceive to be no other than that of attending to the preservation of this province so destitute of resources and succor. With respect to the second point, which is reduced to the delivery of the land archives, I have been in the same belief that I ought to do it, but, on reading the said law of 4th January several times over, I find a difficulty presents itself, as nothing is determined in it particularly respecting what shall be delivered; and, referring to what is provided in the first three articles, I observe that the fourth says: "the provincial deputations will propose to the Cortes, by means of the regency, the times and the terms in which it may be suitable to carry this arrangement into effect in their respective provinces, according to the circumstances of the country; and the lots that it may be necessary to reserve to the municipalities, so that the Cortes may determine what may be most expedient for each Territory;" and, unless the resolution of the Cortes be dropped, it appears to me that it would be to anticipate provincial decrees which, in such a case, would occasion many errors, which afterwards would be hard to remedy.

Besides which, I ought to state to your honors that the greater part of the books and judicial documents, or rather almost all, are vouchers of the accounts of funds, not only during the time that the intendancy has subsisted in this place since the early part of the year 1806, but also what was found in the province of Louisiana, and it was charged with the adjudication of land claims in the year 1799; so that to part with the said documents (indispensably requisite to prove the respective settlements of the accounts) would be to deprive all those responsible of the power to produce the vouchers of their discharge, and much more should I be committed in having been the occasion of so notable a defect. Notwithstanding, after my having received the aforesaid law, I cannot, neither ought I, to have any control over the grants and sales of lands which before were appendant to the intendancy and at present appertain to the ayuntamiento. It appears to me that, in any case which may occur, that body may apply to the surveyor general, Don V. S. Pintado, in whose office may be found (or obtained) all the information necessary, and, in case of doubt, they may have recourse to the proprietors and owners of houses, lots, and lands, because each one of them ought to have his title executed in due form. All which I communicate to your honor for the information of the gentlemen of the ayuntamiento, of which your honor is president, and in reply to the aforementioned official notes from the secretary thereof.

Certificate.—By Don Carlos Reggio, lieutenant of Louisiana regiment of infantry, and secretary of the government of West Florida:

I certify that the copies of the acts which precede, numbered 1 to 17, are taken from the books of the ayuntamiento which were formerly in this place, and which remain deposited in this office of secretaryship under my charge, and that they are conformable to the originals; as also are those of the four official notes under Nos. 18, 19, 20, 21, likewise found in said office; and that the same may be evident pursuant to the decree which precedes, I give the present in Pensacola, September 10, 1816. (Signed) Carlos Reggio.

Here follow the copies of the official papers found in the office of general surveyorship of this province:

No. 1.—Official note from the ayuntamiento of October 6, 1813, to the surveyor general. In a sitting held by this constitutional ayuntamiento on the 5th instant, his honor the governor being president, it was resolved to write you officially, that you proceed as surveyor general of this province to lay off the squares of this town according to usage and law, as likewise the lots which, by the arrangement of those may be found vacant, together with the other lots of the town, and specify the number of lots contained in the place formerly destined for building a church, &c. By order of the said body I communicated the same to you for your intelligence. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, October 6, 1813. Juan de la Rua. To D. V. S. Pintado.

No. 2.—The same transcribed to the principal minister of finance by the surveyor general, October 7, 1813. With date of yesterday the secretary of the constitutional ayuntamiento informed me as follows: In a sitting, &c. The which I communicate to you, that you may please to inform me what you think of the matter, or what I ought to do. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, October 7, 1813. V. S. Pintado. To Don Antonio Cabanis.

No. 3.—Answer of the principal minister to the surveyor general the same day, October 7, 1813. Having fully informed myself with respect to the subject of your official note of to-day, in which you transcribed for me one which, with date of yesterday, was passed to you by the secretary of the constitutional ayuntamiento of this place, Don Juan de la Rua, stating the resolution passed in sitting of the 5th instant, that you proceed, as surveyor general of the province, to lay off the squares of the town according to usage and law, as also the vacant lots and others in the town, and specify the number of lots contained in the sectional division (Manzana) which was destined for the building of a church, &c. I ought to inform you, in compliance with your request, that by the law of the 4th January last, ordered to be printed, published, and circulated, and complied with, which was decreed by the supreme council of regency on the 7th of the same month, it is ordered that the unappropriated lands be converted into private property, and the cognizance and distribution of the same be committed to the constitutional ayuntamiento, subject to the provincial deputations, for which reason I can have no objection to your compliance with the desires of the ayuntamiento, especially as this body is invested with the legitimate authority, and are directing their views to the public good, and to attend to the urgent necessities of this province destitute of means for its preservation. I thus conclude my answer to your official communication, but ought to observe, that you will have to agree with the said ayuntamiento for the gratification corresponding to your extra services. God preserve you many years. Pensacola October 7, 1813. (Signed) Antonio Cabanas. To Don V. S. Pintado.

No. 4—Official note of the surveyor general, of October 11, 1813. By your official communication of the 6th instant you were pleased to communicate to me, by order of the ayuntamiento of this district, of which you are secretary, that in their sitting of the preceding day it was determined by the said ayuntamiento, presided by the governor of the province, to direct me as surveyor general, to proceed to the survey of the squares of this town conformable to law and usage, as also of the lots and other property which, agreeable to the plan, may be vacant, and to specify at the same time how many lots are contained in the area destined for the construction of a church. I transcribed the said official communication to the principal minister of finance, and the same day said officer replied to me according to the tenor of the accompanying copy marked No. 1; in consequence of which I now proceed to answer you in the order of the subject-matter of which your communication of the said decision treats. “For the laying off or demarcation of the squares of this town, and ascertaining the number of lots which may prove to be vacant after the regulation which is solicited, it would be necessary to know if one is to be left at each extremity of equal extent for symmetry; as the laying off the same is to be agreeable to law, whether it be understood by this expression what is prescribed in law 9, title 7, book 4, of the Digest of the Indies, in this case, which of the dimensions which the said law directs would be suitable for the square or squares of this town? It would then become necessary to form a diagram representing the actual extent of the ground, and situation of the houses, buildings, and lots of the national domain or of private property within its present area; the form and figure which is wished to be given to the same by the proposed arrangement, &c., in order that it be laid before the ayuntamiento for their determination, alteration, or whatever they may deem the most expedient and conformable to right, agreeable to the tenor of the law of January 4, cited by the minister; making to me in anticipation such other observations and advertencies as the ayuntamiento may judge conducive to the fulfilment of their desires, and for avoiding embarrassments which paralyze the operations. It would not appear to me superfluous that one of the aldermen should be appointed to have an understanding with me as to the details of the scheme, in order not continually to be molesting the attention of the ayuntamiento. If by the other lots of the town is understood those which still remain to be distributed, the accompanying note, No. 2, of the information which I gave to the principal minister of finance on the 13th of April last, as well of the town lots as those of the suburbs then vacant, which were subsequently put up at public sale, will serve for their intelligence. As to the number of lots sold, the said minister can give better information; as I have not yet an exact statement of the same, I have to advert that, in my official letter which accompanied the said report, I stated that the lots situated to the north of the yard of the barracks, and bounded by the same, which the late deceased Lieutenant Colonel D. José Noriega possessed and claimed, and which, by the new plan and arrangement of this town was designated by No. 352, and ordered to be struck from the plan as belonging to the State, as stated in the official letter of the late governor of the province, D. V. Folch y Juan, of August, 30, 1809, in conformity with which the said number was affixed to another lot which was added to the town. I also informed him that a judicial proceeding was pending relative to a piece of ground of a triangular form, which was to be added to the lots of Beltran Souchet and Thomas Villaseca in the eastern extremity of the square, in order to correct a deformity, on their paying the price of its appraisement. The place which was destined for the building of the church, &c., is the division 24, situated between Intendencia, Romana, Del Bru, and Maresa streets, and contains 12 lots, of which, by the new map and general plan which was formed of the town, 72 feet front with the corresponding depth, were destined for the house of the King's storekeeper, D. Francisco Gonzales de Jonte; after which there is another with some houses which are said now to be D. E. Sierra's, for which lot I know no other title than that of the possession for some years. All which you will be pleased to lay before the illustrious ayuntamiento in reply to your official communication. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, October 11, 1813. (Signed) D. V. S. Pintado. Addressed to D. Juan de la Rua.

No. 5.—Reply of the ayuntamiento to the surveyor general, made on the same day, October 11, 1813. The members of the constitutional ayuntamiento of this town, having been made acquainted with the official letter which you were pleased this day to address me, determined on naming D. Francisco Gomez alderman of the said ayuntamiento, in order that, in concert with the said gentlemen, you may proceed to the formation of the plan of this town, the extent of the square or squares, and the symmetry which ought to be observed. As soon as it is finished, you will please to present it to the ayuntamiento for their approbation, and carrying the same into effect, or amending it if they deem it expedient. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, October 11, 1813. Juan de la Rua. To D. V. S. Pintado.

No. 6.—Official note of the surveyor general to the ayuntamiento, dated October 20, 1813. Pursuant to a decree of the constitutional ayuntamiento of this district, in the sitting of the 11th instant, which you communicated to me under the same date, I wait on you with a diagram for the re-partition into twelve lots of the division No. 24, which was destined for a church, in consequence of the alderman, D. F. Gomez, (authorized for agreeing upon the details of the operations referred to in the said decree of the 11th) having ordered to commence the same by said division, for the purpose of disposing immediately of the valuable lots thereof, and of four parcels of ground which became vacant by the reduction of Tarragona street to the width of only sixty feet, as you will see by the plan, by reason of the extreme distress which threatens us, and while what relates to the squares, their arrangement, and subdivision of the excess that can be properly combined and laid off, as has been ordered. As all the necessary explanation for the clear understanding of the same is subjoined in a note to the said plan, I omit a repetition here, and have only to observe to you that a duplicate of the whole remains in this office for the purpose that may be expedient. You will be pleased to present the said plan to the illustrious ayuntamiento, in order that, on the inspection of the same, they may resolve what they may consider most suitable, and to advise me of what they may be pleased to alter or modify. If the draught or diagram should be approved and ordered to be adopted, you will have the goodness to inform me thereof, and to enclose a copy of their decision in order that it may appear in evidence in due form, in the archives under my charge, adverting that the whole is marked on the ground exactly as it is represented in the plan. In the event, therefore, of its being approved, there will be nothing further to be done on my side in the matter. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, October 20, 1813. (Signed) V. S. Pintado. Addressed to D. Juan de la Rua.

No. 7.—Reply to the same, made on the 25th of said month, 1813. In an extraordinary council held by the constitutional ayuntamiento of this town, at their sitting on the 21st of the current month, the official letter which you were pleased to address to me having been read, and the plan presented for their approbation, the members of the ayuntamiento, with a full knowledge of the whole, resolved that it was perfectly regular, and met their approbation; they further directed that you should proceed, in concert with Don Francisco Gomez, until the conclusion of what remained to be measured, including the lots which the syndic stated (agreeable to the accompanying list) could be disposed of in continuation of those of the square. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, October 25, 1813. (Signed) Juan de la Rua, secretary. Addressed to Don V. S. Pintado.

No. 8.—Official letter of the surveyor general to the ayuntamiento, December 2, 1813. I wait on your honorable body with a draught of the plan for the regulating and delineation of the two squares of this town, designation of the lots for public buildings, and of those which may become salable between the two squares, formed in concert, and with the intervention of the regidor, Don Francisco Gomez, pursuant to the orders of your honorable body in the sittings of the 5th, and 21st, and 11th of October last. As soon as the said draught (or scheme) shall have been examined, and your honors may be pleased to direct its adoption, or any alterations or modifications which you may deem expedient, you will please to return it to me with corresponding annotations, for the purpose of carrying into effect what may be determined on in making the copy which would remain in my keeping. God preserve your honors many years. Pensacola, December 2, 1813. (Signed) V. S. Pintado. Addressed to the illustrious ayuntamiento of this place.

No. 9.—Official letter of the alcalde, D. Jayme Fontenals, of April 21, 1813. In the council of the 18th instant, among other things, it was resolved that an official letter should be passed to you, requesting you to furnish Lieutenant D. Bernardo Prieto, volunteer engineer in charge of the department, with a copy of the new plan, or to favor him with the diagram for the purpose of copying it, informing him of everything which it embraces, agreeable to the solicitation of the said engineer, through the medium of the governor of this province. Pursuant thereto, I communicate the same to you for your information, and that you may please to carry it into effect. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, April 21, 1814. (Signed) Jayme Fontenals. Addressed to D. V. S. Pintado.

No. 10.—Reply of the surveyor general, made April 22, 1814. In a reply to your official letter of yesterday I have to state that I have no objection to furnish the plan requested by the volunteer engineer, D. Bernardo Prieto, in order that he may copy it, and inform himself of everything which it embraces, under the express condition that it shall be returned to me as early as possible, as it belongs to this office, where it is daily wanted, seeing that it is the only document whereby the situation and figure are known of the lots sold, or ordered to be sold by this ayuntamiento, between the squares of the Constitution and Ferdinand VII, and evidence of the approbation and other requisites. You will please to name the person who is to receive it from me, in order that, at the time of its delivery, he may furnish me with the corresponding voucher. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, April 22, 1814. (Signed) V. S. Pintado. Addressed to D. Jayme Fontenals.

No. 11.—Official note of the governor ad interim, D. José de Soto, to the surveyor general, dated August 19, 1815. Please to furnish me, as soon as possible, with a duplicate copy of the plan of this town, which was made by you in consequence of the new figure which was given to it by the ex-ayuntamiento for the subdivision into lots of what was the military square, and the other ground plats destined for the church and military buildings. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, August 19, 1815. (Signed) José de Soto. Addressed to Don V. S. Pintado.

Certificate.—Don Vicente Sebastian Pintado, captain of infantry, and his Majesty's surveyor general of West Florida: I certify that the preceding, numbered from one to eleven, are conformable to the originals which are in this office under my charge, to which I refer; and in compliance with the preceding decree I give the present, in the town of Pensacola, this 13th day of the month of September, 1816. (Signed) V. S. Pintado.

Projected plan for the distribution into lots of division 24, of the town of Pensacola, which was destined for the building of the church and other public erections, agreeable to the resolution and decision of the constitutional ayuntamiento of this district, in their sittings of the 5th and 11th instant, and with the consent of the principal minister of public finance, in his official note of the 7th instant, which plan (or scheme) was formed in concert with the advice of the regidor, D. Francisco Gomez, who assisted in the operations, being authorized by the said ayuntamiento in their sitting of the 11th for this purpose, communicated to me through their secretary, at the request of the aforementioned regidor, who directed the commencement of the same before the regulation of the squares, and that a separate diagram of its subdivision, for the purpose of effecting the sale of the lots in consequence of the urgent necessity; this being the spirit of their deliberation, though not expressed in their official letter of the 11th, in which the secretary communicated to me the resolution in their sitting of the said day.

Explanations and advertencies.—The division 24, separated into two parts by Tarragona street, which is prolonged for the present, and these two parts were united, the one including Manresa street as far as division 23, the other including Bru street as far as division 25, in consequence of which it will be necessary to affix the number 24 to another division of a new location in order not to interrupt the series of the numeration of the divisions. The said two parts of the division 24 are represented in red on the plan, and contain the twelve lots designated by the numbers 353 until 367, inclusive, of which number 353 is where the house occupied by Don Francisco Jonte is situated, and 357 has some small houses of Don E. A. Sierra. The reason of passing from 353 to 357 is because the first was given, to the lot under this number in the arrangement which was made by the government and intendancy in 1808, and the 357 is that which follows in a regular series after the last number of the lots which were before located in the town, which amounted to 356. The twelve lots of which division 24 was composed are all rectangular, and their dimensions are marked in the plan in feet and inches of London, the measure in use in this town, and the dotted lines denote the fences actually existing. Tarragona street, which was of an enormous width, was reduced to sixty feet, as the regidor represented the necessity of the same. In consequence thereof, the four parcels, A, B, C, D, between the said street and lots Nos. 278, 279, 293, 294, become vacant, the dimensions of which are also noted, and what the said regidor stated, that they might be adjudicated to each of the owners of the said four lots on which the portions in question bound, for their appraised price, in order to conciliate the regulation of the street with the general and individual interest of the proprietors of the aforementioned four lots, whose names are also expressed in the plan. Pensacola, October 20, 1813. (Signed) V. S. Pintado, Francisco Gomez. The present is a copy of the one delivered to the ayuntamiento. (Signed) V. S. Pintado, Francisco Gomez.

Certificate.—Vicente Sebastian Pintado, captain of infantry, and his Majesty's surveyor general of West Florida: I certify that the present plan, with the antecedent title and explanation, is a literal copy from the original, which is in the archives under my charge, to which I refer; and, pursuant to a decree of the 4th instant, I give the present, in Pensacola, September 18, 1816. (Signed) V. S. Pintado.

Plan 2.—Draught of the new plan for regulating the two squares in the town of Pensacola, at the eastern and western extremities of the present one; determination of the extent of each, and the position and dimensions of the ground plots destined for the building of a church, and other public edifices, correction, regulation, and demarcation of the latter at present, or previously existing, and of those belonging to individuals; subdivision of the excedent ground for salable lots; representation of the public buildings according to their actual situations, &c., formed and delineated by D. V. S. Pintado, captain of infantry and surveyor general of West Florida, pursuant to an act and resolution of the illustrious ayuntamiento of this district, in their sittings of the 5th, 11th, and 21st of October last, with the concurrence of the principal minister of finance, in his official letter of the 7th of the said month, and in conformity with the directions of Don Francisco Gomez, specially authorized in their sittings of the 11th, to agree with the said surveyor in the details of the plan.

Explanations and advertencies.—To the western square, formerly called that of Ferdinand VII, has been affixed the name of the square of the Constitution, conformably to order of the general and extraordinary Cortes of 1812; and to the eastern square, formerly called Seville square, has been given the name of Ferdinand VII. The dimensions of the squares and lots projected and laid off, and of those which are actually fenced, are noted in the plan in feet and inches of London, the former with black ciphers, and the latter with red; the black lines between the two squares denote the demarcation projected, and the red represent the actual figure and situation of the lots and fences as they at present stand; the ciphers within the dotted black lines denote the width which is left to the squares and streets, and the red ciphers within the red dotted lines represent the measurements made to ascertain the situation of the existing lots and buildings, and for the purpose of showing their situation on the plan. The block-houses and other old buildings belonging to the national domain which remain in the squares and in the new street, and which now serve for magazines and barracks, as also the guard-house (a) in ruins, which remains in Commandancia street, will hereafter have to be demolished, when it may become necessary to build others, and also the house (b) in ruins which remains in Church street, and which, with the lot to the north of the barracks, (K), is claimed by the heirs of the deceased Lieut. Col. José de Noriega. The present military kitchen, (c), the present church, (d), and the house in ruins, (e).

References.—(+) lot for the church; (A) idem for the consistory and principal corps de guard; (B) idem for the public jail; (C) idem for the custom-house and revenue office; (D) the intended reduced area of the ground on which the government houses stand, and the garden, the actual dimensions of which are represented by the red lines; (E) grounds reserved for the market-house and public magazines; (F) ground and house belonging to the Rev. James Coleman, from which is taken off the portion marked for the purpose of straightening Commandancia street, and for which he is indemnified by other portions to the north and east of the lots contained between the black and red lines; (G) houses and lot belonging in moiety to Pablo Granpera and Francisco Tillas, who consented to relinquish twenty feet of the eastern side for a lane, (f) for the purpose of giving an egress from the barracks (K) to the bay on condition that a like extent should be given them on Barracks street, which was of sixty feet width, and is reduced to forty, like the others of this plan, and to whom it would be expedient to convey, for their value, the portions to the north and south, designated between the black and red lines, for the purpose of completing the regularity and symmetry; (H) lot on which stands the ball room and buildings of D. Juan Cazenave and D. Juan Francisqui; (I) ground reserved for a national hospital; (J) ground of the old barracks which were burnt, reserved with the extent laid down for their eventual rebuilding, and for their kitchens, and for those of the actual barracks, as the present one is situated on the salable lots Nos. 16 and 18; (K) actual barracks, with their area or yard, to which two portions to the east and west are added, and those to the north and south taken off; (L) lot for the building of the national magazines; (M) the present public prison and principal corps de guard, with the area which is destined for the same by the arrangements of 1807, 1808, and 1809; (N) triangle which, by the aforesaid arrangement, was directed to be added to the lots of Beltran Souchet and Thomas Villaseca, on their paying the appraised value, in relation to which the judicial proceeding was followed up; (No. 1) lot for a public school; (No. 2) lot for the parish vicar; (No. 3 until 20, inclusive,) salable lots, unless any of them should be separated for the aforesaid deceased Lieutenant Colonel. Pensacola, December 1, 1813. (Signed) V. S. Pintado, Francisco Gomez.

In this day's session the present plan was approved of in all its parts in this constitutional ayuntamiento, and the carrying the same into effect was decreed, and, by order of the same, I record it in the town of Pensacola, December 7, 1813. (Signed) Felix Talla, secretary ad interim.

Certificate.—Don Vicente Sebastian Pintado, captain of infantry, and his Majesty's surveyor general of West Florida: I certify that the present is an exact transcript from the original, which, with its explanatory notes, exist in these archives under my charge, to which I refer; and, pursuant to a decree of the 4th of September last, I give the present in Pensacola, October 31, 1816.

Note 1.—To the squares in question the names of Ferdinand VII and Seville were restored after the publication of the royal decree, dated in Valencia, 1814.

Note 2.—The copy of the old plan of the square, which was asked, is omitted, as the whole is included and represented in the present plan. Date ut supra. (Signed) Vicente Sebastian Pintado.

Petition by the Reverend James Coleman.—To the governor and sub-delegate of finance: Don Santiago Coleman, vicar and ecclesiastical judge of the parochial church of St. Michael, of Pensacola, respectfully represents to your honor that, from time immemorial, division No. 24 of this town was destined for the building of a church thereon; doubtless from its situation with regard to the ancient figure of the town, and as most conformable to the spirit of the law 8, title 7, book 4, of the Digest of the Indies. He represents that the dedication of the said lot to so holy a purpose is not of mere tradition, because, exclusive of the sanction given to the same, handed down from one to another in regular succession, it derives a further confirmation from the assent at all times given thereto by the constituted authorities, and particularly from the intendant of this province, D. Juan Ventura Morales, and the governor of the same, D. Vicente Folch y Juan; when, in the year 1807, the former proposed to the latter that the plan of the town should be regulated anew, and a permanent figure given thereto. Thus he expresses himself in the fourth observation contained in his official letter of August 26: "The ground destined for a church is diminished on the western side by the houses of the King's storekeeper, D. Francisco Jonté, and that occupied by D. Francisco Morejou; it would therefore appear proper to reduce the said lot in the same ratio on the eastern side so that the church may face the wide street, with its corresponding collateral streets, for the purpose of facilitating the communication to the part situated in the rear of the church." And the governor, in acceding to the arrangement of the new plan proposed, replies in the following words, as contained in the fifth paragraph of his official letter: "The fourth observation refers to the diminution which has taken place in the sectional division destined for a church and other public buildings by the lots on which are situated the houses of the King's storekeeper, D. Francisco Jonté, and those of Captain D. Juan Domingues, now occupied by the Lieutenant D. Francisco Morejou. If, therefore, the church and other buildings should be erected, as I have reason to believe, there is no doubt that Domingues' house, on account of its smallness and bad construction, ought to be demolished, because it was granted on this condition; that of the King's storekeeper, on account of its solidity and spaciousness, ought to be purchased for account of the crown or the public, for a rectory or dwelling of the vicar of the parish, because I consider it would be more beneficial to the King to acquire this property than to make new erections. The street may remain in the space allowed for this purpose between the said house belonging to Jonté and the lot No. 169." The surveyor general, in his official letter of March 1, 1808, accompanying the new plan submitted to and approved by the intendancy and government, likewise recognizes the said lot as appropriated for the church, as it states in the ninth paragraph: "In the series of number of lots, the four granted within the old military square are included, and also that in the occupation of the King's storekeeper, D. Francisco de Jonté, in division twenty-four, reserved for the church and other buildings." This granted, the church had an incontestable right to the said division number twenty-four, or to the greater part of it, notwithstanding there was no concession made with accustomed formalities, as the general agreement upon this point ought to be looked upon as an incontrovertible title. Notwithstanding what has been said in the year 1813, when the garrison was reduced to the last stage of distress in consequence of the inability of the government to victual them, owing to the total want of funds for the purchase of provisions, the ayuntamiento, animated by their desire to preserve the town and troops, and considering the ground in question as unfit for the high purpose for which it was intended, in consequence of its being boggy, and having no population in its rear, although in the centre of the town, directed that it should be laid off in lots and sold for the purpose of procuring supplies for the garrison and those attached thereto. These were subsequently sold, and the delineation and regulation of the squares were simultaneously ordered, agreeably to the spirit of the law 9, title 7, book 4, of the digest of these kingdoms, which was accordingly done, and the ground in the larger square of the two was designated for the building of a church and other necessary edifices for the services and uses of the same; and other lots were assigned for royal and public buildings, such as the custom-house, revenue office, corps de guard, prison, hall, and offices of the ayuntamiento, &c., and the remainder was divided into other lots which were laid off and sold in like manner as those of division 24, by beat of drum and public crier, as is the custom, for the purpose of relieving the garrison. The exponent, trusting in the firmness and stability of these dispositions, which were carried into effect with scrupulousness and solemnity, yielded his tacit consent by the mere circumstance of having made no opposition thereto; but it afterwards happened that when some of the purchasers were about to enclose and build on the lots which they had bought and paid for between the two squares, the predecessor ad interim of your honor, Colonel Don José de Soto, stopped them, and used his efforts, by writing, to have the whole annulled by superior authority, regardless of the incalculable damage and confusion which he was about to occasion; and, although the result is not known, the church has since that time been despoiled, or, at least, without any security for what belongs to it. As such a long interval has elapsed without any decision having transpired, the petitioner fears that if he should preserve a longer silence in relation to this property of the Lord, and should it be lost, he would be accused of unpardonable neglect. Therefore, following the counsel of Father Saragoza, who tells us that brevity should not be made at the cost of the object treated of, nor of perspicacity, the exponent is under the imperious necessity of submitting to your honor this prolix representation, in order that, after due consideration of its tenor, you may be pleased to decide definitely as to the allotment of the ground for the building of a church. And, if in a suitable place, and not operating to the injury, or liable to be claimed by any other individual, you will cause the proper patent to be issued, in order that, under this security, he may immediately commence taking steps to have a church built, as the store is so indecent in which divine worship is temporarily celebrated, and its being further threatened with approaching ruin, for which purpose, and there being no funds belonging to the fabric, not even the oblaña assigned by his Majesty, which has not been received during seven years, it is intended to solicit the aid of the faithful parishioners of this parish, and of those of the city of Havana, as also of his lordship the bishop of the diocese, for such contributions as their Christian piety may induce them to grant as an homage rendered to God; having recourse, at the same time, to the chief of the department of finance, in order that he may be pleased to assign therefrom the third part of the costs of same, as prescribed in the laws 3d and 5th of the second title, book 1st of the digest; I therefore beg and entreat that your honor will please to order and determine as I have solicited, being conformable to justice, and in furtherance of the service of both Majesties. Pensacola, August 5, 1815. (Signed) James Coleman.

Order.—Pensacola, September 21, 1816. Let the surveyor general report. (Signed) Maxent.

Report of the surveyor.—To the governor and sub-delegate of finance: The statement made by the vicar and ecclesiastical judge of this holy parochial church is so clear, genuine, and conformable to the documents relative to this matter which exists in these archives, and to the traditions, laws, facts, and events which he quotes, that I have only to refer to his narration of the same. The church is, indeed, despoiled of the lot which was reserved for it, and without security for the one which was afterwards designated, from the reasons which he alleges: when, by order of the late ayuntamiento, the squares were regulated and their dimensions fixed, due regard was had to what the law prescribes, law 9, title 7, book 4 of the Digest of the Indies, and which is couched in these words: "Should the principal square where the town is to be commenced be on the seacoast, it ought to be made at the landing of the port, and, should it be an inland situation, then in the centre of the town, in the form of an oblong, of at least one and a half the length of its width, because it will be more suitable for processions on horseback and others; its extent ought to be proportioned to the number of inhabitants, and it ought to be kept in view that the town may gradually increase; it ought not to be less than 200 feet in breadth and 300 feet in length, nor greater than 800 feet in length and 532 in width, and it will be of a middling and good proportion if it should be 600 feet in length, 400 in width, &c."

The 8th law of the same title and book was also taken into consideration as it relates to the locality for the building of the church, which, although the town should border on a coast, directs that it should be erected in such a situation that it may be seen from the sea, and the fabric to serve as a defence of the port, appropriating lots near the same for this purpose, and not in the continuation of the town where there are royal buildings and shops belonging to individuals." In conformity with the said laws, seeing the small extent of this town, and the inconsiderable number of its inhabitants, 356 feet English were assigned to the principal square for its width from side to side, and 620 feet English for its length, likewise extending to the bay on the shortest side; and hence the two squares are of middling extent and well proportioned, according to the spirit of the law, seeing the difference between the foot of Burgos and that of London for a town of so few inhabitants of every description, which scarce amounts to 2,000 of every color, sex, and age; having located in the principal square the lots for the erection of a church and other buildings in a suitable situation, and conformable, in my opinion, to legislative provision, and to the adaptation of local circumstances, as your honor may best acquire a knowledge of by the plan or drawing which is in the secretary's office of this government, as copied from the original, which is in the office of archives under my charge. Thus was reduced to two squares that vast plane of indeterminate space which was previously of 1,725 feet in length by 1,606 English feet, at least, in width, and which afterwards, by the two sectional divisions granted and distributed in the year 1804 by Don Vicente Folch y Juan, late governor of this province, was reduced to the same length, 1,725 feet English, and to the width of 620 feet on the shortest side as far as the bay; which are the dimensions which it still has in consequence of the suspension of what was done by the late ayuntamiento, and which is improperly called a square in all its extent, having in its centre, and scattered without order, so many houses and buildings belonging both to the crown and individuals; and even were it otherwise, what an enormous square would it be for a town like this when few of the most famous cities have one of equal extent! I have said plane of indeterminate space, because, besides the two sectional divisions, other grants of lots have been made therein to individuals; others obtained permission to build on and fence a portion thereof, and he who did not extend at discretion built without order or symmetry; and even for the garden or government house much more was taken than it before had, nothing of which would have happened if the precise dimensions of the square or squares, their form and figure, and what respectively belonged to each royal or private building, had been opportunely determined—the present conflict would thus have been avoided; but even in the general arrangement which was made in the years 1807, 1808, and 1809, this was not treated of, but left for another time. This mode of distribution and designation of the dimensions of each boundary, in order to avoid difficulties and contentions, is so conformable to the laws and customs of all civilized societies, to reason and justice, that even God himself, says David, divided among his people the promised land by measure. Divisit illis terram in faniculo distributionis. Psalm lxxviii, verse 55, and as to be read in the 18th chapter of Joshua.

This uninhabited plane was left so by the English on account of the enclosure they were obliged to make within the town for fear of an attack by the Indians when they had no exterior fortifications, and in which the garrison, and all the inhabitants, with their families, were shut up in case of an alarm. At present there remains no other vestige of the said enclosure than the buildings which served for defence, and others which at present serve for storehouses and barracks, the which were not meddled with nor any others belonging to the crown, in the delineation ordered by the ayuntamiento, except an old kitchen which has already fallen and has been demolished. There are in fact some which remain in the new street, and others in the squares, which do not obstruct the way; and of these which are already in a state of decay, it is said in the draught (or scheme) which was presented to the ayuntamiento, and approved of by them, presided by the civil and military governor of the province, that, "if the scheme should be carried into execution, it would be necessary after some time to demolish them, or else when others should be made;" for which purpose a piece of ground is reserved in the most commodious, high, and safe place for royal storehouses, as also are others for barracks, hospitals, &c., as may be clearly seen by the said plan and explanation. The lots which were laid off between the two squares for sale were, in effect, sold, or the greater part of them, with the solemnities mentioned; as were also those of the division 24, which had been reserved for the church, and one and all were paid for, as I have understood. If the sale of the first ones be made in spite of the formalities made use of and the reasons which gave rise to the occasion, it is regular that the sale of the second ones be so likewise, because, speaking like a geometrician, the things equal to the same are equal between themselves; and if there is solid foundation for such a decision, by re-delivering to the purchasers their money, things will revert to their former state. It will be just, likewise, that the church should again enter into possession of the said division 24, or of its respective portion thereof, although this part is very far from being adapted to so high and holy a purpose, or to the spirit of the law. The foregoing is as much as I can inform your honor, so that, at sight thereof, you may please to determine what may be found most conformable to justice. Pensacola, September 22, 1816. (Signed) Vicente Sebastian Pintado.

Decree.—Pensacola, September 25, 1816.—Pass it to the commander of engineers pro tempore, Don Bernardo Prieto, in order that he may report to me what he knows, and what may be his opinion in relation to the representation by the reverend vicar general of this holy church. (Signed) Maxent.

Report and opinion of the engineer.—To his honor the governor: The regulation of the town, effected by his honor the brigadier Don Vicente Folchy Juan, formerly governor of this province, appears to me to be most expedient, and that which the nature of this place requires to be adopted for the security of the general interest; the importance of which was well known to the aforesaid gentleman, ex-governor, of whom we ought not to suppose that, with his well-known intelligence, he could be ignorant of the law 9, title 7, book 4, or of the 8th of the same title, which could not be applicable to the present case, owing to the kind of materials of which all the buildings are constructed which compose this establishment, which is timber of pitch pine and light wood—a circumstance which points out the necessity of giving an apparent irregular extent to the squares they laid off, and the width of 100 feet to Tarragona street; so that, with the aid of fire engines, it ought to be hoped that, however much the number of buildings might be extended or multiplied, there would be no cause to fear, with the aforesaid precaution of fire engines, that the whole establishment might be burnt up in one conflagration. In a moment, during which the intrusive constitutional government continued, a new arrangement was formed, which was adopted by honored persons, actuated, as I believe, by the best of intentions; but who were deficient in the knowledge requisite to proceed with that judgment which the importance of the case required. Your honor is not ignorant that the foremost of the aldermen of that time were those who could sign, who had also the second misfortune to be presided by a chief whose years had already deprived him of the intellectual faculties with which nature might have endowed him in the spring of his life. It was owing to this cause, and to the circumstance of Don José Viola's immediately building his house, which to this time is the only one agreeable to the new plan, that, as was my duty, I represented and gave such a report as the case admitted of, which I duplicated on October 25, 1815; the which was done in compliance with a demand for a report thereon from me, by Col. Don José de Soto, commander ad interim of this province, dated August 16, of the same year, which I answered on the 18th, and in which are copies of all the preceding ones which were had on the particular.

I do not see how the reverend vicar general of this holy parochial church makes out that the same is hereby in anywise injured; and I rest on this, that, as there remains in both plans particular grants for the aforesaid holy church, be the decision what it may, there will always remain in one or the other the portion reserved for so high a purpose.

Neither have I evidence of the efforts of Col. Don José de Soto in opposition to the plan in question, but of a certain military frankness, which was a characteristic of him, and I am inclined to believe him incapable of overstraining his authority, or of availing himself of any subterfuge in order to favor particular ends. Pensacola, October 8, 1816. (Signed) Bernardo Prieto.

Decree.—The better to decide in this matter, let the secretary of this government put in continuation herewith a certified copy of the documents of which the commander of engineers treats in the third paragraph of the preceding report, together with copies of those which before were had on the particular, and the dates they may bear. Pensacola, October, 18, 1816. (Signed) Maxent.

Demand of a report by Governor Soto.—It being necessary that I should be instructed with regard to the innovations or variations had with respect to the lots on which royal buildings are situated, in consequence of the new arrangement given to it by the ayuntamiento, with the distribution and sale of lots by the same authority of what formed the military square, you will please to report to me what you know in this particular. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, August 16, 1815. (Signed) José de Soto. Addressed to Don Bernardo Prieto.

Reply.—The copies annexed contain the documents previously had on the side of the department of engineers, with respect to the variations which the ex-ayuntamiento ordered to be carried into execution, and which they would have effected in a short time, but for your honor's recent order to suspend all establishments until superior approbation be obtained. By those your honor will see that I knew nothing of the matter until the moment which appears; and, although the lots which comprehend the aforesaid innovations were publicly sold on distinct occasions, I never believed it could be possible they would interfere with the royal buildings, as such decisions have no connexion with those which ought to belong to a constitutional ayuntamiento, if their representation is attended to, and that that momentaneous government had not laid aside the ordinances of the royal corps of engineers of the year 1803, and the articles one and nine of the title 1 of the 3d regulation remained from that time until the latter period in full force.

This is as much as I can say in compliance with the official note which your honor was pleased to address me on date of 16th instant, to which I reply. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, August 18, 1815. (Signed) Bernado Prieto. Addressed to José de Soto.

I have casually understood that the constitutional ayuntamiento of this town have altered the plan thereof which was before adopted.

The house which D. José Viola is building has occasioned me to make the inquiry from the novelty of its position with respect to the military building to which it is contiguous; but, as I have understood that the same remark applies to the others, my duty requires me, if such be the case, to solicit your honor to use suitable measures for my obtaining from the proper person a copy of the new plan, or the original, that I may take one, with instructions of how far the innovations relate to my department, so that I may be able to comply with the provisions of the ordinance. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, April 13, 1814. Bernado Prieto. To Don Matthew Gonzales Manrique. It is a copy. (Signed) Bernado Prieto.

The alcalde of this town informs me on this date as I copy: "On this date I addressed the surveyor general, D. V. S. Pintado, as follows: In a sitting of the cabildo of the 18th instant, among other things, it was ordered that an official note should be addressed to you, desiring you to furnish the lieutenant, D. Bernado Prieto, volunteer engineer and charged with that branch, with a copy of the new plan, or to favor him with the original one that he may copy it, instructing him with respect to innovations it may contain according to what said engineer has solicited through the medium of his honor the commander of the province. I consequently communicate the same to you for your intelligence, and that you may please to act accordingly. And I advise your honor of the same for your intelligence, and that you may please to act accordingly. I advise your honor of the same for your intelligence, and the purposes which may be expedient," and I to you in reply to your paper of the 13th instant. God preserve you many years. Pensacola, April 20, 1814. Matthew Gonzales Manrique. To D. Bernado Prieto. It is a copy. Bernado Prieto.

I have received from the surveyor, D. V. S. Pintado, the plan which I solicited, as appears in the annexed copies, and so soon as the volunteer engineer, D. Nicholas Funels, shall have copied it I will remit it to you on the first occasion. I have obtained the necessary paper, which with difficulty I have been able to procure. The buildings comprehended in it are those of the old houses, block-houses, with the corps de guard, which serve as national storehouses and quarters for colored troops from Havana, which buildings would be shut up in a street. The kitchen lot of this garrison ought to be given up, and the dragoons' barracks interfere, in part, with such as must likewise be given up. The yard for the tents is altered, as is also the government house garden; on all which your honor will make such reflections as may appear to me to be involved, when I transmit you the plan in question. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, May 3, 1814. (Signed) Bernado Prieto. Addressed to D. Firmin Montano. It is a copy. Bernado Prieto.

The captain of the schooner Comet, D. Lorenzo Olivar, will wait on your honor with a copy of the plan which I made known to you in an official note of the 3d of May of the present year, No. 12, in which I have noted that the ground chosen for the storehouse is situated in such a manner that with the storms which sometimes occur in this place they would be inundated, and their contents damaged, unless they should be built with the necessary elevation, and the thickness of the walls sufficient to resist the impulse of the waves, in which case their cost would be six times more than the proceeds of the sales of the lots. The military hospital, almost in the centre of the town, appears wrong, as being inimical to public salubrity on account of the southerly breezes which prevail in summer, by which the sea would be infested, owing to its position in advance; situations are not wanting where it might be located on the outside of the town, and contiguous thereto on the north. The space which formerly took in the squares and the width of Tarragona street were calculated, with the aid of fire engines, to stop fire; but those being reduced to the limits laid down in the new plan, this idea vanishes. God preserve your honor many years. Pensacola, July 10, 1814. (Signed) Bernado Prieto, and addressed to his honor D. Firmin Montano. It is a copy. Bernado Prieto.

Certificate.—The foregoing is a copy of the original official notes which exist in this office of government under my charge, which I certify; and I give the present pursuant to the decree which proceeds from his honor the commander ad interim of this province, dated the 18th instant. Pensacola, October 19, 1816. (Signed) Carlos Reggio.

Decree.—Pensacola, October 25, 1816. Let this judicial proceeding be shown to the reverend vicar of this parish, D. Santiago Coleman. (Signed) Maxent.

Reply and petition of the Rev. James Coleman.—To his honor the governor: D. Santiago Coleman, ecclesiastical judge and vicar general of this parochial church of St. Michael, respectfully states that in consequence of your honor's decree of the 25th instant, I have seen the report of the captain of infantry, Don Vicente Sebastian Pintado, surveyor general of this province, and likewise the opinion of the commander pro tempore of engineers, Don Bernado Prieto, with annexations of the official notes which the latter cites in the third paragraph of his exposition, and which your honor thought proper to have copied in continuation, the better to decide in regard to the petition which I presented in claim of the ground or the lot on which the church ought to be built; and having attended to their expositions with the attention which they merit, I find that the report of the first is conceived in terms so clear and evident that the force and perspicacity of his reasons cannot but be admired; so demonstrative in my view, that they leave not the least obscurity on the subject, as they contain all the illustration which is requisite. That of Don Bernado Prieto presents the subject in another different aspect which it would be well to clear up; but I shall not detain myself therein as it does not belong to me, and less to investigate the military frankness of Colonel Don José de Soto, late governor ad interim of this province, (as the said engineer affirms,) nor to search out the sites and places on which he expatiates, as being foreign to the case treated of, and its being my only intention to prove that the church is despoiled, or at least without security for what belongs to it, as I stated in my petition.

The gentleman engineer says, in the fourth paragraph of his report or opinion, that he does not see, as I do, that the church is in any respect injured, and he rests on this; that as there remains in both plans particular grants for the same, be the decision what it may, there will always remain in one or the other the place reserved. Notwithstanding that division 24, which is the one reserved for the church, has become private property, as I have already stated, acquired by the owners at public sale, the assignment of the lot which was afterwards designated in its stead is pretended to be annulled, as also the regulation of the squares, and whatever else was done by order of the late ayuntamiento. Where, then, is the place reserved for the church? If we wish to commence the building so much wanted, where shall we begin? And where, then, is the reason to see that the church is not in any respect injured? The gentleman engineer will permit me to say that his assertion or opinion, in this respect, does not coincide with mine, and he must, in this case, have explained himself inadvertently, as occurs in his official notes to the director, Don Firmin Montano, dated May 3, and June 10, 1814, when, among other things, he says that what he calls dragoon barracks awaits the destiny to be sold in part, and that the ground reserved for storehouses would be subject to inundation in storms, and to damage their contents, unless a wall should be made sufficient to resist the force of the waves, &c. What I have just referred to I consider an inadvertent mistake, having before me the plan of the town; for neither that which was the dragoons' barracks, before an hospital, and now abandoned and in ruins, is among the number of lots to be sold; nor is the ground reserved for storehouses subject to inundation, nor can it ever be exposed to the force of the waves unless there should come another deluge, for it is the highest place to the north contiguous to my own house, which, in that case, would be the first inundated, and likewise the old storehouse which serves for a church, and also the government house and garden would be inundated. These mistakes have probably occasioned us the present trouble. The fact is this, that what was the old storehouse, in which divine service is celebrated, is threatened with approaching ruin, and it is to be feared that its fall may occasion the sacrifice of some innocent victims, while those who are principally the cause of the dreaded catastrophe run little or no risk; therefore, I entreat your honor that, taking into consideration the ruinous state of the actual church, its altar and ornaments exposed to the rain and bad weather, (for it is notorious that, since May, 1781, in which this place was retaken, its roof has not been renewed nor repaired with shingles,) your honor will please to determine as may be dictated by the sentiments of justice, which I ask. Pensacola, October 30, 1816. (Signed) Santiago Coleman.

Decree.—Pensacola, October 31, 1816. Let this judicial proceeding be annexed to those which follow the ones of Don Carlos Lavalle and Don Francisco Barrios in behalf of the inhabitants who purchased the lots laid off between the two squares, conformable to the last plan of this town; which was formed at the request of the late ayuntamiento, in order to render a statement of the results to his excellency the captain general of this province when opportunity may serve. (Signed) Francisco Maximiliano de San Maxent.

OPINION OF THE KING'S ATTORNEY.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The inhabitants of the town of Pensacola, representing in this judicial proceeding, have everything of justice on their side. They purchased at public sale the lots which, to-day, occasioned the dispute. The sale of them was made with the consent of all the authorities, which governed the town at that period; and those authorities all concurred in and authorized the same, impelled by the supreme law of necessity. The alternative which they proposed, therefore, is very just; for, if the contract remains firm, the free use of their lots ought to be left to them; and, if it be rescinded or annulled, the money they disbursed for their price ought to be returned to them immediately. I believe there will not be funds for the latter, and it is necessary to accede to the former; but, as there are inconveniences in this case, which are apparent from the proceedings, it seems requisite that your excellency should report the same to his majesty, with an authenticated copy of the judicial proceeding for the corresponding decision and his Majesty's pleasure. Havana, January 30, 1814. Leonardo del Monte.

I, Joseph E. Caro, secretary to the board of land commissioners for the district of West Florida, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct translation of the documents in the Spanish language.

REPORT ON BRITISH CLAIMS.

The law organizing this board of commissioners has directed us to examine and determine the validity of claims submitted for adjudication, "agreeable to the laws and ordinances heretofore existing of the governments making the grants respectively." In addition to this, the attention of the commissioners is directed to two objects in the investigation of British claims; 1st, to ascertain how far they are valid by the law of nations; and, 2d, how far they have been considered valid under the Spanish government; and, if satisfied that said claims be correct and valid, shall give confirmation to them.

The great reliance of the British claimants is placed upon the effort to prove that their titles are valid by the laws of nations. They do not pretend that they were considered valid under the Spanish government, but endeavor to avail themselves of the jus postliminium as laid down in Vattel and other writers upon the laws of nations. Let us for a moment examine the soundness of this position.

"The right of postliminium," says Vattel, "is that in virtue of which persons and things taken by the enemy are restored to their former state on coming again into the power of the nation to which they belonged." There are two modes by which they may be restored to the possession of the original proprietors: 1st, by reconquest, and, 2d, by treaty stipulation. Although prisoners of war may have given their parole, territories and towns submitted to the enemy, and sworn and promised him allegiance, yet if retaken they are to be re-established in their former condition and enjoy the right of postliminium. The acquisition of immovables is not fully consummated till confirmed by a treaty of peace, or by the entire submission or destruction of the State to which they belonged. Till then, the sovereign has hopes of retaking them, or recovering them by a peace. "Provinces, towns, and lands, which the enemy restores by the treaty of peace, are certainly entitled to the right of postliminium." "The enemy, in giving back a town at the peace, renounces the right he had acquired by arms." "But if that town," says Vattel, "had been ceded to the enemy by a treaty of peace, or was completely fallen into his power by the submission of the whole State, she has no longer any claim to the right of postliminium, and the alienation of any of her possessions by the conqueror is valid and irreversible; nor can she lay claim to them if, in the sequel, some fortunate revolution should liberate her from the yoke of the conqueror." "Its former state is absolutely destroyed; all its relations, all its alliances are extinguished."—(Vattel, b. 3, c. 14, sec. 212.) "Whatever is ceded to the enemy by a treaty of peace is truly and completely alienated. It has no longer any claim to the right of postliminium unless the treaty of peace be broken or cancelled." "It might be said, in general, that the right of postliminium no longer exists after the conclusion of the peace. That right entirely relates to a state of war."—(B. 3, c. 14.)

As the right of postliminium relates to and is founded on a state of war, it has no effect or operation except among the belligerents or allies who made a common cause, and are partakers and associates in the war.—(Vattel, b. 3, c. 14, sec. 207.) Spain and England were the only parties and privies to the war terminated by the capitulation of 1781 and the treaty of 1783. We have no evidence that the British claimants were deprived of their lands by conquest; but, even admitting it to be the fact, agreeable to the doctrines laid down in Vattel, the jus postliminium could only have been made to operate in their favor had Florida at the peace been restored to England, who was the original owner. As those private rights were recognized in the articles of capitulation and in the fifth article of the treaty, there is every reason to believe that there is no ground upon which this principle could be introduced, as that cannot be restored which was never lost by conquest. Further, as the country was ceded to Spain, the enemy and conqueror, instead of being restored to England, the original owner and nation to whom it belonged, the right of postliminium is taken away, unless the treaty be broken or cancelled. If cancelled or broken, it would be good ground of complaint to be brought by England against Spain; but it is a question in which, it is believed, the United States could not interfere. They were neither parties nor privies to the war, the capitulation, or treaty, and as such can claim no rights, and, consequently, have incurred no obligations under them.

From this view of the subject, it is considered that the principle of the jus postliminium could not be made to operate in favor of British subjects, as Florida was ceded away by her instead of being restored to her by the treaty of 1783. Had it availed anything, Great Britain would not have provided for those claimants in the treaty, or made them remuneration where they failed to dispose of their lands agreeably to the stipulations of the treaty. Upon examination it will be found equally evident that the United States are under no obligations on this occasion. They were not parties or privies to the war. Although Spain was at war with England during the latter part of the American revolution, yet we were not allies engaged in a common cause, associates in the same contest. There was no treaty of offensive or defensive alliance between them. Conceding this point, however, and it avails nothing; in order that the doctrine of jus postliminium should be introduced with effect, we should have been allies of England, who lost the country by conquest, and to whom it should have been restored either by reconquest or treaty stipulation. American citizens can occupy no better ground than the citizen of Great Britain, and those we have seen cannot avail themselves of the right of jus postliminium.

As the right of postliminium no longer exists after the conclusion of peace, the British claimants are precluded from availing themselves of it by the treaty of 1783. This instrument placed these claims entirely upon different grounds, recognized them and made provision for their disposition by the subjects of Great Britain who were inclined to emigrate. The jus postliminium has no bearing upon the subject; but the question is made to turn exclusively upon the construction of the treaty.

By the articles of capitulation, signed at Pensacola in 1781, by the commanders of the Spanish and British forces, it was provided that "the British inhabitants, or those who may have been subjects of the King of Great Britain in the said countries, may retire in full security and liberty where they shall think proper, and may sell their estates, and remove their effects, as well as their persons, the time limited for their emigration being fixed to the space of eighteen months." This indulgence was incorporated in the treaty of 1783, with the additional provision of extending the time if necessary. It is contained in the 5th article of the treaty which was ratified September 3, 1783, and is as follows: "His Catholic Majesty agrees that the British inhabitants, or others who have been subjects of the King of Great Britain in the said provinces, may retire in full security and liberty where they shall think proper, and may sell their estates, and remove their effects, as well as their persons, without being restrained in their emigration under any pretence whatever, except on account of debts or criminal prosecutions; the term limited for this emigration being fixed to the space of eighteen months, to be computed from the day of the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty; but if, from the value of the possessions of the English proprietors, they should not be able to dispose of them within said term, then his Catholic Majesty shall grant them a prolongation proportioned to that end." In the year 1785, it is said, a prolongation of four additional months was given by the King of Spain.

Upon the subject of capitulations, Vattel says "the governor of a town, and the general who besieges it, have a power to settle the terms of capitulation, and whatever agreement they thus form within the term of their commission is obligatory on the state or sovereign who has invested them with the power by which they conclude it."—(B. 2, c. 14, s. 207.) It was no doubt upon this principle that the provision of the article of capitulation in favor of British claimants was incorporated in the 5th article of the treaty of 1783, and also for the purpose of consummating the arrangements. This was necessary, as Vattel declares that "immovable possessions, lands, towns, provinces, &c., become the property of the enemy who makes himself master of them; but it is only by the treaty of peace, or the entire submission and extinction of the State to which these towns and provinces belonged, that the acquisition is completed, and the property becomes stable and perfect."—(B. 3, c. 13, s. 197.)

In examining the phraseology of the 5th article of the treaty, it appears that all British claimants were entitled to the indulgence; not only "British inhabitants," but those "who may have been subjects of the King of Great Britain in the said provinces." Those who were citizens of the United States at the date of the treaty, if they had been subjects of the King of Great Britain in said provinces, were entitled to every indulgence in the disposition of their property. If they failed to avail themselves of those provisions, it is their own neglect, and they cannot but charge themselves with the consequences. The treaty is to be construed like any other contract, and if the parties have not complied with the conditions, they are compelled to abide the result or submit to the penalty. Their claims occupy precisely the same ground, however different may be the character of the claimants. Agreeably to the spirit, at least, of national law, Spain was authorized in requiring such a provision as that contained in the 5th article of the treaty. "Every State," says Vattel, "has the liberty of granting or refusing to foreigners the power of possessing lands or immovable property within her territory. If the sovereign does not permit aliens to possess immovable property, nobody has a right to complain of such a prohibition, for he may have good reason for acting in this manner; and, as foreigners cannot claim any right in his territories, they ought not to take amiss that he makes use of his power and of his right in the manner which he thinks most for the advantage of the State."—(B. 2, c. 8, s. 114.) The sovereign may also forbid the entrance of his territories either to foreigners in general or in particular cases, or to certain persons, or for certain particular purposes, according as he may think it advantageous to the State.—(B. 2, c. 7, s. 94.) The King of England had likewise the power and right to accede to the stipulations in the 5th article of the treaty of 1783: "The necessity of making peace authorizes the sovereign to dispose of the property of individuals; and the eminent domain gives him a right to do it."—(Vattel, b. 4, c. 2, s. 12.) In the treaty of 1783, the property of individuals was not ceded away absolutely, but only conditionally, where the claimants failed to dispose of it within the limitation.

If Spain refused to extend the time, as contemplated in the 5th article of the treaty, it was a subject of complaint by England against that government. The United States could not interfere in deciding such a question, as it would be an infringement of the independence of the original parties concerned.—(Vattel, b. 2, c. 4, s. 54; b. 4, c. 4, s. 40; Preliminaries, s. 9.) But it was not the fact that England complained or remonstrated on the occasion. Upon the expiration of the term within which the British claimants were to return and dispose of their property, that government made compensation to her citizens, which was an acknowledgment that she had no complaints or demands against the King of Spain. With this fact before them, it would not become the American government to interpose in the contracts of other sovereign powers, and declare that either had failed in compliance.

Most sovereign States have adopted, in some shape or other, the principle contained in the 5th article of the treaty, in order to prevent foreigners from owning real property within their limits, and thereby obtaining an influence which might be wielded to the injury of the country. It was, no doubt, principally from this consideration that the 5th article of the treaty was framed and incorporated in that instrument. In effect it required "the British inhabitants, or others who may have been subjects of the King of Great Britain in the said provinces," either to remain in Florida as citizens of Spain or to dispose of their property within the limitation. From the language of the articles, they appear to have had their election; and it is believed that where they failed to avail themselves of the indulgence secured by this provision of the treaty, or to obtain the confirmation of the Spanish authorities, which was equivalent to a release, the lands were considered vacant, and subject to forfeiture. Similar provisions are contained in the treaty of 1763 which are found in the proclamation of General Gage, bearing date December 30, 1764, addressed to the inhabitants of Illinois and Vincennes, respecting their lands, upon taking possession of their country by the troops of his Britannic Majesty. In Sierra's case, Governor O'Neil declares that the time had expired within which British claimants were to return and dispose of their property, and it is understood that it was regranted whenever applications were made to that effect. The 8th section of the act of Congress passed March 30, 1803, making provisions for the disposal of the lands of the United States south of the State of Tennessee, and the 1st section of the act passed July 5, 1812, upon the same subject, expressly recognize the fact of Spain having regranted lands originally granted by the British authorities in West Florida. The board of royal treasury, by a decree dated September 24, 1801, at New Orleans, which was founded upon official proceedings instituted to ascertain the buildings and lots in Pensacola to which the King of Spain was entitled by conquest, and from absolute relinquishment of the same by proprietary owners, exposed those houses and lots to sale at public auction. Whenever they were presented, after a limited period, they were either confirmed or declared to be forfeited by the Spanish authorities. It was the policy of the Spanish government to have their lands settled and cultivated; foreigners were, as far as possible, excluded, unless they were Catholics. In their concessions, the petitioner was required to take an oath that no foreigner was interested in the land solicited, and that he or she would not convey to such at a subsequent period. A difference in religion was not tolerated. Such was the effect of these regulations that most of the English removed from Florida, particularly from East Florida, after the treaty of 1783.

These facts combined are conclusive as to the opinion entertained by the Spanish authorities in relation to the validity of such claims. Had those now under consideration been brought into controversy before the Spanish tribunals anterior to the cession of the country to the United States, there can be no hesitation in believing that they would have been declared null and void. The British claimants have not attempted to make out a valid title under the Spanish government, nor to show that the Spanish tribunals would have considered their claims valid and correct. They are, no doubt, satisfied of their weakness upon this ground, and it accounts for those claims being permitted to lie dormant in the hands of the proprietors for upwards of forty years. During this period no notice was given of their existence; many were unlocated, and none in actual occupation of the proprietors. The King of England's proclamation bearing date October 7, 1763, by which the governments of East and West Florida are created, vests the governors with the power to grant and dispose of lands "to any such person or persons, upon such terms, and under such moderate quit-rents, services, and acknowledgments, as have been appointed and settled in other colonies, and under such conditions as shall appear to us to be necessary and expedient for the advantage of the grantees and the improvement and settlement of our said colonies." The governors were authorized to grant lands to new settlers and to reduced officers of the army and navy in the following proportions: To any person having the rank of a field officer, 5,000 acres; to any captain, 3,000 acres; to any subaltern or staff officer, 2,000 acres; to any non-commissioned officer, 200 acres; to any private man, 60 acres. No limits, except that of the advantage of the person and the improvement and settlement of the colonies, are imposed upon grants to new settlers; but the proclamation expressly declares that all these grants are subject to the same conditions of cultivation and improvement. Further, no plat is filed in some cases to show that they ever were surveyed, and the warrants, which require upon the face of them that they should be located in six months from the time at which they were issued, are entirely floating claims. No evidence either has been presented to show that the conditions subsequent upon which the perfect grants were made have ever been fulfilled. This, alone, agreeable to Blackstone, renders the claims at least voidable, and may be declared void by the commissioners. Under such circumstances we do not believe they would be recognized as possessing any validity under the laws of England, the government from whence they emanated.

Whether the British claims are ipso facto void or only voidable, the United States are entitled to the rights and immunities of Spain by a transfer of the sovereignty and domain of Florida, under the treaty of February 22, 1819. Admitting that they are only voidable, the United States and their tribunals can declare them void, as did the Spanish authorities. If Spain could regrant them and sell them at public auction, the United States, as the successor of Spain, are entitled to all the advantages resulting from a similar disposition of the property. As Spain, in her practical construction of the treaty, has viewed those claims as subject to forfeiture whenever they have not been regranted or confirmed by her legal authorities, they must be vacant, and, consequently, belong to the public domain. The doctrine of prescription, as a bar to such claims, as well as the plea attributing their want of location and compliance with conditions to the peculiar situation of the country, are also superfluous, as it is admitting claims to exist which have been forfeited. The Partidas, as cited upon the subject of appeals from the judgments of Spanish tribunals, is equally far from being in point, as it could only apply between parties and privies within their legal jurisdiction. Under no circumstances would this law and the doctrine of prescription avail the claimants anything against the government, however effectual they might be in a private controversy. Neither can they derive any advantage from a non-compliance with the 5th article of the treaty, unless they can also show that they have received a confirmation or conveyance from the Spanish government to the land in question. Were the United States to recognize those claims it would be altogether a gratuity, an act of munificence, and not one which was the result of legal obligation. Congress are competent to make such a grant; but, as a special court of legal jurisdiction, we have no such authority, and can exercise no discretion upon the subject.

In the treaty between Spain and the United States no provision was made for British claimants, but only such as emanated from his Catholic Majesty and his lawful authorities; and, by the law organizing this board of commissioners, none are to be examined except those claimed and owned, bona fide, by American citizens, and for which no compensation has been made by the British government. This has been construed by the claimants as a recognition of postliminary rights; but if the law is examined, it will be found to be a mistake, as the commissioners are first directed to ascertain whether they are valid by the law of nations, how far they were so considered under the Spanish government, and, after this inquiry, are made the judges whether they are valid and correct and entitled to confirmation.

It is believed that the commissioners have no power to declare a forfeiture in those cases where the claim exceeds 3,500 acres. Here they are only intended to act as an inquest or court of inquiry, and furnish Congress with the facts upon which a forfeiture may be declared. It is their province to ascertain what lands belong to individuals, as distinguished from those which have accrued to the United States under the treaty. Those arising from forfeiture constitute as perfect a class of rights as those to the soil which has never been appropriated to individual uses; they appertain, in all regular governments, to the sovereignty and domain, and cannot be separated from them.

From every view which we have been enabled to give this subject, we are constrained to declare all British claims within our jurisdiction, which were not confirmed by Spain or disposed of in conformity with the fifth article of the treaty of 1783, forfeited, void, and of none effect. They are not valid by the law of nations, and would not be considered valid under the Spanish government. We are, therefore, convinced that they are not valid and correct; and, agreeably to the provisions of the law organizing this board, they must be rejected. With respect to the British claims, exceeding 3,500 acres, we believe the reasons contained in this opinion are altogether applicable, and request that they may be received as our report in both cases.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

Seventh. A general abstract and report upon claims, some of which fall within the preceding classes, and others of an anomalous character.

This abstract embraces all the claims which have been examined subsequent to the date of those already forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury. It also includes such cases of an anomalous character as have not hitherto been reported in preceding classes. The testimony in relation to a few of them has been received after the expiration of our session as fixed by the act of Congress. This was done for the purpose of reporting as many cases as practicable, and, if possible, enabling Congress to act upon all the claims which we have examined during their present session.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

SAML. R. OVERTON.
JOSEPH M. WHITE.

A general abstract of claims confirmed, rejected, and reported by the undersigned commissioners.

1. Carlos Barron, present claimant and original grantee, a gratuitous concession, dated December 18, 1817, for 800 arpents, on Escambia river, issued by Governor Masot, surveyed by Antonio Balderas July 5 and 6, 1820, and cleared and cultivated from 1818 to 1820. This claim was rejected by mistake in abstract G, but upon further examination has been confirmed.

2. Celestino Gonzales, present claimant and original grantee, a gratuitous concession, dated December 20, 1817, for 1,800 arpents, on Escambia river, issued by Governor Masot, surveyed by Pedro Reggio, December 18 and 19, 1818, and cleared and cultivated from 1818 to 1820. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked A.

3. Miguel Hernandez, present claimant and original grantee, a gratuitous concession, dated September 10, 1817, for 600 arpents, on Escambia river, issued by Governor Masot, surveyed by Antonio Balderas May 11, 1821, and cleared and cultivated from 1818 to 1819. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked A.

4. Vicente Sebastian Pintado, present claimant and original grantee, a concession for cutting wood and as a remuneration for services as interpreter, dated December 2, 1816, for 2,180 arpents, in Escambia county, issued by Governor Maxent, and actually settled before the cession of Florida to the United States. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked A.

5. James Gooch present claimant, Gabriel Rivas original grantee, a gratuitous concession, dated October 16, 1817, for 400 arpents, on Escambia river, issued by Governor Masot, cleared and cultivated in 1818. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked A.

6. Daniel Malloy, who is proved to be twenty-one years of age and the head of a family, claims 640 acres, in Escambia county, which he occupied and cultivated from 1818 to 1824. This claim was reported in the second class of donation claims marked I, but upon further examination is found to belong to the first class marked H, and as such has been confirmed.

7. Noah Colhoon, who is proved to be twenty-one years of age and the head of a family, claims 640 acres, in Escambia county, which he occupied and cultivated from 1818 to 1819. Confirmed as belonging to first class of donation claims, marked H.

8. The heirs of Whitters Brinson claim 640 acres in Escambia county. They prove that their ancestor was twenty-one years of age and the head of a family, and occupied and cultivated said land from 1816 to 1819. Confirmed as belonging to first class of donation claims, marked H.

9. Mariana Bonifay, present claimant and original grantee, a certificate showing that the two arpent lots, Nos. 54 and 55, were commuted for three garden lots, and given in exchange by the government, issued by Governor Masot, and dated April 30, 1818. Confirmed.

10. Carlos Lavalle present claimant, Gilberto Guillmard original grantee, a grant for public services of lot No. 234, eighty feet front by one hundred and seventy deep, issued by Intendant Morales, dated February 26, 1810. Confirmed.

11. Carlos Barron, present claimant and original grantee, a gratuitous concession for two arpent lots, Nos. 20 and 21, dated April 22, 1811, issued by Intendant Morales, surveyed by V. S. Pintado March 20, 1811, and built upon and enclosed from 1811 to 1821. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked D.

12. Eugenio Antonio Sierra present claimant, James Ross original grantee, a British patent for lot No. 169, dated October 29, 1765, issued by George Johnstone, esq., surveyed by Elias Durnford July 11, 1765, and built upon and enclosed from 1780 to 1825. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked D.

13. Eugenio Antonio Sierra present claimant, Samuel Tucker original grantee, a British patent for lot No. 204, dated September 13, 1766, issued by George Johnstone, esq., surveyed by Elias Durnford August 26, 1766, and built upon and enclosed from 1780 to 1825. Confirmed as belonging to class of claims marked D.

14. Marcos Devilliers claims a double lot No. 245, a part of which he purchased at auction August 20, 1804, surveyed by V. S. Pintado November 14, 1810; the other part he obtained as a gratuitous concession July 19, 1816; issued by Governor Zuniga, surveyed by Antonio Balderas August 16, 1820, and built upon and enclosed from 1814 to 1824. Confirmed.

15. Francisco Colein, present claimant and original grantee, a concession of lot E as a remuneration for loss of cattle, dated November 24, 1817, with a title in form dated November 28, 1817, issued by Governor Masot. This lot was reserved upon the new plan of the city, as laid out by the cabildo, for a market-house. The testimony in this case proves the claim to be antedated and fraudulent.

16. Eugenio Lavalle, present claimant and original grantee, a concession of lot L as a remuneration for services rendered as head armorer, dated November 22, 1817, issued by Governor Masot, surveyed by Antonio Balderas June 30, 1821. The testimony in this case proves the claim to be antedated and fraudulent.

17. John B. Gazenave, present claimant and original grantee, a concession of lot J and a lot on the square of Ferdinand Seventh, adjoining that of Manuel Gonzales, seventy feet front and extending to the bay, as a remuneration for damages sustained in preserving the public ordnance, &c., in one of his houses, dated August 16, 1817, issued by Governor Masot, surveyed by Antonio Balderas May 24, 1821. Lot J was reserved upon the new plan of the city for building barracks. The testimony in this case proves the claim to be antedated and fraudulent.

18. John B. Cazenave, present claimant and original grantee, a concession for a lot without number, extending from the Tivoli lot, marked H, 500 feet into the bay, for the purpose of building a wharf, dated October 5, 1817, issued by Governor Masot. The condition of building a wharf was never fulfilled.

19. Joseph Cevallos, present claimant and original grantee, a concession of lot I for public services, dated January 12, 1818, issued by Governor Masot. This lot was reserved on the new plan of the cabildo for an hospital. From an examination of the concession, it has been antedated and is believed to be fraudulent.

20. Joseph Gomes, present claimant and original grantee, a gratuitous concession for 800 arpents, in Escambia county, dated December 4, 1818, issued by Governor Masot. Rejected for a non-compliance with conditions, as belonging to class of claims marked G.

21. Francisco Rocheblave, present claimant and original grantee, a gratuitous concession for 800 arpents, on the bay of Escambia, dated November 25, 1817, issued by Governor Masot. Rejected for non-compliance with conditions, and a belief that it is antedated and fraudulent, as belonging to class of claims marked G.

22. The trustees of the parish church of St. Michael claim a church and the ground on which it stands, measuring 101 feet in length and thirty-eight feet in width, marked (d) in the new plan of the cabildo. The claim is founded on prescription; the trustees proving that it was consecrated as a church

May 8, 1781, and has been occupied as such ever since with the acquiescence of the public authorities. We therefore recommend it to Congress for confirmation.

All which is respectfully submitted by the undersigned commissioners.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 1, 1825.

SIR: The undersigned commissioners, appointed to ascertain titles and claims to lands in East Florida, beg leave to acquaint you, for the information of the Congress of the United States, that they have found it utterly impossible to complete the duties assigned them by the act of February 27, 1824, in the time limited by that act.

The inability of our secretary to translate and record the voluminous documents filed in support of titles to lands within the period limited has been before represented to the proper department. It will be seen by the enclosed statement what his labors have been since his appointment, and how necessary it is that the commissioners should be authorized to employ assistant translators and clerks should Congress think proper to extend the time for ascertaining claims, &c., in East Florida.

It may not here be improper to remark, that in not more than one-quarter of the claims are the original grantees the present owners. In a very large number of cases the property has been conveyed two, three, and four times. These conveyances as well as the original grants were always made in the Spanish language previous to the cession of 1821.

The office abstracts, which we are authorized to receive by the last act of Congress, facilitate but very little the proceedings of the board. They are necessarily made in the Spanish language, and consequently have to be translated. The concessions made in virtue of the royal order of 1790 being upon conditions, much time has been consumed and much labor bestowed in collecting and arranging the testimony to prove the conditions performed; witnesses have been frequently compelled to travel 50 and 100 miles. The mass of testimony collected in the cases upon which we have already decided is so great that we cannot possibly have it copied to send on with the list of the cases herewith presented. Our secretary has not been able to attend to the recording of the claims decided upon. A clerk has, however, been employed upwards of three months, and with the utmost industry he has not recorded more than thirty-four claims. They average twenty-one pages each, of seventy-two words. He has likewise rendered this board other services which could not be dispensed with, and for which he has not received any compensation.

It will be seen by reference to the descriptive lists of the claims herewith forwarded, that in many instances the surveys have been made long after the date of the grants. This has been owing, in some cases, to the unsettled state of the country previous to the cession; the Indians have sometimes interfered to prevent surveys; and, indeed, within the last season, attempts have been made by them to obstruct the surveying of lands within eighty miles of St. Augustine. A course has been pursued by some of the claimants calculated, if submitted to, to injure the United States; and we think proper to point it out to Congress in order that such instructions may be given to the surveyor general as may prevent such a result. To obtain grants of land, the practice under the Spanish government was, for the applicant to set forth in a memorial to the governor his wants, and asking for lands corresponding to the number of his family at some particular place described in his memorial. To these applications the usual reply of the governor was, "let the lands asked for be granted without injury to a third person." If the grantee, upon examination, did not take the lands granted, he again by memorial applied for a change of location, and in many instances leave has been given. Recently, say since 1818, persons to whom lands were granted previous to that time at places designated in their memorials have, without any application for leave to do so, changed their locations, and had lands surveyed at one hundred miles distant from the spots asked for and granted them. This course does not appear to have been sanctioned by the government; and, indeed, it seems so contrary to the interests and policy of the Spanish government that we cannot for a moment believe that such a course would have been allowed or tolerated. In confirming the claims, or in recommending them for confirmation, the commissioners have looked only to the grants. The surveys, where they do not correspond with the grants, should not, in our opinion, be at all attended to, but that the surveyor general should be instructed to survey the lands claimed at the places pointed out in the memorials and grants.

The commissioners have declined making a report upon a number of large grants under the royal order of 1815, and which have been submitted for adjudication. It is believed that testimony may be in a short time procured which will have an important bearing upon the grants made in virtue of that order; and as a very large proportion of the lands claimed in the territory have been granted under it, we have considered it important to delay making at this time a final report of them. This delay will not operate to the prejudice of the claimants, as, from the want of sufficient clerks, the testimony and records necessary to be submitted to Congress cannot be prepared in time for that body to decide at its present session upon the validity of their titles.

In an edict of his Catholic Majesty, dated Madrid, June, 8, 1814, it is ordered that, in the distribution of lands, "the intendants, &c., shall adhere to the laws of the Indies, and particularly to the royal instruction of October 15, 1754." We have not been able to procure the latter document, and we suggest the propriety of applying through our minister at Madrid for a copy of it.

We have inquired of the secretary, and find that the bare sum of twelve dollars and sixty-four cents has been received on account of the recording fees under the former act of Congress, and that the board have never received any sum whatever to apply towards lessening the expenses of the commission. We have the honor to remain, very respectfully, your obedient servants,

DAVIS FLOYD.

GENERAL REMARKS.—No. 111. See claim No. 2, report No. 10, 1825.

No. 123. No evidence to prove the interference with a British grant, although it has been suggested; therefore confirmed.

The board are unanimously of the opinion that the cases herewith reported were valid Spanish grants, made previous to January 24, 1818, and therefore confirm them to the claimants.

DAVIS FLOYD,
GEORGE MURRAY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, December 29, 1824.

SECOND SESSION.—1824.

No. 1.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

John F. Brown vs. The United States. Claim to fifty-one acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John F. Brown sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of fifty-one acres, situated on the north side of St. John's river, and known by the name of Dame's Point, comprised in two islands divided by a neck of land and marsh in front of said river, bounded on the east by St. John's river, on the south by St. John's river, and on the north by a line running north 80° west, 123 chains, and on the west by a line running north 20 chains, and by a marsh, agreeable to a plat herewith exhibited, and marked F; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Josiah Gray, dated February 16, 1816, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who sold the same to George Fleming, as per deed marked D, and dated March 8, 1819, and sold by George Fleming to your memorialist as per deed marked E, dated November 22, 1820, herewith exhibited. And your memorialist further sheweth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the Territory of Florida and resident of the said lands.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN F. BROWN.

[Translation.]

To his excellency the governor:

Don Joseph Gray, inhabitant of this province, established in Fernandina, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That he is desirous of establishing himself in the cultivation of lands and the cutting of timber on the banks of the river St. John's, with his slaves, for which purpose he hopes your excellency will be pleased to attend to his request by granting him, on the terms you may think proper, and to a subject who in said town was enrolled in the militia and performed the daily duty during the threatened assault which it suffered since the last evacuation thereof by the United States, four hundred acres of land in the following places: One hundred acres of land in the place called Dame's Point, St. John's; one hundred in that known as James Richards', Clapboard creek; and the remaining two hundred in the place called Newcomb's creek, Wm. Christopher, which places are vacant; and assures your excellency that, should you be pleased to grant him the same, he will cultivate and improve it. In virtue of which he prays your excellency will be pleased to grant him said lands to remove thereon immediately with his family, consisting of himself, his wife and daughter, and six slaves, being a favor for which he will be grateful. Florida, January 9, 1816.

JOSIAH GRAY.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 9, 1816.

Let the civil and military commandant of Amelia island report relative to the particulars to which the interested refers, and also of the slaves which he possesses, and their ages, that, according to which, I may order what may be most convenient.

COPPINGER.

To his excellency the governor:

The interested in this memorial has proved that he has six slaves, and the family which he cites, being of very industrious habits, without vice, as it has been in my power to observe for more than seven months that I have been commanding in this town. As to what respects his services and fidelity, the certificate of the captain and lieutenant proves it; for which reason I am of opinion that your excellency may be pleased to grant him the land to which he is entitled, as he pledges to be a useful inhabitant of this province. Notwithstanding all of which, your excellency will be pleased to determine what you may think most convenient. Fernandina, February 9, 1816.

BENITO DE PANGUA.

St. AUGUSTINE, February 16, 1816.

In consequence of what appears by his Majesty's royal order of March 29, 1815, relative to the quantity of land to be distributed to those who have served in the militia during the insurrection of the province, there appertains to Don Joseph Gray, his wife, and six slaves which he owns, two hundred and fifty acres, according to the rules which are observed for this purpose; in virtue of which, let him be informed that he put in continuation and point out the place that suits him, and a minute description of its boundaries, that, with this knowledge, the title of property can be given him from the notary's office, without any other requisite, and without injury to a third.

COPPINGER.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

[Translation.]

To his excellency the governor:

Don Josiah Gray, a resident and inhabitant of this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That, for the ends that may be advantageous to him, he requires that, by the notary of government, there be given to him in continuation a certified copy of the plat and certificate made by the surveyor, Don George Clarke, of the land which this government granted to the memorialist at a place known as Dame's Point, on the north side of the river St. John's; which plat is on file in the archives of the said notary.

He therefore prays that your excellency will be pleased to order that his request be attended to, being ready to pay the customary fees, which gift he hopes to obtain from the justice of your excellency. St. Augustine, March 8, 1819.

JOSIAH GRAY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 8, 1819.

Agreeably to his request.

COPPINGER.

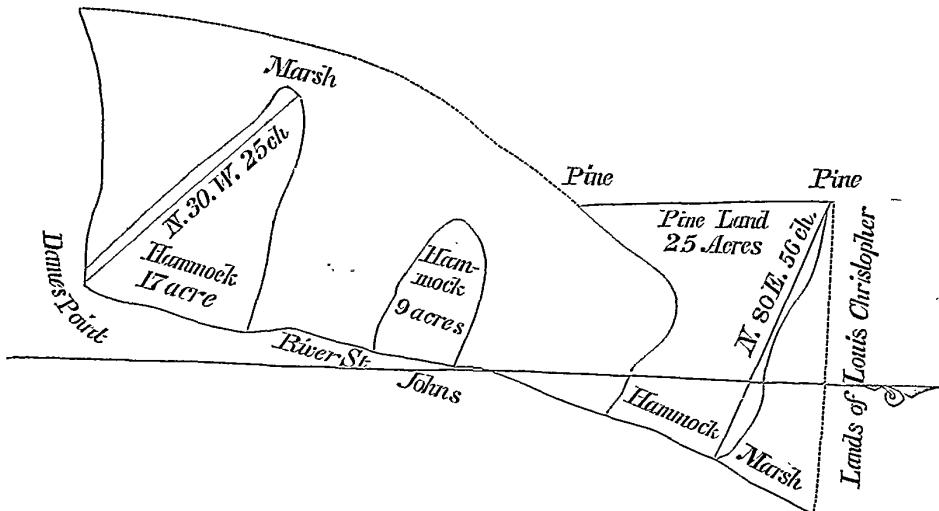

Before me: JUAN DE ENTRALGO, Notary of Government.

In St. Augustine, on the same day, month, and year, I notified the preceding to Don Josiah L. Gray.
I attest:

CERTIFICATE.

Don George Clarke, lieutenant of the local militia of St. Augustine, Florida, and surveyor general, appointed by the government of the same city and its provinces: I certify that I have measured and laid off for Don Josiah Gray fifty-one acres of land in the place known by the name of Dame's Point, on the north side of the river St. John's, being part of a large quantity granted him February 16, 1816, and conformable in all its parts to the following plat, a copy of which remains in the book of surveys under my charge. Fernandina, May 6, 1816.

GEORGE J. F. CLARKE.

Conformable to its original, copied in my presence by Don Andrew Burgevin, an intelligent person; and as respects the figure of the plat and the rest contained therein, as literally taken from the original, which remains in the archives under my charge, to which I refer; and in compliance with what is ordered on the preceding decree, I seal and sign the present copy in St. Augustine, Florida, March 8, 1819.

[L. S.] JUAN DE ENTRALGO, Notary of Government.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.
F. J. FATIÖ, S. B. L. C.

[Here follows a conveyance of the 51 acres by Josias Gray to George Fleming, dated March 8, 1819; also, a conveyance from George Fleming of the said 51 acres to John Flagg Brown, (the claimant,) dated November 22, 1820.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant previous to January 24, 1818; that the grantee, after the above date, located the fifty-one acres at the place set out in his memorial; that he conveyed the same by deed to George Fleming, who conveyed the same by deed to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to him and his heirs. April 17, 1824.

No. 2.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

John F. Brown vs. The United States. Claim to ninety-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John F. Brown respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of ninety-five acres, situated in a place called Clapboard creek, on the north side of the river St. John's, consisting of a small island called Pilot's, and pine barren near it separated from said island, bounded by Big and Little Clapboard creeks, on all other sides by marsh and pine barren; first line runs north, twenty-five chains; the second line runs west, fifteen chains; the third line runs south fifty degrees west, twenty-five chains; the fourth line runs south seventy-six degrees east, thirty-six chains, agreeable to a plat herewith exhibited of the same, and marked C; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Josiah Gray, dated February 16, 1816, by Governor Coppinger, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who sold the same to George Fleming, as per deed marked A, dated March 8, 1819, and sold by George Fleming to your memorialist, as per deed marked B, and dated November 22, 1820, herewith exhibited. And your memorialist further showeth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the Territory of Florida, and resident on the said lands. All which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN F. BROWN.

To his excellency the governor:

Don Joseph Gray, an inhabitant of this province, established in Fernandina, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That he is desirous of establishing himself in the cultivation of lands and the cutting of timber on the banks of the river St. John's, with his slaves, for which purpose he hopes your excellency will be pleased to attend to his request, by granting him, on the terms you may think proper, and to a subject who in said town was enrolled in the militia, and performed the daily duty during the threatened assault which it suffered since the last invasion thereof by the United States, four hundred acres in the following places: One hundred acres in the place called Dame's Point, St. John's; one hundred acres in that known as James Richards', Clapboard creek; and the remaining two hundred in the place called Neucomb's creek, Wm. Christopher, which places are vacant; and assures your excellency that, should you be pleased to grant him the same, he will cultivate and improve it; in virtue of which he prays that your excellency will be pleased to grant him the same. He will cultivate and improve it, in virtue of which he prays that your excellency will be pleased to grant him said lands, to remove thereon immediately with his family, consisting of himself, his wife, one daughter, and six slaves, being a favor for which he will ever be grateful. Florida, January 9, 1816.

JOSIAH GRAY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, January 9, 1816.

Let the civil and military commandant of Amelia island report relative to the particulars to which the interested refers, and also of the slaves which he possesses, and their ages, that, according to which, I may order what may be most convenient.

COPPINGER.

To his excellency the governor:

The interested in this memorial has proved that he has six slaves, and that the family which he cites being of very industrious habits, without vices, as it has been in my power to observe for more than seven months that I have been commanding in this town. As to what respects his services and fidelity, the certificate of the captain and lieutenant proves it, for which reason I am of opinion that your excellency may be pleased to grant him the land to which he is entitled, as he pledges himself to be a useful inhabitant of this province. Notwithstanding all which, your excellency will be pleased to determine what you may think most convenient. Fernandina, February 9, 1816.

BENITO DE PANGUA.

ST. AUGUSTINE, February 16, 1816.

In consequence of what appears by his Majesty's royal order of March 29, 1815, relative to the quantity of land to be distributed to those who have served in the militia during the insurrection of the province, there appertains to Joseph Gray, his wife, and six slaves which he owns, two hundred and fifty acres, according to the rules which are observed for this purpose. In virtue of which, let him be informed that he put in continuation and point out the place that suits him, and a minute description of its boundaries, that with this knowledge the title of property can be given him from the notary's office without any other requisite, and without injury to a third.

COPPINGER.

To his excellency the governor:

Don Josiah Gray, an inhabitant of this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That, for the ends that may be advantageous to him, he requires that, by the notary of government, there be given him in continuation a certified copy of the plat and certificate made by the surveyor, Don George Clarke, of the land which this government granted to the memorialist in the small island called Tilot's island, and the pine barren adjacent to the same, both places situated on the creek called Clapboard creek, on the north side of the river St. John's; which plat is on file in the archives of the said notary. He therefore prays that your excellency will be pleased to order that this request be attended to, being ready to pay the customary fees. Which gift he hopes to obtain from the justice of your excellency. St. Augustine, Florida, March 8, 1819.

JOSIAH L. GRAY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 8, 1819.

COPPINGER.

Agreeably to his request.

Before me: JUAN DE ENTRALGO, Notary of Government.

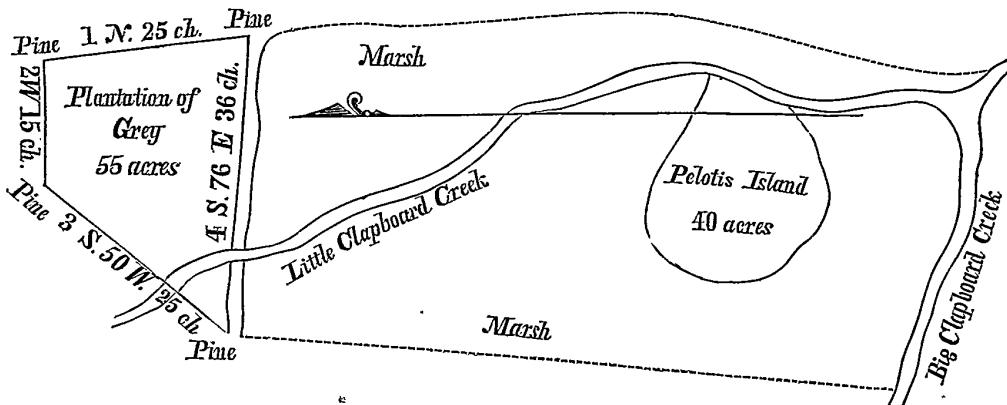

In St. Augustine, on the same day, month, and year, I notified the preceding decree to Don Josiah L. Gray. I attest:

CERTIFICATE.

Don George Clarke, lieutenant of local militia of St. Augustine, Florida, and surveyor general, appointed by the government of the same city and province: I certify that I have measured and laid off for Don Josiah Gray ninety-five acres of land on a small island, and on the pine barren adjacent to the same, both places situated on a creek named Clapboard creek, on the north side of the river St. John's, being part of a larger quantity granted him by the government February 16, 1816, and conformable in all its parts to the following plat, a copy of which remains in the book of surveys under my charge. Fernandina, May 8, 1816.

GEORGE J. F. CLARKE.

Conformable to its original, copied in my presence by Don Andrew Burgevin, an intelligent person; and as respects the figure of the plat, and the rest contained therein, are literally taken from the original which remains in the archives under my charge, to which I refer; and, in compliance with what is ordered in the preceding decree, I seal and sign the present copy in St. Augustine, Florida, March 8, 1819.

John F. Brown vs. The United States. Claim to ninety-five and fifty-one acres.

MEMORIAL.

Francis J. Fatio, being duly sworn, says that, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the signature of Juan de Entralgo, who was notary in this city in the year 1816, and whose name appears to the documents in the above cases, are in his handwriting.

F. J. FATIO.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertains this to be a valid Spanish grant previous to January 24, 1818; that the grantees, after the above date, located the ninety-five acres at the place set out in his memorial; that he conveyed the same by deed to George Fleming, who conveyed the same by deed to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to him and his heirs. April 17, 1824.

Mariano A. Berta vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and eighty-six acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Mariano A. Berta respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of or supposed to consist of one hundred and eighty-six acres, situated in the county of St. John's, on Cartel Point neck, bounded on the north by lands granted to Pachiti. The first line begins at a stake, and running south 83° west, 55 chains, bounded on the east by Guana creek, on the west by the North river, and on the south by lands of John Andrew. Your memorialist is not able to set forth the other lines, the said tract having never been properly surveyed. Which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Andrew Pacetyl, deceased, by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, on October 26, 1815, whose widow sold the same to your memorialist June 20, 1822. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that his name is Mariano A. Berta; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine.

George Atkinson vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of George Atkinson, by George Gibbs, his attorney, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and fifty acres, situated on the east side of the river St. John's, known by the name of Colonel Castle, bounded on the north by the lands of Francisco Richard, on the south by lands of Francisco Richard, on the east by a line running north 20° west, 75 chains, and on the west by St. John's river, agreeable to a plat herewith exhibited of the same, and marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to William Hart by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, who sold the same by his attorney Don Tomas de Aguilar, as per power of attorney, marked B, to George Atkinson, as per deed marked C, herewith exhibited. And your memorialist further sheweth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, in actual possession of said land; that he is a citizen of the State of Georgia, and resident of the city of Darien. All which is respectfully submitted.

Title of property in favor of William Hart of the plantation called Colonel Castle.

Don Juan José de Estrada y Toro, lieutenant colonel of the army, commandant of the third battalion of Cuba, which garrisons this city, and civil and military governor pro tempore of the same and its province:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be laid off for them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that William Hart having presented himself as one of them, there were granted him by this government, under date of November 28, 1801, the plantation called Colonel Castle, containing ten caballerias and seventeen acres of land, situated on the river St. John's, of this said province; which plantation, on account of its first owner, John George Knowles, having abandoned it, the same was granted to Joseph Pons, December 16, 1795, and in consequence it was exchanged by this person with the above-mentioned Hart; the dimensions and boundaries of which are as follows: The first line runs north 70° east, commencing at a laurel marked with a cross, on the banks of the river St. John's, and ends at a pine with the same mark, bounding the lands of Don William Jones, measuring 60 chains; the second line runs north 20° west, beginning at the said pine, and ends at a stake with the same mark, on the banks of the said river, as appears by the certificate given by Captain Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for the distribution and survey of lands, dated January 24, 1792, and its corresponding plat, attested by Don Samuel Eastlake, who was surveyor in said measurement; which certificate, as well as the two already named in favor of Pons and Hart, are attached to the proceedings instituted by the last, through his attorney Don Tomas de Aguilar, praying there should be granted him the corresponding title of the said land, which he has measured and laid off, and of which he is in possession; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his right to the said land in the form it has been given to others; that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession have elapsed to obtain said lands in fee simple and absolute property; that he has built houses thereon, and cultivated the same, and finally performed all and singular the conditions established by the government for the gifts and concessions of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the same proceedings: Wherefore, and in consideration of all of which, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, to the said William Hart, and those who may succeed him, the above-mentioned ten caballerias and seventeen acres of land which the said plantation contains, in absolute property; and in granting, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said land; and I cede and transfer it to the said William Hart, and to those who may succeed him, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer and alienate it at their will and pleasure. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of his Majesty, of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, October 4, 1801.

MEMORIAL.

To his excellency the governor:

William Hart, an inhabitant of this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That he intends dedicating himself to the raising of stock, for which purpose he has obtained a small number of various kinds; and, having found on the plains of St. Pablo a piece of vacant pine barren, containing about two hundred acres, as your memorialist has not been granted, until the present, any land whatever, he therefore prays that your excellency will be pleased to grant him the two hundred acres set forth, for the purpose of establishing himself on said land, with his wife and two children under the age of eight years; a gift which he hopes to merit from the justice of your excellency. St. Augustine, Florida, June 17, 1816.

WM. HART.

DECREE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA, June 19, 1816.

Grant to the memorialist the two hundred acres of land which he solicits without injury to a third.

COPPINGER.

Don Thomas de Aguilar, ensign of infantry of the army and secretary of government of this city and province: I certify that the foregoing copy is truly taken from the original on file in the office under my charge; and, in virtue of what is ordered, I give the present in St. Augustine, Florida, June 19, 1816.

THOMAS DE AGUILAR.

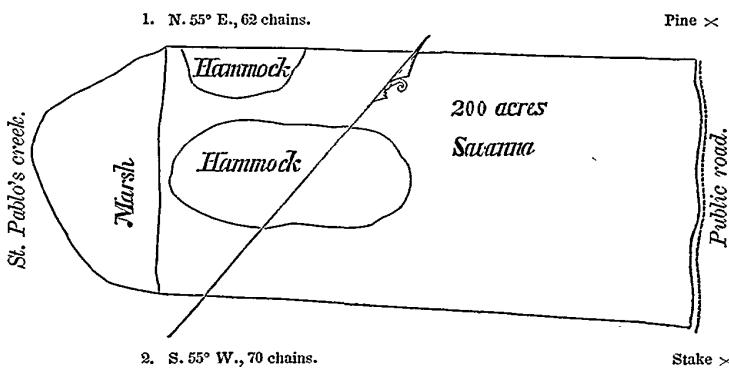

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

Mary Smith vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to land in East Florida.

The petition of Mary Smith (late Mary Tharp) sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and fifty acres, situated on the creek called Chica. The first line runs south 55° west, 43 chains; the second line runs south 42° east, commencing at a stake marked with a cross at the edge of said creek, 40 chains; which title your memorialist derives from a royal grant made to your memorialist February 25, 1809, by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that she is in actual possession of said lands; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, September 12, 1823.

CLARKE, Attorney for Mary Smith.

Title in favor of Donna Maria Tharp of the plantation called Saw-pit Bluff.

[Translation.]

Don Enrique White, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor of this city of St. Augustine and its province:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, land should be laid off for them gratis in proportion to the number of laborers each family may have; that Don John Tharp having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the government, and there were granted, measured, and delivered to him, ten caballerías and seventeen acres of land in the plantation called Saw-pit Bluff, being part of those he is entitled to, according to the number of his family, which he declared on oath; which land is known and distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: The first line runs south 55 degrees west, 43 chains, begins at a pine, marked with a cross, on the creek of the little bar, and ends at a stake, with the same mark, on the banks of a small creek; the second runs south 42 degrees east, 40 chains, commences at a stake, with a cross, on the banks of the said small creek, and ends at another with the same mark of a cross. This land has two fronts; one of which runs along the creek of the little bar, and the other on the banks of a small creek running through a marsh, as appears from the certificate given by Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for said partition and measurement of lands, dated April 22, 1792, and its corresponding plat signed by Don Samuel Eastlake, who was surveyor at said measurement, which certificate and plat are on file in the archives of the present notary; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his right to said land in the form it has been executed to others; that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession have elapsed to obtain said lands in fee simple and absolute property, built houses thereon, cultivated them, and finally performed all and singular the conditions established by the government for gifts and concessions of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the proceeding instituted by Don James Smith, in the name of his wife, Donna Maria Tharp, legitimate daughter and only heir of the aforementioned Don John Tharp, deceased, praying there should be given in favor of his said wife the corresponding one to said land which has already been measured and laid off: Wherefore, and in consideration thereof, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, to the said Donna Maria Tharp, daughter and only heir of the aforesaid Don John Tharp, deceased, and to those who may succeed her, the said ten caballerías and seventeen acres of land which said plantation contains in absolute property; and in granting her, as by these presents I do grant her, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said; and I cede and transfer it to the said Donna Maria Tharp, and those who may succeed her, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their wish, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my judicial authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal finance, and registers, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 23, 1809.

Title in favor of Donna Maria Tharp of the plantation called Rich Plantation.

Don Enrique White, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and chief of the royal finance of the same and its province, by his Majesty:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their own free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be laid off for them gratis, in proportion to the number of laborers each family may have; that Don George Tharp having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the government, and there were granted, measured, and delivered him thirteen caballerias and seventeen acres of land in the plantation called Rich Plantation, being the full complement of these he is entitled to according to the number of his family, which he declared under oath, which land is known and distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: The first line runs S. 17° W., 22 chains, commences at a stake marked with a cross, on the banks of the river Nassau, and ends at a pine with the same mark; the second runs S. 80° W., 85 chains, begins at said pine, and ends at another with the same mark; the third runs N. 30° W., 40 chains, begins at the last-mentioned pine and ends at another, with the same mark of the cross, on the banks of the aforementioned river Nassau. The front of these lands runs along the margin of said river, as appears from the certificate given by Captain Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for said partition and measurement of lands, dated March 22, 1793, and its corresponding plat, signed by Don Josiah Dupont, who was surveyor at said measurement; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his right to said land in the form it has been executed to others, that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession have elapsed, to obtain said lands in fee simple and absolute property, built houses thereon, cultivated them, and finally performed all and singular the conditions established by the government for gifts and concessions of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the proceedings instituted by Don James Smith, in the name and jointly with Donna Maria Tharp, legitimate daughter and only heir of the aforementioned Don John Tharp, deceased, praying there should be given in favor of the said Donna Maria, his wife, the corresponding one to said land, which has already been measured and laid off: Wherefore, and in consideration thereof, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, to the said daughter and heiress of the said Don John Tharp, deceased, and those who may succeed her, the said thirteen caballerias and seventeen acres of land which said plantation contains, in absolute property, and in granting her, as by these presents I do grant her, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said lands, and I cede and transfer it to the said Donna Maria Tharp, and those who may succeed her; in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or may in any manner by right belong or pertain thereto; and, being their wish they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my judicial authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government of his Majesty and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 23, 1809.

George W. Martin vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to land in East Florida:

The petition of George W. Martin, of Georgia, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred acres, situated on the west side of St. John's river, at a place called Big Swamp, in front of Dutch island, bounded eastwardly by St. John's river, seventy-five chains; northwardly by vacant lands, forty chains; and south by vacant lands; which title your memorialist derives from a royal grant made to Charles W. Clarke by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, who sold the same to your memorialist, as is seen by conveyances herewith filed, marked A and B. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is legally seized and possessed of said lands, a certificate and plat of which is herewith filed, marked C, and dated May 30, 1820; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the State of Georgia. All which is respectfully submitted, &c.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case produced to the board a concession, without condition, to Samuel Sauls for the land in question by Governor Estrada, dated October 10, 1815; also, a conveyance by deed from said Sauls to claimant. In consideration of which, we confirm the same to claimant and his heirs.

APRIL 30, 1824.

Abraham Bellamy vs. The United States. Three hundred and fifty acres of land.

A. Bellamy, jr., being sworn, says that Abraham Bellamy was in possession of said land between six and seven years, and bought it from S. Sauls; does not know how long said Sauls was in possession of said land; says that when A. Bellamy purchased said land it appeared to have been cultivated for some years.

Mr. Segui, being sworn, says that the document now before the board is a copy of a concession by Mr. Aguilar, government secretary, and knows the handwriting and signature to be Mr. Aguilar's, who then acted as the secretary of the government.

Louis Mattair vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Louis Mattair sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred acres, situated on the south side of the river St. John's, at a place called Box's Branch, bounded as follows, viz: on the north, south, and west, by vacant lands, and on the east by Box's Branch; the first line runs west, 33 chains; the second line runs north, 80 chains; the third line runs east, 33, and the fourth line runs south, 80 chains; agreeably to a plat herewith exhibited, marked B; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to him October 4, 1815, as is seen by a document marked A, and certificate of survey and plat marked B, herewith filed. And your memorialist further sheweth, that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, legally seized and possessed of said land; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Pablo, in the Territory of Florida. All which is respectfully submitted, &c.

LOUIS MATTAIR.

[Translation.]

MEMORIAL.

To his excellency the governor:

Louis Mattair, a native and inhabitant of this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That, on account of the revolution of this province in the beginning of 1812, he was obliged to retire with his large family from his plantation on the main land, where he was established in a good and comfortable manner, which he abandoned on account of the ruinous incursions of the insurgents, doing so for the purpose of maintaining his fidelity towards the government, which he has always preserved in the island, as appears by the certificates of the commandant, Don Francisco Rivera, and captain of district, Don Philip Robert Yonge, on file in the office of the government secretary; and said revolution being at an end, he returned to his said plantation to commence anew his improvements, which he found destroyed, as well as his stock and the rest of his property which he was obliged to leave on account of his precipitate flight; and said losses being re-established in part, he was again obliged to fly on account of the revolution of the latter end of the year 1813, obliging him to return to this place, leaving all to absolute ruin; and as he finds it out of his power to return to said plantation, not only on account of the want of means, but also the insecurity which as yet exists on the main land of this frontier, he therefore humbly prays that your excellency will be pleased to grant him a piece of land which there is vacant in this island, between the lands of Don Domingo Fernandez and Don Santiago Carlier, containing three hundred acres, and is composed of low pine barren, with only thirty to forty acres fit for cultivation, and the rest only fit for grazing of his cattle: a donation which he hopes to receive from the goodness of your excellency on account of his services and ruined situation. Fernandina, September 12, 1815.

LOUIS MATTAIR.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, September 26, 1815.

Let it be passed to the civil and military commandant of Amelia island that he may report what he may think necessary relative to this petition; which, when done, let the proceedings be returned, with the certificates the petitioner obtained of the lands which he wishes to exchange, that, in consequence thereof, I may order what may be most convenient.

ESTRADA.

REPORT.

To his excellency the governor:

In compliance with the preceding decree, I cited the petitioner to appear, and, after being advised, he said it was not his intention to abandon the land he has on the main, which he considers as his property, but as the circumstance of the little security there in cultivating them until there are better disposed inhabitants in that part, he hopes your excellency will have the goodness to accede to the donation of the new tract he solicits in this island, which is vacant; and for the greater security, the surveyor, Don George Clarke, will report what he may think necessary on this subject, that, according to what is set forth, your excellency may be pleased to make said concession to this inhabitant, who is worthy of the same, as I have been informed. Fernandina, October 21, 1825.

BENITO DE TANGUA.

REPORT.

To the commandant:

The land which the interested solicits is about three miles distant from this town, to the south, and is, as he says, of an inferior quality and vacant.

GEO. J. F. CLARKE.

DECREE.

Having seen the preceding reports, grant to the interested the three hundred acres of land in the place which he solicits, without injury to a third; and for the possession thereof, let there be given him, from the secretary's office, the necessary certificate, which will serve him as security.

ESTRADA.

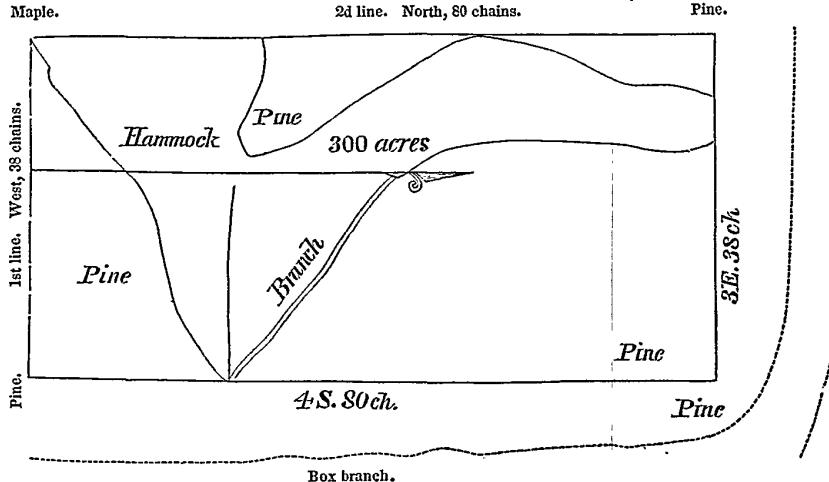

Don Thomas de Aguilar, ensign of the army and secretary of the government of this city and province, by his Majesty: I certify that the foregoing is well and truly taken from its original on file in the office under my charge; and, in compliance with what is ordered in the superior decree of this day, I give the present for the security of the interested in St. Augustine, Florida, October 24, 1815.

THOMAS DE AGUILAR.

Don George J. F. Clarke, lieutenant of militia of St. Augustine, Florida, captain of the district of St. Mary's, and surveyor general, by appointment of the government, of the same city and its province: I certify that I have measured and laid off for Don Louis Mattair three hundred acres of land on the south side of the river St. John's, and place called Box's Branch, in lieu of an equal quantity granted him in Amelia island, October 24, 1815, resulting afterwards to be the property of Don John Bachelot, which land is conformable in all its parts to the following plat and its copy in the book of surveys under my charge. St. Augustine, August 3, 1817.

GEO. J. F. CLARKE.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from two documents in the Spanish language.
F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

DECREE BY THE BOARD

In this case we find that the claimant obtained a concession for the land which he claims from Governor Estrada, October 24, 1815, and which was surveyed by the surveyor general appointed by the Spanish government. We therefore confirm the same to claimant and his heirs. April 30, 1824.

Louis Mattair vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed on claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Louis Mattair sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and fifty acres, situated at the head of Pablo creek, and known by the name of San Ramon, bounded as follows: on the west by Pablo creek, on the south by a line running north 75° west, 27 chains; on the east by a line running south 25° west, 60 chains; and on the north by a marsh, as will appear by a plat marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to the heirs of Da. J. Espinosa, January 25, 1811, by Gov. White, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident on the said lands. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

LOUIS MATTAIR.

Title of property in favor of the heirs of Donna Josefa Espinosa, deceased, of the plantation called San Ramon.

Don Enrique White, brigadier of the royal armies, civil and military governor, and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by a royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that, to those foreigners who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be granted and measured to them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that Donna Josefa Espinosa having presented herself as one of them, she solicited of the governor, and there were granted, measured, and delivered her, four caballerias and seventeen acres of land in the plantation called San Ramon, being part of those she is entitled to according to the number of her family, which she declared under oath; which land is known and distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: the first line runs south 70° east, 30 chains, begins at an oak marked with a cross, and ends at a stake with the same mark; the second line runs south 20° east, 45 chains, begins at said stake, and ends at a pine with the same mark of the cross; the third runs north 70° west, 40 chains, begins at said pine, and ends at a stake with the same mark. This line, with a morass, bounds the lands of Don Juan McQueen, known as the "Favorable," and are situated at the head of St. Pablo creek, and on San Diego, as appears from a certificate given by Captain Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for said partition and measurement of lands, dated May 14, 1793, and its corresponding plat, signed by Don Josiah Dupont, who was surveyor at said measurement; which certificate and plat are on file in the archives of the present notary. And as no title whatever has been given her for the security and evidence of her right to the said land in the form it has been executed to others, that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession have elapsed to obtain said lands in fee simple, built houses thereon, cultivated the same, and finally complied with all the other conditions established by the governor for the donations and concessions of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and made known in the proceedings instituted by Don Joseph Sanchez, as executor and heir of the said Donna Josefa Espinosa, deceased, and in the name of the other heirs, praying that there should be granted the necessary title of the land which has been measured and laid off, and of which they are in possession: Wherefore, and in consideration thereof, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty and of his royal justice, which I administer, to the above-mentioned heirs of Donna Josefa Espinosa, deceased, the said four caballerias and seventeen acres of land which the said plantation, San Ramon, consists of, and to those who may succeed them, in absolute property; and in granting them, as by these presents I do grant them, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said land, and I cede and transfer it to the heirs of Donna Josefa Espinosa, and to those who may succeed them, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my judicial authority as far as possible, according to law, and in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of his Majesty, and governor and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, January 25, 1811.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant made previous to January 24, 1818, by claimant producing a title of absolute property for this land from Governor White, dated January 25, 1811, to the heirs of Josefa Espinosa, deceased, who conveyed the same to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to him and his heirs. April 30, 1824.

Moses E. Levi vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Moses Elias Levi respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred and seventy-five acres, situated on the plains of St. Diego, which title is acquired through a purchase made by your memorialist from Antonio Mier, who obtained it by a grant from the Spanish government made by Governor Coppering, dated February 16, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815. Your memorialist further represents that he is a citizen of the United States; and your memorialist further represents that the above land is bounded on the north by the land of Lozano Ortega, on the south by those of Nicholas Sanchez, on the east by the seat, on the west by the main road. St. Augustine, September 16, 1823.

M. E. LEVI.

[Translation.]

Title of property of two hundred and seventy-five acres of land in favor of Antonio Mier.

Don José Copinger, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city and its province:

Whereas, in the royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the gifts and premium proposed by my predecessor, the Brigadier General Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as local militia of this province, who contributed in its defence at the time of the rebellion, being one of said gifts the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of family each individual may have; that Don Antonio Mier having presented himself, making known his services in said defence, and soliciting the quantity conformably to himself, his family, and slaves, there was granted to him two hundred and seventy-five acres of land in the plains of San Diego, bounded on the north by the lands of Lozano Ortega, on the south by those of Don Nicholas Sanchez, on the east by the beach, and on the west by the King's road; all agreeably to the regulations established by this government for the distribution of lands, and to the number of white persons and slaves he has declared his family to consist of, and according to my decree of this day on the proceedings brought forward by the said Mier, which remain on file in the government notary's office: Wherefore I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty, to the said Don Antonio Mier the above-mentioned two hundred and seventy-five acres, without injury to a third person, in the place already pointed out for him, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and I hereby, and by these presents, deliver him the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, and from the right which it held in said land; and I cede and transfer it to the aforesaid Don Antonio Mier, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any claim whatever, with all its appurtenances, usages, customs, rights, privileges, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their wish, they may sell, cede, transfer, barter, or alienate it at their will and pleasure. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as possible, and according to law, and in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 16, 1816.

ROYAL TITLE.

Don Juan José de Estrada y Toro, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, commandant of the third battalion of the infantry regiment of Cuba, governor political and military pro tem., and chief of the royal domain of this city and province of St. Augustine, Florida:

Whereas, by a royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, amongst other things, that lands shall be measured gratis to foreigners who, of their own free will, offer themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, in proportion to the laborers which each family may have; that Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer, of this vicinity, having presented himself, he solicited of the government, and had granted to him, under date of December 13, 1800, one thousand acres of land, between the Great and Little rivers, about twelve miles to the south of the post of St. Vincent Ferrer, for the rearing of stock and cultivation, as appears by the certificate given by the secretary of this government, despatched on the same date, which is added to the protocol moved for by the interested, soliciting that a corresponding title be delivered to him for the above-mentioned lands, which are bounded on the east by lands granted to Don Bernardo Segui, and on the north, south, and west by vacant lands; and there not having been delivered to the said Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer any title for the security and confirmation of his dominion over the said lands in the same form in which it has been executed for others, who have passed more than ten years of uninterrupted possession, in order to obtain an useful and direct dominion over the said lands he erected buildings on them, cultivated them, and complied with the other conditions which the government has established for concessions and grants of this nature existing in the titles delivered to other settlers, as the same proceeding shows: Wherefore, and in consideration of all, I have granted, and, in the name of his Majesty, do grant unto the said Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer the thousand acres of land for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property, and despatch to him, as I do by these presents, the suitable title by which I separate from the royal domain all right and dominion it possesses over the said lands, and cede and transfer it to the said Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it without any encumbrance whatsoever, with all its entrances, outlets, customs, rights, and services which it has had, has, and by fact and law belong to or may appertain to it; and at their will sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. In all which I interpose my authority, as I can, and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the under-named notary pro tem. of the government and royal domain, in the said city of St. Augustine, Florida, July 15, 1815.

JUAN JOSÉ DE ESTRADA.

William and John Lofton vs. The United States. Claim to fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of William and John Lofton, residents of Florida and citizens of the United States, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of fifty acres, situate on Amelia island, at the place called Cabbage Spot, bounded by lands of Teran y Lamb and vacant lands, as per certificate of Juan de Pierra, then secretary to the government, herewith delivered, dated September 10, 1800, but has not been surveyed; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to their father by the Spanish government, to which the said certificate alludes. And your memorialists further state that the said lands were in actual possession of their said father during his life and of your memorialists, so far that it is not claimed by any other person, but is now unoccupied. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimants.

Peter Miranda vs. The United States. Claim to two thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Peter Miranda respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two thousand acres, situated on the west of the river St. John's, in East Florida, at a place called Bernard, bounded on the west by the plantation called Spring Garden, on the north of lands of Zephaniah Kingsley; which title your memorialist derives from a concession dated March 29, 1815, made to your memorialist by Governor Coppering, and confirmed by an absolute grant made by said Governor Coppering, dated December 12, 1817, a certified copy of which is herewith presented. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in legal possession of said lands, and has been ever since the concession and grant; that at the time of the concession and grant he was a resident of St. Augustine, East Florida, and subject of the King of Spain, and has ever since continued, and now is, a resident of St. Augustine. All which is respectfully submitted.

Title of property for two thousand acres of land in favor of Don Pedro Miranda.

Don Joseph Coppering, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province, by his Majesty:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the gifts and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as militia of the province, and other individuals of the same who contributed to its defence at the time of the revolution, (being one of said rewards the distribution of lands;) that Don Pedro Miranda, first pilot of the bar of this port, having presented himself, soliciting, in virtue of said rewards, and of his merits and services rendered, a concession of two thousand acres of land, which was granted to him to the west of St. John's river, at the place called Bernard, bounded on the west by the plantation of Spring Garden, and on the north by the plantation of Mr. Zephaniah Kingsley, as will appear by my decree of the first day of July last, placed in the memorial of the interested of the same date, which is on file in the archives of the present notary: Wherefore, I have thought proper to grant, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the aforesaid Don Pedro Miranda the two thousand acres of land at the place pointed out, without injury to a third, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said lands, and I cede and transfer the same to the aforesaid Don Pedro Miranda, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy the same, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and hereditaments which it had or may have, and of right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, and transfer the same as they may think proper. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as I can, and of right ought to, in virtue of the sovereign will.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain the claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph Summerall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of four hundred acres, situated on Wills' creek, near Julington creek, and is known by the name of Boggy branch, bounded as follows: the first line runs south 34° east, 60 chains; second line runs south 20° east, 20 chains; the third, north 70° east, 50 chains; the fourth, north 20° west, 20 chains; the fifth, north 34° west, 60 chains; the sixth, south 50° west, 50 chains, as appears by the survey and plat herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a decree made to him on a memorial by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, dated June 25, 1815, and herewith presented by copy; and your memorialist further sheweth that he is now, and was at the time of the cession, in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, September 17, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

MEMORIAL.

To the governor:

Don José Summerall, an inhabitant of this province, with due respect, states to your excellency that, desiring to continue engaged in the exercise of agriculture and the rearing of cattle, he has found a piece of vacant land for that purpose, situated on an arm of the river named Wills' creek, known by the name of Boggy branch, distant from the river of Julington about four miles, more or less, to the northeast, in which place I hope your excellency will be pleased to grant me four hundred acres in order to make my establishment, which favor I hope to merit from your excellency. St. Augustine, June 25, 1815.

JOSÉ SUMMERALL.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, June 25, 1815.

Let four hundred acres of land be granted to the interested in the place mentioned, without prejudice to a third person, and for his security let the necessary certificate be delivered by the secretary.

ESTRADA.

Don Thomas de Aguilar, sub-lieutenant of the army and secretary of the government of this city and province, for his Majesty: I certify that the foregoing copy is faithfully taken from the original, to which I refer; and, by virtue of command, I give these presents, at St. Augustine, Florida, June 28, 1815.

THOMAS DE AGUILAR.

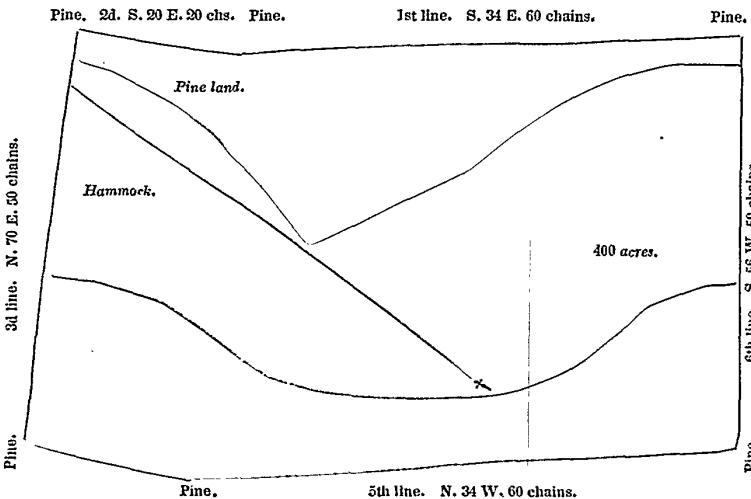

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

[Translation.]

Don George Clarke, captain of the northern district of East Florida, and surveyor general of the same, by order and commission from this government: I certify that I have measured and marked the limits of four hundred acres of land to Don José Summerall, at the head of Boggy branch of Julington creek and the east side of the river St. John's, which land was granted to him by the government on June 26, 1815, conformably with the following plan and its copy, which I keep. St. Augustine, May 15, 1821.

GEORGE J. F. CLARKE.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that the claimant obtained the land in question by a concession without condition from Governor Estrada to him, dated June 25, 1815, and which land was afterwards surveyed. We therefore consider the concession a valid one, and confirm it to claimant and his heirs. June 4, 1824.

Antonio Proctor vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and eighty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to land in East Florida:

The memorial of Antonio Proctor respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title in fee simple, absolute, in and to a certain tract or parcel of land containing one hundred and eighty-five acres, situated and being in the county of St. John's, in East Florida, about five miles distant from the city of St. Augustine, in said county, to the westward of a grove called Orange Grove, and bounded on the north, south, and west by vacant lands, and on the east by lands belonging to Philip Edinburgh, a free man of color; that the said tract of land was granted without condition and in absolute property to your memorialist March 18, 1816, under the authority of the Spanish government, by Don José Coppinger, then governor of East Florida, in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain of March 29, 1815, as will appear by a certified copy of the original grant of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives of East Florida hereto annexed, and marked exhibit A, reference being thereto had. Your memorialist further shows that possession of the said tract of land was taken by him soon after the grant thereof to him; that he has had it in his actual occupancy from that time until the present; and that the said land was surveyed in virtue of an order of the then governor of East Florida for your memorialist on December 18, 1818, as will appear by the original plat of such survey hereto annexed, marked exhibit B, reference being thereto had. Your memorialist further shows unto your honors that he was, at the time of the making the said grant to him, and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and settler of and in East Florida and a subject of the King of Spain; that he is now, and has been ever since the said cession, an inhabitant of East Florida aforesaid. Wherefore your memorialist prays confirmation of his title to the said tract of land and its appurtenances in conformity to the acts of Congress in such case made and provided. And your petitioner will ever pray, &c.

ANTONIO PROCTOR,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

Title of property for one hundred and eighty-five acres of land in favor of Antonio Proctor.

Don José Coppinger, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city and its province, &c.:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the donations and rewards proposed by my predecessor, the Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as the militia of this province, who contributed in its defence at the time of the rebellion, being one of said rewards the partition of lands in proportion to the number of family each individual may have; that Antonio Proctor, a free black, having presented himself, soliciting the quantity himself and his family were entitled to on account of his peculiar services, he was granted 185 acres five miles distant from this city, on the other side of the ferry, and to the west of a hammock known by the name of the Orange Grove, bounded on the north, south, and west by vacant lands, and on the east by those belonging to Philip Edinburgh, a free black, all according to the regulations established by this government for the distribution of lands, and, as ordered by my decree of this day, in conformity with the advice of the military judge, (auditor de guerra,) placed on the proceedings instituted by the aforesaid Antonio Proctor, on file in the notary of government's office: Wherefore, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty, to the said Antonio Proctor the above-mentioned 185 acres of land, without injury to a third, in the place already pointed out, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said land; and I cede and transfer it to the aforesaid Antonio Proctor, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as I can, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal finance, in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, March 8, 1816.

Ramon Sanchez vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Ramon Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title in fee simple, absolute, in and to a certain tract or parcel of land containing 200 acres, situated and being in the county of St. John's, in East Florida, on the south side of the river St. John's, at a place known by the name of the Ship Yard, distant about half a mile from the place called San Vincent Ferrer, commencing on the west side of a creek of the same name. That the said tract of land was granted to your memorialist without condition, and in absolute property, on April 19, 1816, by Don José Coppering, then governor of East Florida, in virtue of a royal order of his Catholic Majesty the King of Spain of March 29, 1815, as will appear by a certified copy of the said grant thereof hereto annexed, marked exhibit B, reference being thereunto had, the original grant being of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives of East Florida. Your memorialist is unable to set forth in any other manner than he has done the situation and boundaries of the said tract of land, a survey of the same having never been made. Your memorialist further shows that he is a native, and was, at the time of the cession of the Territory of Florida to the United States, an inhabitant, resident, and settler of and in East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; that he is now, and has been ever since the said cession, an inhabitant, resident, and settler of East Florida. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title to the said tract or parcel of land, and its appurtenances, in conformity to the acts of Congress in such case provided. And your memorialist, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

RAMON SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JNO. DRYSDALE.

Title of property in favor of Don Ramon Sanchez for two hundred acres of land at a place called Ship Yard.
Don José Coppering, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem, and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the donations and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as militia of this province, who contributed in its defence during the rebellion, being one of said rewards the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of family each individual may have; that Don Ramon Sanchez, a private of the company of local militia of this city, having presented himself, soliciting the quantity himself and his slaves are entitled to, there were granted him two hundred acres of land on the south side of the river St. John's, in a vacant place called the Ship Yard, half a mile distant from St. Vincent Ferrer, beginning on the west of the creek of the same name, all conformable to the regulations established by this government for the partition of lands, and to himself and slaves which he has proved his property consists of, and according to my decree of this day annexed to the proceedings instituted by the said Sanchez, filed in the notary of government's office: Wherefore, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty, to the aforesaid Don Ramon Sanchez the above-mentioned two hundred acres of land, without injury to a third, in the place already pointed out for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting them, as by these presents I do grant them, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said land; and I cede and transfer it to the above-mentioned Don Ramon Sanchez, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it at their will and pleasure. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary pro tem. of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, April 19, 1816.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francisco P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land consisting of one hundred acres, and being in East Florida aforesaid, at the head of the North river, at a place called Quiqui, in Diego plains; that the said tract of land has the following lines and dimensions, and had at the time of the survey thereof the following boundaries: that is to say, the first line begins at a palmetto tree, and runs east 36 chains, and is bounded by Diego plains; the second line runs south 30 chains to a pine tree, and was bounded by lands of one Juan Tate; the third line runs from the said pine tree west 30 chains to a stake, and was bounded by lands of one Juan Tate; the fourth line runs from the said stake along the bank of a creek at the head of the North river to the place of beginning, and is bounded by the said creek, as will more distinctly appear by a reference to the original plat of the survey of the said land, bearing date June 30, 1818, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A; which said survey was made by the surveyor, Andres Burgevin, in virtue of an order for that purpose by Governor Coppering. Your memorialist further shows that the said tract of land was originally granted to one Joseph Fernandez by a concession of November 20, 1806, in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain of October 29, 1790; that the said land was confirmed to the said José Fernandez on June 19, 1816, by a grant thereof without condition, and in absolute property, made by Don José Coppering, then governor of East Florida, as will more fully and at large appear by a certified copy of the said grant now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B; that the said Fernandez conveyed the said land and its appurtenances in absolute property to one Joseph Simeon Sanchez on September 4, 1816, as will appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said conveyance herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C; that the said Joseph Simeon Sanchez kept possession of the said land, and cultivated it for some time; and afterwards, that is to say, on the 16th day of July, he conveyed the same and its appurtenances to one Pablo F. Fontane, as will fully and at large appear by a certified copy of the conveyance from the said Joseph Simeon Sanchez to the said Pablo F. Fontane, now here submitted, and marked exhibit D; and the said Pablo F. Fontane afterwards, that is to say, on August 18, 1818, for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, conveyed the said tract of land and its appurtenances in full and absolute property to your memorialist, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of said conveyance from the said Pablo F. Fontane to your memorialist now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit E; and that the said tract of land is now in the actual occupancy of your memorialist.

And your memorialist alleges and shows that the said José Fernandez was, at the time the said land was conceded and granted to him as aforesaid, an inhabitant of East Florida, and an actual settler there, and a subject of the King of Spain; that the said Joseph Simeon Sanchez and Pablo F. Fontane were, at the time the said land was conveyed to them severally as aforesaid, inhabitants of East Florida, and subjects of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, before and at the time the said land was conveyed to him as aforesaid, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain, and that he has ever since the said cession continued to be, and now is, an inhabitant and settler of the same. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title in and to the said tract of land and its appurtenances, conformably to the acts of Congress in such cases made and provided; and he will ever pray, &c.

FRANCISCO P. SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

Title of property in favor of José Fernandez of one hundred acres of land in the plains of St. Diego, at a place called Quiqui.

Don José Coppinger, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those strangers who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, land should be measured them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that José Fernandez having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the governor, and there were granted him, on November 20, 1806, one hundred acres of land on the plains of St. Diego, at a place called Quiqui, bounded on the south by the plantation called the Humpback, and on the north by said plains of St. Diego, as appears by a certificate given by the secretary of the governor, with the same date which is annexed to the proceedings instituted by the interested, soliciting the corresponding title of the land already mentioned; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his right to the said land in the form it has been executed to others; that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession have elapsed to obtain said lands in fee simple, built houses thereon, cultivated them, and performed all the other conditions established by the government for concessions and donations of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the same proceedings: Wherefore, and in consideration of everything, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty, to the said José Fernandez the one hundred acres of land for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the aforesaid José Fernandez, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them; to all of which I interpose my authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary pro tem. of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, June 19, 1816.

In virtue of the order which, under date of the 26th of May last, was communicated to me by his excellency Don Joseph Coppinger, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor of city and its province, I certify that I have measured and laid off for Don Pablo F. Fontane a tract of land situated at the head of the North river, containing one hundred acres, which he purchased of Don José Simeon Sanchez; and its figure and boundaries being according to the present plat, I give this certificate, which I sign in St. Augustine, Florida, June 30, 1818.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

[Here follows a conveyance from José Fernandez of the one hundred acres to José Simeon Sanchez, dated September 4, 1816; also a conveyance from José Simeon Sanchez of the same to Pablo F. Fontane, dated July 16, 1818; also a conveyance from Pablo F. Fontane to claimant, dated August 18, 1818.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that the land was granted in absolute property to José Fernandez on June 19, 1816; and that it was conveyed by deed by Fernandez to José Simeon Sanchez, who conveyed it by deed to Pablo F. Fontane, and by him conveyed to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to the claimant and his heirs. June 7, 1824.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred and twenty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francisco P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land containing two hundred and twenty acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid, on the St. Mary's river, at a place called McIntosh's Causeway. That the said tract of land has the following lines and dimensions, and, at the time of survey thereof, had the following boundaries, that is to say: The first line begins at a cypress tree and runs south, 55 chains, to a pine, and is bounded by McIntosh's Causeway; the second line runs from the said pine east, 40 chains, to another pine, and was bounded by vacant lands; the third line runs from the said last mentioned pine north, 55 chains, to a live oak on the bank of the river St. Mary's, and was bounded by lands of one James Woodland; and the fourth line runs from the said live oak, along the bank of the said river, to the place of beginning, and is bounded by the said river, as will more fully and distinctly appear by a reference to the original plat of the survey of the said land, bearing date May 15, 1817, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A, which said survey was made by George Clarke, then surveyor general of the province of East Florida. And your memorialist further shows that the said land was originally granted one Domingo Estacholy, in absolute property, and without condition, by a grant bearing date December 5, 1816, by Don José Coppinger, then governor of East Florida, under the authority and in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain, bearing date March 29, 1813, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said grant now here submitted and filed, and marked B. That some years after the making of the said grant as aforesaid the said Domingo Estacholy departed this life, leaving his wife, Ursula Llafrío, who, for a valuable consideration paid to her by your memorialist, conveyed, according to the requisitions of the Spanish law, the said tract of land and its appurtenances to your memorialist, in absolute property, on July 29, 1822, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said conveyance herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C.

And your memorialist further avers and shows that the said Domingo Estacholy was, before and at the time of the granting the aforesaid tract of land to him as aforesaid, and at the time of his death, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, and before the said cession, and has continued to be ever since, and now is, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title to the said land and its appurtenances; and he will, &c.

FRANCISCO P. SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JNO. DRYSDALE.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred and eighty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francisco P. Sanchez respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title in and to three hundred and eighty acres of land situated, lying, and being in East Florida aforesaid, to the north of Diego plains, having the following lines and dimensions, and having, at the time of the survey thereof, had the following boundaries, that is to say: The first line, commencing at a stake, runs north 20° west, 95 chains, to another stake, and was bounded by vacant lands; the second line runs from the last-mentioned stake north 65° east, 40 chains, to another stake, and was bounded by vacant lands; and the third line runs from the last-mentioned stake south 20° east, 95 chains, to another stake, and is bounded by the beach; the fourth line runs from last-mentioned stake south 65° west, 40 chains, to the place of beginning, and is bounded by lands of John Sanchez, as will more fully and distinctly appear by a reference to a plat of the survey thereof, bearing date May 1, 1819, (which survey was made under the authority of a decree of Don José Coppering, October 9, 1818,) now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A. And your memorialist further shows that the said land was originally granted, without condition, and in absolute property, to one Joseph Simeon Sanchez, June 26, 1816, by Don José Coppering, then governor of East Florida, under the authority and in virtue of a royal order of his Majesty the King of Spain, bearing date March 29, 1815, as will more fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of said grant now here submitted and filed, marked exhibit B. And that the said Joseph Simeon Sanchez afterwards, that is to say, January 26, 1818, for a valuable consideration paid by your memorialist to him, conveyed the said land and its appurtenances, according to the formalities required by the Spanish law, to your memorialist, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said conveyance, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C. And your memorialist further avers and shows that the said Joseph Simeon Sanchez was, before and at the time of the granting the said land to him as aforesaid, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of his Majesty the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, before and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and has ever since continued to be, and now is, an inhabitant and settler of the same. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title in and to the said land and its appurtenances, agreeably to the acts of Congress in such cases made and provided. And he will, as in duty bound, &c.

Title of property in favor of Don José Simeon Sanchez for three hundred and eighty acres of land to the north of the plains of St. Diego.

Don José Coppinger, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the donations and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as militia, of this province, who contributed to its defence at the time of the rebellion, being one of said rewards the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of family each family may have; that Don José Simeon Sanchez having presented himself, making statement of his services as a former militiaman of the town of Fernandina, soliciting the corresponding quantity for himself, his family, and slaves, there were granted him three hundred and eighty acres of land to the north of the plains of St. Diego, bounded on the north by those granted latterly to the inhabitant Willy Hartley; on the south to the head of St. Pablo creek, or boundary of those latterly granted to another inhabitant; on the east by the beach and part of the land which corresponds to his brothers', for their part of inheritance; and on the west by the swamp or hammock of St. Diego, all conformable to the regulations established by this government for the distribution of lands, and to the number of persons and slaves which he has manifested that his said family consists of, and by what has been ordered by my decree of this day, placed on the proceedings instituted by the said Sanchez, on file in the government notary's office: Wherefore, I have thought proper to grant, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the aforesaid Don José Simeon Sanchez, the above-mentioned three hundred and eighty acres of land in the place already pointed out, without injury to a third, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the aforesaid Don José Simeon Sanchez, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights and appurtenances, which it had or may have, and of right may belong or pertain thereto; and, being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as I can, and of right ought to, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, June 26, 1816.

George Atkinson vs. The United States. Claim for five hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of George Atkinson, by his attorney, George Gibbs, showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of five hundred and fifty acres, situated on the west of the river St. John's, bounded on the north and west by lands of John H. McIntosh, on the south by McGirt's creek, on the east by the river St. John's, as per plat marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist, February 22, 1816, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, as per deed marked B. And your memorialist further showeth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, legally seized and possessed of said land; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Darien, in Georgia.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE ATKINSON,
By GEORGE GIBBS, Attorney in fact.

Title of property.

Don José Coppering, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their own free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be measured them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that Don George Atkinson having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the government, and there were granted him, under date of August 8, 1803, five hundred and fifty acres of land on the west bank of the river St. John's, which land is known and distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: The first line, north 22° east, commences with a pine and ends at another, its measurement being 80 chains, and is bounded on this side by the lands of Don Juan McIntosh; the second line runs south 56° east, commences at said pine and ends at a stake, bounding with the lands of Don John McIntosh, and bounded on the side by a creek known as McGirt's creek, as results from the certificate given by the surveyor general appointed by this government, Don George Clarke, dated August 1, 1815, with the corresponding plat which has authorized in continuation of the same; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his dominion to the said land, that he has built houses thereon, cultivated them, and finally complied with all the rest of the conditions of this nature, as is seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the proceedings moved for by the interested, soliciting that there should be given him the corresponding one of the lands which he has already measured and laid off: Wherefore, and in consideration of all, I have thought proper to grant, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the said Don George Atkinson the five hundred and fifty acres of land in absolute property, for himself, his heirs, and successors; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant them, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion which it had in said land; and I cede and transfer it to the said George Atkinson, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and in fact and by law belong to him; and, being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as possible, and by right ought to, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary pro tem. of government and royal finance, in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 22, 1816.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant previous to January 24, 1818, by claimant producing a royal title made to him by Governor Coppinger, dated February 22, 1816, together with a certified plat of survey. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to claimant and his heirs. June 11, 1824.

No. 27.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Tucker's administratrix vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred and thirty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners for ascertaining titles and claims to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Elizabeth Tucker, widow and administratrix of Andrew Tucker, deceased, residing in Camden county, Georgia, showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land situated in the county of Duval, containing two hundred and thirty acres, opposite Amelia island, bounded on the one side by lands of Louis Mattair, which said tract of land was granted to the said Andrew Tucker October 24, 1804, as headrights; all which, with the conditions thereto annexed, will more particularly appear by schedule A, being an abstract of the concession or grant thereof, and which conditions your memorialist says have been complied with; that the land is bounded on the north by lands of Louis McTier, on the south by lands of the same person, on the east by marsh, on the west by vacant lands, being in shape an oblong square, one hundred chains one way and twenty-three the other; all which, by the survey thereof executed June 26, 1816, a copy of which is hereunto annexed, marked schedule B, will more fully appear. All of which is humbly submitted to the consideration of your honorable body. August 27, 1823.

BELTON A. COPP, Agent.

[Translation.]

Don Juan de Pierra, lieutenant of the third battalion of the infantry regiment and secretary of government: I certify that, on a memorial presented by Andrew Tucker soliciting three hundred acres of land on the main land opposite Amelia island, bounded on the south by the lands granted to Louis McTier, the following decree was this day placed thereon: "Grant to this petitioner two hundred and thirty acres of land, which, according to the new regulations, are those appertaining to the family and slaves which he declares to have in the present memorial, without injury to a third, and with the condition that he is to establish himself on said land in the term of one month from this date; and that in case the royal service, for some motive, should order him to retire into the interior of the province, he can in nowise demand damages or injuries.

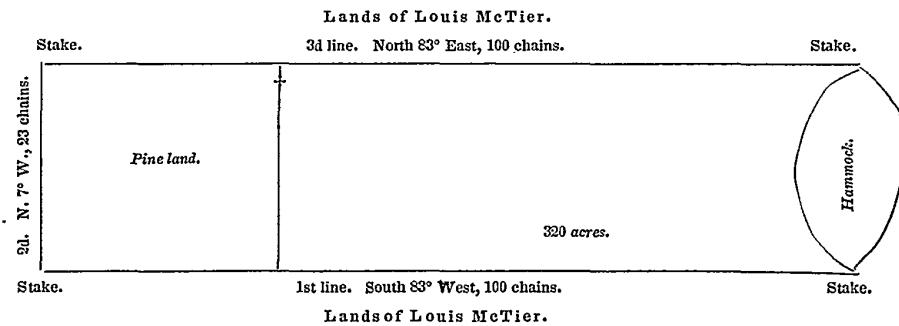

WHITE."

And that this may serve as a security to the interested, I give it, in St. Augustine, Florida, October 24, 1804.

JUAN DE PIERRA.

Don George J. F. Clarke, lieutenant of the local militia of St. Augustine, Florida, and surveyor general, appointed by the governor of the same city and province: I certify that I have measured and laid off for Don Andrew Tucker 230 acres of land, which were granted to him by the governor on the river Amelia, and at a place called Black Hammock, fronting Amelia island, and is according to the following plat, and a copy retained in the book of surveys under my charge. Fernandina, June 26, 1816.

GEORGE J. F. CLARKE.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from two documents in the Spanish language, in the office of the public archives of St. Augustine.

F. J. FATIÓ, S. B. L. C.

FLORIDA, Duval county.

In the matter of Elizabeth Tucker, widow of A. Tucker, claim to 230 acres at the Black Hammock, in Duval county, opposite Amelia island, William Braddock, an inhabitant of this county, planter, aged about 46 years, being duly sworn, says: That, for the last twenty-seven years, he has lived in the section of country now known by the name of Duval county, and in about three miles from the above tract of land for the most part of the time. Deponent says he well knew Andrew Tucker in his lifetime; he is now dead, and knows the said Elizabeth is his widow. Deponent further says that, in the year 1804, as well as deponent recollects, the said Andrew Tucker planted a part of the tract called Black Hammock tract; that he thinks it was cultivated by Andrew Tucker till 1806, during which year it was transferred or swapped by Tucker unto William Berrie for Snelling's old field, which Berrie owned, that is, one removed to the other's land by agreement; that the said William Berrie continued to cultivate the said tract known by the name of the Black Hammock till 1813, when both he and Tucker removed into Georgia, in consequence of the troubles which then existed in Florida; that in the year 1820 Berrie planted it again; that in the year 1803 the said Andrew Tucker intermarried with the said Elizabeth, who is the sister of William Berrie. Deponent further says that he has no interest in the lands in question, and shall neither lose nor gain whether the said Tucker's grant be confirmed or not; that William Berrie lives in Georgia.

WILLIAM BRADDOCK. [L. S.]

Sworn to before me, January 23, 1824.

JAMES O'NEILL, J. P.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant exhibited in evidence a concession, on condition, for the land in question, by Governor White, certified by the secretary of government, dated October 24, 1804; likewise a certified plat for the same; and likewise a deposition of William Braddock, showing that the condition stipulated in the grant or concession was complied with by the grantee. We therefore consider the claim a valid one, and confirm the same to claimant and her heirs.

Robert Hutchinson vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Robert Hutchinson respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and fifty acres, situated on the west side of the river St. John's, near McGirt's creek; first line runs westwardly 70 chains, commencing at a pine on the river, to a stake; second line thence north 50 chains to a pine; third line south 70 chains to a pine on the bank of the river; bounded north by land of your memorialist, east by the river St. John's, south by lands of George Atkinson, and west by vacant lands; which title your memorialist derived from a decree of Governor Coppering, January 9, 1818, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. Your memorialist further sheweth that he was in possession until 1818, but has since been deprived by George Atkinson; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. All which is respectfully submitted, &c.

A. BELLAMY, Memorialist's Attorney.

MEMORIAL.

To his excellency the governor:

Robert Hutchinson, an inhabitant and planter in this province, to your excellency respectfully sheweth: That since the last concession of lands he obtained of this government he has acquired, by his vigilance and industry, a considerable increase in the number of his slaves, so that he is at present without a sufficient quantity of land to employ them, and also an increase of family, for which reason he humbly prays your excellency will be pleased to grant him three hundred and fifty acres of land on the river St. John's, adjoining those he at present cultivates, (on the east by the mouth of McGirt's creek, on the north by said river,) for the purpose of employing advantageously the number of hands he has almost idle, being a gift he will ever be grateful to your excellency for. St. Augustine, January 8, 1818.

ROBERT HUTCHINSON.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA, January 9, 1818.

Grant to the petitioner the three hundred and fifty acres of land in the place which he solicits, without injury to a third, and with the condition that he is to cultivate them without intermission; and for his security give him, through the secretary's office, a certified copy of this memorial and decree.

COPPINGER.

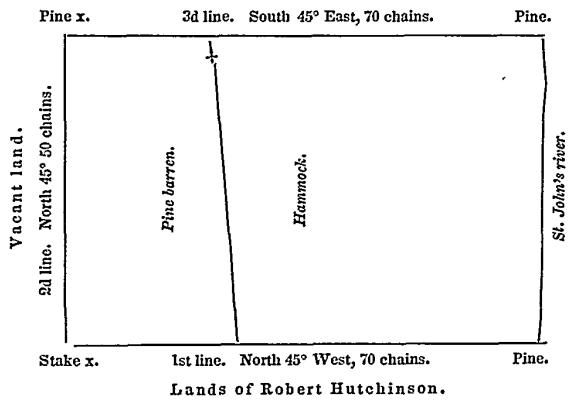

Don Thomas de Aguilar, ensign of infantry, and secretary, by his Majesty, of government of this city and province: I certify that the preceding copy is truly taken from the original on file in the office under my charge; and in virtue of what is ordered, I give the present in St. Augustine, January 9, 1818.

THOMAS DE AGUILAR.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

Lands of Robert Hutchinson.

Don D. S. H. Miller, captain of the rural militia of St. John's river, district of St. Nicholas, and deputy surveyor, do certify that I did, May 15, 1821, survey for Mr. Robert Hutchinson 350 acres of land, lying and being on the west side of St. John's river, south of and joining a tract of 150 acres surveyed by me for him in January, 1817, as above.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of Duval.

This day personally appeared D. S. H. Miller before me, and, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith: That he surveyed a tract of land for Mr. Robert Hutchinson, now Robert Hutchinson, esq., on the west side of St. John's river, near the mouth of McGirt's creek, granted him in the year 1814 by the Spanish government; and that he is well knowing to Mr. Hutchinson improving the same place for upwards of five years; and that he was compelled to leave the place by the invasion of the Indians; also, another tract joining the above, granted to him in 1818; and that it was cultivated the same length of time, as his improvements were made on both tracts at the same time.

D. S. H. MILLER.

Sworn to this 16th day of January, 1824.

W. G. DAWSON, J. P.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, St. John's County.

Personally appeared Charles Hogan, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith: That he has known and been well acquainted with Robert Hutchinson for the last twelve years; that he has also known Robert Hutchinson in the year 1815, and cultivated a tract of land on St. John's river, near McGirt's creek, of 150 acres; that, some time after it was surveyed by David S. H. Miller, this deponent further states that he was chain-bearer to both tracts of 150 and 350 acres; that at the time of settling and cultivating the first grant, granted to said Hutchinson in the year 1814, he, the said Hutchinson, cleared and cultivated the same until 1818, (May,) when he obtained a grant for said land of 350 acres, and was soon after forced to leave it in consequence of the Indians. Deponent further states that the land that the said Hutchinson cleared, without the first grant of 150 acres, is in the survey of 350 acres.

CHARLES HOGAN.

Sworn to before me.

EDWARD R. GIBSON,
Justice of the Peace for St. John's county.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that the land was conceded to the claimant on condition by Governor Coppering, January 9, 1818, and that he complied with the conditions stipulated in the concession, as proven by the depositions of D. S. H. Miller and Charles Hogan; the claimant likewise exhibited a survey of the land. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to him and his heirs. June 17, 1824.

No. 29.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Samuel Worthington vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Samuel Worthington respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 100 acres, situated on the river St. Mary's, near Pigeon creek, bounded north by lands of your memorialist, south by lands of John Dixon, east by vacant lands, west by river St. Mary's; which title your memorialist derived from a decree of Governor Coppering to your memorialist, March 18, 1817, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, which, together with a survey of the land, is herewith presented. Your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said tract, and was so at the cession; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the Territory. All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. BELLAMY, Memorialist's Attorney.

[Translation.]

MEMORIAL.

To his excellency the governor:

Samuel Worthington, an inhabitant of the river St. Mary's, to your excellency, respectfully sheweth: That being desirous of applying himself to the cultivation of the land, and there being vacant one hundred acres on the river St. Mary's, bounded by the lands of John Hogins, he therefore prays that your excellency will be pleased to grant him the quantity; his family consisting of his wife, a slave of age, and himself. Fernandina, February 4, 1817.

SAMUEL WORTHINGTON.

DECREE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 18, 1817.

Grant to the petitioner the one hundred acres of land in the place which he solicits, without injury to a third, and are those his family, himself, and slave, are entitled to, as he has set forth in this petition; and for his security let there be given him, from the secretary's office, a certified copy of the proceedings.

COPPINGER.

Don Thomas de Aguilar, ensign of the army, and secretary of the government of the city of St. Augustine and its province of East Florida, by his Majesty: I certify that the foregoing copy is well and truly taken from its original on file in the archives under my charge, to which I refer; and at the request of the party, do sign the present in virtue of the superior decree of this day, made in St. Augustine, Florida, March 18, 1817.

THOMAS DE AGUILAR.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language on file in the office of the public archives of St. Augustine.

Lands of John Dupon.

Lands of Juan Hagins.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this is a valid Spanish grant, by claimant producing a concession without condition made to him by Governor Coppering, dated March 18, 1817, which land was afterwards surveyed. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to claimant and his heirs. June 21.

Samuel Worthington vs. The United States. For one hundred acres of land on Pigeon creek, St. Mary's river.

George J. F. Clarke, being duly sworn, states that he has known Samuel Worthington since the year 1815, and that he has always resided in the Territory; does not know whether he has resided on the tract in question. Witness says that he does not think he ever received on any other concession from the Spanish government.

Question by Mr. Macon. Witness says he is unable to say whether the claimant cultivated the tract in question.

No. 30.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Robert Hutchinson vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Robert Hutchinson respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and fifty acres, lying on the west side of St. John's river, two miles north of McGirt's creek; bounded north by vacant lands, south by lands of your memorialist, east by St. John's river, west by vacant lands, which will be seen by the survey which is herewith presented, marked C; which title your memorialist derived from a decree of Governor Estrada, December 6, 1815, on a petition of your memorialist, which is herewith presented, by virtue of the royal order of 1790. Your memorialist further states that he was in possession until 1818, in December, at which time your memorialist was deprived of his possession by an individual who claims the same; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the Territory of Florida.

A. BELLAMY, Memorialist's Attorney.

[Translation.]

Robert Hutchinson, subject of his Catholic Majesty, to your excellency respectfully showeth: That to the northeast of McGirt's creek, situated on the north side of St. John's, there is a quantity of vacant land, part of which your memorialist is desirous of cultivating with four slaves above the age of sixteen years, which he owns; and not having wherein to employ them in consequence of his not obtaining any concession whatever of land on account of his being under the protection of his parents, he therefore prays that your excellency will be pleased to grant him the number of acres which he is entitled to in the place pointed out as vacant; for which gift he will remain truly grateful. St. Augustine, Florida, December 7, 1815.

ROBERT HUTCHINSON.

St. AUGUSTINE, December 7, 1815.

Let the civil and military commandant of the river St. John's report as to the conduct of the interested, and with certainty of the number of slaves to which he refers in this memorial, that, in consequence thereof, I may order what may be convenient.

ESTRADA.

To his excellency the governor:

The individual set forth in the memorial is an inhabitant of the province, and is considered in the same as a person of good conduct, without ever having been spoken ill of; he is industrious, and is attentive to his work. He has, according to the information given me by his father and others, the slaves which he sets forth in his petition, which is all I can inform your excellency in virtue of the preceding superior decree. St. Nicholas, December 9, 1815.

THOMAS LLORENTE.

St. AUGUSTINE, December 12, 1815.

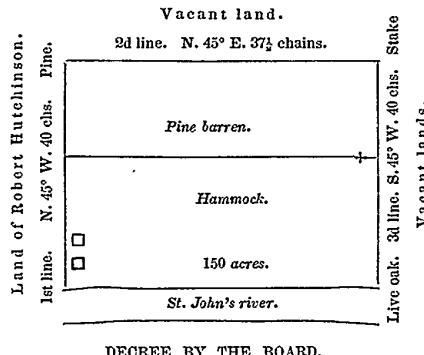

In conformity with the foregoing decree, grant to the interested one hundred and fifty acres of land in the place which he solicits, without injury to a third, and are those he is entitled to according to the number of persons his family consists of; and for his security let there be given him from the secretary's office the necessary document.

ESTRADA.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language on file in the office of the public archives of St. Augustine.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

Don S. H. Miller, captain of the rural militia of St. John's river, district of St. Nicholas, and deputy surveyor, do certify that I did, January 12, 1817, survey for Mr. Robert Hutchinson one hundred and fifty acres of land lying and being on the west side of St. John's river, about two miles north of McGirt's creek, as follows:

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this is a valid Spanish grant, by claimant producing a concession without condition made to him by Governor Estrada, dated December 12, 1815; likewise a survey of the same. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to claimant and his heirs. June 21, 1824.

Francisco P. Sanchez vs. The United States. Claim to nine hundred acres.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francisco P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land, consisting of nine hundred acres, situated and lying in East Florida aforesaid, on the west of the river St. Sebastian, being partly the place known by the name of Penman's Plantation, at a short distance from the city of St. Augustine; that the said tract of nine hundred acres is made up of what was originally two tracts, one of six hundred, and the other of three hundred acres; that the tract of six hundred acres was originally granted to one John Geiger, under the royal order of the King of Spain, bearing date October 29, 1790; was surveyed for him August 1, 1816, and was confirmed to the said John Geiger July 29, 1817, by a grant thereof, without condition, and in absolute property, made by Don José Coppinger, then governor of East Florida, as will more fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said grant now here submitted and filed, and marked A; that the aforesaid three hundred acre tract, part of the said nine hundred acre tract, bounding on the aforesaid six hundred acre tract, was purchased, March 15, 1820, by the said John Geiger from one William Travers, an inhabitant of East Florida, and a Spanish subject, which William Travers was one of the heirs of one Thomas Travers, then deceased; that the said Thomas Travers acquired the said tract of three hundred acres by devise from one Maria Evans, by her last will and testament, made in the year 1792, who died in this country shortly after the date of her said will; that the said tract of three hundred acres was in the actual occupancy of the said Maria Evans at the time of and long before her death, and then and long before having been in cultivation, and in a state of high improvement; that your memorialist is unable to set forth or produce the deraignement of title to the said three hundred acres of land, but most of the facts herein before alleged in reference thereto will appear or be supported and affirmed by the exhibit A, herein before referred to; that, after the purchase as aforesaid of the said three hundred acres of land by the said John Geiger, he being desirous to unite and throw into one tract the said three hundred acres and the aforesaid six hundred acres formerly and then owned by him, applied to Don José Coppinger, then governer of East Florida, for permission so to do, and for an order for the survey of the said two tracts of three hundred and six hundred acres as one tract of nine hundred acres, which permission was obtained, and a survey of the whole nine hundred, as forming one tract, was made by one Andres Burgevin, under the authority of the said Don José Coppinger, on or before September 16, 1820. Your memorialist further shows that the said tract of land of nine hundred acres has the following lines and dimensions, and had, at the time of the survey thereof, the following boundaries—that is to say: the first line runs north 65° east, 60 chains, to a pine marked with three notches; the second line runs from the said pine north 37 chains; the third line runs north 65° east; the fourth line runs north 25° west, 54 chains 80 links; the fifth line runs north 62° west, to a pine marked +; the sixth line runs north 25° west, 35 chains, to a pine tree with the same mark; the seventh line runs south 81° west, 60 chains, to another pine tree marked with a +; and the eighth line runs south 20° east, 150 chains, to the place of beginning, as will more distinctly appear by a reference to the original plat of the survey of the said land, bearing date September 16, 1820, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B. And your memorialist further shows that the said John Geiger, for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, October 16, 1820, conveyed the said nine hundred acres of land and its appurtenances to your memorialist in absolute property, as will fully and at large appear by a certified copy of the conveyance thereof by the said John Geiger to your memorialist, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C, reference being thereto had; and that the said John Geiger was, at the time the said six hundred acres of land were granted to him as aforesaid, and at the time he so purchased the three hundred acres of land as aforesaid, and before, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, before and at the time the said nine hundred acres of land were conveyed to him as aforesaid, and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain, and that he has ever continued to be, and now is, an inhabitant and settler of the same. Wherefore, he prays confirmation of his title in and to the said land and its appurtenances; and he will ever pray, &c., &c.

Title of property for six hundred acres of land in favor of Don John Geiger, situated on the other side of the ferry ——, at a place known as Talman's Plantation.

Don José Coppinger, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be laid off for them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that Don John Geiger having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the government, and there were granted him, six hundred acres of land situated on the other side of the ferry, at a place known as Talman's Plantation; which land is known and distinguished under the following dimensions: bounded on the north by the Picolata road, on the east by vacant pine land, on the south by lands of the negro Philip Embara, and on the west by vacant pine land. The first line runs north 30° east, 93 chains; the second line runs south 60° west, 56 chains; the third line runs west, 15 chains; the fourth line, north 30° east, 85 chains; and the fifth runs south 60° west, 64 chains 50 links, as appears by the measurement and plat made by Don Robert McHardy August 1, 1816, to whom a commission was given for that purpose, in consequence of there not being a surveyor here; and as the said Don John Geiger has complied with the conditions imposed by this government when he was granted said land, for the purpose of being entitled to a title of property for having cultivated them, built houses thereon, as is proven by the documents which he has presented, and the proof set forth in the proceedings which he has instituted, praying there should be given him the corresponding title to said land: Wherefore, and in consideration of the other reasons which appear in said proceedings, and by what is set forth in the decree of this day in continuation thereof, I have thought proper to grant, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty, to the said Don John Geiger the above-mentioned six hundred acres of land, in absolute property, for himself, his heirs and successors; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said land, and I cede and transfer it to the said Don John Geiger, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, make use of and enjoy it, free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it at their will. To all of which I interpose my judicial authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, July 29, 1817.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that six hundred acres were granted to Don John Geiger in absolute property by Governor Coppering, July 27, 1817, who conveyed the same by deed to the claimant. We conceive that the title to the six hundred acres aforesaid was proven to be legal; but no proof having been produced to this board of the legality of the claim to the three hundred acres, we therefore only confirm the six hundred acres to claimant and his heirs. July 8, 1824.

John Christopher vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred and fifty-eight and a half acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Christopher respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land on the north side and near the river St. John's, known by the name of San Carlos, containing three hundred and fifty-eight and a half acres; first line runs north 18° west, from a stake on the bank of a creek, 40 chains, to a pine tree; second line, thence south 72° west to a pine tree; third line, thence south 18° east to a pine on the banks of said creek, forty chains, fronting on said creek; which title your memorialist derived by a royal grant made by Governor White to Spicer Christopher, deceased, April 8, 1819, which is herewith presented. Your memorialist further states that he is in actual possession of said land, and was so at the time of the cession; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the Territory of Florida. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

A. BELLAMY, Memorialist's Attorney.

Title in favor of Don Spicer Christopher of the plantation called San Carlos.

Don Enrique White, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor, and chief of the royal finance and its province, by his Majesty:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be laid off for them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that Don Spicer Christopher having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the government, and there were granted, measured, and delivered him, ten caballerias and twenty-five acres of land on the plantation called San Carlos, being the complement of what he was entitled to according to the number of his family, which he made known under oath; which land is known and distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: the first line runs north 18° west, 40 chains, commences at a stake marked with a cross, on the margin of a marsh, and ends at a pine with the same mark; the second line runs south 72° west, 90 chains, begins at said pine, and ends at another with the same mark; the third runs south 18° east, 40 chains, begins at said pine, and ends at another with the same mark of the cross, on the banks of the Newcomb creek; its front runs along the banks of said creek, as appears by the certificate given by Captain Don Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for said partition and measurement of lands, dated April 28, 1792, with its corresponding plat, signed by Don Samuel Eastlake, who was surveyor at said measurement, which certificate and plat are on file in the archives of the present notary; and as no title whatever had been given him for the security and evidence of his right to the said land in the form it had been executed to others, that more than the ten years of uninterrupted possession have elapsed to obtain said lands in fee simple, built houses thereon, cultivated the same, and finally complied with all the other conditions established by the government for the donations and concessions of this nature, as is seen in the title given to other settlers, and made known in the proceedings instituted by Don Santos Rodriguez, as attorney in fact of Don Spicer Christopher, praying that there should be granted in favor of the latter the necessary title of the land which he has measured and laid off, and of which he is in possession. Wherefore, and in consideration thereof, I have granted, and by these presents do grant, in the name of his Majesty and his royal justice, which I administer, to the aforesaid Don Spicer Christopher the said ten caballerias and twenty-five acres of land which the said plantation consists of, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it held in said land; and I cede and transfer it to the aforesaid Don Spicer Christopher, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may enjoy it free from any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights and appurtenances, and all and in general which hath, doth, or in any manner by right may belong or pertain thereto; and, it being their will, they may sell, cede, and transfer and alien it at their will. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as possible, and according to law, in compliance with the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of his Majesty of government and royal finance, in this said city of St. Augustine, Florida, April 8, 1809.

ENRIQUE WHITE.

By order of his excellency:

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARETTA, Notary of Government.

Conformable to its original on file in the archives under my charge, to which I refer; and at the request of the party, do seal and sign the present copy on two leaves of ordinary paper, stamps not being used. St. Augustine, Florida, February 28, 1818.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred and forty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to land in East Florida:

The memorial of Francisco P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land consisting of three hundred and forty-five acres, situated and lying in East Florida aforesaid, on the river St. John's, at a place called the Ship Yard, distant about half a mile from San Vincent Ferrer, having the following lines and dimensions, and, at the time of the survey thereof, having had the following boundaries—that is to say: the first line begins at a live oak and runs south 60° east, 61 chains, to a pine tree, and was bounded by lands of Andres Atkinson; the second line runs from the said pine tree south 30° west, 57½ chains, to a stake; the third line runs from the said stake north 60° west, 61 chains, to a stake; and the fourth line runs from the said stake to the place of beginning, and is bounded by the river St. John's, as will more fully and distinctly appear by a reference to the original plat of the survey of the said land by George J. F. Clarke, then surveyor general of East Florida, bearing date September 4, 1820, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A. Your memorialist further shows that the said tract of land was originally granted, on May 28, 1816, to one John Rafo, in absolute property, by Don José Coppinger, then the governor of East Florida, under the authority and in virtue of a royal order of the King of Spain of March 29, 1815, as will more fully and at large appear by reference to a certified copy of the said grant now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B; that afterwards, to wit, some time in the year 1817, the said John Rafo died considerably indebted to one Pedro Miranda; that authority was given by the government of East Florida to the said Pedro Miranda, on June 11, 1818, to make sale of the said tract of land for the payment of the debt due by the said John Rafo to the said Pedro Miranda, and that, in virtue of the said authority, the said Pedro Miranda sold and conveyed the said land to Tomas de Aguilar on July 2, 1820, as will appear by a reference to a certified copy of conveyance from the said Pedro Miranda to the said Tomas de Aguilar of the said land, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C; and that the said Tomas de Aguilar afterwards, that is to say, on January 11, 1821, for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, conveyed, according to the formalities required by the Spanish law, the said tract of land to your memorialist in full and absolute property, which will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the said conveyance from the said Tomas de Aguilar of the said land to your memorialist, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit D. And your memorialist further avers and shows that the said John Rafo was, before and at the time the said land was granted to him as aforesaid, an inhabitant and actual settler of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, before and at the time the said land was so conveyed to him as aforesaid, and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, an inhabitant and actual settler of East Florida, and a subject of the said King of Spain; and that he has ever since the said cession continued to be, and is now, an inhabitant and actual settler of East Florida. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title in and to the said tract of land and its appurtenances, agreeably to the acts of Congress in such cases made and provided. And he will, as in duty, &c.

Title of property in favor of Don Juan Rafo for three hundred and forty-five acres of land, on the bank of the river St. John's, at a place called Ship Yard.

Don José Coppinger, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of the city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has been pleased to approve the donations and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both of the line as well as militia of this province, who contributed to its defence at the time of the rebellion, being one of said rewards the distribution of lands in proportion to the number of family each individual may have; that Don Juan Rafo, a militiaman, having presented himself, making known his services in said defence, and soliciting the corresponding quantity for himself, his family, and slaves, there were granted him three hundred and forty-five acres of land on the south bank of the river St. John's, in the vacant place called "Ship Yard," half a mile distant from St. Vincent Ferrer, bounded on the west by those granted in said place to Don Ramon Sanchez, on the north by the banks of said river, and on the south and east by vacant lands; all conformable to the regulations established by this government for the distribution of lands, and to the number of persons and slaves which he has manifested that his said family consists of, and, by what has been ordered by my decree of this day, placed on the proceedings instituted by the said Don Juan Rafo on file in the government notary's office: Wherefore, I have thought proper to grant, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the aforesaid Don Juan Rafo the above-mentioned three hundred and forty-five acres of land, without injury to a third, in the place already pointed out, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in granting him, as by these presents I do grant him, the corresponding title by which I separate it from the royal domain, from the right and dominion it had to said lands; and I cede and transfer it to the aforesaid Don Juan Rafo, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and appurtenances, which it has or may have, and of right may belong or pertain thereto; and, being their will, they may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. To all of which I interpose my authority as far as I can, and by right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

PROCEEDING AUTHORIZING SALE BY MIRANDA.

St. AUGUSTINE, June 11, 1818.

Having seen, and as, from the documents presented by Don Pedro Miranda, it is manifest that in the dissolution of the company which he had with his cousin Don Juan Rafo there resulted a balance in his favor of two hundred and eighty-eight dollars, and being known that Rafo did not leave other property by which his creditor could be paid but the three hundred and forty-five acres of land which this government granted, as appears by the title of dominion which was expedited to him for that purpose: wherefore, the said Miranda is authorized that he may proceed to the sale of the said lands, with the charge of responsibility that offers of forwarding the amount of surplus to his heirs, making the most active search to find out their abode Todd's legatees, by George Atkinson, executor, vs. The United States. Claim to six hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to land in East Florida:

The petition of George Atkinson, by his attorney, George Gibbs, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of six hundred acres, situated at New Smyrna, bounded on the east by marshes, on the north by lands of William Williams, on the south by lands of Robert McHardy, on the west by vacant lands, as per plat marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Lindsay Todd, July 1, 1815, by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, who having died, your memorialist claims it as executor. And your memorialist further sheweth that, at the exchange of flags, the estate of Todd was, and now is, legally seized and possessed of said lands; that L. Todd was a citizen of the province of Florida and resident of said province. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

WHITE.

Being informed of the memorial, and in obedience to the foregoing decree, I communicate to your excellency that the cultivation of the lands solicited for by the petitioner in the place which he names will not obstruct the defence of the province as respects the department of fortification; you may grant him the number of acres your excellency may judge fit, which is all that I can report to your excellency, that you may determine according to your pleasure. St. Augustine, July 21, 1803.

NICOLAS BARIDO.

St. AUGUSTINE, July 21, 1803.

Let this party have granted to him the lands which he solicits, without injury to a third person, and until the corresponding quantity of lands be measured to him in proportion to the number of workers whom he may have for its cultivation, it being well understood that he ought to take possession of said lands within the term of six months.

Todd's legatees, by George Atkinson, executor, vs. The United States. Claim to three hundred and ninety acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of George Atkinson, by his attorney, George Gibbs, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and ninety acres, situated on Cedar creek, on the St. John's river, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, as follows: First line runs south 45° west, 60 chains; second line runs north 45° west, 65 chains; third line runs north 45° east, 60 chains; fourth line, bounded by Cedar creek on the east, as per plat marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Lindsay Todd, February 11, 1817, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who having died, your memorialist claims as executor. And your memorialist further sheweth that, at the exchange of flags, the estate of Todd was, and now is, legally seized and possessed of said lands; that L. Todd was a citizen of the province of Florida and resident of said province. All of which is respectfully submitted.

[Here follows a royal title in confirmation of the concession made to Lindsay Todd of the three hundred and ninety acres, signed by Governor Coppering, and dated February 11, 1817.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, and confirmed it to claimant.

No. 36.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Thomas Travers' heirs vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and twenty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Travers, for the heirs of Thomas Travers, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and twenty-five acres, situated on St. John's river, at a place called St. Patricio, bounded north and south by St. John's river, and on other sides by a marsh. A certificate of survey is in the office of the keeper of the public archives, made by Marrot, which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to the said Thomas Travers by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he resides in St. Augustine, and did so at the change of flags in 1821.

GEO. MURRAY,
For TRAVERS.

[Translation.]

Title in favor of the children and heirs of the deceased, Don Thomas Travers, of the plantation named St. Patrick.

Don Enrique White, colonel of the royal armies, political and military governor of this city of St. Augustine of Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by a royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and both Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who,

of their own free will, offer themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands shall be granted and surveyed gratis, in proportion to the workers which each family may have; that Don Thomas Travers having offered himself, he solicited, and there were granted, measured, and delivered to him, three caballerias and twenty-five acres of land at the plantation named St. Patrick, in part of what he is entitled to in proportion to his family, which he declared under oath, which land was known and distinguished under the following dimensions and boundaries: It runs north and south with the river St. John's, and, from the oblique course which the said river runs, forms an island with an impassable marsh, which is in the rear; the greater part of the front of the said lands runs on the bank of the said river, and the other part runs on that of the said marsh, forming at both sides an irregular figure, as results from the certificate given by Don Pedro Marrot, judge commissioned for said distribution and survey of lands, dated November 18, 1792, and a corresponding plat authenticated by Don Juan Samuel Eastlake, who was the surveyor at said survey; and as no title has been issued to him for the security and confirmation of his dominion to the said lands in the form in which it has been executed to others, that they have already passed more than ten years of uninterrupted possession, erected buildings on them, cultivated, and finally complied with the other conditions established by the government for concessions and grants of this nature, seen in the titles delivered to other settlers, as appears by the proceeding moved by Don William Lawrence, in the name of his wife, Donna Ana Travers, and by the representation which he made as guardian or curator of Donna Maria, William, and Margaret, all legitimate children and heirs of the above-mentioned Don Thomas Travers, deceased, he moved, soliciting that a title should be issued in favor of the said heirs, corresponding to the land which is measured and laid off, and of which they are in possession: Wherefore, and in consideration of everything, I have granted, as in the name of his Majesty, and of his royal justice, which I administer, I do grant, unto the said children and heirs of the said Travers, deceased, the said caballerias of land of which the said plantation consists, for themselves and their successors, in absolute property; and to expedite to them, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title, whereby I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion it had to said lands, and I cede and transfer it to the children and heirs of the deceased Travers, and his successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and in fact and law belong and appertain to it; and, at their will, sell, cede, transfer, exchange, and alien it as may best suit them. In all which I interpose my authority as I can, and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of his Majesty and of government and the royal domain, in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, September 28, 1808.

ENRIQUE WHITE.

By command of his excellency:

JOSÉ DE ZUBIZARRETTA, Government Notary.

This is conformable to the original which exists in the archives in my charge; and, at the request of the children and heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, I sign and seal this present copy on two leaves of common paper, the stamped not being used. St. Augustine, Florida, October 4, 1808.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant, by claimants exhibiting a royal title of absolute property by Governor White, dated September 28, 1808, to the children and heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to them. July 13, 1824.

No. 27.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Antonio Hindsman vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred and forty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Antonio Hindsman sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred and forty acres, situated on the west of the North river, at a place called Aragues, bounded as follows: The first line runs south 2 degrees east, 30 chains; second line runs south 39 degrees west, 42 chains; third line runs north 85 degrees west, 45 chains; fourth line runs north 69 degrees east, 21 chains; fifth line runs north 40 degrees east, 25 chains, as will appear more fully by the original survey of Don Pedro Marrot in the public archives, which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist September 1, 1819, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. The said lands were granted and delivered to your memorialist May 30, 1793, as will appear by title marked A. And your memorialist further sheweth that, for thirty-nine years past, he has been in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of this Territory. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

ANTHONY HINDSMAN.

[Translation.]

Don Charles Howard, captain of grenadiers of the third battalion of the infantry regiment of Cuba, and secretary of this government for his Majesty, &c.: I certify that, on a memorial presented by Anthony Hindsman, under date of the 8th ultimo, soliciting the confirmation of the land called Aragues, which he occupies, eight miles to the north of this city, the following decree was yesterday placed thereon: "Agreeably to his request, with the condition that, for the present, and that the memorialist must conform himself to those which his Majesty may have established in the instructions which are expected for his new subjects, in which case the lands which he enjoys at present will be confirmed to him."—Quesada. And that it may be made known, I give the present in St. Augustine, Florida, October 9, 1790.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case exhibited in evidence a concession from Governor Quesada, dated October 9, 1790, for the lands claimed, and a survey thereof by Pedro Marrot, dated May 30, 1793. The said survey contains 240 acres. It being proved to the satisfaction of the board that the claimant has continued in possession of the land since the time of the concession up to the present period, they order that the title be confirmed to the said Anthony Hindsman, so far as the United States have any interest in it. August 26, 1824.

Philip Weadman vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Philip Weadman sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 150 acres, situated on the road to Picolata, twelve miles north of the city of St. Augustine, bounded as follows: north, south, east, and west, by vacant lands. The first line runs north 55° west, 20 chains; second line runs south 35° west, 33 chains; third line runs south 55° west, 40 chains, as will appear more fully by the survey of Don Andres Burgevin, which is in the public archives; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist July 5, 1815, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, as will appear by title marked A. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is now in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of this Territory. All of which is respectfully submitted.

PHILIP WEADMAN,
By his agent, JOSEPH LOUZEES.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case exhibited a certified copy of a concession from the office of the keeper of the public archives, made to him by Governor Estrada July 5, 1815, for one hundred and fifty acres of land, as described in his memorial for headrights, in conformity with the Spanish laws and regulations. The said land is therefore confirmed to the claimant, as far as the United States are interested. August 26, 1824.

No. 39.—REPORT NO. 1.—1824.

James Hall vs. The United States. Claim for seven hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of James Hall showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of seven hundred and seventy-five acres, situated near Julington creek, on the river St. John's, a part of said tract lying between Dauven and Durben creeks, on said Julington, bounded as follows: beginning at a pine, and running thence N. 30° W., 60 chains, to another pine; thence N. 60° E., 45 chains, to another pine; thence S. 75° E., 60 chains, to a gum; thence S. 45° W., 64 chains, to a cypress; thence N. 75° W., 40 chains, to a pine; thence N. 60° W., 45 chains, to the beginning; as appears by a plat of survey of the same herewith filed, dated July 21, 1819, made by George J. F. Clarke, and marked A; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to your memorialist by Governor Copinger, in virtue of the royal order of the Spanish government dated October 29, 1790, an official copy of which concession is herewith filed, as exhibit B, dated January 8, 1818. And your memorialist further showeth that he is legally in possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of East Florida and resident of St. John's county, and has been ever since the cession of the Floridas to the United States by Spain. All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAMES HALL.

MEMORIAL.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 8, 1818.

Don James Hall, inhabitant of this province, to your excellency with due respect states: That he intends dedicating himself to the rearing of stock and the cutting of timber in this said province; for which purpose he has chosen a piece of vacant pine land, containing five hundred acres, near Julington creek, on the river St. John's; and as, for the purpose of attending strictly to the said rearing of stock, he must be in the neighborhood thereof, he is desirous of establishing and cultivating a portion of the swamp lying between the creeks called Dauven and Durben, on the said Julington; which quantity of acres that may appertain to me according to my family and slaves, seen in the annexed list, with the five hundred which he has set forth for said rearing of stock, he prays and supplicates your excellency to grant him, in the form it has been done to others of his class: a gift he hopes to obtain from the justice of your excellency.

JAMES HALL.

The GOVERNOR.

DECREE.

St. AUGUSTINE, January 8, 1818.

Grant to the interested seven hundred and seventy-five acres of land, in the places pointed out, for himself and slaves, without injury to a third, and for his security let a certified copy of this memorial and decree be given him from the secretary's office.

COPPINGER.

Don Thomas de Aguilar, ensign of infantry and secretary of this government for his Majesty: I certify that the preceding copy is faithfully taken from the original on file in this office under my charge; and, in virtue of what is ordered, I give the present in St. Augustine, Florida, January 8, 1818.

Eleazer Waterman's heirs vs. The United States. Claim to one hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Sarah Waterman, widow, in behalf of herself and heirs of Eleazer Waterman, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 175 acres, bounded on the north by Bell's river, on the south by lands of Guillermo Carney, on the northwest by lands of Joseph Howell, and on the other side by land vacant, as appears by the plat thereof, annexed and marked A, dated February 4, 1815, and surveyed by George J. F. Clarke; which title your memorialist, in behalf as aforesaid, derives from a royal grant made to the said E. Waterman by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, and bears date February 22, 1816, and marked exhibit B. And your memorialist, in behalf as aforesaid, further sheweth that she is in actual possession of said lands; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. All which is respectfully submitted.

ARCHIBALD CLARKE, Attorney for executrix and heirs of Eleazer Waterman.

Title of property.

Don José Coppering, lieutenant colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem., and chief of the royal finance of this city of St. Augustine, Florida, and its province:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that to those foreigners who, of their free will, present themselves to swear allegiance to our sovereign, lands should be measured off for them gratis, in proportion to the laborers each family may have; that Don Eleazer Waterman having presented himself as one of them, he solicited of the government, and there were granted him, under date of August 9, 1804, 175 acres of land on an old plantation situated on the river St. Mary's, known by the name of Joly, which runs north to the creek which divides the lands of Richard Carney; which land is distinguished under the following boundaries and dimensions: The first line runs south 39° west, measuring 70 chains, begins at a stake near a creek which runs into Bell's river, and ends at a pine; the second line runs north 51° west, begins at said pine and ends at another, its measurement consisting of 33 chains; the third line runs north 39° east, commences at said pine and ends at another on the banks of Bell's river, its measurement consisting of 36 chains; which land is bounded on the south by those of William Carney, on the west by vacant lands, on the north by lands of John Howell, and on the east by Bell's river, as appears by the certificate given by the surveyor general appointed by this government, Don George Clarke, under date of February 4, 1816, with the corresponding plat, which he has signed in continuation of the same. And as no title whatever has been given him for the security and evidence of his dominion to the said land in the form it has been executed to others, to obtain the useful and direct dominion to the said lands; that he has built houses thereon, cultivated them, and finally complied with all the other conditions which the government established for the gifts of concessions of this nature, to be seen in the titles given to other settlers, and is set forth in the proceedings instituted by the interested, praying there should be granted him the corresponding one for the land he is in possession: Wherefore, and in consideration thereof, I have thought proper to grant, as in the name of his Majesty I do grant, to the said Don Eleazer Waterman, the 175 acres of land in absolute property, for himself, his heirs, and successors; and in granting him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate the royal domain from the right and dominion which it had to said land; and I cede and transfer it to the said Waterman, his heirs, and successors, that, in consequence thereof, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, customs, rights, and services, which it has had, has, and in fact and law belong or appertain to it; and, being their will, may sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them; to all of which I interpose my authority as far as I can, and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the undersigned notary of government and royal finance, in the said city of St. Augustine, Florida, February 22, 1816.

JOSÉ COPPINGER.

By order of his excellency:

JUAN DE ENTRALGO, Notary of Government, &c.

Conformable to its original on file in the archives under my charge, to which I refer; and, at the request of the party, do seal and sign the present testimonial on two leaves of ordinary paper, stamps not being used. St. Augustine, Florida, February 22, 1816.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants produced in this case a royal title from Governor Coppering, made February 22, 1816, to Eleazer Waterman, deceased, under whom they claim as heirs at law. This being a case which, in the opinion of the board, would have been considered and deemed valid had Florida remained a Spanish province, they confirm to the claimants the 175 acres described in their memorial, so far as the United States have any interest. August 27, 1824.

No. 41.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Eleazer Waterman's heirs vs. The United States. For two hundred and seventy acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of S. Waterman, widow, on behalf of herself and the heirs of said estate, showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land containing 270 acres, situated on McQueen's swamp, near the river St. Mary's, bounded on all sides by vacant land at the time of the survey, as will appear by reference to the plat thereof hereto annexed, and marked A. First line begins at a pine and runs thence north 45° east, 20 chains, to another pine; thence north 60° east, 30 chains, to a pine; thence east, 25 chains, to a pine; thence south 50° east, 25 chains, to a pine; thence south 50° west, 25 chains, to a pine; thence south 85° west, 40 chains, to a sweet gum; thence north 45° west, 15 chains, to the beginning; which survey was made March 20, 1816, by George J. F. Clarke; which title your memorialist derives in behalf of said estate, as aforesaid, from a concession made to the said Eleazer Waterman, by Governor Copperger, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, and bears date February 17, 1816, and here-with filed and marked B. And your memorialist further showeth that she is (in behalf of herself and heirs aforesaid) in actual possession of said lands; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida.

ARCH'D CLARKE, Attorney for executrix and heirs of E. Waterman.

[Here follows a translation of the concession made by Governor Copperger, of the 270 acres to Eleazer Waterman, dated February 17, 1816, certified by the secretary of the government.]

[Here follows the plat of the 270 acres, made by G. J. F. Clarke, dated March 20, 1816.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants in this case exhibited a certified copy of a concession made to Eleazer Waterman's heirs by Governor Copperger, dated February 17, 1816; also, a survey thereof. This claim being deemed a valid one by the board, they therefore confirm the same to the claimants. August 26, 1824.

Andrew R. Govan vs. The United States. For six hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Andrew R. Govan respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land containing 600 acres, and known by the name of the Orange Grove, situated, lying, and being, on the east side of St. John's river, and near the Buena Vista; which land is bounded on the south by the road called the Indian's road, on the north by vacant lands, on the east by vacant lands, and on the west by St. John's river; which land your memorialist claims by virtue of a grant made to Thomas de Aguilar, by Governor Copperger, May 10, 1817, and which was confirmed by a royal title June 4, 1817; and which land was conveyed to Francis P. Sanchez June 14, 1820; all which matters, as are herebefore stated, may be fully seen on reference to the documents filed in the office of the public archives in the city of St. Augustine. And your memorialist would further represent that the said Francis P. Sanchez, having held the said land in trust for your memorialist, did, August 10, 1821, convey by deed the said land to your memorialist, as may be seen on reference to the records of St. John's county; and your memorialist would further represent that he is a citizen of the United States and an inhabitant of the State of South Carolina. And your memorialist prays that your honorable board will confirm to him his claim to the aforementioned tract of land.

ANDREW R. GOVAN,
By his agent, EDWARD R. GIBSON.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title for the six hundred acres made by Governor Copperger to Thomas de Aguilar, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, dated June 4, 1817.]

[Here follows the plat of the six hundred acres.]

[Here follows a deed of conveyance from Francis P. Sanchez to claimant, dated August 13, 1821.]

[Here follows an abstract from the keeper of the public archives, showing a conveyance from Thomas de Aguilar to Francis P. Sanchez, dated July 15, 1824.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

No. 43.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

McDowell & Black vs. The United States. Claim to four hundred and ninety acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain titles and claims to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Andrew McDowell & Alexander Black respectfully showeth: That your memorialists claim title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land, consisting of 490 acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said tract or parcel of land was originally granted to Andres Burgevin, on December 11, 1817, by Don José Copperger, then the governor of East Florida, under and in virtue of the order of the King of Spain, bearing date October 29, 1790, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to the certified copy of the said grant or decree herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A. That on January 5, 1818, the said Andres Burgevin obtained an order for the survey of the said land, a certified copy whereof is now submitted and filed, and marked exhibit B. That, in virtue of the said order, the said land was surveyed by Robert McHardy, as will appear by the original plat thereof, bearing date March 27, 1818, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit C. That the tract of land is situated on a creek to the east of the river St. John's, at a place called Little Orange Grove, and to the south of the old Indian road Chocochati, and on the eastern bank of the river St. John's and Little lake, about eight or ten miles above Lake George, and has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: the first line begins at a cypress tree marked B, and runs north 70° , 50 chains, to a pine marked B; the second line runs thence south 30° east, 20 chains; the third line runs south 80 chains, to a palmetto marked with a cross; the fourth line runs along the edge of the marsh of Spring Garden creek, or lagoon; and the fifth line runs along the bank of the Little lake and the river St. John's, to the place of beginning, and is bounded by the waters on the west, as will more distinctly appear by a reference to the plat of the said land set forth in exhibit C. That the said Andres Burgevin, upon the concession of the said land to him, took immediate possession thereof, and cultivated and improved it; that on April 24, 1819, his title to the said land was confirmed by an absolute grant thereof to the said Andres Burgevin, made by Don José Coppinger, then the governor of East Florida, as will fully appear by a reference to a certified copy thereof, herewith submitted, and marked exhibit D. That the said Andres Burgevin, according to the formalities prescribed by the Spanish law, for a valuable consideration paid to him afterwards, that is to say, on June 12, 1820, conveyed the said land in absolute property to one Francisco P. Sanchez, as will appear by a reference to the certified copy of the said conveyance, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit E. And the said Francisco P. Sanchez, on June 10, 1823, conveyed the said tract of land and its appurtenances to your memorialists, as will appear by reference to a certified copy of the said last-mentioned conveyance, herewith submitted and filed, and marked exhibit F. And your memorialists further aver and show that the said Andres Burgevin was at the time of the concession of the said tract of land, and of the absolute grant thereof as aforesaid, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and a subject of his Majesty the King of Spain; that the said Francisco P. Sanchez was also, at the time of the aforesaid conveyance to him of the said tract of land, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida and a subject of the King of Spain, and that your memorialists are citizens of the United States. Wherefore, they pray confirmation of their title to the said tract of land and its appurtenances.

ANDREW McDOWELL and ALEXANDER BLACK,

By their attorney, JNO. DRYSDALE.

[Here follows the translation of the concession of the 490 acres, made by Governor Coppinger to Andres Burgevin, dated December 11, 1817.]

[Here follows the certificate and plat of the survey of the 490 acres, by Robert McHardy, dated March 27, 1818.]

[Here follows the translation of a conveyance from Andres Burgevin to Francisco P. Sanchez of the 490 acres, dated June 12, 1820.]

[Here follows a deed of conveyance from F. P. Sanchez to claimants, dated June 10, 1823, of the 490 acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

On December 11, 1817, Governor Coppinger conceded to Andres Burgevin 490 acres of land at the place described in his memorial, for headrights, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. On June 12, 1820, Burgevin conveyed the lands to Francis P. Sanchez, as appears by his deed filed with the memorial; and on June 10, 1823, Sanchez sold and conveyed the same lands to McDowell & Black, the claimants. The board being of opinion that this grant would have been deemed valid had Florida remained a Spanish province, they confirm it to the claimants, so far as the United States have any interest. August 30.

No. 44.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Gideon Dupont's heirs vs. The United States. Claim for four hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The heirs of Gideon Dupont, deceased, respectfully represent: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of 450 acres, situated at a place called Moultrie; that it has never been surveyed to their knowledge, and is about five miles south of the city of St. Augustine, on the Matanzas river; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to Antonio Uzena and John Holzendorf, by Governor Zespides, in virtue of the laws of Indies, and the grant confirmed by Governor Quesada, by virtue of the royal order of 1790; which appears by documents Nos. 1 and 2, herewith presented, dated May 4, 1787, and November 15, 1792. On December 15, 1794, Uzena obtains leave from Governor Quesada to sell to John Holzendorf, and, in the same memorial, Holzendorf has leave to take his headrights adjoining, as appears by document No. 3; and, on April 15, 1796, John Holzendorf obtains leave to sell to Richard Ryan the said lands, and the grant of those he then occupied, as appears by document No. 4, given by the then secretary of the government; and, on November 20, 1797, Ryan obtained leave to sell to Gideon Dupont, from Governor White, as appears by document No. 5, and his deed to Dupont, dated December 9, 1797, all herewith presented. And your memorialist further sheweth that the said Gideon Dupont, deceased, and those under whom he held title, were in actual possession of said lands from 1787 till 1802, when the unsettled state of the province compelled him to leave it for a time, with the intention of returning to it. He did return, and found the governor had given it to one Rovira, the very man left in charge of his concerns, and it is now in the possession of Dr. E. R. Gibson, for the claimant under Rovira, who resides in Baltimore. That they are citizens of the United States and residents of South Carolina.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows a concession from Governor Zespides to Antonio Uzena, dated May 4, 1787.]

[Here follows a proceeding authorizing Uzena to sell to John Holzendorf, dated December 15, 1794; also, a power given by the governor to Holzendorf to convey the land to Richardson Ryan, dated April 15, 1796; also, a permission to Ryan to sell to Gideon Dupont 450 acres of land, dated November 20, 1797; also, a conveyance from Richardson Ryan to Gideon Dupont for 500 acres of land, dated December 9, 1797; all of which documents are duly translated and of record.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimants exhibited a concession from Governor Zespides to Antonio Uzena, the original grantee, dated May 4, 1787; likewise various documents showing the transfers from Uzena to Holzendorf, from him to Ryan, and by him to Gideon Dupont. It appearing that the claimants have made out a title to no more than 400 acres, the board, therefore, only confirm to them and their representatives that amount. September 1, 1824.

No. 45.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

George Fleming's heirs vs. The United States. For nine hundred and eighty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of the heirs of George Fleming, deceased, by Sophia Fleming, widow and relict of said decedent, respectfully showeth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of 980 acres, situated in East Florida, in two tracts, and situated on the west side of St. John's river, at a place called Langley Bryan, opposite Buena Vista fort; the other lies in Caco swamp, about one mile west of Buena Vista fort. The first contains 780 acres: beginning upon the bank of St. John's river, running S. 10° E., 88 chains; thence E., 88 chains, to the river; thence with the river to the beginning; a plat whereof, made by A. Burgevin, and dated December 2, 1818, marked D, is herewith submitted. The other tract contains 200 acres, and begins at a stake, and runs N., 30 chains, to a pine marked F y C; thence S., 30 chains, to a stake; thence S. 45° W., 67 chains, to the beginning; as per plat and certificate herewith submitted, made by Andres Burgevin, and dated November 16, 1818, marked E; which title your memorialists derive from a royal title made to George Fleming April 5, 1816, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, which is herewith submitted, marked G, F. And your memorialists further show that they are legally in possession of said lands, and were so by themselves and their ancestors before and ever since the cession of this Territory by Spain to the United States; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of East Florida. They pray confirmation of their title. All which is submitted, &c.

SOPHIA FLEMING,
For herself and the heirs of George Fleming, deceased.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title for the 980 acres of land made by Governor Coppering to G. Fleming, dated April 5, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

[Here follows a certificate and plat of Survey by Andres Burgevin, of 200 acres, dated November 16, 1818. Here follows a certificate and plat of survey by Andres Burgevin, of 780 acres, December 2, 1818. Both translated.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

No. 46.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

George Fleming's heirs vs. The United States. For one thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of the heirs of George Fleming, deceased, by Sophia Fleming, his widow and relict, respectfully showeth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of 1,000 acres, situated in East Florida, on the west side of the river St. John's, on an island known by the name of Fleming's island; is bounded on the north and west by lands belonging to James Cashen's estate and vacant lands; on the east by the St. John's river, and on the south by Black creek; beginning at a stake on the bank of said river, running thence W., 48 chains, to a pine; thence S. 45° W., 104 chains, to a cypress on the margin of Black creek; thence along the meanders of said creek and river to the beginning; a plat whereof, made by A. Burgevin, dated November 11, 1818, is submitted; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to George Fleming, March 8, 1816, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, a certified copy of which said royal title is herewith submitted, marked F. And your memorialists further show that they are in actual possession of said lands, and have been for near twenty years; that they are citizens of the United States and resident of East Florida, and on said lands. They pray confirmation of title, &c. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

SOPHIA FLEMING,
For herself and heirs of George Fleming.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title for 1,000 acres of land made by Governor Coppering to George Fleming, dated March 8, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790.]

[Here follows a certificate and plat of survey by Andres Burgevin, of 1,000 acres, dated November 16, 1818. Translated.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants in this case offered as evidence of their title to 1,000 acres of land on Fleming's island, on the west side of St. John's river, a royal grant made by Governor Coppering to George Fleming, deceased, on March 8, 1816, for headrights, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. This being a complete title, perfected before January 24, 1818, is confirmed to the claimants so far as the United States is concerned. September 1, 1824.

No. 47.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

George W. Perpall vs. The United States. For six hundred and sixty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of G. W. Perpall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 660 acres, situated at a place called the Big Hammock, distant forty miles west of Buena Vista, and on the west side of the St. John's, bounded on the north by lands of Don Matias Martinez, on the south by lands of Donna Catalina de Jesus Hijuelos, on the east and west by vacant lands. [Here follows a plat of the two hundred acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case exhibited to the board a royal title made by Governor White to Juan Capo September 7, 1804, for the land, (six caballerias;) also an abstract from the office of keeper of the public archives, by which it appears that Capo sold and conveyed the land to Manuel Fernandez Bendicho, who sold and conveyed it to Thomas Andrew, who sold and conveyed it to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to Mariano Berta, so far as the United States are concerned. September 11.

No. 56.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Horatio S. Dexter vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Horatio S. Dexter and Mrs. Abby Dexter, the wife of the said Horatio S. Dexter, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a certain tract or parcel of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said tract of land was originally granted in absolute property, April 5, 1815, to one George Petty by Governor Kindelan, then the governor of East Florida, as will appear by a reference to a certified copy of the original grant thereof, herewith submitted and filed; that the said tract of land was purchased by your memorialist from the said George Petty January 26, 1820, and was conveyed by the said Petty on the 21st of May, as will appear by a reference to the original conveyance thereof of that date, by the said George Petty to your memorialist, herewith submitted and filed. Your memorialist further shows that the said land is situated on the east of the St. John's river, in East Florida aforesaid, between Little lake and Lake George, and is known by the name of Mount Royal; that it was surveyed on or before May 1, 1821, by G. J. F. Clarke, the surveyor general of East Florida, as will appear by a reference to the original plat and certificate of the survey thereof of that date, herewith submitted and filed; that the said tract of land has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: The first line begins at a cypress tree on the bank of the river St. John's, and runs N. 15°

W., 40 chains, to a pine tree; the second line runs thence N. 75° E., 50 chains, to a pine tree; the third line runs thence S. 15° E., 40 chains, to a pine on the bank of the river St. John's; and the fourth line runs thence along the bank of said river to the place of beginning; all which will more distinctly appear by a reference to the said plat herewith submitted. Your memorialist further avers and shows that, upon the purchase of the said land by him as aforesaid, he took immediate and actual possession thereof; and that from that to the present time it has been in actual occupancy, and that a part thereof is in cultivation, considerable improvements and buildings having been made thereon by your memorialist; that the said George Petty was, at the time the said grant was made to him as aforesaid, and at the time he conveyed the said land to your memorialist, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida; and that your memorialist was at the time of the purchase by and conveyance to him of the said land as aforesaid, and at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, and has ever since that time been an inhabitant and settler of East Florida. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title to the said land and its appurtenances.

HORATIO S. DEXTER,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

No. 57.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Horatio S. Dexter vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Horatio S. Dexter respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a certain tract or parcel of land situated and being in East Florida aforesaid, consisting of two hundred acres; that the said land was originally granted to one William Bardin, March 17, 1815, by Governor Kindelan, then the governor of East Florida, without any condition annexed to the said grant, as will fully and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the original grant to the said William Bardin, herewith submitted and filed; that the said land is situated at a place called McCullough's Point, on the river St. John's, about seven miles south of Picolata, and has the following lines and dimensions, that is to say: the first line begins on the bank of the river St. John's, and runs north $87\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ east, twenty-nine chains; the second line runs thence south 22° east, sixty-two chains; the third line runs thence south 68° west, thirty chains; and the fourth line runs thence along the bank of the said river St. John's to the place of beginning; that the said land is bounded on the southwest by the said river St. John's, as will appear by the plat herewith filed. Your memorialist further shows that he purchased the said land from the said William Bardin, December 23, 1819, for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, and on that day received from the said William Bardin a conveyance thereof from him, as will appear by the said original conveyance herewith submitted and filed; that the said William Bardin was, at the time the said land was granted to him as aforesaid, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and subject of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, when the said land was conveyed to him as aforesaid by the said William Bardin, a settler and inhabitant of East Florida; that he was such inhabitant and settler at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States, and has ever since so continued to be. Wherefore he prays that his title to the said land and its appurtenances may be confirmed to him.

HORATIO S. DEXTER,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

[Here follows the translation of the certified copy of concession made to William Bardin by Governor Kindelan for the two hundred acres, dated March 17, 1815.]

[Here follows a plat of two hundred acres.]

[Here follows a conveyance from Bardin to claimant, dated December 23, 1819.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant by claimant exhibiting a certified copy of concession from Governor Kindelan to William Bardin, dated March 17, 1815, for the two hundred acres of land, together with a plat thereof; also, a conveyance by deed from Bardin to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to him and his heirs. September 6.

TESTIMONY.

Horatio S. Dexter vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

Samuel Fairbanks, being duly sworn on the part of claimant, states that the signature attached to the transfer from Bardin, the original grantee, to memorialist, is original and genuine, and that he is acquainted with the handwriting of said original grantee.

No. 58.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Francis J. Fatio et al. vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Francis J. Fatio, for himself and for Maria Theresa, widow of P. Fatio, deceased, as also Sophia Louisa, Luis, Mary Ann, and Fernando, children and heirs of the said P. Fatio; that your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated on the east side of St. John's river, about thirty miles to the west of the city of St. Augustine, bounded on the north by the lands of Francis P. Fatio, deceased, called New Switzerland, on the south by the lands of the heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, on the east by vacant lands, and on the west by the river St. John's; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to Francis P. Fatio, November 24, 1791, by Governor Quesada, who died resident in East Florida, when said tract, by deed of division and partition made afterwards amongst his heirs, was allotted to the children of P. Fatio, deceased, son of said grantee; the said partition is filed in the claim for ten thousand seven hundred and sixty-two acres, presented by Sophia Fleming and William Gibson. And your memorialists further show that they are legally in possession of said lands, and were so by themselves, and those through whom they claim, ever since the date of concession; that Francis J. Fatio is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida; and that the said widow and the other heirs reside at present in the Island of Cuba. All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. J. FATIO,
For himself and the other heirs of P. Fatio.

[Here follows a decree of Quesada granting the land to F. P. Fatio, after a proceeding had, dated November 24, 1791.]

[Here follows a document showing the division of the estate of F. P. Fatio, by which the two hundred acres was allotted to the heirs of P. Fatio, deceased, son of F. P. Fatio.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants in this case, in support of their claim, produced a memorial from Francis Philip Fatio, deceased, to the government, together with the proceeding had, and the decree of Governor Quesada, dated November 24, 1791. It was proven that Francis Philip Fatio, the original grantee, took the oath of allegiance to his Catholic Majesty; that he cultivated the land for many years. The board being of the opinion that the claimants have made out a valid title for the land, the same is confirmed to them. September 7.

NOTE.—The oath of allegiance of Francis Philip Fatio to his Catholic Majesty, alluded to in the decree, is filed in the claim of Mrs. Fleming and William Gibson, and applies in all the claims of the Fatiros and the other heirs.

No. 59.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph M. Hernandez vs. The United States. For eight hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain the claims and titles to lands in the district of East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph M. Hernandez, of the city of St. Augustine, in said district of East Florida, aforesaid, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land of eight hundred acres, situated at the head of Matanzas river, in Graham swamp, bounded on the east by a cart road which divides it from lands of G. W. Perpall, on the south by lands belonging to the heirs of Jesse Fish, on the west by pine barren land, and on the north by pine barren and the head of the aforesaid river Matanzas. First line begins at a pine on the road H and E, and runs south 45° west, 88 chains 90 links; second line, thence north 45° west, 90 chains, to another pine; the third line runs thence north 45° east, 88 chains 90 links, to another pine, marked H; fourth line, thence on the aforesaid road south 45° east, 90 chains, terminating at the tree where the first line began. The aforesaid tract of land was granted to your memorialist May 25, 1816, by Governor Joseph Coppinger, by virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, as will appear by a royal title given to your memorialist for the said tract May 28, 1816, recorded in the office of public records kept by Mr. William Reynolds, of this city, as well as by the survey of the said tract of land by Robert McHardy, dated September 7, 1818, also in the same office. And your memorialist further sheweth that he has been in uninterrupted possession since May 25, 1816, having cleared and cultivated the same extensively. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, November 25, 1823.

JOSEPH M. HERNANDEZ.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to claimant for the eight hundred acres, dated May 28, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Robert McHardy of the eight hundred acres, dated September 7, 1817.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

No. 60.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph M. Hernandez vs. The United States. For one hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph M. Hernandez respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred acres, situated on the west side of the river Halifax at the place called the Old Chimneys, bounded on the west by the river Halifax. The first line begins at a pine, and runs south 68° west, 20 chains, to a stake; the second line, thence runs north 22° west, 100 chains, to another pine; third line, thence north 68° west, 20 chains, to another pine; fourth line, along the banks of the river; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to Ana Maria Hill by Governor Estrada, August 19, 1811, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, as will appear by the public archives; that your memorialist, having married the said Ana Maria Hill, cleared and cultivated it; and your memorialist further showeth that he is in actual possession of the said lands, and a citizen of the United States.

JOSEPH M. HERNANDEZ.

[Here follows the translation of the concession made by Governor Estrada of the one hundred acres to Donna Ana Maria Hill, dated August 19, 1811.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey of the one hundred acres by George J. F. Clarke, dated February 10, 1820.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that the land was conceded by Governor Estrada to Donna Ana Maria, wife of claimant, for headrights, August 10, 1811; which land was afterwards surveyed. Being of opinion that this is a valid Spanish grant, we confirm it to claimant and his heirs. September 7.

No. 61.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph M. Hernandez vs. The United States. For seventy acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Joseph M. Hernandez respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of about seventy acres, situated in front of the Little Matanzas bar, and is a small island, boundary not exactly known, not having been surveyed; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to F. M. Arredondo, jr., by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, dated December 29, 1817, who sold the same to your memorialist December 30, 1818, as will appear in the office of archives kept by Mr. William Reynolds. And your memorialist further showeth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine.

JOSEPH M. HERNANDEZ.

[Here follows the translation of the concession of the seventy acres of land made by Governor Coppering to Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., dated December 29, 1817.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance from Arredondo to claimant of the seventy acres, dated December 30, 1818.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

It was proven in this claim that the land was conceded to F. M. Arredondo, jr., by Governor Coppering, December 29, 1817, who conveyed it by deed to claimant. It being the opinion of the board that this grant would have been deemed valid had Florida remained a Spanish province, they therefore confirm it to claimant and his heirs. September 8.

No. 62.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph M. Hernandez vs. The United States. For three hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in the district of East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph M. Hernandez, of the city of St. Augustine, in said district of East Florida, respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and seventy-five acres, situated in the territory of Matanzas, bounded on the north by the plantation of G. W. Perpall, formerly belonging to Joseph Bonelly, on the south by the plantation of Jonas Dupont, on the east by the sea beach, and on the west by the river Matanzas; which said tract of land was granted by Governor White to John Bautista Ferreira July 8, 1803, whose son, Francis Ferreira, sold the same to your memorialist June 5, 1818, about which time it was surveyed by Robert McHardy, whence the following lines: First line runs north from an oak marked formerly as the boundary of Mr. Perpall's land, on which is marked (H.) 60° east, 68 chains and 60 links; second line, thence runs along the sea beach south 15° east, 54 chains; third line, thence runs south 60° west, 68 chains 60 links; fourth line, begins at a palm marked H., runs north 15° west, 54 chains. The aforesaid tract of land was granted and confirmed to said Ferreira by a royal title dated September 28, 1815, as will appear in the records kept by Mr. William Reynolds of this city, and a conveyance from Ferreira to your memorialist, and survey. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual and uninterrupted possession of said land, and has been so since he purchased it. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, November 25, 1823.

JOSEPH M. HERNANDEZ.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Estrada to Juan Bautista Ferreira and his heirs of the three hundred and seventy-five acres, dated September 28, 1815, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance from Francisco Ferreira, for himself and in the name of the other heirs, to claimant, dated June 5, 1818.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Robert McHardy of the three hundred and seventy-five acres, dated September 2, 1818.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we ascertain that the land was granted to the heirs of Don Juan Bautista Ferreira in absolute property by Governor Estrada, September 8, 1815; that it was conveyed by the heirs aforesaid to claimant; and that it was regularly surveyed. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to him and his heirs.

No. 63.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Martin Hernandez vs. The United States. For twenty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Martin Hernandez, by his attorney in fact, Joseph M. Hernandez, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of twenty acres, situated on the river St. Sebastian, on the west side, called the Ferry, bounded on the east by the said river, on the south by lands of Manuel Solano, on the west by vacant lands, and on the north by lands of John Huertas. First line begins at a stake on the bank of the river, and runs south 77° west, 14 chains, to another stake; the second line, thence south 15° east, 21 chains, to a stake; third line, thence north 34° east, 17 chains 66 links, to another stake; fourth line, along the bank of the river, ending at a stake where the first line began; which title your memorialist claims from a royal title made to Martin Hernandez by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790; the same tract was granted to your memorialist May 21, 1798, as will appear by the documents in the public archives. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is legally in actual possession of said lands which the said Martin Hernandez cleared and cultivated; that he is a citizen of Spain and resident of Havana.

JOS. M. HERNANDEZ, Attorney in fact.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Estrada for the twenty acres of land, dated October 5, 1815, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey of the twenty acres by G. J. F. Clarke, dated May 10, 1819.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this claim to be a valid one by claimant exhibiting a title of absolute property for the land, dated October 5, 1815, and a survey thereof; the same is hereby confirmed to him and his heirs. September 8.

No. 64.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Martin Hernandez vs. The United States. For ten and a quarter acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Martin Hernandez, by J. M. Hernandez, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of ten and one-quarter acres and one perch, situated within the present limits of the city of St. Augustine, bounded on the east in the front of the creek Maria Sanchez, on the south by the road leading to the old bridges near the orange grove of Francis Marin, on the west by the Ferry road, and on the north by the plantation of John Bousquet and Isaac Wickes, measuring on the north 70° east, 20 chains; north 28° west, 5 chains 50 links; south 60° west, 18 chains; north 43° west, 8 chains; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to Martin Hernandez by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. The said tract was granted to your memorialist October 5, 1815, by a royal title from the aforesaid Governor Estrada, as will appear in the public archives. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is legally and positively at this time in actual possession of said land, consisting of an orange grove planted by himself, and the right of the said tract, fenced and otherwise improved; that he is a citizen of Spain and resident of Havana.

JOS. M. HERNANDEZ, Attorney in fact.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Estrada to Martin Hernandez for the ten and a quarter acres and one perch, dated October 5, 1815, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

[Here follows a plat of the ten and a quarter acres and one perch.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this claim to be a valid one by claimant exhibiting a title of absolute property for the land, made by Governor Estrada, October 5, 1815, to him; likewise a survey of the same. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to claimant and his heirs. September 8.

Gabriel W. Perpall vs. The United States. Claim to five hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

Gabriel W. Perpall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of five hundred acres, situated on Turnbull's, about twelve miles north of the town, bounded on the west and northwest by lands of Don José M. Bousquet, on the east and northeast by equivocal grants, and on the other sides by vacant lands, whose lines are as follows: First line, north 12° east, 60 chains, to a pine marked P; second line, north 45° east, 35 chains; third line, north 10 chains to a pine marked P; from thence, fourth line, south 70° east, 10 chains; from thence, fifth line, south 15° east, 104 chains, to a pine marked P; sixth line, west, to the pine marked P, where the first line began; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to Juan Gonzales Montesdeoca, who obtained a royal title for this quantity on the Matanzas, which, being proven to be property of the Clarke family, permission was given him to take the present land by Governor Coppering. The royal title for services were granted by Governor Kindelan, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine. November 10, 1823.

G. W. PERPALL.

[Here follows a translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to Juan Gonzales Montesdeoca for seven hundred and eighty acres of land, dated September 3, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance of Juan Gonzales Montesdeoca of the seven hundred and eighty acres to claimant, dated November 6, 1816.]

[Here follows a permission of Governor Coppering to claimant to locate five hundred acres of the seven hundred and eighty at Turnbull, dated April 17, 1818.]

[Here follows the translation of the plat and certificate of survey by Andres Burgevin of the five hundred acres, dated August 17, 1818.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

No. 66.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Gabriel W. Perpall vs. The United States. Claim to two hundred and eighty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in Florida:

The petition of Gabriel W. Perpall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred and eighty acres, situated at the head of the river Matanzas, at a place called Samuel Hammock, bounded on the northeast by royal lands, on the southwest by lands of G. J. F. Clarke and Jesse Fish, and on the southeast by lands of your memorialist. The first line begins at a pine marked X, and runs to another marked P, north 45° west, 50 chains; second line, thence south 45° west, 56 chains, to a stake; third line, thence south 45° west, 50 chains, to a pine marked P; fourth line, thence north 45° west, 56 chains, to the pine where the first line began; which title your memorialist derives from a bill of sale made to him by John Gonzales Montesdeoca, who obtained seven hundred and eighty acres by a royal title, in 1816, for military services in 1812 and 1813, the above two hundred and eighty acres being a part thereof. The royal title was given by Governor Kindelan, and the lands were surveyed in one body on the Matanzas; but, on a discovery that they belonged to the Clarke family, Governor Coppering permitted him to make this survey. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine. November 10, 1823.

G. W. PERPALL.

[The royal title to Montesdeoca, and the conveyance from him to claimant, in his claim for 500 acres, apply to this case.]

[Here follows a plat of the 200 acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

No. 67.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Mary Kunen vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Mary Kunen respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 200 acres, situated near Tomoka, a half on either side of Smith creek; bounded, the one by lands of Mr. Ormond, the other by lands of Isaac Wickes and Patrick Lynch; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to her by Governor Coppinger, dated November 17, 1817, as appears by title annexed, and confirmed June 10, 1818, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, and which lands were granted in consequence of the services rendered by her husband, Bernard Wickes, deceased. And your memorialist further sheweth that she has always been in possession of said land since granted. She is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. Augustine. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, August 15, 1823.

MARY KUNEN.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor Coppinger to claimant of the land, dated November 15, 1817, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

[Here follows the translation of the plat and certificate of survey by Robert McHardy of the 200 acres, dated April 20, 1818.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant, on November 13, 1817, in memorial to Governor Coppinger, set forth that she was the widow of Bernardo Wickes, deceased, who had served in the defence of the province in 1812; that she claimed the benefit of the royal order of 1815; and that the family left by the said Wickes consisted of herself and daughter, and five slaves over 16 years of age. She therefore asked for 200 acres of land at the places described in her memorial filed before this board. On the 15th of November of the same year Coppinger granted the lands as requested. This claim being one which would, in the opinion of the commissioners, have been considered valid had the Floridas remained in the possession of Spain, they confirm the same to the claimant so far as the United States are interested. September 10.

No. 68.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph M. Hernandez vs. The United States. For eight hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain the claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph M. Hernandez, of the city of St. Augustine, East Florida, aforesaid, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of eight hundred acres, with its adjoining marshes, situated on the river Matanzas, bounded on the north by lands of the heirs of John Bautista Ferreira, on the east by the border of wood lands and the river Matanzas, the figure and lines of which are particularly marked and described in the plat and certificate of survey herewith presented. The aforesaid tract of land is part of a grant of a large tract made by the Spanish government to Josiah Dupont in the year 1792; and having been abandoned, and his right therein forfeited, the said land was granted to Miguel Crosby February 3, 1804, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790, and purchased by your memorialist from the said Miguel Crosby March 11, 1816, as will appear by a deed from the said Crosby to your memorialist, recorded in the office of public records kept by Mr. Reynolds, of this city. And your memorialist further sheweth that he has been in uninterrupted possession of the said land since the aforesaid purchase from Crosby, and has erected buildings and made many improvements thereon, and has extensively cultivated the said land; that your memorialist was a resident inhabitant of East Florida at the time of the cession to the United States. In confirmation of the title of your memorialist, the following documents are herewith presented:

1. Proceedings in relation to the grant to Dupont, and the title of Miguel Crosby, dated St. Augustine, May 31, 1805.
2. Certified copy of the regulations of Governor White in relation to the grants of land, dated October 12, 1803.
3. Certified copy of the grant to Miguel Crosby, dated July 3, 1804.
4. Certificate of survey and plat.
5. Petition of Miguel Crosby for certificates of the proceedings against Dupont, and a certificate thereto annexed.
6. Bill of sale from M. Crosby to Jos. M. Hernandez. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, November 25, 1823.

JOS. M. HERNANDEZ.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppinger to Miguel Crosby for the 800 acres, dated March 8, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance from Crosby to claimant for the 800 acres, dated March 11, 1816.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Robert McHardy, dated September 4, 1818.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we ascertain that the land was granted to Miguel Crosby in absolute property by Governor Coppinger March 8, 1816, who sold and conveyed it to claimant; the said land was afterwards surveyed by the surveyor appointed by government. In consideration whereof, we confirm the same to claimant and his heirs. September 8.

Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., vs. The United States. For one hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr., respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and seventy-five acres, situated on the west side of the river St. Sebastian, and about three miles westward from St. Augustine; bounded on the north by the land of Antonio Proctor, (a free black,) and on the south, east, and west by vacant lands; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to Prince (a free black) by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, who sold the same to your memorialist, as will be seen by a certified copy of a deed of conveyance herewith presented, and dated March 30, 1821, as also a certified copy of said royal title, dated March 9, 1816. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is legally in possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of Spain and resident of the Island of Cuba. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

F. M. ARREDONDO, JR.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to Prince (a free black) for the 175 acres, dated March 9, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance from Flora, widow of Prince, to claimant, of the 175 acres, dated June 30, 1821.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

[No. 70 was not returned to the General Land Office by the commissioners.]

No. 71.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Edward M. Wanton vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Edward M. Wanton respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated on the east side of the river St. John's; bounded on the east, north, and south by public lands, and on the west by the said St. John's. The first line runs from an ash north 75° east, 30 chains, to a pine; the second line, north 15° west, 67 chains, to another pine; the third line, south 75° west, 30 chains, to an oak; and the fourth line, the natural boundary of the said river, as will more fully appear by referring to the certificate of survey of George J. F. Clarke, dated November 17, 1819, herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790; which said tract of two hundred acres is part of a grant of seven hundred and fifty acres made to your memorialist November 23, 1801, as will more fully appear by referring to the original memorial and decree, dated November 23, 1801, on file in the office of the public archives. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. In confirmation of the title of your memorialist, he begs leave to refer this honorable board to the before-mentioned memorial and decree of November 23, 1801, on file in the office of the public archives, and to the certificate of survey of George J. F. Clarke, public surveyor, dated November 17, 1819, herewith presented, marked exhibit A. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, November 28, 1823.

EDWARD M. WANTON,
By his attorney, THOS. F. CORNELL.

[Here follows the translation of the concession made by Governor White of the land to claimant, dated November 23, 1801.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by George J. F. Clarke, dated November 17, 1819, of the two hundred acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain that the two hundred acres of land which is claimed is part of a grant of seven hundred and fifty acres which was conceded to claimant November 23, 1801, by Governor White, without condition. The same is hereby confirmed to him and his heirs. September 11.

Edward M. Wanton vs. The United States. For seven hundred and fifty acres of land.

Horatio S. Dexter, being duly sworn on the part of the claimant, states that the said Edward M. Wanton was in possession of the tracts called Picolata or Wanton's Plantation, in the year 1814, and was cultivating the same; and that the same has been rented out ever since. Witness judged from the appearance that the same had been cultivated for a long time.

HORATIO S. DEXTER.

Before the board in session September 11, 1824.

No. 72.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Edward M. Wanton vs. The United States. For one hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Edward M. Wanton respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and fifty acres, situated on the east side of the river St. John's, and known by the name of Wanton's Plantation, bounded on the north and south by lands of your memorialist, on the east by public lands, and on the west by the river St. John's. The first line runs north from an oak 76° east, 30 chains, to a pine; second line, north 22° west, 52 chains, to another pine; third line, south 68° west, 30 chains, to a maple; and the fourth line, the natural boundary, by the accompanying certificate of survey; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790; which said tract of one hundred and fifty acres is part of a grant of seven hundred and fifty acres made to your memorialist on November 23, 1801. And your memorialist further showeth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and a resident of Florida. In confirmation of the title of your memorialist, he begs leave to refer this honorable board to the original memorial and decree of November 23, 1801, on file in the office of the public archives, and the certificate of survey of G. J. F. Clarke, public surveyor, dated November 17, 1819, herewith presented, marked B. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, November 28, 1823.

EDWARD M. WANTON,
By his attorney, THOMAS F. CORNELL.

[Here follows the translation of a concession of the land by Governor White to claimant, dated November 23, 1801.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey of the one hundred and fifty acres by George J. F. Clarke, dated November 17, 1819.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant exhibited to the board a concession without condition made to him by Governor White November 23, 1801, together with survey thereof. The board deeming this claim to be valid, they therefore confirm it to claimant and his heirs. September 11.

No. 73.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Mary Fontané vs. The United States. For four hundred and ninety-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Mary Fontané, the administratrix of the estate of Joseph Fontané, deceased, respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of four hundred and ninety-five acres, situated at the head of Moultrie creek, bounded on the south with lands of Julian Daniel Sweeny, the first line of survey beginning at a pine marked F, running south 70° west, 36 chains, to a pine S y F; thence north 25° west, 35 chains 86 links; thence north 20° west, 34 chains 50 links, to a pine F; thence north 70° east, 70 chains 36 links, to a pine F; thence south 20° east, 34 chains 50 links; thence 25° east, 35 chains 86 links, to the beginning pine; which title your memorialist derives from an absolute title made to Joseph Fontané by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of 1815, a certified copy of which, dated April 4, 1816, accompanies this petition; and your petitioner will file, when required, the plat of Robert McHardy, and the authorization of the government to the said Robert McHardy. And your memorialist further showeth; that she is in actual possession of the said lands; that she is a citizen of East Florida and resident of the same. Your memorialist will, as in duty bound, pray, &c.

JOHN M. FONTANÉ, For MARY FONTANE.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to José Fontané for the four hundred and ninety-five acres, dated April 4, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to the claimant.

No. 74.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Andrew Atkinson vs. The United States. For two hundred and twenty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Andrew Atkinson, by his attorney, George Gibbs, showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred and twenty acres, situated between North river and Guana creek, bounded on the south by lands of Peter Maestré, and on the north by lands of Juan Carpo, east by Guana creek, and west by the North river, agreeably to plat A; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to Andrew Atkinson, April 29, 1793, by Governor Quesada, in virtue of the royal order of —; and your memorialist further sheweth that he was, at the exchange of flags, and now is, legally seized and possessed of the said land; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Philadelphia. All which is respectfully submitted.

ANDREW ATKINSON,
By GEO. GIBBS, Attorney in fact.

[Here follows the translation of the concession of the two hundred and twenty acres by Governor Quesada to claimant, dated April 29, 1793.]

[Here follows the translation of the plat and certificate of survey by Pedro Marrot of six caballerias and twenty acres, dated May 27, 1793.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

It appears in this case that Governor Quesada, April 29, 1793, conceded the land to the claimant without condition, and in May of the same year it was surveyed. In consideration whereof, we confirm this claim to Atkinson and his heirs. September 15.

No. 75.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William Walker vs. The United States. For one hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Walker respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and seventy-five acres, situated in East Florida, in a little island situated in the northern branch of Nassau river, at a place known by the name of Cypress Grove, bounded on the east and north by vacant lands, and on the west by the river Nassau; which title your memorialist derives from a royal title made to him February 16, 1816, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in legal possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Georgia. He prays confirmation of his title, &c.

WILLIAM WALKER.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to claimant for the one hundred and seventy-five acres, dated February 16, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant establishes title to the land by exhibiting a royal title made to him by Governor Coppering February 16, 1816. In consideration whereof, we confirm the one hundred and seventy-five acres to him and his heirs. September 17.

No. 76.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Andrew Pleym's heirs vs. The United States. For five hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of the heirs of Andrew Pleym respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of five hundred acres, situated at the place called Doctor's Lake, on the St. John's river, formerly occupied by Christopher Nelly, in the time of the British, and has not been surveyed; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to the said Andrew Pleym by Governor Quesada, in virtue of the royal order of 1790; which said grant is dated February 10, 1791, as appears by a copy of the said grant herewith presented. And your memorialists further sheweth that the said Andrew Pleym was in actual possession of said lands from the time of the grant till 1794, when there was a revolution in the province, and the Spanish government ordered all the settlements on the west side of the St. John's river to be destroyed, which was accomplished by the officers of the gun-boats, and the inhabitants [removed] on the east side of the said river; that the said Andrew Pleym died soon after; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of Georgia. St. Augustine, October 10, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimants.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor Quesada to Andrew Pleym of the land, dated February 10, 1791.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's, ss.

Joseph Summerall, being duly sworn, doth depose and say: That he was well acquainted with Andrew Pleym, and that the said Pleym settled on the land situated on an island on the St. John's river, at a place called Doctor's Lake, about the year 1789; continued to live upon it till the year 1794, when, on account of the disturbances of 1794, called Wagner's war, the Spanish government ordered all the settlers on the west side of the St. John's river (where this island lies) to remove on the east side, and sent the gun-boats to burn and destroy all the plantations, in order to compel the inhabitants to remove on the east side of the river. Deponent further says that the said Pleym built a house and cleared about twenty acres of the said land upon this place; and further says not.

JOSEPH SUMMERALL.

Sworn before me this 24th day of December, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Judge of County Court.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

On the memorial to the Spanish government by A. Pleym, the land was granted February 10, 1791, for headrights, by Governor Quesada. It appeared that the grantee, in consequence of the revolution of the province, was obliged to abandon his place. This being deemed a valid grant, the same is hereby confirmed to claimants. September 25.

No. 77.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Philip Embara vs. The United States. For one hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Philip Embara respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred acres, situated about three miles west from the ferry, at a place called Pivit, in St. John's county, East Florida, bounded on the north by lands belonging to Isaac Wickes, on all other sides by vacant lands; beginning at a pine marked E, running thence north 85° east, 20 chains, to another pine; thence south 6° east, 46 chains, to a pine marked E; thence north 60° east, 21 chains, to a pine marked E; thence south 6° east, 54 chains, to the beginning, as will appear by a plat and certificate of survey herewith filed, made by R. McHardy, dated March 11, 1817, and marked C; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made to your memorialist by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790; a certified copy of said concession is herewith filed, marked A, and dated January 5, 1807; and also a memorial and order of survey, dated March 3, 1817, herewith filed, marked B. And your memorialist further showeth that he is in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of St. John's county, in East Florida. He prays confirmation of title to said lands. All of which is respectfully submitted.

PHILIP EMBARA.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor White of the one hundred acres, dated January 5, 1807.]

[Here follows the translation of the plat and certificate of survey by R. McHardy of the one hundred acres, dated March 11, 1817.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that Governor White conceded the land to claimant January 5, 1807; that it was surveyed March 11, 1817, by Robert McHardy, the surveyor appointed by government. The board deeming this to be a valid Spanish grant, it is therefore confirmed to claimant and his heirs.

No. 78.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William Pengree vs. The United States. For one thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of the heirs of William Pengree, by Julius Alford, respectfully showeth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of one thousand acres, situated near the head of the creek called Naponacema, and near Doctor's lake, on a creek about five miles from his lands, bounded by vacant lands, and has not been surveyed as far as memorialists know; and which title your memorialists derive from a concession made to William Pengree, January 29, 1793, by Governor Quesada, in virtue of the royal order of October, 1790, a copy whereof is hereby submitted, marked P; and your memorialists further show that they are legally in possession of said lands; that they were so during the life of the grantee, and many years afterwards; but finally they were removed to the State of Georgia by the provinces of East Florida, where they have since resided; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of Georgia, as aforesaid. They pray confirmation of their title. All of which is submitted.

JULIUS ALFORD, for the heirs of Wm. Pengree, deceased.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor Quesada of the one thousand acres, dated January 29, 1793.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant on claimants' producing the concession made to William Pengree by Governor Quesada, dated January 29, 1793, said concession being without condition. In consideration whereof, we confirm the one thousand acres of land to claimants and their heirs. September 25.

TESTIMONY.

Rebecca Pengree's heirs vs. The United States. For five hundred and one thousand acres of land.

Joseph Hogan, being sworn on the part of the claimant, states that he knew Rebecca Pengree, who cultivated five hundred acres of land on the east side of the river St. John's; and that Mr. Cook, her son-in-law, cultivated those lands, as well as others on the opposite side of said river, and had from thirty to forty negroes.

By UNITED STATES ATTORNEY.

Witness states that the land was cultivated in 1812, and a small part thereof afterwards.

No. 79.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Rebecca Pengree's heirs vs. The United States. For five hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of the heirs of Rebecca Pengree, by Julius Alford, respectfully showeth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of five hundred acres, situated adjoining her plantation, being formerly owned by Mrs. Jones, in St. John's river, the former three, the latter two hundred acres, which has never been surveyed; which title your memorialists derive from a concession made to Rebecca Pengree, their ancestor, by Governor White; a certified copy of said concession is herewith submitted, marked 4, and dated May 9, 1798. And your memorialists further show that they are in legal possession of said lands; that they were cultivated by the said Rebecca Pengree at the time of her death, and by her son, George Cook, afterwards, who was her legal heir; and since his death they are the property of his children, the memorialists, who reside near Greensborough, in the State of Georgia; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of as aforesaid. They pray confirmation of title, &c.

JULIUS ALFORD, for the heirs of Rebecca Pengree.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor White of the land, dated May 9, 1798.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's, ss.

Lodowick Ashley, being duly sworn, doth depose and say: That he was well acquainted with Mrs. Rebecca Pengree, who formerly lived on the St. John's river; that she died about twenty years ago, leaving George Cook, her son, and Mrs. Eliza Lesley, her daughter, her only heirs-at-law; that the said Mrs. Eliza Lesley died some years after her mother, without children, and left the said George Cook, her brother, her only heir, to whom her property descended; and the said George Cook became possessed, as heir-at-law by descent, of all the property of the said Mrs. Pengree and the said Mrs. Lesley; that the said Cook died about the year 1815, and his wife died about three months after, leaving the following children, their only heirs-at-law by descent, viz: Louisa Rogers, the wife of Josiah Rogers; Eliza Alfred, the wife of Julius C. Alfred; Jane Cook and George A. Cook, all of them now residing in the State of Georgia, and are the daughters of this deponent's sister.

LODOW. ASHLEY.

JOHN B. STRONG, Judge of County Court.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant on claimants' producing the concession made to Rebecca Pengree by Governor White, dated May 9, 1798, said concession being without condition. In consideration whereof, we confirm the five hundred acres of land to claimants and their heirs. September 25.

No. 80.—REPORT No. 4.—1824.

Sarah Petty vs. The United States. For one hundred and fifty acres of land—fifty only confirmed.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Sarah Petty, citizen of the United States and resident in East Florida, respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to one hundred and fifty acres of land, situate on the St. John's river, near Buena Vista, bounds not known, not having been surveyed, which she acquired as only heir to Elizabeth Houston, her mother, who purchased the same from Thomas Rodgers November 4, 1805, as appears by his receipts attached to the certificate of the secretary of the Spanish government at that time, and which are herewith presented, by which it appears that the said lands were granted to the said Thomas Rodgers by the Spanish government September 5, 1804, the original concession being, as is supposed, in the office of the archives of East Florida. And your memorialist further showeth that the said Thomas Rodgers was in actual possession of the said lands for one year from the time of the grant, when the same was sold to the said Elizabeth Houston, the mother of your memorialist, who was in possession from that time till the revolution of 1812, when she was obliged to leave the same on account of the troubles of the times, and the same are now occupied. All which is respectfully submitted, &c. St. Augustine, August 20, 1823.

J. B. STRONG, Claimant's Attorney.

[Here follows the translation of the certified copy of concession by Governor White to Thomas Rodgers of fifty acres of land, dated September 5, 1804.]

[Here follows a receipt from Rodgers to Mrs. Houston of certain articles, in consideration for his property, dated November 4, 1805.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case fifty acres only were proven to have been conceded to Thomas Rodgers September 5, 1804, by Governor White, as per certified copy of concession exhibited. Rodgers, it appears by a receipt, conveyed to Mrs. Houston, mother of claimant, his property at Buena Vista. The board ascertaining that title to only fifty acres of land has been made out, they only confirm that quantity to claimant and her heirs. September 25.

No. 81.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Sarah Petty vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Sarah Petty respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated on the river St. Mary's, and is bounded as follows: The first line runs south 70° west, to a pine bounded on the borders of the river St. Mary's, 40 chains; the second line runs north 45° west, 40 chains, to a pine tree; the third line runs north 45° east, to a stake on the banks of the river St. Mary's, 40 chains, running along the bank of the river to the first bounds; which title your memorialist derives from a survey and plat made to John Houston, by virtue of the royal order of 1790, by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, herewith produced, dated April 13, 1792, and the said John Houston, having died, left your memorialist his heir-at-law. And your memorialist further sheweth that she is in legal possession of said lands, and was at the time of the cession; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, November 28, 1823.

J. P. STRONG, for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake of the land (six caballerias,) dated April 13, 1792.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, St. John's County:

Personally appeared before me Sarah Faulk, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that, in the year 1793, this deponent was well acquainted with Mr. John Houston, and that he lived at a place called Cotton's Bluff, about three miles above the mouth of the Little St. Mary's, on the south side of St. Mary's river; and also that he occupied one other place on the same side of St. Mary's river, about twenty miles above, called Hickory Grove; which two tracts this deponent lived on eight years, and that the new Mr. Houston obtained of the Spanish government; and that the above-described tracts are the same now claimed by George Petty in behalf of his wife.

SARAH FAULK.

Sworn to and subscribed this 10th day of December, A. D. 1823.

SAMUEL FAIRBANKS, J. P.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant produced to the board a certificate and plat of survey made by Pedro Marrot, dated April 13, 1792, to John Houston, from whom she inherited the land. It appeared by the affidavit of Sarah Faulk that Houston inhabited the place as far back as 1793. This being, in the opinion of the board, a title which was valid under the Spanish government, the same is hereby confirmed to claimant and her heirs. September 27.

No. 82.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Sarah Petty vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Sarah Petty, (only heir of John Houston, deceased,) resident of East Florida, and citizen of the United States, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to six caballerias (equal to two hundred acres) of land, situated on the river St. Mary's, and bounded as per survey and plat herewith, bounds noted in the margin; which title your memorialist derives from her father, to whom the same was surveyed and laid off by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, March 30, 1792, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. And your memorialist further states that her said father was, from the time of the said survey and making of the plat, which is herewith presented, in the actual possession and cultivating the said tract of land for several years, till he was murdered by the Indians, when his family, in fear for the safety of their lives, left the place and have been prevented from taking possession of the same by reason of one Hobkirk and others having settled on the same. All which is respectfully submitted, &c. St. Augustine, September 26, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

The above land is bounded as follows: The first line runs south from a pine marked with a cross, on the margin of the river St. Mary's, terminating at another pine with the same mark, 45 chains; the second runs west, and terminates at a stake with the same mark, 46 chains; the third runs from the stake to another, with the same mark, on the banks of the river St. Mary's, joining lands of John Forrester, and is measured 45 chains; thence along the margin of the river to the first bound.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, of the two hundred acres, dated March 30, 1792.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, St. John's County:

Personally appeared before me, Samuel Smith, who, being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that, about the year 1787, until 1793, this deponent was well acquainted with Mr. John Houston, who lived on St. Mary's, on the further side of the river; was repeatedly at said Houston's house, at two separate places on said river, one at a bluff a little above the mouth of Little St. Mary's river, the other about twenty miles above, by land; which two places I understood said Houston to own under the Spanish government, and which said tracts I believe to be claimed by George Petty, in behalf of his wife.

SAMUEL SMITH.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 9th day of December, 1823.

SAMUEL FAIRBANK, J. P.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant produced to the board a certificate and plat of survey made by Pedro Marrot, dated March 30, 1792, to John Houston, from whom she inherited the land. It appeared by the affidavit of Samuel Smith that Houston inhabited the place as far back as 1787 and 1793. This being, in the opinion of the board, a title which was valid under the Spanish government, the same is hereby confirmed to claimant and her heirs. September 27.

Joseph Summerall vs. The United States. For one hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph Summerall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract consisting of one hundred and fifty acres, situated five miles from Nassau river, on the head of the river, on the creek called William's, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake, thence south 45° east, 40 chains, west 40 chains, to another stake; thence south 45° west, 30 chains; thence north 45° west, 40 chains, to another pine; thence north 45° east, 38 chains, to the place of beginning; all which appear by a survey and plat made by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake March 11, 1792, which is herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a survey plat made to himself by government, in virtue of the royal orders of 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is now, and was at the cession, in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, September 17, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for the distribution of lands of four caballerias and seventeen acres; one hundred and fifty acres surveyed for claimant, dated March 11, 1792.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

It appears in this case that Pedro Marrot surveyed and delivered the one hundred and fifty acres of land to claimant, March 11, 1792. The survey being considered by the board as authorized by the Spanish government, they confirm it to claimant and his heirs. December 28.

No. 84.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph Summerall vs. The United States. For two hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

Joseph Summerall, your memorialist, sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres, situated at Long bluff, on St. Mary's river—not having been surveyed, the boundaries are not known; which title your memorialist derives from a decree made to your memorialist by governor Quesada, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, dated April 20, 1792, a copy of which is herewith presented. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is now, and was at the cession, in actual possession of said lands by his tenant; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, September 26, 1803.

JOHN B. STRONG, for Claimant.

[Here follows the concession (translated) of the land by Governor Quesada to claimant, dated April 28, 1792.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

It appears in this case that Governor Quesada conceded the land to claimant, April 28, 1792, without condition. Being of opinion that this is a valid Spanish grant, the board confirm it to claimant and his heirs. September 28.

No. 85.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Joseph Summerall vs. The United States. For three hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph Summerall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred acres, situated on the St. John's river, and bounded as follows: The first line runs north from a gum tree marked with a cross, on the banks of St. John's river, seventy-seven chains fifty-hundredths, to a stake with the same mark; thence west from said stake to another stake with a cross, thirty-eight chains seventy-five-hundredths; thence south to the bank of the river, forty-nine chains fifty-hundredths, fronting partly on the bank of the river St. John's, and partly on an enserada of the same river; all which will appear by an original survey and plat made by Peter Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, November 11, 1791, herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a survey made to Diego Clatworthy by order of the Spanish governor, in virtue of the royal order of 1790; and the said Diego Clatworthy having died, left three children, all of whom died, when the mother became the heir, who was one Mary Ann Clatworthy. On October 9, 1805, she made her last will and testament, giving to the said Joseph Summerall (with whom she had lived and been supported for several years) all her property, except some bequests, as will appear by said will herewith presented, and having been proved by Edward Wanton, a subscribing witness, the other being dead. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is now in legal possession, having a tenant on the premises, and was in actual possession of said lands till 1812, when his houses were burned by the patriots and Indians, and his whole plantation destroyed, fences burnt, orange grove destroyed, cattle and other stock killed and drove off, when he was obliged to abandon it. The Spanish government have always since said bequest recognized said lands as the property of this claimant, having occupied it with their knowledge; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, September 3, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Pedro Marrot of nine caballerias, or three hundred acres, to James Clatworthy, dated November 11, 1791.]

Extract from the will of Mary Ann Clatworthy, deceased.

"The small remainder of my estate I give to my very good friend Joseph Summerall, and do constitute him executor of this my last will and testament. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal the 9th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1805.

"MARY ANN CLATWORTHY.

"Witnesses: EDWARD WANTON.
"JOHN DAVIS.
"EUPHEY SUMMERALL."

EAST FLORIDA, St. John's County:

Edward Wanton, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that, at the request of Mary Ann Clatworthy, he wrote the annexed will and subscribed the same as a witness; and, at the same time, John Davis and Euphey Summerall, who are now both dead, subscribed the same as witnesses in this deponent's presence, and that their names subscribed as witnesses to said will are their own proper handwriting. Deponent further says that the said Mary Ann was the widow of Diego Clatworthy, who had died some time previous, leaving two or three children; that all the said children died after their father and before their mother, who was Mary Ann Clatworthy; and when this deponent wrote the said will the said testator directed him to draw said will so as to give to Joseph Summerall a tract of land lying on St. John's river, near Buena Vista, which was granted to her husband in the year 1791, by a survey made by Don Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, and by her said husband left to his children by descent, and at their death descended to the said Mary Ann. This deponent in drawing said will made use of the word estate, supposing it sufficient to transfer said property to the said Summerall; and further says not.

EDWARD M. WANTON.

Sworn and subscribed to before me September 5, 1813.

JAMES S. TINGLE, Notary Public, St. John's County.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant produced to the board a certificate and plat of survey made by Pedro Marrot to James Clatworthy for the three hundred acres, which descended to Mary Ann Clatworthy, his wife, on his and their children's death. Mary Ann Clatworthy bequeathed this tract to claimant by her last will and testament, dated October 9, 1805. The certificate and plat of survey is dated November 11, 1791. This being a title which we ascertain was valid under the Spanish government, the same is hereby confirmed to Joseph Summerall and his heirs. September 28.

No. 86.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William and John Lofton vs. The United States. Claim for three hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of William and John Lofton, inhabitants of East Florida and citizens of the United States, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of ten caballerias and seventeen acres of land, (equal to three hundred and fifty acres,) situate between the St. Mary's and Nassau rivers, distant from the first five miles, and from the second four miles, bounded as per margin and survey herewith presented; which title your memorialists derive from said plat and survey made by Peter Marrot and Samuel Eastlake to their grandfather, John Lofton, as appears by said survey herewith presented, dated in February, 1792. And your memorialists further state that their said grandfather was in possession and cultivated the said lands for many years, and that it descended to them by the death of their ancestors; and your memorialists are now in possession by their agent. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, September 16, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, for Claimants.

The above land is bounded as follows: first line runs north 70° west, from a pine marked with a cross, and runs to a poplar with a cross, distance 70 chains; second line runs south 30° west, 59 chains, to a pine; third line runs south 70° east, 60 chains; fourth line runs south 30° west, 59 chains; all which appears by the survey of Marrot and Eastlake and the plat annexed, herewith presented.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate of survey and plat by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, dated 1792.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimants produced to the board a certificate and plat of survey made by Pedro Marrot, dated 1792, to John Lofton, from whom they inherited the land. The board referred to the depositions exhibited in the claim of Messrs. Lofton for two hundred acres, when it was proven that John Lofton, grandfather of the claimants, had occupied for many years the tract now claimed. Being of the opinion that this would have been a valid grant had Florida remained a Spanish province, we confirm it to claimants. September 28.

No. 87.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William and John Lofton vs. The United States. For three hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of William and John Lofton respectfully sheweth; That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and fifty acres, situated between St. Mary's and Nassau rivers, and bounded as follows: beginning at a cypress, thence running south 60° east, 60 chains, to a stake; thence north 30° east, 59 chains, to a poplar; thence north 60° west, 60 chains, to a pine; thence south 30° west, 59 chains, to the first bound, as appears by the survey and plat made by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, by order of the Spanish government; which survey and plat is herewith presented, and is dated February 24, 1792; which title your memorialists derive from a survey and plat made to John Lofton, their father, who is since dead, by order of the Spanish government. And your memorialists further show that they are now and were at the cession in actual possession of said land; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of Florida. St. Augustine, September, 18, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimants.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate of survey and plat of the land by Pedro Marrot and Samuel Eastlake, dated February 24, 1792, surveyed and laid off for John Lofton.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimants produced a certificate and plat of survey made by Pedro Marrot, dated February 24, 1792, to John Lofton, from whom they inherited the land. The board referred to the depositions exhibited in the claim of Messrs. Lofton for two hundred acres, and find that the original grantee, John Lofton, father of the claimants, had occupied for many years the tract now claimed. Being of the opinion that this would have been a valid grant had Florida remained a Spanish province, we do therefore confirm it to claimants. September 28.

William and John Lofton vs. The United States. For three hundred acres of land.

Charles W. Clarke, being duly sworn, doth depose and say that, at the time the survey in this case bears date, the Loftons, the claimants, were residing on the land embraced by this survey, had been residing there three or four years before, and still reside there, or did last year.

CHARLES W. CLARKE.

Before me, this 21st of September, 1825.

No. 88.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Pedro Trope vs. The United States. For one hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Pedro Trope, native and resident of St. Augustine and citizen of the United States, respectfully sheweth; That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and fifty acres of land, situated at the Mosquitos, and boundary unknown, not having been surveyed; the title is in the office of the archives in this city, a certificate of which is herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from his mother, Maria Ortega, he being the only surviving heir; which grant was made to him by the Spanish government March 15, 1803. Your memorialist further states that his father occupied the said lands for nine years previous to the making the said grant, but that the trouble of the times and the want of protection from the Spanish government have prevented him from taking possession since the grant was made.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the certified copy of concession by Governor White to Maria Ortega of the 150 acres, dated March 15, 1803.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case exhibited a certified copy of concession made to his mother by Governor White, dated March 15, 1815. It was proven that the land was occupied by the parents of the claimant for nine years.—(See testimony of Jos. Hernandez.) This being, in the opinion of the board, a valid Spanish grant, the same is hereby confirmed to Trope and his heirs.

[NOTE.—No. 89 was not returned to the General Land Office by the commissioners.]

No. 90.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

George F. and Oliver Palmes vs. The United States. For two hundred and forty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of George F. and Oliver Palmes respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of two hundred and forty-five acres, situated in St. Domingo plains, bounded on the north by the lands of Francisco Sanchez, on the south by the lands of John Andres, on the east by the tract of Santa Lucia, and on the west by vacant pine lands, beginning thence south 60° west, 49 chains 55 links, to an oak; thence south 10° east, 49 chains 55 links, to a pine; thence north 60° east, 49 chains 55 links, to the beginning, as will be seen by the plat herewith exhibited, marked A, dated September 12, 1816; which title your memorialists derive from a royal title made to Francisco Medicis by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815; who sold the same to Joseph Delespin, by conveyance dated ____; who sold the same to Gabriel W. Perpall, by deed dated December 23, 1816; who sold the same to Joseph Wales, by deed dated October 3, 1817; who sold the same to Paul Dupon, by deed dated May 27, 1818; who sold the same in trust for memorialists as will appear by bond of Dupon herewith exhibited, all other intermediate conveyance being in the office of the archives in St. Augustine; and your memorialists further show that they are legally seized of said lands; that they and those under whom they claim are all citizens of the United States, and were so, or were citizens of Florida, at the time of cession of said Florida, in the year 1821; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of Savannah, in Georgia. They pray confirmation of title, &c.

All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

GEORGE F. PALMES.
OLIVER PALMES.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to Francisco Medicis for the 245 acres of land, dated February 15, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

[Here follows an abstract from the keeper of the public archives, showing conveyances from Medicis to Joseph Delespin, from him to G. W. Perpall, from him to Joseph Wales, and from him to Paul Dupon, in trust for claimants.]

[Here follows a plat of the 245 acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm to claimants.

No. 91.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

A. E. Ferguson's heirs vs. The United States. For five hundred and seven acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of the widow and heirs of Artemas Elliot Ferguson respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land, consisting of five hundred and seven acres, situated in East Florida, on St. John's river, being a plantation known by the name of Sansouces, beginning at an oak, on the margin of St. John's river, marked with a cross; thence west, 120 chains, to a stake, bounded by lands known by the name of St. Andrew's Point, on that line; thence north, 42 chains 50 links, to a stake; thence east, 120 chains, to a stake on the margin of the river; thence with the meanders of the river to the beginning, as appears by survey of Pedro Marrot, dated February 26, 1793, in the office of the archives; which title your memorialists derive from a royal title made to them October 5, 1811, by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. And your memorialists further show that they are in legal possession of said lands; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of Georgia. They pray a confirmation of their title, &c.

SUSAN SLUGH,
Widow of A. E. Ferguson, for herself and his heirs.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Estrada to Artemas Elliot Ferguson for the land, dated October 5, 1811, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this claim to be a valid one by claimants exhibiting the royal title in absolute property made by Governor Estrada to Artemas E. Ferguson, from whom the above claimants inherit the land, dated October 5, 1811. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to the claimants.

No. 92.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

A. E. Ferguson's heirs vs. The United States. For forty-three and one-third acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of the widow and heirs of Artemas Elliot Ferguson respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of forty-three and one-third acres, situated on Doctor's creek, adjoining the plantation of Armonica, belonging to memorialists, beginning at a laurel, marked with a cross, upon the bank of Doctor's creek; thence north 20° east, 15 chains, to a stake; thence north 45° west, 35 chains, to a pine marked with a cross; thence south 80° west, 13 chains to a laurel on the bank of Doctor's creek, marked with a cross; thence along the bank of Doctor's creek to the beginning, as appears by survey made by Pedro Marot, dated February 27, 1793, filed in the archives office, which title your memorialists derive from a royal title made to memorialists October 7, 1811, by Governor Estrada, in virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790; a certified copy of said royal title is herewith exhibited, marked B. And your memorialists further show that they are in legal possession of said lands; that they are citizens of the United States and residents of Georgia. They pray a confirmation of their title, &c.

SUSAN SLUGH,
Widow of A. E. Ferguson, for herself and heirs.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Estrada to Artemas E. Ferguson for the land, dated October 7, 1811, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this grant to be a valid one by claimants exhibiting the royal title in absolute property made by Governor Estrada to Artemas E. Ferguson, from whom the above claimants inherit the land, dated October 7, 1811. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to them. September 29.

No. 93.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

John Gianopoly vs. The United States. For five hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Gianopoly respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of five hundred acres, situated at the place west of the lagoon of St. Marcos, distance twelve miles from the city of St. Augustine, and is bounded as follows: commencing at a pine tree, marked C; thence running west, 60 chains, to a sweet laurel, marked X; thence north 17° west, 113 chains, to a pine tree, marked with a cross; thence parallel to the first line, 58 chains, all which appears by the plat and survey herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to himself by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, dated in July, 1799, as appears by the certificate of the government secretary herewith presented. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands, and has been ever since the grant, except having been driven therefrom three different times by the Indians and patriots; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the certified copy of concession by Governor White to claimant, dated July 6, 1799.]

[Here follows the translation of certificate and plat of survey by Andres Burgevin of the 500 acres of land.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant exhibited to the board a certified copy of concession made by Governor White to him, dated July 6, 1799, together with a survey. It was proven by Bennet and Segur that claimant occupied and cultivated the 500 acres for many years. We deem this to be a valid Spanish grant, and confirm it to Gianopoly and his heirs. September 30.

No. 94.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

John Gianopoly vs. The United States. Claim for ten acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Gianopoly respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of ten acres, situated without the 1,500 yards, and is bounded as follows: beginning at a stake on the public road, thence running N. 22° W., 11 chains 12 links, to a stone; thence N. 68° E., 9 chains; thence S. 22° E., 11 chains 12 links; thence to the first beginning, as appears by the survey and plat herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to himself by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, which will appear by the copy of the memorial and decree herewith presented, dated June 1, 1807. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands, and has been cultivating them since 1807 to this time; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, October 7, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the concession made by Governor White to claimant of the ten acres, dated June 1, 1807.]

[Here follows a plat and certificate of survey by G. Darling of the ten acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that Governor White conceded the ten acres to claimant on June 1, 1807; that he has been in the cultivation of it ever since it was granted, and that it was surveyed. We do hereby confirm the title to him. September 30.

No. 95.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

A. Montero vs. The United States. For twenty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The heirs of Antonio Montero, deceased, respectfully show: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land, consisting of twenty-five acres of land, situated on the road to Capuaca, and adjoining the lands of John Gianopoly, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake in the line of said road; thence 22° west, 27 chains 78 links, to a stone; thence north 60° east, 9 chains, to a stake; thence south 22° east, 27 chains 78 links; thence to the place of beginning, as appears by the survey herewith presented; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to the said Antonio Montero by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, as appears by the grant herewith presented, dated January 23, 1808. And your memorialists further show that the said Montero's son-in-law, John Gianopoly, is in actual possession of said lands, and has been ever since the grant to this time, cultivating the same by consent of the said Montero in his lifetime, and who, by a verbal conveyance, had transferred the same to the said John Gianopoly, who had married his daughter, and, with the knowledge of the Spanish government, had cultivated the same; that his said son-in-law, John Gianopoly, is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, October 7, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the concession made by Governor White to claimant of the twenty-five acres of land, dated January 23, 1808.]

[Here follows a plat and certificate of survey by G. Darling of the twenty-five acres.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that the twenty-five acres were conceded to Antonio Montero January 23, 1808, by Governor White; that the same was cultivated by one of Montero's family for many years. We do hereby confirm the title to claimants. September 30.

No. 96.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Reuben Charles vs. The United States. For one hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Reuben Charles respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred acres, situated at the Nine-mile spring, on the King's road, adjoining the lands of Marshal and Hindsman, and has not been surveyed; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Lewis Schofield and family by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. The said Schofield, who had no children, took possession, and cultivated it some time, after which he absconded with a woman not his wife, leaving his family; that his wife, Margaret Schofield, June 2, 1823, sold the said property to this claimant by deed herewith presented. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is now in actual possession of said lands, and has built a house upon the same; that the grant to Lewis Schofield is herewith presented, dated June 16, 1796; that the said Schofield absconded in 1812, and has not returned since; that your memorialist is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor White to Lewis Schofield of the land, dated June 16, 1796.]

[Here follows the conveyance from Margaret Schofield to claimant, dated June 2, 1822.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that Governor White conceded the hundred acres to Lewis Schofield, without condition, on June 16, 1796. Margaret, wife of said Lewis Schofield, on June 16, 1822, sold and conveyed the land to claimant. It further appeared that the grantee occupied and cultivated the place for many years, (as per parol testimony of Capo.) This, in opinion of the board, being a valid Spanish grant, they confirm it to claimant and his heirs. October 1.

No. 97.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer vs. The United States. Claim to thirty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of thirty-five acres, situated at San Pablo, in the county of St. John's, bounded on the north by lands of Catharine Baker, and pine barren, and has not been surveyed; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to him, in absolute property, by Governor Copperger, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, on April 16, 1817, and which royal grant or title is in the archives, and a copy herewith presented. And your memorialist further showeth that he is now, and was at the time of the cession, in actual possession of said lands; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of East Florida.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Translation.]

Title of property to thirty-five acres of land in favor of Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer, at the place named St. Pablo.

Don José Coppinger, colonel of the royal armies, governor, political and military, pro tem., and chief of the royal revenue of this place and province, &c.:

Whereas, by royal order communicated to this government October 29, 1790, by the captain general of the Island of Cuba and the two Floridas, it is provided, among other things, that foreigners who offer themselves, of their own free will, to swear allegiance to our sovereign, shall have lands measured to them gratis, in proportion to the number of workers which each family may have; and Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer having presented himself, soliciting thirty-five acres of land which are vacant, to the north of those of his property at the plantation known as St. Pablo, being bounded by those of Donna Catharina Baker, and on the east and west by Pablo creek and pine lands, to the end that he may add them to his above-mentioned possession on account of the increased number of negroes he has for their cultivation, I have thought proper to accede to the said solicitation by my decree of this date, placed in the process which exists in the archives of the present notary: Wherefore, I have granted, and in the name of his Majesty do grant, unto the said Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer the before-mentioned thirty-five acres of land, for himself, his heirs and successors, without prejudice to a third person, in absolute property, and despatch to him, as I do, by these presents, the corresponding title, and do therefore separate from the royal domain all right and dominion it has in said lands, and do cede and transfer it unto the said Don Bartolome de Castro y Ferrer, his heirs and successors, that they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatever, with all its entrances, outlets, uses, and customs, which it has had, has, and by fact or law belongs to it, and can affect it; and, at their pleasure, sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as shall best suit them. To all which I interpose my authority, as I can and of right ought to do, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, being countersigned by the undersigned notary of the government and royal domain, in this city of St. Augustine, Florida, April 10, 1817.

JOSÉ COPPINGER.

By order of his excellency:

JUAN DE ENTRALGO, Notary of Government, &c.

This is conformable to the original which is on the archives in my charge, to which I refer; and in compliance with command, and the desire of the party, I sign and seal this present testimonial on two leaves of common paper, the stamp not being used. St. Augustin, April 10, 1817.

JUAN DE ENTRALGO.

I certify the foregoing is a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We ascertain this is a valid Spanish grant by claimant producing a royal title in absolute property made to him April 10, 1817, by Governor Coppinger. We therefore confirm the same to him and his heirs. May 1, 1824.

No. 98.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. For twenty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francisco P. Sanchez respectfully showeth: That he claims title to a certain lot or tract of land containing 25 acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid; that the said land was originally granted March 10, 1807, by Governor White, then the governor of East Florida, it then being a province of the crown of Spain, to Bartolome Figueras; that the said Bartolome Figueras, with the permission of Governor Kindelan, sold and conveyed the said land to one Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, Jr., August 20, 1813, which said original grant and the said conveyance are of record in the office of the keeper of the public archives of East Florida, as will fully and at large appear, reference being thereto had; that the said land is situated in the county of St. John's, at Moultrie, and is bounded on the north by lands of Lewis Turnbas, on the east by the marsh of the river Matanzas, and on the west by public lands; that the said land was conveyed by the said Fernando de la Maza Arredondo to Samuel Cook in fee simple, by deed bearing date March 29, 1822, which is recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court for St. John's county, and that the said Samuel Cook, for a valuable consideration paid by your memorialist to him, conveyed the said land and its appurtenances to your memorialist by deed bearing date September 29, 1823, which said deed is also recorded in the office of the said clerk of the said county court. Your memorialist avers and shows that the said Bartolome Figueras was, when the said land was so granted to him as aforesaid, a Spanish subject, and an inhabitant and settler of East Florida at the time of the cession of this territory to the United States, and is now, and has been ever since the said cession, such an inhabitant and settler. Wherefore, your memorialist prays a confirmation of his title to the said land and its appurtenances.

FRANCIS P. SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JNO. DRYSDALE.

[Here follows the translation of the royal concession by Governor White to Bartolome Figueras of the 25 acres of land, dated March 10, 1817.]

[Here follows the translation of the permission given by the Spanish government to Figueras to convey away this land to Fernando de la Maza Arredondo.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that Governor White conceded the 25 acres to Bartolome Figueras on March 10, 1807; that Figueras, by permission of the government, conveyed the land to Fernando de la Maza Arredondo, jr. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to claimant. October 4.

Sarah Petty vs. The United States. For two hundred and sixty-eight and two-thirds acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Sarah Petty respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of eight caballerias and two acres, situated on Julington creek, and is bounded as follows: the first line runs north 55° east, at a stake marked with a cross, on the margin of Julington creek, and terminates at a poplar with the same mark, 76 chains, and partly joins the lands of Alexander Creighton; the second, south 45° east from said poplar, to a cypress with the same mark, 40 chains, and fronts on the margin of Julington creek: all which will appear by the survey and plat herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a survey and plat to George Long, by Marrot and Eastlake, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, by order of the Spanish government, said survey and plat April 9, 1793; said George Long having died, left the same to his heirs, Christiana Long, Matthew Long, Joseph Long, and Jane Long, who sold the same to your memorialist November 26, 1821, as per deed herewith presented and attached to the survey aforesaid. And your memorialist further sheweth that she is now in actual possession of said lands, and the heirs of the said George Long were at the time of the cession; and the said George Long was in possession from the time of the survey aforesaid till his death, and his heirs after him till the said sale; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, September 17, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by Pedro Marrot to George Long of the land, dated April 9, 1793.]

[Here follows a deed of conveyance from the heirs of George Long to claimant, dated November 6, 1821.]

Joseph Sumnerall, being duly sworn, doth depose and say, that Sarah Petty, the claimant, is the only heir-at-law of John Houston, deceased, and was his daughter, &c., &c. This deponent also well knows a tract of land of about 250 acres or 260 acres, more or less, which the said Sarah Petty now resides upon, with her family and negroes; this tract she bought of the heirs of George Long in 1821; that she has occupied the same ever since the purchase; that the said George Long, to whom the same had been granted, and his heirs after his death, had possession of the said land, and lived upon and cultivated it, for most of the time, for 20 or 30 years before the said Sarah Petty bought the same; that the children of the said George Long were four in number, and, as well as this deponent can recollect, were Matthew, Joseph, Margaret, and Jane; further this deponent saith not.

JOSEPH SUMMERALL.

Sworn before me this 23d December, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Judge of the County Court.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board find in this case that the Spanish government had the land surveyed and laid off for George Long, as per certified plat of the same by Marrot, dated April 9, 1793; that the heirs of Long sold and conveyed the tract to claimant, and that the grantee and his heirs occupied and cultivated it between twenty and thirty years. We deem this to be a valid Spanish grant, and confirm it to claimant. October 11.

William Travers vs. The United States. For one thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Travers and the other heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land consisting of one thousand acres, situated at a place called Santa Thomas, on St. John's river, and is bounded as follows: beginning at a live oak*, running south 70° west, 100 chains, to a pine tree on the bank of the river; thence south 20° east, 110 chains, to a pine tree marked †; thence north 70° east, 42 chains, to a laurel on the margin of the creek Santa Thomas; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to them by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790; and your memorialists further sheweth that they are in actual possession of said lands; they reside in St. Augustine, and did so at the exchange of flags.

WILLIAM TRAVERS,
By GEORGE MURRAY.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor White to the heirs of Charles Travers, deceased, of the land, dated September 27, 1808, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant by claimant exhibiting the royal title made by Governor White to the heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, dated September 27, 1808. In consideration whereof, we confirm the thousand acres to claimant. October 11.

No. 101.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William Travers vs. The United States. For one hundred and seventy-two acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Travers, administrator of the estate of Thomas Travers, deceased, respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land containing one hundred and seventy-two acres, situated on the river St. John's, at a place called St. Patricio, bounded as follows: beginning at a cypress tree marked with a cross, running north 30° , 35 chains, to a stake on the bank of St. John's river; thence south 53° east, 49 chains, to a pine tree; thence south 30° west, 35 chains, to a cypress tree with the same mark, on the bank of said river; which title your memorialist derives from an absolute grant made to Thomas Travers, deceased, by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. Your memorialist and heirs of Thomas Travers claim title to the said tract of land. And your memorialist further showeth that he is in possession of said lands; that your memorialist was here at the change of flags, and still resides in St. Augustine; that he is a citizen of East Florida and resident of the same.

All which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM TRAVERS.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor White to Thomas Travers of the land, dated September 27, 1808, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board ascertain this to be a valid Spanish grant by claimant exhibiting the royal title made by Governor White to the heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, September 27, 1808. We confirm the title to claimant. October 11.

No. 102.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

John Gianopoly vs. The United States. For fifteen acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of John Gianopoly respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of fifteen acres, more or less, without the gates, and 1,500 yards, and is bounded as follows: beginning at a stake on the line of John Gianopoly's lands; thence running north 22° west, 20 chains, to an oak tree; thence north 68° east, 5 chains; thence south 46° east, 12 chains and 40 links, to a stake; thence south 8° west, 10 chains; thence to the first bounds, as appears by the plat and survey herewith presented; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Domingo Segui, dated January 19, 1805, by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, who sold the same to your memorialist about the year 1815, but did not convey until January 25, 1821, which deed is herewith presented. And your memorialist further states that the said lands were granted for ten acres, and have been occupied, with the knowledge and acquiescence of the Spanish government, for more than thirty years by your memorialist and those under whom he holds. And your memorialist further showeth that he is in actual possession of said lands, and was at the cession; and he further states that the said lands were never surveyed regularly till recently, but marked out by affixing stakes; and that, on recent survey, they are found to contain fifteen acres, as appears by the plat and survey aforesaid, and have been cultivated and improved with the knowledge of the government aforesaid; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of Florida. St. Augustine, October 7, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney of Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the concession of the land by Governor White to Domingo Segui, dated January 14, 1805.]

[Here follows the translation of the conveyance from Domingo Segui to claimant of ten acres, dated June 25, 1821.]

[Here follows a plat and certificate of survey by G. Darling.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

This claimant in this case exhibited a concession made by Governor White to Domingo Segui for ten acres, dated January 19, 1805. Segui, June 25, 1821, sold and conveyed the same to claimant. It was proven that he lived on and cultivated this tract for at least thirty years. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to Gianopoly. October 12.

TESTIMONY.

John Gianopoly vs. The United States. For fifteen acres of land.

Gamaliel Darling, being sworn, says that he knows the original grantee, who lived on the said tract previous to his having sold it to the present claimant. Witness says that the present owner has cultivated the same ever since the purchase. Witness says he has resided in the province about six years; says that he had nothing to guide him in the survey but the words of the owner, and that the lines were pointed out by the said owner, and there were old ditches that guided him in the survey.

Philip Solana, being sworn, says that Mr. Segui lived on the tract till his death, and that his son lived on the said tract until the same was sold; does not know what quantity was contained in the grant.

No. 103.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Seymour Pickett vs. The United States. Claim for three hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Seymour Pickett, resident of this Territory of Florida and citizen of the United States, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred and fifty acres, situated on the Mosquito river, at a place called Smyrna, bounded by the canal or marsh, and thence to run north in front till the complement is made up, but has not been surveyed; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to himself by the Spanish government September 3, 1803, and herewith presented by copy, with its translation, which grant was made by virtue of the royal order of 1790. And your memorialist further states that he took possession of the said lands immediately after receiving the grant, and continued in possession and cultivated the same till 1808, when the Indians burnt his house and the houses of the whole settlement, and committed such depredations that all the settlers were obliged to abandon their settlement for want of government protection. And your memorialist says that immediately after the cession, he again took possession of his property by placing Jeremiah Ives, his tenant, upon the same, who has cultivated it ever since, and built houses upon the same.

All which is respectfully submitted, &c.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

Since making the above memorial a survey has been found, and is bounded on the north by lands of Robert Sheppard, on the east by Mosquito river, on the south by lands of John Addison, and on the west by vacant lands.

JOHN B. STRONG, for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by George White to the claimant of the land, dated September 3, 1803.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate of survey by John Purcell of the three hundred and fifty acres, dated May 20, 1803.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that Governor White conceded the three hundred and fifty acres to claimant by concession, dated September 3, 1803. Deeming this to be a valid Spanish grant, the same is hereby confirmed to claimant and his heirs. November 25.

No. 104.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Henry Martin's heirs vs. The United States. Claim for four hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of the heirs of Henry Martin, deceased, resident in Charleston, South Carolina, and citizens of the United States, respectfully sheweth: That they claim title to a tract of land of four hundred acres, situated at the Mosquito, and bounded on the north by Ladd's lands, not having been surveyed, remainder not known; which title your memorialists derive from a grant made to the said Henry Martin, September 3, 1803, copy of which is herewith presented, and the translation by the Spanish government in virtue of the royal order of 1790. And your memorialists further state that the said Henry Martin took possession of the same, with his family, the moment after he obtained the grant, and continued in possession till 1808, when his house was burned, and his whole plantation was destroyed by the Indians, and he was obliged to abandon the same for a time on account of the continued depredations of the Indians, and the want of protection from the Spanish government; that soon after he procured his wife's father to again take possession of the said lands, who, with uncommon patience and suffering, continued in possession till 1812, when, from the commotions in the province and the famine experienced in that part, he was again obliged to abandon it; that immediately after the cession your memorialists put a tenant on the premises, who still occupies the same and cultivates it. All which is respectfully submitted, &c. St. Augustine, September 19, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Claimants' Attorney.

The memorialists are uncertain whether the lands claimed by them join Ladd's or Hull's; or if they have been surveyed, the survey is lost.

STRONG, for Claimants.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor White to Henry B. Martin of the land, dated September 3, 1803.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that Governor White conceded the four hundred acres to Henry Martin by concession, dated September 3, 1803. Deeming this to be a valid Spanish grant, we confirm it to the heirs of the aforesaid Martin. November 25.

No. 105.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Robert Shepherd vs. The United States. For one hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Robert Shepherd respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred acres, situated on the Mosquito river, and has been surveyed; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to him by Governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790, dated December 30, 1803; and your memorialist further showeth that he occupied and improved said lands a considerable time, but was compelled to leave them on account of the troubles of the times; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the United States. St. Augustine, November 28, 1823.

JOHN B. STRONG, Attorney for Claimant.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor White of the hundred acres to claimant, dated December 30, 1803.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that Governor White conceded the hundred acres to claimant December 30, 1803. Deeming this to be a valid Spanish grant, we confirm it to claimant and his heirs. November 25.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John B. Entralgo respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one thousand acres, situated about thirty miles west of the post of Buena Vista, at a place called Corral de Agua, and is bounded as follows: beginning at a gum, and running S. 12° E., 70 chains and 71 links, to a pine tree marked with a cross; thence S. 78° E., 141 chains and 42 links, to a nogel marked with a cross; thence N. 12° E., 70 chains 71 links, to a white oak marked with a cross; thence in a straight line to the beginning; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to said John B. Entralgo by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815.—(See the grant and plat, marked A, filed herewith.) And your memorialist further sheweth that he has possession of said lands, that he lived in St. Augustine at the change of flags, and now resides in Cuba.

JOHN B. ENTRALGO,
By GEO. MURRAY.

[Translation.]

Don José Coppering, colonel of the royal armies, civil and military governor pro tem. of this city and province, and chief of the royal domain of St. Augustine, Florida, by his Majesty:

Whereas, by a royal order of March 29, 1815, his Majesty has deigned to approve the favors and rewards proposed by my predecessor, Brigadier Don Sebastian Kindelan, for the officers and soldiers, both regular and militia, of this province, who assisted in its defence at the time of the rebellion, one of the said favors being a distribution of land in proportion to the number of the family each individual might have; that having offered himself, Don Juan de Entralgo, notary of government and the royal domain, the only one in this city and province, soliciting, in virtue of said favors, as former commandant of the company of mulattoes and negroes of said city, and an old settler of it, in consequence of the royal order communicated to this government by the captain general of the Havana October 29, 1790, the concession of one thousand acres of land were granted to him in vacant land, which is about thirty miles to the west of the post of Buena Vista, on the river St. John's, at a place known as the Water Pen, its survey beginning to the east of a great lake which is in the said place, bounded on all sides by vacant lands, as is accredited by my decree of the 20th day of May last, made on the proceedings moved for by the said Don Juan de Entralgo, the above-mentioned one thousand acres of land at the place mentioned, for himself, his heirs and successors, in absolute property; and in expediting to him, as by these presents I do, the corresponding title by which I separate from the royal domain all the rights and dominion which it had to said land; and I cede and transfer to the said Don Juan de Entralgo, his heirs and successors, that, in consequence, they may possess it as their own, use and enjoy it, without any encumbrance whatsoever, with all its entrances, outlets, customs, rights, and services which it has had, has, and in fact and law belong or pertain to it, and at their will sell, cede, transfer, and alienate it as may best suit them. In all which I interpose my authority, as I can and of right ought, in virtue of the sovereign will.

Given under my hand, and countersigned by the secretary of this government, Brevet Second Lieutenant Don Tomas de Aguilar, and by the officer of the secretary's department, Don Antonio Alvarez, whom I have named for assistant witnesses for this purpose, the said notary of government and the royal domain being interested. St. Augustine, November 15, 1817.

JOSÉ COPPINGER.

By command of his lordship:

TOMAS DE AGUILAR.
ANTONIO ALVAREZ.

This is conformable to the original, which remains in the archives of the notary of this government and of the royal domain; and at his desire I sign these presents, with the assistant witnesses, on common paper, the stamped not being used. St. Augustine, November 15, 1817.

JOSÉ COPPINGER.

TOMAS DE AGUILAR.
ANTONIO ALVAREZ.

I certify the foregoing to be a true and correct translation from a document in the Spanish language on file in the office of the public archives of St. Augustine.

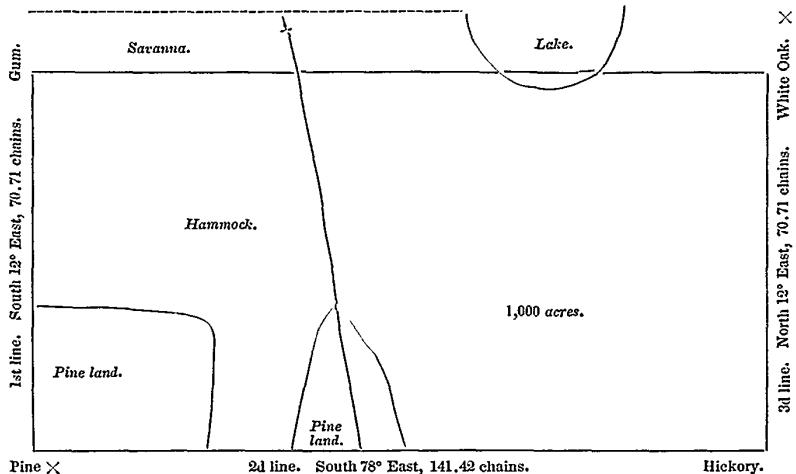

[Translation.]

Don Andres Burgevin, as surveyor named by a decree of this government made the 11th of June of the present year: I certify that I have measured and laid off for Don Juan Entralgo, notary of government and the royal domain in this city, a piece of land which contains one thousand acres of land, and which is situated to the southeast of the savanna of the deceased chief of the Seminoles, known as Bowlegs, and part at a lake, by the side of which the said Bowlegs had a cowpen. The first line of the said land begins with a — marked X, and runs south 12° west, 70 chains 71 links, and ends with a pine marked X; the second line begins with the said pine, runs south 78° east, 141 chains 42 links, and ends with a hickory marked +; the third line runs from thence north 12° east, 70 chains 71 links, and ends with a white oak also marked +, some distance on the east side of the lake, and being in other circumstances conformable to the following plan; to confirm which I give these presents, which I sign in St. Augustine, Florida, September 9, 1819.

ANDRES BURGEVIN.

John D. Vaughan vs. The United States. For nine hundred and fifty acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John D. Vaughan respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 950 acres, situated and lying on Lofton creek, near Nassau river, and by the accompanying survey and certificate, marked B, is of the following metes and bounds, to wit: north 10° east, 97 chains; thence north 80° west, 98 chains; thence south 10° east, 97 chains; then south 80° east, 98 chains, and bounded on the south by lands of Mr. Walker; which title your memorialist claims in virtue of a survey made for him by Mr. George Clarke, the surveyor general for East Florida, as is more fully shown by the survey and certificate, marked B, and by the deposition of Mr. George Clarke, marked C, which documents accompany this memorial. Your memorialist begs leave further to state to your honorable board that he is now living on the said land, and that he has had it in occupation and cultivation for several years. Your memorialist is now, and has been for many years, a resident of Florida, and was such at the cession of the Territory to the United States. He prays that your honorable board will confirm his title to the said tract of land.

JOHN D. VAUGHAN,
By his agent, EDWARD R. GIBSON.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by George J. E. Clarke of the 950 acres, dated December 8, 1816.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. Johns:

On July—, 1824, in the city of St. Augustine, before E. R. Gibson, justice of the peace for said county, and in the presence of Edgar Macon, esq., attorney of the United States for East Florida, personally appeared George J. F. Clarke, who, being duly sworn, doth depose and say, that early in the year 1816 he, the deponent, was employed by John D. Vaughan, planter, of Amelia island, to procure for him, from the government of East Florida, through the process usually had in such cases, a grant to a tract of land lying on Lofton's creek, Nassau river, pursuant to a royal order of March, 1815, granting bounties of land for services, to which bounty the said Vaughan had an unquestionable claim, as was well known to this deponent, as an officer of government; that this deponent presented a petition in the name of the said Vaughan, which he handed to the commandant at Fernandina, who transmitted the same to the governor of the province, and the said petition was decreed and returned to the commandant for his report; that this deponent knows that the same was favorably reported on by said commandant, which was all that was required in such cases to make the grant sure; and it was again transmitted by him, officially, to the governor at St. Augustine—the usual course of such claims; and this deponent paid the said commandant, for J. D. Vaughan, the usual fees in such cases; that some short time after this the escrivano, at whose office such papers are deposited, was at Fernandina, and this deponent, on inquiring of him respecting said grant, was told, in the presence of Mr. Vaughan, by the escrivano, that the grant was finally decreed. In consequence of that information, this deponent, as surveyor general of the province, did survey and deliver to said Vaughan 950 acres of land at the place above mentioned, which he now cultivates; and this deponent believes and has generally understood that Vaughan began to make improvements on it in the year 1816, and has cultivated it from that time to the present.

GEORGE J. F. CLARKE.

Sworn to before me July 14, 1804.

E. R. GIBSON.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

No. 116.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William Barden vs. The United States. For six lots.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioner's appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of William Barden, in right of his wife and other heirs of Uriah Bowden, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of six lots, situated on St. John's river, at a place called St. Anthony, commencing at the edge of said river at a post marked with a cross; thence running south 20° east, 50 chains, to a cypress with the same mark, bounded by lands of Robert Gilbert; thence south 70° east, 32 chains, to a pine of the same mark; thence north 20° west, 70 chains, to a pine of the same mark, at Point St. Anthony, on St. John's river; thence the courses of said river to the place of beginning, as will appear by a survey made by Don Samuel Eastlake, authorized surveyor, dated December 22, 1791, now on file in the office of the keeper of the public archives; which title your memorialist derives from a royal grant made to Uriah Bowden by Governor Sebastian Kindelan, dated April 17, 1815, a certified copy of which is herewith presented, by virtue of the royal order of October 29, 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that he claims title through his wife, Mary, who, as the widow of Uriah Bowden and the wife of your memorialist, has occupied the lands ever since the year 1787, and is still in possession; that your memorialist is a citizen of the United States and resident of East Florida. All which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM BARDEN,
By attorney, WATERS SMITH.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Kindelan to Uriah Bowden of the land, dated April 17, 1815, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case we find that the land was granted in absolute property to Uriah Bowden, as per royal title by Governor Kindelan, dated April 17, 1815. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to the widow and other heirs of the aforesaid Bowden. December 18.

No. 117.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

William Travers vs. The United States. For seven hundred and fifty and one-third acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of William Travers, son of Thomas Travers, for himself and the other heirs of Thomas Travers, deceased, respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of 750½ acres, situated on the St. John's river, at a place called Glorat, and is bounded by lands of Isaac Wickes, Juan McQueen, and others, and has the following lines: beginning at a gum marked +, running west, 64 chains, to a pine +; thence north 22° east, 40 chains, to a pine marked +, on the bank of St. John's river; thence up said river, with its course, to a live-oak marked +; thence south 30° west, 65 chains, to a live-oak +, on the river; thence to the beginning; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to Thomas Travers by governor White, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. And your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands. He resides in St. Augustine, and did so at the change of flags.

WILLIAM TRAVERS, for the heirs of Thomas Travers.
GEORGE MURRAY.

[Here follows various proceedings, by which is seen that Thomas Travers obtained permission from Governor White to take possession of the land formerly granted to Thomas Sterling, on account of the liabilities which he incurred for said Sterling to the government. The permission of Governor White is dated October 11, 1803.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey of Pedro Marrot, commissioned judge for the distribution of lands, of the land, (22 caballerias and 17 acres,) dated January 9, 1792, laid off for Thomas Sterling.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

We find in this case that Thomas Travers petitioned the government to have the land in question transferred to him for the reasons set forth in his memorial, which, after various proceedings had, was finally acceded to by Governor White October 11, 1803. The board being of opinion that this would have been a valid grant had Florida remained a dominion of the King of Spain, they confirm it to claimants and their heirs. December 28.

TESTIMONY.

William Travers, for himself and the other heirs of Thomas Travers, vs. The United States. For seven hundred and fifty and one-third acres of land.

A. Bellamy, being sworn, states that he has always understood that said tract belongs to Mr. Travers, and that the family of the Augers have resided and now reside on said tract; and that Dr. Hall informed witness that he was agent for said Travers, and that he placed them there.

A BELLAMY.

Francis J. Fatio, being duly sworn, states that he knew Dr. Thomas Travers, and that he has always understood that William Travers, the memorialist in this case, is the reported son of Thomas Travers, deceased.

Shadrick Stanley vs. The United States. For three hundred acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Shadrick Stanley respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of three hundred acres, situated at the St. Mary's river; first line runs south from the river, commencing at a pine on its banks, 75 chains, to a pine; second line, thence south, 40 chains, to a pine; third line, thence north, 75 chains, to a pine on the river; bounded east by the lands of Charles Love, south and west by vacant lands; all of which will be seen by the survey which is herewith presented; which title your memorialist claims from a survey of George Clarke, December 10, 1817, in conformity of the royal order of March 29, 1815. Your memorialist further sheweth that he is in actual possession of said lands, and was at the time of the cession; and that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the Territory of Florida. All of which is respectfully submitted, &c.

A. BELLAMY, Attorney.

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by George J. F. Clarke, dated December 10, 1817.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

TESTIMONY.

Shadrick Stanley vs. The United States. For three hundred acres of land.

G. J. F. Clarke, being sworn, states that Governor Coppering gave him an order to distribute lands to all those who contributed to the defence of Fernandina in 1817. Witness states that the order was verbal, and that Stanley has been living on the said tract since that year.

No. 119.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Francis P. Sanchez vs. The United States. For two hundred and fifty acres.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain the claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francis P. Sanchez respectfully sheweth: That memorialist claims title in and to a certain tract or parcel of land consisting of two hundred and fifty acres, situated and being in East Florida aforesaid, on the south side of the river St. John's, at a place called Wills' Swamp, about nine miles southwest of the late military post of St. Nicholas, and having the following lines and dimensions, and, at the time of the survey thereof, having had the following boundaries, that is to say: the first line begins at the gum tree, and runs west, 50 chains, to a pine tree, and was bounded by vacant lands; the second line runs from the said pine tree north, 50 chains, to an ash tree, and was bounded by vacant land; the third line runs from the said ash tree east, 50 chains, to a pine tree, and was bounded by vacant land; and the fourth line runs from the said pine tree south, 50 chains, to the place of beginning, and was bounded by vacant land, as will more fully and distinctly appear by a reference to the original plat of the survey thereof by George J. F. Clarke, the surveyor general of East Florida, bearing date May 3, 1817, now here submitted and filed, and marked exhibit A. And your memorialist further sheweth that the said tract or parcel of land was originally granted to one David S. Miller, without condition, and in absolute property, March 18, 1817, by Don José Coppering, the governor of East Florida, as will and at large appear by a reference to a certified copy of the grant thereof to the said David S. Miller, now here submitted, and marked exhibit B; and that the said David S. Miller afterwards, that is to say, on January 25, 1822, bargained and sold the said tract of land to your memorialist for a valuable consideration paid to him by your memorialist, and agreed, by articles of agreement under his hand, bearing date the day and year last aforesaid, to convey, by a regular and sufficient conveyance, the said tract of land to your memorialist whenever he should be thereto required, which will more fully and at large appear by a reference to the original articles of agreement between your memorialist and the said David S. Miller, now here submitted and filed, and marked "exhibit C;" and memorialist further sheweth that the said David S. Miller was at the time of the cession of this Territory to the United States an inhabitant of East Florida, and a subject of the King of Spain; and that your memorialist was, before and at the time he so purchased the said land as aforesaid from the said David S. Miller, an inhabitant and settler of East Florida, and that he has continued ever since to be, and now is, such an inhabitant and settler; wherefore, he prays confirmation of his title to the said tract of land and its appurtenances, conformably to the acts of Congress in such case made and provided; and he will, as in duty bound, ever pray, &c., &c.

FRANCISCO P. SANCHEZ,
By his attorney, JOHN DRYSDALE.

[Here follows the translation of the concession made by Governor Coppering to David S. Miller of the two hundred and fifty acres, dated March 18, 1817.]

[Here follows the translation of the certificate and plat of survey by George J. F. Clarke of the two hundred and fifty acres, dated May 3, 1817.]

[Here follows a conveyance from Miller to claimant, dated January 25, 1822.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant in this case produced to the board an unconditional concession made by Governor Coppinger to David S. Miller, dated March 18, 1817, for the two hundred and fifty acres, together with a survey thereof. The grantee, on January 25, 1822, sold and conveyed the land to claimant. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to Sanchez and his heirs. December 20.

No. 120.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Francis Julian Avice vs. The United States. For one hundred and fifteen acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Francis Julian Avice respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of one hundred and fifteen acres, situated on the river Matanzas, bounded north by lands of Hippolite Carter, west by vacant lands, and east by the river Matanzas; which title your memorialist derives from a grant and survey filed herewith, marked A and B, made to Aysick Travers, a free black, by the Spanish government; November 10, in the year 1803, in virtue of the royal order of the King of Spain dated October 29, 1790; which title is acquired through a purchase made by said F. J. Avice from Lewis Salomon July 30, 1821, who purchased said land from said Aysick Travers. And your memorialist further showeth that he is actually legally seized and possessed of said land; that he is a citizen of the United States and resident of the city of St. Augustine. He also exhibits the conveyance from Aysick to said Lewis Salomon, marked P, and the conveyance from said Lewis Salomon to your memorialist, marked Q. All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. J. AVICE.

[Here follows a concession from Governor White to Aysick, a free black, of the hundred and fifteen acres, (translated,) dated November 10, 1803.]

[Here follows a royal title in confirmation of the concession made by Governor Coppinger to Aysick Travers, and dated June 18, 1821.]

[Here follows a translation of the certificate and plat of survey of the hundred and fifteen acres made by Andres Burgevin, and dated June 14, 1821.]

[Here follows a translation of the conveyance from Aysick Travers to Lewis Salomon, dated June 20, 1821.]

[Here follows a translation of the conveyance from Lewis Salomon to claimant, dated July 30, 1821.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

In this case the claimant produced a concession from Governor White to Aysick, a free black, dated November 10, 1803, for the land; likewise a plat of the same. Although the confirmation of the grant by a royal title, which was also exhibited, bears date subsequent to January 24, 1818, the board deem the grant a valid one, and confirm it to claimant and his heirs. September 3, 1824.

Francis J. Avice vs. The United States. Claim for one hundred and fifteen acres of land.

Francis Ferreira, being duly sworn, states that he knew Aysick Travers to have possession of the said tract, and lived on the same. Witness states that he was at the house of said Travers about the year 1808 or 1809, and that the claimant had made considerable improvements on the land; that the said Travers was obliged to abandon the same in the year 1812, on account of the revolution, and returned thereon when the province was pacified, and remained until the change of flags. Witness further states that said Travers had dwelling-houses on said land.

FRANCISCO FERREIRA.

Joseph M. Hernandez vs. The United States. Claim for four hundred and fifty-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain the claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The memorial of Joseph M. Hernandez, of St. Augustine, East Florida, respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land of four hundred and fifty-five acres, situated at the Northwest creek, a branch of the river Matanzas, otherwise called Pelisser's creek, bounded on the south by said creek, and on the other sides by pine barren. The first line begins at a pine marked H, and runs north 20° west, 95 chains 48 links, to another pine marked H; the second line runs thence south 35° west, 47 chains 47 links, to another pine marked H; the third line runs thence south 20° east, 108 chains, to another pine marked H; fourth line runs north 35° east, 47 chains 74 links, to the pine whence the first line began. The aforesaid tract of land was originally granted to McHenry McHenry, who, having abandoned, and his right therein forfeited, it was then granted to your memorialist, December 12, 1815, by the then acting governor, Don Juan José de Estrada; and by a decree of December 12, 1817, a royal title was granted to your memorialist by Governor Coppinger to the said tract of land, by virtue of the royal order of March 29, 1815, as will appear by said royal title, dated April 23, 1817, recorded in the office of public records kept by Mr. William Reynolds, of this place, as well as by the survey of said tract of land made by Robert McHardy, dated September 4, 1818, also in same office. And your memorialist further showeth that he has been in uninterrupted possession since December 12, 1815, aforementioned. St. Augustine, November 25, 1823.

JOSEPH M. HERNANDEZ.

[Here follows a royal title (translated) made by Governor Coppering to claimant for the four hundred and fifty-five acres, dated April 23, 1815, in virtue of the royal order of 1815.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The board having ascertained the above to be a valid Spanish grant, do therefore confirm it to claimant.

J. and Emanuel Ormand vs. The United States. Claim for two thousand acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of James and Emanuel Ormand respectfully showeth: That your memorialists claim title to a tract of land, consisting of two thousand acres, situated at a place called Damatta, on the Halifax river, and bounded on the south by lands of Robert McHardy, on the east by vacant lands, on the north by lands of Robert Bennett, and on the west by the public road, (see a plat thereof filed herewith;) which title your memorialists derive from a royal title made to them as heirs of James Ormand, deceased, by Governor Coppering, in virtue of the royal order of 1790. And your memorialists further show that they are in actual possession of said lands, and have been since 1807; they reside on said lands, and did so at the change of flags.

J. & EMANUEL ORMAND,
By GEO. MURRAY.

[Here follows the translation of the royal title made by Governor Coppering to James Ormand, deceased, of the two thousand acres, dated April 18, 1816, in virtue of the royal order of 1790.]

[Here follows the translation of the plat and certificate of survey by R. McHardy of the land, dated February 19, 1816.]

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimants, as heirs at law of James Ormand, deceased, exhibit to the board a royal title for the two thousand acres, made by Governor Coppering, dated April 18, 1816, together with a survey thereof. In consideration whereof, we confirm the title to claimants and their heirs. December 20.

No. 123.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Mary Ann Davis vs. The United States. For one hundred and seventy-five acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of Mary Ann Davis respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land containing one hundred and seventy-five acres, situated, lying, and being in an island called Key Buskun; which title your memorialist derived from a grant made to Peter Fornills by Governor White on the eighteenth day of January, eighteen hundred and five, who settled the same agreeable to the conditions of the grant, and was compelled to abandon the settlement on account of the war between Great Britain and Spain; and your memorialist further states that Peter Fornills died shortly after, and that his widow was not able to continue the settlement until her death, which took place about the year 1820, and that the said tract of land has always been claimed by Raphael Andrews, her son and legal heir, as his property, ever since; and that your memorialist purchased the same from the said Raphael Andrews, as will appear from a certified copy of the conveyance herewith presented, and dated July 12, 1824. And your memorialist further showeth that she is legally in possession of the said land; that she is a citizen of the United States and resident of this city. All which is respectfully submitted. St. Augustine, July 23, 1824.

MARY ANN DAVIS.

[Here follows the translation of the concession by Governor White of the one hundred and seventy-five acres to Peter Fornills, dated January 18, 1805.]

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's:

The deposition of Peter Miranda, taken before Elias B. Gould, a justice of the peace for the county of St. John's aforesaid, September 29, 1824:

Peter Miranda, being sworn, says that he was acquainted with Peter Fornills, and knows he obtained a grant for Key Buskun from Governor White about twenty years ago, and that he bought a schooner in St. Augustine for the purpose of taking possession of said key; that deponent was afterwards told by the said Fornills that he had been on said key, and had taken possession thereof; that he purchased the schooner about the time he (Fornills) obtained the grant from Governor White. And deponent further says that Peter Fornills has been dead a number of years; that after his death the property descended to the wife of him, (the said Fornills,) and after her death it went into the possession of Raphael Andrews, her son and legal heir, who transferred it to the present claimant.

TERRITORY OF FLORIDA, County of St. John's:

The deposition of Bartolo Pounce, taken before Elias B. Gould, a justice of the peace for the county aforesaid, October 1, 1824:

Bartolo Pounce, being sworn, says that he recollects that his (deponent's) father and one Peter Fornills left St. Augustine about twenty years ago to settle Key Buskun. Deponent thinks he was about ten years old; when deponent's father and Peter Fornills had returned deponent heard his father say that they had settled Key Buskun, and had remained there some time, but that they were obliged to abandon the island in consequence of the war between Great Britain and Spain; deponent says his father has been dead about twelve years, and that Pedro Fornills is also dead; deponent has always understood that Key Buskun was Peter Fornills' property; that when he died the property went to his wife, and after the death of Mrs. Fornills it went to her son, Raphael Andrews, and the said Andrews sold the said island to the present claimant.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of John D. Vaughan respectfully showeth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land situated and being in Amelia island, and containing two hundred and fifty acres, which, by the survey of Don John Purcell, has the following metes and bounds, to wit: north 47° east, 90 chains, then north 80° east, 55 chains, and bounded on the west by marsh, and on the north by lands of Antonio Suarez, on the south by lands of John Edwards, and on the east by vacant lands; which title your memorialist derives from a grant made to your memorialist by the Spanish government, March 4, 1797, in virtue of the royal order of the year 1790, and by your memorialist having resided on the said land the number of years required by the government of Florida, obtained, June 18, 1821, from Governor Coppering complete titles for said land; all which matters, as above stated, being fully shown by the accompanying document, marked A. Your memorialist further states that he is now, and has been for many years, a resident of Florida, and was such at the cession of the Territory to the government of the United States. And your memorialist prays that your honorable board will confirm his title to the said tract of land.

JNO. D. VAUGHAN,
By his agent, E. R. GIBSON.

ST. AUGUSTINE DE LA FLORIDA, March 1, 1797.

John Daniel Vaughan supplicates your excellency that you would grant to him the number of acres of land that may correspond to the number of his family, on Amelia island, on vacant land to the north of the lands solicited by Don John Edwards; which favor he hopes to obtain from the goodness of your excellency.

JUAN D. VAUGHAN.

The GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 2, 1797.

Let the commandant of engineers report.

WHITE.

SEÑOR GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF: There is no objection to the petitioner establishing himself on the land which he solicits on the island of Amelia, if it meets the approbation of your excellency; but, as there may hereafter be reasons why the government should wish to remove the inhabitants from the island to the land on the river St. John's, it ought to be on condition that the petitioner should have no claim on the royal treasury for damages on account of such removal. This is what I have to inform your excellency, that you may act as is agreeable to you. St. Augustine, March 3, 1797.

PEDRO DIAS BERRIO.

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 4, 1797.

Let there be granted to the petitioner the land which he solicits, without prejudice to a third person, according to the number of his family, and to the precise condition of conforming himself to the foregoing exposition of not claiming any damages if the service of the King should require that he leave the island and retire to land on the St. John's.

WHITE.

The certificate was given. "RENGILE."

I certify that the above is a true translation of the accompanying document, marked A, purporting to be a copy of the memorial and concession of a tract of land in Amelia island to John D. Vaughan.

F. J. FATIO, S. B. L. C.

[Translation.]

In virtue of the commission conferred on me by Don Henry White, political and military governor of this province, October 7, 1803, I certify that I have, in the presence of the Captains Don Ferdinand de la Puente and Don Santiago Cashen, surveyed and laid off for Don John D. Vaughan a tract of land containing two hundred and fifty acres, and situated on Amelia island, and bounded on the west by marsh, on the north by lands of Antonio Suarez, on the south by lands of John Edwards, and on the east by vacant lands, whose figure and boundaries are as shown in the accompanying plat; and in confirmation thereof I sign the above in the island of Amelia, December 14, 1807.

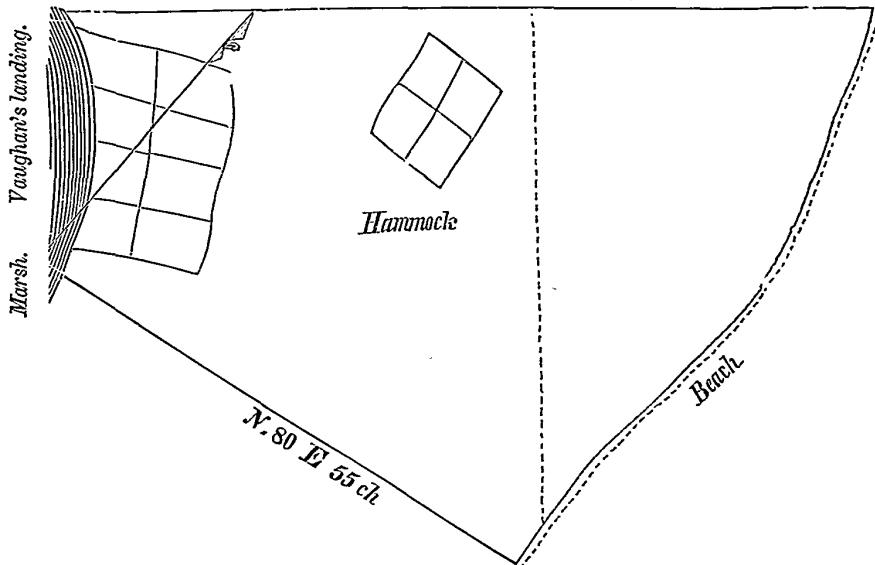

JOHN PURCELL.

FERNANDINA DE LA PUNTA.

I certify the above to be a correct translation of the certificate of survey by J. Purcell of two hundred and fifty acres of land for Don John D. Vaughan.

DECREE BY THE BOARD.

The claimant exhibited to the board a concession without condition for the land by Governor White, dated March 4, 1797; likewise a survey; in consideration whereof, we confirm the same to him and his heirs. July 14, 1824.

No. 125.—REPORT No. 1.—1824.

Gabriel W. Perpall vs. The United States. Claim for sixteen acres of land.

MEMORIAL.

To the honorable the commissioners appointed to ascertain claims and titles to lands in East Florida:

The petition of G. W. Perpall respectfully sheweth: That your memorialist claims title to a tract of land consisting of sixteen acres, situated about one mile to the north of the gate of this town, bounded on the north by the lands formerly of Peter Triay, and on the west by St. Nicholas road; the first line runs north 75° east, 12 chains, to a stake; the second line, thence south 21° east, $15\frac{1}{2}$ chains, to another stake; third line, thence south 75° west, 9 chains, to another stake; fourth line, thence north 31° west, $15\frac{1}{2}$ chains, to another stake, where the first line began; which title your memorialist derives from a concession made
